FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10.

TIT FOR TAT.

Hugh Fletcher, of Hamilton, a glassblower, but who learned his trade in the United States, and has worked at it in that country for some years, came home to visit his parents, who still reside in the mountain village. He spent some time around the old homestead, and when he got ready to resume his work at Detroit, however, he was stopped by a U. S. official, who asked questions, and found that he was a Canadian. As a result Hugh was bundled back into Canada, after the most approved De Barry fashion. Fletcher now wonders why it is that Yankees are allowed to butt in on Canadian jobs, whilst all the while Canada has an alien labor law on the statute books. When you come to think of it, what chumps we Canucks be! Will ever the Government in this country stand up for the rights of the people? Why cannot we have a few De Barry's along the line, say at Windsor, Niagara Falls, Toronto and Montreal? They would soon find work.

MODERN EDUCATION.

Ontario, apparently, is not the only country in which wonderful advances have been made in education since the days of the old log schoolhouse. It seems that in the United States there have been some who have made extraordinary improvements in the system of education, until it is "the best in the world." The New York Sun says:

When we were mere boys, boys had to do a little work in school. They were not coddled; they were hammered. Spelling, writing and arithmetic were not elective; and you had to learn. In these more fortunate times elementary education has become in many places a sort of vaudeville show. The child must be kept amused and learns what it pleases. Many sage teachers scorn the old fashioned rudiments; and it seems to be regarded as between a madhouse and a crime for a child to learn to read and spell by the old methods. Vast and fruitful intellects have devoted themselves to child study and child psychology. "Visualized" reading and other great inventions have come in. Sociology, the widest-armed of sciences, is sociologizing tremendously; and as a result of all the improvements, there is a race of gifted pupils more or less ignorant of the once-prized simple elements of ordinary education; and now "factors" are turned out by the sociology factories every week.

GOOD WORDS.

Says the Hamilton Spectator:—The friends of Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick, minister of justice, gave him a complimentary banquet in Montreal last evening. In the course of his speech the minister spoke of the part played in Canada by Irishmen, and said: "Perhaps I may be permitted to draw attention, in one phrase, but in no complaining spirit, to the somewhat anomalous position in which we have sometimes been placed. The Irish Catholics in Canada are a minority, and this is and must of necessity be a distinct disadvantage so long as the qualifications for public positions are made to depend upon considerations of race and creed, rather than upon fitness and capacity to do service to the state. If a position is to be assigned to a Catholic, then we are deemed to form a part of the English-speaking minority in that class. If, on the other hand, language is a requisite, then we are of the Catholic minority. In either case we are too often in the position of the man who is being ground between the upper and the lower millstone."

Mr. Fitzpatrick apparently forgets that there is no church in the majority in Canada—that the Anglicans, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Con-

Regimentalists, Brethren, Hebrews, Quakers, Doukhobors, Mennonites, infidels and pagans, are each in the minority. But the part of Mr. Fitzpatrick's speech to which we desire to call attention is this:

"Let us hope that we are approaching the dawn of the day—in fact, a streak of dawn is already in the sky—when honesty, ability, skill, training and devotion to duty, shall be the sole qualifications for public service."

These are good words — words to which every good Canadian will say Amen.

RUNNING NO RISK.

Hamilton Herald.

It is illegal for Ontario municipal corporations to engage in business as general traders. But there is no doubt that any Ontario municipality which may take steps to provide fuel to meet local emergencies would have its action legalized by the legislature.

HE IS PROBABLY AN ORPHAN.

Hamilton Spectator.

The Ross government tells us that the money it grabs from the widows and orphans is devoted to "charity." And Mr. Ross evidently thinks that "charity begins at home," for one of the paupers in his own department has already received about $40,000 of the "charity" money.

LORD MINTO AND SIR WILFRID.

Marquise de Fontenay.

Lord Minto's position in Canada is becoming more and more difficult owing to his pronounced differences of opinion with the premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his resignation may be looked for at any moment. Lately we have been treated to the spectacle of Lord Minto delivering himself publicly of views in connection with the scheme of imperial defence which are diametrically opposed to those voiced with equal publicity by Sir Wilfrid.

Lord Minto, who is a man of very strong prejudices and opinions, speaks and thinks as an Englishman, while Sir Wilfrid, with the greater part of the population of Canada behind him, thinks, speaks and acts as a Canadian. The situation has, in consequence thereof, become exceedingly difficult and almost intolerable. The relations between the two men have never been very cordial, and

GREAT SALT LAKE.

This Remarkable Body of Water Will Vanish Within Fifty Years.

Within fifty years from the present time the Great Salt Lake of Utah, the most remarkable body of water of its kind in the world, will have ceased to exist. It will have dried up, and its place will be occupied by an unattractive desert, save perhaps for a few irrigated farms.

Such, at all events, is the opinion of geologists. Professor W. J. McGee of Washington remarked in conversation the other day that half a century was an outside estimate for the survival of the lake. He was inclined to think that it would be dried up twenty-five years from now. Already its waters show signs of receding from the shores, and causes are in operation which lessen to a great extent the supplies furnished to this curious inland sea by streams.

The lake is about seventy-five miles long by half that in greatest breadth, being in shape somewhat irregular, and is rather shallow. There may be places where it has a depth of as much as a hundred feet, but over most of its area it is less than fifty feet deep. The reason why it is so salt is simply that it has no outlet save through evaporation, and the streams during ages past have been carrying salt into it.

The contributing streams are now beginning to be utilized on a large scale for irrigating purposes, and thus the customary water supply is being withheld to some extent from the lake. Before long immense reservoirs will be constructed in the mountains to hold the storm waters during the rainy season in order that they may be conserved and poured out over the fields in the dry time. Operations of this kind conducted so extensively must lower the level of the lake quite fast.

When the lake is gone, much of the land thus made dry will be unavailable for agriculture owing to its containing so large a percentage of salts of various kinds deposited from the water in the course of many centuries. But it may be supposed that certain areas where the lake was comparatively shallow will be suitable for farming. Thus there will be some direct gain.

Dyed Coffee Beans.

