Last Night's Meeting Was a Triumph For the Cause of Continued Good and Progressive Government of Ontario--Fighting Speech by Minister of Power, Who Declared That Editor of Brantford Expositor Had Fought Hydro From the Very Inception--Pulpit Politics Denounced.

Despite the fact that issues in the present provincial election campaign have been talked threadbare, despite the fact that it was a torrid night, and despite the fact that, even at Liberal headquarters, it is conceded that South Brant is safe in the Whitney column, a magnificent audience assembled in the Grand Opera House last evening to hear Conservative speakers expound the gospel of Good Government for Ontario. In point of enthusiasm, and in point of the aroused militant spirit of Conservatives of this city, last night's meeting has never been exceeded.

The reception accorded every speaker was magnificent, but it remained for Mr. Brewster and Sir Adam Beck to get such a demonstration as is accorded to few men in public life. The candidate in South Brant brought the audience to their feet in a telling arraignment of his detractors and the detractors of the character and morals of electors who belong to the great forward Conservative party of Ontario. When Mr. Brewster declared that he did not know whether he had been read out of the Methodist Church or not, because he had the courage of his convictions, it was several minutes before the wildly enthusiastic audience permitted him to continue. The candidate paid some attention to temperance matters. It was a masterly review, which showed that the Whitney Government was one of performance, and that the Liberals had been in their palmist days of office, and still continued, a party of promises. The Liberals were the same party for whom temperance people in years gone by had hung their heads in shame, a party of pledge-makers and pledge-breakers. Mr. Brewster won his audience by his manly declaration for honesty in public life, on the platform and off of it. He asked for support because he was the candidate of an honest Government, a Government with a clean record, a Government of achievement.

The Conservative candidate was preceded by Mayor Spence, who delivered an effective speech, which was punctuated with applause. In fact, the audience was so enthusiastic that they urged the Mayor to continue his remarks, and continue he did. His reading of the wine list of the Ontario Club, Grit headquarters in Ontario, occasioned no end of amusement. Following Mr. W. S. Brewster came Mr. W. F.

Telling Point By
Mr. Brewster

At last night's meeting reference was made to the activities of the Women's Liberal Association in this city. The reference was made by Mr. W. S. Brewster in the course of his address. As a Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Brewster had received one of the Abolish the Bar circulars sent out. He tore it up.

"Some of these women should banish liquor and drinking from their own homes before they attempt to dictate to me on the matter of temperance," declared Mr. Brewster, and the declaration went right home.

Cockshutt, who delivered a fighting speech, in which the member for Brantford declared he voiced the sentiment of thousands of people in Brantford when he said that Brewster had been hit below the belt by some of the politician pulpateers of Brantford, and the injury done by these men in their own sphere of Christian endeavor and to the temperance cause was immeasurable, and would be felt for years to come.

It was 10.30 when Sir Adam Beck arrived, and not one person had left the meeting, despite the lateness of the hour. The Minister of Power, as was to be expected, received the plaudits of those assembled in a degree which spoke high tribute. The outstanding feature of Sir Adam's address was his declaration that Ross, MacKay and Preston—yes, the Brantford Preston—had opposed the Hydro-Electric Bill when it was first introduced into the Ontario House. The Brantford Expositor had fought Hydro viciously when it was voted on in this city.

And yet they had the effrontery to claim that they had originated Hydro development. As a matter of fact, had the Whitney Government not gone into power when it did, the resources of Niagara would have been tied up for all time to come with corporate interests. The denunciation of the Expositor's attitude in Hydro-Electric, and the attitude of the editor when he sat in the House, coming from Sir Adam Beck, as it did, was a telling one. The lying, quibbling and misrepresentation of the Brantford Grit organ in regard to Hydro-Electric was effectively squelched by the Minister of Power. As the representative of the people of Brantford, and as the proprietor and editor of the Expositor, in public life and out of it, Preston was shown to have been lined up with the forces which would have kept Brantford and Ontario in the clutches of the biggest monopoly the Province ever knew.

The meeting closed at 11 o'clock, and there was no end to the enthusiasm then. Many ladies were present and joined in the cheering. The militant spirit of the ladies was thoroughly aroused when Mr. Brewster declared that some of the women of the Women's Liberal Association should stop drinking in their own homes before they carried their political catch-cries out in the open.

Ald. W. M. Charlton, president of the Brantford Conservative Association, made an excellent chairman, and his introductory speech was one which reflected the earnestness of purpose of the Conservative ranks of Brantford.

Mayor Spence
Great cheering and a genuine hearty reception greeted Brantford's honored first citizen as he stepped forward to deliver his address. Cries of "Give it to them old boy, go after them Jack!" filled the air and all through his address, the Mayor was given a splendid hearing, and his speech was punctuated many, many times by applause.

"I have a great deal of pleasure in addressing you on behalf of Mr. Brewster and the Whitney Government," said Mr. Spence, after the applause had subsided, "and I have no apology whatever to make for so doing. The Expositor prints a statement from Mr. Ham to-night regarding 'professed temperance men' and saying that he will resign his seat if Mr. Rowell does not bring in the Abolition of the bar." Joe is talking about resigning. Something he hasn't got yet nor will have," declared the Mayor, amid great applause and laughter.

"I have something to resign from and Joe didn't help me get it either. It is therefore knowing fully my position that I say what I am going to say to you to-night, namely that the temperance people of Brantford were offered last year by the City Council to have a by-law submitted without any 25 per cent. petition being submitted to the Council. The offer of the City Council was rejected because certain of the temperance party, being of Grit persuasion, put a damper on it. They wanted to save their ammunition and make party capital out of question which should rightly appeal to those of Grit as well as Tory persuasion, and be discussed without politics. The Expositor wants to know where I stand on local option. Here is where I stand: If the temperance people want a by-law next January they can have the same without any petition, as far as I am concerned. I believe in trusting all the people all the time. But the Expositor and friends didn't look at temperance that way last year. It was party first, then temperance."

The Secret Ballot
This worship then took up the secret ballot and quoted from the Expositor's editorial page "Workmen remember the ballot is secret." "Yes," continued the Mayor, "and who gave you the secret ballot, the Whitney

Whose Words
Ring True?

For some weeks past Joseph Ham, the Liberal candidate, following up the lead of the Expositor, has been parading forth the assumption that the Liberals of Ontario started the Hydro movement.

The people of South Brant have now the word of the Expositor and Ham and the word of Sir Adam Beck to choose between.

The Minister of Power declared last night that when the Hydro Bill was first introduced in the Legislature T. H. Preston, then member for Brantford, fought it as viciously as any project was ever fought.

Brantford people know the fight the Expositor put up as a newspaper against Hydro, and such hypocritical protestations that Hydro was ever favored by its are nauseating to the man who knows.

The word of Beck or the word of the Expositor.—Which?

disturb the two meetings of Mr. Brewster, and a question they continually kept firing, was "What about the L. E. and N." Well, I can tell them all they want to know about the L. E. and N.; it seems to interest them. Mr. Brewster is the solicitor of the L. E. and N. railway, and he is paid to carry out instructions, but who is the President of that company? Why John Muir, the man fighting for Ham in Ward four, so I will refer the hecklers to Mr. Muir, their own party man, he will no doubt be delighted to give them all the information they desire." (More laughter and great applause.)

The Clergy on the Stump
The part taken by certain ministers in this campaign on behalf of the Liberals came in for a vigorous attack from the Mayor. These clergymen, he said, could make use of the pulpit for two things, politics and preaching the gospel of the Great Master. In a certain church in this city the preacher told a parable to illustrate the temperance issue, that of a man going through a jungle with a little girl and he had only a little gun in his hand to defend her from a big lion. Well the true version of that parable is that Sir James Whitney places in the electors hands not a little gun, but a real repeating rifle gun, that can do the work. This was the same gentleman, Mr. Spence explained, who stood in his pulpit on January 4th. last and praised Sir James Whitney to the skies, who was then on his death bed in New York City. He even said he, Sir James, was the greatest Premier Ontario ever had. Now, what sin did Sir James Whitney commit between January 4th last up to the Sunday the rev. gentleman advised his congregation to throw down Sir James and put Rowell in. The only sin Sir James did commit, said the mayor, was that Providence had allowed him to live. "If that rev. gentleman wants to go into politics," continued Mr. Spence, "let me tell him it is poor politics to forget what you said on a certain subject or about a man the last time you spoke." (Applause and laughter.)

"What do you think of it anyway?" asked his worship, "Rotten," cried a voice in the gallery amid more applause. "Yes, I think you are pretty near right," commented the speaker. "Now if these clergymen would like a text for a political sermon, I might suggest one to them, 'By their fruits ye shall know them' and I would refer them to the history of the Ross regime in the province, and 'hug-the-machine' Preston in West Elgin, the burning of ballots, the throwing ballot boxes into the lake, the debauchery in the three Norths, the trip of the Minnie M. loaded to the gunwhale with booze and a cargo of pluggers on board. They also carried on the Minnie M. a bunch of books that resembled Bibles, but they were only novels with Bible covers on them, fixed that way so as to quiet the conscience of the pluggers. We would refer these political pulpateers to the only time booze was ever found in political club rooms in this city and then they swore it was only methylated spirits but it was there when the booze was found, because we were chasing a Grit plugger and when we were arresting him in the Liberal club rooms we found the booze, in the same club and among the same moralists who are to-day running Joe Ham's campaign. This plugger was arrested, but he broke his bail bond and got a job at the London asylum where when we went to bring him to justice, the then Liberal Government in power said "No, he is our ward now." Yes, continued his Worship, "let the Expositor put that down in one column and parallel to it place the record of the Whitney Government for the past seven years, a clean sheet containing, not one corrupt act: Verily, by their fruits ye shall know them," remarked the Mayor amid great applause.

The Gas Situation.
The Mayor next took up the gas question showing the good work Mr. Brewster did for the people by forcing his gas bill through the legislature this year, by which in three months from the first of May last, if the Gas Company is not supplying Brantford with good gas, their franchise, which is a perpetual one granted by the Liberal Government, would be cut off. The Standard Oil Co. is really the owner of the Dominion Gas Co. and they had an array of seven lawyers present in the House to fight Mr. Brewster's bill and one of the seven was Mr. Edmund Sweet of this city, one of Mr. Ham's chief supporters in the present election. "Do you think," said Mr. Spence "that were Mr. Ham elected that Mr. Sweet would let him go to Toronto and support that bill. No, not on your life. Therefore, I appeal to you to return Mr. Brewster to Toronto so as to help us in this fight. Oh, well, someone might say, its all very well to talk that way before an election. Well, I said certain things before my election in January and we have shown you that we appreciate your confidence. We have driven out the Western Counties, the Grand Valley, and the Brantford Street Car Co., even as we said we would. But give us your assistance, and we will deliver you from the fumes of the lower regions that now permeate the city gas.

That Yellow Circular
But his worship was not through yet, he set out to attack the fallacies spread about by the Liberals and he did it to the satisfaction of everyone present. Jim Hurley's famous yellow Abe Lincoln circular was next thrown under the search-light's rays by Mr. Spence. In this circular Mr. Hurley, the author, actually classed Joseph Ham in the same class as Abraham Lincoln, who had fought for over 30 years to gain his victory for the slaves, while Joseph Ham has been fighting his battle for some 30 days.

A Forsaken Policy.
His worship then proceeded to contrast the long fight put up by Abraham Lincoln with that put up by Mr. Rowell. The statement has been made and never denied, that Mr. Rowell if not elected on this temperance ticket will drop it for all time; "that is," said Mr. Spence, amid much laughter, "if you don't swallow bait, hook, line, sinker, pole and all—well, you won't get the chance again."

More Nice Methods.
After the applause had subsided, Mr. Spence went on to tell the audience how during the last municipal election in which he was opposed by T. L. Wood for the mayoralty, Mr. James Hurley had telephoned around to all the secretaries and presidents of the church-brotherhoods, asking them to canvass their class members to vote for Wood as he was the temperance candidate. "Talk about using the church for politics, I would like to know what that is," said his worship amid tremendous applause. "But I dislike to charge these things against the Liberal party for really these men do not represent the real Liberal party, but only the Preston-Hurley bunch, and," continued the Mayor, "the Preston outfit drew $12,000 in one year from the Liberal government; that's no small 10 p.c. dividend either, and that's the reason they are fighting so hard this election. It isn't temperance that they care about, but they want to get their suckers back into the public treasury; they miss that $12,000 a year." (Loud applause and cries of "Go after them, Jack; give it them.")

Ham and the Compensation Act.
Mr. Spence then referred to the statement in The Expositor that Ham gave his disabled workmen 100 p.c. on the dollar. It may be true, but Ham was not the only man that did it, the company that he represented did the same thing and had always did it, but had never paraded it in front of the people. Just the same 100 or no per cent. the Ham Company could not get out of paying its share towards the Compensation fund.

Mayor Spence.

The Waterous Deal.
"My charges against Ham on the Waterous property deal have been questioned," said the Mayor, "but they still stand confirmed by the minute book of the City Council and I still claim that had Mr. Ham sat in any parliament under the British flag and did what he did in that case he would be expelled immediately.

