BECK AND 'CAM' WILSON DIFFER IN STATEMENTS REGARDING NOMINATION

He's Coming In," Says President: "Wilson's Too Zealous," Beck Replies.

TORY ROW BREWING

addites and Dennises, Tired of Inaction, May Start Something.

Two bountiful treats are in store for the people of this riding who are long enough—the millennium and an official pronouncement from Sir Adam Beck. Last night's special party of the Tory executive seems more or less non-productive despite the attractive picture painted by "President" J. Cameron Wilson, who could not and the rate payers advancing in mass formation toward the headquarters, cheering wildly and throwing their hats in the air.

Cameron was quite excited about the whole affair. There will be an announcement tomorrow that "will knock the people off their feet," he declared enthusiastically. Then Sir Adam came down the hall, with his trusty shield-bearer Aid. William Wilson, to proclaim "no announcement for a week."

And Sir Adam "pulled stakes" at once today for a more sympathetic audience at the provincial capital—tomorrow's gathering of "hydro" chiefs and defenders.

Just before he left he notified the advertiser, however, in effect, that "President" Wilson is somewhat over-zealous in his efforts and premature in his announcements.

"I have no decision to announce today as to my contemplated candidature," Sir Adam declared definitely. "I am leaving for Toronto at noon."

"I may have a meeting of hydro representatives from the several municipalities to attend there tomorrow," Sir Adam believed that he would be in a position to give some idea of his intentions before the week closes.

Sir Adam's temporary retirement from the local ring is particularly significant and the continued delay as far apart as the Highlands and the Tory party.

Showing Down Failed.

Heralded as a "show-down" last night's gathering of the ward whips and headquarters staff failed miserably if the proposal was to stampede the nominees into the arena.

While Ald. Albert Judd and Ald. Gordon Drake and others persistently urged that there is so much delay and urge Sir Adam to do one thing or the other, for the good of the party, the latter apparently quite well his precarious position.

He is afraid to enter the field for two reasons. In the first place, and this is highly important, he fears the reputation of his defeat of 1919. It is only natural that he would desire some reasonable assurance of victory.

Victim Charges Sergeant Shot at Him Deliberately During Set-To.

Special to The Advertiser.

Brockville, June 5.—The condition of Bernard Scott, the 21-year-old whiskey runner shot by Canadian National Railway Police Sergeant Walton, last night, near here, was reported this morning at the general hospital, to be unchanged. The bullet had been located in the left shoulder, when it traveled from the right side of the back above the second rib, and it is not expected that an attempt will be made to remove it.

Walton has been released by authorities until called upon. The statement of Scott made to the crown authorities regarding the shooting was released this morning as follows:

"Boarded moving train at Coteau Junction, coming from Valleyfield, and had eighteen bottles of Scotch in a bag; saw Wetherall and chief of police at Cornwall; was chased but got back on same car. At Rock Cut, one mile east of Brockville, Walton boarded the train and chased one of the men out. Walton had a gun in his hand. Walton had men with him and he said, 'Come on, fellows.' One of his party was following and shooting at a hobnob. I got over side of the car and hung to ladder till train stopped. I got off car and saw something buzz, and then I fell."

"Walton was the first over the fence and asked me where I was hit and it was hit bad. I could not speak."

"Walton called for some of his men to pull me over the fence. Walton said that he felt and the gun was in his hand. He did not reply. Walton got me four months later. Walton got my whiskey running. I make the foregoing statement, knowing that I am in bad condition and may not recover."

City Liberal Convention On Thursday Evening Will Be One of Best In History

Half a Dozen Strong Candidates Ready To Redeem City.

NO STALLING THERE

Liberal Organization Already Under Way and Campaign Will Start at Once.

Every Liberal in London is waiting for Thursday night, when in Hyman Hall a Liberal candidate will be chosen in open convention.

The definite announcement of the convention date, following the organization work of the ward chairmen, has sounded the Liberal battle cry, and throughout the city Liberals are discussing the choice of the representative who is to lead the party on June 25.

From comment heard in various parts of the city this morning it seems probable that at least half a dozen names will be suggested by the convention and that some good-natured rivalry will result before the final choice is made.

R. L. Brackin, the popular Liberal member for West Kent, who will be one of the speakers at Thursday's convention.

There is a belief in some circles this morning that Sir Adam Beck will postpone his decision another few days, until the Liberal candidate is chosen, although the announcement is not at all likely to encourage him at all to take the plunge. Sir Adam has been standing in a shiver on the living board too long now. The water is getting colder every minute, and if he's going in at all, it begins to look as though someone will have to shove him from behind.

SHRINERS PRESENT COLORFUL PICTURE AT U. S. CAPITAL

Nobles of Mystic Shrine March Two Miles Over "Burning Sands."

IS VIVID SPECTACLE

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, June 5.—Pennsylvania avenue, scene of many historic pageants, probably never presented a more colorful picture than it did today as 20,000 nobles of the mystic shrine marched over its two miles of "burning sands" from the capitol to Washington circle.

The procession moved through the "Garden of Allah," reproduced in front of the White House, it was reviewed by the president, Noble Warren G. Harding, and Imperial Potentate George S. McCandless of Honolulu.

This parade, one of the four planned for the 49th annual convention of the shriners, which got under way today, was designed as the big spectacle of the gathering of the nobles, and it proved all of that. The long line of marchers presented a riot of color that for vividness and contrast scarcely could have been surpassed.

Each of the stores of temples in the line had its own band and each apparently sought to outdo its immediate neighbors, with a result that there was no lack of music. Contributing to the vast volume of music was almost every conceivable kind of a movable musical instrument, from the pipes of Bagdad to the modern circus callopie, the latter contributed by the Wichita, Kansas, temple.

Many of the temples had "added attractions." San Francisco presented a horn-headed "dragon" a quarter of a block long, with attendants in Chinese costume and a "trainer" who caused it to perform many fantastic gyrations.

After the pageant had run its course, the first session of the imperial council was opened, with President Harding delivering the principal address of welcome.

An X-ray taken this morning showed that the boy has a compound fracture in his leg and the bones have been set temporarily. It is not thought that he received internal injuries.

Drs. W. J. Tillman and W. J. Stevenson are in attendance.

Two London Women Express Absolutely Different Opinions.

Write The Advertiser a Letter Giving Your Own Idea About Curls.

Sweet Daddy! Look what a shivery spring did to one young artist's fancy.

Tep, Toot's—Casper's hair half in the cartoons—has combed out her cute ear bangs, and Monsieur Jams Mais Moorphe, the noted hair dresser, has "fluffed her all up."

Toots looks so new that she even gives Buttercup—the beautiful "dancer"—a real "da-da" thrill.

She fooled her "hubby" right off the reel, Casper kissing her with even more than customary pep, and "covering up" just in time to avoid a household storm.

Casper feels a bit sore at Cartoonist Jimmy Murphy for disguising his wife, even if the hair-dressing job was cleverly done by Monsieur Moorphe. It nearly got the aforesaid Casper into a bad jam. And any thrifty husband knows that fluffy hair will cost more than Buttercup's castor oil or soothing syrup.

"What do you think of pretty Toots' new fluffy hair?" Is it becoming?

Toots is in doubt herself. #### DELORME STANDS A SECOND TRIAL ON MURDER COUNT

Definite Announcement That Priest Will Appear To Face Old Charge.

Associated Press Despatch.

Montreal, June 5.—Definite announcement that Rev. Adalbert Delorme will stand trial on a charge of murdering his half-brother Raoul, at the term of the court of Kings Bench now in session was made this morning by R. L. Calder, crown prosecutor.

Mr. Calder said Mr. Justice Wilson, who is trial judge at the court of Kings Bench, would hear most of the cases on the docket. He was leaving for England at the end of June. Another judge would be appointed to clean up the cases. Among them would be that of Abbe Delorme, which Mr. Justice Wilson cannot hear because he was engaged as counsel when the priest was before the court's last year.

In this way the impasse caused by the demand of the crown prosecutor that the priest's case be heard this June, the inability of Justice Wilson to take it and the unwillingness of the authorities to appoint a special judge to sit in his place for one case, has been solved.

WIDOW OF SMALL MAY NOW SWEAR HUSBAND IS DEAD

High Court Decision Admits Millionaire's Will to Probate.

HAVE NO WITNESS

Lawyer Argues Not Necessary To Await Seven Years' Proof of Death.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 5.—The appellate division of the high court gave judgment today permitting Mrs. Ambrose Small to swear to an affidavit declaring her husband to be dead.

This affidavit is preliminary to probating the will of the missing Toronto millionaire. At the trial Judge Coatsworth found against the petition of Mrs. Small and the judgment today reverses his decision.

The appellate judge expressed the opinion that Ambrose Small was dead or, in any event every reasonable effort had failed to locate him. As a result of this decision, the will of Mr. Small will be admitted to probate.

Ambrose Small, Toronto theatre owner and millionaire, disappeared in December, 1919, and has not been heard of since, despite all efforts to locate him. A reward of $50,000 was offered by Mrs. Small for information regarding his whereabouts. His estate totals in the neighborhood of $2,000,000.

The provision that Mrs. Small give full security for all money derived by the will, Mr. Tilley, K.C., representing Mrs. Small, and A. G. Stacht, K.C., appearing for the sisters, argued the appeal before Chief Justice Meredith and judging justices in the appellate court.

Mr. Tilley argued that, under the law, it was not necessary to await the usual seven years' proof of death, as the efforts made to find the missing Ambrose Small had been carried to such extremes as to preclude the possibility of his being alive. "No witness has been brought forward to prove that Small is alive," said the counsel.

"Even if the evidence does not point to his death, that doesn't make him dead, injected Justice Riddell, who was inclined to hesitate to take action.

Re-elected Secretary.
Rev. Robert Hicks of St. Thomas was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the stationing fund, and the appreciation of the conference was expressed for his valuable services during the past year. Rev. A. W. Barker of Kincardine, gave the report of the superannuation committee. Rev. George T. Watts of London moved a resolution that all clergymen who had served during the war be allowed to sign after their names the initials of the awards of valor won during active service.

Two other well-known pastors applied for superannuation, which was granted. Rev. D. N. McCamus of Clinton retired after 46 years of service, and Rev. W. G. H. McAllister of Exeter retired after 42 years' service. Both expect to make their homes in London.

Chairmen of Districts.
Early this afternoon the chairman for the various districts were elected as follows: London, Rev. W. E. Millson; Stratford, Rev. E. W. Edwards; Wingham, Rev. C. F. Clark; Goderich, Rev. J. E. Holmes; Exeter, Rev. G. W. Rivers; Strathroy, Rev. W. K. Hagar; Sarnia, Rev. J. E. J. Millard; Windsor, Rev. J. W. Hibbert; Chatham, Rev. A. E. Jones; Ridgeway, Rev. A. S. Whitehall; St. Thomas, Rev. Following a small amount of routine business, the president made a short address, touching on the work of the past week, offered prayer for success in the activities of the church during the coming year, and at 2 o'clock the London Methodist conference of 1923 was adjourned.

The place for meeting of the conference for next year was left in the hands of the conference committee. Strong representation was made by the Windsor delegates, and it is thought the sessions will likely be held in Central Church of that city.

F. HOWARD FETHERSTON BURIED THIS AFTERNOON
Popular Young London Resident Laid to Rest in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Although the day was swelteringly warm the funeral of F. Howard Fetherston, popular member of the staff of the London Life Insurance Company, who died on Sunday morning, was attended by a large number of friends and relatives from London and other cities and towns in the province this afternoon.

The many floral offerings that banked the side of the room in which the remains lay at his home, 241 Hyman street, gave evidence in a small measure of the place Mr. Fetherston held in the hearts of his friends and acquaintances in this district.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. D. C. MacGregor, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the assistant pastor, Rev. F. W. K. Harris, conducted the services at the home and at Mount Pleasant Cemetery, where interment took place.

The pallbearers were Gordon Tennant, Frederick Brickenden, James Orr, Charles Ivey, George Copeland and Melville Dale.

Mr. Fetherston passed away suddenly following an operation for appendicitis. He was a former manager of the Heintzman Music Store in the city, and was classed among London's finest tennis players.

CHESLEY AVENUE CADETS ARE BEST, SAYS INSPECTOR

Embryo Soldiers Make a Fine Showing at the Local Armories.

GILLESPIE IS PLEASED

Chesley avenue school cadets are his smartest and most efficient in the city, according to Lieut.-Col. Gillespie of the headquarters staff, who has been inspecting the boys in the armories for the last two days. There are three battalions of school cadets in the city composed of thirteen corps, under the command of H. A. Secord, cadet brigadier. On Monday morning the first battalion consisting of Empress Avenue, Ryerson, Wortley Road, Alexandra, Riverview and Talbot schools were inspected, and the Empress Avenue corps was judged the best on parade. Yesterday the second battalion went through the paces, and Lord Roberts' school came through with flying colors and first place in the battalion.

Today the third battalion were on parade, and after a careful and minute inspection by Lieut.-Col. Gillespie, Chesley avenue corps were announced the best in London. Speaking to the winners the colonel said: "Officers and cadets of the Chesley avenue cadet corps. Your drill today coming at the conclusion of the annual inspection of the various corps in the city, has given me very great pleasure. You as a corps have shown keenness in your work, and that is the supreme need for every kind of cadet corps work. You have made a smart showing on the parade, and a ready response to the commands of your officers that is especially pleasing to me."

All in Uniform.
"As I said yesterday to the first and second battalions, I hope to see you all in uniform by this time next year. And I want, if possible, to arrange a real field day for you in the autumn. As regards drill, I am pleased with the results obtained by your instructors, but I know what busy men they are, and for their benefit as much as for yours, I want to offer you the services of our staff drill instructors. There are plenty of men with us who would be glad to help you in your work, and I shall be glad to arrange for you to have the very best instruction that can be offered if the schools would like the headquarters staff to help them in this way."