In Germany it is not permissible to adulterate coffee. A wholesale grocer was recently tried in Hamburg, the charge against him being that he had adulterated a large quantity of Brazilian coffee, with the object of selling it as Porto Rico coffee.

He admitted that he had changed the original color of the coffee, but pointed out that he had made the change before the coffee was roasted, and as the experts who had been summoned expressed the opinion that it was perfectly lawful to adulterate beans, though entirely unlawful to adulterate roasted coffee, the court promptly ordered a verdict of not guilty.

In this case the adulteration consisted in making the beans of a greenish blue color and in pressing fine flour between the clefts. The rosy hue which characterizes Brazilian coffee was thus obliterated.

According to the experts, beans of coffee have been artificially colored in Hamburg for the last forty years, and if the practice is to be stopped, though they insist that the public is not duped, since it is not the color which gives quality to coffee, suits will have to be instituted against all the grocers of the city.

Theater Supper Parties.

"No, we don't encourage supper parties," said the manager of the continuous performance theater, "but we are powerless to prevent them. They come early in the afternoon and camp out until the last turn at night. See the fat woman going in with the basket and the three kids? Well, she's a regular. In that basket you will probably find a lot of ham sandwiches, some pickles, an orange apiece and perhaps a tumbler of jelly. About 6 o'clock they will consume this provender and be prepared to enjoy the evening performance, despite the fact that they have already seen it in the afternoon. 'Chasers' have no effect upon the supper parties. A bum song and dance team will go on and do their worst to drive out the sitters in order to make room for the evening audience, but it's like pouring water on a duck's back. The people who stay for supper will stand for anything."

City Sportsman—Have you seen anything worth shooting at around here? Farmer—Well, no; not till you arrived.

Mr. Chamberlain's Orchids.

Some visitors had passed through Mr. Chamberlain's orchid house at Highbury, one morning, and a very valuable plant was discovered broken. Mr. Chamberlain, it was said, lost his temper, and he declared that sightseers should no longer be welcomed. Then he interrogated the gardener in charge of the house. The man appeared confused, but protested that he didn't do the damage.

"I was very sorry when I saw it done, sir."

"You saw it done? Then, of course, the visitors didn't, either."

"I saw it done," cried Mr. Chamberlain. "I am resolved to discover the culprit."

The gardener then spoke. "I saw you, sir, when you were walking up and down and rehearsing something. I heard Lord Salisbury's name, sir, and Mr. Gladstone's, and then you struck out with your right arm, and marked the orchid, and went the orchid."

The master smiled, and sightseers were not excluded from the orchid house.

Mr. Chamberlain's love of the orchid is responsible for the following: During the progress of a political meeting at which Mr. Chamberlain spoke, an old man of the laboring class pushed his way to the front, and asked an acquaintance "which is 'im'?" "Who?" "Why, Chamberlain. Which 'of that lot's him'?" "That clean-shaven chap there; him with the eyeglasses," responded the one addressed. "Is that Chamberlain?" said the laborer, in a disappointed tone. "Of course it is. What do 'e think of 'im, eh?" "Who, I think 'e's a regular fraud, that's wot I think." His companion at once entered into a spirited defence of the politician. "I know nothing about politics," replied the laborer, pushing his way to the door. "They say 'e wot a little orchard in his button-hole, and ther, it ain't nawt but a good blossom."

A Substitute for Anthracite Coal.

The District of Columbia seems to have solved the fuel problem. It is now possible to substitute for anthracite coal a mixture of bituminous coal and coke. From the official reports made to the commissioners it appears that by firing the furnaces with, first, a layer of coke, then a layer of bituminous coal, and then a top layer of coke a fine fire is secured and one that emits a minimum amount of smoke. The commissioners were interested not alone in securing a more satisfactory method of heating the schools with fuel other than anthracite. The results of these experiments have now been made public, and it is announced that a perfect substitute for anthracite has been found in a mixture of bituminous coal and coke.

Sarcasitic Lord Palmerston.

Lord Palmerston was not always serene and placid in the British Foreign Office. He was once so irritated by the use of illegible handwriting, and the use of other than black ink. "Iron railings leaning out of the perpendicular" was his scathing criticism of a certain consul's writing, while of another specimen he bellowed: "Has the writer of this letter lost the use of his right hand? If not, why does he make all his letters slope backward like the raking masts of an American schooner?"

On Sunday morning, during church time, Lord Palmerston entered one of the rooms of the office, accompanied by Lady Palmerston, and not finding the head of the department at his post, he inquired of one of the junior clerks where he was, and on being told he was at church, His Lordship expressed much surprise at his not being at his desk, and was beginning to wax rather warm on the subject, when he was stopped by a clerk who said that he had been called away by a lady who was waiting for him.

FEATURES OF THE BIG FAIR

gas fixtures—everything that is to be found in a first-class, up-to-date metropolitan store. Mr. Wanless has now been in business in Chatham for several years, and his business has been steadily on the increase until now he can point with pride to its extent and success.

TSCHIRHART'S EXHIBIT.

The whole centre space of the main building was occupied by the exhibit of Tschirhart's music store. This exhibit included a splendid display of the Newcombe pianos and the Doherty organs. The Newcombe piano is made in Toronto. It has the verdict of the judges who investigated the merits of the different pianos exhibited at the World's Fair in 1893, at Chicago, and at the Paris Exposition in 1900. At the Paris Exposition the Newcombe piano got the gold medal.

The melody and sweet tones of the Newcombe piano attracted the attention of all who visited the main building, and Mr. Tschirhart was kept busy exhibiting the many merits of this excellent instrument. It is sufficient to say that such artists endorse the Newcombe as Agramonte, Bendix, Martens, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Torrington, Frageroll, De Carriall and Sir John Stainer. The Doherty organ made by the Doherty Co. of Clinton, also carried off the honors. Mr. Tschirhart has been very successful with the Newcombe pianos and is always ready and willing to show them at his ware rooms opposite the market square. That is the place also where you can secure all the latest popular songs and melodies at 10 cents per copy.

RECUPERATIVE EFFECT.

Considered with reference to its recuperative effect, there is not as much good in the ordinary vacation as there is in a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. The latter cost $1; the former—well, that depends; how much did yours cost last year?