Support Mr. Brewster.

Major Spence brought his splendid address to a close by making a strong appeal to the electors to stand by Sir James Whitney and Sir Adam Beck, and asked all to use their influence to see that Mr. Brewster was elected on Monday next.

Mr. Brewster

It was truly a great ovation that Mr. Brewster received when he rose to speak, the audience seemed to be on fire with enthusiasm, and it was easy to see that a genuine, good, rousing, old-fashioned Conservative meeting was in progress. Mr. Brewster, after referring in glowing terms to Sir James Whitney and expressing thanks to the Almighty that he had been restored to health and strength again, launched at once into a scathing denunciation of the tactics of the Liberals in regard to temperance. "I have been held up as one who was leading his party down to the lower regions," he said amid much laughter, "but I want to say that I am just as good a temperance man as anyone in Brantford. I have yet to taste my first drink of liquor, and I stand for the best temperance measures ever put upon the statute books of this province. We all agree on the evils of the drink traffic but we do not agree as to the methods of getting rid of it. The Rowell policy is not one half as good as either local option or the Canada Temperance Act."

A Whiskey and Water Policy.

"Yes," continued Mr. Brewster, "the Rowell policy is nothing more, not less than a whiskey and water policy. It is a policy that cannot appeal to a man's common sense. If he has to wipe out the shops by local option, why not wipe them both out by local option?"

OPENING NIGHT OF BIG CARNIVAL

Boy Knights Are Putting on Successful Event in the East Ward.

The opening night of the Boy Knight Carnival was a most successful one from every point of view. The grounds and buildings were most tastefully decorated.

A splendid musical program was rendered by the 25th. Dragon Band under the direction of Dr. Pearce, which added much to the pleasure of the evening.

The athletic work was splendid along all lines and the different events of the evening were keenly contested.

The acrobatic work by Mr. Hewn was one of the features of the evening while the work of the clowns under Serg. Finn was decidedly funny.

The program opened with the March Past, Major Gordon Smith taking the salute. This was exceptionally well carried out. Thirty Boy Scouts put on a fine exhibition of First Aid.

The Boy Knights, under Lieut. Row, gave a physical display that was most creditable. In the tug-of-war, between the junior Boy Knights and Trinity Scouts, the Boy Knights won.

The tug-of-war between the Ham and Nott team and Boy Knights was won by the Ham and Nott team. The High Jump by Captain Van-sickle.

The Ladies Walking Match by Miss Hamilton and Mrs. Hawke.

In putting the shot, the competition was decidedly keen. Mr. Johnson of the Ham and Nott team winning out, the throw being 31 feet, 6 inches.

Several clever boxing bouts were put on, those taking part being John Hawke, Jack Pratt, Mr. Monkman and Mr. Martin, Geo. Hewitt and Victor Hill acting as seconds and Mr. Alfred French as referee.

Mr. James Hawke, Mr. Vansickle and Mr. A. Finch made very capable judges in the different events.

Other gentlemen who officiated were Mr. Reeves, Mr. Lamb, Mr. Geo Hunt and others. The parallel bar work of the Knights of St. Luke under the direction of Mr. Heron and Mr. Finch was particularly attractive and brought forth much applause.

The evenings program was brought to a close with an elaborate display of fireworks.

The Carnival will be continued to-night and to-morrow evening and the attendance to-night promises to be a record one. Many new attractions will be put on and the program will be changed nightly.

The Boy Knights are to be heartily congratulated on the success of their Carnival. It is a decidedly new departure from the ordinary affairs of this kind and is certainly one that arouses the enthusiasm and tends to bring out the best that is in young men and boys that are taking part.

A Tennis Tea

A most successful event was held on Wednesday evening on the lawn of Mr. E. Barton, corner of Minton Avenue and Cockshaw Road when at least fifty members of the Bell View Tennis club met for a tennis tea.

Tables were set on the lawn which was decorated with flags and Chinese lanterns. A royal banquet was served by the very able ladies of the social committee, under the guidance of Mrs. Vaughan, their convenor. Thanks to an industrious grounds committee, the club has three courts in good condition and will be pleased to arrange for games with other clubs, any so desiring kindly notify Mr. Ansell, 176 Erie Street.

An urgent meeting of the club members is called for the evening of Monday, June 29th at 8 p.m.

Garden Party at St. John's Church

Under the auspices of St. John's A.Y.P.A. on Wednesday evening, a most successful garden party was held on the spacious lawn adjoining the church. The grounds and booths were lighted with numerous Chinese lanterns and the effect was gay and festive. A splendid programme was rendered, and as Darwin's orchestra was the feature of the evening, it is needless to say that the music was of a very high order. Miss Louise Jones with her well trained voice, delighted the audience with two solos, "Spring Is Here" and "Daffodils." Miss Beatrice Richards in her inimitable manner gave a humorous recitation which was beyond criticism. A quartette was most acceptably given by Messrs. Todd, Viney, Dawson and Nash. Mr. W. Richards with his well modulated voice gave two selections, "The Shamrock of Ireland" being a general favorite. Rev. Patterson-Smyth and Rural Dean Saunders were in attendance. Judging from the patronage received, the garden party was one of the best ever held in connection with St. John's church.

Military Notes

At the regular monthly meeting of the 38th rifle committee held at the armories on Wednesday evening, it was decided to send a team of ten men to the Ontario Rifle Association meet to be held at Toronto commencing Aug. 17th. In the past it has been the custom to send a team of five to Ottawa, but a departure has been made this year and the number composing the team doubled. A grant will be made to each member sufficient to cover entry fees, etc., and from the scoring of the past few Saturdays, there is no doubt the 38th shots will give a good account of themselves.

Preparations were also made for the sending of a team of twenty men to Hamilton on July 1st to compete in the Growski Active Service Competition for city corp. in the second division, but word has since been received that it has been postponed until the Fall, consequently the meeting called for Saturday evening to complete arrangements has been cancelled. The practice on Saturday will be at 200, 500 and 600 yards, as usual.

Some men will get out of bed at midnight and run to a fire who can't be induced to get up at 7 a.m. and start one in the kitchen range.

A business meeting held by the Echo Place Tennis Club at the residence of the president of the club, F. T. Morrow, Echo Place, Hamilton Road, and judging from the enthusiasm shown by the members of the club, pleasant times are anticipated this season. The following list of committees were appointed:

Social Committee—Miss Mary Edmondson.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer month are the most dangerous to little ones. The complaints of that season which are cholera infantum, diarrhoea and dysentery come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is really ill. The best remedy is to have on hand to prevent these troubles or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to the mother during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

man, Miss F. Caton, Miss G. Cowherd, Miss N. Edmondson, Miss T. Patterson, Miss Edna Smith, Mr. T. Morrow.

Membership Committee—Mr. Ashbury, Mr. G. Edmondson, Mr. F. T. Morrow, Miss N. Edmondson, Miss Mabel Edmondson.

Practice games were played last night, and were coached by Edna Smith, and Miss Mary Edmondson, and we are in hopes they will develop some very promising players.

The social committee is arranging for a tennis tea to be held Tuesday evening was adjourned.

"A REGRETTABLE MIXTURE."

The following editorial is from "Church Life," Toronto, in this week's issue: "It is to be regretted that, in the Province of Ontario, at least, an attempt has been made to identify one political party in an especial manner with the championship of temperance, and it is still more deplorable that, in some cases, ministers of some religious bodies have allowed themselves, willingly or unwillingly, to be drawn into the religio-political arena, even to the extent of becoming candidates of the political party on the 'temperance idea.' We do not question that there are, in both parties, men of high purpose who sincerely desire to promote the cause of true temperance, but we certainly have been unable in twenty years' observation to detect the slightest justification for the claim that the so-called 'temperance party' has, as a party, accomplished or sought to accomplish anything more for true temperance than the other party. While we suppose unthinking and easily bewildered people may become confused and think that a new issue of moral significance is before them, and so play into the hands of those who are responsible for the temperance appeal ad captandium, there are those of both political parties to whose intelligence and sense of fitness of things this will be abhorrent and induce them to register their abhorrence at the polling booth. If the course that has been adopted did not involve a serious menace to the ideals of political sincerity it would be decidedly humorous to contemplate the position in which the political temperance party has placed itself. Most of its legislative members are members of, and its leaders are directors of, a club which sells and receives considerable revenue from selling a large variety of intoxicating beverages to its members. We care not whether it be Conservative or Liberal, or any other political party or individual politicians, who attempt to make political capital out of a moral or religious question, and inferentially or deliberately imply that their opponents have a lower sense of moral responsibility in respect of such questions—for such there should be one course of treatment; rejection as public representatives by those who have high ideals, political or religious. The above journal is the official organ of the Church of England in this Province.

THE BY-LAW.

The Courier believes that the people of Brantford did an excellent day's work in carrying the Greater Brantford by-law. As before pointed out in these columns, the citizens who voluntarily came together in this movement were not actuated by personal gain; but imbued with the desire to further help in the up-building of this good community. They are business men of proved success, and that matters in their hands will be efficiently looked after does not admit of any question. Even those who did vote against the measure will in the long run realize the beneficial results accruing all round.

SETTLES IT.

If any doubt ever existed as to what the people of Brantford intend to do at the polls next Monday, that grand meeting of last night settles it.

It is safe to affirm there has never been in this community a more enthusiastic or more significant gathering.

And well it might be so. With regard to cheaper electric light and power, cheaper school books, the finest Workmen's Compensation Act in the world, good roads policy, prison reform, clean administration, and, in fact, in all directions, the Whitney Government has been the best and most progressive ever possessed by this Province. With regard to the best interests of true temperance they are also on sound ground, and Rowell's pitiful attempt to use that item and the pulpits on the pretence that it constituted the only issue, has deservedly failed, most completely and miserably.

The speeches at the gathering all rang true, as indeed they could not anything else with such a cause and such a Premier to fight for. Mr. Brewster again demonstrated the reason why he stands so high in the councils of the Province at Toronto, while Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt, M.P., was in his very best fighting vein. Mayor Spence also hammered home point after point. Added to these exceptionally fine addresses was the arrival at the close of Sir Adam Beck. To say that he received an ovation only mildly conveys the nature of the tribute accorded him. He richly deserved every throbbing minute of it. Friends of the hon. gentleman are well aware that he has remained in public life because of his devotion to the great project of Hydro-Electric. To him, more than to any one man, belongs the unparalleled success of that great achievement, and he has made all of us his debtors.

Mr. Charlton made an efficient chairman. Once more, that fine assem-

English or French as the language of instruction in Ontario's schools? A vote for Brewster or Westbrock means that you favor English.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Brewster. * * * Westbrock. * * * Whitney. * * * Some meeting; what? Both Brants still remain ours, but make it emphatic. Now, then boys; all together for the final two days' dash.

Are we in it; we should smile. Have been in it all the while. Very kind of Brother Ham to pledge himself to resign a seat he can't get.

There is going to be another first-class Tory procession in this neck of the woods on Monday night.

Our friends, the enemy, are going to have a Saturday night meeting. Might as well call it off and save their simonoles.

During the Reciprocity fight the local Grits had a turnip and bologna sausage procession. Well they won't be able to repeat with Ham, June 29th.

The local Rowellite candidate thinks that Whitney has been unfair in the matter of insisting that English must be the language of instruction in Public schools of Ontario attended by French-Canadian children. What do you think about that?

The most significant thing said by Sir Adam Beck at the Conservative mass meeting in Toronto was his statement that there are more German-Canadians than French-Canadians in Ontario, and that the people of like ancestry with his are content with the English language, the language of the province. And he might have added that the French-Canadians in Ontario have no more right than have the German-Canadians to special privileges in the matter of the use of their language in the public schools. THE BROAD VIEW

No doubt the girls deserve the rights for which they clamor, day and night, and men should patient be and fair; I love the women passing well, but when they raise their "rebel yell" I'm glad my granny isn't there. The women ought to have a hand in governing this happy land—they have that right, and more to spare; this cheerfully I grant each maid—but when I see a stiff parade, I'm glad Aunt Agnes isn't there. The dames, who help to bear the yoke, should have the right to chew and smoke and play cheap politics and swear; but when the wives neglect their homes, and chase around with batty domes, I'd like to see the women gain all blessings that they would obtain, and all imagined laurels wear; but when I think of politics, with all its cheap and sordid tricks, I'm glad my sister isn't there. Let others' sisters, aunts and wives go forth and sacrifice their lives, and resolute and paw the air; their sacred cause is all O.K., but I am thankful, every day, that Cousin Susan isn't there. BLOW YOUR OWN HORN. It's up to every man, woman and child of us to do more or less shouting on our own account. We've just as much right to advertise our qualifications as a hucker has to shout his wares, only there's a peculiar way of doing it that should be strictly observed. When I say that I don't mean that you do it with your voice, I mean do it with your manner. Look straight out at the world with level eyes and squared jaw. Keep your pose and know when to smile and when to appear. Somehow I like a fighter and havin' had considerable experience with animas I'd opine that the dog who sets tight and looks gravely out at the pack ain't going to be undervalued any er molested greatly by the hob-bitin' mongrels. After all, shoutin' is only wind, but advertisin' yer wuth in yer personality is rale backbone an' grizzle and ye can't beat that corabination as a genuine advertisement.

