WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XXVI.
"Willful Murder."

The squire looked at him and the decanter, but his gentle nature found some excuse for him.

"My poor fellow!" he said. "But this will not help you," and he pointed to the brandy.

"No, I know; but I'm upset, I'm dreadfully upset. This—this murder business—"

The squire sighed deeply.

"My brain is in a whirl. It was the sudden shock that struck my poor girl down. There is some hideous mistake, some dreadful mystery! It is impossible that he can be guilty!"

"He—he didn't deny it," said Bartley Bradstone, sullenly.

The squire looked at him with sad surprise.

"You do not think him guilty?" he said.

"I? Oh, no; certainly not," was the quick response. "But—but—of course it's a mystery. I—I wish it had happened at some other time. Curse it! It will never be found out."

"Yes, it will be found out," said the squire, solemnly.

He took two or three turns across the room, his hand to his brow; then he stopped suddenly.

"Why, I remember! It must have occurred while you were on your way to The Maples. Did you hear nothing? The glade is not far from the drive."

Bartley Bradstone was putting on his overcoat, and stopped with one arm in the sleeve.

"Who, I?" he exclaimed, indignantly. "What do you mean? What do I know about it?" Then, recalled to himself by the squire's look of astonishment at his tone, he continued, more quietly, "For Heaven's sake don't get me mixed up in the business; that—that would make it bad for Olivia, you know. I don't know anything about it. I—I cut across the park in the other direction."

"With the carriage?" exclaimed the squire.

"No, no, I didn't take a carriage; didn't I tell you? I thought I should save time by running across the park, and—and I wasn't anywhere near the spot, I'm glad to say. They can't force me to attend the inquest and all that, can they?" he asked, averting his face.

The squire shook his head.

"No, as you know nothing about it," he said.

Bartley Bradstone drew a breath of relief.

"That's all right!" he said. "Olivia would be awfully cut up if I got mixed up in this wretched business. It would make her worse than she is."

"She can scarcely be worse," said the poor squire, sorrowfully.

"She'll get over it," said Bartley Bradstone, putting on his hat. "It's—it's the shock, and all that. I'll go now, I think. Give her my love, and tell her I'll come and see her directly they'll let me. We'll get away the moment she is strong enough; the change will do her good. If it hadn't been for their dragging that fellow Faradeane here we should have been miles away by this time, confound it!"

He passed into the hall and beckoned to a footman who was passing.

"Let him come with me, will you, squire? It's—it's dark, and I'm upset and nervous. It's enough to drive a fellow out of his mind."

The squire motioned an assent to the servant, who brought his hat and a lantern.

At the hall door Bartley Bradstone paused, and came back to where the squire stood, looking vacantly and sadly out at the silent night.

"Don't—don't tell anybody I walked over to The Maples unless you're obliged," he said, with forced carelessness. "These police fellows are always too ready to get a gentleman mixed up in the business, and they'd make a mountain of a molehill, and want me to appear at the trial, and all that. Good-night. Give my love to—my wife."

He held out his hand, with his restless, bloodshot eyes fixed on the squire's boots, and as the old man took it, he noticed, in a duff way, how cold and clammy it felt.

The door closed on Mr. Bartley Bradstone and his protector, and the squire went upstairs again.

As he approached the door, he could hear his darling's voice talking wildly and incoherently, and the doctor met him with a grave face.

"She is delirious," he said, gravely. "Has Mr. Bradstone gone?"

They entered the room. Olivia was lying in Bessie's arms, her eyes open and staring, a torrent of words streaming from her feverish lips.

"Bessie! Bessie! Save him! He is not guilty! My love commit—murder! Ha, ha!" and her wild laughter rang through the room. "He's so good and gentle! They are mad, mad, mad! Take me to him, father; take me to him! It is my place! I tell you that if all the world pronounced him guilty, I would love—love—love him! He is innocent! Father, don't let him take me away! No! Let me stay! Hide me from him! I hate him! I hate him!"

"What does it mean?" moaned the squire, piteously.

"It means just nothing," replied the doctor, who had watched beside many a delirious patient, and was as discreet and silent as the grave. "Pay no attention. Who's that?"

It was Aunt Amelia's voice at the door, begging to be admitted.

"Miss Amelia can do no good. Keep her away, please," he said, quietly; and the squire persuaded her, weeping bitterly—for Aunt Amelia's heart was sound, though her head was fighting—to go back to her own room.

All through the night—and how long it seemed!—the three watched beside the fever-stricken girl, listening to her delirious cries; but toward morning they grew less wild, and as the dawn broke they ceased altogether and she lapsed into a deep sleep.

The doctor's grave face cleared.

"Thank God!" he said, with a long breath of relief. "Go and lie down, squire; the worst has passed. We shall only have to fight against the weakness and exhaustion now. But mind," he added, as he gently forced the squire out of the room, "keep Mr. Bradstone out of the way, and don't mention his name before her. There must be no excitement."

The squire asked if he should send to Wainford for a skilled nurse; but the doctor shook his head.

"No," he said, decisively. "You could not get a better than this girl, Bessie, and—nurses talk," he added, under his breath.

The morning came and the long day passed. The hushed household moved about on tiptoe and spoke in whispers. Almost every hour, as he had promised, the squire sent word to Bartley Bradstone; Olivia was lying in the sleep of unconsciousness.

About six o'clock in the evening Bartley Bradstone entered the library, where the squire sat, his head resting in his hands.

"I—I couldn't stop away any longer," he said, sinking into a chair. "How is she now?"

"Just the same," replied the squire, looking at his white face, pityingly. "She lies now like one dead, indeed—"

Bartley Bradstone groaned and wiped his forehead.

"I've spent a wretched night," he said; "wretched. I suppose you've heard the news?" he asked, suddenly. The squire shook his head.

"They've held the inquest and brought in a verdict of willful murder against Faradeane."

The squire sprang to his feet, then dropped down again.

"They must be mad!" he exclaimed, tremulously.

"I don't know anything more than I've heard," said Bartley Bradstone. "My man was there—and told me what passed. They had Faradeane up, and he—he just behaved as he did here. Wouldn't say anything, or give any explanation. What were they to do, under the circumstances?"

The squire let his hand fall upon the table.

"I would stake my life upon his innocence!" he said, solemnly.

Bartley Bradstone eyed him with sullen displeasure.

"That wouldn't save him," he said,

Constant Headaches

When the nervous system gets run down one of the most persistent symptoms is headache. Nervous headache has been described as the cry of the starved brain for more blood.

Because of its remarkable blood-forming and blood-circulating qualities, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food ranks first as a means of overcoming nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, headache, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability and all the annoying symptoms of nervous breakdown.

It is not a mere relief, but thorough cure; for it rebuilds and reconstructs the wasted and depleted nerve cells.

Bartley Bradstone eyed him with sullen displeasure.

"That wouldn't save him," he said,

"Things look black against him."

"I care not how black they look," responded the squire. "I know that Faradeane is incapable of such a crime."

As he spoke the door opened.

"A gentleman wishes to see you, sir," said the butler; and as the squire made a motion of assent, a short, commonplace-looking man, dressed like a well-to-do farmer, entered.

"Good-evening, sir," he said, quietly and respectfully. "My name is McAndrew, detective, from Scotland Yard. I've got charge of this case."

The squire waved him to a seat and leaned back wearily.

"Why do you wish to see me?" he asked.

"Yes, we know nothing about it," said Bartley Bradstone.

The detective looked at him as if he had not noticed the presence of a third person, and bowed.

"Certainly not, sir; but I called to pay my respects and to ask a few questions. You've heard how the verdict of the coroner's inquest has gone, sir?" addressing the squire.

"Yes."

"Well, sir, I don't attach too much weight to coroners' verdicts, but this seems reasonable enough. There's the fact of the prisoner's presence on the scene, and the revolver with his name engraved on it being found near the body."

"That's very bad," remarked Bartley Bradstone.

"Yes, sir, very bad, as you say," assented Mr. McAndrew; "but I'm not quite satisfied yet. I've seen the prisoner, and watched him through the inquest. And—I've had a good deal of experience. Mr. Vanley—he doesn't look guilty."

"He is not guilty!" said the squire, earnestly.

Mr. McAndrew nodded respectfully.

"He's a friend of yours, sir?"

"He is," assented the squire; "a very dear friend."

Bartley Bradstone shot a glance of jealousy at the sad, worn face.

"Just so, sir; then you can tell me something about him—who he is and so on."

The squire passed his hand across his brow.

"I—I'm afraid I cannot," he replied. "I know nothing about Mr. Faradeane, excepting that he came here, to a cottage called The Dell, a few months ago—"

"When, sir?"