Hood's Sarsaparilla refreshes the tired blood, sharpens the dulled appetite, restores the lost courage.

FOR "SUNDAY DINNER."

Try a cup of Red Rose Tea, the tea which was used by our future King and Queen. If you do, you will perhaps enjoy your dinner better.

(The grade of Red Rose served to the Royal Party was the Gold Label; 60c per lb.)

NOTICE

The city council have secured a limited quantity of wood to ride over the present fuel crisis. Any citizen requiring same will please leave their order with the Mayor at once.

G. W. SULLMAN, Mayor.

Contradictory Evidence.

"He wouldn't invest 10 cents in anything even if you could show him proof that it would bring him a thousand times that much. His whole philosophy seems to be to hang on to a dollar forever after he once gets it!"

"But I thought you said just a moment ago that he was a poor stick?"

Honesty Vaccine.

"Doctor," said the wild eyed young man, "my wife is a kleptomaniac. Do you think you can do anything for her?"

"Well, we might try vaccination," replied the young doctor. "You know that keeps people from taking things."

Politely Put.

Biggs—Is Windig a man whose word one can depend upon?

Diggs—Well, I wouldn't care to say anything against him, but the language of the poet it might be safe to remark that to him "truth is stranger than fiction."

New Peels

Our new Peels are in stock now.

The Peels that we buy are the finest in the world. That's saying a lot, but we are going to prove this to you in this way. You know, and everybody knows, that Crosse & Blackwell puts up the finest Pickles on the Continent, and the same with anything else he turns out—it must be A. 1, or else it does not go out. Well, the Peels we have this year are the famous, thoroughly drained, Crosse & Blackwell Peels. When we say "thoroughly drained" we mean that they are not loaded with sugar, so as to make them weigh heavy and make the purchaser pay 20c. lb. for sugar. You will find this the case in the cheaper Peels. Buy the Best! You pay no more! Lemon, Orange and Citron Peel 20c. lb.

Mrs. H. M. Carscallen was in Chatham on Wednesday.

The plate glass windows are being placed in McKim's new store fronts. John Herald, of London, was in Dresden on business last Wednesday.

John Fay Palmer and company will appear at the Grand Opera House next Monday evening in "The Last Days of Pompeii."

On Monday, October 6th, the wife of Mayor S. Blackburn of a son. Hugh Stonehouse, of Wallaceburg, was in town yesterday.

John Anderson, of Wallaceburg, was in town yesterday.

Geo. Heyward and N. H. Stevens, of Chatham, were in town yesterday.

The Hon. Israel Tarte, accompanied by the Chatham Board of Trade, arrived here by special car at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. After viewing the best sugar factory the party, headed by the Dresden City Band, drove through St. George street to the Clifford House, where an enthusiastic crowd heard speeches from Captain James Davidson, Bay City; D. A. Gordon, Wallaceburg; Messrs. N. H. Stevens, John Piggott, of Chatham, and Mr. McCormick, of Wallaceburg. Hon. Mr. Tarte's speech was well received and cheered by the crowd.

J. E. McGloighlin has had acetylene gas placed in his store.

Miss Grace Carscallen entertained a few friends last evening at her home, North Dresden.

The firm of Carscallen Bros. has dissolved partnership. After this the business will be conducted by James Carscallen, I. N. Carscallen being the retiring member.

WALLACEBURG

"John Fay Palmer" at the Grand Opera House to-morrow night, should draw a big audience.

Scene in Act III in "Rupert of Hentzau"

At The Grand on Monday Night.

Impersonation of dual characters is not usually an easy matter for the player, but when the roles are as marked in their contrast to each other as those of the dashing Rasendyll and the dissipated King in Anthony Hope's great romance, "Rupert of Hentzau," the actor finds himself confronted with an especially difficult task. This difficulty of characterization is added to by the almost impossible physical requirements of the action of the play, which demand changes from one character to the other within a space of time averaging only a few seconds in duration. In his assumption of this difficult dual role Mr. Henry Leighton surmounts these apparently im-room for thirty such plants in Canada. This would mean that three million dollars' worth of agricultural implements would have to be purchased. All these would have to be made in Canada. It would mean an aggregate profit to farmers of two millions; and the farmers would increase in prosperity.

Votes of thanks were passed to Hon. Mr. Tarte and the Board of Trade. The spread, which the Wallaceburg Board had prepared for Mr. Tarte, was a magnificent one and was much appreciated by Mr. Tarte and the Chatham guests.

A short visit was then made to the glass factory. Then the party left for Dresden and arrived there at 3.30.

The party was received by the City Band, and after looking through the works, went to the Clifford House. Mr. Tarte addressed the people from the door of the Clifford House.

He made an address along similar lines to that in Wallaceburg, and at the conclusion of his speech a little bouquet of flowers were then made by Geo. McCormick, N. H. Stevens, Capt. Davidson, D. A. Gordon, John Piggott and Geo. Weir, and cheers were given for the King, Capt. Davidson and the ladies.

When he was leaving, Mr. Tarte expressed his intention of visiting Dresden at some future date.

Mr. Tarte was accompanied by the following gentlemen from Chatham and Dresden:
Chatham—John Piggott, J. A. Morton, C. Austin, P. D. McKellar, W. Ball, James Innes, G. W. Cowan, M. Gardiner, S. Perrin, W. R. Landon, C. Hadley, R. Mercer, W. Hickey, J. A. Elliott, C. E. MISS CAROLINE A. HULING.

A Clever Chicago Woman Who Publishes Trade Papers.

Miss Caroline A. Huling of Chicago is said to be the only woman in the world who makes a business of editing and publishing trade papers. All most every possible or imaginable kind of newspaper and literary work has been placed to Miss Huling's credit, but the trade publishing and editing she makes her specialty. Connected on her mother's side of the family with such well known and famous literary workers as Fanny Fern, N. P. Willis and Rev. S. J. Freeman, Prime.

Miss Huling has written almost every since she can remember. She has written a novel and many number of newspaper and magazine articles.

Miss Huling claims laughingly that she is a regular "seventh daughter" of the literary and publishing impulses.

