ONE CENT

SHOT REVOLVER AT CROWD ON STREET

Two Are Dead as Result of Mad Escapade of, An Unknown.

Big Crowd Was Making Merry on Streets of Lancaster.

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 1.—The police are to-day seeking an unknown rider of a motor cycle who sped through Lancaster and Williamstown late last night discharging a revolver wildly among hallowe'en crowds, and who is believed to be responsible for the killing of two persons.

One of the victims is sixteen year-old Ivan Graeff, who was with a crowd of other boys at Williamstown when the cyclist passed the group and without known provocation fired three shots from a revolver. One bullet struck Graeff in the temple and he died in a few minutes. The other victim was M. Collatta, an itinerant fruit merchant, whose body was found along the roadside near the southern limits of the city. It was first assumed that Collatta had fallen from his wagon and broken his neck, but an undertaker later discovered that the man had been shot in the right shoulder and that death had been caused by an internal hemorrhage. It is believed the shooting cyclist had passed along the same course as that on which the fruit merchant was presumably innocently driving.

May Go Free

Ortie McManigal Has But Six Days More of Jail Life.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1.—Ortie E. McManigal, whose confession as an accomplice of the McNamara Brothers, figured in the trial at Indianapolis, of the union labor leaders whose appeal was taken under advisement yesterday afternoon after argument in the United States circuit court of appeals, may be a free man within six days. County authorities said to-day that with the decision on the appeal, McManigal probably would be released from the Los Angeles county jail, where he has been a prisoner for two and a half years, having left it only for a few weeks to testify for the government at the Indianapolis trials last year.

Will Work Sunday Again

The Wright, Hazzard and Cohen Co., have been granted permission to work to-morrow on the construction work at the foot of Jubilee Terrace in order that they may be able to complete same before the rough weather sets in. At present they have a night staff of eighty men and the day staff numbers about 85. A pump with a capacity of 6,000 gallons a minute is kept constantly in motion with an auxiliary pump which also throws out 2,000 gallons a minute. The contractors are doing their best to have the work completed at the earliest possible moment. Work on the retaining wall was commenced last night and 60 yards was laid and the contractors are in hopes that 100 yards will be laid to-day. With the retaining wall completed the contractors have nothing to fear, and the work will be rushed to completion.

A pass-book in his pocket probably prevented fatal injury to R. H. Clarke, electrician of Bobcaygeon when accidentally shot by a companion.

SONG. Hear, sweet spirit; hear the spell, Least a blacker charu compell! So shall the midnight breezes swell With thy deep, long, lingering knell. And at evening evermore, In a chapel on the shore, Shall the chanter, sad and saintly, Yellow tapers burning faintly, Doleful masses chanted for these Miserere Domine! Hark, the cadence dies away On the quiet moonlight sea! The hostmen rest their oars and say, "Miserere Domine!" - Coleridge.

No Smoking On Street Cars

Employees of the street railway company were officially notified of several rules of the company this morning, which it is said have recently been more honored in the breach than in the observance. The anti-smoking rule will be in future be strictly enforced. Smoking will not be permitted on any part of the cars except where compartments are provided for such purposes. Any conductor who permits the breaking of the rule will draw a week's suspension. In future pass holders will have to show their transportation giving the conductor their number. Several other rules were laid down for the improvement of the service.

BERESFORD CALLS FOR NAVAL CONFAB

Makes Bitter Attack on Churchill's Administration of Admiralty.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Lord Charles Beresford, who has for long been an uncompromising critic of Britain's present naval position, in the Empire Review, published yesterday, makes a bitter attack on Churchill's navy administration. Beresford contends that we are six heavy armored ships short of the 60 per cent standard over the next strongest naval power. Assured that an emergency really exists, Beresford continues that in this emergency the British government refuses to hold consultation with the dominions on questions of Imperial defence, the explanation being that the political situation is troublesome at home.

"What on earth have party difficulties to do with the Imperial requirements for the safety of the Empire?" he asks. "Australia, New Zealand and Canada at the present moment are all proposing different methods for naval defence. Unless a conference is held the different policies will cause great confusion and enormous expense, without properly effecting the object in view. How can the strength of the Imperial fleet be automatically expanded and assured unless the Mother Country and dominions are agreed on some clear and definite program?"

DIAZ SAYS HE WILL NOT RETURN

Fugitive From His Own Country, Mexico, Gives an Interview.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—"None should forget that Mexico is now a very great country and must be considered by all as such," said General Porfirio Diaz to-day when questioned in Paris about the situation. He would not, however, give his views in regard to the attitude of the United States, replying to a question on the subject.

"I am not going to discuss either the policy of the United States or the message that President Wilson is going to read on Monday." General Porfirio Diaz to-day once more declared that he had no present intention of returning to Mexico. He said this in an interview with the correspondent in Paris of the Exchange Telegraph Company, adding: "I will only return to my country in case a foreign nation attacks it, and you may rest assured that in such an eventuality all Mexico will be

Bad Fire in Alberta

STROME, Alta., Nov. 1.—At an early hour this morning the whole western section of this town was threatened with destruction by fire and the Camrose Fire Department was being rushed to the assistance of the local men on a special train. A bookkeeper working late up a kerosene lamp in Douglas Bros. departmental store which in a few minutes was a mass of flames. The fire which nevertheless spread to E. H. Haiman's drug store, Miss B. C. Ite's millinery store, I. C. Freeman's pool room and restaurant and consumed them. The latest report was not hopeful of saving much of the business section. Strome is 60 miles east of Wetaskiwin on the Hardisty branch of the Canadian Pacific.

Orillia Council took no action in a meagrely-signed petition to submit a by-law for the repeal of local option.

CANADA AS SEEN BY HERBERT SAMUEL

Canadians Do Not Realize How Mother Country Accepts Doctrine.

Present System of Managing Imperial Affairs Not Final.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Postmaster-General Samuel, in an interview with the Chronicle regarding his Canadian visit says: "I found everywhere a very intense sentiment of Canadian national patriotism which co-exists with warm loyalty for the British Empire. Towards the United States there is on the part of the Canadians a feeling of hearty good-will, but they have an intense pride and belief in their own separate identity. The influx of Americans into Canada does not tend to Americanize the Dominion I was surprised to discover.

"A certain sensitiveness still survives in regard to possible interference from Downing street, and it seems to me the people in Canada sometimes do not realize how completely the doctrine of autonomy is now accepted in the mother country. "I made no disguise while there of my opinion of the present system which is that the executive management of the common affairs of the empire left to a government responsible only to the electors of one portion of the empire cannot be final. But I said also that nothing would be more unwise than to attempt to press forward any solution of so vast and difficult a problem before conditions were ripe."

Sad Death Mr. George Strowger Passes Away at Home in Toronto.

Many friends will learn with sincere regret of the death which occurred in Toronto yesterday of Mr. George Strowger, at his late residence, 31 Melbourne Avenue. The deceased had been in poor health for some time. The late Mr. Strowger was some years ago a prominent young business man of this city, having conducted the Bon Marche store on Colborne street. In social circles he was held in very high esteem and his untimely demise will be mourned by many. The deceased married Miss Dunlop, daughter of the late R. S. Dunlop who is left to mourn the sad loss. A mother residing with Mrs. J. L. Howard, city, sister of the deceased and a brother, Charles Strowger of this city, are also left to survive. The funeral takes place on Monday on the arrival of the 2 p. m. train from Toronto.

Tigers Go to Montreal

MONTREAL, Nov. 1.—The Tiger football team, which meets Montreal in a Big Four fixture this afternoon, were taken for a trip round the harbor by the executive of the local club this morning. The dinner which annually accompanies the visit of the Tigers here will be held at the Windsor Hotel this evening and President Phil MacKenzie of the Montreal club will preside.

SINCERITY. Truth and reality have all the advantages of appearance and many more. If the show of anything be good for anything, I am sure sincerity is better, for why does any man dissemble or seem to be that which he is not, but because he thinks it is good to have such a quality as he pretends to? For to counterfeit and dissemble is to put on the appearance of some real excellency. Now, the best way in the world for a man to seem to be anything is really to be what he would seem to be.—John Tillotson.

NEGLECTANCE. There is the same difference between diligence and neglect as there is between a garden properly cultivated and one of slug-crawlers' beds which fell under Solomon's view when overgrown with nettles and thorns. The one is clothed with beauty; the other is unpleasant and disgusting to the sight. Negligence is the rust of the soul that corrodes through all her best resolutions.—Owen Feltham.

KAISER'S DAUGHTER SNUBS HER BROTHER.

It is reported at Berlin that the Kaiser's daughter, wife of Prince Ernest of Cumberland, claimant of the Hanover throne, refuses to meet her brother, the Crown Prince, who intervened in the recent dispute.

SAID AT LONDON THAT ASQUITH WILL SOON GO TO THE PEOPLE

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The belief that the Government will go to the people before the final passage of the Irish home rule bill was heightened to-day, when a Liberal member of parliament close to the ministry stated to-day that in his opinion, Premier Asquith would accept the proposal of Bonar Law, the Unionist leader, to let the people decide the issue. Mr. Asquith has contended that his colleagues are absolutely justified on the question, but has been suspected that, while probably all will support the measure, some are only lukewarm on the question and have seized the opportunity offered by Mr. Law

Water Spouts Remarkable Story Told by White Star Atlantic Sailor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A cable from London to the Tribune says: A remarkable story of water spouts in mid-Atlantic is told by officers of the White Star liner Cedric, which arrived at Queenstown yesterday. The first they saw had the appearance of a black, funnel-shaped streak. This was a few miles off the starboard bow in mid-Atlantic on the outward voyage from Queenstown. The water spout, which was estimated to be 600 feet high, was traveling at the rate of five miles an hour. As the column faded away in the distance it was succeeded by a smaller spout, which in turn was followed by a severe squall, accompanied by vivid lightning. Then came two more water spouts bring to an end strange phenomenon which the officers unite in saying was the most remarkable ever witnessed.

WILL HE BECOME MEXICO'S NEXT PRESIDENT?

There is a report current in Mexico City to the effect that General Victoriano Huerta had offered to resign the Presidency in favor of David de la Fuente, formerly Minister of Communications and the nominee of the liberals in the recent election.

Mr. Churchill In Another Flight

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A Herald cable from London says: In a continuation of his policy of seeing things for himself, Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, went to Farnborough yesterday toward dusk and made a flight in the airship Delta and Beta. Each flight lasted some fifteen minutes at a height of 1,800 feet.

LLOYD GEORGE IS WELL LIKED

He is Said to Be the Most Popular Man in Kingdom of Italy.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is the most popular man in Italy, according to Welshmen returning from the continent. The common people of Italy, in discussing the British statesman, say that his well known measures, such as pensions for old people, insurance, etc., are greatly needed in Italy. Whenever Lloyd George speaks in or out of parliament every word he says is printed in the Italian papers. Much more space is given to his speeches than to the utterances of the Prime Minister of Italy. His remarks are read avidly by workmen who can read to their friends who cannot. Britain's questions are Italy's questions. There are movements in each country in the same direction and the Italian workman believes that the British leader is the prophet of the new era.

PRINCE AUGUST ASSUMES DUCHY

Cumberland Was Without a Reigning Duke Since 1884.

BRUNSWICK, Germany, Nov. 1.—The government of the Duchy of Brunswick, which has been without a reigning duke since 1884, was assumed to-day by the Young Prince Ernest August of Cumberland, who on May 24 married Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of the German Emperor and Empress.

The differences between the two princely families of Hohenzollern and Guelph have thus been settled for the new duke in a declaration issued to-day promised unswerving loyalty to the German Empire and emperor and to the federal rulers of Germany. He thus implicitly, although not actually, renounced his pretensions to the throne of the Kingdom of Hanover, annexed to Prussia in 1866, when it allied itself with Austria, against Prussia. Prince Ernest August's father, the Duke of Cumberland, the rightful heir to the Kingdom of Hanover as well as to the Dukedom of Brunswick, has steadfastly refused to renounce his claims to the succession to Hanover and to reign as Duke of Brunswick. He has always lived in exile in Austria.

Since 1884 the Duchy of Brunswick has been under a regency first of Prince Albert of Prussia and then of Duke Johann Albrecht of Mecklenberg-Schwerin, whose office lapses with the accession to the throne of Prince Ernest August. The complete transfer of the sovereignty and the state entry to the duchy of the young Duke and Duchess are to take place on Nov. 30, but this will be merely an occasion for a spectacular display.

Fell Through

Convict Ex-Senator Refused to Talk Unless He Got Liberty.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—There was made public here to-day what purports to be the contents of Tennessee's "little black book," so far as it relates to his conference in Sing Sing with Stephen J. Stilwell, convicted state senator. The book was placed in evidence at the John Doe inquest yesterday, but was not made public. It reveals no confession: The names of Charles F. Murphy, ex-Senator Frawley and others are mentioned but after fencing for hours with Hennessey, Stilwell refused to discuss anybody flatly of anything, insisting that he first got his pardon. When this was refused the negotiations were dropped.

REAL SWINDLER IS CAUGHT BY POLICE

Professor Dennis Had a Lot of Tricks Which He Worked.

Several Criminal Transactions Are Charged Against Him.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Said to be wanted as a swindler in England, Canada and a dozen American cities, "Professor" Charles Dennis, member of alleged "clairvoyant trust" which was broken up here last spring, is in the hands of the Chicago police and will face trial on several indictments charging fraud. Dennis was arrested in Boston October 24, and was held in secrecy until turned over to the Chicago police. He was brought back here last night. Among the criminal transactions charged against the "professor" and for which indictments have been returned are: Swindling five Chicago people, among whom were two employees of the International Harvester Company, Arranging with another "professor" for holding two clairvoyant friends, who had "cleaned up" $6,000 and a $1,500 diamond ring in Louisville. Swindling many persons in New York by card games, wire tapping and clairvoyancy. Assaulting a girl in Buffalo. Forfeiting bond in Montreal. Arranging two fake horse races in England, one for $35,000 and one for $5,000. Operating an alleged $10,000 clairvoyant swindle in Peoria, Ill. Swindling trans-Atlantic and Continental tourists. Dennis is wanted in Chicago as "Professor" Calisbary." He is also known under half a dozen aliases.

Toll of Death

From Hallowe'en Observance in City of Chicago Last Night.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Two boys are dead as the result of Hallowe'en pranks played here last night. While trying to pull down an arc light, Morgan Campbell, 15 years old, came in contact with a charged wire and was instantly electrocuted. Thomas O. Laquinto, died in a hospital from injuries sustained when he was knocked down by a fire department wagon which was answering a false alarm some joker had turned in.

Mrs. Elida Ewart, 52, and her daughter, Mrs. Alma Steenersen, 32, both widows, died of heart disease within thirty minutes last night, the latter at a Hallowe'en party, the former on her way to join her daughter, when informed of her illness. The daughter died within half an hour after being taken ill. Her mother was notified of her illness and dropped dead on a street corner. The body was found by a policeman.

MRS. PANK IN CHICAGO. CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette, arrived in Chicago early to-day from Nashville, to fill a lecture engagement to-morrow afternoon. She plans to remain here until Tuesday, when she will go to Minneapolis to address a meeting. Thursday. To-night the British militant and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor will lead the grand march at a Hallowe'en dance to be given by the Women's Trade Union League.

Dr. W. H. Gilbert of Belleville, was hurriedly operated upon for appendicitis.

EVIL SPEAKING. We may ourselves one of these days need forbearance and silence from our brethren. Let us render it cheerfully to those who require it now. Be this our family rule and our personal bond. Speak evil of no man.—Spurgeon. Speak well of the absent whenever you have a suitable opportunity. Never speak ill of them or of anybody unless you are sure they deserve it and unless it is necessary for their amendment or for the safety and benefit of others.—St. Matthew Hale. Never speak anything evil of a man if you do not know it for a certainty; then ask yourself, "Why should I tell it?"—Lavater.

A SPECIAL COSTUME FOR THE FAIR CHAFFEUSE.

Steering a motor car is like playing the cello. No concessions are made to feminine costume and the woman who essays either of these feats speedily discovers that there is only one way to manage—by spreading her knees in a most awkward and unfeminine position. The fair motorist was utterly so this practical and attractive costume, clad in the narrow skirt of the moment, use. The garment is really a coat, belted in at the waist, but the skirt portion with its drapery at either side of a panel suggests a conventional frock of trotteur type.

ing executive of the W. H. A., who for years have given so much time and energy to make comfy environments for the afflicted.