"In May; and that he is distinctly a gentleman, and incapable of the crime laid to his charge."

"That's it, sir," said the detective; "Mr. Faradeane is a gentleman, as you say, and I've never in all my experience known a real, genuine gentleman commit a crime of this kind. In the heat of the moment—in a sudden fit of jealousy, for instance—a gentleman might do it. But this was premeditated."

"How do you know that?" said Bartley Bradstone, sharply.

Interesting From West

Rev. Dr. Ridout

When crossing these lines in Colorado, one of those charming West States, made famous by its canyons, mountains, peaks, waterfalls and mines. The altitude here is 3,500 feet above sea level; the air is pure; the breezes are freighted with ozone of the country round about one stretch of ranches and farms to which countless thousands of calves are being raised.

In a world so full of the noise, bloody conflict and Europe bleed at every pore it would seem that America was providentially chosen to be a house of refuge for the distressed, a land of liberty and plenty for the oppressed, the hungry, and the sad; and no doubt after the war of the unsetting sun where Apollo stabled his horses at eventide. Odysseus went to talk with the spirits of the departed, and Virgil led Eneas out into the West to see the spirit of the dead heroes basking in eternal sunshine; and the Norsemen in the legends tell of the long ship which they laid the body of the dead chieftain and they hoisted the great sail and mid flaming torches sent ship out upon the trackless ocean, and find its harbor where Odin waiting to welcome the spirit of the warrior Valhalla's halls.

In the Western States there are some wonderful developments taking place and prosperity, energy, expansion and wealth are to be seen on all hands.

The thing possibly that led to the hosts Westward in the long ago was the "gold diggings" of California in 1849. The finding of gold there came about in many unusual ways. The stories which come up from that time are amazing. A gold digger died of starvation; his partner in digging a grave turned up a nugget of pure gold worth $40,000. A tramp unable to pay his fare was put off one of the wagon trains; he wandered across the fields and stumbled over a nugget of gold worth $2,500. A man died of pauper the other day in one of the Colorado cities who discovered gold which brought him $100,000. He squandered it all, and one of the most valuable gold mining claims near Colorado Springs the original owner sold for a few dollars and some whisky.

The United States just now are engaged in a most intense Presidential political campaign. The issue is between Wilson the Democrat, and Hughes the Republican. The men are so singularly alike in nature, sufficient Christian manhood and character that it is hard to make a choice. I have had the good fortune of knowing and meeting President Wilson personally. He was Governor of the State of New Jersey with the State

Interesting Notes From Western America

Rev. Dr. Ridout Writes From Colorado.

While reading these lines in Colorado, one of those charming Western States, made famous by its canons, mountains, peaks, waterfalls and gold mines. The altitude here is 3,500 feet above sea level; the air is pure; the breezes are freighted with ozone and the country round about one vast stretch of ranches and farms upon which countless thousands of cattle are being raised.

In a world so full of the noise of bloody conflict and Europe bleeding at every pore it would seem that America was providentially chosen to be a house of refuge for the distressed, a land of liberty and plenty for the oppressed, the hungry, and the sad; and no doubt after the war is over, teeming multitudes will be crossing the seas for the United States and Canada—the lands of the free and the homes of the brave!

Strange it may appear, but how singularly true that the West has always been the land far off towards which all the ideals of Mythology, Romance and Poetry have turned. Homer sang of the Elysian Fields—the abode of supreme happiness as being in the West—out there in the land of the unsetting sun where Apollo stabled his horses at eventide. Odysseus went to talk with the spirits of the departed, and Virgil led Aeneas out into the West to see the spirits of the dead heroes basking in eternal sunshine; and the Norsemen in their legends tell of the long ship upon which they laid the body of the dead, and which they hoisted the great sail and mid flaming torches sent the ship out upon the trackless ocean to find its harbor where Odin wanted to welcome the spirit of the warrior in Valhalla's halls.

In the Western States there are some wonderful developments taking place and prosperity, energy, expansion and wealth are to be seen on all hands. The thing possibly that led the hosts Westward in the long ago were the "gold diggings" of California in 1849. The finding of gold there came about in many unusual ways. The stories which come up from that age are amazing. A gold digger died of starvation; his partner in digging his grave turned up a nugget of pure gold worth $40,000. A tramp unable to pay his fare was put off one of the wagon trains; he wandered across the fields and stumbled over a nugget of gold worth $2,500. A man died a pauper the other day in one of the Colorado cities who discovered gold which brought him $100,000. He squandered it all, and one of the most valuable gold mining claims near Colorado Springs the original owner sold for a few dollars and some whiskey.

The United States just now are engaged in a most intense Presidential political campaign. The issue is between Wilson the Democrat, and Hughes the Republican. The two men are so singularly alike in magnificent Christian manhood and character that it is hard to make a choice. I have had the good fortune of knowing and meeting President Wilson personally. He was Governor of the State of New Jersey with the State House at Trenton when I was Pastor of the Wesley Church in that city. On two occasions I met him in his office to discuss some Temperance legislation. I knew him also at Princeton University when he was President of that institution. I have heard him speak at great religious gatherings. He is a great believer in the Old Bible—not the Bible of the Higher Critics, mark you!

Mr. Hughes the Republican nominee who wants to succeed Wilson at the White House, is the son of a Baptist preacher. When Mr. Hughes was Governor of New York State he cleaned out the gamblers and did some moral marvels. Mr. Wilson when he was Governor of New Jersey also cleaned up the State, so the both men are men of tremendous moral power as well as capable and tried men of affairs.

There will be a strong pull made to return President Wilson to the White House for four years more. He has had a most notable career as President. He has had the stormiest time of any man since the days of Abraham Lincoln. The Nation came very close to a war with Germany and Mexico but Wilson's steady hand averted the clash.

The United States as a Nation does not want war. Some people deeply interested in business in Mexico would like to see a war with the hope of getting Mexico under the American flag, but it is not likely to occur, though I believe for the sake of humanity, civilization, education and religion it would be the best thing possible to have the U. S. A. take Mexico under her wing just as she did Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

As for the European War the United States stands for the Allies. They believe the Allies are going to win and deserve to win. Germany and the unappeakable Kaiser get little sympathy among the Americans. The Press everywhere have no good words for the Germans—excepting, of course, the German-American sheets. We believe German Militarism, the menace of Europe and the world, has got to be completely wiped out and for that reason American manufacturers feel they can win clear consciences make munitions for the Allies. It is frightful in this age of the Christian religion that things have got to be settled by bullets, instead of prayers, but if nothing but bullets will put the hell-horn "German Kultur" down and out it will have to go that way. Our summer has been one of extensive travel and preaching. We shall have covered probably over 6,000 miles this summer. We have preached the Gospel in the States of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Indiana, Iowa, Colorado and Nebraska and we have found the same old Gospel that we heard in the years ago from the fire-touched lips of Revs. George J. Bond, T. H. James, George Boyd, James Vater, Job Shenton, H. P. Cowperthwaite and others in the same effective Gospel for this day. The preachers who are preaching Higher Criticism, The New Theology, New Thought Philosophy, Sociology, and doctrines without the Blood of the Atonement and the Holy Ghost power are not doing much in leading a sin cursed humanity to a Mighty Christ. We have crowds of preachers in our country to-day who never know what it is to see a sinner converted under their ministry—the reason is they have taken hold of a wrong Gospel. The old, old Gospel under which we were converted, as Rev. George J. Bond preached it in Cochran's Street Church over thirty years ago when scores of people got converted in the good old way of repentance and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, is what the Church and the World needs to-day.

Well, I have been too long, I must close. Next week I hasten back to take up my duties for another year at Taylor University where hundreds of young people from all parts of the world come for their training, where the old-time religion obtains as well as educational standards.

A Gruesome Find Who Can It Be?

Magistrate McDonnell of St. George's wired to Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings last night as follows:—

"William Sheppard of St. George's reports to-day that he found the skeleton of a man and the following effects: a gun, watch, knives, pipe and boots, seventeen miles inland from George's Pond. The skeleton was that of a tall man, and had evidently been there for many years."

A Paris Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.

In Paris the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing hats, which is due entirely to this new discovery. It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-sought-for article is proven every day.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale. This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant dressing, and is sold by your druggist. A large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50 cents.

Had Narrow Escape.