Through her mother she is a member of the fourth generation to engage in editorial work. Her mother's father, Colonel Alden Spooner, a direct descendant from John Alden being an editor and publisher in Brooklyn for nearly forty years. Her mother's grandfather, Judah Paddock Spooner, was the first printer in the state of Vermont, establishing an office in Westminster in February, 1781, and claiming the offer of the state to give a bounty of 100 bushels of wheat to any one who would establish a printing office therein. His press, the Vermont Gazette, or Green Mountain Post Boy, the first press to be brought to this country from England, is now in the rooms of the Vermont Historical Society at Windsor.

On her father's side of the house Miss Huling claims three generations of printers, bookbinders, editors and publishers. She herself began newspaper work as her father's assistant and associate editor on the Saratoga Sentinel at the early age of twelve years, and, although she never learned to set type, she knows just how every mechanical operation connected with printing, printing and publishing should be conducted and personally supervises the printing of all the publications coming under her care.

As editor, publisher and owner of the Bookseller, a monthly magazine devoted to the interests of the book trade, Miss Huling does much of her own work, overseeing it all. She is also the editor of the Dry Goods Review, another monthly of which she has full charge. She was for some time editor of the Paper Trade and also of the Western Stationer. Her work on all these periodicals has been characterized by steady growth and speedy and permanent improvement of the various organs. For nearly a year before she purchased the Bookseller, July 1, 1902, she had been its virtual publisher and in full and absolute control of its work and workers. —Chicago Record-Herald.

Kissing the Baby.

There are many mothers who give themselves infinite trouble about the big and obvious things connected with nursery management, who strive bravely to be up to date in the matter of plumbing, ventilation and infectious diseases, who yet fall woefully when it comes to certain details. One of the most important of these is the disgusting and dangerous habit of allowing every comer to kiss and man the baby.

A baby no doubt is a delightful object and almost irresistible, but that is no reason why advantage should be taken of his helpless condition to offer him hygienic outrages.

Here is a speech a well meaning goose of a young mother made to the father of her child on his return from business: "Mrs. Smith called today. John. She has a fearful cold and sore throat. She thought the baby was just too sweet for anything and would not let him out of her arms. He took to her wonderfully too." Naturally the baby developed a bad case of the sniffles in a day or two, and then it was: "The baby has a dreadful cold. We cannot think where he got it, we are always so careful."

This mother and the hundreds like her should be taught the lesson that promiscuous kissing is a bad and vulgar habit, productive of much danger to adults as well as to children. Adults can protect themselves if they like, but infants cannot, and so it is the duty of the mothers to protect them.

Colors We Should Wear.
Few colors are so advantageously worn as yellow under artificial light—yellow in all its shades, from palest cream, ecru, daffodil, canary and maize, to buttercup, nasturtium and other golden yellows. Next, and for some people first, come the lovely rose, seashell pink and cameo tints. There are few women who do not look well in these shades, many of which are greatly beautified with lace accessories. But there is still another color, the beautiful golden green, chartreuse and willow shades that are lovely after lamp-light. If you can wear this color, plain tone or partly veiled, with any degree of justice to yourself, my friendly "lady readers," who sometimes write for advice, I counsel you to do so. It is indeed a fascinating shade, and in peau de sole, crepe de chine and some of the fancy silks and satins, failles and veillings is charming and most restful to the eye. If you cannot wear it close to your face, veil the upper bodice part with a yoke of rich cream lace, net or chiffon overlaid with gipsy appliques and wear pale pink roses with shaded green foliage. Then note the transformation as proof of the assertion that thus toned women can attractively wear certain shades of green than they can becomingly wear either beige blue, violet gray or full lusterless black.

Gentle Hint.
Polish yourself up, madam. You had a pretty well once a pleasant laugh, a conversation that was not confined exclusively to the shortcomings of servants, the wrongdoings of tradesmen. My dear madam, we do not live on spotless linen and crumpled carpets. Hunt out that bundle of old letters you keep tied up in faded ribbons at the back of your bureau drawers; a pity you don't read them oftener! He did not enthrone about your cuffs and collars, gush over the neatness of your darning. It was your tangled hair he raved about, your sunny smile—we have not seen it for some years, madam; the fault of the cook and the butcher, I presume—your little hands, your rosebud mouth—it has lost its shape, madam, of late. Try a little less of scolding of Mary Ann and practice a laugh once a day. You might get back the dainty curves. It would be worth trying. It was a pretty mouth once—Jerome K. Jerome.

Brass Bedsteads.
Brass bedsteads and other lacquer brass furnishings which have lost their luster may be restored with a lacquer made of one-eighth of an ounce of powdered gamboge, an ounce of pale shellac, one-fourth of an ounce of Cape aloes and a pint of alcohol. Put the ingredients into a quart jar, and when they are dissolved strain the fluid through a fine cloth. Before the varnish is applied the brass must be perfectly clean and if possible, warm. A soft varnish brush will answer for the work. If one does not want the labor of applying the lacquer, a furniture man can be hired to do it. Even in that case there will be a saving of expense in not sending the articles away for treatment.

Women and Athletics.
The present system, or, rather, want of system, which is followed out by women eager for athletic exercises has given us, it is true, an increase of stature among the weaker sex, but without the accompaniment of that elegance which is their right, and if we wish to find graceful women we shall have to look for them among those who do not indulge in athletics, but who rather follow in the footsteps of their great-grandmothers and are unswevering in their allegiance to dancing and equestrianism and such time honored pastimes. —London Ladies Field.

Babies Who Suck Their Thumbs.
If baby persists in sucking his thumb, here is a way to induce him to stop. Make a white flannel bag considerably larger than his hands, and when he begins to suck his thumb put the little hands inside the bag, tie it around the wrists and fasten it with a safety pin to the sleeve. Baby won't like it, of course, but it will cure him of the habit quicker than any other method.

Baked Peanuts.
Did you know that peanuts could be baked and served as a vegetable? Remove the skins from a cupful of meats and put into an earthen baking dish. Pour over them a quart of boiling water, cover closely and bake from four to five hours in a moderate oven or until the nuts are tender. When about half cooked, season with salt and a teaspoonful of butter.