Chesley Avenue Cadet Corps turned out in full strength, and 78 out of 84 boys in the school were on parade in the ranks of the winning corps. They were trained by H. A. Secord, and the officers are: Captain, Arthur Cooke; 1st Platoon, Arthur Tingle; 2nd Platoon, Will Powell; 4th Platoon, Stanley Collier.

Competing schools in the 3rd Battalion, who were inspected this morning in the Armories were: Boyle Memorial, Rectory Street and Chesley Avenue.

Summer Camp.
The school cadet corps will take part in the summer camp held on the heights in the middle of June. The boys, though not in any regular uniform, made a smart and businesslike appearance. They took interest in their work, and seemed to appreciate the importance of alertness and attention when on parade. The commanders gave their commands with an assurance that many a nervous young subaltern in 1914 might have envied and the improvement in the walk of the boys was very evident. With the help of drill sergeants from headquarters, the boys should get used to the drill and soon compare favorably with the best of the Ottawa and Toronto can offer. As Col. Gillespie said of the word of a cadet corps, "It helps the boys to keep themselves neat and smart looking. It teaches them to be alert and ready for any eventuality and it gives them the foundation of character on which to build their lives. In later life they will find the very qualities commended by their instructors are the ones most in request by employers. And when the man of tomorrow applies for some kind of employment, it will be the boy with the best record for work, as much in the school corps as in the schoolroom, that will be most eagerly sought after."

LONDON MOTOR CLUB WARNS OF ALTERATION

The London Motor Club issues the following warning to all motor car owners in regard to the road going to St. Thomas and Port Stanley:

The paved road just south of Lambton has been closed to traffic to permit of the construction of a new bridge, and it will be necessary that all traffic going south detour at the main corner of Lambeth Village and go west 1½ miles to the next corner, and then south 1½ miles to the paved road.

"It will take about six to eight weeks to build the new bridge, and for this period of time all through traffic must follow the detour. The London Motor Club has made protest to the department of highways in Toronto against closing this road, as they have, and made the suggestion that a temporary bridge be erected over the shallow creek alongside the new bridge construction, but the department has not taken any action on the request."

TWO LONDONERS ARE ELIMINATED IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Miss Marion Beck Loses to Mrs. Rowe After Close Match.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Brantford, June 5.—There were no great surprises recorded in the early matches for the championship flight at the Ontario ladies' tournament here this morning. Weather conditions were in favor of the players, although on some of the holes a strong wind played havoc with the wooden shots, carrying them into the rough or out of bounds, and other good scores were spoiled by penalties.

Returning to Toronto today Sir Adam trusts that he will learn, if not from Messrs. Drury and Payne themselves, by devious routes what action of the U. F. O. administration at Toronto would pursue once it was known that Sir Adam burnt all his bridges behind him and leaped into the local ring.

Must Decide.
In the opinion of Mayor Wenige today the "people would not stand it for a minute if Sir Adam was to retain chairmanship of the council while he sought provincial honors."

This is no time, argues Mayor Wenige for Sir Adam to play any "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" game. He must do one thing or the other.

And this is what sends Sir Adam to Toronto today. He seeks the friendly circle of the hydro representatives, and he hopes to learn what fate is in store for him at the hands of Mr. Drury. After that—the decision.

His worship had the stage set for a final show-down tonight. While Beck supporters in the council, in the person of Ald. Wiley, A. Wilson, Ald. John Greer and others, believed, according to Ald. Gordon Drake, that they could stall along the paylist squabble until after the election, or until at least it would be too late to injure Sir Adam's chances, the members of the executive were evidently fearful of the consequences and ruled otherwise.

Ald. Drake issued the warning a week ago that the ratepayers of East and Southeast London were up in arms because the pay list was not available, and his words have taken root in fertile soil.

Surrender!
From Sir Adam himself comes the advice today that the paylist is going forward to the council as requested by the mayor, and before the aldermen will have had opportunity to consider Mayor Wenige's proposal to amend him and his colleagues, Percy Moore and Frank Harley.

Hardly would the mayor now continue his fight for their elimination, they reason, now that the paylist is at hand, although Mayor Wenige may even yet adopt the stand that retribution at the last minute does not deserve total forgiveness.

The promised receipt of the paylists at the city hall is regarded as the first obvious sign of weakening within the Tory lines. They have harkened to the clarion call from the outlying subdivisions, where yesterday afternoon Ald. Drake and his Tory followers came boldly in the open for a "show-down," that "Sir

BECK AND 'CAM' WILSON DIFFER IN STATEMENTS REGARDING NOMINATION

Adam's contemplated retirement from the Port Stanley Commission would be a fatal blow to the party on the eve of election. But it's not all smooth sailing in Tory seas just yet. While the several factions of the party were somewhat appeased yesterday afternoon by the assurance that a definite answer was coming last night from Sir Adam, they find themselves more involved than ever.

Time waits for no man, not even a Conservative candidate, and Ald. Judd has already stated very clearly that he, for one, does not propose to be any eleventh hour nominee in the event that Sir Adam decides he doesn't care for any desert.

Then again there are those who question sharply the hasty decision of the executive that the paylist should be handed over without further opposition. This is a decided move backward, assert those who would fight Mayor Wenige to a standstill even if the London and Port Stanley tangle is projected into the provincial arena, as now seems inevitable despite today's development.

It looks as though there will be a pretty row in the Tory camp before many hours have elapsed, and there are those who even now openly urge the retirement of Sir Adam from the ring forthwith, to allow E. R. Dennis or Albert Judd access to the reviewing stand.

"President" Wilson was in a playful mood this morning, despite last night's grueling session. "Is Mayor Wenige coming in?" he questioned, "or does he find the water a trifle cool. Of course he may feel that he hasn't finished his work at the city hall yet—that 'show-down' with the City Gas Company and so forth. Then, of course, he may not have had any demand yet from the citizens as a whole to go to Toronto."

Associated Press Despatch.

HOMER PIGEON VISITS FARMER AT MELROSE

J. A. Clare Believes It Belongs to Member of Hamilton Club.

A gray homer pigeon has alighted at the farm of J. A. Clare at Melrose village, and is evidently content to make Melrose its home unless it is claimed by its owner. Mr. Clare, in describing his feathered guest, said that it carries a leg band marked with a small triangle and several distinct numerals, and he stated that he thought it might possibly be one of the homing pigeons turned loose by the Hamilton Homing Pigeon Club at Chatham on June 3.

The Hamilton Club turned loose a flock of 500 pigeons as one of the yearly contests of the club, and it is just possible that one of the birds missed his bearings in making the take off after rising at Chatham.

Mr. Clare does not know the address of the club at Hamilton, but states that he is prepared to forward the pigeon as soon as the owner can identify the bird by sending the correct leg band number.

METHODISTS URGE RESTRICTIONS ON DANCE HALLS

METHODISTS AID TO STOP DANCING AT EARLY HOURS

Delegates at Sarnia Indorse the Efforts of Huron Social Service.

BROADCASTS APPEAL

Interpretive Dancing, However, Is Not To Be Condemned, Say Clergymen.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, June 5.—When Monday afternoon London Methodist Conference delegates arrived here to discuss the hours at which dance halls should be closed, the delegates at Sarnia Indorse the efforts of the Huron Social Service.

The resolution supporting the Social Service Council in its effort to close dance halls at 11:30 p.m. was adopted by a large majority. The delegates also passed a resolution that dance halls be closed at 11:30 p.m. and that they close at 11:30 p.m. on Friday night they remain closed until Monday.

The Social Service Council of Huron is appealing to all denominations for aid in its work in this county. The conference also unanimously adopted the following resolution: "Resolved, that the committee on evangelism and social service note with concern the objectionable influence of the modern dance, especially in its effect upon the lives of the students in our schools and other young people of the county. We urge all our people to aid by their sympathy and support the large number of parents and teachers who are seeking to give wise Christian direction to the social activities of youth, and we request school boards by regulation and direction to exercise such oversight that parents and teachers are not intruding children to their care."

"We further express the hope that all concerned will spare no proper care or expense to make provision for the recreation and amusements of our young people."

The wisdom of passing this resolution was explained by John Elliott, of London, retiring high school principal. Some delegates wanted to include folk dancing, but Rev. Robert Hicks of St. Thomas raised strenuous objections, and the committee decided that folk dancing should not be included in the resolution. Rev. Hicks said he thought such dancing was wholesome and helpful, and he wondered how it was possible after all to define what is evil and what is good in dancing.

The report also contained words of congratulation to Rev. W. E. McGee, who had been elected to the presidency of the conference. Another paragraph dealt with the need for a home in Windsor, Ontario, which will provide an asylum for wayward and unfortunate girls.

The Ontario temperance act and race track gambling were also discussed. Concerning the O. T. A. the report stated that Methodist people should not think that the battle for prohibition is over, and everyone was urged to uphold the act by vote and influence, to aid in every possible way in the proper enforcement of the law. The report again placed emphasis on the need for a home in Windsor, Ontario, which will provide an asylum for wayward and unfortunate girls.

Hold Young People's Rally.

The committee respectfully urged that the department of evangelism and social service persist in its efforts with the government to destroy this evil, and to urge that there be removed from the criminal code the privilege of conducting lotteries for religious and charitable purposes. This report supports in every particular the many points brought before the conference on Saturday by Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore.

In the evening a young people's rally was held at the Methodist Church under the auspices of the religious education committee. The retiring secretary, Rev. Byron Snell of Alvington, was in charge, and the pastor, Rev. W. E. Donnelly of Amherstburg, presided. The address was given by Miss Olive Ziegler of Alvington, who suggested various methods of coming in closer contact with young people in the Sunday schools. Rev. L. W. Reid of London gave the closing prayer on the subject, "Forces That Win."

PREDICT A. E. A. REA WILL RUN IN OXFORD

Political Interest In Woodstock Centres On Conservative Convention Thursday.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, June 4.—Local political interest now centres on the Conservative mass meeting to be held Thursday, when it is practically certain that Alderman E. A. Rea of Woodstock will be brought out as the Conservative candidate for South Oxford, making up one of the three-cornered fight in the riding.

The court of revision of the voters' list for the provincial election in the City of Woodstock opened today was a very quiet affair. In all only 51 appeals were entered by citizens wishing to have their names entered, and during the day about half of these were put on through the activities of the Liberal organization. In the afternoon, however, there was considerable interest. In West Zorra alone, the U.F.O. was responsible for the addition of 171 names, and in one subdivision of East Zorra, 21 were added.

JOHN PURVIS, former M.P. for Dufferin County, is seriously ill in Toronto.

ST. THOMAS RESIDENT SUES DETROIT DOCTOR

John Purvis Seeks To Recover $7,500 He Alleges To Have Invested.

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, June 4.—John Purvis, a resident of St. Thomas, Ont., has instituted a civil suit against Dr. Joseph Aarons, prominent Detroit physician, to recover $7,500, which he alleges he invested in the Michigan-Ohio Fuel Company. The company had a plan, Purvis says he was told by Dr. Aarons, who is head of the company, to make cheap but combustible fuel out of garbage. The deal was made in December of last year, it is said, at which time the St. Thomas man was in Detroit.

A capias issued by federal court charging fraud against Dr. Aarons was in the hands of the United States marshal here today. So far as is known it has not yet been served. According to attorneys in the case, Purvis waited for some time, and when he saw no indications of any "immense plan" being erected, he tried unsuccessfully to get his money returned. It is also charged that the Michigan-Ohio Fuel Company never received any authority from state securities commission to sell its stock in Michigan. Purvis is an employee of the Michigan Central Railroad, and the money he "invested" represented the savings of years.

COUNCIL MAY REQUEST INSPECTOR TO LEAVE

Lambton County Fathers Disfavor Increase In Traveling Expenses.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, June 4.—The June session of the Lambton County Council opened here this afternoon with Warden Nicholas Sitter in the chair, and the opening meeting saw a fair-sized part of the business program wiped off. The advisory board reported on a recent trip over the roads in the county, and it was set forth that with one or two exceptions they were in good condition. The cutting down of the hill and widening of the road at Hillsboro in Plympton was recommended and the straightening of the road through the Pinery in the north-western portion of the county was lauded. The request for increased traveling allowances made by Public School Inspector Henry Conn came under discussion and was referred back to the committee. Green of Sombra had remarked that if the committee and the inspector could not agree then a resignation should be tendered. Mr. Conn's resignation was heard at the close of the January session, but the inspector subsequently expressed dissatisfaction with the committee's action. Mr. Conn's resignation was deferred until later in the session.

EXPECT 300 WILL CONTEST RIDINGS OF THE PROVINCE

Up To the Present Time 273 Persons Have Entered As Candidates.

PREMIER SHELVED

Attack of Sore Throat Prevents Drury From Keeping Engagements.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 5.—With nomination day set for June 14, it is probable that 300 candidates will enter the final stage of the Ontario election campaign. Already 273 persons have been nominated by the three leading parties in the province and a number of independent organizations, the Conservatives leading the way, with 99 in the field. The United Farmer-Labor party has candidates in 84 of the 111 constituencies, and the Liberals are close behind with 72 nominated. There are 18 independents in the running.

In 62 constituencies, at least, there will be three-cornered fights, while in West Ottawa five candidates have been announced: two Conservatives, Liberal, Labor and an Independent. During the past week several candidates have withdrawn, leaving the battle between Farmer-Labor candidates, a representative of either the Liberal or Conservative parties. The latest defection is in East Kent, where G. E. Beynon, the Liberal nominee has withdrawn, leaving Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture in the Drury government, to fight it out with W. S. Beamish, Conservative.

To date three women have been nominated—Mrs. Groves and Mrs. Becker, United Farmer candidates in Toronto, and Mrs. E. O. Allen, representing the Liberals at Fort William. Three candidates so far are without opposition—W. F. Nickle, K.C., Conservative in Kingston; J. A. Mathieu, Conservative in Rainy River; and Hon. R. H. Grant, minister of education in Carleton.

The Premier's forces today sustained a severe loss, when it was announced that Premier Drury would not be able to fulfill his engagements during the next few days on account of a sore throat, which prevented him from speaking. Hon. W. E. Raney, attorney-general, will deputize for the prime minister.