CLEVER WORK AT RECITAL HALL

Scholarly Achievement in Music at the Brantford Conservatory.

The recital hall of the Brantford Conservatory of Music was filled to its utmost capacity last evening with a representative audience of the music-loving people of Brantford, and also many from a distance, who came to attend the graduating exercises. The programme as usual was of excellent merit, and the performance of each fair young graduate evoked the greatest enthusiasm from the large audience present. Mr. W. Norman Andrews, F.C.G.O., explained that the chairman, Rev. C. Patterson-Smyth, was unfortunately called to Toronto and later in the evening called upon Mr. Broadbent to preside, who carried out the duties in an efficient manner. In his remarks he paid a very high tribute to the thorough scholarly work of the Conservatory by saying it was only the best methods of teaching that could possibly produce such excellent results, as the students had convincingly demonstrated in their playing during the evening.

Miss Mary Master opened the programme with Mendelssohn's ever popular G Minor Concerto, which is so well known to music students, with its exacting demands of nuances and technique. Miss Ruby Cann followed with the second movement. Their rendition won enthusiastic applause, and each young lady was made the recipient of several beautiful bouquets. Miss Mary Lister also played in a delicate and musical manner Leschetzki's "Two Larks," and gave a brilliant performance of Liszt's "Rigoletto." Beethoven's C minor Concerto proved to be in most capable hands, the first movement was beautifully interpreted by Miss Lorraine Hutchinson. Her technique was clean and clear without any suspicion of the blur, while her tempo and musical conception was all that could be desired. Miss Ada Edwards gave a splendid rendition of the second and third movements, and both young artists won the enthusiastic plaudits of those present and also received beautiful flowers. Miss Ruby Cann played in musicianly manner Chopin's "Berceuse" and the "Allegro" of Beethoven's Appassionata and Miss Lorraine Hutchinson played the Schumann-Liszt "Hark, Hark, the Lark." Mr. J. K. Branson played the only organ solo, "Toccata" Dubois, with excellent effect. He showed good taste and variety in his registration and clean playing with ample technical requirements speaks well for his future career.

The remarkable feature of the whole programme was the uniform excellence of the young graduates whether regarded from the purely technical or aesthetic aspect. The vocal numbers of Miss Edith White, Miss Aileen Hart and Miss Ruby Cann were given in splendid voice and each vocalist showed the training of a master in the vocal art. The graduates and the young organist were pupils of Mr. W. Norman Andrews and the vocalists were pupils of Mr. F. C. Thomas. The orchestral accompanists were played by the Darwin orchestra with Mr. F. C. Thomas, viola; Miss Pearl Eacrett, second piano, and Miss Lena Shannon at the organ. Mr. W. Norman Andrews conducting. Miss Shannon and Miss Eacrett were also recipients of beautiful flowers and gifts. The National anthem brought to a close one of the most successful graduating recitals ever given at the Conservatory of Music.

BLOW YOUR OWN HORN
It's up to every man, woman and child of us to do more or less shouting on our own account. We've just as much right to advertise our qualifications as a huckster has to shout his wares, only there's a particular way of doing it that should be strictly observed. When I say shout I don't mean that go do it with yer voice. I mean do it with yer manner. Look straight out at the world with level eyes and squared jaw. Keep yer nose and know when to smile and when to appreciate. Somehow I like a fighter and havin' had considerable experience with animas I'd opine that the dog who sets tight and looks gravely out at the pack ain't goin' to be undervalued any er molested greatly by the howl'atin' mongrels. After all, shoutin' is only wind, but advertisin' yer wuth in yer personality is rale backbone and grizzle and ye can't beat ther combination as a genuine advertisinment.

The Pulpit-Politician in Texas

To ministers of religion who from their pulpits solicit the votes and influence of their congregations in favor of this or that party politician a severe lecture is read by a Fort Worth contributor to country newspapers in Texas.

"What we have to say has no reference to that vast body of militant ministers who have consecrated their lives to the uplift of mankind, and whose precepts and examples are a beacon-light illuminating the pathway of the human race.

"The religious preacher is the most capable servant and the political preacher is the sorriest master the world has ever known.

"There never was a time when preachers and politicians formed an unholy alliance that civilization did not shriek out and Christianity cry aloud.

"We appeal to the laymen of Texas to demand that political preachers give their congregations more old-time religion and less political clap-trap; that they display a more earnest effort to reach the hearts of men and play less to the galleries; that they more often hold fellowship with the members and fewer caucuses with the politicians.

"Political leaders may live wet and vote dry, and the low standard of statecraft is not offended, but when the Church turns over the pulpit to office-seekers and their henchmen, true Christianity has received a crushing blow and hypocrisy runs rampant in the altar, for it is written 'Ye cannot serve two masters.'

"Since the beginning of government politicians have sought to decoy the ministry into meshes of politics and make them carry banners in political processions.

"The ministry, unsophisticated and confiding, is no match for the politician versed in artful persuasion and skilled in deceit, and it is the duty of the laymen to protect the ministry against the onslaught of these wolves in sheep's clothing and drive the politicians from the pulpit with the lash of public scorn.

"There is a political machine in this state that would put Tammany to shame and make Thurlow Weed turn over in his grave with envy, and the pulpit politician is one of the component parts of its mechanism."

"They are trying with a blare of trumpets to banish the bar but hold on to the jug." "I say a clergyman has no moral right to take this question into the pulpit and denounce, as bad citizens and worse men, those who do not agree with him on this particular subject. We are all agreed on the evils of the traffic, but we have no right to accuse another that the methods he defends are bad and that he is bad because he defends them."

MISS LLOYD GEORGE'S FUN

"Father Says He Hasn't Met a Woman who Can't Speak for Himself" Miss Lloyd George, in opening a bazaar on Wednesday at Watford, in aid of the Baptist sustentation fund, made a happy hit with her first words:

"Where does this fourteen millions go?" he demanded.

Miss George, looking very young and pretty in a quaint blue frock with pinnies, wished the sale of work complete success, and added that she hoped the stall holders would be more eloquent and less nervous than she was.

Mrs Hedley Le Bas, who was in the chair, told an amusing story of Mrs Lloyd George's encounter with a Hertfordshire working man very anxious to know what her husband was doing with all the money he got.

"Well," Mrs Lloyd George replied, "it goes for insurance and old age pensions and the navy."

"I understand that seven millions go to the navy and six for old age pensions," the questioner went on. "What about the other million?"

"Oh, please believe me, I haven't got it."

Mrs Le Bas spoke of the need of the sustentation fund, which ensures a minimum stipend of $500 per annum for Baptist ministers, and pointed out that men who might have adopted more lucrative professions should, on coming into the ministry, be certain of a fair salary.

After the ceremony Miss Lloyd George chatted with several of the stall holders and made some purchases. Besides an excellent display of articles there were side shows, including a radium and X-ray exhibition, and a half curling competition for men.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Brush This Through Faded, Lifeless Locks and They Become Dark, Glossy, Youthful.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, cures scalp itching and falling hair, keeps the hair from becoming too soft and thin, and draws this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies is that, besides darkening the hair, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance. Agent, T. George Bowles.

BECK WILL FINISH HIS WORK AND BREWSTER WILL WIN

Sir Adam Beck
A demonstration which lasted several minutes greeted Sir Adam Beck. The audience within the house learned of his arrival by cheers from the road way which was crowded, as there was some anxiety as to the safe journey of the Minister of Power had had over treacherous roads between Hamilton and Brantford. On entering the Opera House, the audience rose en masse and cheered to the echo. Again when Sir Adam was introduced the audience cheered. Plainly a man with the confidence and affection of the people had arrived.

Cordial Greetings.
"You seem glad to see me," said Sir Adam when the cheering subsided, "and I am glad to see you and to be in the best lighted city on the continent of America. (Applause.) Continuing Sir Adam immediately delved into the issues of the day. It was not to the end, he declared, but the beginning of the most progressive administration Ontario ever experienced. While he was glad to be in Brantford he was more glad to have been in the Massey Hall, Toronto, two nights previous. It was then he saw and heard the premier of this province in the fullness of his strength, in his rugged honesty, ready to continue the service by the man and for the people of Ontario. (Applause.) Never was a hero more honored than was Sir Jas. Whitney at Toronto by the tremendous expression of affection and appreciation which the people bestowed upon him. If, ever declared Sir Adam, he had been proud to stand behind a leader of Liberalism, of Radicalism and Progressivism it was behind Sir James Whitney. (Applause.) Compare it with the record of "the dormant and moth eaten" administration which preceded Sir James' accession to power.

"If we," said Sir Adam, "have sins to apologize for, we have many virtues to be proud of." (Applause.) A brief reference to Ontario's financial affairs followed. In nine years of office the Whitney government had expended 100 millions of dollars and not one dollar of that money was spent corruptly, nor has it been so charged. (Cheers and applause.) It had been a human government; a human administration; its consideration first and foremost for the people. The Compensation Act had been one of the most human pieces of legislation ever put on the statute books of any country. (Applause.) It was of such a nature that organized labor throughout the entire province of Ontario declined to place any candidates in the field against the government of Sir James Whitney. No one could accuse the government of lack of conviction of its duty to the people of the province. Other Legislation.

Continuing Sir Adam referred to other legislation of the government. Once and for all the government of Sir Jas. had stopped competition of prison labor with free labor. That was a legacy of the old Liberal days, but it had been wiped out. Reference was then made to the prison farm scheme and a tribute was paid to Provincial Secretary Hanna. Men who formerly were sent to prison as outcasts of society were redeemed and placed in a decent position in life after the expiration of their prison terms. (Applause.) This was humanitarian legislation; it was in the interests of the province and Ontario was leading the way.

Scathing Denunciation.
Sir Adam then turned his attention to bilingualism. The very mention of the word brought forth rounds of applause in the house. He was sorry to think that the race question had been introduced into Ontario politics. But it had been introduced and he was sorry to think that the leader of the Opposition had allied himself with any race. (Cries of shame.) Sir Adam declared he had come from a race which had never asked any special favors from the country of their adoption. They sought the freedom of this country, and other privileges, and they were content to use English the language of the country of their adoption, and they were proud of it. The German population of this country had never had any other desire nor had ever made a suggestion that any other than the English language should be taught in the schools of this province. (Applause.)

Hydro Affairs.
It was particularly fitting, declared the Minister of Power that in Brantford he should refer to some of the affairs of his own department. Hydro power and Hydro radials were live issues in the province as both were in an embryonic stage of development. The last time he had appeared in Brantford it was in connection with the campaign for Hydro. Brantford people at that time were engaged in a fight against a monopoly supported and promoted by the Liberal organ of the city, The Expositor. Sir Adam said he had nothing against the editor of that journal outside of his attitude against Hydro which he now has the effrontery to tell Brantford people was originally planned by the Ross government. (Laughter and applause.) "Which bill was first introduced into the Legislature, Mr. Preston showed his antagonism to the measure. The Expositor's champion of monopoly and serving one of the biggest corporations Ontario ever had, claiming credit for originating, paving the way for and constructing Hydro Electric development. The situation was one of the most ludicrous he had ever encountered in public life, declared Sir Adam amid cheers and laughter.

Where would the workmen of Brantford have been in regard to cheap light if they had trusted the Liberals? Where would the small user of electricity have been in those cities in the hamlets and in the towns? These would be Liberals, these would be Radicals, these would be Progressives would have had the people of this province clutching by the throat by the greatest monopoly Ontario had ever seen. (Loud applause.)

Preston Opposed It.
Sir Adam then dealt with the original introduction of Hydro Electric into the Ontario House. Ross, McKay, Graham and Preston all condemned it. They said it would destroy the credit of the Province, that the municipalities would never do their part, and that the whole scheme would fall flat to the ground and be a check to the progress of Ontario. Yet, they came forward, even your Preston here, and claim credit for having launched the scheme themselves. (Laughter.) Supposing it was a band wagon, with three wheels on it only? How many Liberals would be found? They would be all under the back seat. It is because Hydro Electric has been a success that the Liberals claim credit for it, but it is a credit which has been earned by the Government has shown that power and light can be distributed more economically than by a monopoly and it has done so.

Brantford Interested.
Sir Adam left no doubt as to Brantford's interest in the Government's Hydro radial scheme. He declared that ownership of the street railway and radial would ultimately be a blessing to Brantford, although it may be a load for some time. He hoped to see the day when Brantford's radial be connected up with Governments link. It was of prime importance to this city and he looked forward to a consummation of the scheme. This will let the workman out in the country, there will be no tenement houses then and the scheme would do wonders for rural Ontario.

