THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JAN. 15, 1904.

RESTRICTING THE FRANCHISE.

This province is pretty well supplied with senseless legislation, but it is devoutly hoped that we have nothing more groundless or pernicious on our statute books than the provision which disfranchises electors in incorporated towns, who have not paid up their taxes for the previous year ten days before nominations for a municipal election.

It is generally considered these days by students of civics that the great desideratum in politics is to increase and encourage the use of the franchise on the part of citizens. Thus we hear pleas for "universal manhood suffrage" and "compulsory voting," propositions which are evidently gaining in favor from year to year. A law, therefore, which treats the franchise as a sort of bonus to be given to those who will be good and pay up, instead of a sort of sacred trust, upon the faithful discharge of which the well-being of the community depends, is legislation very much out of harmony with the spirit of the times. One feature of the provision is that it is adapted conspicuously to increase the very evil which presumably it was drafted to correct. One great reason why taxes are not more promptly paid, is that the tax payer feels them heavier than he can meet. This, then, is what the Legislature says, in effect, to the poor tax payer: "Your taxes are so heavy that it is impossible for you to pay them promptly; we, then, will take from you your franchise, by the exercise of which you might bring the taxation down to the compass of what you can afford, and shut you off from having any voice in deciding how great your burden of taxation shall be."

The great corrective to landiness in the payment of taxes, is to give the tax-payer an interest in the management of the affairs of the community, and a confidence that the taxes have been wisely and mercifully imposed. Convince the rate-payer that he has a proprietary interest in his community, and that the public funds are being judiciously expended in line with his own interests, and his tax ceases to be a burden, disfranchise him, and he loses his interest in public matters, and becomes skeptical of the necessity of such heavy tributes.

The restriction which this piece of legislation places upon the franchise, is exactly what is adapted to conduce to corruption and "clique rule" in municipal affairs. As has been the case in Wolfville in the past, it frequently brings about the ambitious candidate for civic honors becomes generous enough to pay up the delinquent's liabilities used by Physicists.

linguent taxes of the uncertain voter within the required time, and the uncertain voter finds that to vote for his benefactor is a very easy way of acquiring himself with the Town Clerk. Then, too, the poll tax-payer whose tax is very light and easily paid, gains an altogether disproportionate influence by reason of the disfranchisement of his neighbors upon whom the burden of the tax really falls.

These objections, strong though they be, might be overlooked were there any real necessity for the provision in question. But what need is there for this extraordinary method of compelling the citizens of towns to pay their taxes? The County Council has no such provision to aid in the collection of taxes, and yet the county taxes are more promptly paid than those of the towns.

Every town is provided with a paid officer whose duty it is to collect the own rates. He is armed with the most effective legal remedies to make his task easy. Our direct legislation dealing with the collection of taxes are very much more exhaustive in the provisions they contain than the law providing for the collection of private debts. What, then, is the necessity for this added measure. Not only is it altogether unneeded, but it is adapted in many instances to be a positive deterrent to the prompt collection of rates. The elector who finds a number of candidates in the field for election, towards all of whom he is friendly disposed, is frequently averse to exercising his franchise. He does not wish to refuse either of the candidates his support, and so he shields himself by leaving his taxes unpaid, and the town is obliged to wait for what otherwise would have been promptly collected. After having suffered disfranchisement on account of unpaid rates, the ratepayer, in nine cases out of ten, is less inclined than before to square his account. By the sacrifice of his right to vote he feels that in a measure he has paid the debt, or else he is in a temper to make the collection of it just as difficult as possible for the authorities. The Clerk is inclined to depend too much upon the exercise of this pressure to aid him in making collections and neglects the wiser, more direct, and more sensible remedies which the law gives him. Thus it happens that while town ratepayers are, as a class, much better supplied with ready money than the county ratepayers, the towns throughout our province have much greater difficulty in making collections of taxes than the counties.

Henry Levy, London, cables his agent, T. L. Harvey, that he sold 3 S. Evangeline's apples as follows: Ben Davis, 104, to 143; Ribbons, 254, to 225; Bullwinks, 151, to 184; Greenings, 164, to 181; Kings, 181, to 208; Russets, 188, to 208; Sundries, 143, to 164. Strong demand.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Ma ERROR.—Permit me to reply to the letter of the Sewerage Committee.

I do not know by what right the members of the Sewerage Committee in a public body, to be distinctly understood that I did not, as the Committee says I did, seek to make a number of wrong impressions upon the minds of the rate-payers. I simply set forth certain facts as I understood them after I had made as careful an investigation as I could, and from one set of these facts I drew a general conclusion stated in a hypothetical form. I did not say that the members of the town Council are unscrupulous. I said in effect, and I repeat it, that the ease with which legislation is obtained shows "how completely we may be at the mercy of unscrupulous councillors who may" &c.

