"A FOOL THERE WAS"

WE ADVISED HIM TO PROTECT HIS HOME AND BELONGINGS WITH AN INSURANCE POLICY, BUT HE HESITATED—FINALLY REJECTED OUR WARNING. THEN THERE WAS A FIRE—CAUSE UNKNOWN. ALL HIS EARTHLY POSSESSIONS WERE DESTROYED—HIS LIFE SAVINGS LOST. HE WAS LEFT DEPENDENT ON THE KINDNESS OF FRIENDS—CHARITY. NOT A VERY BRIGHT OUTLOOK. BUT WHAT ABOUT YOU! IS YOUR PROPERTY ADEQUATELY PROTECTED? IF NOT LET US ISSUE A POLICY TO COVER YOU TO-DAY, AND SO GUARD AGAINST SUCH A CONTINGENCY.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER: Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying at her with intense pity and compassion, felt all the helplessness a man usually feels in presence of a crisis de morte.

But through it all one thing struck him, that she did not now shrink from him as she had done in the waiting-room at Lines, that she rather yielded to his arm, and let her weary head rest against his shoulder, as if it were good for it to be there, that the little hands clasped him with convulsive force for a moment, and that if they fell away then, it was from failing power, not from repulsion. And when at last, from sheer exhaustion, the sobs ceased and the gasping breath came more evenly, though very feebly, she rested against him as a weary child worn out with suffering might rest against its mother's breast.

The Mystery of Rutledge Hall

"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XXXIV.

She had to change twice, the guard told her, and she would have a long wait at one of the stations; but she was on her way at last—at last!

It began to snow soon after they left the outskirts of London; and, as the day wore on, it came down more and more thickly.

At Bishopstow, where Sidney had to wait, the snow lay thickly on the station roofs and on the surrounding country, and her heart sunk with fear as she thought that the train might be delayed by snow-drifts, and that she would not reach her destination that night.

She was cold and weary and faint; but she never thought of obtaining any refreshment, although Bishopstow station was a large one and there was a refreshment-room to which most of the passengers hastened as soon as they left the train. Sidney sat by the waiting-room window, longing to go on her way once more.

The train came up, its red lights gleaming, its carriage-roofs white with snow. Sidney hastened, as fast as her trembling limbs would allow her, to the nearest carriage, and got in stumblingly and awkwardly in her agitation. One gentleman was its occupant; he was leaning back in one corner of the carriage, his coat well pulled up about his ears, and he was reading by the light of a little travelling lamp, which threw its light upon the grave, handsome, rather worn face. He did not glance up from his book as Sidney got into the compartment of which he had been the sole possessor. Apparently his fellow-traveller had no interest for him; and it was only when the door had been shut and the train was once more on its way that Sidney glanced over at the quiet absorbed face, and then a little cry—half of joy, half of fear—broke from her. She held out both her little trembling hands toward him, uttering his name—"Stephen!"—and then sunk forward, half swooning, half sobbing, at his feet.

CHAPTER XXXV.

For a moment Stephen Daunt was so overcome with surprise at the unexpected appearance of his wife that, without moving, he stared at her over his book, half uncertain whether he was not dreaming, whether he had not fallen asleep in the carriage can coiled up the beautiful, pale face of the woman who was rarely absent from his thoughts; but the surprise was only momentary, and gave place to alarm as he saw how terribly agitated she was, how the little trembling hands clung to him for a moment and then fell away in their weakness, how the slender form quivered and shook like one stricken and wounded unto death.

Stephen Daunt had all a man's and an Englishman's horror of scenes, and since his marriage he had had enough and to spare. Life had been quite a tragic business, he thought wearily, ever since that June morning when he had made Sidney his wife. It was not her fault, poor child, since so long as she had been well, she had been calm and languid and self-passioned as a queen; but there had been that scene in the waiting-room, at Lines which had preceded her serious illness; and now, when he had thought her safe in Brighton with his aunt and Dolly, she made an unexpected appearance in a railway-compartment of which—fortunately, most fortunately—she was the only other occupant.

All these thoughts passed like lightning through his brain, as, lifting her tenderly in his arms, he placed her upon the cushions of the carriage, and still holding her within his arm, tried to soothe her with a few gently-spoken words.