During the progress of the fire at the house of Mr. Eric Bowring, on Rennie's Mill Road, yesterday, Miss Constance Fox had a very narrow escape. The fire was eating up through the partitions and frame of the building and it was difficult to get at it. The firemen were chopping away some woodwork on a top flat, while Miss Fox was in the flat underneath trying to save some valuables. Suddenly a large piece of plaster fell from the ceiling. Luckily she was pulled out of the way in the nick of time by a reserve fireman. The plaster was coming straight for her and dropped exactly where she stood. Had it struck her on the head she would doubtless have been seriously injured.

Professor McCarthy presides at the piano. On tomorrow a wonderful three reel Sellig feature: "Tom Martin—A Man."

Humber, O'Dulce.

Written When Crossing the Humber River.

P. J. KINSELLA.
O'Dulce, O'Dulce I have seen it—Grand glorious sight it was—Ripples azure by the parting ray Turned golden like—as if themselves perished Of myriad scintillation of God of day And peaceful was the eve, and too the scene, O'Dulce, thus I saw, the Sun-God play.

Small quarrelous ripples—Anon—a streak unbroke Of silver glowing fluid—and then again A murmur where the eddies broke, O'Dulce, bless the eve and too the scene Where Nature in her mystic voice had spoke,

The soul if not the heart saw more Beneath the surface—read, and if not true, Chide moral taught, though perhaps redeemed those lines. That in serene lives uneven strife And too, opposing life, to all issue, For not the most, the best, the happiest life Is always free of such predestined blight.

O'Dulce, I have known this thought—Thou has brought much bliss and Hours made happy—nor love depart. But I have known midst streak unbroke

A lute astray, whereof the calm had broke, Though God-like was the whole, and too the heart, Where Nature always mystical had spoke.

God bless the Humber, Hidden from the ken (Even in thy peace)—of moral stain; God's image always shining on thy breast.

Oh, who am I, that I should break thy rest And make thee subject for some Muse refrain?

O'Dulce, I have seen in Eve's decline Thy ripples azure by the parting ray, And peaceful was that eve, and too the scene

O Humber, thus I saw the Sun God play, God bless thee shining River Subject of a poor poet's lay.

Citizen's Committee.

The Citizens' Committee met in the Board of Trade Rooms last night, Vice-Chairman W. A. O'D. Kelly presiding. The meeting opened at 8.30, Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted after much discussion. At the request of one of the members, who strongly opposed the plebiscite on the Ward System with the extra cost to the city, the Secretary read the following extract from the minutes of a previous meeting:—

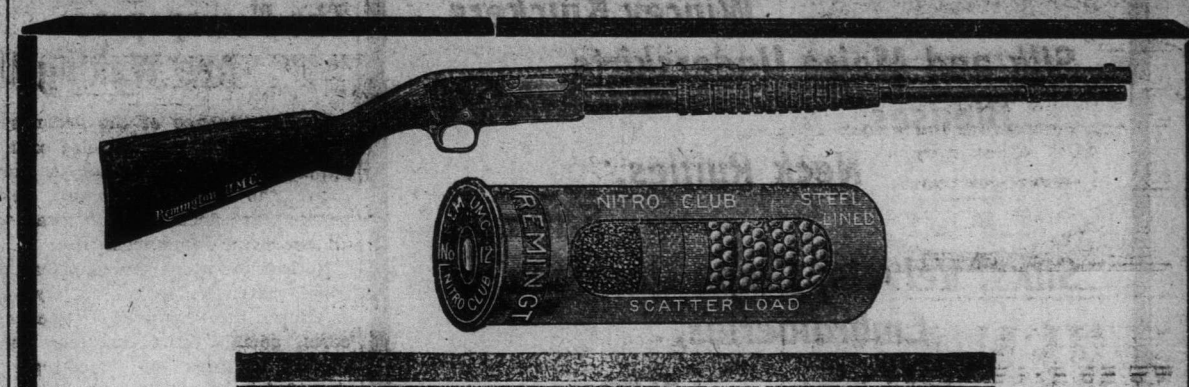

"A resolution was forwarded the Premier in April last in which the Citizens' Committee asked that the plebiscite on the Ward System be taken at the same time as the election for Mayor and Councillors in June."

The Secretary was ordered to write a letter to the press further expressing their opinion on the matter. Discussion on the new Bill was then commenced. Section 120, in relation to the turning off of water for taxes due the city was amended; the time shall read twelve months instead of six.

Section 120, dealing with the construction and repairs of sidewalks, in which property owners have to contribute one-half the cost, was passed by a small majority, it being their opinion that people desiring concrete sidewalks are the fittest persons to pay for them.

The snow trouble on Water Street also came in for much discussion. Packing cases, boxes, etc., deposited on sidewalks and obstructing free passage should be removed.

The meeting adjourned at 10.35 and will meet again next Monday.

We Get The Trade Because We Saw The Demand Coming

SPORTSMEN are critical buyers. When they go into a store for a Rifle or Shotgun, or for ammunition, they want to be sure of finding assortments responsive to their demands.

Right there you have the reason why more sportsmen every year are coming to us for their Rifles, Shotguns and Ammunition.

Ever since we began in business we have been selling Remington-UMC—

Making our display of Remington-UMC Rifles and Shotguns, our assortments of Remington-UMC Shot Shells and Metallics our bid for the trade of Sportsmen in this community.

We are glad to say that we are getting that steady trade of more sportsmen every year.

Come, see for yourself how well we are prepared to serve you.

TUESDAY, Sept. 19th, 1916.

The Teacher.

The letter from "A Teacher" is but one of many that reach us from time to time, though a clearer and more convincing indictment than the ordinary of a deplorable state of things. If we allow them to pass without notice or a word of sympathy it is not because we do not feel that they deserve it, but because we know the futility of giving it. There is little that we can say that "Teacher" himself does not say with the just indignation aroused by bitter and undeserved experience.

The position of almost every schoolmaster in Newfoundland is recognized by everyone to be impossible. Yet a common answer to his complaints is one that might be given to anyone similarly situated. We could say to him, "You undertook this work knowing what it meant. You have—indeed, you are expected to have—abilities above the ordinary. If you brought them to trade and commerce, the fisheries, industrial pursuits, and other profession or almost any other endeavour, you would be certain to do better for yourself. As a day labourer you would not fare worse. Yet the offer is made you and you accept it. Why do you do so?" And the question remains always, unanswerable, unless on the supposition that there are amongst us still a few who are moved by other considerations than dollars and cents, who "love their work" and are content to devote themselves to it in return for the few dollars and cents that will allow them to support a decent existence. And even this is denied them.

This may be a pertinent question for the teacher to put himself, but it is not a worthy one for the community at large to ask him. The community at large should ask itself a few questions and admit that it is greatly to blame in this matter. The worth of his services it woefully underestimates—it does so in every country except Germany—and does not deserve to have them. The Government feels, not so much from conviction as from example, that it should make him his care, and does so half-heartedly, supplementing the inadequate with the inadequate. It is not hard to see why this should be. A nation must first be educated in order to understand and appraise the value of education, and so the thing proceeds in a vicious circle. There is nothing which gives larger or more grateful returns for expenditure than education, but in nothing are the returns so difficult to see and estimate. They are, or appear to be, remote and unconnected with the true cause. Backwardness in figures and the elements of English composition will handicap a boy through life and rob him of hundreds of dollars. The man who teaches him these things makes accessible to him the greatest opportunities of life.

What is he given in return? These are only general observations, but the matter must be broadly regarded. They are waking up in England and revising their whole educational system. It is time we did the same. In our opinion the chief defect in our own system is one that infects every department of our public life—political and municipal—false economy. We allow thousands to be wasted annually in a dozen unprofitable ways, and starve, for want of insight and a little courage, that which must, and despite it all does, supply the very foundation of society and progress.

Newfoundlanders continue to win high honours. Last night Sir Joseph Outerbridge was informed by cable that his son, Major Leonard Outerbridge, of the 38th Battalion, 3rd Canadian Contingent, had been made Brigade Major with a staff appointment at Bramshott, Surrey. Major Outerbridge did such sterling work in Canada in training and instruction that he was retained there for a long time, and he entrusted with his regiment to England and France. He must have acquitted himself well to receive so high a distinction and be entrusted with such responsible duties. Heartiest congratulations to the talented young officer.

Dastardly Assault.

Ne'er-Do-Well Beats Sister and Gets Imprisoned.
A ne'er-do-well named Quinlan, who is a member of long standing in the "Sons of Rest," having had a falling out with work many years ago, went to the home of his sister a few nights ago, smashed the furniture and then struck her several times in the face with his fist. He was arrested on Saturday night last and held in the toils until his sister was able to appear in court. This morning the big burly coward was convicted of the assault before Judge Hutchings. In view of his past record Quinlan was fined $10 or 30 days and ordered in addition to furnish two bonds for his future good behaviour or go down for an extra month. Quinlan was introduced to "Captain" Parsons of the "Brig" at noon to-day and will soliloquize there for the next 60 days.