About twenty young people journeyed to Hazle Brook farm last evening to enjoy Halloween in good old-fashioned style. Cordia was the welcome given by Judge and Mrs. Hardy, and Miss Doris to their guests. The out-of-doors vista was in keeping with the weird old festival, for behind the trees was an easy place for good and bad fairies to hide. For tradition tells us they're in full force on Oct. 31st, and the woods are full of them so to speak. Soon the jollity began. What fun! Many the old but ever new games were entered into with zest, that are so attractive in early youth. The time passed all too quickly, when adieus were said after a delightful evening spent in the country.

The Wardens' Pictures

We had a glimpse last week of the Wardens' pictures collected by the Brant Historical society. What strong faces they are, these sons of the soil; sons of the men who made England great. The Wardens of the Cinque Port, with the shrievalty, one of the oldest offices in Anglo-Saxon institutions, older by centuries than members of Parliament. The Brant County Wardens must have felt this and rested on their honors, only one having won a seat in parliament. The present member has been Warden three times—an honor accorded to few. There were three squires, Squire Burt, Squire Turnbull, Squire Thompson—taking us back to the days when England was young and merry and the squire with his coach and four drove through the green lanes and meadows to his own country home. The one touch of color Canadian life lacks.

Doings in Clubland

Clubland is about, or soon will be, in full swing in our little city. The Literary Club, the Musical Club, the Physical Culture Club, not to speak of various other clubs, including bridge and euchre clubs, all have their places in the world of study or play. Bridge is a great help to the memory—"as good as a problem in Euclid," some one has said. The late Mrs. Osler, mother of the famous physician, Dr. Wm. Osler, was asked how she retained her keen memory at 97 years of age. She replied, "played whist all my life." There was a time when women's clubs were considered chiefly as a topic of amusement. Then followed a long period when these clubs were forgotten. Now the world is considering the question of the importance of Women's clubs. One of the great dangers a new club has to face is the tendency to begin with some abstruse subject, rather than with a simple one. The average woman's club existed only for study, the reading of papers and discussion. The women's club idea has never taken very strong hold in Canada. What women's clubs there are in Canada are for discussion, rather than for action. The modern club woman is far more likely to be attracted by a topic of interest than by literature. Topics of interest, the Home-like House, Modern Authors, and Important Movements of Our Times, are more interesting to women, than the philosophy of the Greeks.

to which she belongs, this royal lady has faced once more the duties and responsibilities of her position. The Minister of Justice and Mrs. Doherty were in Ottawa for Thanksgiving.

At this time of writing it is not known at what date Canada may expect to see Mrs. Pankhurst, if indeed that lady of the strenuous life intends to visit us. It is said, that in spite of her recent slim diet, Leader Emeline is looking quite fit. So far as dress is concerned, she is always well and becomingly garbed, and her present attire is even luxurious. The seal coat and hat with the latest flare would indicate that Mrs. Pankhurst is in no immediate want, and that the wolf is keeping a respectful distance from her militant threshold.

Lord and Lady Hyde and Lord Somers, who have been spending the summer at their farm in Canada, are sailing about the middle of November for England, where they will spend the winter months.

At a special meeting of the May Court Club this month, in Ottawa, Mrs. George H. Perley, the retiring May Queen, was presented with the locket that is always given to a former May Queen, after her marriage. The locket is heart shaped with a May flower between crystals surrounded with whole pearls.

Vicountess Ingelstie is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful women in London society to-day. Tall, slim and graceful, she has a face of rare intellectual sweetness. She is sister to the handsome and debonair Marquis of Angelsey, whose marriage to Lady Marjorie Manners took place in August of last year.

Mrs. Henshaw, Vancouver, B. C. is among the Canadians who will spend the next few months in England. Mrs. Henshaw has already received invitations to lecture in London on the Flora of Canada, a subject to which she has devoted much time and attention.

Mrs. Alice Harriman, the only woman publisher in the United States and Great Britain, who carries on her business under the firm name which indicates her sex, divulges her age with a carelessness which is only permissible to the successful. "I was 45 before I published a line," she confesses. Do not think, dear women just because you have passed the fortieth or even the forty-fifth mile stone that it is too late for you to choose your vocation in life and carry it through to success.

My authors are my best friends. If I think there is a fair chance of success I do not object to helping a comparatively unknown writer make his bow before the literary world. They all say I am sympathetic. That is because I had a hard time in the beginning myself. I was born in Maine. In Seattle, discouraged at my lack of success, I hazarded my little capital on the publication of a book of my own poems called "Songs of the Sound". It paid for itself in ten days. I do not think there is as much money in fiction for the publisher as in books of general interest of all times, and those which treat of some special subject, having an ardent temporary interest. With the exception of her secretarial staff, Mrs. Harriman, whose place of business is in New York, is the whole publishing outfit. She designs covers, wraps, circulars, does the "make-up" and whatever other part of her profession may demand the individual touch.

Some of the Reasons

why we believe that we are going to receive a good patronage in Brantford for our Milk, Cream and Dairy Products:

We are the only distributors of clarified and pasteurized Milk and Cream in Brantford.

The proof that pasteurized milk is superior in every respect to raw milk, in that all disease organisms are totally destroyed, is borne out by scientific research, as well as by the practical proof that 95 per cent. of the citizens of Toronto and Hamilton will use nothing else. We believe that the people of Brantford are just as discriminating and hold the health of their families as dearly as do the people of our neighboring cities.

We would be pleased to have you try our milk, and be convinced in the Practical Way.

Mrs. George Philip Buck, Dufferin Avenue, has issued invitations to an at home on Thursday, November sixth, to introduce her two daughters, Miss Evelyn and Miss Kathleen.

Mrs. D. J. Waterous had a well-attended talent tea Tuesday afternoon at her residence, Park Avenue; the rooms were thronged during the afternoon by many purchasers of the home-made goodies and candies for sale. A pleasant feature was the piano solos rendered during the afternoon by Miss Hope Doeringer. Over $40 was realized for the Ladies' Aid of Zion Church.

Quite a number of friends motored to Mr. Pleasant Wednesday to call on Mrs. Morgan Harris at the historic old house "Bracefield," where in the early times of Canada Lord Elgin, then Governor-General, and his suite, spent a month. Mrs. Grey, the guest of the hostess, received with her. The immense rooms were most attractive, bedecked with yellow and white "mums," and many shaded candles in brass sticks gave a pretty note of color to the environs. Mrs. Chester Harris, Mrs. Morton Paterson, Miss Mildred Cook, Miss Holmstrake, were the assistants.
Mrs. H. B. Yates, Montreal, sails for Canada to-day.

The cosy reading room at the Y. W. C. A. presented an animated appearance Thursday and Friday when many ladies, at the tea hour came and went during the afternoon. Mrs. Cummings Nelles poured coffee at a table bright with silver and yellow "mums," while Mrs. Joseph Stratford presided at the tea table. Down stairs the busy mart was packed with many purchasers for the goods the rods, provided for the W. H. A. Everything from the proverbial needle to an anchor, was on sale. A gramophone was on a stand ready to be presented to the lucky winner of the night-ticket. Hats galore! Who wouldn't be a la mode when you could buy a hat for 25c, that cost father $5. It means a lot of work to the untir-

CITY HALL

A correspondent elsewhere in this issue argues that a new City Hall, if there is to be one, should be erected on the present market square.

This paper ventures to differ with that opinion.

The square, under proper conditions—and the same, most emphatically, do not now exist—should be devoted to market purposes only. That was the original trust under which this city received the property without paying one solitary cent for the same, and if anyone doubts the correctness of this statement, let him go to the office of the registrar in this city, where a High Court judgment in this regard is on record.

A City Hall in the centre of a market square is, in the opinion of this journal, an utterly ridiculous proposition. Why should people with civic business in hand be forced to wade through a crowd of sellers and buyers, in order to transact the same?

Meanwhile, it may be safely affirmed that the entire subject has never yet been placed before the public in a clear-cut way.

Assuming, as this paper does with good warrant, that the square is for market purposes only in perpetuity, then the question resolves itself into these queries, which might be submitted at the next January municipal election contest:

1. Are you in favor of a new City Hall on the present site?
2. Do you consider that the existing postoffice building would do for that purpose for some years?
3. If not, do you favor a new site?

Something like the above would seem to be desirable.

THE SOUTH BRUCE RESULT

A calm consideration of the facts must lead everybody, except the most blindly partisan to conclude that the result in South Bruce did not have a Dominion, but only a local, significance.

The Courier has already demonstrated that the Conservative losses occurred in those portions of the riding settled by Germans, to whom the barefaced and untrue appeal was made that Borden's $35,000,000 was intended to help John Bull to attack the Fatherland.

Then also there was the personal popularity of the Liberal candidate, Mr. Trux, who for ten years sat in the Ontario House as the Liberal representative from that region.

The editor of the Ottawa Free Press (Liberal), who has a personal knowledge of the constituency, pretty well sized up the situation, and his words are worth repeating:

After the result of the Chateaugay bye-election, where a Tory won, the Free Press declared that the voting there did not indicate the feeling in Quebec. Neither does the result in South Bruce, where a Liberal won yesterday, give any particular clue to the way the political wind is blowing in Ontario. In South Bruce it was a fight between candidates, not between big issues. From a lengthy experience in Bruce elections, where a general handshake counts more than statesmanship, Mr. Trux knew how to campaign to the ground.

From lack of experience, and because he relied too much on dreadnoughts and too little on the personal touch, Mr. Carrill campaigned over the people's heads. As Liberals, we would like to believe that South Bruce marks the beginning of a complete collapse of the Borden Government, but what is the use of cheating ones? In our hearts we know that as a political barometer South Bruce is not much better than Chateaugay. Still Liberals ought to feel proud of the result, even if it proves nothing more from a public standpoint than that the Bob Rogers election machine is not invulnerable.

Talk of the Bob Rogers' alleged "machine," it may be mentioned, is the stock excuse these days whenever a Grit gets walloped.

Meanwhile the undoubted and uncontroversial fact remains that it was the race cry which in the main accounted for a Conservative loss. That served the purpose of the Liberals in the one riding, but can in no sense be regarded as a reflex of public opinion in the other constituencies of the province, with their large population of men and women of British descent.

THE BORDEN POLICY

The Hamilton Herald (Independent), during the course of an editorial with reference to the South Bruce result, says in part:

"But if the whole naval policy of the Borden government had been before the people, it would have been difficult for the Liberal campaigners to misrepresent it. The result should serve as a notice to Mr. Borden to take the country into his confidence and unfold his permanent naval policy. The donation or loan of battleships, standing by itself, is not an alluring policy. It needs to be supplemented. But the obstinate silence of the premier with regard to his permanent policy enables his opponents to indulge in all sorts of misrepresentation. What is needed is a clear-cut statement from the premier setting forth the character of the permanent naval policy which he proposes for Canada."

The Herald which is heartily supporting the proposed vote of $35,000,000, has more than once uttered criticisms similar to the above.

Upon what basis?

Mr. Borden, prior to the general contest stated, that if returned to office, he would consult with the British authorities as to how Canada could best help in a naval way. He went over, consulted with Premier Asquith, Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and other members of the Cabinet, and was told in specific terms that a cash vote would be the most acceptable form of assistance to meet the emergency.

There has been a lot of fool talk in the Toronto Globe and by other Grit sheets, as to the specifications of said emergency, when any one giving the subject even casual consideration must realize that John Bull is not publishing broadcast the reasons for the statement in question. That they exist in the judgment of the Asquith Administration is abundantly proven by the circumstance that the three Dreadnoughts are now under course of construction, whether Johnny Canuck puts up one cent for them, or whether he doesn't.

Very well then, that point having been made clear, Mr. Borden has temporarily stopped by the action of the Senate, and for the rest he has stated that a Canadian navy will be a subject for the future, after careful enquiry. To this end the three new ships are to be subject to the recall of this Dominion should they be wanted as the nucleus for a Canadian establishment. How, under the circumstances is there anything vague about that?

Australia and New Zealand have passed from the method of contribution to the securing of their own fleets and there is nothing to prevent us from doing the same thing.

But in the name of all that is decent and reasonable, let us first discharge a long overdue duty—duty, be it noted which the people of the Antipodes have been meeting for some years.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The poor we have always with us—also the Market and new City Hall questions.

Now Mr. Tory, are you a Borden Club member? If not, why not?

The Conservative candidate in South Bruce now knows all about the German menace.

The Borden Club doesn't give Borden lodging, but it does provide roomy quarters with plenty of healthy diversions.

Huerta is now said to be on the verge of bankruptcy. If that is the case, it will stop him in the event of conflict with the United States, from purchasing anything Herr Krupp's.

Uncle Sam is contemplating the dropping of the clause giving U. S. ships a preference in connection with the Panama Canal tolls. He will be doing the square thing if he does.

They are having zero weather and blizzards out West, while good old Ontario still continues to turn out blue domed days, according to schedule with just enough cold to act as a tonic.

The Tory and the Grit Premiers of the Dominion met in confab at Ottawa. Did they squabble? Not on your life. To the contrary they decided to demand more money from the Federal chest with a sweet unanimity calculated to bring tears even to a strong man's eyes.

Speaking at a State Waterways convention in Albany, N. Y., Secretary Frank Ellsworth pointed to the immense canal projects in Canada and to Hydro Electric development in Ontario, and remarked that New York State must wake up "in order to compete with these immense Canadian enterprises." All started, he it further noted, under Conservative auspices.

Mrs. Pankhurst's tour of the States has proved a rank failure. What she came over for was to secure more money to help her window knocking, letter destroying, assault dealing, incendiaries in the Old Land. How would our neighbors feel if one of the "weaker vessels" from their country went to Great Britain for the purpose of securing the whereabouts to jerk the whiskers out of Uncle Sam, with a few bricks for his stomachic region, and a fire every once in a while to help brighten up things?

SOME CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR YOUR BEST CHUM

Articles You Can Make From Odds and Ends of Ribbons.

These Hints May Help You Solve the Problem of "Practical Giving."

You have some pieces of ribbon left from hat trimming, sash making or other work. Why not use them to make dainty little gifts for friends who are remembered in thought mainly?

The combination of the practical with the beautiful is possible with a piece of ribbon six inches long and four inches wide. Fold it in half, making a book 3 by 4. Fold in a hem one-fourth inch wide all around and catch it tight with colored silk thread or buttwale twist. In the cover sew four fannel leaves, with the edges pinked or cut in regular points. Place on them a row of needles, each one threaded with the colors a woman would be most likely to use on a short trip. Pin in a row of small safety pins and add ordinary pins, black and white headed ones, in neat rows across the leaves. Attach the binding string or ribbon on the outside and tie around the little emergency book. This is a fat case that a woman can tuck in her hand bag or slip into a coat pocket. It is a friend in need and will be used many times.

Velvet Sash a Pretty Gift.

The velvet sash pictured is a gift that any girl will think "perfectly wonderful" if presented by an admiring friend. It is very simple, requiring only wide black velvet ribbon for

BLACK VELVET AND RIBBON ROSES.

The sash is long enough for two ends, a little over a foot long, which are decorated at the ends with wreaths made of tiny silk ribbons. The ends are turned back to form a point.

Bag For Missy's Slippers.

A handsome quality of white satin ribbon over the surface of which are scattered bluish designs in pinkish lavender is the material from which this stunning party bag is constructed.

The bag is built on the same plan as the lady's knitted purse, the kind that has two compartments drawn through a ring. The two lengths of ribbon used for making the bag are cut long enough to admit of a pair of slippers, a fan and the usual vanity articles being concealed in its depth. The ends are rounded, and a handsome white silk fringe and tassel are the finish.

The large celluloid ring through which the bag is slipped and the smaller ring that holds the contents intact are both covered with the ribbon. A pocket is cut in the center of the ribbon for the stowing of the articles.

A Good Old Standby Gift.

The good old standby—the umbrella—never proves a disappointment as a gift, for people seem to have the luck of leaving umbrellas wherever they go.

GIFTS FOR WEE SMALL MAIDS.

Novelties in Good Looking Washable Dolls and Household Furniture.

First and foremost there is the doll, and in this line are the dolls of washable material.

Then for Miss Dolly there is a cradle of enameled wicker, mounted on wooden rockers, unless her indyship is in the grownup class, in which event a colonial bedstead of mahogany, accompanied with bureau to match, with glass knobs, would be more correct, or if something in plainer taste is desired, a mission set is available.