A voice—"How about Pt. Stanley?" "Port Stanley will have a public owned road soon to take you there and it will be operated by Niagara Power, not by Decew's Falls." (Cheers)

Future Power Supply.
Sir Adam then delved into the future of Ontario's power supply. He declared the Cataract already draining the Welland Canal at Decew's Falls and interfering with navigation. They were exceeding the amount of water they were supposed to take out of the canal. But with the great development of Ontario, more power would be needed each year. When the Government first contracted for a supply at Niagara, they were told that they were merely dabbling in the matter. But to show that the policy was a broad one for all Ontario, Sir Adam referred to the six different development plans in Northern Ontario in which the province was spending two millions. This was the country which McKay and Preston said would never receive a volt of electricity. The Hydro scheme was all for Toronto. The reputation that electricity in Ontario was no more of the common commodity of the people and not a luxury. (Applause.) The Government was spending two millions and it was only a beginning. Sir Adam declared, amid applause, "I shall never see the day when this development of power will end."

How Liberals Did.
Sir Adam gave another illustration of the Liberal desire for public ownership and Hydro for which the Expositor has taken credit. When Sir James Whitney went into power, a lease was found already prepared for 170,000 horsepower of Niagara Power to be delivered to Mackenzie and Mann. That lease was drawn up just before election and must have cost a pretty sum for campaign purposes. It was indeed fortunate that the people of this province drove the Ross Government from power for had the lease gone into effect not a cubic foot of water would have been available at Niagara Falls to-day. That was the last act of a dying government and that is what they are taking credit for (Laughter and applause.)

To Produce More.
Continuing, the Minister of Power referred to the difficulties in the way of producing more power at Niagara. The government however, after investigation had found that 250,000 horsepower was available for development without interfering with treaty rights. The government was preparing to develop that power, it had the money, it had the credit, the courage and the inclination. (Applause.) Sir Adam said he had been recently asked to learn that Mr. McQueen Liberal of Wentworth, had taken the credit for inaugurating the Hydro-Radial scheme. As a matter of fact, the credit was almost wholly given to McQueen got up in the Legislature and suggested that attention should be given the matter. In 48 hours the act as framed, passed the house. That sort of conduct on the part of the Liberals was a sincere form of flattery, because it was an imitation, and said Adam "We've got to give them credit, they are the greatest imitators in world. (Laughter and applause.)

The Minister of Power then turned the juice on temperance matters. A government which had passed over 40 amendments to the liquor act was not a government which could be declared otherwise than in sympathy with the temperance cause. Not one of the amendments was acceptable to the liquor trade. (Applause.) And every one of them was acceptable to the temperance party. (Continued applause.) "Yet they tell us we are the cause of the country, but I am a disgrace to the country, but they bring out this policy, abolish the bar and leave the jug, the bottle and all the rest of it," declared Sir Adam, amid cheers. Conservatives were not being fairly treated in the matter. It was a calamity to the Christian endeavor of the community that some churches had seen fit to take up the vote catch cry of one political party. (Applause.) All of this was against a government which came before the people with a character clean, straightforward and with a record which should be and will be received with gratitude by the people of this province. (Continued cheering.) Damage had been done to the churches, and no good to the cause of temperance by the despicable campaign waged. The government had faith in the good judgment and in the decency of the people.

They say why don't we give women the vote? If they had seen the women in Massey Hall two nights ago they would not twit us of fear of the women's votes. (Applause.)

Tribute to Leader
Seldom has a finer tribute been heard in this city, on a political platform, than that of Sir Adam Beck to his leader, Sir James Whitney. Sir James had made political order out of political chaos. If a man entered public life he must be unselfish and prepared to make a sacrifice. Sir James had had all these qualities. His honesty was rugged, and the faith in him of even his enemy was unbroken. Ontario's Premier had given the very best in him, conscientious, honest and with faith and confidence he was willing to serve the people again, although to do so was at the risk of shortening a life well spent. What are you going to do with Ontario's grand old man? asked Sir Adam. "Elect him? Of course you are, then vote for Brewster." (Cheers)

Three Fifths Clause
Sir Adam referred to the famous three fifths clause before closing. The Liberals had dropped it from their campaign, and they would drop it more in three years' time. It would soon be found that the hotel men would take up that issue because the big portion of this province which had gone dry under the three fifths clause had gone dry to stay. Repeat under the same conditions was very difficult. Galt found it so. Had a straight majority prevailed Galt would have the open bar to-day. Sir Adam declared that no more disgraceful campaign had ever been fought in Ontario than the present one. "What will visitors to our province think," he said, "to see the despicable placards on the fence and in the public places of towns and cities, the bar or the boy. One might think we had all gone to ruin and destruction. It was a disgrace to any civilized community. If they want to abolish the bar, they have local opinion or the Canada Temperance Act. "But I want to say this," continued Sir Adam, "we are not through with legislation regarding temperance, we are as sincere as any other body, club, party or church. (Applause.) In the meantime we rely on the people, and there is no question but that the people of this province want Sir James Whitney to continue as Premier. It is nothing to Sir James personally, except four or five years of sacrifice. He is prepared and able to give it. What will you do? (Cheers and continued cheers.)

With a magnificent demonstration and with magnificent enthusiasm, cheers for Whitney, Beck and Brewster, the gathering dispersed.

Football

There are a number of good games in the Brantford and Paris Football league on Saturday, when the teams meet for league points. Tutela entertain the Sons of England at Tutela Park, and may be expected to carry off the stakes. They have selected a strong side and will be therefore well represented. The Sons' ability, however, is by no means to be despised. The P. S. A. are at home to the Dufferin Rifles and this game would seem to be good for the Rifles, in spite of the fact that the P. S. A. team has the advantage of grounds. The Holmedale Tigers and the Wanderers encounter is of the uncertain type and it will be a battle to the end, either team winning by a narrow margin. Perhaps the best game of the day will be seen at Paris where the Scots visit the Frenchmen. These teams put up a good struggle when they meet and this will be no exception and the advantage will be on the Scots. With the Scots playing strongly and the Parisians having the home advantage it will be a hard fast game, ending probably all even. The line up of the various teams are as follows: The following have been chosen to represent Tutela in their game against O. E. at Tutela Park on Saturday, kick off at 6 o'clock: Goal, A. Cassels; backs, T. Mason and F. Burns; requested to report at the Armories at 5 p. m. promptly.

Postponed Match.
The match arranged between the Wanderers and Tigers for Saturday has been postponed until Wednesday, July 1st at 3 p. m. A general meeting of the Wanderers Football Club will be held in the Bogden Club rooms on Tuesday next at 8 p. m. All officers and players are requested to attend.

Forecast:
Moderate variable winds, fair and comparatively cool, Saturday, winds mostly easterly, generally fair, not much change in temperature, followed by some showers in the south-western counties.

Strawberry Picnic
A very pleasant little strawberry picnic will be held at the residence of Mr.
Wood, Brighton Row, by the ladies of the 'Bound to Win' class of Wesley church, last night. The effort was quite a success and a tidy sum was realized for church funds.

Horses Fell
Two horses harnessed to a rig containing a piano, belonging to T. J.
Barton, slipped on the incline on Market street beside the Canal Bank and the instrument was almost deposited upon the street. Luckily, the driver saved the situation and apart from some bruises, the horses were not badly hurt.

Cavalry Manoeuvres
Major Gordon J. Smith, while attending the celebration in memory of the battle of Beaverdam last week,
had the pleasure to witness the cavalry manoeuvres of the second camp now in session at Niagara. The squadrons followed practically the same route as did the squadrons of the 25th Brant Dragons. The route around Thorold was rather dangerous this year on account of the light temporary bridges erected over the excavation for the big new Welland ship canal.

Fell From Wagon
A young boy, whose name cannot be learned, met with a nasty mishap yesterday afternoon while riding on a bicycle on Market street. Two boys were seen coming down Market street on wheels in front of an auto which was coming slowly up behind. One of them turned out to avoid the auto,
but turned too far, and his wheel
struck the running board of the auto, throwing him to the ground. The lad was picked up by pedestrians, and while his head was cut, he apparently had no bones broken, for he walked off unaided.

Dufferin's Won
The Clerks and the Duffs met in an interesting game of softball at the Recreation Park last night, which resulted in a called game at the end of the sixth innings, when the score stood at 10 to 3 in favour of the soldiers. They had hit Woolams freely and Campbell had replaced him to some advantage, but still hits came freely, when a political meeting put a stop to the progress of the encounter. Hetherington pitched pretty good balls for the Duffs and was hit for six times, tree runs being made. Owing to the unfinished condition of the game it will be replayed at a future date.

THE PROBOS
TORONTO, June 26.-A moderate

Lakes, while a rather pronounced depression is situated in Dakota. Rain has fallen heavily in the southern portion of Saskatchewan and in Alberta, and some showers have occurred in the Maritime Provinces.

Choir Picnic
The choir of the Park Baptist church are holding their annual picnic to Burford to-morrow, leaving the city at 10 o'clock. The members anticipate a very happy time.

A Big Egg
Mr. Harry Waldron, 11 North Park street, was last evening proudly exhibiting a hen's egg which weighed a full six ounces. It was the product of a Rhode Island Red, and measured 9 1/2 by 7 3/4 inches. It certainly is a whopper.

To Hold Garden Party
A sub-committee of the Old Home Week executive will meet with the Daughters of the Empire on Tuesday afternoon next to make arrangements for the holding of a flower garden party at Agricultural Park on Monday evening of old home week.

Cherry Season Opened.
The cherry season has opened and this morning several fruit growers called on local merchants and placed orders for cherries. They report a fairly good supply of this kind of fruit. Strawberries didn't turn out very well and are selling to-day in the stores for 10c a box.

Two New Schools at Ohsweken
The Six Nations Council at Ohsweken have prepared plans and are starting on the erection of two new schools to take the place of the old one at No. 2 and No. 171 school sections. The old buildings were in bad shape and the new ones will be of modern frame construction.

Successful Garden Party
The recent social evening was spent by the members of the Bound to Win Bible class of Wesley church last evening when they held a very successful garden party. There was a good attendance and light refreshments were served. A good sum was realized for the treasury of the class.

Rig Upset.
While crossing the intersecting rails at the corner of Market and Colborne streets, a pony owned and driven by Charles Carson, came down heavily.
After some assistance from bystanders, the rig was dched and the pony appeared to be little the worse of his fall.

The Proper Way
The Board of Works Department would request the citizens not to dump the grass cut from off lawns directly into the gutters, as this often plugs up the drains and stops the free drainage of the streets. All that is necessary is to step a few feet further out on to the street and leave the grass to be picked up by the scavengers.

Many New Families.
The saying that the erection of new factories brings new families to the city who become good customers of local merchants has been proved true in the case of the Brantford Piano Case Co. Thirteen new families from the United States arrived in the city this week to take up their residence here.

Taken Suddenly Ill.
The many friends of Mr. Herbert S.
Sceruton will regret to learn of his quite serious illness. Last evening he was suddenly stricken while in conversation with some friends at the Borden club headquarters. Dr. Stingerson was hastily summoned and pronounced it acute indigestion. He was unconscious for an hour, but was finally resuscitated and taken to his home. He had a bad night and was this morning hurried to the Brantford General Hospital where he was operated on almost immediately for appendicitis. Friends will hope for his speedy recovery.

Wants Barn Removed.
Miss E. Gillen of 100 Wellington
St. has written the City Council, petitioning that the barn owned by S.
F. Passmore, next to 89 Charlotte St. be removed. The letter states that the barn is right on the dividing line between Mr. Passmore's property and her own and that the barn is so objectionable that she can't get the required amount of rent from the house to ever pay the taxes. Miss Gillen requests that a committee from the council visit the property.

To Hold Picnic.
Members of the Park Baptist Choir are preparing for their annual picnic, which will be held on Saturday to Burford. A fine ball game will be played, besides other games for the gender sex.

Fine Showing.
At a meeting of the directors of the Mapes-Johnson silver mine, controlled by Brantfordites the reports were found to be so good that it was decided to withhold any further shares from public subscription.

Strawberry Picnic
A very pleasant little strawberry picnic will be held at the residence of Mr.
Wood, Brighton Row, by the ladies
of the 'Bound to Win' class of Wesley church, last night. The effort was quite a success and a tidy sum was realized for church funds.

Horses Fell
Two horses harnessed to a rig containing a piano, belonging to T. J.
Barton, slipped on the incline on Market street beside the Canal Bank and
the instrument was almost deposited
upon the street. Luckily, the driver saved the situation and apart from some bruises, the horses were not badly hurt.

Cavalry Manoeuvres
Major Gordon J. Smith, while attending the celebration in memory of the battle of Beaverdam last week,
had the pleasure to witness the cavalry manoeuvres of the second camp
now in session at Niagara. The squadrons followed practically the same route as did the squadrons of the 25th Brant Dragons. The route
around Thorold was rather dangerous this year on account of the light
temporary bridges erected over the excavation for the big new Welland
ship canal.