The Town Council is a public body and its actions certainly may be criticized by those whose business it is supposed to perform. That my statements, perhaps they can hardly be called criticisms, were not unfair will, I think, appear from what follows. If indeed their fairness was not sufficiently manifest before.

In regard to the explanation which the Sewerage Committee gives for its deviation from the instructions under which the Council was authorized to act, let me say that in my judgment, and of course I can speak only for myself, the explanation is altogether insufficient to justify the course pursued by the Sewerage Committee. The reasons which the Committee urges might have furnished a proper basis for making an appeal to the people for further instructions, but they do not constitute adequate grounds for breaking faith with the people. To my mind, and I am persuaded, to the minds of many of the rate-payers of Wolfville, the course adopted by the Committee was wrong, and one which, if followed in other instances, must result in great injury to the town. It may be that the judgment of the Committee regarding the need of some change in the sewerage plans was right, but this, however, gave no authority to depart from the express instructions of the people.

In regard to the use of the word "smuggled," I am willing to substitute for it the expression, "secured the enactment of." I am glad to learn on the authority of the Committee that everything was done in a perfectly open and legal manner. I may, however, in justification to myself, say that I did not use the word "smuggled" without due thought, and I used it because so far as I could learn, it was the correct word to use. I may say further that, were July 17, 1903, and, after billing me it not for the express declaration for frontage tax on "110 feet at 50 cents per foot," reads at the bottom done in an entirely legal and open as follows:

man, I should still stand by the word. A declaration, however, such as has been made by gentlemen who fill an office of responsibility should be final, and I accept it as such. I would suggest, however, that the Council have the amendment to the Sewerage Act printed with the town reports that the people may know just what was passed. So far as that publicity which a discussion in the town Council gives is concerned, such publicity is largely theoretical. The public does not know, and, as the law now stands, has no certain means of knowing, when the Council meets. As a consequence it rarely happens that any one except the councillors and town officials are present at the meetings of the Council. Possibly it would be wholesome if the citizens were found in more frequent attendance; but, surely, the presence of a vigilance committee at the meetings of the Council is not required to ensure a proper management of the town affairs.

However, if this bill was passed with all the publicity that the law requires, this fact simply strengthens my contention that we may some time fall into the hands of unscrupulous councillors and may be made to suffer for it.

In reference to the assessment for sewerage purposes, I fail to see why, in spite of all the difficulties alluded to by your correspondents, some approximate calculation could not have been made and the town assessed in accordance therewith. How such an assessment would have imperiled the interests of the town is not apparent. Supposing that, instead of reaching some satisfactory basis of settlement with the contractors, the public had become involved in litigation, as at one time seemed likely. What would the Council have done then? Would it have waited until the case had travelled through the courts before it assessed for the interest due on the bonds? At the time the regular assessment was made the Council knew, or should have known, what the amount of frontage tax was; it knew what amount had been borrowed on which interest had to be paid. The difference between the total frontage tax and the total amount borrowed for sewerage purposes ought to have given a fairly accurate idea of what should be charged to the assessment account of all taxpayers.

In regard to the time when the frontage tax became due, I have this to say. If I am "all wrong," as the committee says I am, my error is due to the committee itself, inasmuch as I based my statements upon the printed notice which I received from the town office. This notice is dated July 17, 1903, and, after billing me it not for the express declaration for frontage tax on "110 feet at 50 cents per foot," reads at the bottom done in an entirely legal and open as follows:

Chest Protectors

CHEST PROTECTORS are a form of LIFE INSURANCE FOR THOSE WHO ARE PRONE TO COLDS OR LUNG TROUBLES. They are equally valuable for those who are exposed to all sorts of weather. A rightly made Chest Protector keeps IN the vitality and keeps OUT the dampness and chill. We are showing a line of the most desirable protectors, including the best CHAMOIS vests for Men and Women.

Prices range from 75c to $3.00. ALSO this is a good time of year to take RAND'S EMULSION.

RAND'S DRUG STORE
Established 1895.

The above amount, in accordance with the By-Laws, is made payable in fifteen annual payments, commencing Dec. 31st, 1903, and until fully paid operates as a lien against your property. Interest at 4 per cent per annum is chargeable from Dec. 31st, 1902, on the balance remaining unpaid.

Now, if this notice is due and payable Dec. 31, 1903, what in the name of plain English does it mean? What is to commence, if it be not the payments; and if they commence, Dec. 31, 1902, how can the first payment not be due until Dec. 31, 1903?

In regard to the question of interest I am unable to understand the logic of the law by which interest that forms a lien on property in the same way as does the principal of the frontage tax, is not as much a tax as is the principal on which the interest is reckoned. This, however, is a question for the lawyers, and I gladly leave it to them.