A Use For Ammonia.
It is a laborious task to remove varnish from furniture, etc., by hand rubbing with sandpaper, and the use of lye or soap prevents a bright finish. Use instead strong ammonia, which will remove varnish quickly and will not affect the filling of the wood.

Leather Furniture.
To renovate leather furniture wash it with a little soap and water and when dry apply a little vaseline with the hand. Let it remain over night, and in the morning polish with a soft cloth or brush. This treatment will keep the leather from cracking.

When cleaning wall paper, use a dough made of flour and water containing a little washing soda. The soda will not injure the paper, and the work will be done more quickly.

Down from catfalls is, some persons claim, excellent for filling cushions because no insect infests it and it does not gather mold or dampness.

In sweeping thick piled carpets, such as axminster and Turkey, brush always the way of the pile.

Do not use agate ware for frying or any fat cooking.

Well Placed Generosity.
In 1855 Liezt went on a tour in the French provinces. He arrived at the little town of L— to give a concert, as announced. But the inhabitants appeared to take but little interest in musical matters, for when the musician appeared on the platform he found himself face to face with an audience numbering exactly seven persons. Liezt stepped very calmly to the front and, bowing respectfully to the array of empty benches, he delivered himself as follows:
"Ladies and gentlemen, I feel extremely flattered by your presence here this evening, but this room is not at all suitable; the air is literally stifling. Will you be good enough to accompany me to my hotel, where I will have the piano conveyed? We shall be quite comfortable there, and I will go through the whole of my programme."

The offer was unanimously accepted, and Liezt treated his guests not only to a splendid concert, but an excellent supper into the bargain. Next day, when the illustrious virtuoso appeared to give his second concert, the hall was not large enough to contain the crowd which claimed admittance.

Appetite and Hunger.
"Most persons do not discriminate between hunger and appetite," said a doctor of long experience. "Appetite is what makes a man drink or smoke and what makes most men and women eat. Many go through life never knowing what hunger really is. I often fast sixty hours and never feel the worse for it. A friend of mine, a physician in Brooklyn, goes without food sixteen days at a stretch and keeps up his work meanwhile. There isn't an organ that can contract any disease from lack of food. Most of them do become diseased through the effort to take care of too much food. They are all in better tone after a fast. Another thing, hunger is felt only in the month and throat. That goes feeling that many complain of is not hunger; that is a form of disease. If persons would eat only when they were hungry and only as much as hunger, not appetite, called for—we would have to fast."

AERIAL POLO.

A Queer Kind of Amusement on a Pacific Ocean Island.

Writing on "Our Equatorial Islands" in the Century, James D. Macgregor says: "It became an amusing diversion to overturn the large flat stones beneath which the rats were hiding in solid masses and watch them as they scampered in all directions, pursued and quickly snatched up by the man-of-war hawks. These crafty birds were apt to learn that the appearance of a man walking on the island, especially with a dog, meant rats for them, and any one thus going forth was usually followed by a hovering flock, ready and impatient for the sport they had learned to expect. A rat brought to hand by the dog was quickly tossed in the air, where the birds were ready to catch it, sometimes with a content on the wing for the disputed possession. One form of this sport, a sort of aerial polo, which seemed to be as good fun for the birds as for the observers, consisted in tossing two rats into the air at the same moment, not singly and apart, but tied together with about six feet of strong twine.

Instantly the birds made a dash for the rats, and the successful winner of the first prize went sailing off with one rat in his bill and the other swinging in the air beneath until snatched by the second winner, when, after a quick, sharp struggle and a taut strain on the cord, the bird with the weaker hold was compelled to let go. This then went on as a continuous performance, with somewhat Jonah-like but rapidly repeated disappearances and reappearances of the little rats, swallowed and reluctantly disgorged by the birds in quick succession until the flock, thoroughly exhausted by their impetuous flight and extraordinary exercise, alighted on the ground for a short truce, where the two temporary stakeholders would be found sitting face to face, keenly eying each other from opposite ends of the string still connecting them, each anxiously on the sharp lookout for sudden jerks and unpleasant surprises, while all the other pursuers gathered around in a ring, waiting for the two prize birds to fly. The general aspect of all participants seemed to verify the familiar adage that the pleasure is not in the game, but in the chase.

SCIENCE SIFTINGS.

While volcanic eruptions are usually restricted in area, earthquakes are not. If all the mountains in the world were leveled, the average height of the land would rise nearly 200 feet.

The face of Jupiter presents a considerable number of markings, notably one great scarlet patch covering nearly 400,000 square miles.

The amount of heat produced by an average man in a day's work would be sufficient to raise sixty-three pounds of water from freezing to boiling point.

Cirrus clouds were once observed at a height of 48,800 feet. This is by far the greatest height at which cloud vapor has ever been noted above the surface of the earth.

Experiments made while in a balloon show that when a height of 15,000 feet has been reached the number of corpuscles in the human blood have increased by one-third.

The atmospheric pressure upon the surface of an ordinary man is 32,400 pounds, or over fourteen and a half tons. The ordinary rise and fall of the barometer increases or decreases this pressure by 2,500 pounds.

His Offhand Manner.
"Dan," said a contractor to one of his trusted employees, "when you are seeing about that lime this morning, I wish you to mention to Dempsey that I would like to have that bill paid. You needn't press it, you know, but just mention it to him in an offhand manner."

"Yes, sorr."
"I got the money from Dempsey," said Dan on his return.
"I'm very glad. You merely alluded to it in an offhand way, I suppose?"

"Yes, sorr. I handed him the bill and told him if he didn't pay it I would let off my hand and give him a black eye that he wouldn't forget for a month, and he paid it at once."—London Answers.

Ill-fated Sympathy.
"When I was your age," said Mr. Goldbags sternly, "I earned my own living."

His son looked uneasy, but was silent.
"Well, have you nothing to say for yourself in that connection?"

"Nothing, sir, except that I sympathize with you, and congratulate you on the fact that it's all over."—London Tit-Bits.

Not as Considerate as He Might Be.
"He's a good friend of yours, isn't he?"
"Oh, only medium."