Fell From Wagon
A young boy, whose name cannot
be learned, met with a nasty mishap
yesterday afternoon while riding on a bicycle on Market street. Two boys were seen coming down Market street
on wheels in front of an auto which was coming slowly up behind. One of them turned out to avoid the auto,
but turned too far, and his wheel
struck the running board of the auto, throwing him to the ground. The lad was picked up by pedestrians, and while his head was cut, he apparently had no bones broken, for he walked off
unaided.

Dufferin's Won
The Clerks and the Duffs met in an interesting game of softball at the Recreation Park last night, which resulted in a called game at the end of the sixth innings, when the score
stood at 10 to 3 in favour of the soldiers. They had hit Woolams freely and Campbell had replaced him to some advantage, but still hits came freely, when a political meeting put
a stop to the progress of the encounter. Hetherington pitched pretty good balls for the Duffs and was hit for six times, tree runs being made. Owing to the unfinished condition of the game it will be replayed at a future
date.

LONDON DEFEATS RED SOX ON FIRST VISIT THERE THIS SEASON

Heck Pitches a Strong Game, Allowing Sox But Two Hits—Tecumseh Slam Gero For Total of 24 Bases.

LONDON, June 26.—Bobby Heck proved that he could pitch good ball despite the fact that Jim McGuire, the Detroit Tiger scout, was sitting in the grand stand yesterday when he held the Brantford team under Ruben Deneau to two hits tucking away his ninth victory by the score of 6 to 1. But for two bases on balls and two infield outs Heck would have scored a shut out. Heck was unsteady, quite the unusual thing for him, as walking four men in a game is quite out of the ordinary. Deneau Gets Only Real Hit Deneau, erstwhile leader of the Tecumsehs, was greeted with a big hand when he walked to the plate in the first inning and retaliated by securing the only clean hit of the game off Heck. Nelson, who had singled on a ball which went through Heck to Linneborn, was caught trying to steal second just previously to Deneau's hit. The feature of the game was the terrific clouting of the Tecumsehs, who touched Gero for 14 hits, totaling 24 bases. The hitting honors went to Whiteraft and Snyder, who each secured triples and doubles, while

Lacrosse

To-morrow afternoon at 4:30 Mayor Spence will face the rubber at Agricultural Park and the lacrosse season will once again be in full swing. It is anticipated that the fans who love this game will all be there to witness the opener, and it is hoped the local boys capture their first game from the East Forest City aggregation who are coming to Brantford with all expectations of capturing this game. Manager Slattery feels confident that his team are as fast as London, as all weak positions have been materially strengthened and a good fast clean game is promised, provided the weather man behaves himself. The Toronto executive advises that Wingham have been withdrawn from this district and placed with Orangeville and other northern points, and which meets with the approval of the Brantford management.

TENNIS MATCH

The first tennis match of the season will be played at the Dufferin Courts to-morrow, Saturday, when a team of six players representing Brantford will play against a picked team from Hamilton. As the courts are in excellent condition, very fast games should result. The Brantford team will be picked from the following players: Messrs E. C. and H. V. Gould, T. P. Jones, McArthur, A. M. Dunstan (captain), M. Wilkes, F. Morris. The match starts at 3:45 p.m., and as a cordial invitation is extended to the public to witness the games, a large number of onlookers is expected.

TINKER EXPECTS TO WIN PENNANT

Joe Believes His Team is the Strongest in the Federal League. CHICAGO, Ill., June 26.—Manager Joe Tinker of the Chicago Federals is out with a prediction as to the outcome of the Federal league race, the first of the season. Of course Manager Joe expects his team to get away with the bunting, which is natural for any manager to do, but his opinion of the other teams in the league is interesting. "The opinion expressed early in the season that Chicago had the strongest team in the Federal league seems to have been justified by the performance of the Chi-feds during the past week," says Tinker. "After the hardest kind of a fight my team finally worked up to the leadership of the league. How long we will stay in that position is another matter, but I believe, and the members of my team feel confident that we have a team that will be hard to beat in the race for the Federal league pennant. "My whole team is rounding into form and at no time have we been discouraged. When things were breaking bad for us we just settled down and tried to overcome the hard luck. But with the Chi-feds pitchers all working in good shape it will take some fine team to heat us. "The Baltimore team will be back in the race again. Otto Knabe has a team that is hard to beat, when the team is in good shape, but lately several of the regulars have been out of the line-up and this has had a tendency to unsettle the play of the team. Knabe has been forced to place several recruits in the line-up and errors have resulted and in addition the team has lacked the hitting strength which is necessary even if the pitchers are working in the best form. "Another team which is in a fair way to make a lively bid for the pennant is Phillips' Indianapolis team. The placing of Carr at first base has given the initial air of confidence which was lacking before, and in addition Carr is hitting like a wild man. In a game against Baltimore last week, Kansas City got 20 hits for a total of 14 runs. Of these hits Grover Gilmore, a Chicago boy, got five hits out of five times up. "The spread between top and bottom in the Federal league race is not increasing; on the other hand the race is growing tighter all the time. A margin of only a little over 100 per cent separates top and bottom, or a difference of only about six games. Any kind of a winning streak would overcome this difference and send a team from the bottom of the ladder to the top. "The St. Louis team has been going badly of late, but has been greatly strengthened by the addition of other talent, which will bolster up the fielding and help the hitting. Mordecai Brown has a rattling good team and as soon as it gets back into its stride again will be back in the pennant fight in earnest. "Buffalo is right up in the race and Larry Schaffly knows how to get the best out of his players and never misses a chance to instill pep and confidence into his players. "Pittsburgh and Brooklyn have had recent reverses and are not in as strong positions in the race as they occupied a few days ago. But Rebel Oakes has a good team, as has Bill Bradley, and both teams will eb back in the fight again. "In all my years in major league baseball, however, I have never seen as tight and interesting a race as that now being fought by the Federal league, as with the season nearly two months gone the pennant is a long ways from being decided."

MORAN CONFIDENT HE WILL BRING THE BACON HOME WHEN HE MEETS "JACK"

By Wm. P. Simms.
PARIS, June 26.—If Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh, is not heavyweight champion of the world after he meets Jack Johnson here on Saturday night the aforesaid Frank will be much surprised. It's true, Moran thinks he'll win—really thinks so or I'm no judge. Moran was tapering off in his training today when I went out to see him at Burg-Sur-Plage. He looked fine, strong, active and with the clear eye and rosy skin of the well-trained fighter. After I looked him over I really thought myself that, perhaps, he can bring home the bacon—about $1,000,000 worth—when he meets the big black. And he sure thinks so.

Tom Kennedy, of New York; Willie Lewis, the old time scrapper from the East Side, and Jimmy Hatton, were on the job to give Moran his workout today. Lewis, quick, active, a real boxer, had mighty little on Moran when they sparred. Neither Kennedy nor Hatton showed anything like the white hope's strength. Moran was lightning fast on his feet. He boxed so well that Lewis rarely landed a glove on him, and he stood up to Kennedy and Hatton with stiff short-arm lefts that made them back away early in the rounds. This short-arm left to the body, Moran says, is the blow which will beat Johnson. He thinks that Johnson's dissipated life must have got to his stomach, and believes that if he can sink his big freckled fist once or twice into Johnson's midriff the negro will soon forget all his cleverness and be easy picking.

Has Plenty of Confidence.

"There are a lot of people who think Johnson can't be beaten," Moran said to me. "Well, they thought that of John L. Sullivan, didn't they? But Corbett turned the trick. They thought Jeffries was a cinch at Reno, didn't they? And you heard of what happened there. It's the same thing with Johnson now. No man can follow the primrose path (he said that—Moran's a college product), and he there as a fighter. Johnson has had his day. I am young, have lived clean, have all my energy and will use my head in the mill. I'll cut him down."

"Another thing, Johnson's champion. He'll have to lead to me. If he thinks I'm going to carry the fight to him and let him pick me to pieces with counters, he's got another guess coming. I'm going to fight my fight and not his fight. He may lead me for the first few rounds, but when the finish comes I'll be on top."

Moran certainly looks good. He has clearly trained hard and faithfully, as good a judge of what fighters should be as Willie Lewis is enthusiastic over his condition. Personally I would not care to predict what Moran will do with Johnson. Men who know him well say he is in-and-out. If he has one of his good turns on when he meets Johnson he may win, but my impression is that he will need every ounce of skill, strength and determination he possesses to trim the big black champion of them all.

Usual Reports Circulated.

Reports were in circulation here today that Johnson had been offered big money by a gambling syndicate to "lie down" to Moran and that the champion refused. It is mighty doubtful if any such offer was made. There is not enough betting on the mill to warrant the payment of such a sum as would tempt Johnson. Odds today were general at 1-1 that the black would win, but perhaps less money has never been wagered on a big fight than this one is calling out.

Some few short-end fanciers have placed money on Moran to win. They pin their faith on his ability to keep away from Johnson's upper-cutts for ten or twelve rounds. After that, they believe, Moran's cleaner living and better stamina will tell.

As Pat was strolling down a side street he saw some dogs in the window of a fancier's shop, and going in he said to the owner:

"What s the price of those puppies in the window?"

"Oh, they're $5 apiece," said the fancier.

"Gon on wild ye," said Pat, "sure I don't want a piece. I want a whole dog."

Canadian League Notes

(London Advertiser)

The Saints have lost three games in a row. Better start and buy those hats now, Clarence.

It would be just like St Thomas to drop all three to Erie, go to Peterboro, and lose three more, and come here Monday and win the whole series with the London club.

In the meantime the Petes are going along, proving our prediction that Curly Blount has one of the best clubs in the league.

After devoting a few pages telling how good a pitcher Bill Donohue was after his no-hit-no-run even-inning affair against the Saints on Saturday the Hamilton papers will now devote a few more columns explaining how London made fifteen safeties off him Tuesday.

Kelly Harris is rounding into one of the stars of the Canadian League in hitting and his fielding is great. He saved the game for Erie at St. Thomas Tuesday by getting Kustus' liner off his shoe tops and doubling Hadley at first base. It was pretty work.

The Canadian league race is an interesting one and it looks like another last day finish this year.

Walter Johnson Takes a Bride

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Walter Johnson, famous pitcher of the Washington American League baseball team, and Miss Hazel Lee Roberts, daughter of Representative E. E. Roberts of Nevada, were quietly married here last night at the home of the bride's parents. Only the members of the Roberts family witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Dr. Prettyman, chaplain of the Senate.

The pitcher and his bride will not have their honeymoon until after the end of the baseball season. Mr. Roberts and her mother saw Johnson pitch his way to victory against the world's champion Athletics yesterday afternoon.

The bride came to Washington three years ago when her father was elected to the sixty-second Congress. Johnson, though a veteran in the baseball world, is only 26 years old. His home is in Coffeyville, Kansas, and he owns a ranch nearby.

793-POUND NEGRO JUST SQUEEZES INTO TRAIN

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., June 26.—James Simerson, colored, of Beaumont, Texas, who spent yesterday here, was the biggest curiosity that Phillipsburg has ever seen. "Baby" Jim, as he is known, is probably the heaviest man alive. He tips the scales at 793 pounds, is 5 feet 9 inches tall and wears a 24 collar, measures 11 1/2 inches around the waist and is still growing heavier. He is 24 years old, one of six children and weighs more than all the rest of the family put together.

Simerson can walk only about a block without resting. There was no seat in the Lackawanna station that would accommodate him and he went outside and sat on an express truck. Among the several hundred persons who surrounded him was Dr. J. Mitchell Reese. The physician made an examination of the man and said that his heart was absolutely normal. Simerson left to visit friends at Morristown. He had to squeeze pretty hard to get sideways through the doorway of a Lackawanna coach.

The Infant Terrible

While playing with a pair of shears little Laura severed one of the prettiest of her golden curls.

"My dear child, why did you do that?" asked Aunt Mary, who came to call soon afterward.

"I wanted 'em so I could take 'em off and hang 'em on the bureau," explained the little girl, "just like mamma does."

Bravery Wins Him A Life Fortune

A boy's brave act of some years ago has just been rewarded by a grateful father.

It was sixteen years ago that Charles Brown now farming in Oklahoma, then a mere boy, worked for a lumber company in Tennessee. The owner of the mill had a daughter, a little child, fair and winsome, who was the pet of the lumber camp.

Two bandits, with a purpose of exacting a ransom, kidnapped the child and made away with her toward the Cumberland Mountains. The father immediately informed the Sheriff, who organized a posse and started in pursuit. Every horse and mule from the mill and from the country around was taken by the posse.

Charles Brown, because of his youth, was deemed unfit for service and left behind.

Brown knew what the posse had taken and was horrified later on learning from a pedestrian, who had just come from the mountains and had met the outlaws with their captives that the posse had taken the wrong trail. Moreover, neither horse nor mule was available, and by the time he knew that the posse was far away.

Courage of the Mountaineer.

In his make up the boy had the first elements of manhood, initiative; moreover, he was young and the courage of the mountaineer, was in his veins and he loved the child. Armed himself with two revolvers he set out on foot to overtake the bandits. All that night and the next day he lay on his back, until his feet were blistered. Without sustenance he was passing through an uninhabited country.