Naturally with a dolly and a vast wardrobe of lingerie gowns there is absolute need of a laundry table and ironing board, and incidentally if the zovvies are to be kept spick and span there should be a wardrobe in which to keep them.

For the child who loves the sand pile there is a most interesting set of wooden sand toys, nestly packed into a wicker basket, with a watering can, bowl and shovel.

And surely if there are to be a doll house and furnishings there should be at least one if not more domestic pets. To select from, Spania Clans has funny little dachshunds of brown, plush, just plain dogs of soft, curly, white plush, very real looking Irish terriers of plush, or it may be the little maid would prefer a cute little pink plush pig, a winsome little white woolly lamb, a rooster of many colored felt or a goose of plush cloth. Among the tempting gifts that will please the small maid of eight or ten is a work-bag that will be her very own. Such a receptacle is illustrated in a canvas bag decorated with cross stitch.

Wooden embroidery hoops covered with ribbon are fast becoming a novelty and form the handles by which the bag may be carried. This makes a charming little bag for the little lady's sewing.

A Gift Mother Will Like.

Dainty embroidered and lace trimmed bibs always form part of an infant's layette. They are beautiful, but perishable things to handle. Consequently every young mother will be charmed if some one presents her child at Christmas time with a pretty bib holder.

Just the thing is illustrated—a bib case made from a shallow, rather large, round paper box. Cover the box inside and out with some kind of dainty silk, and about the lid sew gathered ruffles of two inch satin ribbon, in pale blue or pink. In the center is placed the blue-headed of a baby doll. The lid is tied to the bottom of the box by means of ribbon ties. A sachet is fitted in the bottom of the case.

Miss Baby's First Christmas.

Don't think about the baby's present list of all and then rush out and buy a silly toy. Rather give her something that her mother can keep for her until she gets old enough to take care of it because it came on her first Christmas day. One of the trifles which can be indefinitely kept, because it takes up scarcely any space, is a banger for petticoats. This is simply a 4 by 18 inch strip of thin board, padded with cotton and then covered with heavy crash or satin, hand painted with Greenway figures. And if you can't do this painting with your own hands there are plenty of young art students who will gladly do it for a dollar. This board should hold at least eight hooks, and if you have plenty of money—or affection for your small niece—have these hooks of solid silver, that they may not rust any damp skirt hung upon them. Having covered the board and adjusted the hooks, all that is needed is a number of broad pink or blue ribbon, terminating at the fastening ends with big bows-knots.

If the clothes banger is going to be too expensive for your purse—or your affection—send Miss Baby an individual work-basket. These look positively infantile, because they are almost miniature affairs of white enameled wood, with flat bottoms and inch high sides and flings of pale blue or pale pink quilted satin.

Across the rim from end to end run narrow ribbon lines binding, rock the fine thread. From one corner swing a silver covered needle and pin box and from the diagonally opposite corner a big box of satin ribbon, with fringe ends, embroidered on to the handle of a pair of iron scissors and an ivory

Braced Up

In summer man, in languor, drags on his weary feet; and he is full of anger, and prunes, and prickly heat; he grumbles and he hollers; the heat melts down his collars; he'd give a million dollars to see a storm of sleet. There's not much sense in lying when Summer is on deck; for then the sun is giving calorific by the peck; the days are hot as blazes, at night the heat amazes, and sweating mankind raises its voice and cries "By Heck!" How lovely is the Autumn! On it there are no flies; or, if they are, we sweat them with glad exultant cries! We kick holes in the ceiling because we are seeling like brained heifers reeling through clover to their eyes. The blood is coursing freely through ancient veins, gad-zook! And soon we think we're really much younger than we look!

Like school boys we are racing, upon our curds chasing; an we are seen embracing the hired girl and the cook. October bright, October, you are the month, by jing! That man is dour and sober who doesn't dance and sing! The summer months paraded and left us worn and faded; you came when we were jaded, with healing in your wing!

BRITAIN FEARED NAPOLEON.

And Lamb, Who Thought Him a Fine Fellow, Fanned the Flame.

It was on Aug. 8, 1815, that "General" Bonaparte, as his English captors insisted upon calling him, was transferred from the Belleophon to the ship Northumberland, to begin the journey to St. Helena. There was much protest in England against the transportation of the distinguished prisoner, but the government remained firm.

Official England could see nothing but danger in keeping such a dynamite force as Napoleon within its limits, and, harsh as the actions of the government seemed, the position thus taken was not without logic. Napoleon had been placed on his honor at Elba, but honor did not weigh with him when ambition was concerned.

Charles Lamb spoke for those who favored Napoleon's banishment in England when he wrote to Southey: "Altho' er all, Bonaparte is a fine fellow, as my barber says, and I should not mind standing bareheaded at his table to do service to him in his fall. They should have given him Hampton court of Kensington, with a tether extending forty miles round London." Lamb whimsically suggested that if Napoleon remained in England the people might some day eject the Brunswick in his favor, and the government took the suggestion seriously.

Now that Napoleon is safely dead such a feat seems absurd, but Napoleon was then alive, and, in view of that fact, no government was safe in saying, "I should worry." Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bovine Signal Service.

Before the decisive battle at Issitt on the part of the enemy was discovered by the Serbians. A cowherd was taking five cows out to pasture on a hill halfway between the two camps. He drove them about, sometimes two to a pair, then one at a time, then three, thus conveying information to the Bulgarians as to the position and strength of the Serbian battalions.

Marvelous Resistance of Water.

If it were possible to impart to a sheet of water an inch in thickness sufficient velocity the most powerful bombshells would be immediately stopped in their flight when they came into contact with it. It would offer the same resistance as the steel armor of the most modern battleship—London Strand Magazine.

Taking Their Turn.

"Why station a policeman beside this park bench?"

"It is newly painted."

"He can't keep people from testing fresh paint."

"No, but he can keep 'em in line."—Kansas City Journal.

The warmest friends of Red Rose Tea are those who have tried some other brand said to be "as good as Red Rose." Very easy to say a thing is "as good" but not so easy to "make good." Will you try it.

Social and Personal News

Mrs. H. F. Crawford leaves today for Chicago, en route to Corpus Christi, Texas, to spend the winter.

Mrs. R. H. Scott, of Winnipeg, and little daughter, Jean, are the guests of Mrs. W. S. Brewster, 35 Chestnut Avenue. Mrs. Scott will receive with Mrs. Brewster on Tuesday.

Musical Club

Never in the history of the Musical Club, was there such a record attendance as assembled in the W. M. C. A. lecture room yesterday afternoon. It is an ideal place to meet, with many bright windows and splendid appointments. On the stage in honor of old Hallowe'en pumpkins with their weird yellow faces gave a touch of bright color to the scene. When Miss Raymond appeared she was greeted by an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. She made a pretty picture as she smiled and bowed. She has a voice of remarkable clarity which she uses with fine judgment. Mr. Wright with delicate skill played the accompaniments. Mr. Darwen, the accomplished solo pianist, is also an artist of much promise.

A Children's Party

Tuesday evening Miss Wills Young, assisted by Miss Grace Verity were the hostesses of a delightful Children's Hallowe'en party. The pretty rooms were decorated in the effective colors, black and yellow at the time-honored day; lanterns, eyes glaring from pumpkin yellow faces, made gay the scene for the seventy-five juveniles, who participated in the old, but ever new games, and went home delighted with the evening's jollity. The ancient superstition that "All Hallow's Day" as it was called, was supposed to bring out evil spirits who would be particularly active on Oct. 31st; the fairies good and bad would surely be much in evidence on Hallowe'en and the former certainly brought much joy to the kiddies who were under their patronage this week.

A Talent Tea

A most successful Talent Tea was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Fissette, 109 George street, on Friday afternoon, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid and the Women's Missionary Societies of the Wellington Street Methodist church. A very pleasant hour was spent by the ladies and the sum of $25.00 was realized from the sale of home-made cooking, candies, etc.

HALLOWE'EN

At the Armouries.

A jolly dance was held in the Armouries last night under the auspices of the Dufferin Rifles brass band and was attended by over 50 couples. The southern end of the floor space was set aside for dancing. The music for the dance was furnished by the band. The refreshments booth did a thriving business.

Among those present were: Lieut. Col. Howard, Major Genet, Major Ballachee, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ash-ton, Capt. and Mrs. G. O. Watt, Capt. and Mrs. M. Colquhoun, Lieut. and Mrs. B. Gordon, Capt. Newman, Capt. Hick, Lieut. Fraser, Lieut. Clark and others.

At the Conservatory.

At the Conservatory of Music last night the Friday night dancing class held a jolly Hallowe'en dance, the music for which was provided by Miss Edna Beer. On account of the many other Hallowe'en parties, the attendance was not as large as usual.

A Surprise Party.

A number of young friends of Miss Edith Anderson, gave her a surprise party at her home, 229 Murray St., last night. Over 20 couples of children were present and participated in games, music, etc.

Grand View Women's Inst.

The regular monthly meeting of the Terrace Hill and Grandview Women's Institute, was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Houting, when a goodly number met to enjoy a carefully prepared programme. A paper by Mrs. H. Jull on "Current Topics" showed deep thought and was made interesting and instructive. Mrs. Savage rendered a guitar selection, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," recalling one of the old favorites. Mrs. W. L. Bayless gave a few thoughts on Thanksgiving, which was a portrayal of the true spirit of thanksgiving. Mrs. Bayless was appointed as delegate to attend the Women's Institute convention to be held in Toronto on Nov. 20 and 21.

The serving of luscious fruit of the vine and tree by the hostess, brought to close a profitable time spent together.

The Vancouver Province ventures to remark that Hall Gane might well exclaim "The jolt thou gavest me" when he read Gilbert Chesterton's comment on the present situation in literary circles: "No literature in particular having been published lately, people are talking about the new novel by Mr. Hall Gane."

A hard hearted newspaper man across the border knocks the romance out of things by pointing out that many a June bride who imagined she would do nothing, except occupy a throne, is now down in the cellar trying to get the sinkers out of the furnace, so that the blame thing will work.

A CLEVER SWINDLE

Working the Game at an English Watering Place.

STORY OF A WORRIED WOMAN.

It caught the interest and sympathy of the Prosperous Loungers at the Fashionable Hotel, and the Rest of the Scheme Was Easy.

"The prosperous" were lounging on the terrace of the leading hotel in the fashionable watering place sunning themselves. It was a magnificent afternoon. Everybody was lazily good tempered and contributed to the general air of well fed contentment.

For a moment she stood on the stone steps that led up to the terrace, hesitating. "The prosperous" gaped at her and wondered why she was there. They probably classified her as one of the "respectable poor."

"My good woman, you seem to be in trouble. Can I do anything?" It was the elderly military looking man in the corner who spoke-- spoke gruffly as one who is in the habit of doing favors ungraciously.

"I am a widow, a color sergeant in the Welsh Grays my husband was. I let lodgings in the town. There was a gentleman called Colonel Morrish boarded in my house nine or six months; said he'd pay me soon as his dividends of something came in at the half year.

"I managed to hold out and gave him the good table as he was accustomed to, though it meant owing the landlord. But I'd do anything to bare the gentry in my house."

"I owe the landlord." "Two pounds," repeated the military looking man. He hesitated and then fumbled in his pocket. "Well, dash it, here is £2 toward it." And his voice was gruffer than ever.

EASTER ISLAND.

A Deserted Land and Its Mysterious Crude Stone Statues.

Huge and grotesque stone images stand and lie over the fertile surface of a deserted island far south in the Pacific. It is a place that Poe might have sung into existence or Hider Haggard created for the scene of some fantastic romance.

PASTOR W. M. BATTERSON of Nebraska City subject: "Christ's Second Coming" How? Why? When?

Toppling tomb-stones, falling mountains, opening graves, wailing maniacs, fiery heavens, and a burning earth, have been so promiscuously associated with the Lord's Second Coming that many Christian people are coming to dread the event instead of praying for it, as instructed in the Bible.

To The Editor

THE NEW CITY HALL.

To the Editor of the Courier: Sir--The location of public buildings should not be controlled by private interests. Let the majority rule. The people should say where the City Hall should be built.

Because some private individuals may chance to own or hold options on property in the vicinity of the proposed site for the new City Hall, which, according to press reports is a side street or back lot proposition, is no good or valid reason why a $50,000 public building, should be so hidden from public view as to necessitate strangers to our city being supplied with a guide to locate same.

Citizens, it is your next move. Let us see ourselves as others see us, and then wake up. Should the City Hall for any unforeseen reason be built in any other part of the city, then I would suggest a ten foot wall being built, making a complete enclosure of the Market Square and paint thereon beautiful scenery pleasing to the eye as well as the picture of the Mayor and Councillors of 1913 and over the entrance to said square have a sign directing strangers where to find the city hall and above this scenery a painted wall and on each of the four sides hang a sign with the words "Brant's Museum."

sides would have a chance to express their views to the fullest extent.

First impressions are usually lasting. This being the case what must have been the opinion of visitors to our city and the transient travelling public for the last quarter of a century. To be met at the depot by a dinky little street car having the appearance of being reclaimed from the scrap heap to which it bears all the car-marks of having long since been consigned, and capable of creating much more noise than a sham battle, only to be unloaded in front of a building upon the tower of which stands a clock installed in its exalted position about the time of the inauguration of the British North America Act.

The above referred to historic city hall stands in the centre of what is known as the Market Square, which to the stranger must seem stranger still, and as he gazes upon the battle scarred square decorated with fish stands, peanut roasters and empty boxes, he ventures to ask the population of the village. This is only a fair idea of the strangers first impression.

Citizens, it is your next move. Let us see ourselves as others see us, and then wake up. Should the City Hall for any unforeseen reason be built in any other part of the city, then I would suggest a ten foot wall being built, making a complete enclosure of the Market Square and paint thereon beautiful scenery pleasing to the eye as well as the picture of the Mayor and Councillors of 1913 and over the entrance to said square have a sign directing strangers where to find the city hall and above this scenery a painted wall and on each of the four sides hang a sign with the words "Brant's Museum."

(From our own Correspondent)
 Our own pastors occupied the pulpit on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Cook preached a very helpful sermon in the morning, and Rev. Mr. Morrow delivered a very practical address on "Choice," his text being found in Deut. 30:13, "the evening." The music for the day was of excellent character. Miss Myrtle Norris singing "Jesus is all the world to me" in very sweet tones in the morning, and Miss Vera Healey in the afternoon, rendering "Halleluiah" a channel of blessing; in her usual pleasant style in the evening. League was held Monday evening. Miss C. B. Ferguson being the leader. As it was literary evening a splendid program was provided. Mrs. Chas. Wilson, who has recently returned from a three months' trip to the Coast, gave a very interesting travel talk which was thoroughly enjoyed by a large assembly. Mrs. Wilson took her hearers from Fort McNicoll by boat to Fort William on the Manitoba, allowing them to get a taste of sea sickness on the way; from there to visit Stanley Park; to view the great buildings and parks in Regina, Calgary, and highest bridge in the world at Lethbridge; into a coal mine at Lethbridge; to the Rocky Mountain National Park at Banff; into the hot sulphur springs at Banff to bathe; on the mountains top; over canyons to the glaciers and on through the Rockies where they were delayed now by landslides, now by washouts, and again by tortuous streams flooding the tracks; on to Vancouver to visit Stanley Park; to view the big trees in B. C., one of which measured 65 feet in circumference, though an ocean liner, The Empress of Asia; and back home again, having travelled a distance of 7,000 miles visiting not only important places but seeing many old Ontario friends.

This talk was made so interesting and real that the leaguers were greatly delighted and profited. A patriotic solo was then rendered in excellent voice by Mr. Lew Smith.

On Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock a large number of friends and relatives assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stewart to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of their youngest daughter, Annie Beattie, wife of Mr. Howell Roy, Mr. Morrow, assisted by Rev. Mr. Liddy, officiating.