The Newspapers Are Waking Up

In consequence of the dearth of paper and of everything else connected with the publication of a newspaper, the British Columbia newspapers have decided to do away with all deadhead announcements. Notices of ratapayers, political, suffrage, patriotic, lodge, society, club or church meetings and services, concerts, socials, etc., inserted under special headings of "Meeting" on classified pages at one cent per word per insertion. As reading matter under heading of "Announcements" on news pages at three cents per word, per insertion. In effect Sept. 9.
In referring to the above, the Hamilton, Ontario, Times says:
"Since the war began the Times has given away many thousands of dollars' advertising space free for patriotic purposes. No other business has had such claims put upon it as has the newspaper business, and this in spite of the fact that few business, if any, suffer more because of the war."

TO-DAY'S Messages.

SURROUND BULGARIANS.
ATHENS, To-day.—Franco-German troops have surrounded the Bulgarian forces in north-western Macedonia which are falling back precipitately, according to reports to the Exchange here.

BRITISH CASUALTIES.
LONDON, To-day.—The official casualty lists for the last fortnight of August contain the names of 603 officers killed, 1,336 wounded, 93 missing, total 2,092. This brings the losses in officers of the British army since the commencement of the war to 41,041, of which 12,045 were killed or died of wounds, 26,070 wounded and 2,926 missing. During the fortnight, Brigadier General Potter was wounded and Brigadier General Buckle killed.

PROGRESS BY FRENCH.
PARIS, To-day.—South of Combes on the Somme front the French carried another group of German trenches, according to an official from the War Office to-night. Desperate fighting continues around Denicourt, while actions both in the Champagne district and on the Verdun front, where the French captured a trench on Deadman's Hill, are recorded.

GERMANS ADMIT REVERSES.
BERLIN, To-day.—The abandonment by the Germans of the villages of Berny and Denicourt, together with the positions between Barleux and Vermandovillers south of the River Somme, is reported in today's official statement. North of the River, the statement says, fighting developed favorable to the Germans.

FOOD DISTRESS IN VIENNA.
NEW YORK, To-day.—A News Agency despatch from London says: Food disorders has broken out in Vienna, said a Geneva despatch to the Exchange to-day. Beef is selling at $4 per pound, rice at $2 per pound. There is terrible distress among the families of working men, the despatch added.

GERMANS CLAIM VICTORY.
BERLIN, To-day.—A German attack against the Russians, who are attempting to capture the Galician town of Halicz, resulted in the defeat of the Russians, who lost the greater portion of the territory gained on Saturday, the war office announced to-day. In addition to inflicting heavy casualties on the Russians, the Germans took 3,500 prisoners and 16 machine guns.

THE QUESTION OF NEUTRAL MAILS.
WASHINGTON, To-day.—Britain's reply to the American note protesting against the seizure and censorship of neutral mails is on the way to Washington. It is understood to be largely a repetition of the argument in justification of the policy of the Allies contained in the preliminary memorandum received here last February. At the British Embassy to-day it was stated that the Allies desired to lighten the censorship as much as possible, and that it was with this end in view that a series of conferences to be held in New York this week between the leading American exporters and Sir Richard Crawford, trade advisor to the Embassy, had been arranged. The Embassy officials specifically denied the cable reports from Berlin that Britain had suspended there that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg had assured him that the Greek army had been made prisoners as a result of the Bulgarians' demand. Former Premier Vanseleusen declared on learning that the colors of a certain regiment at Kavala had fallen into the hands of the Bulgarians.

12.30 P.M.

WHISTLING TO KEEP UP THEIR COURAGE.
BERLIN, To-day.—The mass attack by the British along the Somme front on Friday was, according to advices reaching here, apparently carried out only by means of the concentration of the entire British forces. The Germans declared again there is hardly a French or British division left. The Germans, nevertheless, are not at all disposed to give way to any illusion that the front line there is hardly a French or British division left. The Germans, nevertheless, are not at all disposed to give way to any illusion that the front line there is hardly a French or British division left. CORRESPONDENT DESCRIBES THE FIGHT.
British Front in France, via London, To-day.—The most dramatic and picturesque battle of the British Army in all its two years of existence was fought on September 15th. Here is the story of how all kinds of men from the ends of the earth took part in this mighty conflict. In several dressing stations this week the correspondent has seen Canadians, New Zealanders, English, Scotch, Irish, Newfoundlanders and Americans. There were some of the men of the many countries who took part in the now historic battle, and with the Newfoundlanders and Americans went into action those armoured motor cars called tanks which are to the credit of a quiet officer of the engineers. When the correspondent met this officer six months ago and asked him what job he was now on he replied: "Sh-sh-sh! Don't tell." It was the tanks that completed the wonderful business of this battle to-day. When the correspondent was calling on a Canadian Brigadier, it was a tank called the Canadian No. 1 looking like a pre-historic monster in the skin of modern armor and with engines inside, which took him across the field of shell craters. Besides being way with phytic adaptability by all irregularities up to the door of the Brigadier's dugout. The skipper of the Canadian Engine alighted and with a draw announced that he reported for further orders, while the Brigadier laughingly bade him not to return but to go to the stairs of the dugout, but to move to one side and wait. On the tank ambled with the bulky leure of a hippopotamus over more shell craters to a place where it would be of the way until it was needed. Then the correspondent went over the ground which the Canadians had taken up to the edge of the village of Courcellette; later they stormed the village. He met Canadians who came from Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. There were also men with the accents of Missouri and New England and those who on the soil of Franco-British boys after the names of the French tongue of Quebec. It was the Canadians' first offensive on any big scale; they had stood the shock of attack at the second battle of Ypres, at St. Eloi, Orrell Hill and Sanctuary Wood, and it had been their fortunes up to the present to stand under blows rather than give them. They wanted the chance on the Somme to make good, as it was expected, and they had. This rainy day one saw battalions of them marching out from trenches they had won and other battalions marching in. Those fresh from the fight were plastered with mud but triumphant; they had hundreds of stories to tell while rain dripped from their tarpaulins of how the Byng boys had made good, while the wounded, who were drenched in the rain, joined in the stories.

The Canadians are known as the Byng boys after the names of their Corps Commander, General Julian Byng, and also by virtue of a popular song in London entitled the "Byng Boys are Heres." General Byng grasped the idea that the Canadians had initiative just there as far as the Corp. could learn in the essential of the universally admitted brilliant stroke which the Canadians dealt when it came their turn to play their part in the colossal plan. The Somme offensive, in other words General Byng understood that given a goal the merits of North America would go to it with all there was in them, ready to take a pinch at chance.

The correspondent went over the ground to-day where he went to it, and saw where they stuck in trenches under shell fire, which they had gained after the second charge and which were not in the original plan. The night before the battle the staff officer in charge of the branch of the front, showed the Corporal the Canadian objective. No home run was expected from them but only a sacrifice fly, to use baseball language, but they made it home run and brought in all the men on the bases. They gained their first objective in an uninterrupted dash absolutely on time; when the word was given they started for Courcellette which they were ordered to take. The new village had been less crumpled than any yet captured.

Turkish Strength.

(Military Correspondent London Times.)

It will not be, certainly, the aid of the Turkish armies which will enable old Hindenburg to restore the falling fortunes of his race. The 52 Turkish Divisions have sunk to 48, because the larger number could not be maintained, and of these 48 many are weak. There are 26 at least on the Armenian front, where that great leader Yudenitch is at present pounding them fiercely, and we can only suppose that the Turkish divisions which have marched across Anatolia from their railheads have lost men at every stage, as the custom of the Turkish armies is. Several divisions are at Yemen where the Sheriff of Mecca and Idri are in the field against them; several more are in Mesopotamia. In Syria there are still two divisions, and, after Smyrna, the Dardanelles, Constantinople, Thrace, and the coasts have been provided for, there will not be much left for Hindenburg to manoeuvre. If Vienna does not blush at being defended by Turks, that is Vienna's affair. As for the Bulgarians, their hour of retribution will strike, and never a danger will be lifted here to save them from the consequences of their acts.

Soldier is Too Busy to Vote.