If my point regarding the time when the payments on the frontage tax begin is well taken, I fail to see why two instalments are not now due by those who have not made any payment on account of frontage tax.

In regard to the statement of the committee concerning the right to vote, it would be well for the committee to tell the ratepayers where and how it secured the power to determine who shall and who shall not vote.

Respectfully,
EVERETT W. SAWYER.

Their Cause.
Whiskey has been my curse. It ruins anyone who has anything to do with it. I wish I had a voice loud enough so that every man and woman could hear me—could hear my warning to leave whiskey alone—Mrs. Mary Franks. Yet I am locked in this cell because of my own drunkenness. I love my mother above all, but whiskey keeps me from her when she is at the side of brother, who is dying of consumption.—George Davis.
A woman accused of murdering her husband says whiskey did it.
A son, whose natural instincts would draw him to the side of an aged mother in her affliction, says whiskey keeps him away.
In her cell at the county jail, where she will be held pending the grand jury's action, Mrs. Franks set forth the warning which she hopes will save others from her fate.
Her eyes swollen from tears, and still bearing the marks of her husband's brutal assault, she presented a pitiful picture as she told of her misery, all of which she laid to liquor. 'He was a demon when he was drunk,' said Mrs. Franks. 'He would come home at all hours of the day and night and the first thing he would do was to walk toward me and strike me. He would land on my face, my head or neck, just wherever he happened to strike, and he would beat me until I managed to get away.'

At the coroner's inquest Mrs. Franks told how she had driven a knife into her husband's abdomen to save her own life. Although she declared she inflicted the wound without any intention to kill, merely in self defence, the coroner's jury held her to the grand jury.
Tears came to the eyes of George Davis, a taxidermist, as he sat in his cell at the bridewell last evening, thinking with a heavy heart of his brother, who had been a victim of consumption in a poorly heated room at 614 1/2 Halsted street, attended and consoled in his last hours by an aged widowed mother.
'When I heard that Gus was dying I wanted to go and bid him good-bye and console mother, but the cursed liquor held me under its hellish power so completely that I could not sober up enough to appear before them.
I began to hate myself because of my weakness, so I went to Justice Quinn and asked him to lock me up for a few days, so that my irresistible craving for drink could not be satisfied.—Chicago Examiner.

A Meeting at Khartoum—An Interesting Address by a Famous Soldier.
An interesting temperance meeting was recently held at Khartoum under the auspices of the Royal Army Temperance Association. The Sirdar presented medals to a number of men of the Royal Fusiliers and afterwards addressed the meeting on the work of the Society. Among other things he said:
None can deny that this is a country in which an excellent thirst is derived, more especially during the period of these dry strong winds laden with sand. The man accustomed to continually quenching his thirst by beer or alcoholic drinks, must eventually take far more than is good for him, and long before he realizes it, the climate will have affected him, and if he is not permanently injured, it will play havoc with his constitution. The amount of liquor he imbibes makes him heavy and listless; he will sleep away most of his day and will soon find himself in hospital. Believe me, it is the greatest mistake to think that because you are in the Sudan, and at times feel rather exhausted, that some stimulant is necessary to keep you up to the mark; both experience and medical opinion are entirely opposed to this theory, and the longer I live here the more convinced am I that it is entirely fallacious. I dare say that it is said we do not practice what we preach, and that criticism is to some extent true, but I can assure you that of late years I have observed a great change. It is not so long ago that an officer at mess felt bound to drink wines or spirits whether he liked them or not; but now it is quite different. There are many lecturers in officers' messes, and certainly moderation, and not excess, is the order of the day. Instead of looking down on an officer who does not drink, he is now rather looked up to and invariably gets the credit for sound common sense. There is absolutely nothing to be ashamed of in being a total or partial abstemious, and you will find as this temperance movement grows in strength, which it is bound to do,

PORT HOOD COAL
makes a quick fire, burns steadily and gives an intense heat, so says Dr. W. M. Cameron, of Halifax, who has tested PORT HOOD in his own home.
even the small amount of moral courage which for some unexplained reason, seems to be necessary for a man to display in order to join the association, will no longer be a hindrance when we Britishers get rid of the non-sensical and cowardly ideas that we can't keep well, or can't be good pals with our opponents. Believe me, it is all rubbish; you will be better in health, better in spirits, better in luck, if you keep clear of it—and in this country the Government will be the gainer, for it will have men to serve it who are sound in mind and limb, instead of the men who cannot be moved about the country without a high convoy of beer or spirits following them, and who, if they don't get what they are accustomed to, begin to grumble and complain. I can unhesitatingly say that the majority of cases of "stuntie" I have known in the country, in order to get what they have been due to alcoholic excess, whereas the number of temperance men who have been so struck down is an absolute minimum.
Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
This preparation is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and influenza. It has become famous for its cures of these diseases over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been secured, giving accounts of its good works; of the agony being and persistent coughs it has cured; of severe colds it has relieved; of its power to soothe the inflamed and of the dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping cough, has shown that it relieves that disease of all dangerous results. It is especially prized by mothers because it contains nothing injurious and there is not the least danger of giving it even to babies. It always cures and cures quickly. Sold by G. V. Baud, Wolfville.