But all power of self-control had deserted her; the intense relief she felt at sight of her husband safe and free as yet, the self-reproach she had exercised so long, which had cost her such an effort, the agitation, the long night's vigil, the anxiety and suspense, had broken her down; she could not have spoken a word to save her life or Stephen's. She lay back against the cushions, supported by his arm, sobbing, gasping, trembling, and exhausted, fighting against her emotion as best she could, poor child, but utterly powerless to overcome it. She was not weeping; there were no tears in the great burning eyes or on the pale cheeks, and the sobs were great dry, choking sobs which shook the slender frame within his arm with a force which seemed as if it must kill her; while Stephen, looking at her with intense pity and compassion, felt all the helplessness a man usually feels in presence of a crisis de morte.

But through it all one thing struck him, that she did not now shrink from him as she had done in the waiting-room at Lines, that she rather yielded to his arm, and let her weary head rest against his shoulder, as if it were good for it to be there, that the little hands clasped him with convulsive force for a moment, and that if they fell away then, it was from failing power, not from repulsion. And when at last, from sheer exhaustion, the sobs ceased and the gasping breath came more evenly, though very feebly, she rested against him as a weary child worn out with suffering might rest against its mother's breast.

"Now, dear, can you tell me what the matter is?" he said, after a pause, as they sped onward through the gathering gloom of the wintry dusk. "How is it you are here and alone? Is this the care they have been taking of you at Brighton? Surely they must have seen and known that you were utterly unfit for such a journey?"

"They did not know I was coming," she answered, faintly, pausing between each word as they fell slowly from her white and tremulous lips.

"Have you run away again then?" he said, in the gently chiding tone one might expect to a spoiled child.

"No," she whispered.

"Where were you going, dear?" he asked, bending his face down over hers as he spoke, and putting his strong hand over the little trembling helpless fingers upon her lap.

"I was coming—to you!"

Her voice was so low and faint that the words were almost inaudible; but they thrilled Stephen Daunt with joy. She was coming to him! Could it be that at last she had learned to love him, to appreciate his love for her, and that brighter day was dawning for them after the long dark night of distrust and pain?

"You were coming to me, Sidney?" he replied softly, drawing her still closer to his side. "You wanted me then? Why did you not send or telegraph, dear child? I would have come to you so gladly—how gladly you will never know, Sidney."

"I—I dared not!" she whispered; and, turning her face suddenly, she hid it against him, pressing it against his fur-lined coat with a sudden passionate pain.

"You dared not," he echoed, in a voice so full of tender reproach that it almost destroyed Sidney's composure—"You dared not. Why? Surely you were not afraid of me, my child?"

"No, no—wait!" she murmured, still with her face hidden. "Give me a little time—and I will tell you—if you need telling. I have no strength—and yet—I must find strength—or it may be—too late!"

"Too late! What did she mean? Stephen wondered, with a curious dread. Did she think she was going to die, poor foolish girl? And yet was the thought such a foolish one? She had been so ill, and was still so far from strong, that this great agitation and subsequent exhaustion must be terribly weakening and hurtful to her. Desperately the poor woman struggled against her exhaustion, knowing how precious the time was and how she was losing it; but she could not find strength to speak, to tell her husband of his danger, to confess that she believed him guilty of a dreadful crime. Two or three times she tried to utter the words of warning, and once she tried to say, but the words died away on her white lips, and she pressed against him like a wounded thing, conscious, indeed, yet utterly strengthless and exhausted.

Some People Have Funny Ideas

What do you think Carnation Milk is like? Do you think it is "thick as molasses in January"? It isn't. Do you think it is syrupy sweet? It isn't. Do you think it has a funny taste? It hasn't. Do you think something is "put in" to make it keep? There isn't. Do you think some of the food value is taken out? It isn't.

Pure Milk in a modern package—that's all. Carnation Milk is just pure milk with part of the natural water content taken off by evaporation. All the food value of full-cream milk is left in. No artificial sweetening or other preservative is added.

Each can is hermetically sealed and sterilized to keep its contents pure, sweet, and utterly safe.