Westminster Gazette.—We got a letter this morning from a Territorial officer in the firing line in France—an officer, we may say, who is a keen politician. It may well be that what he says is not the unanimous view of the Army at the front, but we are convinced that he speaks for a large number of our fighting men. Here, at all events, is what he says: "It seems so ludicrous to me—out here in this nightmare country—to read in the papers of all this agitation and fuss about the new register and a General Election and 'One Gun, One Vote, and so on. If people at home really think that our men are worrying about being temporarily disfranchised they have got the whole show in the wrong perspective. My men are worrying about rats and mosquitoes and pip-squeaks and woolly bears and things like sweethearts and clean clothes and a bath and some English beer—quite simple things like that. Not votes at all. They are quite content to leave all that to the people who are carrying on at home. When you are serving a gun day and night in a place like this it seems Edmund-Lee-like to think of a Tommy worrying himself about voting. He's too busy sending—and dodging—Death."

Unpared Apples.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Do look at those poor children!" said my companion. On a vacant lot, surrounded by the tall tenements of the suburban slums, a dozen children were playing.

Across the street was a big bakery and two idle delivery wagons were standing in the vacant lot. About them the children were playing, darning each other to bold jumps, some between the shafts acting as horses, others on the seat driving.

They shouted and laughed and romped and never a whimper was there except when an older sister boxed her young brother's ears.

A Few Tufts of Ambitious Grass.

It was one of the most unlovely spots I ever saw, no trees, no flowers, of course, and only a few tufts of brown grass from which, the life and ambition had been nearly trampled out. The wagons were their only playthings.

And yet those children were having a grand, good time. How could they under such heart-rending conditions?

Well partly because youth can be happy under almost any handicap, partly because they had one precious possession which the pampered children of your friends and mine often lack—namely, a reasonable liberty of action.

They didn't have anyone to amuse them, but likewise they didn't have anyone to constantly interfere with them. They didn't have nice clothes and they didn't have to keep them clean.

Children Who Live By Schedule. Their day is arranged per schedule. Just as they get into some very important play the nursemaid calls them. "Just a minute," they say. "No, you've got to have your bath right now," or "your nap" or "your lunch" or "your drive," whatever it is the schedule calls for. Isn't it enough to make anyone cross to constantly be obliged to do what other people want you to do the minute they want it?

And the things they must do because they aren't healthy!

They Can Never Bat Apples Au Naturel.

They mustn't hold pennies in their hands because of germs, they can never buy cheap candy, if they eat an apple it must be pared and cut into sections by the nurse-maid.

I think that is just typical of their existence—that inspected, pared, cut-up apple.

Of course I am sorry for the children in the hideous vacant lot. But I'm sorry too for the children who never are allowed any of the unpared apples of childhood.

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding took place at the College Home, on August 29th, when Miss Winnie Hayley, daughter of Mrs. James Hayley, of Bonaville, and Mr. W. G. Nottall, son of Mrs. William Nottall, of this city, were united in the bonds of matrimony.

The bride was dressed in white silk and had to match and looked very pretty indeed, and was assisted by Miss Mille Nottall, sister of the groom, while Mr. Frank Hynes acted as best man. The bride and groom received many costly and useful presents.

These brief remarks serve to give an idea of the extent of the teacher's usefulness, and to impress more forcibly the justice of his claim for sufficient remuneration to provide a fair livelihood.

Under normal conditions we could pull through somehow, but immediate attention must be given our lot under existing circumstances or our ranks will sustain a big depletion. An increase of wages has been obtained in nearly every other pursuit, but the family teacher of six and eight in number to provide for still calls on his Rev. Chairman monthly for that glorious sum of $20.00. It is a problem for the outside world exceeding in difficulty any that the teachers have met with in arithmetic to solve the means of subsisting on such a sum with flour $10.00 per barrel and a ton of coal even more.

We have known labourers to quit jobs on Bell Isle where they cleared $2.00 per day and go to the United States to join their fellow countrymen there who are labouring sentry with plenty of money while these at home educating their brothers and sisters to the highest pitch of efficiency as the exams testify are in poverty and debt on $20.00 per month. Yes, this is the case of men whom I know to be well

The Lot of the Teacher.

Common Sense From One of Them.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—As time goes by the strain of the abnormal times through which we are passing is being felt by everybody; but family teachers, having at all times the least of a square shake, are feeling the brunt very keenly.

No fair-minded person will contend that that class of individuals should each be the poorest in their respective communities; yet under existing conditions that status is rapidly gaining ground. Such should not be the case, Mr. Editor, and if the merits of the men who have made teaching their profession and adhered to it with success, got their proper valuation there are few who would not deem them worthy of sufficient income to clothe and properly support their families.

Everybody abhors the idea of a boy or girl growing up and starting out to face the world thoroughly illiterate, and everybody admires and extols the one beginning life with a finished education; yet it is a race of the latter that those who have made teaching their profession are generating for Newfoundland, and for this work they are not allowed sufficient income to live respectably and merit the esteem of their brother members in the community—rather do they often court the contempt and disregard of them as well as belittling their worthy profession by their unbecoming appearance and seeking other manual means to make up sufficient for the household needs.

Not is the lever provided by the teacher whetted only with a secular education. With all teachers of my acquaintance the first lesson throughout the year for all his classes is one in Catechism or the Christian Doctrine every question in which to the experienced teacher affords room for explanation and comment that is no light auxiliary to the higher religious teaching of the churches in which we all share.

On all sides we hear of a better schedule of wages and prices to cope with the abnormal prices of commodities—the fisherman is getting more for his fish than ever before in the history of our country, the different unions have forced up wages to the benefit of their members, railway agents get from 40 to 50 dollars per month and such extras as fuel, oil and other things, and at all the different spheres of labour better pay and overtime enable the employees to succeed while the family teacher whose work is the noblest fares most meagrely on $20.00 per month. Can you, Mr. Editor, or any man expect us to teach successfully and apply that experience that above all makes a good teacher under such corroding conditions? Surely Chairmen and others will see the justice of discontinuing all building and repairing operations till these agents become normal, and assist the teachers by paying them anything extra that their position may allow.

Because they will Save you Money.

They are offering a big variety of patterns in the New American Floor Coverings at $1.10 yard.

You can buy these same Floor Cloths somewhere else for $1.20 and that is the usual price, but Blair's say September being a kind of a quiet month they can easily cut more Floor Cloths than, so the cut in the price cuts two ways.

They say according to the prices the manufacturers are now quoting, these coverings would cost them all this low.

They show a big range of Block and Floral Patterns, as they have the manufacturers of three different makers, viz.: Congoleums, Feltoleums and Neponsets, and show the best patterns of each make. These are much better than cheap Floor Coverings, of which the cheapest to-day is about $1.00 per yard.

This is mainly because the basic material for Cheap Floor Canvas is Burlap or Brin, and the immediate demand for that is tremendous. It is estimated that for the making of sand bags and the wrapping of foodstuffs, etc. for the Army, the British Government calls for sixty million square yards per week. Therefore the price of brin has more than doubled. But Blair's are trying to help you all they can on prices, therefore remember—

Light Rays Newest in Allies Trench Attacks.

Englishman Invents New Engine War Called "Light-o-Mine," Set Off by a Ray of Light, Explodes Mines.

Paris, August 25.—Light as a junct and aid of modern warfare the newest of the allies has been named to aid in the campaign against the Central Powers by H. Grindell Matthews, an Englishman.

Having sold his patent to Great Britain, Mr. Grindell Matthews is present in Paris interesting French Government officials in his apparatus and making of it.

Grindell Matthews' engine called a "light-o-mine," and carries an electro-clockwork mechanism that is attached to a bomb and which is set off by a ray of light. The new form of fighting, the raiding tactics first tried out by the British and now engaged in to a great extent by Russian troops on the French front, and by the allies themselves, is itself largely of the use of this "o-mine."

The apparatus itself is a yard long and four inches square, consists of a lens at one end, and resembling a pocket flash.

Inside is a dry battery, a switch plate and a clockwork, and fine lead wires. When a raid is made on an enemy trench, this apparatus is carried, and with it a line of bombs. Now a line of trench consists merely of twenty or thirty hundred or two hundred yards of ordinary iron piping, a little larger, instance, than gas piping. This is cut in suitable lengths—say fifteen feet long each. From the ends protrude two bits of wire, the positive and the negative current to be transmitted to the bombs. The piping is connected with alternate channels of T N T as the Allies' standard explosive is called, and strips of iron nails and slugs of lead.

The raiding party carries the equipment and proceeds by the trench after a short but intense bombardment. They bayonet or with grenades the survivors of the trench, then hastily lay the piping, all connected up with wires, in the bottom of the trench, ering it over with a few spades earth. The end of the line of bombs is attached by the "light-o-mine" apparatus to the line of the trench.

It is hidden in the trench, pointed back at some object in the Franco-British lines.