Mrs. Wilson took her hearers from Fort McNicoll by boat to Fort William on the Manitoba, allowing them to get a taste of sea sickness on the way; from there by C. P. R. to Winnipeg where they attended a stampede; to all the main buildings and parks in Regina, Calgary, and highest bridge in the world at Lethbridge; into a coal mine at Lethbridge; to the Rocky Mountain National Park at Banff; into the hot sulphur spring at Banff to bathe; up on the mountain top; over canyons; to the glaciers and on through the Rockies where they were delayed now by landslides, now by washouts, and again by tortuous streams flooding the tracks; on to Vancouver to visit Stanley Park; to view the big trees in B. This talk was made so interesting and real that the leaguers were greatly delighted and profited. A patriotic solo was then rendered in excellent voice by Mr. Lew Smith. On Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock a large number of friends and relatives assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stewart to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of their youngest daughter, Annie Beatrice, wife of Mr. Howell Roy. Mr. Morrow, assisted by Rev. Mr. Liddy, officiating. Previous to her long illness the deceased was a very bright and winsome young woman. Being a sufferer for some months, she was operated upon in the Brantford Hospital several weeks ago, where she died on Thursday, Oct. 23rd, having recently contracted typhoid fever, which caused her death. The many numerous and beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem in which the deceased was held. Besides the sorrowing husband and friends, there is left to mourn her loss two small children, her parents, five brothers, Will, Earle and Frank of the village, Edward of Brantford, and John of Aberdeen, Sask., two sisters, Mrs. Thos. Graydon, city, and Mrs. Cowell, Norwich. Rev. Mr. Morrow spoke very touchingly on the sadness which enveloped the home of the parents and that of the young husband, and motherless babes. Touching references were made to the beautiful christian character exemplified by the late Mrs. Roy previous to her illness. The service was made very impressive by a solo, "Does Jesus Care," rendered in very sweet voice by Miss Myrtle Norrie. Interment was made at Mt. Hope cemetery, five brothers and Mr. Thomas Graydon being pall bearers. We are glad to note that one of our citizens, Mr. McLeod, is trying to improve the appearance of our village and provide better accommodation for the pedestrians by building a cement walk at his own expense in front of his premises. A very pleasant family gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tottle on Tuesday, it being the anniversary of their golden wedding day. Mrs. B. Lundy, recently returned from Vancouver, and Miss Long of Spokane, were the guests of Mrs. C. Day on Sunday. Miss McLeod left on Monday morning to attend the Sabbath school convention to be held in Owen Sound this week. Mr. and Mrs. Brewer of Brantford, were guests at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson on Sunday. Mrs. C. Foulger has returned from a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Claude Shirke, Smithville. Mr. George Young of Outlook, Sask., was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Herb. Sumler, over Sunday. The sincere sympathy of the village and community is extended to the sorrowing relatives. Miss Addie Norrie spent last week at Oakland, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Will Norrie. Miss Whiting and the Misses Devereux spent Sunday with relatives in the city. Miss Verna Heaman of Brantford, a week-end guest of Miss Annie Hawley.

BURFORD

(From our own correspondent.) Mrs. Phillips of Guelph and Miss Taylor of Paris, visited Mrs. E. Robertson this week. Miss Bradshaw spent a few days in Beaton this week. Mrs. Creighton, Sr., is visiting in Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre of Mt. Pleasant spent Sabbath with Mr. E. W. Robertson. Born—To Mr. and Mrs. A. Clarke a son. Rev. Mr. Hurlburt of Bright, preached to large congregations both morning and evening at the Methodist church last Sabbath. Rev. Mr. Neill preached at Bright. Miss Rutherford of Tilsonburg, is visiting her brother, Dr. Rutherford. Mr. and Mrs. E. Burgess visited in Sparta last week. Mr. Hitchmough has returned from England. Mrs. Crawford of Brantford, visited Mrs. Ledger this week. Mr. and Mrs. Cail of Norwich, visited Miss Carter on Sabbath. The sad news of the death of Mr. Fountain at Fairfield on Saturday, came very unexpectedly to his many friends in the village. Mr. Fountain had been suffering from acute rheumatism for the past seven months. Mrs. Link has purchased Mr. Curry's house on Alexander St. Mrs. E. Dutcher has returned from a visit to Stratford. Mrs. Beggs of Stratford, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hunter. Mr. Messecar has sold his printing business to Mr. Thompson. Owing to continued ill-health, Mr. E. Ripley has been forced to give up farming. He has purchased one of Mr. A. B. Messecar's houses on Alexandria street and will take possession soon. The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church is recarpeting the church. Anniversary services will be held next Sunday when Rev. Mr. Gordon of Brantford will preach. A concert will be given on the following Tuesday evening. An open meeting in connection with the board of trade was held in Kneale's Hall last Monday to consider Hydro Electric, power for Burford. Mr. Wilson, representing the commission was present and gave a very instructive talk. Many questions were asked by the audience. After considerable discussion on the subject, a committee was appointed to call on the police trustees, regarding putting a by-law to the people at the coming election time.

SCOTLAND

(From our own correspondent.) Mr. Egerton Shaver, Ancestor, spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. David Westbrook. Dr. Lang, Hamilton, was at his brother's, E. R. Lang on Sunday. Miss N. Cole and Miss Elva Vanderlip returned home last week after visiting friends in Buffalo, St. Catharines and Hamilton. Mrs. M. Kendrick is spending a couple of weeks with her daughter, Miss Glady's Mulligan entertained company on Sunday. Mr. R. Ireland entertained company from the city on Monday. Several have been having bad colds. Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Flanders spent Monday with Mrs. M. E. Vanderlip. Mr. W. Riddle had a very successful sale on Monday. James McNeill and C. Matthew were at Mr. W. Thompson's on Sunday. Mr. Rob. Ireland was at Alberton on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. J. F. Lampkin is entertaining her sister and cousin from Michigan. Mrs. Weatherall left on Saturday to visit friends near Buffalo.

HARTFORD

(From our own correspondent.) Our clay roads have certainly got stirred up since the rain of the last eight days. The farmers are busy husking corn and digging potatoes when the weather will allow. George Cooper has sold his farm on the sixteenth to Jos. Howard. Herbert Bertran has rented his garden farm of twenty acres to George Procunier of Port Burwell. W. H. Howarth has been down near Dunnville last week inspecting apples. Will Cooper moved this week to Rockford where he has rented a farm from Joseph Kinney. Chas. Cooper has moved on to his father's farm on the Fifteenth. George Lutes moved on Saturday to his new home on the Fifteenth. James Wimpy has taken the price picking apples. He picked 25 barrels at W. Howarth's between nine and four p.m. Miss Leinster of Brantford, who has been nursing at Mrs. George Townsend's the past three weeks, returned home on Saturday. F. H. Osborne returned from Danville on Monday. Mrs. L. Cooper spent last week with her son at Onondaga. Ernest Whelpton of Burlington, was the guest of W. Howarth for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. H. Renner and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lemon took dinner at E. Barber's on Friday. The Ladies Aid met at Mrs. S. Osborne's on Tuesday to quilt. The Women's Institute meets on Thursday at Mrs. John VanLoon's. The subject for the meeting is "Apple Pies," demonstrated by the president, Mrs. Howarth. The roll call be answered by recipes for pies.

EAST OAKLAND

(From our own correspondent.) Delmer Whiting has bought the farm lately owned and occupied by T. McEwan. Mr. Albert Haviland was the guest of his parents over Sunday. Mr. Ben English was out on Tuesday seeking three stray calves. Mr. Alpheus Haviland spent Thanksgiving in the city. Quite a number of friends and neighbors turned out to the sale on Wednesday at Thomas McEwen's.

KELVIN

The roads are somewhat muddy in this locality at present. Mrs. J. N. Hamsay was calling on some of her friends one day last week. Mr. Winkill of Ranleigh was in this section on business a few days ago. Mrs. Jonathan McCombs and mother, Mrs. George Exelby, also Mrs. McCombs, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. N. Andrews one day last week. A new cement platform is being erected in front of the Canada Methodist Church here, at present. A few from this city attended Mr. McEwen's auction sale at Oakland, on Wednesday last. Mrs. George Wood is quite ill at present. We hope for her early recovery. Mr. Feely is on the sick list at present. The weather has been quite wet and dull for several days past. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lewis entertained some of their friends one day last week.

RANELAGH

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hoggard spent Saturday in Brantford. We are glad to report that Mr. Wilcox is able to be out again. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hoggard have returned home after spending their holidays in St. Thomas. Mrs. James Lawrence and her sister of Otterville were the guests of Mrs. Wm. Walker recently. Aches and Pains of rheumatism are not permanent, but only temporarily, relieved by external remedies. Why not use an internal remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acidity of the blood in which rheumatism depends and cures the disease?

QUALIFIED TENDERS

QUALIFIED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Harbour and River Improvements in the Mission-River, Fort William, Ont." will be received at this office until 4:00 P.M. on Friday, November 22, 1913, for the construction of the Harbour and River Improvements. GRATITUDE PROMPTED THIS LETTER

Prominent People Proud To Testify For "Fruit-a-lives"

For years I suffered from Rheumatism, being unable to work for weeks at a time and spending hundreds of dollars on doctor's medicines, besides receiving treatment at Notre Dame Hospital where I was informed that I was incurable. I was discouraged when a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-lives". After using three packages, I felt relieved and continued until I had used five packages when a complete cure was the result after years of doctoring failed. I consider "Fruit-a-lives" a wonderful remedy. You are at liberty to use this testimonial to prove to others the good that "Fruit-a-lives" has done me.

ONLY MARRIED FOR 100 DAYS

Private Soldier Introduced as Cavalry Officer—A Dangerous Character.

An army captain who had been the subject of articles in "Truth" was mentioned in the divorce court last week. The suit was that of Mrs. Mary Lyng, niece of Mr. Edward Moore, formerly High Sheriff of Middlesex, and now a deputy lieutenant of the county against William Lyng.

Mrs. Lyng, counsel said, met Lyng at a social club in February of last year, when a Captain Somerset Johnson introduced him as a cavalry officer, which was inaccurate. This Captain Johnson had been the subject of articles in "Truth" in connection with various marriages. The wedding was in August 1912.

During the one hundred days of their married life, Lyng spent sixty of them away from his wife in the company of a man named Hanbury who lived in a cottage near Framlingham. While at Dieppe during the honeymoon Lyng spent most of the funds in the casino, and when they reached Newhaven on their return journey he left away to Hanbury.

Three or four days later, continued counsel, Lyng demanded money from his wife, saying that two hundred and fifty pounds of what he required was a gambling debt to a lady. In fear on account of his threats she gave him four hundred pounds. Later he demanded five hundred pounds to pay debts incurred, he said, before marriage. She gave him three hundred pounds, but subsequently when he asked her for "the balance" of the five hundred pounds, she firmly refused to give him anything. He then told her he had only married her for her money, and that the sum he required was to pay for his introduction to her. Thereupon he behaved violently towards her. In December last year, he tried to obtain one thousand pounds, threatening her at the time with a revolver. She ceased all relationship with him, and it was afterwards learned that he had been living with a woman at Nice.

Mr. Edward Moore, in his evidence, said that his niece and her husband were living in his house at Cumberland Terrace, Regent's Park. One evening, after dinner, he heard a scream, and going into the dining room saw his niece being roughly handled by Lyng, who was holding her feet up in the air and knocking her head against the table. He ordered Lyng out of the house.

A decree nisi was granted with costs.

QUARTER MILLION IN PRESENTS

Dazzling Display of Jewels at Saint James's Palace.

The presents to the Royal couple are roughly estimated to be of the value of £250,000. The diamond tiara presented to the bride by the King and Queen consists of nearly 1,000 diamonds of all shapes, and Queen Alexandra's gifts include a diamond tiara and a corset of pearls and exquisite emeralds; the pearls are the size of peas, and the emeralds, numbering twenty-five, as large as beans. The diamond collar presented by the Duke and Duchess of Connaught consists of 500 very large diamonds. A present to the bride, signed simply "From Mother," is a collar of 500 rubies, diamonds, and sapphires.

The Princess Royal has given another notable present to her daughter in the shape of the family gold plate of the late Duke of Fife, one of the most valuable services extant. It consists of several hundred pieces and takes up one half of the length of the room in which the gifts are displayed. Part of the set is a rose bowl of solid gold.

The Princess Royal has also given Princess Arthur a diamond and sapphire bracelet, a gold-mounted dressing-case, a fine old diamond brooch, a large chased gilt Monteith bowl and stand, and two smaller, four-nine-light ormolu candelabra, and an inlaid work-box.

The Duchess of Connaught's present to the bride is a magnificent diamond collar, and to the bridegroom a piano. Among the presents from Royalties is an ancient gold case cabinet from the Emperor of Japan, which is stated to be constructed of gold. Duplication, of course, has been inevitable. There are twenty cigarette boxes, seventeen clocks, twelve walking-sticks; fourteen inkstands, nine paper knives, a dozen pairs of cuff-links, and countless candies.

Mr. Asquith's presents consist of twelve volumes, the works of Charlotte Bronte, and most of the English classical authors appear in beautiful bindings. Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Cyril Maude, and Sir G. Alexander are among the actor friends who have sent gifts.

The Star of the Garter, formerly belonging to the Duke of Cambridge is the offering of the Marquis and Marchioness of Anglesey, the Earl Countess of Pembroke, and Viscount and Viscountess Ingestre.

Prince Arthur's personal servants give a leather jewel case, from the servants at 15, Portman-square there is a triple mirror, and from the tenants in Braemar and employed at Mar there are a silver teapot, sugar basin, and cream jug and silver tray.

OUR DAILY BREAD Do We Get it Handled in a Sanitary Fashion?

Clean bread, wrapped before delivery, is to be urged upon this winter by the Cleveland Federation of Women's Clubs. The movement, it appears, originated with the Consumers League, and has had the endorsement of other organizations. The Federation believes it is time to push harder for the good.

This is a matter which should interest every housewife. Whether she belongs to the federation or not, each will give her moral support to the reform demanded.

Practically every bakery wagon peddling bread to the homes is a horse-drawn vehicle. In the nature of the case, the man who handles the loaves also drives the horse. At the very least he handles the reins; in all probability he occasionally adjusts the harness and pats the animal's neck as good drivers like to do.

MOTOR 'BUS AND BROUGHAM

Lady Curtis-Bennet's Story of Narrow Escape.

A motor bus driver, who nearly caused a serious accident, appeared at Marylebone on Monday to answer three summonses for willful misbehaviour, assault, and malicious damage to a brougham and whip. He was William Henry Miller, of Bertie road, Willesden Green.

William Dobson, a jobmaster of Loxham Mews, Kensington, was driving Lady Curtis-Bennet and a friend in a brougham to Euston station. As he was passing along the Marylebone road he overheard Miller coming behind him, blowing his horn, but he was unable to get out of the way owing to the other traffic.

After a time, however, Miller came level with him and gradually drove him into the gutter, causing his wheels to graze the curb.

Mr. Dobson said he called out and tapped a window of the bus with his whip to draw Mr. Miller's attention to what he was doing whereupon he "shot" his bus right across the horse's head into the kerb and drew up dead. The horse plunged in a most dangerous manner, and for a time the brougham appeared to be in imminent danger of being overturned.

Miller then left his bus and, mounting the brougham, took hold of the driver by the overcoat struck him, and tried to pull him from his seat, after which he drew the horse on to the pavement by pulling the reins, and finally snatched the whip from the driver's hand and broke it into five pieces.

It was a most extraordinary outburst of temper, said counsel, and might have been attended with very serious results. As it was, damage was done to the brougham and the whip to the extent of £2.

Lady Curtis-Bennet described Dobson as a most careful driver, and said he had driven her for fifteen or twenty years. At one time, she said, she thought the brougham was going to be smashed up, and then she feared that it was going over, for the horse reared and plunged and the carriage rocked. In her view, she had a narrow escape.

Miller denied the charges. He said he drew in towards the curb to allow a passenger to alight, after giving warning of his intention to do so. He then felt a jolting sensation on his seat as if he had been struck with a whip, and afterwards caught hold of Dobson's whip to prevent being struck again.

Mr. Graham Campbell ordered Miller to pay a fine of 10s. and 10s. for the damage and for the assault, with 2s. 6s. costs—a total of £3 6s.

TEN POUNDS PAID BY COPPERS

Dr. Grace Gaddell, a lady medical practitioner in Leith, and a prominent suffragist, who refused to stamp her servants' insurance cards as a protest against the non-enfranchisement of women, and was fined ten pounds, has carried out another protest.

The fine was imposed in her absence, and an officer who called at her house to collect the money was handed the ten pounds in coppers, weighing 50 lbs., this being legal tender.