Carnation Milk is a great aid to better baking because of its convenience and richness. Always ready for use on your pantry shelf—none is wasted because it keeps sweet for several days when opened. Sold by grocers everywhere—order several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

CARNATION BREAD
1 1/2 cups water, 1/2 cup Carnation milk, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 table-spoons shortening, 7 cups flour, 1 cake compressed yeast, 1 teaspoon sugar. Sift yeast into a small amount of lukewarm water. Measure the sugar into a measuring cup into a mixing bowl. Add the milk and water. When lukewarm add the yeast and mix thoroughly. When stiff enough to handle, turn the dough on a floured board and knead with hands and elbows. Put into a bowl, cover and let rise in a warm place about one and one-half hours or until double in bulk, then divide into loaves and put in baking pans. Cover and let stand in a warm place about one hour or until it has doubled in bulk, then bake about forty-five minutes. This makes two loaves of bread.

SUNSHINE CAKES
3 egg whites, 1 cup sugar, 7 egg yolks, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon orange or lemon extract. Beat the yolks of eggs thoroughly. Sift flour twice, with sugar once. Beat whites until foamy, add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold sugar in lightly, add beaten yolks then mix thoroughly and put in a warm place about one hour or until it has doubled in bulk, then bake about forty-five minutes. This makes two loaves of bread.

General Charteris on False British Propaganda—His Story Disproved.

Indignation and astonishment have been caused in this country by the statements which Brigadier-General John Charteris, Conservative M.P. for Dumfriesshire, is said to have made at the National Arts Club in New York. He is reported to have alleged that the British Staff invented as propaganda the story that Germany in 1916 and 1917 was boiling down the bodies of soldiers in order to obtain fat for making glycerine which was to be used in ammunition.

The following is the report of the speech, published by the Times: According to General Charteris, the story began as propaganda for China. By transposing the caption from one of two photographs found on German prisoners to the other he gave the impression that the Germans were making a dreadful use of the bodies of their own dead soldiers.

This photograph he sent to a Chinese newspaper in Shanghai. He told the familiar story of its later republication in England and of the discussion it created there. He told, too, how when a question put in the House was referred to him he answered it by saying that from what he knew of German mentality, he was prepared for anything.

Later, said General Charteris, in order to support the story, what purported to be the diary of a German soldier was forged in his office.

It was planned to have this discovered on a dead German by a war correspondent with a passion for German diaries, but the plan was never carried out. The diary was now in the War Museum in London.

"Hitting Below the Belt." General Charteris was Director of Military Intelligence in France in 1916 and 1917, down to the close of the Third Battle of Ypres, having been promoted, when 39, in January 1916, to succeed General Macdonagh.

According to the Daily News New York correspondent, he has admitted that the report of his statement was accurate and that the statement was made in a lecture for which he was to show the dangers of propaganda, so as to prevent its use in future years and to prove "how easily it gets out of hand and degenerates into hitting below the belt."

Search at the War Museum has so far failed to reveal the "forged diary" to which the original report of this extraordinary speech referred.

General Charteris, who was in charge of the War Office military propaganda during the war, stated last night that the War Office were clearly not responsible for the corpse factory story. Their policy during the war was to give as accurate an account of the British effort as was possible, and not to give currency to any statement concerning the enemy unless it was believed to be true.

It is understood that a serious view of General Charteris's statement is taken by the War Office, and it is certain that matters will not be allowed to rest where they are.

Origin in Germany.

The report that the Germans were utilizing human corpses arose from the statements of the German Press itself. On April 19, 1917, the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger published an article from its war correspondent before Rheims referring to "the great corpse-conversion establishment at Everaumont." The word used was "Kadaver-Verwertungsanstalt." Similar statements appeared in other German newspapers.

An order issued by the Command of the 8th German Army, dated December 21, 1916, was captured about this time and photographically reproduced. One of its sections ran:

Delivery to the Corpses Utilization Establishments: It is necessary again to call attention to the fact that when corpses are delivered to the Corpses Utilization Establishments details are to accompany as to which troops units they are from the date of death, illness, and information as to any epidemics.

The Germans maintained that the order had reference to a factory for utilizing the bodies of dead horses, but the real truth has never been cleared up.

Turkish Women Unveil

In the middle of the first official dinner and dance at Angora, the Turkish capital, at which Cabinet Ministers, foreign Ambassadors, and many deputies were present, Mustafa Kemal Pasha, Turkish President, started the party by inviting all the Turkish women guests at a given signal to take off the silken Muslim head-dress which covers the neck and hair, and to which the veil is attached.