The falling of the second night and the consequential loss of the way forced the pursuer to pause to await the rising of the moon to pursue his mission. Suddenly, while lying under a tree, he placed his ear to the ground and heard sounds of horses' hoofs beating on the rocks. He listened breathlessly, and found that they were coming his way. Presently he heard voices. Brown knew the bandits; he recognized their voices. Evidently the bandits were back-tracking. Brown lay behind a tree.

Captured Bandits Single Handed.

As the bandits came opposite him he stepped out, a revolver in each hand, and commanded them to throw up their hands. Each bandit had a Winchester under his arm, but each knew Brown and feared the result of resistance.

Forcing his prisoners to leave their horses, Brown placed the girl between one horse and himself mounting the other drove the two outlaws a distance of him to the nearest railway station, a distance of twenty-two miles from which he telegraphed the Sheriff's office.

In about two hours a special train arrived bearing the Sheriff, who in charge of the prisoners and the bandits forced a substantial ransom on the young hero.

Charles Brown had nearly forgotten the act, when a few days ago he received notice from a firm of lawyers in Tennessee informing him that his old employer, who had grown to be a multi-millionaire, had recently died and had left him an allowance of $100 per week for life.

GRAFTON'S GREAT JUNE SUIT SALE

Has No Equal in Variety, Quality or Savings
This Sale is Going to Set a New High Water Mark for Value-Giving!

IT PROVIDES a money-saving opportunity that would command attention from all thoughtful men even in September. Yet here we are at the very threshold of the Summer season, and here are the finest and most desirable Summer Suits—the kind you want—at such low prices that no other store can approach the values. The reason of this wonderful chance, briefly told, is this: Because we buy so enormously of woolsens, in both this country and Europe, we invariably get first whack at any special underpriced offerings. We were, therefore, able to secure one of the finest lots of high-grade Summer fabrics that we've seen and were able to buy them so advantageously that we can offer the Suits we made of them at about one-third less than usual prices. There are fancy worsteds, chevots and tweeds, as well as blue and black serges, and they have been tailored in the unsurpassed Grafton styles, which means that they are as near perfection as anyone can make Suits.

McGRAW FAILS TO SEE HOW THE FEDERALS ARE GOING TO LAST

(By John J. McGraw, Manager of the New York Giants.)

All the western clubs have come cast, and they have not shown us much. Cincinnati has surprised me by sticking up near the top of the standing after Herzog ran into a Federal league raid in which he lost Matsans, a good outfielder, the best he had, and Davenport, a young pitcher, who had begun to show a good deal of stuff. The showing of the team can be attributed to Herzog's ability alone. He has moulded it into a machine.

Just a word about the Federal League. I have read that Ed He Collins and some other stars have been talked to by agents of this new organization. I would be sorry to see these players jump, for several reasons, but most of all because they will hurt themselves and cannot save the Fed's. I don't believe the new league will last. The financial losses its backers have sustained so far this season have amounted to several very sizable fortunes.

I would be particularly sorry to see Eddie Collins go, for I have always taken a particular interest in this boy even though he had a great deal to do with beating me out of two world's championships. After the world's series last fall, I made the statement under my own signature that Collins was the greatest ball player in the game. I added that Cobb might mean more at the gate, but that Collins would win more victories for a club—which is what every manager is seeking. He has everything that a great ball player needs.

Will Hardy Jump.

Stories have been printed from time to time that Collins applied to both Griffith and me for a job when he was playing with the Columbia college team in New York. These were not true. I did not know anything about Collins until after he had signed up with Mack. I think he is too smart to fall for the Federal league, and I have not believed the stories printed about his proposed flop. He has a good many years of baseball ahead of him yet, and I know he would not be happy in that other league, especially if they continue to play in most of their towns to five hundred or a thousand people a day. Crowds make a ball game, and players, and I feel sure that many stars of to-day would fall away off if appearing in battles attended by the handful that has been showing at the Fed's games. Other big league stars that jumped this year have not shown up to past form. Look at Tinker. Collins would not be himself.

To get back to my own league, Fred Clarke attributes the slump of his club to the falling down of the hitters. He says that it was the batting of the early season that won the games. Then came a complete failure of the hitters. I believe this slump was the result of the improved pitching on other teams, but Clarke does not think so.

My club will begin to hit again and then watch us pick up. We are not so many games behind you now, declared the Pittsburgh manager to me at the Polo grounds last week. "One thing about it is that my players never talked pennant even when we won fifteen out of the first seventeen games."

Contemplating a Trade.

I happen to know that Clarke is contemplating a trade with the Philadelphia club. It may be completed by the time this article is published, but he is aiming to strengthen his catching staff and add hitting power to his club. He figures that the Pirates have a chance to come through this year, but he knows he is not fortified behind the plate and fears that if Gibson is injured and out of the game, it will tear his team apart.

Should Clarke make this trade, it may change the whole complexion of the race, because the Pirates are dangerous. There is no getting away from that fact. And they are bound to hit harder than they are at present, since the batting strength is in the lineup. Clarke is also anxious to add some speed to the club, for he realizes that the slowness of his men on the bases is a great handicap to his team as a scoring machine.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh have frequently swung trades. The Phillies got Byrne and Camnitz last year for Dolan when it looked as if a trade might help the Phillies to nose out the Giants for the championship. Some speed and another catcher in that Pittsburgh club would make it very dangerous yet, because I don't look for Cincinnati to stand up through the season. The St. Louis Cardinals are also travelling, but there is not the strength in the team, either to give us a brisk pennant fight, Pittsburgh carries it, and so do the Cubs.

The Giants have had just a satisfactory week, but that's all. I am not boosting any salaries as a result of the showing on the past week, since my club should have taken advantage of some of the poor playing of the two months to be out in front now, so that I would not have to keep driving them all the time. The hitting on the team has been weak all season, but the speed of the men on the bases has saved us. The one bright spot in the week was the work of Dave Robertson, the youngster I put into right field.

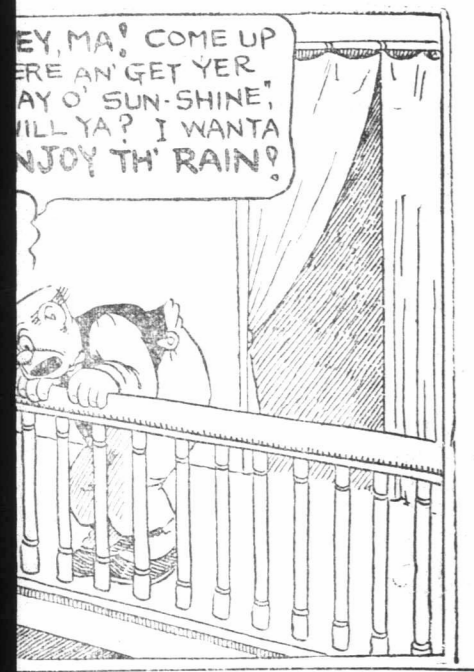

I have always liked this boy, and I believe he would have developed into one of the greatest left handed pitchers of the day if he had not broken his promise to me and played one game of football. But it was all in his college life, and I do not hold that against him. He is built about as big as Rube Waddell, but has a much better temperament. Good southpaws are so hard to find that his arm would not do for box work any more. However, I went to the Polo grounds early one morning last spring to the practice, after I began to realize that Robertson did not have a chance of coming back as a pitcher. He was taking batting practice and he caught a low one on the tip of his bat and boosted it into the center field bleachers. It was the longest drive I ever saw made on the Polo grounds.

As a rule, I do not attend morning practices, but I am glad I was on the job that day, because I picked out the boy as a natural batter right there, and decided to make use of his ability. One of the best men in the country for developing young ball players is Mike Finn, once the scout for my club. I turned Robertson over to him and told Mike to try him in the outfield. Robertson broke up a lot of fences and games down in that league. He is going to break up a lot in this one mark my word. He is a natural hitter and a free swinger, one of the rare finds of baseball in these days. There are not more than ten free swingers in the game right now. For a big man, he is fast and sure in the field. The way he stood the test of big league fire last week made me sure of him. The club has been lucky this year in developing two men who can take their regular places—Stock and Robertson.

I don't want fans to think I am criticizing when I say I do not believe Cincinnati and St. Louis will hold up. Both have surprised me by their showing on the road, for I looked to see the teams go to pieces as soon as they left home. What I mean is that neither one of these clubs is liable to make a bid for the championship. But either one of them is likely to finish in the first division however.

The Cubs have slumped back some on the week while the Phillies have profited by the visit of the western teams. Boston has also been gaining. I believe the Braves are coming, and it would not surprise me to see Stallings at the top of the second division when the dust has cleared. If he isn't he is liable to shoot three or four ball players, because he felt sure he was going to do better than he did last season before the race started.

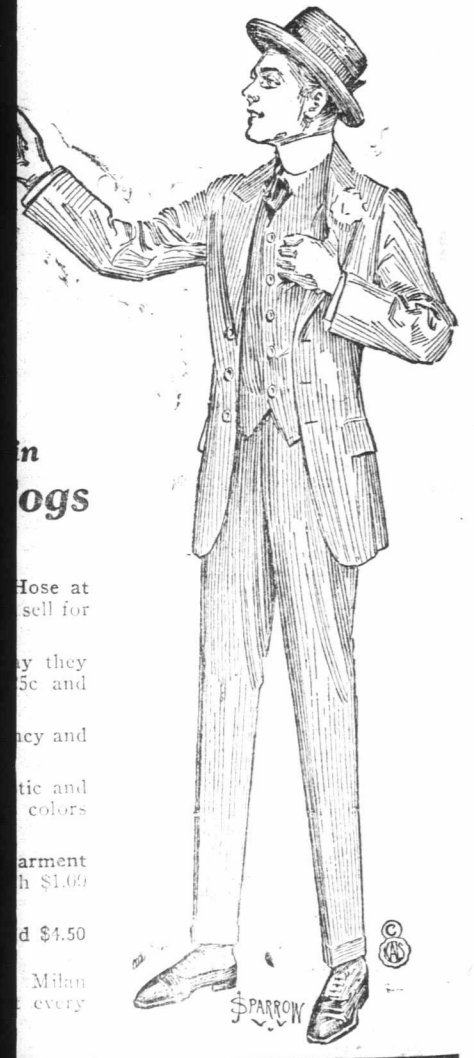

had a Winchester under his strap, but each leg Brown realized the result of resistance. Forcing his prisoners to leave the way horses, Brown placed the girl astride to await one horse and himself mounting the pursue his other horse the two outlaws ahead of him to the nearest railway station a distance of twenty-two miles, from which he telegraphed the Sheriff's office. In about two hours a special train arrived bearing the Sheriff, who took charge of the prisoners and the lumberjacks their former friend a substantial present behind a Charles Brown had nearly forgotten the act, when a few days ago he received notice from a firm of lawyers in Tennessee informing him that his old employer, who had grown to be a multi-millionaire, had recently died and had left him an allowance of $200 per week for life.