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, June 4.—A young lad named Rourke, about 8 years of age, was drowned in the River Speed near Allan's bridge about 7 o'clock tonight. Rourke sank just as two men attracted to the scene got there. Help was immediately summoned. The body was not located until 8 o'clock, when it was found in the water. Every effort at resuscitation was made, but without avail, and doctors finally pronounced life extinct.

This is the first drowning accident of the season here. The drowned boy was highly thought of, and leaves his parents to mourn his loss.

Associated Press Despatch.

Morgan & Company, today received the latest first-hand report on conditions in Austria, brought from Vienna by Dr. Zimmermann, League of Nations' high commissioner for Austria. The bankers are completing the arrangements for floating a loan for Austria.

The fact that the Austrian currency has been the steadiest in Europe since its stabilization last September is encouraging. At the moment of launching this reconstruction loan, which is a form of international collaboration new in the world's history."

It was an extremely encouraging report Dr. Zimmermann had to make on Austria's rapid rehabilitation. General King has arranged for a military parade, and the evening will be games and athletics in the various parks and grounds. At Springfield it is proposed to have community games and singing by the children, who will be supplied with flags for the occasion. The committees are hoping to have a fireworks display in the evening in Queen's Park if it can be arranged.

DELIVERS ULTIMATUM TO TOWN OF MERRITTON

Superintendent of Radial Line Declares Franchise Is Too Burdensome.

Canadian Press Despatch.

St. Catharines, June 4.—A seven-cent fare on the local line of the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway, together with protection against buses and jitneys, is contained in an ultimatum to the town of Merritton by General Superintendent E. W. Oliver, who declares that otherwise he will recommend to the executive of this federal-owned road, that the existing franchise in the town be surrendered.

The franchise in question, has some six years to run. This franchise, declares Mr. Oliver, is so burdensome, imposing conditions as to fares, and paying of track allowances, that they will be unable to carry on. The proposal is for a new franchise under which the railway would pay for everything in excess of what it would cost the town if the tracks were not there. The proposal contains no mention of the $500 now paid by the town to the company. The council has taken a meeting of citizens for next Wednesday evening to discuss the terms of the new proposal.

METHODIST CONFERENCE ASKS BIRTH REGISTRATION

Brantford, June 4.—On the ground that the births of thousands of Protestant children in the province of Quebec were not being registered under the present system, the Montreal Methodist Conference today adopted a resolution petitioning the government of that province to bring into effect a more uniform system of civil registration, and compelling the registration of births within three days of the event. Rev. A. E. Kunnell, Montreal, who spoke in support of the resolution, confessed that he had not much hope of the measure being adopted by the government. No interference with religious registration of births was proposed, he said.

ARMENIANS MUST ACCEPT TURK RULE DECLARES ISMET

General Peele Pleads In Vain For Right of 100,000 People.

ACCEPTS FORMULA

Lausanne Conference Formally Agrees To Judicial Guarantees.

Associated Press Despatch.

Lausanne, June 5.—The British French and Italian governments having approved the formula for judicial guarantees relating to foreign residents in Turkey, the Near East Conference tonight accepted it formally, and Turkey will make a declaration agreeing to appoint four foreign advisers, without interfering with the functions of the magistrates.

The advisers will be authorized to follow all cases and make recommendations to the Turkish ministry of justice; they will receive complaints and must be informed promptly of all arrests and domiciliary searches. In deference to Turkish susceptibility the allies have agreed that there shall be no special mention of foreigners in the declaration, which applies to all residents in Turkey.

The allies originally wanted the advisers to have the power of vote in connection with the arrest of foreigners, but Ismet Pasha insisted that the declaration as a spontaneous act of the Turkish government showed how far Turkey was prepared to go to insure justice; he was doing it for her own sake, as well as for foreigners, and was not according to foreigners any special rights.

The second distinctive feature of tonight's session was Turkey's announcement that Armenians now inside of Turkey would not be allowed to return unless able to prove to the satisfaction of the authorities that they intended to accept the Turkish regime and live as good citizens.

General Peele, the French high commissioner, pleaded for the right of 100,000 Armenians to be present in French Syria to return, but Ismet refused, unless their good intentions could be established.

DETROIT BRETHREN LAUD WORK DONE BY LONDON TEAM

Local Oddfellows Confer First Degree On Diamond Lodge Members.

GUESTS AT BANQUET

One hundred London Oddfellows visited the Diamond Lodge at Detroit, Saturday afternoon, and conferred the first degree upon a large number of candidates.

Today this team is being highly discussed by Detroit members for the obvious merit of its work. London's first degree team, chosen from the various lodges in the city, and captained by H. Tufford, surprised the Detroit lodge with the manner in which they carried out their work.

The proceedings went through without a hitch, and Detroit members state that they did not realize that any lodge in Ontario had reached such a degree of proficiency.

PAISE HOSPITALITY

The Londoners journey to Detroit Saturday afternoon and were driven around in cars by their Detroit brethren.

In the evening a banquet was held in the Diamond Lodge at Detroit, and the team returned to London Sunday night highly elated with their trip, and the members are now anxious to engage any of the other teams in the province in a competition.

MELLON HAD AN OBJECT IN DRASTIC DRY LAWS

U. S. Secretary of Treasury Planned To Get Showdown With Congress.

Special to The Advertiser.

Washington, June 4.—Secretary Mellon's rum regulations were purposely made as drastic as possible to force a showdown with congress on the whole question of prohibition enforcement on land and water. Mellon's regulations form the climax of a series of events that go to make rum the biggest domestic and international issue before the American government, and domestic politics, foreign trade, international relations, revolve now around the question of prohibition and its enforcement. Not since slavery has any issue so dominated. Politicians of both parties have a abandoned all hope that the issue can be avoided in 1924.

New York's repeal of the state enforcement law emphasizing the split in the Democratic party over prohibition. Mellon's regulations reveal a division in the Republican party. Mellon is a wet far his sympathies. He feels that Congress went beyond the Volstead law. He favors liberalization of the enforcement act by taking his regulation points on the supreme court interpretation of that act, so drastic and rigid as to threaten serious international complications. He has forced Congress to consider whether to stand on existing stringent provisions, or to modify those affecting foreign ships.

FATTY ARBUCKLE TRIES TO REGAIN LOST PRESTIGE

Makes Appearance In Comedy Vaudeville Sketch In Chicago Theatre.

By MARGARET DALE, Copyright.

Chicago, June 4.—"Fatty" Arbuckle was as nervous as a debutante before her first ball today, as he faced what he said he regarded as the most critical test of his life. Tonight the former film comedian makes his first appearance as a public entertainer since his trial last year for manslaughter in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe. He will not be on the silver sheet that Fatty will try to stage his comeback, but face to face with the public in a comedy sketch at the Mari-gold summer garden on the North Side.

Billed as "The man who has made millions laugh," he said today that he would not only try to make them laugh, but to like him. "I want to make enough money to pay back my honest debts, and, if possible, to win back the respect of the world," said Fatty today, when I saw him for the first time in person while he was conducting a final rehearsal. "There are good friends out in California who dug deep into their pockets to help me out at the time of my trouble," he stated in the trial. "I am a cool quarter of a million. If I can pay them back and square myself with them I am willing to go out on the sidewalk dead broke, but with a smile in my heart. The law found me not guilty and my own conscience is clear, but before the law I am a cad. I know it. I have been punished. I have swallowed my medicine, and now I want to come back. I want to show the world that I am a good man and a good citizen. I give them good, clean, comedy, the people will believe me."

Roscoe's troubles do not seem to have affected him physically, because he appeared as brightly as in the pink of condition. Once one has recovered from the shock of his size, which is even greater than appears on the screen, Fatty is really not so hard to look at. His eyes are a keen, clear blue.

His nervousness over his debut made him more voluble than he had been at any time since his trouble.

"In 1913 I was earning $3 a week," he continued. "In 1919 I was getting $6,000 a week. From that I dropped overnight to nothing. But ask any businessman if he thinks it possible for any man to work his way up until he is earning $30,000 a month and lead a life of dissipation at the same time."

In his act Arbuckle dances a little, does a few comedy bits, and swings a pair of padded Indian clubs. Manager Ernie Young, who is giving him his chance, appeared very confident that the public would receive Arbuckle sympathetically. The house for the opening night is a "sell-out," he said.

ARRANGE TO BRING MURRELL TO LONDON

Inspectors Greer, Boyd and Stringer Will Go For Prisoner.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 4.—Five little children and a sorely worried woman are waiting in a local hotel for the appearance of the male members of the families.

Saturday morning, Mrs. Wm. Ball and her two children, with Mrs. Bowman and her three motherless little grand-children, arrived in Toronto on the train from Montreal, fully expecting to be greeted by husband and son-in-law.

But no familiar face appeared. Today they are a sad and lonely group of unhappy uncertainty awaiting the missing mainstays of their homes. For the past month the two families had been living in Montreal, but the men were unable to get work. They came to Toronto to secure work, leaving the families behind.

Toronto provided the work, and it was arranged that the women should bring the youngsters to their new home. The women eagerly started. The missing men are George Smith and William Ball, who came out from Scotland three years ago.

HOLD POLICEMAN AFTER SHOOTING OF TRESPASSER

Bernard Scott, Brockville, Is Wounded By Geo. Walton, C. N. R. Officer.

SAYS ACCIDENTAL

Victim Was Bringing Whiskey From Quebec At Time of Affair.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Brockville, June 5.—As a result of having been shot last evening by a Canadian National Railway police officer, Bernard Scott, aged 21, of this town, lies in the General Hospital with a bullet in his back, and George Walton, sergeant of railway police, who fired the shot, is being detained by crown authorities, pending the outcome of the case. Scott is very seriously injured. In a statement made to County Crown Attorney M. Brown, Scott said that he boarded a freight train at Coteau function, Que., carrying a bag containing 18 bottles of Scotch whiskey, and at Cornwall was chased by a town policeman and a provincial policeman, when he escaped by reboarding the train, when it was in motion. He was accompanied by two tramps whom he did not know.

When the train reached a point about one mile west of Brockville, he was accosted by Walton and two other railway constables. The train stopped, he jumped off, and was in the act of crossing a fence, when he was shot. According to the crown authorities, Walton states that the shot was accidentally fired, when he tripped.

At the General Hospital tonight physicians are performing an operation to remove the bullet, and the position of the bullet, which X-Ray examinations have failed to reveal.

PARTY HEADS PROMISE TO SPEAK IN OXFORD

A. Pullin, Rejected By Conservatives, Will Run On Independent Platform.

Special to The Advertiser.

Tillsonburg, June 4.—The political campaign is rapidly developing in South Oxford and on Tuesday evening Hon. Howard Ferguson, Conservative leader, will speak at Ingersoll. Wednesday afternoon Hon. Mr. Biggs speaks at Norwich in the interests of L. Wright U. F. O. candidate who, however, repeatedly states he will not run in a three cornered fight. J. V. Buchanan, Liberal nominee, has held a few meetings with very large attendance and by the end of the week several of the prominent Liberal stalwarts will be in the riding. Dozens of former Liberals who voted U. F. O. are coming back to the fold, and several are speaking on the Liberal platform.

The fight is already conceded to be between the Conservative and Liberal candidate. Remarkable changes are in the air, which will not be anticipated a week ago. A. J. Buchanan, defeated at the Conservative nomination by Reeve Chambers of Dereham, was the choice of the party but in his nomination speech he said he intended running as an independent and so lost the convention by a narrow majority. Now his large following is quite anxious that he should be in the field and he is being urged to run as an independent Conservative in which case the U. F. O. candidate will possibly leave the field. The O. J. van der Meer, a prominent issue in the riding, and the temperance followers have not forgotten Conservative tactics in the past on this issue, and it is a safe bet that the Conservative will not be induced by the temperance workers of this district.

Mr. Morrison Unfair to Premier Drury.

The course of Mr. J. J. Morrison in this election is a puzzle. Only a few weeks ago he had a visit from Mr. Drury, and some sort of a peace was patched up. The idea given out following the meeting was that everything was fixed up, and Mr. Drury had the sanction and approval of Mr. Morrison.

Mr. Morrison has been on the stump more or less ever since. If he has had a good word to say for Mr. Drury in any of his addresses, we have missed it. A day or so ago he appeared at the nomination of Mr. W. H. Casselman, the man who took such a pronounced stand against Premier Drury at the close of the last legislature.

In his address there Mr. Morrison was all for Casselman; he endorsed him as outspokenly as any man could, and recommended all U. F. O. members to get out and vote for him.

If Mr. Casselman goes back to the legislature, and Mr. Drury is retained as leader of the U. F. O. group, Mr. Casselman will hardly be one of his supporters. In view of what happened in the last days of the last session, there is too great a gulf fixed between Mr. Drury and Mr. Casselman, and yet Mr. Morrison has said more in favor of Mr. Casselman in one short speech than he has said in favor of Mr. Drury in all the speeches he has made in the province.

Friends of Mr. Drury—and he has many both within and without the ranks of the U. F. O. following—must stop now and then and wonder if Mr. Morrison wants him to succeed, or whether he is desirous of seeing him go back to Toronto leading a fair-sized group, whose selection has been approved of by Mr. Morrison, and not by Mr. Drury.

It is hardly fair treatment to hand out to Mr. Drury. He took office at a most difficult time, when it appeared very uncertain whether he could bring around him a sufficient number of people to form a government. He accomplished what Mr. Morrison would not tackle.

A very impartial verdict on the whole business would be that Mr. Morrison is paying scant courtesy to Mr. Drury, and that the latter made his greatest error in ever taking that trip to Mr. Morrison's office to patch up some sort of a half-baked agreement before going to the people.

How Many Rumrunners?

The Border Cities Star says stories of rum-running and bootlegging are very much exaggerated. It ridicules the statement of the Chicago News that there are 25,000 rum-runners plying between the Border Cities and Ecorse, a point across the river.