They eagerly complied, as a symbol of progressiveness.

Powerful Play Well Acted at Casino
"Sex Against Sex" Brilliantly Played By Balfour Co.

Last night at the Casino, the Balfour Stock Company gave another successful performance of that great production, "Sex Against Sex." This is an unusual type of bill, in that it is powerfully dramatic and tensely interesting. The plot commences right at the rise of first curtain and does not deviate one bit throughout the entire performance. The players score individually in the bill. The performance of Mr. J. E. Balfour, as Mr. Brazon, a widower, is characteristically excellent. His is the outstanding role which he plays with dramatic appeal. Miss Loretta Nicholson is charming as Rosamond. Her acting is realistic, her enunciation perfect and her interpretation is beautiful. Mr. Billy Phillips again scored big, this time as Lord Petworth, an English Baron. His accent of the Englishman is flawless. Chas. D. Hiser appears in the popular role of Ned Annesley, which he plays in his usual manner. Mr. Hiser does not act, but lives the part every minute he is on the stage. Mr. Valmore Balfour gave a creditable account of himself as Sir Richard Curstior. The remaining characters are well played by Fred Sharkey, Lillian Hampton, W. W. Hankins, Marie Fisher, Jack McKenna and Ollie Newcome.

A delightful programme of vaudeville was rendered between each act. Mr. Jack McKenna, the new arrival to the Balfour Stock Co., delighted the audience by his brilliant recitation of Kipling's "Gunga Din," in which he proved beyond a doubt that he is an unusual elocutionist.

Seats are now selling for "Twin Beds" which is the hit for the remainder of the week. Attention is called to the fact that "The Unwanted Child" will be played for the first three days of next week, and as there is going to be a rush for seats for this powerful moral drama, reservations can be made this week.

The latter young lady, however, was by no means dilatory in her yesterday's canvass and added to her already large total 1,075 votes. Truly, therefore, there are ups and downs in this world, and to-day's pollings will be watched with interest by the large number of citizens who have been following the voting closely. Just Folks.
By EDGAR GUEST.

THE CONSOLATION OF THE FUTURE.

You're bound to come to laughter
If you'll trudge your way along
Some day your heart will lighten
To the music of a song.
So keep your faith and brave the pain
And brush away your tears.
You're bound to come to sunshine
And the peace of other years.

Keep walking toward the hill top,
Though just now the road seems steep.
For ever heart must suffer grief
And every eye must weep.
But face the distant future,
With the courage of your prayer,
You'll walk away from sorrow,
And you'll walk away from care.

What though to-day be dreary
And the mist is in your eyes
Somewhere along the future
Shall the sun in splendor rise.
And though this morn you doubt it
As you stumble on in pain,
Keep walking toward your loved ones,
You will come to them again.

LADIES & GENTLEMEN—As you were kind enough to give me your valued support on the many previous occasions I sought election at your hands, I have decided to again solicit your esteem and confidence for four years more as one of your civic representatives.

During the several terms I have had the great honor of being a member of the Municipal Council Board I have consistently practiced the policy of conforming to your desires in so far as the civic revenues permitted. I shall be very pleased indeed to again do my utmost towards bringing about many more essential improvements that are still necessary, and, therefore, feel that as you have so highly approved of my civic record in the past you will be pleased to again remember me on polling day.

A SPECIAL WORD TO THE LADY VOTERS.

You may have many friends to choose from ladies, but as a special favor will each one of you please be kind enough to record a vote for me.

3rd TIME.

THIS IS MY THIRD TIME OF ASKING.

That my actions at the Council Board the first time, were appreciated, over eleven hundred people testified at the last election, and now at the request of a majority of those electors, I have again decided to comply with their request, and to ask you Ladies and Gentlemen voters, for a continuation of that confidence at the coming election. Should I again be elected, I will pledge myself to help carry out to the best of my ability, any sane scheme that will tend to the making this my native town a brighter, better and cleaner city, having due regard to the cost to those who will have to pay for it.

A word in season, however. Should those contemplated improvements be carried out, I am convinced that extra taxation will have to be put on an already overtaxed people, for I am one with Mayor Cook who, a short time ago told the people that they cannot make brick without straw.

Thanking you in anticipation, yours truly,

Constance Learns to Love—Too Well

If you are curious to see how the divorce mills of Paris grind out decrees for American heiresses, you have the opportunity in Constance Talmadge's new picture, "Learning to Love," at the Star Theatre.