"What do you mean by medium?"
"Oh, he listens while I tell him all of my troubles, but he also wants me to listen while he tells me all of his."

He Had It.
"Yes; it's Elliott's hobby that advice is cheap and within the reach of every person."

"What does he mean, anyhow?"
"What he says, I suppose. He's a confidential divorce lawyer."

An Eschietic Soul.
"Well, did she buy the mask?"
"No," replied the clerk, "she said she didn't like the cover design."

If we could raise our neighbor's children instead of our own, there would be a model generation.—New York News.

KITCHENER ANECDOTES.

Some Striking and Characteristic Stories of the Hero of the Day—When He is Visible.

A war correspondent who knows the hero of the hour well says that he is silent almost to dullness, except on the subject of his profession.

A good instance of Kitchener's laconic style of speech was that given to his officer, who, after struggling vainly to get an artillery train through roads that were almost rivers of mud, came to Kitchener.

"It is no use, General," he said, "we are so deep in mud that we cannot move our heavy guns another mile, and the Boers will get them for certain."

Kitchener looked at this worn-out and discouraged officer a moment, then quietly said: "Go on with your work, but don't forget that the mud is not only clogging our wheels, it is clogging the Boer wheels as well."

Kitchener's scathing sarcasm is well illustrated by the reply he is said to have sent to the leader of a not over-successful column. This officer had several slight engagements with the enemy, mainly consisting of flinging a few shells at them at long range.

After each engagement he wired to the Commander-in-Chief, substantially: "During action, several Boers seen to drop from their saddles."

"The thing was becoming tiresome," for Lord Kitchener's rule was that only those actually "gathered," should be counted. He soon thought of a remedy, and sent back to the officer this polite telegram: "I hope when they fell they did not hurt themselves."

Here is a story showing the South African Commander-in-Chief in another light. There was in the Royal Engineers a private of exemplary character, who one day reported himself ill and unfit for duty. The medical officer of the corps examined him, decided that the man was malingering, and ordered him back to duty.

Against this there was no appeal. The soldier returned to his work which was preparing plans for a temporary bridge. He found himself too weak to work and said so to the sergeant.

"Why not lay the case before Lord Kitchener," said the sergeant. "He is in the office now."

"Oh, I dare not," replied the man, "he is too good for me."

"Well, if you are afraid, I'll do it myself," he said.

"Order the man here at once," said the Commander-in-Chief, and the man looking up, "and also Dr. Y and X." Each of these he made examine the patient in his presence. They both reported typhoid in a marked stage.

"Send for Dr. Z," slowly muttered Lord Kitchener.

"Please, Dr. Z," examine this man carefully; he is either ill or malingering." Dr. Z performed the command task, and nervously said: "Sir, I made a mistake; this man is in the early stages of typhoid."

"Have the man at once removed to the hospital," came in cold, passionless tones.

"Yes, sir," replied the man, and the adjutant for your papers and at your earliest convenience return to England."

The Yeomanry have done such splendid service in South Africa that this little story at their expense cannot be taken amiss. A party of Colonials and Yeomanry was told off to capture a small laager. A friendly Boer volunteered to show the way, and left them when within sight of the laager.

The fire of the Boer laager to make the attack as soon as dawn appeared. Dawn came, only to find our men themselves surrounded by Boers.

There was one gap in the cordon, and for this gap the Yeomanry made their officer at their head, leaving their Colonial comrades with the guns to tackle the Boers as best they could.

In due course the Yeomanry came to General Clement's camp, and he wired to Lord Kitchener, "Company of your Yeomanry turned up. What shall I do with them?" The reply was almost immediate: "Keep them as far from me as they kept from the Boers."

An anecdote illustrative of the difference between Lord Kitchener as a chief and Lord Roberts is worth recalling. Before Lord Roberts' left Cape Town, he called into his office, a certain Colonial and charged him with a particular mission. "How," said the chief, "how soon can you put this through?"

"Well," replied the Colonial, "I'll try to do it in a fortnight."

"Well," Lord Roberts repeated, "I know you will do the best you can, and with a pleasant smile he dismissed the officer."

Outside the door he met Lord Kitchener.

"Well," asked Lord Kitchener, with business-like abruptness, "what are you doing?"

"Oh," said the Colonial, "Lord Roberts wants me to do so and so."

"When are you going to get it through?"

"Well," said the Colonial, "I promised to do it in a fortnight."

"Now, Colonial," was Lord Kitchener's retort, "if you cannot do it within a week, we will have to see about sending you home."

Lieut.-Col. Girouard, the Canadian engineer officer and Director of Military Railways during the war, is probably the only man who has ever "answered back" to Lord Kitchener. It was years ago, when the railway was being pushed into the desert.

Girouard, independent colonel, was superintending a piece of construction when Lord Kitchener appeared on the scene. The work did not please him, and he spoke his mind freely as is his custom. Girouard is reported to have listened silently until the torrent of words was spent. Then he stepped up to his chief and said: "Look here, Mr. Kitchener, are you bossing this railway or am I?"

What Lord Kitchener said to this has not been reported, but it is a fact that Girouard's "cheek" did not prevent Lord Kitchener from selecting him to be chief of the railways in South Africa. And when one thinks of his railway work during the war he cannot help commending his selection.—London Mail.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. A great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

In on the Ground Floor.
An ex-postmaster was one of a group in a city hall corridor recently engaged in discussing queer manifestations of jealousy on the part of young men in love, a dispatch in the morning papers having given rise to the conversation. He said that the most jealous man he ever had knowledge of applied for a position in the postoffice. He brought such excellent recommendations that the postmaster was moved to wonder that the young fellow did not go into mercantile life. Pressed for a reason, he finally confessed that he was giving up a better position in order that as an employee of the postoffice he might not only get his fiancée's letters the sooner, but also might learn whether or not she received mail from any other man.

Routed the Enemy.
In some of the London courts there are private dining rooms reserved for the exclusive use of the legal fraternity. Into one of these rooms one day there bustled a gaunt female who on being courteously approached by a junior counsel daily declined to leave. Thereupon an unblushing C. C. looked the lady in the face and expressed his mind. Still she did not budge. Counsel Lockwood then intervened. "I do not think there is anything unseemly in this lady's presence," quoth he. "She wears a gown and—yes, I'm pretty sure that she also wears a wig."