The Star says:

"We of the Border know that the latter story is not so. We know that rum-running has declined to a large extent, and common knowledge will back up the statement of license Inspector Mousseau that there are not more than a bare dozen men in the business to any extent."

The Border Cities Star is quite right in putting up that case for its constituency, and in bringing to light any facts it may have to show that there has been a decrease in this business of rum-running. Undoubtedly Windsor and the towns on both sides of it have had their full share of undesirable notoriety from this source. Some of the first-string stories concerning Windsor have even gone so far as to state that the rum-runners, being so numerous there, had decided to wear a badge or button so that they would not interfere with each other's business.

When Windsor has facts to the contrary to present it is well that the Border Cities Star should go ahead and present them.

Putting On the Harness.

Hon. Howard Ferguson took another look at the political compass when he arrived in Stratford on Saturday night. The timber king must have been dizzy answering questions on the O. T. A.

So it was that he struck out on a new path. Some days ago he decided that he was as dry as the Sahara Desert, the man who had had much to do with drawing up the O. T. A. in the first place. William Jennings Bryan had nothing on him for dryness.

But when he got to Stratford he had a new one. It is this, and he took it word for word from his London journalistic apologist:

"Hitched up to neither 'wets' nor 'drys,' but to the Conservative party, whose policy is to trust the people."

Hitched up to the Conservative party. Col. Craig in East Wellington, who thinks a person should be able to go to a government store and, without spending too much coin, walk out with a fair amount of liquid nourishment, is also hitched up to this party.

Then there's Col. Currie and McCausland in Toronto. They've been officially harnessed, and in a way that might even cause the Moderation League to write of either of them "Thou art the man."

And so the hitching up process goes along. When they all get yanking on the old plow together they will make a furrow that looks as straight as a capital "S" or a little "g."

Calls This Medium a Fakir.

Scientific men have found out enough about some of the psychic demonstrations being given in United States to label them as plain, unadulterated fakes.

George Valentine is one of the outstanding spirit demonstrators of United States. The editors of the Scientific American undertook to look into his methods. They suspected that the spirits only came, talked to and patted people when this medium Valentine left his seat. Accordingly they wired his chair, and each time he left the pressure taken off extinguished a light in an adjoining room. The rest of the equipment was a liquidigraph, two stop watches and two expert stenographers. This electric wiring showed that Valentine left his seat 15 times in the course of a seance (these being held in total darkness) and that the coming of the spirits coincided exactly with the times he left his chair. The investigators are satisfied that the "spirits" were the result of clever ventriloquism and a certain amount of speedy footwork on the part of Valentine as he got up in the darkness to touch those who wanted to talk to the spirits.

The New York Times, which had much to do with the plans of the Scientific American, gives evidence that "the record showed that the medium had been out of his chair 15 times, as evidenced by the extinguishing of the electric light at the end of the wire attached to the contacts under his chair. The light went out nearly every time someone was touched."

If it is a fact that these men are invading a field that is sacred to dear memories, and inspirational to future reunions, then their exposure should be merciless, for they themselves show no mercy in seeking to build up a false hope.

Psychic phenomena is something of which we know little, and yet strangely enough it is something to which the human mind turns in its efforts to pierce the unknown. It is natural for the child to ask questions as to where he came from; in the mature mind this questioning desire finds its field of activity in thoughts concerning the future.

We have not gone far in finding out anything more than the ancients knew; it may be that we shall not make progress. It is here that a man's faith carries him into the great beyond, is so sacred a thing that even a commercializing crook should pause before he plays with it.

Canada Should Take Note.

Mr. John Moore, representing the United Mine Workers of America, appeared before the Yonkers Board of Trade a few days ago and repudiated the statement that the mine workers were crowding too many men into the union, so that they had to work on half-time and draw enough in that half-time to provide their full wages. Mr. Moore also states there were 4,000 too many mines and 200,000 too many miners.

Mr. Moore stated the position of the miners as follows:

"It is sometimes charged that the union drags men from everywhere into the mines in order to swell its membership. That is not true. The constitution of the United Mine Workers of America says plainly that no man is eligible to membership in the union until after he has started to work in a mine. The coal operators must first hire the man and put him to work before he can join the union. Thus, the operators select the membership of the union. They determine how many members the union may have and who may or may not be a member."

"The fact is, the coal operators have hired 200,000 more men than they need to produce all the coal that is needed, and they insist on keeping these men on their payrolls, even though they are able to give them work only one to three days a week. They refuse to let them go because they desire to maintain a 100 per cent working force to take care of the business when they have any business."

Mr. Moore's phrase, "they refuse to let them go," is not convincing; it would not be possible for the coal operators to hold a man ten minutes if he made up his mind to get out.

The coal operators, on the other hand, have statements out giving their side of the case just as convincingly as Mr. Moore presents his. The result is that the coal-buying public is left between these two convincing statements. The one thing he knows is that there are times when he cannot get a bag of coal, and the rest of the time he pays far too much for it.

Private ownership has made a mess of the coal business in United States. There they have wonderful deposits of coal, put there for the use of the people. It should be the property of the people, mined by them or for them and passed on to them at the lowest possible price. It is probably too late for United States to take them all over as a government proposition, but there is a great big warning in it for Canada. We should guard our coal resources carefully, and with a determination to have them become the property of the people, through the agency of government ownership, rather than allow our people to be humbugged and skinned by warring factions.

A MAN'S LAST RESTING PLACE.

Of course we're all in a hurry nowadays, and so they use a motor hearse to hustle people off to their last resting-place. All the mourners follow in motors, and the event is over in very short order.

But it was only a few days ago that they had a funeral out in the country, some 25 miles from London. The deceased was a fine old resident of the country, a pillar in the Presbyterian Church down the road a mile or so; had been on the county council. His whole life work had been centered in the little community.

On the afternoon of the funeral there were motor cars and there were horse-drawn vehicles, many of them. The neighbors all stood around and talked of the departed. They had all known him for years; knew his family; knew much of the worth of the man and the fine ideals he had entertained.

When the time came for the service the minister spoke with a feeling that made speech difficult. He had words of comfort for the family; he had lessons for those who were left behind; he made, in short, good use of every minute he had at his disposal.

And then, instead of the motor hearse two black horses supplied the power; it may be only fancy, but they seemed to fit in more with the quiet reserve of that fine old man's life. They walked off down the road to the little city of the dead.

The burying-ground was on the other side of a little country village, and as the procession went through the blinds were drawn in respect on the four or five stores that do business in the place. On the corner stood two old men, who doffed their hats until the rig drove past.

And then they laid him quietly away in a spot where there was a big tree nearby. It seemed to be the most natural place in the world for a busy man who had occupied well all his time to find his last resting-place.

If there is such a thing as a nice funeral, that was one. It seemed the most natural thing in the world—a worthy man went to his long rest, and the going was all peace and quietness and genuine simplicity.—S. A.

THE DISAGREABLE TRUTH.

Trust ye not in lying words.—Jer. 7:4. The Prophet Jeremiah had a hard task laid upon him. Of noble birth, endowed with prophetic and priestly gifts, living at a time when the future of the Jewish nation seemed to be very bright, this young man was called to be the bearer of evil tidings, the messenger of sure-coming doom to Judah.

Such a mission is never pleasant or popular. Jeremiah was lonely, despised, persecuted. He was probably the best-hated man in Jerusalem.

But he did not flinch from his duty of telling the disagreeable truth.

Every age needs prophets who are brave enough to do that—Cassandra on the wall of windy Troy, Dante flying from ill-counselled Florence, Carlyle picturing the shame and danger of self-complacency England.

"Pessimists, ravens," cry the crowd, "away with you!" No, for if these forsake us, we shall be in greater danger. The country whose seers prophesy only smooth things is likely to have a rough time.

Your Health

HAVE YOUR PICTURE TAKEN, THEN GET OUT AND EXERCISE.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

If you want all the conceit knocked out of you I can tell how to do it done quickly, and completely. Sit for your portrait.

You go over to the studio, two mornings to be posed, standing and sitting. Your head is turned this way and that. Your hands are placed here and there. You look up, down and sideways. Your chin is raised and depressed. You are told to smile, not to smirk; to look dignified, not set and stern. You try to look intelligent long after you have decided you're a perfect idiot.

Then the artist examines your neck and collar critically. He runs his fingers between the collar and your flesh, asking: "Do you always wear so small a size?" He explains that a tight band causes rolls of flesh to push out over the top of the collar.

You go home and try all the different brands of collars you possess. There are low and high lay-down collars. There are low and high stand-up collars. There are wing collars and straight collars, tight collars and big collars. You try them all.

Then it dawns on you. You're just plain fat.

We had a long, cold, hard winter. The weather did not lure us into the open. In consequence there was less exercise taken last winter than is usually the case.

Excessive flesh is the penalty of good food and lack of exercise. When you begin to roll over the top of your collar, don't blame the haberdasher. It isn't his fault. You're just fat.

Summer is here. What will you do with it?

Vacation time approaches. What will you do with it?

Make up your mind that you are going to store up a vast reserve of health and vigor. You cannot do this by spending your holiday playing bridge. You must get out-of-doors. Your feet must tread the earth. Your muscles must play and your lungs must be filled with pure air.

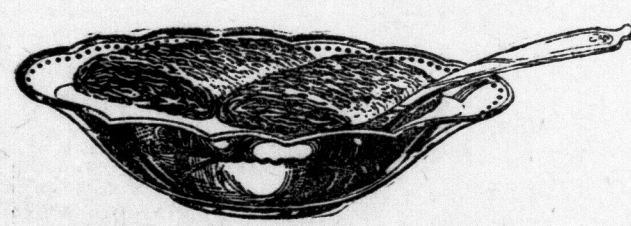

Don't begin your vacation with an intertemperate rush into violent exercise. Gradually develop your external muscles, but particularly your heart muscles, you can play tennis if you are not too old. But to go into the game without deliberate training may do you permanent harm.

You might better confine your primary efforts to golf or croquet than to indulge in the violence of tennis, unless you are in physical trim. But, no matter what its form is, take physical exercise. Take enough

High Prices Realized In Recent British Art Sales Revive Hopes For Greater American Purchases From the Robinson Collection.

By DOUGLAS MOREYNOLDS.

With the high prices realized at the recent sale of the 126 pictures by old masters belonging to Earl Brownlow's famous art inheritance to encourage them, art dealers and collectors in London are looking forward to a return of the halcyon days in the important sales to be held shortly. At that disposal the 28,000 guineas ($134,400) paid by the Duvensoys for the famous Vanduyck of Anton Triest, Burgomaster of Ghent, and the 17,500 guineas ($84,000) paid by the same firm for Cuypp's masterly view of "Shipping on the Maas Dordrecht," were maximum prices paid at auctions for works by these painters and it is anticipated that when the great collection of old masterpieces, both English and foreign, belonging to Sir Joseph Robinson of South Africa is sold in the second week in July there will be witnessed a return of the great picture sales. Collectors also are looking forward to the sale next week of the old French furniture and objects of art, the property of the late Sir Anthony de Rothschild, who died in 1876 and whose collection has been kept intact by his heirs.

A mere glance at the list of pictures that will be in the Robinson sale seem to reveal an epitome of the classic art sales held in London during the past 30 years, besides the results of private purchases from famous collections. Sir Joseph was an extensive purchaser at the sale of Sir Julian Goldsmid's pictures in June, 1896, at which the late Earl of Carnarvon, then not given to such serious work as the excavations of the tombs of the Pharaohs, was a bidder, and in the most sumptuous attire. Other buyers included Lord Caryfort, Sir Charles Jessel, and the late Lord Alington, who was buying that neglected academician Hilton's "Nature Blowing Bubbles for Her Children," as a gift to the nation. Among the prominent dealers present were Lockett, Agnew, Charles Wertheimer and Charles Davis.

Very different, however, will be the prices paid in July for the Goldsmid's pictures to those given in 1896. The highest bid then was 7,000 guineas ($33,600) for the Reynolds "Mary Moncton." "Mrs. Reynolds," by the same painter fetched 4,000 guineas ($19,200), and the Turner "Rockets and Blue Lights," which fetched 3,700 guineas ($17,800), created a sensation by realizing that sum as it brought only 710 guineas in the McConnell sale. The influence of American collectors had not then appeared, but soon afterward the late Charles T. Yerkes bought the Turner masterpiece, and it was afterwards sold for more than 25,000 guineas ($120,000) in New York in 1910.

With the probability of Americans competing for the Robinson-Goldsmid gems, it is expected that such pictures as Beechey's "Frederick, Duke of York," Constable's "Embarcation of George IV from Whitehall to Open Waterloo Bridge," Gainsborough's "Mr. and Mrs. Dehany and Daughter," Reynolds's "Charles IV, Duke of Rutland," Romney's "Lady of Erith Shore," and "Mrs. Chitty Marshall," will fetch big prices.

There also is another Gainsborough, the well-known "Mrs. Drummond," which was bought at the Lord Revelstoke sale by Sir Joseph Robinson, but some critics are warning that the chief Gainsborough gem may be found to be a dazzling, though unfinished portrait of a young courtier, in a Vanduyck costume of pale silk, which, they say, may prove to be another "Blue Boy," even if the painter did not wholly carry out his scheme.

Among the foreign old masters to be disposed of is the famous quarter of Francois Boucher's "Episodes of Love's Dalliance," "Evening," "The Fortune Teller," "Love's Offering," and "The Love Message." These brought 23,300 guineas ($106,640) at the Reginald Valle sale in 1903. There are four other Bouchers of the day, when art and love went hand in hand in the collection to be disposed of. Among the Italian old masters there are such of prizes as Fra Angelico's "Day of Judgment," two of Piero di Cosimo's Jason's themes, a Perugino female saint, and a man's portrait panel ascribed to Raphael.

Among the Dutch pictures are the splendid portraits by Frans Hals, of these has the distinction of being the first of his works to fetch 1,000 guineas at auction. It was not until 1888 that a Hals work was not only brought many times the amount, then, but also fetched a specimen of deo's active splendor of D'Hommedecore's pageant, and his trait, two of the Rubens "Count de Werre" one of the painter's martial portraits, and the Vanduyck included a pair of that M. de Witte, and a lady from the collection of Arnold de Pret Roose de Calesberg of Antwerp and that Beaufort family portrait of Lady Elizabeth Herbert afterward the wife of the second Marquis of Worcester.