GRANDOLDDOPE

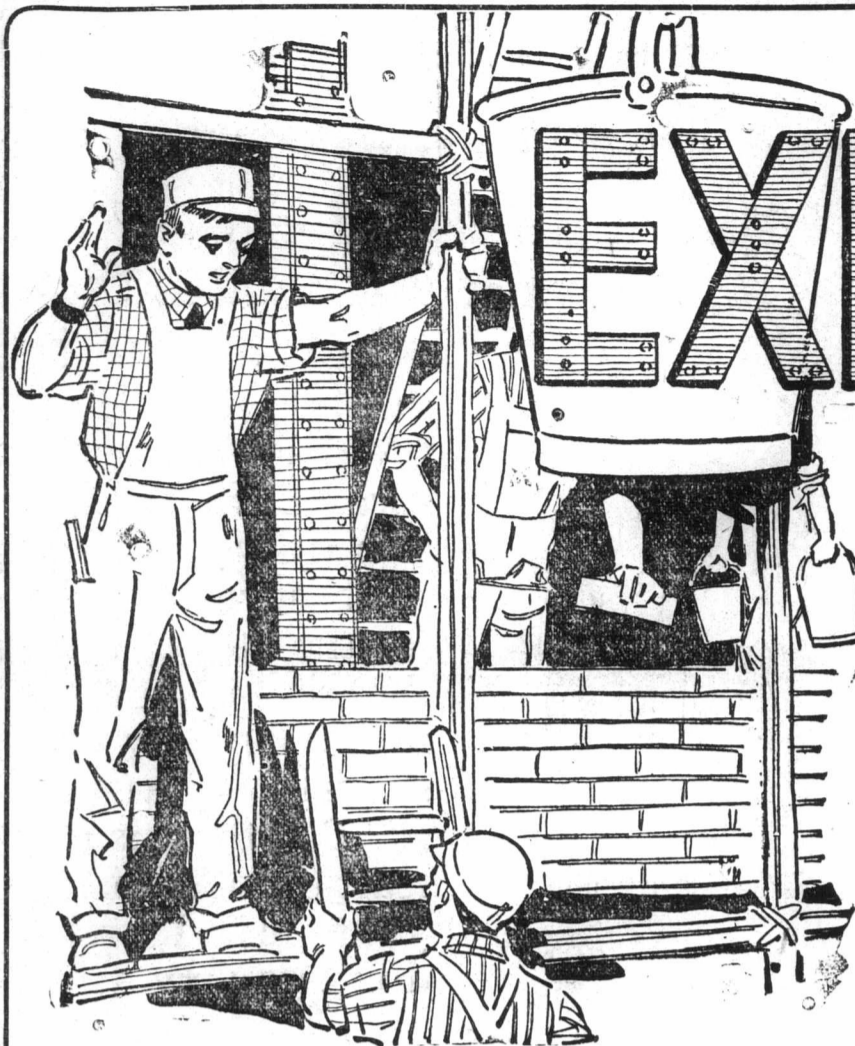

IS JOHNSON DUE
No wonder Jack Johnson is reading the signs with dismay. The year 1914 will go down in history as the year of the Under Dog, and unless the excited smoke upsets precedent he will soon join the mighty overthrow.
If the Reds, Browns, England and Yale, all within one brief interval can rise upon their hind legs and disperse ancient rivals, a Moran victory over Johnson would seem plausible enough. It is the open season for the Grandold Upset.
NO CHANCE? WELL—
Moran hasn't a look in, observe the experts. Quite so. And the Reds were to finish last and the Browns look worse than ever. Also our highly-aroused Uncle Samuel was going to murder J. Bull. And what Harvard was going to slip Yale was a sufficiency, if not a plenty.
"This program was all agreed upon. And every bit of it came true—turned upside down. Moran hasn't any more chance than the Reds, Browns, England and Yale had. Not a bit."
NO CHANCE THERE
"If Johnson is in his old time shape," one expert starts. Not a chance. If Moran loses it will be because he was a bush leaguer and not because Johnson was good. It has been some years since Johnson fought his last regular battle. He has started twice since and both times has looked like a joke in ebony. The first good man that meets him will drive him out of the ring. It is merely the minor detail of meeting a good man.

And there was a touch of the English stroke to the Yale crew. First thing J. Bull will be over here musing up the Athletics and blocking some of Brickley's drop kicks. Apparently he is a peevish old party when once aroused. But if the worm and the lion, and the bulldog will turn so will the eagle. He laughs best who laughs the longest.
Words Worth Having on a Pennant
World's Champions—1914
My heart leaps up when I behold The pennant floating high; Long years ago that flag began To wave for every Giant fan; It flutters now, just as of old, But still we sigh; To beat again the Mackian clan, And as in 1905 to see A regular Giant victory.
BY WAY OF CHEER
We understand that Mr Willie Ritchie is duly appreciative of all of the complex and tangled position in which these United States are now placed, sportively speaking, and that on this account Mr. Ritchie will go to it with even greater fervor when he takes on Freddie Walsh. It is just as well. Our highbrow entries have not been of much assistance and we could use another victory just about now without great effort.

We trust that Mr. Ritchie is capable of restoring a portion of our prestige, but we have our doubts. This English stroke is beginning to get on our nerves, patriotically speaking. Revenge is one thing and annihilation is another.
Until the Washington ball club turned its attention from winning ball games to Fed salaries it had a first class chance to win the flag. But too many on the club are entirely too busy inhaling the promised fragrance of ready money to pay much attention to such a small detail as mere baseball.

Great Bargains in House Furnishings | OGILVIE, LOCHEAD & CO. | Special Bargains in Every Dept.

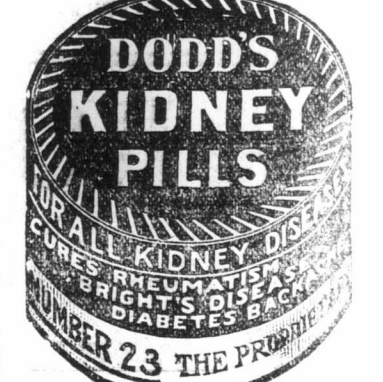

From a Woman's Standpoint

By Helen Ball. Were you women at the Conservative meeting in Massey Hall on Tuesday night in Toronto? How I wish that every woman who takes even the remotest interest in politics and in our Province in temperance and all those questions, could have been there. Always I have been glad and proud to be a Conservative, but after that night I am more proud than ever and realize as never before just how staunch, honest and splendid has been the Whitney government. I tell you it thrilled you to witness the ovation which Sir James Whitney received. Men and women, thousands of them, rose to their feet, clasped, hurrahed and waved their handkerchiefs. Over and over a great volume of cheers rose. It seemed as though they could not stop. Their feelings of loyalty to Sir James standing there restored to health and ready for battle, had to find expression, and the great building echoed with the applause. And it was not empty applause, either, for if ever there was a hard working Premier, staunch, honest and faithful, it is Sir James. Lady Whitney was in one of the boxes, and if you were a woman, you realized what it meant to her, that her husband standing there, silent and dignified, should get such a wonderful reception. But, about the meeting? It was the most plain, straight-forward thing you ever heard. There was no "bluster"—just a statement of facts, and it was the dignity and the truth of these facts which positively thrilled you. There was no ring of truth in every word uttered. Often I think we women do not understand quite enough about politics and about the governing of the country. We have a vague idea of things on the surface, and know nothing of what is back of it all. For instance take the Liberal slogan of "abolish the bar" which strikes at you in huge printed words wherever you go. Now, naturally, women are as a whole down on the bar and the liquor traffic, because in the long run, it is the women who suffer. Consequently when many women have seen this "abolish the bar" they have been carried away by it. They think it splendidly heroic battle cry, and without further question prepare to fall in and add their treble to the shout. But they don't look behind the sign. If those women attended the Conservative meeting they know now just what the facts are. They know that abolishing the bar is not getting at the root of the trouble, not even abolishing that part which really makes the happiness. For after all it is not the drink over the bar that is the worst. It is being able to go to the shops and buy bottles of liquor. Even the home, then, is made a horror to those women whose husbands indulge too freely, for the stuff is brought right into the home. Sir James last night read a letter received from a woman here in town, one who had suffered through her husband, and who knew, bearing on this very thing. "What is the good," she said, "of abolishing the bar when the men can still have the bottle in the pocket, which is infinitely worse?" Now, listen to this! Under the "local option" plan, which the Whitney Government has used in the ten years of their administration, not only the bar, but THE SHOP, AS WELL, is abolished in the locality where local option is introduced—and remember, the will of the people. And in that ten years 1,200 liquor licenses have been discontinued. Does that look as though the temperance cause was being neglected or side-tracked by the Conservative government? You may read all this in the other columns of the paper, but it has seemed to me that a woman who sees things as other women do, might be able better to put it in words which mean more to other women. Being women, of course, we want to get rid of the liquor horrors. But if we stop to think we realize that you have got to get at the root of a thing to kill it. And that is what has been going on for the past ten years, though there has not been an everlasting shout about it. Now that is just ONE of the points touched on. But if we women eventually, when things work themselves out, are to have a hand in the government of the country, we have got to learn to look below the surface and find out the real facts as they are. In modern days—and perhaps in the interests of every person in the Province in the hands of a Conservative, but as a woman. PATENT LEATHER PUMPS. We have a Ladies' fine patent leather pump, with or without buckles, which we will sell Saturday for $1.00. Seeing is believing. Shoe Co., 122 Colborne street.

INSURING AGAINST HARD TIMES

Mr. Burns's Bill to Better Working of Unemployment Stem.

LONDON, June 24.—There was only a small attendance of members, on the reassembly of the House of Commons. Mr. John Burns, president of the Board of Trade, moving the second reading of the bill to amend the Unemployment section of the Insurance Act, said that practically it meant no additional charge on the public funds.

Its main purpose was to remove administrative difficulties and to diminish the working cost and clerical labor, and remove some of the delays that were inseparable from the administration of a new act like this in the first year or two. It embodied the main features and agreements arrived at in conferences between the Board of Trade, employers and workmen's representatives.

On May 22 last there was a balance to the credit of the Unemployment Fund connected with the original act of £3,023,000 and the average weekly amount now being transferred to the National Debt Commissioners was £30,000, which he hoped would continue to be the case for a year at least. On May 15 last there were 2,286,000 workmen insured for the unemployment and 1,481,000 claims had been paid out in benefits, £2,700,000 to individual workmen, and £1,300,000 to associations for unemployment benefit for their members.

Under the original act an employer who had a workman continuously in his service for twelve months, during which period he had not less than forty-five contributions, might recover one-third of his own contributions in the form of refund. Under this new Bill, where an employer had made forty-five weeks' contributions, he would receive his refund in respect of the same workman, whether the workman's period was broken or not.

More Benefit for the Poorest.

The other chief feature of the bill was Clause 9, dealing with the grant in aid of voluntary insurance for unemployment. That clause increased the average grant made to associations by £33,000 a year. The limit of 12s. was replaced by a limit of 17s. The clause would benefit the lower-paid classes of labor and reduce the burden of administrative expense. Clause to enable the secretary of a society to carry on any subsidiary employment, and the small payment he received for that secretarship, as distinct from his economic, or competitive employment, would not disqualify him from receiving his full unemployment benefit. The bill enabled him to receive up to 15s. a week instead of 7s.

The effect of the Bill might be to throw on the unemployment fund an increased annual charge of about £50,000, but they were advised by the actuaries that the fund could well sustain that increase.

He had been surprised at the extraordinary way in which all workmen's associations, trade unions, and employers' associations had been impressed by the social value and the industrial advantages of the Act. They had received really no serious complaints as to its working, and brought forward this amending Bill only to correct what was inevitable with a new and great scheme of this nature. Broadly and generally speaking, he had yet to find a defect in the Act. (Some Opposition laughter.)

Example of Ulster.

Mr. J. R. Clynnes (Lab. N.E. Manchester) said the Labour party contended that in these times of trade prosperity greater provision should be made to meet the distress which would arise in times of trade depression. They would never again see the masses of the poor suffer patiently and silently as they had done in the past.

He had recently learned from their "superiors" that when any class of people felt seriously and deeply they were entitled to take any measures, legal or otherwise, to secure what they believed to be their

due. The doctrine, preached by "the superior classes," was likely to be put into application by the poor, when they reached a state of distress or destitution.

Mr. J. M. Robertson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, referred to the old grievances of men who were thrown out of employment by reason of a trade dispute in which they were not directly concerned. That question had been carefully considered by the Board of Trade, but they had been unable to find a solution of the difficulty which would not lend itself to abuse and defeat the object of the Act.

Sir Arthur Markham (L. Mansfield) thought some effort should be made to devise a scheme which would enable men locked out as a result of a strike to receive some benefit from the State. Any business man would be able to produce a workable scheme, and the Government was incapable of finding one; it was his duty to clear out and let someone else have a try.

The Bill was read a second time without a division.

A second reading was given to the bill by the Under Secretary for the better supervision of dairies and for the better supervision of the functions of the present battleship thus:

- 1. To attack ships that come to bombard our ports.
- 2. To attack ships that come to blockade us.
- 3. To attack ships conveying a landing party.
- 4. To attack the enemy's fleet.
- 5. To attack ships interfering with our commerce.

- 1. To bombard an enemy's ports.
- 2. To blockade an enemy.
- 3. To convey a landing party.
- 4. To attack the enemy's fleets.
- 5. To attack the enemy's commerce.

The submarine renders 1, 2 and 3 impossible, as no man of war will dare to come within sight of a coast that is adequately protected by submarines.

The fourth function of a battleship is to attack an enemy's fleet; there will be no fleet to attack, as it will not be safe for a fleet to put to sea. This has been demonstrated in all recent manoeuvres, both at home and abroad, where submarines have been employed.

"Consequently building any more in 1914 will be a misuse of money subscribed by the citizens for the defence of the Empire."

"It has been suggested to me that submarines and aeroplanes could not stop egress from the Mediterranean that a fleet would steam through at night."

"With aeroplanes that would report the approach of a fleet, and thirty or forty invisible submarines in the narrow Straits of Gibraltar, trying to pass through them at night would be a very risky operation."

"Submarines and aeroplanes have entirely revolutionized naval warfare, no fleet can hide itself from the aeroplane eye, and the submarine can deliver a deadly attack even in broad daylight."

The Navy to Come
"The Navy will be entirely changed; naval officers will no longer live on the sea, but either above or under it, and the strain on their systems and nerves will be so great that a very lengthy period of service will not be advisable; it will be a navy of youth, for we shall require nothing but boldness and daring."

"If an enemy is sighted a group of submarines will be slipped. They give no quarter; they return home without even knowing the number of human beings they have sent to the bottom."

"Will any battleship expose herself to such a dead certainty of destruction?"
"Not only is the open sea safe; a battleship is not immune from attack even in a closed harbor, for the so-called protecting boom at the entrance can easily be blown up."

"With a flotilla of submarines commanded by dashing young officers, of whom we have plenty, I would undertake to get through any boom into any harbor and sink or materially damage all the ships in that harbor."

CHAPTER XXVII.
How Tarzan Came Again to Opar.