The lady went.—London Tatler.

Good Openers.
"George certainly has very strong hands," said his mother-in-law grudgingly as she watched him unscrew the top of a can of preserves which had stubbornly withstood his young wife's efforts, says the Gentleman's Magazine.

"Hasn't he, though?" cried his young bride admiringly. "Now I know what he meant when he spoke in his sleep last night about having such a beautiful pair of openers."

BIZET AND HALEVY.

The Story of the Origin of a Popular Air in "Carmen."

Bizet, the composer of the world famous opera, "Carmen," and Halevy, his librettist, once occupied apartments whose outer doors opened on the same landing. As soon as he had finished an air Bizet would hasten to submit it to his neighbor, who subjected it to the most severe criticism. From morning to night the piano resounded in the composer's apartments. One night Bizet finished a dramatic bit in which he flattered himself he had successfully sketched the pride of a triumphant forehead after a successful bullfight. But Halevy listened in silence and showed but a moderate enthusiasm. Bizet, somewhat piqued, asked the cause of this coldness.

"It's good, I admit," said Halevy. "In fact, it's too good. It lacks movement—it lacks snap—in short, it's not popular enough."

"Not popular enough!" shouted the piqued composer. "Do you want to write for the slugs?" He went out in a huff, but soon relented and in an hour returned with another air. "Listen to this," said he; "here is my treading idea written down to your popular level." It was indeed the song of the torador, and the only one which on the first night received an encore and seemed to move the first night audience from its torpor.

The Burmese Game of Chess.
The Burmese game seems to be rather a heavy variety of chess, the peculiarity of it being that a pawn "queens" when it strikes an imaginary diagonal line drawn from the player's left hand corner to the right hand corner in front of him—his opponent's left hand corner. The pieces are massed on the player's right hand, but the three privileged pawns—there are only three allowed to "queen"—can only "queen" when the queen has been taken. We should say here that no piece equivalent to our queen really exists in eastern chess, the most powerful piece being equivalent to our rook or castle.

In the Burmese game the privilege of translation confers no higher hand on a piece than that of "chequo"—called queen in European equivalence by virtue of its being unique—a piece possessing scarcely more power than a pawn. The usual move of the piece called "queen" in all oriental varieties of chess is one square diagonally and it is never one of the superior pieces.—London Spectator.

His Grim Ambition.
"Why do you allow your love of money to carry you so far in forcing up prices?"

"It isn't my love of money," answered the beef magnate; "it's my contempt for it. I want to show some of these proud aristocrats who got rich before I did that my portierhouse steaks are worth far more than their glittering dross."

THE MAID IN TOWN.
Lonesome Gladys at the sea,
Lonesome Mabel in the springs,
Where time flies on leaden wings.

Fishing, boating, golf and tennis,
She that cares to try them can;
Links and courts, canoes and tackle—
Not a solitary maid!

Moons that seem to sigh for lovers;
Shady walks 'neath leafy bowers;
Hammocks—not a soul to share them
Through the long, unending hours.

Happy Phyllis in the city,
Counting conquests by the score,
Swains whose sweethearts all have left them
For the mountains or the shore.

On the long hotel piazza,
Where the wild waves make refrain,
Tender Gladys sits and gazes
All alone upon the main.

Thinks of Jack at home (poor fellow!)
Slaving in the torrid town;
Writes him sweet consoling letters;
Wonders when he's coming down.

In a quiet, fan cooled building,
Where the highest breezes blow,
Phyllis slips her lace cream shoes,
With the foam like drifted snow.

While poor Jack, so sad and lonely (?)
Sends her messages and notes,
Takes her driving in the evening,
Sails her out in little boats.

"Can't come, dear. The rush is awful!"
In the telegraphed reply
Gladys reads, and while she cons it,
Tears of pity in her eyes.

Jack and Phyllis are out sailing
In a dainty brown canoe,
With a mandarin and pillows
And just room enough for two.

Ma Didn't Know Him.

Mother—Johnny, what awful language!
Johnny—Well, mother, Shakespeare uses it.

Mother—Then don't play with him any more. He's no fit companion for you.

FEATURES OF THE BIG FAIR

Some Fine Exhibits Which Contributed to the Success of the Exhibition.

Enterprising Firms who Made Elaborate Displays—Who They Were.

Among the many fine exhibits at the Big Peninsular Fair The Planet noted the following:

GEO. STEPHENS & CO.

On entering the gate at the Peninsular Fair grounds one almost falls over the immense display of farm implements and farmers' supplies shown by Geo. Stephens & Douglas. They have the same spot every year, only each year the display is more complete. It is an exhibit to be proud of and one not equalled in America as the display of an individual firm. There is everything that can be of use on the farm is shown from the big wagon to the gasoline engine. There were ploughs and rollers, cultivators and harrows, harness and buggies, spades and hoes, corn planters and corn cutters, sugar beet implements and potato forks, cream separators and churns, buffalo robes and fur coats, windmills and water tanks, etc. The display of Ackerman's harness was exceedingly fine. A bevy of salesmen were moving busily about displaying the various articles of utility to the large crowd that wandered over to gaze on the gigantic exhibit. Mr. Stephens himself was present and took a pleasure in showing the various articles of his exhibit to the interested farmers. The Stephens & Douglas store is one of the largest hardware businesses in Western Canada and has always enjoyed a huge share of the trade of this country. They have always been large exhibitors at the Fair and their display has always been a feature of the Peninsular Fair. In addition to the many articles shown this firm also carries a large stock of hardware of all kinds, including stoves. It is unnecessary to say anything about the store as it always speaks for itself, and everybody knows what an excellent place it is to get anything in the hardware line or for use on the farm.

D. W. KARN & CO.

One of the finest and most successful displays in the exhibition building was that of D. W. Karn & Co. It is situated in one of the most conspicuous parts of the building and attracts a good share of the visitors' attention.

Since these popular pianos were first introduced to the musical world Mr. Karn's firm has been a success. The Karn Company is proud of its success in the measure of the tone, ease of touch, beauty of design and skillful construction of the Karn instrument.