While "crimes passionels" show no sign of diminution in France, another disquieting circumstance in that country is the epidemic of suicides. In one district alone—that of Le Roussillon—no fewer than seventy persons took their lives within a fortnight recently and up to the present no one has been able to advance any reason that sounds convincing for this amazing wholesale outbreak of a community's annul of existence.

Sadder and more terrifying still is the number of young persons—many of them mere children—who commit suicide, the latest being that of a Paris boy and girl, each 15, who drowned themselves in the Seine. Working together, they had been close friends and the reason for their decision to take their lives was simply that the foreman had remonstrated with them for their frequent conversations during working hours, coupled with a threat to communicate with the girl's parents.

Statistics of the minister of justice show that from 1865 to 1875 there were 341 suicides of children under 16 years, while from 1885 to 1895 the number had risen to 650, and from 1895 to 1905 to 695. In addition to actual suicides there are, it is to be borne in mind, countless cases now-a-days of ineffectual attempts to take their lives by young persons—in instances which recall the fact that Chateaubriand, as he relates in "Memoires d'Outre-tombe," when a youth tried to shoot himself. He says most characteristically that one reason which contributed to his abandonment of the rifle was a premonition of his future greatness.

"Get the News; Get It All; Get It Fairly; Get It First."

A newspaper may offer its readers as many big features as it likes—signed articles by Lloyd George—pictures from the ends of the earth—the best fiction—but its first job is still to give the news, to give it all, to give it fairly, and to give it first.

Big feature articles are the cream and sugar; the news of the day is the real oatmeal porridge and brown bread, and its ability to give news is the first gauge of any newspaper's value. In that respect the newspaper business hasn't changed so very much since the old days when the editor of a paper used to write all the news himself and then set the type; when there were no such things as comics and humorists and the other essentials of today.

The stiffest test of a newspaper's ability to cover the news of the day for its readers comes usually when a "big story" is before the public or when a sudden tragedy breaks.

In the first case there are a dozen loose ends of the story to watch; in the second it is the matter of a tick of the clock and the thing has happened.

In both cases the men on the paper's staff, both in the office and throughout the country, must be alert, decisive and energetic. If they are afraid and slow and unable to make up their mind, the news is lost—and news isn't news the next day.

Every member of The Advertiser's news organization has one rule before him: "Get the news; get it all; get it fairly; get it first."

Recently a number of happenings have put that rule to the test.

Leo Rogers, double murderer was shot by the police late one afternoon on the shore of a lake up in Northern Ontario—four hundred miles from London.

At two o'clock in the morning the first of The Advertiser's four daily editions went to press not only with the details complete, but with pictures showing the second man Rogers had shot earlier in the day, the house from which he had escaped and members of the posse who had finally ended his desperate career.

At one o'clock last Saturday morning a flash message reached The Advertiser that people had died in a fire near Exeter. The Morning Advertiser was at breakfast tables throughout Ontario a few hours later with a definite and graphic account of the tragedy of the Stanlake house in Sodom—the only paper in Ontario which secured it—and early in the afternoon the first edition of The Evening Advertiser gave the only pictures taken while the house still burned and seven portraits of the stricken family. Other papers gave pictures two days later.

"How did you manage it?" one interested businessman asked yesterday.

And the answer is simply because loyal men were thinking quickly. Out near Exeter a man rushed to a telephone and hurried his message to The Advertiser office. Ten minutes later a big car was roaring out of London with two Advertiser reporters and a photographer. Men forgot about sleeping and eating. They got the news; they got it first.

The Murrell case is a "big story." It has broken suddenly again with the capture of Sidney Murrell in a little California village. The Advertiser has been 24 hours ahead of any other paper in getting the developments of the case. The Advertiser gave its readers the first announcement of the identity of the hitherto unnamed and mysterious Pat Norton; to The Advertiser came the first pictures from California by which local police officials declared George McGregor to be the missing Norton; it was an Advertiser reporter who located Norton's sister in Detroit and obtained her denial of the police's declaration; and to The Advertiser came the first definite statement from the California sheriff that McGregor is not Norton.

WELFARE SOCIETY PLANS TO ASSIST RURAL BABY SHOW

Appoints Miss Bertha Smith To Aid Lobo Township Picnic.

SUPPLIES ALLOTTED

Committee Lays Out Definite Rules Relating To Conducting of Clinics.

The Child Welfare Association met yesterday afternoon in the committee room of the Y. M. C. A. and several important matters were discussed.

Colonel Gartshore, president of the society, was in the chair, and in his introductory remarks, said that he was glad to be back in London and in touch again with the welfare work. Miss Bertha Smith gave an account of the work covered by the welfare nurses and the activities of the association since the last meeting. This included an account of the baby show held as part of the boys' hobby fair and the welfare information placed before the public at that time. She asked for the approval of the meeting in complying with a request from the picnic committee of Poplar Hill to assist in staging a baby show as part of the annual Lobo township picnic. The association approved this request, and Miss Smith will attend the Poplar Hill picnic to assist the committee in making their baby show a success.

Scope Increases.
The greatly increased scope of the association's work has made it most imperative that the old practice of counting upon volunteer doctors to attend the welfare clinics and baby shows be discarded, and in fairness to those doctors offering their services it was decided to put the whole matter on a more businesslike basis. A committee of the association conferred with the newly-elected medical advisory board and laid out definite rules and a budget of the supplies to be allotted to each clinic. This committee will meet again in the near future, when the matter will be dealt with more fully.

Miss Smith requested that she be allowed the assistance of an additional nurse during the next three months. This is necessary as a relief measure to replace the regular nurses during their holidays.

Dr. A. J. Grant spoke of the approval voiced at yesterday's Rotary luncheon in appreciation of the baby show and its effect in making the boys' hobby fair an even greater success than the Rotarians had anticipated.

Before adjournment it was decided to consider the revising of the constitution and bylaws until the fall in view of the fact that the association's work will go on satisfactorily meanwhile, and that it would be difficult to call another general meeting at present with the holiday season in full swing.

PLAN BEGINNING SCHOOL ADDITION AT EARLY DATE

Committee Will Soon Call For Tenders For Work On Technical Building.

APPOINT TEACHERS

The advisory vocational committee at its meeting last night in the Technical School decided to advertise for tenders for the erection of the new addition to the school as soon as the plans now in the hands of the architects are finished and presented.

Inspector Gavin of the department of education, who was in the city last week and went over the outline and estimated cost of the addition, congratulated the committee on the amount of room it is getting for the $65,000 being spent. The committee decided to also appoint two new teachers to the staff of the Technical School—P. W. Hone, B.A., of Petrolia, to the department of physics and mathematics, and H. A. Wheeler of Chatsworth to the department of physiology and English.

Consider Salaries.
In regard to the payment of the architect and clerk of works of the board of education who are being employed in supervising the new structure at the school, the committee decided to fix their salary on a percentage basis, according as the amount of work compares with the salary paid by the board. The provincial government will pay half of all the cost of this addition, supplying the money as the debentures fall due.

The question of the Brown residence, 516 King street, which has been vacant for some time and on the hands of the committee, was practically settled when it was agreed last night to rent it at $50 a month. Previous to last night $60 was being asked for it, and it was felt that this was the only reason why it had remained empty so long. Accounts amounting to $2,797.12, including a charge of $2,254.35 for the new milling machine installed in the school, were passed by the committee.

RELIEF ADMINISTRATION PLANS TO LEAVE RUSSIA

Special Cable to The Advertiser.

Moscow, June 5.—The American relief administration in Russia will be completely withdrawn before August, Col. Haskell, in charge of the work, notified the Russian government today.

In a letter addressed to M. Kameva, he stated that the forecast of the forthcoming harvest indicates that Russia will have a substantial surplus of food over all internal needs.

The new way to make Jams and Jellies

Anyone can now make perfect jams and jellies from any fruit, with certainty of success.

- with only one minute of boiling.
- with the full flavor and color of the fruit retained and not boiled away.
- with proper texture.
- and 50% more jam or jelly from the same fruit than by old methods.
- and they keep perfectly.

When you made them the old way, it was a long, tedious task to boil down the fruit until the pectin, the natural jellying element, would cause the fruit to "jell."

Certo is pectin, in handy liquid form. Certo contains no preservative or gelatine. You can use any fruit and make perfect jam and jelly at less cost.

STATE WILL CONTINUE TO HUNT BOOTLEGGERS

Repeal of Mullen-Gage Law Does Not Lessen Obligations.

Special to The Advertiser. Albany, N.Y., June 5.—Rum runners who figure that because Governor Smith signed the Mullen-Gage repeal they can now flood the state with Canadian liquor and ales are guessing wrongly, it was said at the offices of the state police here today.

The state troops are still under orders to do all in their power to catch bootleggers along the Canadian border or elsewhere in the state, it was said.

Major George Chandler, superintendent of the police, has in fact issued orders to the troops pointing out that repeal of the state's prohibition act in no way relieves the men of the responsibility of suppressing acts of lawlessness. So far as police authority is concerned, the only difference is this, that alleged violators will be turned over to the federal courts for prosecution instead of being arraigned before state courts.

Down the Line In All Sports

It develops that it was not sloppy management that resulted in Woodstock being late for the opening Southern League game here Saturday and other actions that gave the game a sand-lot atmosphere. It was no management at all. Woodstock, when the Southern League was formed this spring, had plenty of delegates at the meetings generally breathing defiance, but whether the loss of a few games has caused the officials to desert the team or not the Woodstock players admitted they were a self-starter outfit.

The team, on its showing here Saturday, is worthy of every support Woodstock can offer. And they'd probably be up there with a little more co-operation.

However, that is beside the point. The troubles of the Woodstock team should have no effect on the Southern League executive enforcing to the limit any laws of the circuit which will make the management of teams more businesslike. A good stiff fine would probably effect a change where a change is most needed.

If the supply of gasoline were cut off there might be a bigger and better supply of athletes.

It takes the Midas touch of Tex Rickard to make boxing pay around New York. The promoters of the Criqui-Kilbane bout, backed by Charles A. Stoneham, dropped $50,000 at least Saturday, according to New York reports. Stoneham will have that amount to charge to "experience" account.

Willie Meehan and Georges Carpentier are the only two heavyweights who have grown all the way through the various classes to the dreadnought mark. Meehan, the "Frisco Freak" and Fat Boy, who holds two of the few decisions on record against Dempsey, started his career as a flyweight. He only had time to fight a few bouts at each weight, he was growing so rapidly.

Carpentier started his fighting career as a 15-year stripling, small for his age, and he, too, went through the various divisions, but Georges' career is the more remarkable in that he usually managed to stay long enough in each class to grab off the European title, and his ultimate ambition seemed to reach a good deal further than good-natured California Fat Boy's did.

Civilization—and the U. S. army rifle—gave Pancho Villa his big chance, which opportunity came a week from Saturday, when the last fight title that Britain holds will be in danger. Pancho Villa's dad did most of his fighting with the bolo, and there were no purses hung up—except possibly life itself. In his primitive soul, Pancho probably wonders where they get all this "ring courage" stuff. If Pancho doesn't, then his poor old dad certainly would.

If Pancho's dad got the verdict, he lived to eat a bit of raw fish and a little rice, and he thanked his good right arm, his bolo and his pagan gods. Thanks to civilization so hardly put off by the elder Villa, young Pancho gets his siphon steak whether he gets the verdict or not at the expense, at worst, of a sore, aching head and a split lip or a gashed ear, and a smaller slice of the box-office melon.

ST. MIKES BLINK EYES AS THEY LEAVE CELLAR

Change Places With St. Marys In Crucial Cellar Series.

Senior C. A. A. A. Standing.

St. Michaels came out of their losing streak last night at Sunshine Park, ending the St. Marys team home with an 8 to 7 defeat and deserting the cellar position of the Senior C. A. A. A. League in their favor.

Richard picked a great game for the winners, striking out nine and holding St. Marys batters well in hand, with the exception of the fifth inning, when they pushed six counters across the plate, and, temporarily, too, the lead.

Five errors in the inner works were mainly responsible for the six runs in the big fifth, and it was an on-again, off-again game.

St. Michaels had batted six runs in previous, and lost no time in picking up two more in their half of the frame, sufficient for a win.

Police Find Russian Pole on

"B. V. D.'s".

HAD BEEN TO PARTY

"Friends" Relieved Him of His Money and Then Turned Him
Loose To Be Arrested.

Clad only in his underwear, a Russian Pole, giving his address as Maitland street, was picked up on Hume street at 2:15 this morning in a dazed condition, apparently suffering from too much moonshine. In court this morning he told Magistrate Graydon that he had been out with some friends, who had given him some moonshine to drink, and that was all he remembered. His clothes and a considerable sum of money were taken away from him by some persons unknown.

When the case was called, it was necessary for Chief Elwell to inform the court that the man could not appear until he had obtained clothes. When he was brought up, he was fined $10 or 10 days. Several of his friends were on the scene and paid his fine, first trying to get him out without going through this formality. Hull Smith, Pennsylvania, U. S. A., appeared, charged with vagrancy. During the evidence, it transpired that he had been deported to the United States some time ago, but had managed to slip back.

"Where is your home?" asked the court.

"I am a man without a home, although at one time I lived in Canada and fought for Britain. That is a good many years ago, however, and I doubt whether I even have any friends here now."

"What do you work at, or do you work?"

"I can lay bricks, and am willing to do it."

"Get a job or leave town," concluded Magistrate Graydon. "If you come up again I will give you six months, and then you will have a kind of home, but perhaps not the sort you would like."

Man Tells Montreal Girl Brother Will Be Killed in Two Days.

Special to The Advertiser.