About this time the German is in the rear have been added an enemy detachment is ordered front trench section at that a few shells begin to drop in the signal for the raiders to

Now a line of trench bombs consists merely of twenty or fifty or a hundred or two hundred yards of ordinary iron piping, a little larger, for instance, than gas piping. The piping is cut in suitable lengths—say ten or fifteen feet long each. From each of the ends protrudes two bits of wire, the positive and the negative for the current to be transmitted to detonate the bombs. The piping is packed tightly with alternate chambers of T N T as the Allies' standard high explosive is called, and shrapnel, bits of iron nails and slugs of metal.

Zam-Buk
Saved me a lot of money

writes Mr. R. Howard, Sr., of Bracebridge, Ont. He continues: "Four years ago I sustained a scratch on my leg, which turned to an ulcer. I was confined to my bed for six months by the doctors' treatment, during which time I did not earn a cent, and in addition, spent dollars upon dollars before a cure was effected. Recently I sustained a scratch on my other leg. It became very inflamed and swollen, and finally turned to an ulcer. This time, however, I knew about Zam-Buk, and I acted very differently. I used Zam-Buk alone, with the result that not only was the ulcer healed in much shorter time than the previous one, but I was able to go to work all the time it was healing, and I did not lose a single day's pay. I sincerely hope that my experience may be the means of showing other working people the great healing value of Zam-Buk and of saving many from needless expense and unnecessary suffering. Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema and all skin diseases, ringworm, boils, piles, cuts, burns, etc. 50c box, 3 for $1.25, all druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. nels. I do not believe, for instance, that there ever will be a time when New York or London or Paris is served by a wireless telephone system. There would be too much complication in getting all of the wave lengths of different sizes and keeping them so. But eventually the wireless telegraph will be supplanted by the wireless telephone, just as the land telegraph with wires will eventually be entirely supplanted by the ordinary telephone system."

OLD TIMERS.

When old men meet they ask for news of friends they used to know. "Say, what's become of Hiram Hughes?" "The anthrax laid him low." "Well, what's become of William Bill, and what's become of Fred?" "They are both sleeping on the hill, and each is doubly dead."

The St. Shott's Garden Party.

A very enjoyable garden party took place at St. Shott's on the 10th inst., in aid of the new Church which has been recently erected, and proved in every way a perfect success. It was carried out under the superintendence of Mr. Wm. T. Molloy who executed his duty with infinite dexterity. Dancing, which began at 3.30 p.m., was performed on a large gallery constructed for the occasion by the young men of the place. A large assembly was present including visitors from Biscay Bay, Trepassy, Peter's River, Cape Pine and Cape Freels. At 4 p.m. the carriages began to arrive and drove up to the entrance of the dancing grounds where their occupants were met and welcomed by the distinguished Mr. Molloy who conducted them to the scene of the garden party. After an hour's interval supper was partaken of in the Church where two magnificent tables were spread, waited on by several matrons and young ladies. Two more meals, tea and breakfast, were served at 11 p.m. and 4 a.m., respectively, and refreshments were at everyone's disposal during the night. Amusements of various kinds were exercised by both old and young; songs were beautifully rendered by Messrs. Francis Molloy and Patrick Finlay, and card playing was fully indulged in by the old folks, whilst the young made the dancing gallery ring trying to imitate the steps of their Irish ancestors. About 5.30 next morning all the guests dispersed feeling tired but needless to say well pleased with the night's performance.

Great credit is due Mr. and Mrs. Molloy, also the other people who assisted; and it being the best of its kind ever held at St. Shott's we wish all the more to have the Superintendent understand how fully we appreciate his tact and extend to him our heartiest congratulations on its great success.

ONE PRESENT. Cape Freels, Sept. 15th, 1916.

Your Boys and Girls.

There are many people that expect children to be naughty when the restraining influence of the parents is removed. But what is the matter with those children who are just as good when the "cats away" as they are at other times? You might think there is something uncanny about such children. But really they are quite normal and full of fun. I know them myself and can say that they have the same instincts for play and mischief as other children, yet there is a difference.

The difference is in the attitude of the parents, especially of the mother toward the play of the children. The mother has learned to suppress her own instinct to say "don't" every time one of the children starts to do something that is not on her program. The children have the impulse to do a thousand things that seem foolish to you and me, but most of them are quite harmless and need not be stopped unless the adults are very selfish and irritable.

Everyday Etiquette.

"A man to-day helped me to pick up some parcels I had dropped, and then started to walk along with me. Is that proper?" asked Madge.

"No indeed," answered her mother. "After recovering the parcels for you he should raise his hat, and pass on."

Fashions and Fads.

One-piece gowns of navy blue serge, mohair or jersey are in favor. The smartest wash gowns are best made with the utmost simplicity. The most favored material for stamped pillow tops is tan cloth or linen.

For young girls' dancing frocks there is nothing better than pastel and white.

Some very smart dresses of navy blue satin have ivory buttons for decoration.

Separate skirts are sufficiently in favor to be made up in some very novel styles.

Hot Weather Philosophy.

In this hot weather it will make us feel a little more comfortable to think of cool things, like snow and ice. So, first let us remember that there is a wet season ahead, and after that the snowy and frosty season. We shall have to be out in all kinds of weather, and the only way to enjoy life under all the different conditions is to be comfortably clad. For instance, if your feet are encased in nice, stylish, well-fitting Bear Brand Rubber Shoes, the state of the streets will not worry you in the slightest degree. Of course, nobody is buying rubber shoes just yet, but the time will soon come, and then, isn't it better to buy one good, well-fitting pair that will last you the greater part of the winter, rather than half-dozen pairs of shoddy shoes, that you will always find broken on the mornings that the slush is inches high?

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, Sept. 18.

The Governor, Newfoundland:
On the Somme front our positions have been consolidated and further progress made, especially near Thiépval. The prisoners captured exceed four thousand. Six guns and fifty machine guns have been taken or destroyed.

The French have made an important advance south of the Somme, capturing Verdunvillers and Berry and enclosing Denicourt. Twelve hundred prisoners were taken.

On the Carso front the Italians have captured further extensive trench systems, taking an additional 1,890 prisoners.

On the Narajowka River and Halicz front the Russians have captured three thousand prisoners. Rumanian continue progress in Transylvania, occupying Pozaras and Bardolui. In Dobrudzha, where the enemy claims victory, the Rumanian forces have retired northward.

In Egypt, mounted Anzac troops attacked the Turkish camp near El Arish. Operations in East Africa continue favorable.

BONAR LAW.
DEFEAT OF THE TURKS.

LONDON, Sept. 18.
The defeat of the Turks in a minor engagement on the Sinai Peninsula, 65 miles east of the Canal, is announced officially to-day as follows: A mobile column, composed of Anzac mounted troops and a camel corps, with some artillery, left Sir El Abd on Sept. 6th with a view to carrying out a reconnaissance of enemy troops west of El Arish. The column reached an enemy position at Elvet Mazar, 65 miles from the Canal, at dawn on Sunday. A sharp engagement followed in which our troops penetrated the enemy trenches at several points, and inflicted considerable casualties, while our artillery heavily shelled the enemy camp. The attack appears to have been a surprise to the Turks, and our aircraft saw and fired on several parties of them, among whom were German officers. Riding rapidly back to El Arish we took some prisoners. Our casualties were slight.

BRITISH GAIN FURTHER GROUND.

LONDON, Sept. 18.
In small operations on the Somme front last night the British gained further ground, the war office announced to-day. The general situation remains unchanged. The announcement says: South of Ancre we improved our positions also north of Martinpuich and east of Courcellette. A minor attack, made last night upon elements of enemy trenches, was entirely successful. Our line has been advanced appreciably at this point.

BRITISH AEROPLANE RAID.

LONDON, Sept. 18.
A raid by British naval aeroplanes on German aerodromes at St. Denis and West Rhein is reported in an official statement, issued by the war office. The statement says: Yesterday afternoon a squadron of four naval aeroplanes carried out a further attack on enemy aerodromes at St. Denis and West Rhein. A large number of bombs were dropped with successful results. One of our machines was obliged to make a forced landing in Holland, and the pilot has been interned.

GERMAN LOSSES.

PARIS, Sept. 18.
Prisoners state that enormous losses have been sustained by some of the German formations. The statement says that two battalions were almost annihilated by the French artillery. The Germans lost heavily in several counter-attacks north and south of the Somme last night, the war office announced to-day. The French maintained the ground recently won and made further progress near Clercy and Berry and on the eastern edge of Denicourt.

GREEK PREMIER'S DECLARATION.