Legacies to Housekeeper

Mr. Alfred Bramall, of Westbourne Road, Sheffield, retired manufacturer, of the firm of Messrs. Gregory and Bramall, who died on Aug. 10, aged seventy-eight, left £11,541. To his housekeeper, Lucy Walker, he bequeathed £100, the right of burial in his vault at Burngrave Cemetery, and still in his service, all his jewellery and clothing, and the use for life of his household effects, with the income while unmarried from all his other property, and from one-half in the event of her marriage.

RIVAL CLAIMANTS TO LITTLE GIRL

Six Law Lords to Decide Who Shall Be Guardian.

The House of Lords was called upon recently to decide who should be the proper guardian of a little girl of 9, Helena Elizabeth Robertson. The rival claimants are the child's aunt, Mrs. Catherine Noyes, of Australia, who is supported by the child's grandfather, Mr. Livingston, and another aunt, Mrs. Hawker.

Lord Haldane, and Lords Haldane, Mersey, Atkinson and Parker comprise the supreme tribunal. The case was cited as Livingston v. Hawker.

Mrs. Noyes, who was on a visit to this country from Australia, took the child from the school in which she had been placed by Mrs. Hawker (another aunt).

Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady, decided that the child's advantage would be best served if she continued in the custody of Mrs. Noyes. The Court of Appeal, however, discharged this order, and appointed Mrs. Hawker her guardian.

Mr. S. O. Buckmaster, K.C., for the appellant, the grandfather, explained that Mrs. Noyes proposed to settle two thousand five hundred pounds upon the child, who was nine years of age. He had not a single word to say against Mrs. Noyes, notwithstanding her reprehensible action in taking the child to Australia, and he was quite willing to believe that she was actuated by motives of love for the little girl.

Lord Mersey "In my point of view she was thiefing."

The Lord Chancellor observed that abduction was always looked upon differently in cases of affection. In years gone by people's daughters were frequently run away with, and he believed that a predecessor of his upon the Woolsack had not been quite blameless in this respect.

The chief consideration, said counsel was the welfare and happiness of the child. That would be best secured by entrusting her to the care of Mrs. Noyes, and regard ought to be paid to the expressed wish of the infant's father, and to the opinions and wishes of her relatives on both sides.

Mr. Buckmaster proceeded to refer to Mrs. Noyes' affection for the child, when Lord Mersey interposed with the remark that he objected to the learned counsel saying anything about a strong affection for a strange child.

Mr. Buckmaster continued to argue that Mrs. Noyes' action in taking the child away from school by means of deception and taking her to Australia was not typical of her usual life, but was an act of deceit and wrong, to which she was driven by her affection for the child.

The Lord Chancellor. She kidnapped the child, and in the eyes of the law that was wrong; but was it from motives of affection or a motive of gain?

Mr. Frank Russell, K.C., for respondent, Mrs. Hawker, pointed out the proposals of Mrs. Noyes, were that the girl was to be brought up as an Australian child instead of an English child.

The Lord Chancellor said he should have thought it was quite as good to be brought up as an Australian as an Englishman.

The hearing was adjourned.

Gaming in Public Houses

A Portsmouth publican named William George Shotton, was proceeded against by the local police on Monday for permitting gaming on his licensed premises by means of an automatic machine.

The town clerk for the police, describing the machine, said one put a penny in the slot and a ball was released, which by means of a lever was sent round the machine, and it might fall in several slots. If it found one particular one it gave the person operating a consideration over the counter, but if it fell into others he got no return or advantage.

The Bench decided that the use of such machines was gaming. The case was dismissed on payment of costs by the defendant.

Subsequently it was stated by the clerk to the justices that it was illegal for licensed victuallers to have any automatic machines on their premises for the purpose of playing for money or money's worth.

"SUNKEN" VESSELS THAT STILL FLOAT

Mystery of the Liverpool Steamship Templemore.

Considerable surprise was caused in shipping circles by the receipt in London on Wednesday of the following telegram from Lloyd's agent in New York, dated Tuesday:

"Captain of French steamer Madonna reports having boarded British steamer Templemore—before reported abandoned and on fire—and towed her for an hour."

Vessel was riding high out of water, badly damaged, but captain of Madonna thinks considerable value left and that vessel could be towed in by American Government."

It was only on Sunday that news reached Queenstown from Baltimore of the thrilling rescue in the Atlantic of fifty-four men, the crew of the Templemore, which, it was said, took fire and subsequently sank 800 miles off the Virginia coast. The crew had been forced to take to the lifeboats from which perilous position they were rescued by the Hamburg-American steamer Arcadia.

The circumstances were described as not dissimilar to the burning of the Volturo. The wireless operator of the Templemore, R. Emanuel, dashed his appeals for assistance across the seas, and when the fire had destroyed the dynamo he had to utilize the auxiliary battery. The Arcadia received the "S.O.S." signal and raced to the scene.

Captain George Bolitt, of the Arcadia, describing how the first wireless "S.O.S." was received by Operator Freeman, of the Arcadia, said: "The first call was received when we were fifty-two miles away, and it was an hour later, when steaming at full speed, that we saw the reflection of the fire in the sky. The ship was a mass of flames from stem to stern. At intervals we heard 101 explosions, for miles around sea was as bright as day, and it was no trouble to pick out the three lifeboats in which were the Templemore's crew."

"The Templemore, a Liverpool vessel, with a tonnage of 6,241, is operated by the Johnstone Line, had a rich cargo, and it was estimated that the cost of her burning would mean a loss of nearly £250,000. The amount was estimated at Lloyd's as follows:

Ship and freight £250,000
Tobacco £15,000
Wheat £10,000
Cotton £25,000
Copper £10,000
£225,000

In addition, there were in the vessel 500 tons of oil wax and resin, the total value of which could not then be computed.

Three Years for a Bigamist

Sentence of three years' penal servitude was passed at Wiltshire Assizes, on Tuesday, on John White Russell, on each of two charges of bigamy, the sentences to run concurrently. Married at Bristol, he left his wife after seven years with five children, and at Collingbourne Ducis, Wiltshire, married Edith Mary Carter, with whom he lived for seven years. Their fourth child was born ten weeks ago. He left Miss Carter in July after telling her that she was not his legal wife, and went to Birmingham, where he married Florence Laura Mampson.

£225 Shops Act Fined

Although since the Shops act came into force at the beginning of the year Mr. William Jessop, a leading Nottingham draper, has had to pay over £200 in fines for refusing to close his shop on Thursday afternoons, he is apparently as determined as ever not to yield. On Monday he was before the magistrates for not closing on any of the last four Thursdays. The Bench fined him £20, making the total amount of his fines to £225.

Bonus Tea Prosecution

John Edward Leach and Douisa Wright were committed for trial at Birmingham on Monday in connection with alleged bonus tea frauds. The business was carried on by Wright assisted by Leach. A large number of canvassers were employed to solicit orders. Customers were informed that if they would take two 1-4 lb. packets of tea for six weeks they would receive a bonus of £2. The tea was found to be of very inferior quality, and only in rare instances had the bonus been paid.

JUDICIAL CHANGES
Mr. Ure Leaves Politics for the Court of Session.
During the week-end some important legal appointments were announced. The two new Lords of Appeal intended to strengthen the supreme tribunal are—
Lord Dunedin, promoted from the presidency of the Edinburgh Court of Session, and Lord Justice Hamilton, who went to the Court of Appeal only last year.
These promotions left vacancies which have been filled as follows:—
Mr. Ure, Lord Advocate for Scotland, becomes Lord President of the Edinburgh Court of Session.
Mr. Justice Phillimore leaves the King's Bench for the Court of Appeal.
The salary of a Lord of Appeal is £5,000 a year. Mr. Justice Phillimore and Mr. Ure do not increase their salaries by the changes, the figure being £5,000 in both cases.
Lord Dunedin, who was created a peer and Lord President in 1905, is sixty-three. He is a member of Trinity College, Cambridge. Mr. Graham Murray entered Parliament as Unionist M.P. for Bute in 1891, and was the first member of the House to hold in succession the offices of Lord Advocate and Secretary for Scotland. He was made a peer and appointed Lord Justice of the Court of Session simultaneously.
Lord Justice Hamilton has had a judicial career of almost unexampled brilliancy in point of rapidity of promotion. Educated at Balliol College, Oxford, he was called to the Bar in 1883 at the age of twenty-four, became a judge of the High Court in 1910, a Lord Justice three years later and now he enters the House of Lords.
Sir Walter George Frank Phillimore, Bart., has been a Justice of the King's Bench division since 1907. He

Woman Expert Gardener of England Who Is in America to Teach the Art of Growing Flowers

THE FLOWER GARDEN

HURST COURT

Ever since she was twelve years old Mrs. Philip Martineau, the wife of a prominent English lawyer, has spent a great part of her time in a garden, and so learned did she become in the ways of gardening that she was recognized far and near as an authority and was called upon by friends and acquaintances to give advice. Last summer she wrote a book on "The Heriaceous Garden" which met with instant appreciation. This confirmed the wisdom of the decision she had made to abandon the ranks of the amateurs and become a professional gardener. Returning from Scotland, where she had been a member of a shooting party, recently she found an order from Mrs. John M. Longyear, of Brookline, Mass., asking her to come to the United States and give her the benefit of her counsel in the laying out of a new garden.

Mrs. Longyear already had a very beautiful and extensive garden at her place, the Terrace, but she bought an additional lot of land across the road and decided to enlarge the gardens under the direction of Mrs. Martineau, who at once took passage for America on the Olympic, calling her acceptance of Mrs. Longyear's offer.

When seen in New York soon after her arrival she said: "I am full of enthusiasm for this work and am especially glad to come to America in connection with it. So many Americans whom I have known in England have expressed such admiration for the gardens that even the poor persons have there and the wish that there might be more of them in this country! I was motoring with an American lady through Wales on one occasion, and when I asked her afterward what was the thing that had impressed her most on our trip she replied, 'The little gardens everywhere.'

"When I was in the United States eight years ago I motored from Boston to Worcester, Mass., and back, and there were nice little houses all along the road, but the only approach to a garden I saw was a row of scarlet salvia and a few straggling flowers. In England we have been having a great awakening on the subject of gardening and farming and country life in general, and I am glad to hear that there is something of the kind going on in the United States. I should like to do my share toward contributing to the interest and the information."

In her book Mrs. Martineau says: "I grew up in a garden. I began in a cottage in the back of a small London house out of Grosvenor place, and grew with some success carnations, lilacs, a few annuals and such herbs as parsley and chervil. My next experiment was in a country cottage that had an acre of stiff clay soil for a garden. Now I have about a hundred acres at my place, Hurst Court, in Berkshire, and have gardens of various sizes and kinds. There are flower gardens with grass walks and with paved walks, some with walls and some with hedges. Some of them have distinctive color schemes, one being a mauve garden."

While Mrs. Martineau is very sympathetic in her treatment of the subject of gardens, she is very definite in her directions. "It is of no use merely being poetic," she confided. "I tell just how much fertilizer must be used and how the soil must be worked and planted and cultivated in order to produce certain results. I have studied the matter thoroughly and stantly detected that it contained at least one old glass piece of considerable value. I asked the farmer what he would take for the lot and he priced it to me at four shillings. I at once selected upon the old glass candelabra that had caught my eye and sold the rest of the things for about as much as I had paid for all. That candelabra was genuine Jacobean and worth one hundred and fifty pounds.

"To come back to the gardens, I was talking on the steamship with a prominent American, and he seemed very eager that some way should be found of interesting the poor people in the subject. I know it is hard work; but what is there worth having that does not have to be worked for? I know of a man in England who has to get up early and walk seven miles to take a train for his work—which is of a tedious and uninteresting character—and yet he is not too tired at night to work in his garden, and has a beautiful one to repay him and has vegetables from it for his table.

"Then there are another class of persons in the United States who might give more thought to gardens with great advantage to themselves. I do not want to seem to criticize the women of this country, but they have many club meetings, read and listen to papers and have a great deal of discussion—and apparently it comes there. If they would take up the subject of gardening with a view to getting real information and planning to put into practical effect they would have something worth while to show for their meetings. You are the first person in America who has not asked me if I am a suffragette and I am grateful. If you are very much interested in gardening she has three sons she troubles her sorrow, and are really trying to do something to make the face of the earth more beautiful. So you see it is well that I have my garden to occupy my time while my sons are away."

"I hope while I am in America to give some lectures and to tell Americans of beautiful flowers here! We have adopted many of them for our gardens, so I know that it is possible to get splendid effects, and I have studied those conditions here which are different from ours in England, so that I can speak understandingly of the possibilities here as well as at home."

Mrs. Martineau's book is generously illustrated with beautiful pictures of her own place and the gardens of the Duchess of Westminster, Evelyn Duchess of Wellington, Mrs. Ritz, of Milton Court, Dorking, and Lady Evelyn Cottrill and others who have beautiful English places, and she will illustrate her talks with similar pictures of these gardens, as well as with plans and diagrams for the laying out of gardens.

Mrs. Martineau has another link with the United States besides the interest in gardening which she wishes to share with Americans. Her oldest son, who was formerly in the British army, recently came to America to go into business, and she is deeply interested in his work and prospects. "It is splendid for him to have all his sons away from me. One is in the navy at home, one in school and one in the United States. When a woman marries she doubles her joys, but when

Five Women Finish Ahead of Men in Swim Across Paris

A TWELVE kilometre swim equivalent to a third of the distance across the Channel—is a severe test, and the fact that twenty-three swimmers completed the distance recently in the annual handicap organized by the "Auto" from one end of Paris to the other is a remarkable example of the development of the sport in France.

More remarkable still, this number included five young women, one of whom, Mlle. Alice Pezet, a slender, dark-eyed girl of eighteen, won the contest, touching the cord at Auteuil two minutes and thirty-five seconds ahead of her nearest rival, Mlle. Marthe Robert.

The start was at the Pont National, competitors getting off in the following order:—At two o'clock, Mlle. Alice Pezet; 2.30, Mlle. Marthe Robert; 3.15, Albert Chénier; 3.30, Mlle. Marthe Robert; 3.45, Paulus; 3.50, Bondret and Blandin; 3.55, Koch and Michel; 3.59, Lefebvre and Violas; 4.05, Denieville, Joachim Quilly, Simon and Lavogade; 4.10, Villard, David Chénier and Gasquet; 4.15, Albert Chénier, Charles Hanriot, Georges Belot, Georges Michel and Bongouin; 4.25, Jarvis and David Billington.

However, before gazing at the plump but athletic frames of the men, spectators at the start showed by their enthusiastic cheers their appreciation of the pluck of the five graceful young women who were preparing to compete with hard veterans of the stronger sex in a stern test of endurance.

With natural coquetry, Mlle. Pezet and her feminine companions in the race preferred to bear the cold rather than be stripped by their slimy limbs with any kind of colored grease protection.

The two great English swimmers, Billington and Jarvis, were given a specially official send-off. Their tack, starting from scratch, was practically an impossible one.

At the Pont Notre-Dame, rather more than four kilometres from the start, the five feminine competitors were still ahead, in the same order as at the start. Mlle. Pezet reaching the bridge at eight minutes past three. The group maintained its lead right to the finish.

A storm of cheering and clapping broke out among the crowd of spectators at the winning post, just beyond the Pont Notre-Dame, when the first competitor came in sight and was seen to be a woman. It was Mlle. Pezet. She touched the cord at 4h. 51m. 55s., having swum the 12kil. 700m. in 2h. 51m. 55s.

She looked tired. Her eyes were red, and her features were drawn by the strain, but she clambered aboard the steamer at the finish with surprising briskness. The victorious girl was hustled off immediately by a motherly looking Red Cross nurse, to be properly cared for after her arduous efforts.

The other women competitors arrived in the following order:—Mlle. Robert, 4h. 54m. 40s.; Mlle. Hoss, 4h. 57m.; Mlle. Conte, 5h. 1m.; Mlle. Garnier, 5h. 7m.; then followed Paulus, at 5h. 13m. 50s.; Lefebvre, 5h. 14m. 30s.; Blandin, 5h. 20m. 7s.; Carreano, 5h. 20m. 10s.; Koch, 5h. 22m. 15s.; Denieville, 5h. 24m. 20s.; Harponet, 5h. 26m. 41s.; Chénier, 5h. 27m. 32s.; Lavogade, 5h. 28m. 30s.; Georges Michel, 5h. 31m. 30s.; Bondret, 5h. 32m. 35s.; Billington, 5h. 34m. 20s.; Violas, 5h. 37m. 15s.; Villard, 5h. 38m. 50s.; Michel, 5h. 43m. 50s.; Bongouin, 5h. 46m. 25s.; and Jarvis, 5h. 53m. 40s.