Montreal, June 5.—"Are you Alexandre Freniere's sister?" asked a voice on the telephone of Miss Freniere at 5:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The answer being in the affirmative, the voice continued, "Well, he will be killed in two days." With this surprising statement, the conversation ended. J. H. Freniere of 416 Rue Boulevard, the youth's father, was notified, and the latter reported the matter to the police of the Maisonneuve station. Mr. Freniere stated that his son Alexandre was 18 years old and that as far as was known he had no enemies.

The police are inclined to believe that the affair was a foolish joke, but precautions will be taken nevertheless to guard the young man for a few days. The police in their investigation were unable to learn the identity of the person who spoke on the phone and where he spoke from. Miss Freniere stated that the voice was that of a man and that the conversation was carried on in English.

Law Postpones Marriage

Technicalities in Connection With Wedding Divorces Exasperates Northesk and His Beloved.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, June 5.—The state law governing divorces—elbowed Cupid into the background today and postponed the marriage of a British earl and a former chorus girl, Jessica Brown and the Earl of Northesk, who traveled 3,000 miles to wed, were consulting lawyers today on the marriage laws of New Jersey and Connecticut, where it is hoped the little matter of divorcing a husband will not prevent a second venture on the bounding main of matrimony. When the earl and Miss Brown applied for a license here, the clerk of the bureau refused to issue one, on the ground that Miss Brown was divorced from her first husband, Cyril de Witte Reinhardt, naval engineer, in Chicago last October. The clerk did not question the validity of the divorce, but said that some technical details demanded in New York were lacking.

"I'm blessed if I understand," the earl declared testily. Criticizing the New York law, he said he and Miss Brown had decided to let New York go hang, and to get married in another state. They will investigate the statutes of every state in the Union, if necessary, until they find a code that is devoid of technicalities, he said.

Speakman of Red Deer Tells Maritime.

TALKS AT LUNCHEON

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, June 5.—Although admitting that the future development of Canada depends upon sympathy and understanding between east and west, yet the Progressive members of the federal house who have been visiting industrial centers in the east will carry back home with them their ideas on political matters, unconvinced that eastern industries require any protection, according to a statement by Alfred Speakman, M.P. for Red Deer, Alberta.

Mr. Speakman's declaration was made in the course of a luncheon tendered a considerable number of parliament members by Sir Charles Gordon and officers of the Montreal Cottons, Limited, at Valleyfield yesterday.

Hon. J. A. Robb, minister of trade and commerce, said the Liberals had burned their fingers over reciprocity in 1911 and now wanted to move cautiously and find out just what the country wanted.

Sir Charles Gordon pointed out that the cotton industry was not a highly protected one, quoting figures to prove his assertion. He declared that immigrants did not all want to go on the farms and would go to the United States if not provided with industrial work in Canada.

Reminiscences of the Early History of Organization Feature Meeting.

Mrs. W. A. Tanner was elected president of the Union Mothers' Club by a large majority at the annual meeting of the club held at the Lord Roberts School last night. The convenor of the nominating committee, Mrs. Charles Turner, presented a splendid slate of officers, which was accepted as a basis of voting with but few alterations.

Talk About Old Times.

Reminiscences from past presidents of the club followed. Mrs. E. S. Dett, third vice-president, introduced this part of the program by referring to the pioneers in the work of the mothers' clubs of the city. Mrs. F. E. Irwin of Toronto, who was the first president of the original Mothers' Club, organized in 1905, and Mrs. John Macpherson, the first president of the Union Club, who died since her term of office, beginning in 1908.

Mrs. Colin Smith, who followed Mrs. Macpherson as president, was present, and spoke of the early history of the club and its achievements. The present garbage system of London was introduced at this time, the mothers' clubs had petitioned the city for such a system for London. Mrs. Irwin, the first president, and Mrs. W. A. It was furthermore at this time that the London Playgrounds Association was formed with the mother's club members as leaders in the organization of the new body.

Mrs. Harry White was to have spoken in the capacity of a past president of the club, but was unable to attend. Mrs. W. J. Carson, honorary president, was another interesting speaker of the evening.

The Rev. Q. Warner, judge of the juvenile court, brought the subject of the new organization before the club, asking the mothers of London give the court their sympathy and support. Major Broadhead, the new probation officer for the city, received enthusiastic applause when he declared that the chief aim would be to keep away from Judge Warner all children possible.

Anyone now can have just the prettiest curls and waves! And they will remain in place, when liquid Silmerine is used before doing up the hair. When the hair is combed out it will be nice and fluffy. Silmerine perfectly harmless, of course, and easily applied with a clean tooth brush. It is sold in small bottles at drug stores and at toilet counters generally, and a half-ounce will last for months. It serves also as a splendid dressing, keeping the hair soft and glossy. Silmerine is the hair's outdoor gin, as it prevents the hair from stringing about the face and neck, even when the day is quite warm or windy. A boon to the bobbed haired girl!—Adv't.

London Citizen Declares Tanlac Restored Health of Both Himself and Father.

The splendid results my father, who is 77 years old, got from Tanlac showed what it would do, but now I speak from my own experience, for I never felt better than I have since taking it," said Frank Christie, 411 Bathurst street, London, Ont., firman for the London Iron Foundry.

"For years I had no appetite, and many days couldn't eat anything. When I did eat, the awful pains in my stomach would make me break out in a cold, clammy sweat, and shiver all over. I got so weak and nervous I couldn't throw a scoop, and could hardly stand the furnace heat. Finally, I thought I would have to quit work entirely.

"Tanalac made a new man of me. Now I eat three big meals every day, never have a pain, my nerves are like steel, and I can fire a furnace with any man in Canada. Tanlac is easily worth $10 a bottle."

Tanalac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37,000,000 bottles sold.

ST. MARK'S A. Y. P. A. BANQUET.

The closing banquet held by the A. Y. P. A. of St. Mark's Church last evening was a charming affair. The decorations were carried out in blue and white, the A. Y. P. A. colors, and lilacs and violets adorned the tables. Mark Garrett acted as toastmaster, and following the toasts to the king and country, a toast to the church was proposed, responded to by Rev. A. L. Beverley, John Morehouse, president of the A. Y. P. A., proposed the toast to the association, which was replied to by the singing of the class song, "It's a Good Thing To Get Acquainted." The toast to the ladies, proposed by Harold Skillet, was responded to by Sydney Selby, and by Mr. W. C. Daddridge, president of the local council, responded to the toast to the council, proposed by Miss Lillian Mills, first vice-president of the A. Y. P. A. ### DR. SMITH INSPECTS CIVIC PLAYGROUNDS Pays Visit to Various City Parks With E. V. Buchanan.

Dr. George A. Smith, director of public playgrounds, and E. V. Buchanan, manager of the public utilities commission, made a tour of inspection of the city playgrounds this morning. This was the first time that Dr. Smith has had an opportunity of seeing the playgrounds under real summer conditions, and though he will not be able to make any new additions to the equipment this year, as the budget has already been apportioned, he will be able to watch the grounds during the season and prepare a report for the commissioners for the coming year.

In several of the parks of the city it has been suggested that there should be shower baths for the use of the children. Dr. Smith is understood to be favorably inclined to this scheme, especially in the Thames Park grounds. The baths would not only add to the comfort of the children in the hot weather, but would also be useful from the hygienic standpoint. Any changes in the organization of the playgrounds staff that appear necessary to the doctor need not be put into effect.

Dr. Smith will appoint the playground supervisors this week. There will be a man and a woman supervisor in each of the grounds, and in the Thames Park ground there will probably be two. The appointments are in the hands of the doctor and need only the sanction of the commission to be put into effect.

HOLD RAILWAYMEN'S POLL IN EAST LONDON HALL

City Clerk Sam Baker announced today that the three-day railwaymen's poll will be held in the East London town hall and not at the city hall as formerly. The poll will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on the three days immediately preceding election day. The change is for the greater convenience of the rail men, the majority of whom are employed in the east end of the city or are compelled to go there on their way to and from the trains.

THAMES RISES TWO FEET FOLLOWING HEAVY RAINS

Heavy rains during the last week in the districts east of London have resulted in the river Thames rising two feet.

Those in charge of the pumping watching the river closely and today stated after a morning's observation that the river has given no indication of going any higher. The sweltering temperature would indicate, however, that a heavy rain is in the offing and in the event of a prolonged downpour in Western Ontario the Thames would probably rise six feet or more.

IMPROVEMENTS AT PORT STANLEY ARE NUMEROUS

Incline Railway Made Safer and More Rapid With Same Fare.

PRICE LIST REVISED

The very warm weather of the past few days has resulted in heavy traffic on the London & Port Stanley Railway, and Port Stanley is now one of the most popular watering places on either shore of Lake Erie. Certainly, the grand old resort is more beautiful than ever before. During the winter many improvements have been carried out by General Manager Richards, so that conveniences for the public have been increased and the place as a general thing made even more inviting.

A most notable improvement has been made in connection with the L. & P. S. Incline Railway, which is now more rapid and safer than ever before. This miniature railway is capable of handling the crowds on the biggest days, and the fare still stands at 10 tickets for a quarter. At this price, it is cheaper to ride than to walk up hill.

Cafeteria Popular.

The L. & P. S. Cafeteria is proving extremely popular with picnic crowds this season. The revised list of prices makes it possible to enjoy a hearty meal or just a light snack, at a most moderate cost, and the quality of the food is excellent. Everything is electrically cooked, and cleanliness and healthfulness are the first considerations.

The L. & P. S. bathhouse has been catering to many people since the hot spell drove cottagers from London and St. Thomas to the lakeside. Improved facilities now make it possible to handle the largest crowds expeditiously, and bathhouse patrons are loud in praise of their treatment this season.

About 50 or 60 feet of sandy beach has been added in front of the L. & P. S. bathhouse, so that it is now one of the finest beaches on the continent. Summer rates are in effect every day.

When He Took 'Fruit-a-tives' For Rheumatism

The Medicine Made From Fruit

There can be no doubt that "Fruit-a-tives" is the long-sought remedy for Rheumatism and Lumbago. From all over Canada, come letters testifying to this fact. Mr. John E. Guilderson of Parrboro, N. S., writes: "I suffered badly with Rheumatism for five years—tried different medicines—was treated by doctors in Amherst—and here at home—but the Rheumatism came back. In 1916 I saw an advertisement for 'Fruit-a-tives', and took a box and got relief, so I took them for about six months, and the Rheumatism was all gone, and I have never felt it since." 50c a box, six for $2.50, trial size, 25c. ## JOY OF HEALTH WOMAN'S RIGHT

Mrs. Evans Freed from Female Weakness by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"I had female weakness with pains in my back, and I could not stand on my feet for any length of time. I was working in a factory but had to quit as I was too much on my feet. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me, and I can hardly believe it myself that I am well. Oh, it is a grand thing to have your health! I feel well all the time and can go out like other women and not feel that awful torture. ## UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

By JOHN W. KANE.

The New Warden Makes Kane His Private Secretary and the Progress Upward Continues

SYNOPSIS.

Curly Kane wins his way to re-generation while in prison. A wild lad, he killed two carmen in a hold-up and after 17 months in Murderers' Row got a new trial, with a life imprisonment sentence instead of death. He studies law, reads, trains himself to be a magazine writer, and conceives the idea of a law permitting parole for life prisoners who serve fifteen years. By finesse he gets it passed. A new warden, with modern ideas, is appointed.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

As a matter of fact and record, the old warden yielded the place reluctantly. He had been in office for thirteen years and one month—one political party having remained in power in that state all those years—and to abdicate the throne was indeed hard. With his passing, the tentacles of that octopus of old penology began to loosen rapidly. It is true that during the last five years or so of his reign there had come various outward signs of progressiveness, but they were in truth outward only: for the system was like unto a whitened sepulchre—within it was, figuratively, full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness.

The new warden was not a politician by profession who managed to land and hold a job on the side. He had been, in the order named, a teamster, miner, sheriff of an outlying county, contractor and builder of railroads, superintendent of a mine and, lastly, an assistant general manager of a large coal mining company.

Unlike the former warden, he was a much better listener than a talker; and, unlike him again, whenever he talked to others they always listened because they really wanted to. He was a large, well-built, easy-moving, smooth-shaven man with brown eyes that looked straight at one, and he had just rounded out his fifty-second year. His was a natural forcefulness, and his dignity did not have to be assumed and worn on occasions—it, too, was as natural as it was simple. He was the type of man whose friends, irrespective of his position, always called him by his first name and he in turn addressed them likewise.

In showing the warden-to-be and his wife through the place a few days before vacating, the old warden brought them by my desk and introduced me to them. The new warden's handshake was not that of a politician or one who wanted to fool even a part of the people part of the time, but it was the grasp of a man who would, both figuratively and literally, shoot straight.

A New Chance.

On the day before he was to take office the new warden came through the place entirely alone. "Good morning," he greeted me. "Good morning," I returned, without speaking either his name or title. "Fine day," he observed. "You can't beat it, sir," said I. He stepped toward my typewriter and worked the shifting lever rapidly with his large finger. "Your machine or the state's?" he questioned.

"Mine. I used to have one rented," I explained, "but three years ago I bought this one." "Do you write pretty fast on it?" "No, sir—not fast; that is, as compared with some good stenographers. A rapid writer usually writes the thoughts of some other person, while all my work has been to write my own."

"You could take a dictation, though," And he turned to leave. "If it wasn't a rapid-fire one," I replied. "But given an idea of what a person might want to say—along with dates or figures, wherever they may be required—I can relieve that person of the tediousness of dictating. I've specialized on letter-writing of all kinds."

He stopped short and looked at me for an instant. "If you're willing," said he, "in a day or two I'll try you out to see if you can do all that." "I'm not only willing," I returned, "but I'm anxious to demonstrate whether I'm a four-flusher or one who can actually deliver the goods."

Private Secretary.

"All right, we'll see. I'll give you a trial." And with that he left me. I sat down and gazed up at the large calendar. I was not seeing it, however. There rose a vision of the front office as I remembered it, and I also saw myself doing something that, so far as I had ever heard, no other life prisoner had ever done—working as private secretary to the warden.