ATHENS, Sept. 16. (Delayed).
Nikolaos Kalageropoulos, the new Premier, made the following declaration to-day: The new ministry will follow benevolent, very benevolent neutrality toward the Entente. It will decide its attitude in other respects after examination of the situation and studying diplomatic documents. Kalageropoulos indignantly repudiated any suggestion that he is pro-German in his sympathies. The cabinet was sworn in at noon.

THE GREEK SITUATION.

ATHENS, Sept. 18.
There was much excitement at the British Legation to-day when a Greek officer, who had applied for permission to go to Athens, feeling that he had not received the consideration due to his rank, called out the Greek guard. Premier Kalageropoulos announced to-day that the new ministry had assumed responsibility before the country for its acts. The cabinet evidently accepts the note presented by the Entente Powers last June in the same spirit as the previous cabinet. The note referred to said that the Entente Powers did not require Greece to abandon neutrality, but demanded demobilization of the Greek army, the formation of a non-political Government, and the holding of general elections after demobilization, so as to restore the electorate bodies to normal conditions.

TURKISH ATTEMPT FRUSTRATED.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 18.
An attempt by the Turks to make an attack in the region of the village of Adisa on the Caucasian front was frustrated by our fire, says an official to-day. On the western Russian and Gallician fronts there were no events of importance.

MAIL CONFERENCE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.
A conference between the British Embassy officials and representatives of important American firms, which have suffered from the British mail censorship, is being arranged by the Embassy, with a view to working out some plan to expedite the handling of commercial mail through the censor's office.

BERLIN REPORT.

BERLIN, Sept. 18.
Hamburg is emulating the example set by England. German shipping men have formed a nation-wide shipping company, which will immediately begin to construct a series of 8,000 ton steamers for Germany's freight-carrying trade after the war.

THE N. Y. RAILWAY TROUBLE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.
Repeated attacks from roofs were made on passing elevated trains during the early hours of to-day by persons armed with stones and bottles. These missiles crashed through car windows and several passengers were injured. The normal service on the subway and elevated lines is being operated to-day according to police reports.

FRENCH CAPTURE FLORINA.

PARIS, Sept. 18.
Florina, an important town in northwestern Macedonia, was carried by assault by the French troops to-day, according to an official issued to-night. The Bulgarians are retiring in disorder in the direction of Monastir, the statement adds. The Serbian troops have gained successes in the region of Lake Ostrovo.

ANOTHER STRIKE THREATENED.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 18.
The mastricht Les Neuvilles says that a general strike of miners throughout the Belgian coal fields is in progress. The miners are asking for an increase in wages commensurate with the high price of food.

SERIES OF BATTLES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 18.
News of a series of battles in the general neighborhood of Halicz, in Galicia, ends an almost unprecedented period of quiet extending along the Russian fronts, except that in Asia Minor, where the Turks, without marked success, are repeating their efforts to launch an offensive against the left flank of the Russian Caucasian army. Thus, after weeks of suspended activity, General Brusiloff has resumed his campaign against Lemberg and Halicz, which obstructs the way to that city from the southeast. It is again subjected to most violent pressure by the Russians, who are throwing the most weight of their attack north of Halicz, on the Narajovka river, where they are attempting to cut the railway from Halicz along the Narajovka to Podvysk. It is believed by Russian officials here that the left flank of the army of the German General Von Bothmer will soon be obliged to give way before the ferocity of the Russian onslaught, leaving the way to Halicz open from the north.

Hr. Grace Notes.

A very large number of workmen arrived from Bell Island on Saturday, the Port Saunders making two trips. The workmen returned to the Island yesterday afternoon.

Mr. S. Crocker, R.N.R., is here on furlough, and will remain a month with his wife and family.

A horse, said to belong to a Mr. G. Adams, of Bear's Cove, was killed by the train at the station here this morning.

Miss Susie Parsons, daughter of Mr. Edward Parsons, M.H.A., leaves in a few days for St. John's where she will study with Miss Dawson of St. Hilda's Lodge.

Miss Jessie Sheppard, who spent two weeks on Bell Island with her sister, Mrs. Proudfoot, returned home on Friday last.

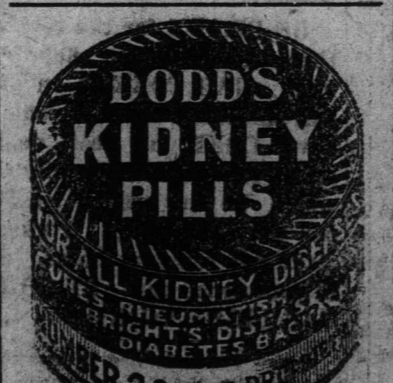

A popular young lady of the West End has just received a beautiful gold band about the size of a lady's finger. It came all the way from White Horse, Yukon Territory and the other party to the agreement is an equally popular young man, also of the West End of this town, but who has been residing in the gold regions for a couple of years. Congratulations.

Another of our fair ones residing in the East End is contemplating leaving this town for Boston next year, where a well-to-do Harbor Gracian will spend his days in making her happy. Congratulations in advance and very best wishes.

Now Stated Definitely Bremen Has Been Sunk

Ten Days Overdue at American Port—Had Passed British Patrol—Succeeded in Eluding Allied Net After Several Unsuccessful Attempts.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—The merchant submarine Bremen, passed the British Channel patrol, and was due to arrive in America's waters ten days ago. Its failure to put in an appearance by this time practically convinces naval experts that she has been lost at sea.

This information was given to the New York Herald's correspondent yesterday from an official and unquestionably authentic source. It is learned that the Bremen successfully completed the first and most hazardous stage of her trans-Atlantic journey. She was later in her schedule than the captain of the submarine Deutschland predicted while he was in the United States, and this is accounted for on the ground that she was obliged to make several attempts to elude the British patrol.

But it is now known definitely that the Bremen did get past the British patrol, and that the Admiralty fully expected to hear of her arrival in the United States. Granting to her a maximum for the journey, it is said she should have arrived in American waters ten days ago. The only explanation of her non-appearance is that she has met with some mishap and has been lost. It is not believed now that her fate ever will be certainly known.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

The remarkable economy of the incandescent gas lamp is by no means either its chief—or even an important—claim for popularity. It meets better than any other source of artificial light the requirements of ideal light.

In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of artificial daylight the gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp.

This quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential where the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, displaying haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc. the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

Of all the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important is its favorable effect upon the eyes. The development of artificial daylight the gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp. This quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential where the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, displaying haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc. the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

Can Hindenburg Win?

London Daily Mail.—As for Marshal Hindenburg, that he can work any change in the general position is not to be credited. The simple, straightforward, heroic policy which Grant adopted in 1864—65—though only after terrific effort and agony—of hammering perpetually on every front all the time is one against which Hindenburg has no charm. We may or not believe that the age of miracles is passed, but, if there are any, will they be on the side of the men who have trodden right and law and mercy under foot? The Germans will find that their demi-god is simply a pathetic, truculent Prussian Junker—a puppet manoeuvred by that astute officer General Ludendorff. The first problem which he has to solve is the provision of men for 750 miles of new front created by Rumania's action. Each lengthening of the front tends in favor of the Allies because it increases the chance of returning to a war of manoeuvres and aggravates the strain on the enemy's reserves. Can an amateur at the business of war direction—as Hindenburg is—succeed where Falkenhayn, who was Germany's most accomplished professor, has so dismally failed?

An entertaining if unkindly story about Lord Curzon reaches me. It is said that Lord Curzon telephoned to Lord Curzon replied slowly, "Lord

FILLING IRISH REGIMENTS.

Lord Derby seems to have spent an interesting afternoon recently with the Unionist and Liberal War Committees. The proceedings were quite informal. The Under-Secretary told the meeting that owing to the exclusion of Ireland from the Military Service Act the Irish regiments were being filled up by Englishmen and Scotchmen. One effect of the operation of that Act in Scotland was, he said, that the Highland regiments were able to obtain an adequate supply of Highlanders, and the assurance was given that, so far as was possible, Scotchmen would be drafted into Scottish regiments.

ces which have wickedly plunged Europe into war. Since the war began the Kaiser and his army have found in him an apologist after their own hearts.

GIPSY SOLDIERS.