The classification according to time was:—

1. Billington	5h. 34m. 20s.
2. Carreano	5h. 40m. 10s.
3. Harponet	5h. 46m. 25s.
4. Lefebvre	5h. 51m. 30s.
5. Georges Michel	5h. 54m. 30s.
6. Chénier	5h. 57m. 15s.
7. Georges Belot	5h. 58m. 30s.
8. Jarvis	5h. 53m. 40s.
9. Billington	5h. 34m. 20s.
10. Carreano	5h. 40m. 10s.
11. Harponet	5h. 46m. 25s.
12. Lefebvre	5h. 51m. 30s.
13. Georges Michel	5h. 54m. 30s.
14. Chénier	5h. 57m. 15s.
15. Georges Belot	5h. 58m. 30s.
16. Jarvis	5h. 53m. 40s.
17. Billington	5h. 34m. 20s.
18. Carreano	5h. 40m. 10s.
19. Harponet	5h. 46m. 25s.
20. Lefebvre	5h. 51m. 30s.
21. Georges Michel	5h. 54m. 30s.
22. Chénier	5h. 57m. 15s.
23. Georges Belot	5h. 58m. 30s.
24. Jarvis	5h. 53m. 40s.

The special prize reserved for veterans was won by Paulus, who covered the course in 2h. 52m. 50s.

For the girl to whom money is no object the purchase of her clothes is simplicity itself. She has only to go to a high class tailor, have her measurements taken, state her wishes as to style and leave the order for one or a half dozen suits. Then the bill goes home to husband or father.

But for the working girl who must wear the same suit all this year and probably most of the next the selection of a suit is a quest of much importance and the object of much deliberation.

How to find a suitable outfit within her means which is at once smart, durable and becoming is the problem which confronts most working girls at this time of the year.

A few words of advice on how to go about this task will probably be of aid to many. First make up your mind just what you want. It may take two weeks' thought and study of the styles before you come to any conclusion, but arrive at a definite idea before you take your money in hand to purchase anything. Then stick to your idea. This is perhaps the hardest part of the problem, as it is certainly difficult to resist the temptations of pretty, smart suits offered by saleswomen, even though you know quite well that the style is not at all suitable or the price asked is quite beyond your means.

Now, as to deciding definitely on the kind of suit you want. It is better to allow one good sized lump sum on a suit which is worth while than to divide the money in little drops, one for a suit, one for a dress, one for a little evening frock and so on. In this way you will have a wardrobe made largely of cheap clothes, whereas the other way you will have a much smaller wardrobe, perhaps, but one consisting of good materials. One good suit is worth much more than all the other frocks put together. Make up your mind just how much you can afford to spend on a suit and do not let any cheaper, gaudier models win you over your purpose.

For the working girl dark blue or black is in the very best taste. There are several reasons why one of these two shades should be selected besides the all sufficient one of taste. One reason is that where only one suit must be worn the year through an inconspicuous model will be found much the best, because a bright color may be admired at first, but as the months pass every one, including the owner, will have tired of the same color. With dark blue or black, however, the color is so inconspicuous as not to attract attention to itself and may be worn a couple of seasons without any outsider noticing that the suit is the same one.

Then, too, little touches of different colors will lend variety to a dark colored costume. The new washing belts offer an opportunity for variety. Different styles in shirtwaists, too, will give to the suit an altered appearance.

For the same reason that dark colors are preferable to bright ones subdued models are to be selected rather than flashy ones.

Clothes for the Business Girl.

It is about this time of the year that most girls leave off wearing their last spring suits and begin their search for a winter costume. The selection of a smart suit for cold weather is easy in proportion to the size of one's purse—the larger the purse the easier the task, the smaller the purse the more difficult to find something satisfactory.

For the girl to whom money is no object the purchase of her clothes is simplicity itself. She has only to go to a high class tailor, have her measurements taken, state her wishes as to style and leave the order for one or a half dozen suits. Then the bill goes home to husband or father.

London received the second largest patronage, while Hamilton showed a decided falling off from the previous year. Just watch the Red Sox for a crowd in 1914.

At the meeting of the Canadian Baseball League held yesterday afternoon in Toronto, the motion of A. Mahoney of Guelph, to exclude press from the meeting was ruled, as were numerous other arguments which he inflicted on the attendance.

The game at Agricultural Park this afternoon between St. Patrick of Hamilton and the Collegiate Institute will no doubt prove highly satisfactory. The St. Patrick's team is not famous in this vicinity, but they happen to put it over the boys, St. Patrick's will be remembered.

As the matter of transferring Berlin and Guelph franchises to other large cities was left in abeyance until the annual meeting which will be held in December, those interested will have a little while longer to wait before hearing "judgment" announced. It was unanimously decided yesterday that President Fitzgerald should attend the meeting of the national association of Baseball leagues at Columbus, Ohio, in November.

As quite a number of the young men of Echo Place are members of the Echo Place Improvement Association, it is therefore not surprising that the association are considering putting a hockey team in the Senior City League series. The Association believe they have young men who are capable of bringing honor to the society and themselves. Jim Ryan will likely manage the team. Further arrangements will be made at the next meeting of the association.

An excellent meeting held last night in R. H. Welsh's store. West End Hockey team was organized with what promises to be a good season in hockey for the winter chasers over the bridge. The team will enter the Senior series of the City League. E. Marlat was appointed manager and the office elected were: Honorary President, Wilder; President, R. Welsh; Vice President, George Heatley; Secretary-treasurer, Frank Roanree. Meeting will be held on Wednesday night.

Canadian League Starts Movement for Expansion For Big Class 'B' Circuit

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—Coming prepared for one of the liveliest sessions in the history of the Canadian League yesterday, at the Prince George Hotel, delegates representing the eight clubs of the circuit left last night with little doubt regarding what was thought prompted the gathering.

The transfer of the Berlin and Guelph clubs which caused so much stir throughout the Canadian League circles did not come up for much discussion, merely being mentioned as a possibility.

The real reason for its abeyance lies in the fact that the points to which the transfers are to be made are not quite ready for taking over at this time.

Advantage of a Garden In a Rural School-Yard

(By Miss Eakins, East Oakland) In a rural school I know of nothing that awakens more enthusiasm among the children than the planning and arranging of a garden. This interest increases as the work becomes more practical. We hear gardens discussed constantly, not only at school but at home. The parents soon become interested and the teacher has an opportunity to learn the attitude of the community towards school gardens, and possibly towards the teacher herself. At first there may be prejudices and difficulties encountered but we may class these as advantages to the teacher when we think of the experience she is securing. The parents are usually interested and willing to give their assistance when they understand the purpose of the garden. When we have the pupils and their parents interested in the garden and hence in the school we have one of the greatest aids possible in all school work. A garden will furnish to some children perhaps the only phase of school work where interest can be aroused. There is a connection between the school and the home life which is readily appreciated.

For the condition of his own plot. He gains confidence in himself and feels that his work is of importance not only to himself but to the whole school. The care of the garden plots and paths necessarily develops neatness. We find children comparing plots and often judging one another by the way in which their plots are kept. Pupils have the full benefit of the opinions of their fellow-workers, and here we find public opinion far more effective in altering the manner of the work than in the school room. The powers of observation are awakened and developed under the direction of the teacher. Often the children surprise us with the observations they make while at work. The habit of looking for a reason for everything is formed. The children learn to think for themselves and to depend on their own judgment. A respect for manual labor and for those who engage in it is awakened. A love for nature and for the beautiful is aroused. The child learns to appreciate the privilege of living in the country. A respect for the rights of others is inculcated. Two or perhaps three pupils use the same hoe or rake and care for the same path of class plot. Unselfishness is cultivated. A spirit of good will exists throughout the school. The older ones learn to help and supervise the work of the younger children. They can see the results of their labor or neglect and soon conclude that it pays to do their best. We find them taking pride in improving the school ground and the community. The interest manifested in the garden is extended to other subjects of the curriculum through the correlation of studies. For this reason nearly all subjects can be more effectively taught in connection with a garden. Beginners in geography get their first idea of maps from drawing maps of their own plots, marking out the rows of vegetables and flowers. The drawing of the plan of the garden, not forgetting to take the measurements and to draw to a scale, is an exercise which proves useful. For the little ones the modelling of garden in plasticine may be made of interest. From maps of the garden we proceed to maps of the school ground, school section, township and county. Second and third classes get a definite idea of measurements from helping stake the plots and paths. Many simple problems in arithmetic may be taken directly from this work. The difficulties experienced in teaching square measure vanish when they see the need of applying it. Practice is given in fractions by computing the size of the garden and of each plot in square yards, square rods and acres. An account of the cost of each plot may be kept by valuing the seeds, the time spent and the tools used. The garden furnishes all classes with material for composition. The third and fourth classes find the keeping of a garden diary interesting and instructive. Oral composition gives the little ones an opportunity of expressing the many new observations made, and little difficulty is experienced in getting them to talk. The teaching of agriculture in connection with the garden causes pupils to gain interest in the different lines of farm work. We find the older boys bring us all kinds of interesting farm news for discussion and soon we see them reading agricultural books and papers. The habit of reading is formed and the beginning of a love for good literature results. The best of exercises in nature study are supplied. The testing of garden seeds, the study of plants especially weeds, a study of the insects found in the garden and experiments with grains are of especial interest to the children who have gardens. Exercises in industrial work are given in having the pupils paint the stakes and labels for their plots. After practising printing on paper they are allowed to place these on the labels. Neatness and skill has been shown in the attempt. Material for art work may be taken from the garden. Vegetables may be modelled in clay or plasticine. Plants and flowers are subjects for water color, crayon or pencil sketches. The exercise of working in a garden in the fresh air and sunshine for fifteen or twenty minutes will rest and brighten and prepare a class for the lesson following. Occasionally a class has ten or fifteen minutes to spare during school hours which may be used to advantage in this way. The home and the school are related in such a way that the child gets a new idea of the meaning of education for the individuality of the pupil has a chance to be developed.

LAND CAMPAIGN OF LLOYD GEORGE BIG VOTE WINNER

Chancellor's Expose of Plight of Rural Labor Has Great Effect.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—It was unfortunate for Mr. Lloyd George that his opening land speech was subordinated to the thrilling news of the Volturno disaster in mid-Atlantic. The Duke of Marlborough, who was an interested auditor during the Bedford meeting, describes it as a phantom policy, but his is the other side of the story. Mr. Lloyd George's most telling point was that "landlordism is the greatest of all monopolies in this land. Not only is it the greatest of all monopolies, it is the least controlled of all monopolies." He wanted to know why and now was the time to enquire. One-third of the land, it had been stated, belonged to the House of Lords, and all the land belonged to less than half of what was the population of Bedford. How did they use that power? Fifty years ago there were 3,120,000 people on the land, and to-day there is only a million and a half. The proposal he has to make is to give the laborer a chance to rise, in place of his present hopeless career. About 60 per cent of laborers get no more than 18 shillings a week, and some as low as 13 or 14 shillings, eked out with allowances by their employers. The worker on the land must be protected like workers in other industries. He must have a living wage, the acquisition of an allotment must be within his power, later a small holding up to fifty acres, and the more enterprising might look forward to taking a position as the substantial farmer of the country. Further, he should have hours of leisure and time to cultivate his garden and to lead a grow vegetable. It is undoubtedly a great propaganda of Liberal reform though the opponents of the measure describe it as an electioneering cry. If they are right—and after all ministers must retain office by means of votes obtained from the masses secured by the popularity of their proposals—then Mr. Lloyd George has chosen a programme which will result in winning the support of a great industry.

G. T. R. TO MAKE COMPREHENSIVE EXHIBIT

The Grand Trunk Pacific will participate this year in the United States Land Show to be held in the Coliseum, Chicago from November 20th to December 8th. For this purpose the company have secured a large space covering an area of one thousand square feet in which they will install a comprehensive exhibit of the natural resources of the three prairie provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, as well as an exhibit from British Columbia, the feature of the latter being mineral products and fruit from the territory adjacent to the railway skirting the Skeena River and the exhibits depicting the development of the agricultural lands in Central British Columbia in which are situated the Nohacho and Buttkley Valleys. The entire exhibit will be embellished with handsome photographs made from direct negatives taken this year by the official photographers of the Grand Trunk Pacific who covered the route from Winnipeg, Man. to Prince Rupert, B.C., through the Canadian Rockies via the Yellowhead Pass, down the Fraser River to Prince George, B.C., through the plateau and valley lands of Central British Columbia and down the Skeena to the Pacific. Thousands of interested people will view this splendid collection and Canada will receive valuable advertising as a result. Hon. Law, speaking at Newcastle said the English Unionists would even fight for Ulster. Betting in New York is 3 to 1 that Mitchell, the fusion candidate for Mayor, will win. Current Events In Britain Of Special Interest to All

GLASGOW, Nov. 1.—Mr. Ure, the Lord Advocate, has now become Lord President of the Court of Session. He was installed in his new office with due ceremony. The new Lord President, or Lord Justice General, duly presented himself at the courts in Edinburgh and having handed in the letter under His Majesty's sign manual, he proceeded to hear two cases in the Outer House, and one in the First Division along with the other judges. His colleagues at a later stage, in accordance with time-honored custom, made satisfactory reports as to the Lord Probationer's treatment of the cases and thereupon the oaths of office and allegiance were administered and he took his place on the Bench. One shudders to think what would have happened had he failed to satisfy his brother judges, as to his fitness for his new position. With Mr. Ure's elevation, one of the most remarkable men in the Radical party leaves the political arena. He was not a great orator, yet there was no more popular speaker in the country. Night after night he delivered speeches at places far apart—indeed, he spent most of his time in travelling—he had a knack of turning interruptions to good account. In the words of a good Radical he could make "black look grey, if not quite white." Mr. Ure has taken the title of Lord Strathclyde, a picturesque and apt name when one remembers that his brother was a much-respected Lord Provost of Glasgow. His elevation means a by-election in Linlithgowshire where Mr. Kidel, a local solicitor, will champion the Unionist cause and Balfour Pratt, of Glasgow, present the Government's case to the electors. Doubtless the Liberals will be able to retain the seat. The first irritation against the Insurance Act has gone now that benefits are being paid and the Scottish electorate has already shown strong objection to the tariff proposals of the Unionists.

"Mary Ann's Revolt." Domestic servants are the latest recruits to the ranks of the trade unionists. Since shopkeepers have secured a weekly half-holiday, there have been many grumbles from the servant girls. The newspapers have had more letters on their grievances than they could print. As a result, two trade unions have been formed. The Domestic Workers' Union of Great Britain desires to preach "the divine doctrine of discontent" and at present the union, provision of a uniform, a 12 hour day, 14 days' annual holiday, all public holidays, Sundays off from 2 till 10 o'clock, fortnightly payments and a week's notice instead of a fortnight as at present. The Scottish Domestic Servants Union which claims to have secured 5,000 members seeks to continue good relations between mistresses and maids. But "Mary Ann" proposes to assert herself and her claim for some leisure will receive a fair amount of public support. One mistress said resignedly that if domestic servants went on strike as they might do some day the only result would be to do a little more work than at present. Emigration has caused a scarcity of good servants so that at the moment they should be able to make good some of their claims. The Modern Eve and the Apple. Our British Amazons, the militant suffragists have provided some lively incidents in Glasgow this week. Miss Ethel Moorhead, of Liberton, Midlothian, a well known Edinburgh artist, and Mrs. Margaret Smith, wife of the minister of Calton Parish church, were before Lord Salvesen at a sitting of the High Court, in Glasgow, charged with attempting to set fire to the mansion at No. 6 Park Gardens, Glasgow. There were some lively passages between the judge and the prisoners during the trial, and at the close a scene without parallel in a Glasgow court. There was a large body of suffragists present during the proceedings and when Lord Salvesen pronounced sentence of eight months' imprisonment, apples and legal papers were hurled at the bench. His Lordship had a lively experience, but after the first surprise maintained a dignified attitude. Three women were arrested for assault and contempt of court and will be tried at a later stage. Meantime they are out on bail of ten pounds each. The hunger strike was a very effective weapon in the hands of the militants until the passage of the Cat and Mouse Act. Now when they hunger strike they are immediately released. When they are recaptured "the cat" in the shape of a policeman, hauls them once more to prison and so in time they are forced to serve their full term of imprisonment. It is a cumbersome method of dealing out justice, but it seems to be the only way. The militants have been treated with great forbearance for even the aggravated police do not forget that they are women. Taxation of Land. The taxation of land values was the subject of discussion at a meeting in Glasgow at which Lord Provost Stevenson stated the result of the enquiries he made during his recent Canadian tour. He spoke with enthusiasm of the result of the value of land values taxation in British Columbia and gave some instances of how such legislation would operate in Glasgow. The corporation have always been in favor of such form of taxation and indeed promoted a bill in Parliament on their own account many years ago, which, however, did not become law, because it was felt that the subject was one that should be dealt with nationally, and not locally. In Glasgow the Lord Provost pointed out they had an area of about 19,000 acres. Of that total 14,000 acres were built on and paid rates to the amount of some thing like ninety-nine pounds per acre. The average valuation of 20 acres is five hundred and twenty-two pounds. The average valuation of the 3,000 acres of agricultural land within the city is £2 1s. 6d. per acre and of the 2,000 acres suitable for building £5 9s. 8d. The latter was nothing like the value of the land on the basis of its capital value. Two instances of what has occurred in Glasgow may be given. When the Corporation wanted ground in Calton district they had the offer of two plots, one which was rated at £5 per annum for £2,340, the other rated at £10 for £2,842. Under the rates suggested by the Housing Commission in 1855 these rates would have been £93 and £116. Glasgow rates are high, more money is absolutely necessary if the city is to keep its place in the forefront of British municipalities and land values is being seized upon as a way out of an impossible position.