Who has not heard of the Karn pianos? The prominent and most cultured musicians in the country have nothing but unstinted praise for these wonderful masterpieces of musical mechanism. The Karn factories are the largest and most complete and best in every way that to-day exist in the Dominion.

That the public appreciate the efforts of the Karn Company is proved by the great popularity to which these instruments have attained. "Karn" is a name which has for over a third of a century been identified with all that is best in the manufacture of musical instruments.

Special attention has been given to the designing of the cases, and in this respect the Karn piano is unequalled. In these cases the best of oak, birdseye maple, mahogany and beautifully figured walnut, are among the woods used.

As in style, so in tone, the Karn piano is perfection itself. In this connection the opinion of Samuel P. Warren, America's greatest organist, may be quoted. While visiting the immense Karn factories at Woodstock, recently, Mr. Warren, after giving the instrument an extremely severe test, said, "That is the finest upright piano upon which I ever played."

—an expression which has been endorsed by testimonials from other prominent musicians all over the country. An interesting feature is the pianito, the first and only piano player made in Canada, and it is the leader of them all. This company also manufactures organs extensively, and these are just as famous as their pianos. James Brackin is the general representative for Chatham and district for the Karn Company, and he was on the grounds explaining the different advantages to be gained from the use of these famous pianos. He would be pleased to receive call from any intending purchaser, at his new show rooms, Seane's Block, King street east.

J. R. GRAHAM.

Among the features of the Fair that attracted the notice of nearly every Fair visitor, man, woman or child, was the exhibit of Antelope bicycles made by J. R. Graham. These wheels are purely Canadian in make and are acknowledged the peer of Canadian wheels. The Antelope bicycles take first place on their merits. They were awarded the highest diploma at the Toronto exhibition. The construction of the frames and front forks are the acme of bicycle construction. Mr. Graham will open up a warehouse in the spring, where he will be enabled to make a good display of the excellent Antelope bicycles. From the interest exhibited in these wheels by the Fair visitors, Mr. Graham anticipates a rushing business in the spring.

S. C. WALKER.

The exhibit of S. C. Walker at the Peninsular Fair was one of the chief attractions. Mr. Walker is local agent for the old reliable "Bell Pianos," of which he is showing a number of new designs, made by the most skilled workmen and of the finest procurable materials, every portion of which undergoes the most rigid inspection of experts. The slightest flaw or blemish is condemned, and purchasers of the Bell Art Pianos may rely upon each piano being composed of materials which are the best. By the installation of the illimitable repeating action, which was invented in the factory of the Bell Co., and the husked pins, this piano has reached the summit of piano perfection. For tone the Bell piano, style V, is universally acknowledged to be second to none. During the Fair Mr. Walker sold four of the famous pianos and one large church organ. Intending purchasers would be consulting their own interests by calling on Mr. Walker at this office, King street.

QUINN & PATTERSON.

On the right of the gate upon entering the exhibition is the display of Quinn & Patterson. This is a young firm but lately started up, and their display is a very creditable one. In a large tent they had exhibited a full line of harness made by Geo. A. Budd, of Toronto. In this display they succeeded in carrying off five prizes—one first for the best team harness, another first for single carriage harness, and another first for heavy team harness. They also had the best display of harness on the grounds.

In this tent also is shown a full line of buggies, demerets and sleighs made by the Canadian Carriage Co., of Brockville. Judging from the number of cards hanging on the harness and buggies this firm must have done a good business in the way of sales.

On the outside of the tent is shown an extensive array of agricultural implements, such as sulkey plows, cultivators, walking plows, scales, rollers, the well known and popular Overy corn planter, sugar beet implements, in fact nearly everything that a farmer could wish for.

One of the principal attractions was a small 1-2 horse power gasoline engine running and operating a cider press. This seemed to attract a great deal of attention, and as Quinn & Patterson have sold a number of these engines they can recommend them as being thoroughly first class, simple to operate, and not in any way the least dangerous.

Just beyond this engine is an excellent display of Woodstock wagons and beyond this is a corn shredder made by Geo. White & Sons, of London. This shredder has been sold to Jas. A. Merritt, of Louisville.

In fact this exhibit seemed to be the centre of attraction to the farmers who visited the fair and the many salesmen were kept busy explaining the good points of the different articles and writing up orders.

This firm, which has been in existence for such a short time has certainly made a remarkable record and their season's business has been exceedingly large. They have good grounds for expecting a much larger business next season. They certainly have a very assorted stock and a visit to their magnificent storerooms on King street will never be regretted.

J. C. WANLESS.

One of the most extensive exhibits on the grounds that of J. C. Wanless, the well-known hardware merchant. Mr. Wanless' large display of stoves and tinware occupied the whole west side of the west wing. The favorite Dearbon steel stoves and ranges, made by the Doherty Mfg. Co., Sarnia, were shown in several styles. These stoves are the greatest fuel savers known. The Dearbon steel, of which these stoves are made, won't crush or break. The various parts of the stove can be hammered without cracking the steel.

The Imperial Oxford, the leading coal and wood ranges, were also shown. The features of these ranges are many. One particularly good quality in connection with these stoves is the diffuse burner, which keeps a constant circulation of heated air through the oven, thus economizing fuel and carrying off the gases from the oven. These ranges are fitted with the draw-out oven, which makes baking or inspection easy. They also have the draw-out duplex grate. The Guernsey Foundry Co., Toronto, makes these ranges, and last season sold over 5,000 of these ranges. J. C. Wanless is the sole Chatham agent for these admirable and useful ranges, and is always ready and willing to sell them on approval.

He also carries a large line of air-tight stoves, wood burners, at prices ranging from $2 up. These will be found both necessary and useful this winter, as these air-tight stoves are great fuel savers.

The Favorite base burners, coal stoves for heating, have their reputation made. The feature of these stoves is the ease with which the fire-pot and funnel can be exchanged. The front door is especially made so that the fire-pot can be lifted out at this opening.

In addition, Mr. Wanless had an excellent display of tinware. At his King St. store he carries a heavy stock of all kinds of hardware, plumbing supplies, hot water, hot air and