As was habitual with me, I kept strictly to myself what the new warden had told me as to his intention of giving me a trial out in the front office. On Monday morning, however, after the day man had come on duty, I half-jokingly explained to him that if he had anything special he wished me to do, he had better let me get at it immediately, because I would be going out to work as first assistant to the warden.

"I thought Mr. Bryan already had the job of deputy warden," he replied in a like vein.

"He has," I answered. "I don't mean that I'm to be deputy warden, because I'm to have a better job—that of private secretary to the head."

"That wouldn't surprise me a bit,"

he came right back in a more serious tone. "And I know you've got the nerve and gall to try it."

"Try it," I repeated; "not only try it but succeed in doing it. All these years of toil and study while my neighbors were taking it easy haven't been for nothing. For, as Bob, the colored bath-house man, says, 'I'm ready for the question.'"

To the Front.

"Being ready means something at times," he returned, and then the two of us went about our respective Monday morning duties.

Within the next fifteen minutes the telephone rang. Bowen—for that was the day man's name, the sometimes sarcastic Briggs having resigned—answered the ring, then a moment later turned to me with a look of surprise on his face.

"You guessed it all right," he remarked, "or did you already know about it?"

"Know what?" I asked in turn. "That you're to go out to the front: the warden says for you to bring your typewriter and come down to the front office."

In the front office—the warden's private office, to which I was shown—I found the new head sitting quietly smoking a very black-looking cigar.

"Just put your machine down somewhere," he told me, without any preliminary greeting.

I knew well that it was not a feeling on his part like unto the high and mighty master who falls to bid his servant the time of day. I knew that speech and attitude was more like the plain man or prospector who, meeting one, was likely to speak of the weather or something else without any conventional greeting.

"Try out that chair there, Kane," he told me, indicating the chair mentioned; and then, as I seated myself: "This thing squeaks too much to suit me." He demonstrated the defect in his own chair. "Wonder if we could get someone around here to fix it."

"There are boys inside that could fix it in a jiffy," I replied.

A Straight Answer.

"Why didn't you recommend the master mechanic and tell me he could fix it?" he asked, with a twinkle in his eyes. "Well," I returned, "inasmuch as you want a straight answer, I'll give it to you: I didn't think that he could do the work."

"I noticed the master mechanic at work with a few men early this morning out here on a job," the warden observed, and then after a couple of pulls at his cigar, he added: "I doubt whether the present master mechanic ever had any lessons in high maintenance and low cost."

To that I made no reply, but the new head had impliedly told me that he believed in running a public institution upon the same strict business principle and system as apply to a successful private business.

"But what I wanted with you," he straightened up and explained, "was to ask if you'd write about three letters for me."

"I'll do my best," and I arose and began to place the machine for action.

TELLING WHY

ROMAN MEAL

is a "cooling" summer cereal

Why? Because it is the only alkaline cereal. "Alkaline" means opposite of acid. The blood must be alkaline, or we are hot and miserable. It is alkaline when our foods are rich in alkali. Unrefined whole-grain cereals, beans, nuts, milk, vegetables, fruits are rich in alkali. Grains carry their alkali in their dark parts. These are refined out of white flour and modern dainty cereals, leaving white flour, modern corn and wheat cereals, from 150 to 200 parts in every 1,000, and modern oat cereals about 50 parts in every 1,000 parts "Excess Acid." Acid cereals cause acid blood. Acid blood is called "heated" blood. Alkaline, whole-grain cereals keep the blood as nature intended it, alkaline or "cool." Acid blood is no hotter than alkaline but it causes that "all in" feeling so common on a hot day to civilized people, who live largely upon "Excess-Acid" foods. Roman Meal is 400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali" because it is one-quarter Flaxin, the richest in alkaline salts of anything that grows. It "Cools" the blood, energizes and electrifies the mind and body on the hottest day. It corrects the "excess acid" of white flour, other cereals, meats, fats and sweets. Eat it in some form every day served with milk, or with milk as drink. Use plenty of vegetables and fruits and note the high pressure sense of fitness and well-being that is yours on the hottest day. The hottest tasting Roman Meal Product will keep you feeling cooler than the coldest tasting refined cereal, because it is alkaline. But you can now eat Roman Meal icy-cold and more deliciously tempting to the palate on a hot morning than is any other food. In all forms it aids digestion, positively relieves constipation. At grocers from coast to coast.

Market Appears To Be Under Stronger Control Than For Some Time.

By STUART P. WEST, Special to The Advertiser.

Wall Street, New York, June 5.—There was a brief spurt in some of the railway stock early in the morning, following which it returned to the industrial. Pere Marquette was the leader of the railway group, and its advance to a new high above 44 was responsible for much of the buying which came into others of the lower-priced railroads. Pere Marquette directors are expected to put the stock at 44 basis. Southern Railway common, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and Wabash preferred were rather actively bought for a time, and so was New Haven. The short interest in New Haven is supposed to be a good-sized one, having taken its position on the unfavorable showing of earnings at a time when most other carriers have been doing well.

There was considerable activity also in the Erie, although recent Wall Street estimates of what the road is earning had been altogether too optimistic. They have been figuring on the results of the last month or so and have not allowed for seasonal variations. It does not promise to much more than last year's earnings for the year as a whole.

Marine oil continued to feel the temporarily unfavorable effect of the increase planned in the outstanding stock issue. The short interest in the oil group were less prominent, than they have been recently. Davidson Chemical was strong again, but charges for the current Monday that the Royal Dutch is negotiating for the purchase of the much talked of oil fields in the Gulf of Mexico.

There was special strength again in May Department stock in anticipation of an increase in the dividend. Mack Trucks went off a point or more on the declaration merely of the regular 31 quarterly, but in as much as no other action had been looked for the selling did not last long. An extra dividend on Mack Trucks is anticipated in the autumn.

In the stock market the chronology frequently has been a series of more or less doubtful fluctuations throughout the year, a period of uncertainty, and the greater part of July, then a revival of interest with a sharply defined price movement. The direction on how the trade and agricultural situations unfold. Today, as on the previous days, the market shows unmistakable signs of being in stronger hands than in the past. The upward tendency predominated and the more important moves were nearly all on that side.

WALL STREET FEATURES.

Davidson Chemical—Every proudest display of strength in Davidson Chemical in recent years has been attributed to the commercial possibilities of the company's Silica process, and on Monday and today the movement of the stock was set down as due to developments in that direction. More than one company is credited now with having negotiated with the company's Silica process, and among them are Royal Dutch. It was said today that Davidson is planning to sell the latter as well as the Silica process. American Smelters—June 12 is the date for the special meeting of the directors of the company, and the Refining Company for dividend action. It is understood that the company is planning on a special dividend, though some look for only 31 earnings just such a rate, but the company has over $15,000,000 cash.

General Overseas—The General Asphalt persisted without any special cause apparent. Some are inclined to view the view that the company is over-rated in the market. Asphalt also has been a mystery, for little information is given as to the operations of the company, and the movements in the stock usually are unexplained.

The Sales Manager's Mid-week Chat by Long Distance

The enthusiasm generated on Saturdays seems to die down around mid-week.

Sales Manager Johnson knows his men. He is their inspiration and they are all for "the Chief."

The Saturday morning sales conference is a real "get together" meeting; and when the Chief speaks, his voice is the force that makes them want to do better. He talks as one who knows.

When their enthusiasm dies down around mid-week Johnson knows the need for revival. His three minute chat with each of the boys on the road works wonders. Perhaps he got the idea from the Church's mid-week meetings.

Long Distance makes it possible, and Station-to-Station rates make it inexpensive.

C. H. BEARD, Manager.

STAGE BENEFIT FOR HODGSON WEDNESDAY

Alerts and Forest City To Play At Queen's Park.

Alerts and Forest City will play an exhibition benefit game at 6.30 p.m. Wednesday evening, at Queen's Park, in aid of Harold Hodgson, member of the Alerts, who was injured in the opening day game.

Twilight games have been drawing big crowds at Queen's Park. Wednesday night, an off date in the Manufacturers' League schedule, will not be an off-night for baseball, and it is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season will turn out for the game.

Hodgson, one of the best amateur tossers in the Inter-Club League, suffered the injury to his knee going into third base in the opener, with Forest City Club. He has since been out of the game, and is just now getting around again.

Sweetzer's Golf Comes Natural

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, June 4.—Golf fans have been wondering where Sweetzer, national and metropolitan amateur champion, gets his stuff.

They found out at the Ardley links yesterday when his mother, Mrs. G. E. Sweetzer, entered as a dark horse in the two-ball handicap event, turned in the winning card. Competing against a large field and some players with a 35 handicap, she and her partner, H. G. Weiborn, did the course in 77. The match was played in a driving rain and thunderstorm.

After the game it was learned that Sweetzer's mother, until then a comparative stranger on the green hereabouts, was a scratch player in the St. Louis district before she made New York her home, and that she was the Normandie Club champion for several years.

LUCAN AND GODERICH GAME CALLED IN SIXTH

Special to The Advertiser.
Lucan, June 4.—The Irish Nine played their first game in group 4, N. W. B. A., at home on Saturday, June 2, against the strong aggregation from Goderich. Owing to a heavy downfall of rain the game was not called until after 6.30 p.m., and went seven innings to a tie, 7 to 7, called on account of darkness. At the end of the fourth it looked as though Lucan had the game stored in the refrigerator with 6 runs while the Purities had one lone tally.

In the sixth they got another, and in the seventh, with two men down, five more trotted leisurely over the plate on two clean hits, a passed ball, and errors in right field. When the Irish nation back for their half of the 7th, with the score 7 to 6 against them, they found themselves up against another pitcher, Mr. Haynes, the mainstay of the team in 1922. Mr. Haynes was not only wild, but he was real mad. He walked one and hit a couple, and filled the bases, the run that tied the score coming in on a wild pitch.

Todd's Victory Not Popular

Ole Lunnon Fans Think Ratner's Blows Best.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, June 4.—Roland Todd tonight defeated Angie Ratner of New York on points in a four-round boxing contest for the middleweight championship of England.

The referee's decision came as a surprise to many of the spectators, who greeted it with shouts of disapproval. Todd landed the greater number of blows, but those of Ratner seemed much the harder. Ratner showed great surprise when the verdict was given against him.

Todd floored Ratner for an instant in the second round. This was the only knockout in the fight. Both men finished strong.

Considerable good baseball talent is available, and arrangements are already under way for a series of games with outside teams. The town road-scraper is to be utilized to repair the playing field, and the diamond will be in top shape in the course of a week or two days.

The following officers were elected at the meeting: P. C. Collins, president; Frank Bricklin, secretary; P. C. Collins, treasurer; Bert Hart, captain; Clarence Belsden, manager.

Among the available talent are: Floyd McPhail, 1b.; E. Bradley, p.; G. Dalgetty, c.; Bert Hart, 2b.; G. McClun, p.; Frank Bricklin, s.s.; William Hughes, 3b.; McDonald, c.f.; Norman Dalgetty, r.f.; S. McDonald and J. Pendergast, l.f.

A baseball tournament will be held in July. The first game, however, will be played next week. A married men's club will be organized to give battle to the young bloods. Web Dawson has the organization well in hand, and it is predicted that the youngsters will have to step some to defeat the benedicts.

Five New Ways To whiter, cleaner, safer teeth —all late discoveries

Dental science has been seeking ways to better tooth protection.

All old methods proved inadequate. Tooth troubles were constantly increasing. Very few escaped them. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

Dental research found the causes, then evolved five new ways to correct them.

The chief enemy

The chief tooth enemy was found to be film—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. Most teeth are thus clouded more or less.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Much left intact

Old ways of brushing left much of that film intact, to cloud the teeth and night and day threaten serious damage.

Two ways were found to fight that film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring. Able authorities proved those methods effective. They were embodied in a tooth paste called Pepsodent, and dentists the world over began to urge its use.

Other essentials

Other effects were found necessary, and ways were discovered to bring them. All are now embodied in Pepsodent.

Pepsodent stimulates the salivary flow—Nature's great tooth-protector. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

It polishes the teeth so film less easily adheres.

Prettier teeth came to millions. One result is prettier teeth. You see them everywhere—teeth you envy, maybe. But that is only a sign of cleaner, safer teeth. Film-coats, acids and deposits are effectively combated.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Cut out the coupon now.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combant which contains harsh grit.

"THE STRANGER"

Drummond Upbraids Callaghan For Misdeeds As Band Prepares To Leave England In Old Coasting Brigantine

Brancepeth, at the same moment, parted the window curtains and emerged.

With a snarl of amazement and rage, De Castra sprang back and his hand whipped behind his coat. The burly Brancepeth had him pinned like a flash, and there was a twist and a yell. A knife fell on the carpet.

"Decorate this gentleman, Brancepeth," said Mervyn sternly. "Before the words were out of his mouth, there was a double click and a pair of handcuffs fastened themselves on De Castra's wrists."

"What for you do this?" You have no right!" he screamed. "I have done nothing!"

"Not even Mr. Mottisfont," said Mervyn. "It would take a much sharper tongue than you, De Castra, to do our star K. C. But one or two little things in Florida, I fancy, stand to your credit."

"They do not count!" said Pedro, and he glared venomously at Philip. "You gain nothing by this, you! I will tell you now, that all I said was a lie."

"Then I fear, Mr. De Castra, that you have attempted to obtain money by false pretences," said Mervyn winningly. "I tell you—"

"Take him away, Brancepeth," concluded Mervyn, and De Castra was led out, whimpering and whining. As soon as he was gone Philip flung up the window as wide as it would go.

"Phew!" he muttered, "let us go somewhere where it's clear. Come into the other room, Mervyn."

They made for the front room. "We have got our man, and we have got his admission, which saves us much trouble," said Mervyn. "The rest is easy. There is enough to hold him on, and even if the U. S. A. police don't want him that doesn't matter. While he is in custody, I will paper."

"I held up the note that Philip had given him twenty minutes before," he said, "to enable us to identify him legally and trace him right back to his last whereabouts."