A Human Boy. Mr. Asquith who has been Minister in Attendance on the King at Balmoral, has now returned to London. The Asquith family have been staying at Hopeman Lodge, which stands on high ground commanding the Moray Firth, and a view of the hills of Ross and Sutherland. The Sherman are rather hurt that the Prime Minister was to be seen "methinks at Kirk nor Market." But the presence of the Premier has put into the heads of the school children to play the game of "Suffragettes" the girls taking the title role and the boys impersonating sturdy policemen. Any law and order always emerges triumphant. It caused some amusement when girls and boys gave the two ladies who molested Mr. Asquith on the golf course such a lively reception that they had to beat an immediate retreat. During the holidays Master Anthony Asquith has been tutored by one of the teachers in Hopeman school. The villagers have been delighted to discover that he is a human boy. The flight of the airman Hawker across the Moray Firth on his attempted journey round Britain, gave the little fellow great delight. But what appeals to the local children is that he has a great admiration for the "iswerts" bottles in the windows and has been seen with his mouth full of treacle toffee casually wiping his sticky hands on his knickerbockers.

A WONDERFUL COLD CURE

Just think of it, a cold cured in ten minutes—that's what happens when you use "Catarrhzone." You inhale its soothing balsams and out goes the cold—sniffles are cured—headache is cured—symptoms of catarrh and grippe disappear at once. It's the healing pine essences and powerful antiseptics in Catarrhzone that enable it to act so quickly. In discharge of the nose, sore throat, bronchitis, coughs and catarrh it's a marvel. The secret history of the historic Home Rule split is revealed at last! For nearly twenty years the mystery of Joseph Chamberlain's quarrel with the Home Rulers has puzzled commentators of all parties. That the statesman who had conquered the government of Ireland to that of Poland, and had engineered the Kimminham Treaty with Parnell, should hesitate at an alliance with the Nationalists has been one of the enigmas of British political history! THE HISTORIC SPLIT OF 1886 OVER THE IRISH HOME RULE

The secret history of the historic Home Rule split is revealed at last!

That the statesman who had compared the government of Ireland to that of Poland, and had engineered the Kilmainham Treaty with Parnell, should hesitate at an alliance with the Nationalists has been one of the enigmas of British political history!

The mystery is explained at last in the "Life of Henry Labouchere," by A. L. Thorold. It includes a remarkable correspondence which took place in the autumn of 1885 and the spring of 1886 between Labouchere, Chamberlain and T. M. Healy, with Lord Randolph Churchill as a sort of candid friend.

Labouchere wanted Chamberlain, as the leader of the Radicals, to join with the Irish Nationalists and with those moderate Liberals who were especially faithful to Gladstone in order to defeat the Tories and the Whigs. For that purpose it was necessary to unite on the Home Rule measure, and in letter after letter, whose earnestness would have surprised those who then regarded him as a mere cynic, the member for Northampton urged this view on Chamberlain.

In October, 1885, when the stepgap Conservative Government was still in office, he writes to Chamberlain his impressions of Liberal meetings in the metropolitan constituencies:

"Here you are first and the rest nowhere. The Whigs seem to have disappeared entirely. My impression is that they have all gone over to the Conservatives, and that the Whig leaders are—if the country is to be judged by the metropolises—entirely without followers. When you allude to Goschen there are groans, when you allude to Hartington there is silence, and you have to get up a cheer for the G. O. M., dwelling upon his noble heart and that sort of trash."

Chamberlain replies: "I am glad to say there is a good chance that Goschen will be defeated at Edinburgh. The workmen are dead again him."

Again on December 4, 1885, he writes in reply to Labouchere's suggestion that the Tories expected to be supported by Lord Hartington and to form a "coalition party" against the Home Rule scheme which the G. O. M. was supposed to be brewing:

"Sincerely Hartington will not be such a fool as to make a coalition. If he is inclined that way I should be happy to give him a lift. It would be the making of the Radical Party."

This was Chamberlain's attitude towards two men with whom he was afterwards sit in a Conservative cabinet, but it is only fair to add that he was all along doubtful about any practical Home Rule scheme. On December 7 he wrote:

"Dear Labouchere.—The G. O. M. is very anxious to come in again, and not, I think we must sit on our hands. It will require a careful steering to keep the Radical boat head to the wind—Yours very truly, J. CHAMBERLAIN."

The reason why Chamberlain refused to act with either the Whigs or the Home Rules comes out in this correspondence very clearly. He hated the Whigs, but he distrusted Parnell.

"There is much in what you say, but the fact is that anything like a bargain with the Irish would be resented by the English and Scotch workmen, and that a Tory-Whig coalition appealing to their prejudices against Parnellite alliance would carry all before them. This is a real danger. I am convinced from personal observation that the workmen will not stand much more in the way of Irish conciliation or concessions to Parnell. I am clear that we had better bide our time, and rub the Tories' noses well in the mess they have made."

Next day Lord Randolph wrote again:

"You have definitely captured the G. O. M., and I wish you joy of it. He has written another letter to A. Balfour intimating, I understand, without overmuch qualification, that if the Government do not take up the Home Rule bill, I think Joe had better join us. He is the only man on your side who combines ability with common sense."

Chamberlain at this time was in favor of the Federal Home Rule on the lines of the United States Constitution, with a separate legislature for Ulster, and the abolition of the House of Lords, but he persisted that Gladstone could not carry his scheme, and added in a phrase that has since been made popular by Asquith—

"I believe the true policy for every one except Mr. Gladstone is to wait and see."

Labouchere transmitted in reply a letter from Herbert Gladstone pointing out that it was impossible for his father, to adopt Chamberlain's policy of waiting, and that if the Liberal party chooses to break up on the Irish question it cannot be helped.

T. M. Healy wrote to Labouchere: "As for Chamberlain, he must be crazy to write that way to Morley. Give the G. O. M. power, and he could form a Cabinet in a week minus Joe, and the Gates of Birmingham should not prevail against it (it is 'Hell' in the original)."

In all this welter of opinion Labouchere kept straight on his course with Chamberlain. On January 7 he writes:

"The real enemies of the Radicals are the Whigs, and they are essentially your enemies. Nothing would give them greater pleasure than to betray you with a kiss, for you are their permanent bogey. . . . All this is why I hold that the Radical game is to go with Mr. Gladstone on Irish matters, and to use him in order to shunt them and, if possible, the Whigs—not that this course is not full of danger, but that it seems to me to present less danger than any other."

To this excellent Radical advice Chamberlain's reply puts his side of the case:

"The more I look at the thing the less I like it. Whatever we do we shall be smashed for a certainty. The question is whether it is better to be smashed with Mr. Gladstone and the Parnellites or without them. I believe the anti-Irish feeling is very strong amongst the Nonconformists. . . . I wish our best friends—those who think as I began. We shall be smashed because the country is not prepared for Home Rule."

These two letters tell the whole story, and though the correspondence continued after the introduction of the Home Rule Bill of 1886, during Labouchere's desperate efforts to placate Chamberlain, it is evident that the great Home Rule split was opening, and that the Radical party was "smashed."

It is plain now that there was no real difference of principle. Chamberlain wrote on April 21, 1886—

"We are all fortunately agreed that the principle of Home Rule in some shape or another must be accepted, and we only differ, if at all, on the methods by which it is to be carried into effect."

On May 1 Mr. Labouchere quoted to Chamberlain a letter from John Morley, who said: "I don't think there is a pin of difference between you and me as to the desirableness of passing the second reading at almost any cost. But Chamberlain wants us to go down on our knees, and this cannot be done for the money."

The negotiations at last came to an end, and Labouchere, on June 10, wrote—"My conviction is that the Radicals are damned for years if we are defeated to-morrow." On June 13 they were defeated with Chamberlain's help, and the Home Rule split had become a gulf, which Chamberlain was never to recross.

The Austrian Minister of Commerce has denied reports that the Canadian Pacific Railway had provided the government with a political fund. He also repudiated any knowledge of an alleged list of Deputies in alliance with the Canadian Pacific.

My reading of it is that he is simply insane to come in."

On the 2nd Labouchere writes: "Hartington seems to be on bad terms all round. Curchill tells me that he (Hartington) declines to meet him or speak to him on the score of his speeches. Evidently he is confederating with Goschen, and probably Forster will become a third in the triumvirate? They do not strike me as precisely the men who will ever act with you unless you knock under to them."

On Christmas Day Lord Randolph wrote a characteristic note to Labouchere from the Indian Office:

Very Private.—G. O. M. has written what is described to me as a "marvellous letter" to Arthur Balfour, to the effect that he thinks it will be a public calamity if this great question should fall into the line of party conflict, and saying that he desires the question should be settled by the present government. He is damned!—Yours ever.

"RANDOLPH, M. C."

Next day Lord Randolph wrote again:

"You have definitely captured the G. O. M., and I wish you joy of it. He has written another letter to A. Balfour intimating, I understand, without overmuch qualification, that if the Government do not take up the Home Rule bill, I think Joe had better join us. He is the only man on your side who combines ability with common sense."

Chamberlain at this time was in favor of the Federal Home Rule on the lines of the United States Constitution, with a separate legislature for Ulster, and the abolition of the House of Lords, but he persisted that Gladstone could not carry his scheme, and added in a phrase that has since been made popular by Asquith—

"I believe the true policy for every one except Mr. Gladstone is to wait and see."

Labouchere transmitted in reply a letter from Herbert Gladstone pointing out that it was impossible for his father, to adopt Chamberlain's policy of waiting, and that if the Liberal party chooses to break up on the Irish question it cannot be helped.

T. M. Healy wrote to Labouchere: "As for Chamberlain, he must be crazy to write that way to Morley. Give the G. O. M. power, and he could form a Cabinet in a week minus Joe, and the Gates of Birmingham should not prevail against it (it is 'Hell' in the original)."

In all this welter of opinion Labouchere kept straight on his course with Chamberlain. On January 7 he writes:

MR. BROADUS FARMER. The management of the Apollo has been fortunate in securing two of the greatest features that have ever been placed before the public; also several others far ahead of the run of features generally seen in this picture screen; one that is bound to create a tremendous sensation is "The Battle of Waterloo," which is announced for the latter half of next week. This film is the greatest war reproduction ever attempted and cost nearly a quarter of a million dollars to produce. Four thousand men and eight hundred horses are seen in the stirring battle scenes. "The Charge of the Light Brigade" is the most spectacular and thrilling scene ever reproduced by motion photography.

The Moving Picture World in commenting on this film declares it to be the greatest of all features. The scenes are declared to be absolutely true and faithful reproductions of the great battle when Napoleon met his downfall, and the Duke of Wellington carved his name in history. An idea of the great interest taken in this picture can be gained from the fact that it has been showing in Toronto for two months, in different theatres and goes back there again direct from the Apollo engagement.

For the first three days of next week the special feature offering is "The Wheel of Destruction," a most remarkable feature from the fact that there will be no added prices as has been done in the Toronto theatres, held in which two mechanics were killed when one car turned turtle. A thrilling story of love and adventure, has been interwoven with these great race scenes. Although these features are costing a tremendous expense, there will be no added prices as has been done nearly every where Arizona and Waterloo have been shown.

High hopes for the musical development of Canada were expressed at the banquet of the Toronto Conservatory Alumni Association tendered to Dr. A. S. Vogt in recognition of his appointment as musical director of that institution. The speaking was on a higher level than is usual at such affairs, and sometimes the witty Chairman, Dr. Edmands, hardly felt impelled to utter the heaven-dimpling spirit that was abroad; and seemed to take a more practical view of the matter and discussed the problems and the possibilities of the musical profession in this country in a sane and hopeful way. That is a profession in which sex does not count, was made abundantly clear by the fact that the majority of those present were ladies, and that the individual chosen to speak for the Alumni Association was Miss Maud Gordon, who has long been connected with the Faculty. For the latter body, Dr. Albert Ham, conductor of the National Chorus, spoke, and he gave the key note to most of the speeches which followed when he expressed the belief that it was possible to erect a superstructure on the foundations already created by the late Dr. Edward Fisher. It was with this superstructure that Dr. Vogt dealt in his lucid and practical speech. One fact was made public for the first time is that the Conservatory is not, as supposed in many quarters, a great money-making institution. He declared that, taking into consideration the money locked up in the valuable central site which the Conservatory possesses, the total income on the value of the investment was less than the savings bank rate of interest. Nevertheless, he declared that the directors were ready to make sacrifices to maintain the Conservatory at the highest level in every department. Most interesting, however, was Dr. Vogt's description of the difference between the problems which face the director of an European Conservatory, and those with which the director of such an institution on this continent is confronted. In European subsidized conservatories where education is provided for pupils of talent at a very low cost, it is within the province of the director to reject applicants and to assign to them the teachers from whom they will receive instruction in the Conservatory. In this country, on the other hand, the Conservatory this course was, for the present at least, impossible since the shareholders could not be expected to make the sacrifice which would be involved in so drastic a change of policy. Yet with so enormous a registration as that of the Conservatory this autumn, no less than 2,200 pupils, some system for assigning pupils and equalizing the work of teachers seemed to him necessary to insure good results in the future. It will be interesting to see whether Dr. Vogt will succeed in devising a scheme to effect what he desires.

Brooklyn, N.Y., Oct. 28.—The Rev. Dr. Russell, pastor of the First Church of Christ, George St., Brantford, Ont., today declared that the world is emerging from a delusion which has been the result of the curse of God upon the world. He said that the world is now in a state of transition, and that the time has come when the people must choose between the old and the new.

He said that the curse of God upon the world is not what we have supposed it to be. It is not a curse which will destroy the world in a moment. It is a curse which will destroy the world in a long and painful process. He said that the world is now in a state of transition, and that the time has come when the people must choose between the old and the new.

A Kick About Coal

It is by no means a rare thing these times. But it is a rarity with us, because we take care to buy only the best grades of coal, as we know our customers would not buy from us any inferior qualities—not twice anyway. At it our policy to keep our customers, we could not afford to give them any but the best coal, full weight, without dirt or rubbish and at a reasonable price.

He said that the curse of God upon the world is not what we have supposed it to be. It is not a curse which will destroy the world in a moment. It is a curse which will destroy the world in a long and painful process. He said that the world is now in a state of transition, and that the time has come when the people must choose between the old and the new.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

The King and the Woodcutter's Son

THIS is the story of a brave little boy who faced his King without fear and dared to stand up for what his parents had taught him was right and honest. It also tells of a King who turns out, after all, to be a good, kind ruler. It seems a pity—almost—that it is just a make-believe story, doesn't it? But then, you know, there is nothing "make-believe" about the honesty and manliness of the lad or the nobility of the King, as you share for yourself, presently, if you read on.

Nowadays, many a little boy and girl finds himself in a situation quite similar to that of the small hero of this tale—for honesty and loyalty are two qualities as old as—no, older than the hills.