Fibroid Tumors Cured.
A distressing case of Fibroid Tumor, which baffled the skill of Boston doctors, Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, Mass., in the following letter tells how she was cured, after everything else failed, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appearing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time. The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) Mrs. E. P. HAYES, 263 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice—although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine—which she knew would help her—her letter contained a mass of additional instructions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Some time ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed it your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.
"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk all day now.
"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) Mrs. E. P. HAYES, 263 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Always Tired, Constantly Tired
Nerves on Edge, Appetite Poor, Sleep Disturbed—You Need Ferrozene.
The benefit I derived from Ferrozene, writes Mr. A. F. Whitehead from Montreal, is really marvellous. For two years I didn't have one day's freedom from nervous headache and pains in the back and side. I consulted doctors in Montreal, but wasn't helped. I used Ferrozene and am glad to say my health is better than for many years. I weigh ten pounds more and look and feel stronger. Ferrozene is the best tonic I ever used.
Mrs. Duncan W. Dunham, of Portland, writes: "Last winter I was attacked by neuralgia and was run down in health. I used all sorts of medicines, but found Ferrozene the best. It brought back my appetite and has made me strong, so that I don't expect to be bothered with neuralgia or weak spots again."
The cures of Ferrozene are lasting, because it does its work thoroughly. It is a specific for all forms of skin diseases, kidney, liver and stomach trouble. It cures headache and languid feeling in a short time. Ferrozene contains more nourishment and vitalizing properties than you can get in any other way—in short, it assures health, and costs only 50c. for three weeks' treatment, or six boxes for $2.50. At druggists, or by mail from the Ferrozene Company, Kingston, Ont. Get a supply to-day.

Life Acts.
It is the bubbling stream which flows gently, the little rivulet which runs night and day by the farmhouse that is useful, rather than the swollen flood or roaring cataract. Niagara excites our wonder, and we stand amazed at the power of God there, as he pours it forth from the hollow of his hand. But one Niagara is enough for the continent or the world; but the same world requires thousands and tens of thousands of silver fountains and gently flowing rivulets which water every farm and garden and shall flow on every day and night with their gentle, quiet beauty. So with the acts of our lives. It is not by great deeds, like those of martyrs, good is to be done, but by the daily and quiet virtue of life.—Onward.

To the Suffering.
The following testimonial may be read with interest by sufferers from skin eruptions or eczema:
Dear Sirs:—I notice your advertisement in a paper about your wonderful eczema cure and I felt it my duty to tell you that I was indeed cured by it. I had been afflicted with this terrible skin trouble for 14 years. I have tried several doctors and they do me no good. I only used one box of Dr. Clark's Eczema Cure for Eczema. It has made a complete cure. I recommend it to all suffering from skin disease. My hand was so bad that the nails would come off. To you can use my name if you wish.
Yours truly,
MR. JOHN WOOD,
Peaks St. Lion, P. F. L.
Dr. Clark's Sure Cure for Catarrh is one of the best remedies on the market. We are daily receiving letters telling how much they have benefited by the use of Miss Sarah Hill, 415 Front St. East, Traverse City, Michigan, writes: "I have been wonderfully helped by the use of your catarrh cure. I send me another dollar's worth."
Peter D. McFadyen, Riverside, P. E. L., writes: "I am very busy but just drop a line to let you know how much your catarrh cure has done for me. I am so much better."

Was too Nervous to Rest or Sleep
All men desire to be healthy. Most patients however, do not know how to get it. When your nerves are all on edge when you cannot rest or sleep, when you are irritable, dependent and discouraged, when you have headache, neuralgia and eczema, you can turn to Dr. Clark's Eczema Cure for relief. That with each dose new blood is being formed, the nerves re-vitalized and health and strength restored.
Mrs. S. Thompson, age 40, writes: "I was very much run down in health, and was unable to rest or sleep. I had several attacks of eczema, neuralgia and eczema, and was so nervous that I could not rest well at night. After using Dr. Clark's Eczema Cure for Eczema, I found that my nerves were steadier, I could rest and sleep better than I have for a long time, and was entirely free of headache. I can speak very highly of the preparation for nervous troubles."
To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. W. M. Clark, the founder and proprietor, are on every box. At all dealers, or Edman, Bates and Co., Toronto.