Constance, as a sub-deb just out of boarding school, thought she had learned to love. Her flashing eyes and piquant personality had wrought havoc with the hearts of her college boy admirers and she gloried in the fact that she was engaged to three of them at once.

Then, with the appearance of Augusto Moreno, in the role of her Guardian, she experiences a feeling she cannot diagnose. It happens to be the true kind of love which Constance had never learned.

There marriage is followed by a threatened scandal, resulting from the enraged protestations of her forgotten fiancées, and her husband, in order to save her, refuses to live with her. It is then Constance rushes to Paris and the divorce mills start grinding on her case.

All ends happily, of course, but not until Constance has undergone some thrilling as well as screamingly funny episodes which bring "Learning to Love" into the forefront of her comedies.

Others in the cast include Emily Fitzroy, Edythe Chapman, Johnny Harron, Ray Hallor, Alf Goulding, Wallace MacDonald, Byron Munson and Edgar Norton.

Dry Officers Ask Seizure of Liner

Customs Squad Fire on Speed Boat Seen Leaving Orizoba.

New York, Nov. 12. (A.P.)—Seizure of the steamship Orizoba, worth more than $1,500,000, by the Government as a rum runner, was recommended by customs officials yesterday. The recommendation followed seizure after a running gun battle in the East River of a rum-laden speed boat said to have been engaged in transporting liquor from the Orizoba to some point along the shore. Numerous reports of liquor coming into this city from Havana, have been received by the authorities and when the Orizoba arrived Tuesday from Cuba customs men were stationed to watch the ship. The special service squad of customs inspectors observing a launch alongside the liner gave chase and fired more than 40 shots. They declared they were fired on in return. Two men leaped into the water as the launch approached the dock and another leaped to the dock. All made their escape. One hundred demijohns of rum were seized on the craft.

Assistant Solicitor of Customs Barnes immediately recommended to United States Attorney Buckner that the large vessel, which arrived yesterday from Havana, be seized. If proceedings are instituted against the Orizoba, it will be the first time the Government has sought to libel so large a steamship for a prohibition-law violation.

C.L.B. Birthday

Celebration

The anniversary celebration of the Newfoundland Regiment, C.L.B., was held in the Synod Hall last night, in the form of a recital and concert programme. It was the annual tea given on the Brigade's anniversary on the occasion of the Brigade's anniversary which occurred on November 11th, St. Martin's Day and also Armistice Day. About 400 lads sat down to the bounteous spread provided by the kind ladies. The Major, Herbert Outerbridge, M.B.E., second in command, in the absence of Col. W. F. Rendell, C.B.E., who is out of town, made a capital chairman and conducted the programme. The contributions were songs by Mr. R. T. Bevan, A.R.C.O., Capt. S. S. Horsley, of Field College Company, and Lieut. E. Jerrett; splendid duet with tin whistle and spoons by Messrs. Hammond and Whidden, and recitation by Pte. Walter Tucker. The A. Company jazz band, under Bandmaster Fred Martin, was one of the features of the programme. Prof. Martin's jazz band was encored three times. Pte. Stevens recited and the balance of the programme was made up of contributions from the Battalion Brass Band, under Lieut. and Bandmaster E. Varasour; A quartette was a feature of the evening, and in this, Capt. Horsley, Lieut. Chatwood, Lieut. Jerrett, and one of the lads, took part.

At the close of the programme Major Outerbridge thanked the ladies for their kindness in catering for the lads once more, and also those who took part in the concert and who were all members of the Brigade with the exception of Mr. Bevan; the organist of the C. of E. Cathedral. All the lads spent a jolly evening, and the affair closed at 10 o'clock with the National Anthem.

Obituary

MRS. CATHERINE STAMP.