Once upon a time in the long, long ago, there lived a mighty King. His name was Bountiful but, alas, he was bountiful only toward himself and his favorite courtiers. His palaces and his jewels were the envy of every monarch within leagues and leagues of him; and he had a carriage and a horse and a retinue of courtiers and a host of attendants. He showered presents upon his favorites and scattered money so lavishly that his extravagance was the wonder of all who heard of it. And in order to satisfy his cravings for this display and prodigality he taxed and ground down the poor people of his kingdom until they had not enough food to keep soul and body together.

But King Bountiful was not a happy man. He listened to and feasted upon the flattery of his courtiers who were always telling him what a great and good king he was and how all the people of his domain loved him honestly and rejoiced to do his bidding.

But every now and then, he would detect first this courtier, then another, in a deception or—all too frequently for his peace of mind—actually plotting to overthrow him and seize the throne. Finally, King Bountiful became so suspicious that he knew not whom to trust or whom to believe was really a loyal subject.

On the outskirts of the immense forest which the King set apart as his game preserve lived a poor woodcutter, his old, shrunken wife and their young son Felix. None of the woodcutters was as poor as anyone in the whole of the vast kingdom. His home was a crude hut, built of rough-hewn logs, and his only way of earning a living was to carry bundles of wood into the nearby town and sell them for a mere pittance.

You would imagine, wouldn't you, that he would have had no trouble in gathering sticks of wood? And he would not have, either, had he been able to cross the field and enter the vast wood reserved for the King. But the penalty for gathering wood in that forest or, for even trespassing there, was immediate death. So the woodcutter and the other poor people kept away from the King's forest and gathered up a few sticks and branches they could find elsewhere.

It did seem to them, just as it does to you, unfair and tyrannical for the King to forbid them to enter his forest—especially since he himself came there not more than a dozen times a year and the poor peasants would have been, oh, so careful not to cut down any tree or break off branches. But King Bountiful, of course, could not see the matter in such a light.

One cold, dreary winter afternoon, after a heavy rain, Little Felix was in the broad field, along the edge of the wood, gathering what few sticks he could find. Every now and then he would look longingly toward the King's forest, where wood lay so plentifully all over the ground.

Many times had he thought how fine it would be to gather great, heaping bundles of wood—there and then sell them in the town, where wood was scarce and people were eager to buy. But no, that could not be. The woods was the King's.

Presently Felix looked up from

"Lad," he said, "I am drenched to the skin."

The stranger, apparently in a great fire—as we ourselves do so often."

The stranger, apparently in a great gathered the sticks and saw a man coming toward him across the field. The stranger waved at him in friendly fashion and, walking slowly along and evidently with great difficulty, he came up to him.

"Lad," he said in a weak voice and through chattering teeth, "I am drenched to the skin. Is yonder hut your home? I fear I would enter and dry myself."

"Prishee come within," replied Felix, gathering up the few scant sticks he had collected. "My father and my mother are both out in another direction looking for wood—but when they return they will bid you welcome to a part of the crust of bread we have for dinner. 'Twas a heavy fall of rain indeed, and your garments are wet through."

As they entered the hut the stranger breathed a sigh of relief and began to divest himself of his drenched attire.

"Come, lad," he said, "build me a fire by the chimney so I may the better warm myself and dry my clothes."

So Felix selected the best of the sticks from his scant bundle and sought to set fire to them. Over and over he tried; but they were all too damp from the morning's rain. So he told the stranger that he could not make them burn.

"Zounds!" exclaimed the guest. "Is that the only wood you have? Go across the field and into the forest; there, among the thick undergrowth, you will find many sticks that are but slightly wet. Be quick, lad, be quick! I am fairly numb with the cold!"

Felix regarded him a moment sorrowfully. "I fain would do as you say," he made answer, "but the wood is the King's and all are forbidden to enter there and gather or cut wood."

"The King's? Hump! What if it is?" exclaimed the stranger irritably. "Shall I be cold because King Bountiful commands? Listen, lad, do as I tell you. None will see you—and the behold—it was the stranger! Also, it was—the King!

"Sire! Sire!" gasped the poor boy.

The King laughed. He reached down from his horse, caught Felix under the arm and lifted him up beside him.

"Better than that, lad," he laughed, "we will both go and gather wood from King Bountiful's forest for our fire—that all may know that hereafter the King no longer forbids his people gathering faggots and sticks there; provided they break not the branches nor injure the trees." And then turning to his courtiers, "This is the lad of whom I told you. I would that I could be as certain of the loyalty of every one as I am of his. 'Tis well I wander about my kingdom in disguise now and then, for I learn things you are afraid to tell me! Hereafter, the King's wood is free and open to all. I so decree it!"

And then, smiling at the embarrassed Felix, he added:

"Lad, I like you much. On the morrow I shall send my servants and you and your worthy father and mother shall come to the palace and be my woodcutters. Such loyalty merits a reward and—turning again to his courtiers with a laugh, "woodcutter to the King!—what think you of the new honor?"

NO MORE LICKIN'S!

FATHER was sitting by the living-room table reading the evening paper and, now and then, reading an item or so aloud so that Mother, who sat sewing across from him, might also hear the news of the day.

"Well, well, Ma!" he said presently. "I see that the fishermen along the Maine coast have gone out of the whaling business entirely."

"Gee!" put in little Johnnie, who was sitting at one end of the table making a pretense of studying his lessons. "Gee, Pop, but I wish you was a fisherman!"

A CHILD MARKET.

THE children of the poor are yearningly sold at auction to the highest bidder, at Ravensburg, in the Tyrol. In the child market held there, the boys and girls bring only a few shillings in most cases. These children are taken away by those who buy them, to do hard work, the boys being used for agricultural purposes cannot bring it into this hut, for then I and my parents would be sharing in the heat from it. No, sir, the King's command must be obeyed."

At that, the stranger smiled to himself quietly and gazed steadily at the wall for a moment. Then he walked over to Felix and placed his hand gently upon his shoulder.

"Hearken, lad," he said in kindly tone, "you need have no fear—I am the King! And surely I can do what I will with my own! Go! I command you—go!"

But still Felix shook his head.

"No," he replied slowly, "no. The King you may be—but if so, I know you not. You certainly come not dressed as King Bountiful. I fear you are but deceiving me in order that I may—"

Just then the door of the hut was flung open and in came the woodcutter and his wife. Their arms were full of faggots which they had been fortunate enough to find lying within a cave at a great distance from the hut.

So, since they were dry, a fire was soon blazing away on the hearth and the stranger's teeth ceased to chatter. A while later, his clothes thoroughly dry, he pressed a coin upon the poor woodcutter and bade them adieu.

Two days later, Felix was scouring the field for sticks when a gay cavalcade swung into view through the arched aisles of the King's woods. At its head rode a richly attired man seated upon a magnificent charger. It was King Bountiful. Straightway, Felix fell upon his knees, as became a poor peasant. But eagerly his searching eye sought the King, for it was considered a rare bit of good fortune to gaze upon him.

On and on came the cavalcade; and presently, to Felix's amazement, they emerged from the wood and came across the field. Even though kneeling, he felt cold all over. His eyes he kept steadfastly downcast.

Nearer and nearer came the riders until, it seemed, they must surely ride right over his head. Then, suddenly, the leader stopped.

"Ho, lad," said he in a voice that was both kindly and familiar, "I am not drenched this time, but I desire that you enter yonder wood and return with an armful of faggots. I bid you build me a fire within your hut."

Felix looked up, all a-tremble, and

The Little Girl Who Lost Her Temper

I WON'T put it on. I won't! I won't!" screamed Little Girl, stamping her foot angrily. "I just hate that horrid old dress."

All the dolls in the nursery looked very much shocked at this display of temper and the Teddybear said right

"Why how can you say that? I never saw you before in all my life."

so softly she really wasn't such a bad little girl after all. "I'm so sorry."

"Will try not to send for me so often," asked Temper eagerly. "Especially rainy days, because the damp sets in my joints and gives me rheumatism."

Little Girl readily gave the promise, and they parted good friends.

When she arrived home nurse was waiting at the door for her and at once proceeded to give her a sound scolding for running away.

Instead of flying into a rage as she usually did, Little Girl said meekly: "I'm sorry, nurse, and went upstairs, leaving that person looking person; I thought it was something inside of you."

"You'll be the death of me yet," continued Temper. "The others give me a little peace—but not you."

"Why Temper?" said Little Girl.

per came to her like a flash, and she threw herself on the bed, sobbing bitterly.

"There, I promised I'd be especially careful on rainy days and—and I've brought him out this morning and his rheumatism will be worse."

"Later on in the day Little Girl slipped out of the house and went in search of Temper.

She asked everybody she met, but nobody could tell her where he lived. At last she came to an old hut where she stopped and knocked timidly on the door. "Come in," said a weak voice which Little Girl recognized as Temper's.

She found him lying on the bed gasping for breath.

"Ah, Little Girl, you very nearly did for me that time," he said feebly. "Dear, dear Temper," said Little Girl, throwing herself beside the bed, "please get better and I'll try to remember."

"Did you forget so soon?" asked Temper sadly, then as she hung her head in shame he said, "Bring me that rose, my dear." As she handed it to him he said:

"I picked this off the Tree of Memory, and the person who wears it never forgets. Take it dear," he said, handing it to Little Girl. "It will help you to remember but you must not keep it very long, as I have a number of other children waiting for it."

So Little Girl went home with the rose, and it helped her so much that in a few days she returned it to Temper.

"Ha! Ha!" chuckled he genially as she handed it to him. "You didn't give me much trouble last week, Little Girl. Why I am positively getting fat with so little exercise."

"Yes, you are fatter," said Little Girl, eyeing him critically. "And you're ever so much younger looking."

"I feel younger," answered Temper, or feel so glad I could dance with you. Goodbye, Temper, goodbye. Whenever it's time to go to bed he at once flies into a rage, but once I get hold of him and explain matters just as I did to you, my dear, I think he will be better."

"Oh! My sure he will," answered Little Girl. "Well, I must go home now. Goodbye, Temper, goodbye."

"Goodbye Little Girl," said Temper, shaking her hand heartily, and as a last word of parting he said "Remember."

The Young Photographer

HE mounts a piece of stovepipe on a soap box turned on end. And then to take a picture he seriously pretends: His coat's the cloth for focusing which covers up his head. And where he lacks a shutter there's an old tin plate instead.

He sets his little sister in a broken wicker chair, And chooses her position with the most excessive care; "Look pleasant, please," he orders, then he fools with his "machine" And tells her that the picture will be the best yet seen.

He photographs each blessed thing that he can get to sit, And plays at taking pictures till you think he'll never quit; Each dog and cat within a mile has many times been done, And though he shows no pictures, still it doesn't spoil his fun.

But since he seems determined to become a photo-man, We will help his young ambition in whatever way we can, And so on his next birthday we will purchase for his sake A proper kind of camera that will real pictures take.

very much astonished.

The first thing she did was to rush to the nursery and ask Teddy Bear's pardon for the way she treated him. Of course, Teddy Bear was only too glad to forgive the little mistress. Then all the boys shouted "We're so glad you came back Little Girl, because we missed you terribly," which Little Girl thought was very sweet of them after the horrid way she had acted.

The next morning the rain was coming down in torrents and it made Little Girl cross because her mother had promised to take her "walking" that day, and of course now that it was raining they wouldn't be able to go.

So when nurse arrived to comb her charge's hair she found a very pouting little girl indeed.

"Come! Come missy. 'Tis time you were dressed," she said sharply. And—well, I think nurse was feeling a little cross herself that morning, because she pulled hold of Little Girl's arm in a way which that young person resented very much, for she shouted angrily: "Go away. Go away. You won't comb my hair, I—I—hate you!"

A few minutes later, when her rage had passed away, the memory of Tem-

And Little Girl remembered so well that from that day everybody called her "The Little Girl Without a Temper."

WONDERFUL ROSE GARDENS.

IN the outskirts of the city of Lyons, in sunny France, are the most wonderful rose gardens in the world. There a great flat stretch of land is set out in countless rows of the queen of flowers, all all-bloom variegated in color and perfume. These rows, in a single garden, often a hundred feet in length, with not more than eighteen inches of space between rows and each plant in a row is not more than a foot from its neighbor.

There, in this floral paradise, the gardeners strive to propagate new kinds of roses by the process of grafting one species upon another. Only the other year one gardener produced a new rose of a rare coral tint and luxurious perfume. One cannot gaze upon this wondrous scene without breathing a fervent thanksgiving that there are in the world such beautiful things as roses.

The Best Medicine

If you suppose when I am sick And out I scamper through the wood My mother gives me bitter drugs, To have a jolly fresh air tramp. You're wrong; she has a better trick Of giving me eleven hugs. For air and light make flowers grow And feed the grass and shrubs and trees, And kisses and my sweater hood So it will make me well you know, And rubber boots if it is dapp, For I am brother to all these.

Our Puzzle Corner

POOR PUSSY PUZZLE.

Ding, dong bell, Puss' in the well, Who put her in? Little Tommy Green. Who pulled her out? Little Tammy Troun. What a naughtily boy was that, 'Tis was King Bountiful, 'cause he cut her out by cutting out the black spots and fitting them together.

See if you can find the pussy cat by cutting out the black spots and fitting them together.

NUMERICAL ENIGMA.

I am composed of fourteen letters. My 5, 7, 12, 14 is what you smell when a horse is kicking up his heels. My 2, 1 is a conjunction. My 9, 13, 8 is the core of an ear of corn. My 4, 6 is to exist. My 10, 11, 8 is to go quickly. My whole is the name of a famous book of adventures.

RIDDLE.

I have the largest vocabulary ever known but I can't speak a word. Persons turn to me for knowledge of words and though I never answer them they always get what they want from me. In me are "eyes," "nose,"

Liberals Are Gre Outcome—A F Fought Out—Aberdeen.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A cable from the Tribune from London says: "Another week of exceptional interest in Irish politics has begun. It will be marked by several speeches of importance and will close with the Reading election. Liberals both there and the party headquarters in London betray the utmost anxiety as to the result."

This evening Arthur J. Balfour, one of the Scottish campaign against Home Rule at Aberdeen. By common consent he was the greatest of the secretaries for Ireland for the last half-century and he possesses the historical sense more than any living statesman. Special significance also attached to the meeting of Ulster businessmen at Belfast to-morrow, at which Sir Edward Carson will speak. All the chief towns and districts of Ulster will be represented, but only by the chief employers of labor."

Austen Chamberlain speaks tomorrow at Llanely and E. F. Smith Stafford.

Nearly all the Cabinet Ministers will be reassembled in London this week at the opportunity is, therefore, ripe for that free and frank interchange of views on the Irish situation, invited by Premier Asquith and commanded by Mr. Bonar Law. That any definite development will take place immediately, however, is extremely doubtful, though it is known that the King

Around the Municipality

Hydro Commission Will Work on C...

At the next meeting of the Council a by-law will be introduced regarding the election of the commission to look after Hydro Electric matters in this city. It has not been definitely settled as to the number of commissioners to be elected, and another meeting of the fire and hydro committee will be held this week to arrive at a conclusion in the matter. There is a statutory choice of three or five commissioners. The Mayor is an ex-officio member in either case. There is some chance of a commission of five being chosen, which would necessitate the election of two members. In the meantime construction work is reported to be making good progress and Hydro will likely be turned on in Brantford in January.

The construction of the Hyde & protean Brantford waterworks property will be completed today.

Wall Collapsed—Nobody Hurt

A wall in the new core room of the American Radiator Company collapsed on Saturday afternoon, and a loss of life might have resulted from the collapse. The wall was a new one put in a year ago when the company extended its facilities. It crumpled up and buried a gas engine, and it was fortunate that no employees were in the immediate vicinity at the time. The cause is said to have been due to a pile of moulding sand, the weight of which caused the collapse.

SPLENDID SERVICES

Are Being Conducted at the Park Baptist Church by Rev. Dr. Troy.

The services at Park Baptist church last evening which were attended by a congregation which packed the big edifice, was very inspiring. Rev. Dr. Troy had a message to deliver and he did it in a very inspiring way. "Does it pay to be a Christian?" was the subject and the speaker appealed to his audience in striking manner. The music last evening was very beautiful. A chorus of 46 voices was led by Mr. Corneil and solos by Messrs. E. Roberts and Cox enhanced the beauty of the service. To-night the Alexandra Park church choir will join, making a galaxy of 80 voices. Mrs. Bart will be the soloist.