HOW long Jane Porter lay in the darkness of the vault beneath the temple in the ancient city of Opar she did not know. For a time she was delirious with fever, but after this passed she commenced slowly to regain her strength. Every day the woman who brought her food beckoned to her to arise, but for many days the girl could only shake her head to indicate that she was too weak.

But eventually she was able to gain her feet and then to stagger a few steps by supporting herself with one hand upon the wall. Her captors now watched her with increasing interest. The day was approaching, and the victim was gaining in strength.

Presently the day came when she could walk, and a young woman whom Jane Porter had not seen before came with several others to her dungeon. Here some sort of ceremony was performed. That it was of a religious nature the girl was sure, and so she took new heart and rejoiced that she had fallen among people who were not among the servants of God? It might be, of course, that their interpretation of the supreme being differed from her own, but that they owned a god was sufficient evidence to her that they were kind and good.

Sir Percy Scott Declares Big Fleets Are Doomed—Submarine Rules

World wide attention will be commanded by a letter which Admiral Sir Percy Scott has written to the Times demonstrating that the powers are wasting time and money by building great warships because war between fleets will soon be impossible and by the submarine, airship, and aeroplane the Dreadnought is already doomed. Sir Percy defines the functions of the present battleship thus:

- 1. To attack ships that come to bombard our ports.

- 3. To attack ships conveying a landing party.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

"And would you believe it, Miss Strong," continued Tennington. "I had the very device of a job to convince the old fellow that there was not only no rural free delivery, but no town and that he was not even on the same continent as Washington nor in the same hemisphere.

"When he did realize he commenced to worry about his daughter. I think it is the first time that he really has appreciated our position here or the fact that Miss Porter may not have been rescued."

"I hate to think about it," said the girl, "and yet I can think of nothing else than the absent members of our party."

"Let us hope for the best," replied Tennington. "You yourself have set us such a splendid example of bravery, for in a way your loss has been the greatest."

"Yes," she replied. "I could have loved Jane Porter no more had she been my own sister."

Tennington did not show the surprise he felt. This was not at all what he meant. He had been much with this fair daughter of Maryland since the wreck of the Lady Alice, and he had recently come to him that he had grown much more fond of her than would prove good for the peace of his mind, for he recalled almost constantly the confidence which M. Thurau had imparted to him that he and Miss Strong were engaged. He wondered if, after all, Thurau had been quite accurate in his statement. He had never seen the slightest indication on the girl's part of more than ordinary friendship.

"And then in M. Thurau's loss, if they are lost, you would suffer a severe bereavement," he ventured.

She looked up at him quickly. "M. Thurau had become a very dear friend," she said. "I liked him very much, though I have known him but a short time."

"Then you were not engaged to marry him?" he burst out.

"Heavens, no," she cried. "I did not care for him at all in that way."

There was something that Lord Tennington wanted to say to Hazel Strong. He wanted very badly to say it, and to say it at once, but somehow the words stuck in his throat. He started lamely a couple of times, cleared his throat, became red in the face and finally ended by remarking that he hoped the rains would be washed before the rainy season commenced.

But, though he did not know it, he had conveyed to the girl the very message he intended, and it left her happy—happier than she had ever before been in all her life.

Just then further conversation was interrupted by the sight of a strange and terrible looking figure which emerged from the jungle just south of the camp. Tennington and the girl saw it at the same time. The Englishman reached for his revolver, but when the half naked, bearded creature called his name aloud and came running toward them he dropped his hand and advanced to meet it.

None would have recognized in the filthy, emaciated creature, covered by a single garment of small skins, the immaculate M. Thurau, who had last seen upon the deck of the Lady Alice.

Before the other members of the little community were apprised of his presence Tennington and Miss Strong questioned him regarding the other occupants of the missing boat.

"The three sailors died before we made land. Miss Porter was carried off into the jungle by some wild animal while I was lying delirious with fever. Clayton died of the same fever but a few days since. And to think that all this time we have been separated by but a few miles—scarcely a day's march! It is terrible!"

NO DISSOLUTION TILL THEIR TASK IS DONE, SAYS CHANCELLOR

Mr. Lloyd George, in replying to an address presented to him by the Bristol Radical Operative Association at Cricketh, on Tuesday, declared that there would be no dissolution until the Parliament Act measures had passed into law.

The Chancellor was accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Olwen Lloyd George and the ceremony took place in the open air in Castle square. Here a platform was improvised out of a couple of lorries gaily decorated with flowers and bunting, and on the rails of which laurel wreaths were suspended. About a thousand members of the Bristol Association who were spending their annual day's outing on the shores of Cardigan Bay were among Mr. Lloyd George's listeners. He remarked at the outset that the visitors came from a city represented by two of his colleagues. One of them (Mr. Hobhouse) rendered to him very able and loyal assistance with the 1909 Budget, and in the other (Mr. Birrell) the Cabinet possessed one of the most brilliant of its members, and one of the most distinguished men who had ever sat in this or any other Cabinet. He was on the eve of bringing a great task to fruition—that of carrying through the measure of self-government, which Ireland had waited so many generations for.

As for the Liberal party as a whole they were now approaching the final stages in the great struggle to make the democracy predominant in the government of the country. The Parliament Act was now maturing, and they were going not as a Government to give up until they had reaped the harvest which had been sown at the command of the people who sent them there. As to the demands that this Parliament should be broken up, the Government would do nothing of the kind (cheers) until all the measures the people had sent them there to carry were on the statute book. The Parliament Act was planted in British soil about three years ago, and they were not going to dissolve Parliament until the fruit which had been maturing and ripening on the tree had been gathered in.

New Second Chamber

All sections of the progressive party were equally interested in establishing firmly the Parliament Act as a living statute of the realm—not merely the Liberal party, but the Labor party as well. Think of what would happen if it were to break down. He did not care what Parliament was reconstituted five years hence, if the Parliament Act were swept away through any mishap, misunderstanding, misfortune, or mismanagement, and if there was a Labor Parliament five years hence, it would be confronted with a powerful plutocratic Second Chamber more firmly entrenched than ever in the path of progress and of ameliorating legislation, armed with the most powerful weapon, and the might of Parliament would be broken in trying to get out of the way of this tremendous obstacle.

There was a demand that the Government should break up Parliament and run away from the trust the people gave them. What wretched cowards they would be if they did that. Who would ever trust the Liberal leader again if they did it? The Prime Minister was not made of that kind of stuff.

Why did the Opposition want Parliament to be dissolved? (A voice: "Because of the Plural Voting Bill.") Ah! he thought they would discover that. Their opponents said, "You have not got the confidence of the country, the bye-elections are against you."

"Now," said the Chancellor, "let us face the issue. Have you ever seen Government in your generation that did not lose by-elections? You can not keep up the fervor of a General Election for five years. The result is the Government drop constituencies here and there during their lifetime; but what Government has ever committed the folly of dissolving Parliament for that reason, unless there are indications of an overwhelming rising of popular opinion against the measures they are promoting. Where is that indication now? (Voice: "None.")

He remembered, he proceeded that during the last three years of the Tory Parliament of 1906 they could hardly win an election; but still they clung like limpets to the Treasury Bench. (Laughter.)

The People's Resolve

It was not their avowed, but their real reason they claimed that they had the confidence of the nobility of the land. (Laughter.) "It is true," they said, "the common people were against us; but we have all the dukes, carls, marquises, viscounts and barons. And as for you, how many dukes have you got?" (Laughter.)

That was a sort of assumption that Liberalism had not the same claim to equal treatment as Toryism. That Toryism was a cut above it. (Laughter.) But the people meant to govern this land, and the other side must get accustomed to it. (Loud cheers.)

The day of democracy had dawned, and the people meant to govern. That was what the Parliament Act meant, and the Government meant to stand by it for that reason. It might not be a perfect Act, but it contained the germ of the principle that the people had the right to formulate and choose the laws by which they were going to be governed.

To that principle they meant to adhere. The Parliament Act would be improved, and he hoped to see a better Second Chamber established than the present one, which was an effete institution and ought to be swept away.

The Government meant to carry through their Bills, because they were in the interest of the whole community and would promote good will and good feeling, in spite of the little temporary trouble in the North-East of Ireland, which he had no doubt at all would soon settle down. Secondly, they were returned to Parliament to carry the Bills, and thirdly, Liberalism had got to demonstrate to the people that once it committed itself to a policy and programme, it meant to carry through every item on it. That was of primary importance, and they would do it.

"There are," went on the right hon. gentleman, "difficulties and obstacles. The great rock against us is the dissension in our own ranks, and unless we heal that we shall come to grief. If we do not heal it, having already suffered a few hard knocks from it, well, then, we are not worthy to have in charge such grave interests as are committed to the Liberal and Labour party."

Look at the last two years. There are nine seats which have been lost through divisions. Does that mean public opinion is against the Government? No. On the contrary, if you take the whole of the by-elections for the last two years you will find that the majority in favour of the Bills we are pressing through Parliament has increased in comparison with the last election, and increased considerably. It is not that the people are getting tired of the legislation, it is purely that there is a misunderstanding which has got to be repaired and set right.

"Since I have been down here I have received letters, some from working men in Ipswich, who are not associated with any particular organization, and some from men who took a leading part in Liberal work during the election, and they both said quite independently of each other that the seat was lost entirely owing to the ill-feeling created through the struggle in N. E. Derbyshire."

"It is well that we would know that it had nothing to do with Home Rule, Welsh Disestablishment, or the Insurance Act. It was due entirely to that unfortunate quarrel which arose over these seats."

Impatient Electors.

"Now, surely, we ought to be able to put our heads together and make a more sensible adjustment of things than that. (Cheers and a Voice: "You are the man to do it.") The whole cause of progress is suffering."

It was only necessary to look at the voting to see that if there was any movement in the Liberal party it was not a movement back; it was a movement forward.

"It is not reaction," he proceeded, with emphasis; "it is impatience to see carried Bills, which have been discussed by the country for a generation and thrown back session after session. It is impatience with the Parliamentary machine, which seems inadequate to deal with the grievances which the people are enduring. People want to go forward." (Great cheering.)

Take, for instance, the Insurance Act, out of which the country had made a great deal at elections. In so far as that was an electoral disadvantage to the Liberals, what was such disadvantage due to? Was it due to the drastic and revolutionary provisions of the measure, if there were any? No; it was due to the Conservative and moderate part of the Bill, the contributory clauses. Conservatism, he declared, was making no progress amongst the people; on the whole it was going back. The message of the by-elections to Liberals was not to go back, not to stand still, but to press on—(great cheering)—and they meant to take the lesson. They wanted to get rid of Bills which had been hampering Parliament for a generation, because they had great things to do in the way of improving the wages, the housing, and the health of the people.

Land Reform

It was said by some that the labourer took no heed of the land program. Those who said that did not know what was going on in the villages, where there was an awakening such as there had not been since 885, or even the days of the Corn Laws. Labourers were crowding to meetings, and farmers were attending them because they wanted independence and freedom as much as the labourer did, whilst the British aristocracy and their friends were growing jubilantly over mutinies in the Army—(laughter)—rebellions in Ulster, and by-elections in England. The very dunghill on which these people were perched was being undermined by the flood, and they wanted an election before the waters gathered sufficient force to sweep them away.

"They won't get it," he exclaimed in conclusion. "Our policy," he added, "is forward all along the whole line; forward to a better, greater life for the millions who live and labour in the gloomy and chilly shadows of the world."

In the course of making a vote of thanks a speaker from Bristol said that the people of that city would like to see him in their city. Replying, Mr. Lloyd George said he would probably pay Bristol a visit after the Welsh Disestablishment Bill had been passed.

Taking Census of India's Population

The task of taking a census of India must be stupendous considering that the population of that vast country numbers over 300,000,000 persons, scattered over an area of 1,803,657 square miles. A staff of two million persons was employed for the purpose, and the census was taken in one night in March, at a cost of only $875,000! The difficulties were especially great owing to the long lines of railway, the big rivers on which boats travel sometimes for days without coming to the bang, the forests to which woodcutters resort, often for weeks at a time, and the numerous sacred places, which, on occasions, attract many thousands of pilgrims. People had to be enumerated wherever they were caught. In the case of railways, for instance, all persons travelling by rail who took tickets after 7 p. m. on the night of the census were enumerated either on the platform or in the trains. The latter were all stopped at 6 a. m. on the following morning, in order to include any travellers who up till then had escaped notice.

In spite of this, and owing to the vast work done preliminarily, the results for the whole of India were received complete nine days later, and were issued in print the next day. This rapidity, as the official report mentions with justifiable pride, "is not approached even in the smallest European state."

The summary tables show that the total population of India (including the native states) on the night the census was taken was 315,156,396 (as against 294,361,056 ten years previously), of whom 217,586,892 were Hindus, 66,647,299 were Moslems, 10,721,453 were Buddhists, and 3,876,203 were Christians. The literates numbered only 18,539,578 persons, and agriculture claimed the labor of 22,695,909 persons, as against 35,323,041 persons engaged in industry. Canadian census officials have apparently some lessons to learn from India.