"I foresee no difficulty whatever," said Philip. "This one stroke will lay the whole truth bare."

Mervyn held out his hand. "I congratulate you, Mottisfont, from the bottom of my heart. If anyone ever deserved to come into their rights it is your wife—and now, And now," he said, "I must go, for I have a harder duty to perform—a bigger quarry to bring down than his half-breed."

"I would remind you," said Philip, he looked very troubled, "that Callaghan—"

"When I have found William Tallbois," he said, "I shall find him, and I must do so."

"It is a pity," he concluded, "as I said before, for your wife's sake. But we cannot juggle with justice in this country. I must do my duty."

"And if you fail—what then?" "And then, replied Mervyn, "it is another matter. The secret, so far as is known, is only known to two of us, even Brancepeth is not in my confidence. But I cannot hold out much hope to you that I shall fail. I have done all I can for you. Good-night, Mottisfont!"

CHAPTER CX.
The Hut on the Marshes.

A damp wind blew from the distant river, bearing before it the brackish heavy smell before it the Lower Thames. The rushes in the dykes whispered hoarsely, and it was very dark. So dark that the outline of the old hut on Plumstead Marshes was no more than a blur in the encircling gloom.

It would have needed an eye thoroughly focused to the darkness to distinguish among the stunted trees bushes close to the hut, three still dimmer outlines. But they were there, and from one of the outlines proceeded a voice.

"Our fourth estimable member," it said, "has not arrived."

"There is no sign of him, chief," replied gloomily the voice of Vaillie, "and I doubt if he will come."

"He had my message," said Callaghan, "if he is such a fool as to ignore his own destruction by staying behind, let him do so."

The only acknowledgement from the third and bulkiest of the three figures was a sigh and a long shiver. Mr. Theophilus Bell was feeling chilly in both body and spirit.

"Although Callaghan's stock is some- what flat on the market just now," said Vaillie, "I have always found it safest in the long run to do as you suggest, chief, and doubtless Drummond will find the same. How long are we to wait for him?"

"Not one second," answered Callaghan coolly. "We are not waiting for Drummond, but for the tide. It will turn in forty minutes, and that forty minutes, gentlemen, will be our last on English soil."

"If you can call these unchristian marshes soil at all," commented Bell, his teeth chattering.

"I have certainly known more hilarious spots than this," said Mr. Callaghan, "but you will agree it is preferable to the cells at Bow street. But for me, that would be your long- ing. And now that we are on the point of departure, I will give you the vision to that black mark on the river embankment, yonder; it is the Sharpley sluice. Just below that dark as it is, you can see a pair of short snouts above the bank."

The others assented. Two slender spots were visible against the sky through a considerable distance off. "That is the old coasting brigantine, 'Mine and Thine,' of Rochester," said Callaghan, "a name of happy augury and she lies at anchor below the limekiln wharf. The 'Mine and Thine' is slow but sure, and very sound. She is a craft that would take us round the world with perfect safety if we desired it; which we do not. She will, however, convey us a very considerable distance."

"That old ship is safer for our purpose than the fastest liner or the rustiest cargo tramp. For her comings and goings are obscure and of interest to nobody, and we shall have her to ourselves. Purvis and Grutz are in charge of her at present; she can be handled by three men a watch; I am a seaman myself, and Vaillie also knows the ropes. No thief-hunter would suspect her as a means of escape for fugitives. By daybreak we shall be abreast the Maplins, and soon will see us off the Galloper Light. Eventually the 'Mine and Thine' will join the long list of vanished ships and nobody will draw her insurance money. We shall vanish as completely as she does, but as to her movements beyond that point I will enlighten you later. Our safety, gentlemen, is assured."

"Good enough," said Vaillie approvingly. "Simply and effective. Why not go ahead at once, chief?" "We cannot sail till the ebb begins, for the wind is against us. To eliminate the smallest risk, I do not propose to board the vessel until the anchored ship, but to join her when she is on the point of starting. The boat will come to the stage for us at 10.10. Any objection?"

He broke off suddenly. His quick ear had caught a rustle farther up the hedge.

Three men crouched, scarcely breathing. Callaghan's hand stole quietly to his hip pocket. Someone was certainly approaching. A vague form became visible, it halted, and a strand voice whispered:

"Callaghan! Is that you?"

"Ah, my young friend," said the chief blandly. "I perceive you are not yet improved, or you would not utter improper names in this reckless fashion. Welcome."

"You will think better of that when you are on salt water and under my genial influence," replied Callaghan with the same deadly placidity. "This yearning after a new life, and the rest of the nonsense, arrives rather late. It is out of your reach. I attribute it to the influence of the delightful Agnes—the very source of your waywardness. She has been too good to you, and I have not the least intention of leaving you behind, for you are the only person who might have the power to trace me after I am gone."

"Enough!" he added with a sudden savagery. "You will sail with us. Vaillie, Bell, I address myself to you both. It is hard to leave the field of our activities like this; to feel that we have been only partially successful. Yet, though I may be thousands of miles away, out of all our directions and influence and even from all profit—still the women of the house of Tallbois will find that they have not done with me! Though the deer was my starting," he added with a snarl in his voice, "and I did not know it, he has been pulled down."

"As for Slim Carey, though he may have spoiled the hunting, we leave him to pay the price. Before us lies freedom, but I have delivered his secret into the hands of the authorities, and they dare not fail to act upon it. And it will mean the breaking of Mottisfont," said Callaghan savagely. "For he has had dealings with Carey, and the two will fall together. Gentlemen, the account is paid in full."

"And the receipt," said a voice serenely. "I am ready and awaits stamping."

of the hut. "I don't want your lot. I'll have no more hand in robbing women. I—I don't know why I came here. I ended with a thick sob."

"You came," answered Callaghan, "quite untried, because you dare not stay away. The game is up, it is quite certain that unspeakable Jim Carey will give you away with the rest of us if he has not done it already, and you are the easiest to lay hands on. Neither England, home or beauty have any further use for you, in spite of all these vapourings you have not the courage to face the criminal dock; and would be a fool if you did. And I am saving you from Carey in spite of yourself, so be good enough to stop driving and attend to business."

THE LITTLEST BEAR'S HARD LESSON.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The harder the lesson, the surer to be remembered with profit; just try it and see.

Of course you know what Mother Bear was doing when Littlest Bear came out of the bushes and found her. She was tearing open a fallen hollow tree trunk which bees had taken for a storehouse and filled with honey. It was that honey which the three little bears had smelled, and it was the smell of that honey that had led Littlest Bear to disobey Mother Bear and selfishly plan to get at whatever it was that smelled so good before her brother and sister could.

Now, Mother Bear had in her time torn open many storehouses of the bees, and she knew just how badly they would be stung. She had intended to get that storehouse torn open, and then call the triplets over there after the bees had given up fighting. That is why she had told the triplets to remain right where they were.

When Littlest Bear came out into the opening where Mother Bear was at work the angry bees discovered her at once, and a crowd of them at once gathered around her and began to sting. Now, the first thing that Littlest Bear thought of was to run to mother. Had Littlest Bear been older and wiser she would have at once turned back into the bushes and run away from that place as fast as she could. Instead, she ran straight for mother. To be protected and comforted. Of course it was the worst thing she could have done. You see she ran straight to where there was the most trouble.

By the time she reached Mother Bear she was bawling as only a little bear can bawl. She had been stung and stung and stung, and every second she was stung again. At the first cry of Littlest Bear, Mother Bear stopped tearing open that old tree trunk. As Littlest Bear reached her Mother Bear swung a big paw and knocked Littlest Bear heels over head into the bushes.

Littlest Bear hadn't expected anything like that. Of course not. She was so startled and surprised that for a moment or two she actually forgot the pain of those stings. Never in all her short life had Mother Bear treated her like that. But Mother Bear had done just the right thing. She had shown to Littlest Bear that those bushes the angry bees would not be so likely to see Littlest Bear, and so she would be saved from a worse stinging than she already had.

Poor Littlest Bear! Her world was entirely upset. When she had expected to be comforted and protected she had been knocked heels over head. She scrambled to her feet, and whimpering and whimpering, she ran headlong away from that dreadful place, which was exactly what Mother Bear had hoped she would do. Presently she discovered that no longer were any of those dreadful bees around her. There were no more stings, but oh, how the stings she had received did ache! Littlest Bear.

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

HEARTS AND SHOWERS.

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

"That," said Sarah Ellen grimly as she tied with blue ribbon a white tissue-paper package, "is the fifth shower gift I've made so far this year and fate only knows how many more I'll be called upon for. Not that I mind, only—" she sighed and rose abruptly. Sarah Ellen was nearly thirty and had never had a shower in her life.

One by one she had seen the companions of her girlhood grow to womanhood, acquire would-be husbands, pass through a felicitous period of parties and trousseaux and settle down to more—or less—joyous widowhood. Now her younger sisters were pursuing the same course, and Sarah Ellen as "an old family friend" had failed to be included in all little affairs arranged for their benefit. Besides, Sarah Ellen was a wonder at embroidery and decoration of fine linens.

Busying herself with summer preparations, Sarah Ellen tantalized herself with imagining just what it would be like to be the center of attention once in a lifetime—something vital that would be missed if suddenly removed. In a very small way she had experienced that sensation the week before Jethro Clark sailed for Rio.

He had called upon her twice, had taken for her picture. But he had departed without more definite advances and in the two years which had elapsed since, she had never heard from him. Rumor had drifted home that he had gone down with a river steamer plying on some South American stream and Sarah Ellen, romantically, had enshrined his image in her heart as that of the man she might have married.

Thinking of her contribution to others in the past, she wondered what her neighbors would think could they see the chest in her attic filled to the brim with the handiwork of years, all of her own manufacture. Her few dishes washed and put away, she got out her favorite needle and magazine and idly thumbed the pages. Suddenly she paused. An advertisement with a South American address had caught her eye. Reading it eagerly she learned that a versatile traveler was commercializing his experiences by writing chatty letters to stay-at-homes for a modest monthly stipend. At present the enterprising globe trotter was making his headquarters in Rio.

The following morning Sarah Ellen dispatched a note and a check. Then, in a fever of anticipation, she waited. The plan appealed to her as something next best to letters from Jethro himself.

Came a day when Postmaster Tibbals handed out the coveted reply. Sarah Ellen's hand fairly trembled—a fact he was not slow to observe even as he had made mental note of the postmark.

"I don't mean to say old Jethro's on the map again?" he wanted to know.

"I haven't read it yet!" faltered Sarah Ellen.

He took her gently by the arm and led her under the light. "My dear," he said, "You're even sweeter than I used to think of you in Siberia. Yes, I've been there almost ever since I left here. And I used to get wishing I'd asked you to marry me before I went. Tell me—are you married? No? Or haven't you? Good! But you're wrong. You're going to be married tomorrow. Let's tell the crowd!"

But Sarah Ellen is still explaining why, when Jethro Clark was in Siberia, she was getting letters from South America.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants.

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have no discontinued disagreeable diet, patent food and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two of tablets of Epsom's Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomachs are cleared, their food is better digested, and they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Epsom's Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time, because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrector, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort, clear the system, yourself, but be certain to get the Epsom's Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use—ADVT.

Bilious Attacks Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

OXFORD COUNCILLORS HAVE BUSY SESSION

Ingersoll Wants Renewal of Separation Agreement Between Town and County.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, June 4.—A quiet day's business was transacted by the county council of Oxford at its opening meeting of the June session here today. The greater part of the day was occupied by the receiving of communications and reports, after which the committees met.

The outstanding features of the June session will be the striking of the year's estimates, the reception and consideration of the boundary bridges reports, and the hearing of deputations and the annual visit of the councillors to the House of Refuge and Industrial Farm. A special committee will also be appointed to meet with a committee from the town council of Ingersoll for the making of a new separation agreement between the town and county. This agreement, which is of a five year term, expires this year, and will have to be renewed. The report of the mothers' allowance committee for the half-year showed that twenty-five mothers were receiving allowances, the cost to the county being $840.

PLANS TOUR.

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, June 4.—According to Hon. Peter Smith, who spent the week-end at his home here, no dates have been set as yet for meetings in support of his candidature in South Perth. Mr. Smith stated that a tour of the riding would be made, and he expected that arrangements might be completed before the end of the week.

Syrup Pepsin Loved By Hosts of Babies

Half a teaspoonful will make a fretful youngster happy and playful.

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she should be careful which remedy she selects lest she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant.

You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that its bowels are constipated. First look carefully to the diet and give the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children; they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from gripping.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it, address Dr. W. E. Caldwell, 25 Caldwell Building, Toronto, Ont. Do it now!

purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin, or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. H. Lefever of Medicine Hat, Alberta, always gives her little girl Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. May Stephen, Sharpe of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is never without it in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it costs only a cent a bottle. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

FIREMEN WILL STRIKE IF WINE WITHHELD

Members of Crew of French
Steamship Lafayette Threaten Action.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, June 4.—A general strike of the stokers and firemen on the steamship Lafayette, sailing from Havre for New York on June 9, and on all other French ships scheduled to leave for the United States after that date, threatens, unless the men receive assurance that the two litres of wine to which they are entitled under the French merchant marine law, will be forthcoming while they are in New York harbor. This decision was reached at the headquarters of the Union of Seafaring Workers today.

A full meeting of the delegates of the Firemen's and Stokers' Union will be held here Wednesday, when ratification is expected of an ultimatum drawn up by its executive committee giving the French line the choice of filling the Lafayette's wine tanks as usual or suffering a strike.

The French line, aware of the movement, is withholding its final decision for the present, but it is stated the Lafayette will sail Saturday with her full quota of "vin rouge ordinaire" for the crew.

Half-Holiday Sales Begin Tomorrow

DURING THE MONTHS OF JUNE, JULY AND AUGUST, THIS STORE WILL CLOSE ON WEDNESDAYS AT ONE O'CLOCK.

WEDNESDAY MORNING will be stock market day—a half-day clearance for thousands of dollars' worth of seasonable merchandise at prices that should tempt some speculative buyers.