It is a novelty to see a gipsy in khaki, but the net of military service has been spread so wide that the dark-eyed, horse-dealing, roving youth, in whose lingo Borrow revealed, are called upon to take their part with the Forces of the Crown. Some of them were to be seen in the neighborhood of Mitcham, where the annual fair has drawn the show people from all over the country. It seemed rather strange to watch these young men, who had formerly slouched about in garments of an unshapely cut, carrying themselves with military smartness and pride. They have the physique of the soldier, and, accustomed to all weathers, they need no seasoning to the rigors of campaigning. Perhaps it is too much to expect that the discipline of the Army will teach them the advantages of a settled life. The Romany folks, since they set out on their travels centuries ago, have never reconciled themselves to a protracted stay in any one spot, and it is unlikely that Army life will break their roving disposition.

MORE SHIPBUILDING ACTIVITY.

Of late—in fact, ever since the battle off the Jutland coast—there has, I hear, been a much easier shipbuilding situation, and much more progress has been made with mercantile work. On the Clyde, on the Tyne, and at other centres more steamers are being launched. Very little is heard about new contracts, but all the principal firms were fully booked up a long time ago. At the moment, of course, the shortage of skilled labor and of materials is, I understand, hindering progress but nevertheless more headway is now being made than at any time since the outbreak of war.

Moreover, there have been improvements and extensions of shipyards to such an extent that when conditions are again normal British establishments will be in a position to increase their output and to deal effectively with foreign competition, who have greatly enlarged their operations during the past two years.
I hear that the new concern at Chesterton on the Wye, which intends to build ships on a standardized system, will not be able to work for some time yet, but the works are in hand, and an old-established yard close to the new site has also been acquired.

IS LONDON IN RUINS?

Some people abroad still need to be persuaded that London is not a ruined town, and that Londoners do not skulk in cellars. To-night I met a doctor who is tending wounded at a big suburban military hospital. He told me that he had among his patients a wounded German officer, an intelligent and well-educated man, who speaks English. The German looked out of the window towards the town to-day. "This isn't London," he said, "you needn't try to deceive me.
Our Zeppelins have wrecked London."
When the German is convalescent he will be driven around the Bank and Tower Bridge before he starts for a prison camp.

SEEN IN THE PARK.

Quite a crop of interesting little novelties in footwear have appeared in the park and Bond Street during the last few days. Some of the very
of a settled life. The Romany folks,
since they set out on their travels
centuries ago, have never reconciled
themselves to a protracted stay in any one spot, and it is unlikely that Army life will break their roving disposition.

Have a Good Complexion, The Flower of Good Health

The true secret of complexion lies in the blood. Keep it rich, pure, nutritious, and, above all, keep the system regular. No aid to complexion compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.
They tone and enrich the blood, clear the system of waste products, promote good digestion, and, in short, establish sound health, which, after all, is the keynote to all happiness and well-being. Don't delay; the charm of a lovely complexion and all the blessings of health are yours, once you employ this old-time family remedy.
All dealers sell Hamilton's Pills in 25c. boxes.

smartest women have discovered that white stockings are the thing to wear with the still popular coat dress. The latter in its autumn guise is shorter than ever and the very considerable expanse of ankle between the hem of the coat dress and the neat black patented leather shoe is now filled by snow white hose, the effect being Early Victorian. In fact the coat itself, the most modern of garments in name, is really very reminiscent of the pelisse worn by the woman of fashion in the early Nineteenth Century. Another footwear fad much in evidence is the stocking which appears to have a lattice-work design in flowers interwoven in the semi-transparent black silk. A length of pretty flowered ribbon, an inch or less in width, is passed round the foot, and criss-crossed round the ankle before the stocking is put on, and so the dainty effect is achieved.

A RAINBOW OVER FLEET STREET.

The domestic affairs of Fleet Street are not necessarily of interest to the outside world, but I cannot refrain from recording that on a recent night there was a most brilliant rainbow over Fleet Street. The oldest policeman on this historic beat could not remember any such beautiful apparition in his time. The rainbow was of strong, hard colours, not so much radiant as delicate and strong, like a three-line heading. It did not melt luminously into the brilliant eastern sky, but rather withdrew, as if it had changed its mind, thinking that Fleet Street was not worthy of it. It had brightened the gilt on the signs of the "Sporting Life," and for a moment seemed like a great nimbus for the big projecting clock of the "Daily Telegraph," but it would not make an arc over the high, swallow-blue dome of St. Paul's for all one's wishing.
Still, it was a rainbow over Fleet St., and the moral of it, which was pointed out by the oldest policeman, was, "Well, Fleet Street ought to have some good news for us to-night." So be it!
Fleet Street has seen many strange things in these two years. On the night of the 3rd August, 1914, the street was very still, and some journalists standing at Serjeants' Inn saw a mouse creep from the shelter across the street and disappear in the Inn.
Some time later the lights went down
(as in a ghost story) at the word "Zeppelin," and we could see the stars over Fleet Street, and a fiery Orion with his belt and sword over the "Daily News" office in Boyer's Street. Now we have "a rainbow at night, the shepherd's delight."

THE QUEEN OF NORWAY.

Our "Princess Maud," the Queen of Norway, is said to feel very keenly the fact that neither she nor her husband, King Haakon of Norway, nor their only son, has been able to come to England since the outbreak of the war. The Queen of Norway is intensely devoted to her own country, and feels the loss of her yearly visit very greatly. So do Queen Alexandra and our King. Queen Maud is taking an interest in the education of Prince Olaf, who is said to be Queen Alex-andra's favorite grandchild. He is developing into a fine-looking youth, with an aptitude for study, and a taste for the democratic life his parents lead. Queen Maud is a great horsewoman, too, and misses the hounds and the grass rides of her native land.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS AND THE FRANCHISE.

Though the Special Register Bill is not to be considered in Committee until the autumn sitting, amendments are beginning to crowd the Commons order paper. Those members who keenly contest the claims of the conscientious objector to refuse in any way to serve his country in time of war are already "out for blood"; and, while Colonel Yate would seek to attain his desired end by keeping on the electoral roll every qualified man who "has never claimed exemption from service on the ground of conscientious objection," Mr. Ronald McNeill wishes to insert the plain proviso that "notwithstanding anything in the Acts relating to the registration of electors or in this Act, no person who has obtained exemption from combatant military service under the Military Service Act 1915 on the ground of conscientious objection to military service shall be entitled to be registered as a Parliamentary or local government elector on the new registers." In the present temper of the House of Commons, and if the vote could be taken by ballot, either or both of these proposals would be far more likely to be carried than that of Mr. Dickinson, an old and determined advocate of a female franchise, admitting women to the suffrage on precisely the same terms as men. It would be no surprise, however, if a very different measure to the existing Special Register Bill is seriously considered by the Commons in October.

"STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE" ENDS.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded again last evening, patrons being anxious to see the final chapter of the thrilling love serial "The Strange Case of Mary Page." The episode was entitled "The Verdict" and disclosed the murderer of David Pollock for which Mary Page had been on trial. All present were pleased with the ending scenes of the picture. "Crooky" was a very funny comedy with Frank Daniels in the leading role. This evening the programme will be repeated and no doubt there will be crowded houses again. Don't fail to see "The District Attorney" to-morrow.

Trackman Suffers Compound Fracture of the Leg.

George Westcott, trackman, aged 48 years, living near Twenty Mile Pond, met with a very painful accident yesterday afternoon on Duckworth Street. He was driving his horse which was attached to a box cart, having been engaged hauling coal from the premises of Hynes & Co. In some unaccountable way he fell off the cart and one of the heavy wheels passed over his right leg near the thigh and badly battered it. The victim was picked up and driven to the police station in a cab where he was examined by Dr. Tait. An examination showed that Westcott suffered from a compound fracture. The doctor at once ordered the patient to hospital whither he was taken in the ambulance.

Novices Leave.

By the s.s. Sable I. last evening there left Miss Madge Malone, daughter of Mr. Philip Malone, King's Bridge Road, en route to Minnesota, Minn., U.S.A., where she will enter a convent to become a religious. She was accompanied by five other young ladies, belonging to various parts of this country, who will also study for the religious life. The novices were secured by two nuns, who were here a couple of months and who are nieces of Mrs. John Flynn, who superintends the watering of all shipping in this port.

Ladies' Coats,
FOR FALL AND WINTER NOW SHOWING AT BLAIR'S

Our Values are Absolutely the Best Obtainable.

This year's style in Coats is distinctive. The Coat with the flare (or wide) skirt is the mode. Coats this year are either without belts or come with a half belt effect. This is quite different from last season's Military Coat, which had a belt all round and was much tighter in the skirt.

Despite increasing cost of Coats, through rising prices of materials, and the fashions demanding more cloth in each, we are enabled to offer you the NEWEST GOODS at the LOWEST PRICES. This we are enabled to do by our early contracts and also by our moderate margin of profit, which has built us up such a successful coat business, as it is well known our values are the best.