There are many who will learn with sincere regret of the passing early this morning, of Mrs. Catherine Stamp, wife of Mr. Richard Stamp, the well-known caretaker of the L.S.P.U. Hall. For some months past Mrs. Stamp has been ailing but two weeks ago she showed a big improvement and bright hopes were held out for her complete recovery. A few days ago, however, her condition changed again and despite all that medical skill could do, she passed to her reward at the above mentioned time, surrounded by her loved ones and fortified by the rites of her church. Deceased was a woman of exemplary character, who lived a life of peace with everyone and whose friendship was prized by many who knew her as one whose whole life was wrapped up in her home and her family. Left to mourn, besides her husband, are three daughters, Sister Mary Annundata, of the Convent, New Bedford, Mass.; Sister Mary Zita, of the Convent, at St. Gabriel's, N.Y., and Miss Bride, of the firm of S. Milley, Ltd., One son, Patrick, at home, and one brother, Mr. John Molloy and four sisters. To all these deepest sympathy will be extended in their bereavement. The funeral takes place from her late residence, Freshwater Road, on Friday afternoon.

MRS. MARY GADEN.

A cablegram has been received by friends in the city, announcing the death, at Montreal, on yesterday, the 17th instant, of Mrs. Mary Gaden, widow of the late Garland Gaden, formerly of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co., of this city. Following the death of her husband, some years ago, Mrs. Gaden, and her only surviving daughter, Emma, known in Religion as Sister Bonaventura, have resided in Canada. It is understood that the remains will be brought to St. John's for interment, early next week, of which further notice will be given.

THE ORDEAL OF BEING THANKED.

"Do you know the thing I dread the most about sitting at a tea or anything like that," said a girl who has a very sweet voice and is always being importuned by friends to sing at various functions, "is having people come up and tell me how much they like it."

"Don't you like to have them like it?" I asked.

"Of course I do, but how do I know they really like it. They're not to tell that, haven't they, if I sing for charity? What else could they do? Because it's so hard to know what to say return. I don't want to be blunt, and I don't want to be fatuous, and it's so difficult to steer between the two."

We've All Been There.

As if it weren't everyone in the world who knows that we all love to have compliments and we all hate to receive them.

A friend of mine has a style of compliment receiving that I think is excellent. She receives a compliment with a frank smile of pleasure. No pretense that she isn't pleased. No attempt at self-depreciation. "Do you really think so? I'm so glad. It's awfully kind of you to tell me so," or words to that effect. I don't mean that she always says those exact words but that is her line. And she says it in a hearty way that carries conviction.

I used the word hearty but perhaps warm would be better, or sincere. For I have heard other people use the same formula in a fat, insincere way that entirely failed to carry conviction. If you are going to say anything of that nature, say it with warmth and sincerity. Why shouldn't you? It is nice of people to tell you kind things. You are pleased and all you need to do is to show it frankly and pleasantly.

As A Handle For A Return Compliment.

Another woman I know has a gracious habit of using the compliment as a handle to say something pleasant to the giver. If someone praises her frock, she thanks her and then manages to say something of this general nature, "I'm glad you like it. I think it's going to be an awfully useful frock. I always admired that grey kasha you had last year and I think this will serve the same purpose." Or if her garden is admired, she thanks the admirer and presently says something about her wonderful luck with geraniums and asks if she may have a slip some day. (There are some things we are all willing to be asked for.)

Of course it takes some quick thinking and much tact to do this sort of thing. But tact is just the expression of the habit of feeling other people's feelings as well as your own. It is something that all the people who wish to be skilled in the art of social relations must cultivate. And whom does that not include?

Policy of Next Labor Government

MR. PHILIP SNOWDEN LOOKS AHEAD.

In a speech at a Labour meeting of Paisley, Mr. Philip Snowden spoke of the party's intention to pursue a Socialist policy if and when returned to office.

They were all familiar, he said, with the phrase which they often heard from certain quarters about the overthrow of the capitalist system. (A Voice: Hear, hear.) Mr. Snowden retorted to the "Hear, hear"—That observation would be far more educative if it were accompanied by some glimpse of a scheme by which the destruction of capitalism was to be achieved. The speaker added that the work of the next Labour Government must consist of carrying through or attempting to carry through great schemes which will gradually but fundamentally change the economic structure of society. The financial policy of the Labour Government would be to raise revenue by taxation on unearned wealth for social as well as financial reasons, and it would discourage by the instrument of taxation the transfer of huge fortunes to people which they themselves never did anything to earn.

Safeguarding of Industries. The safeguarding of industries by the present Government was a euphemism for old Protection. "It seems very likely that if this Government remains in office for two or three years longer prostituting their accidental majority they will impose upon this country a full-blown system of Protection." The Labour Party stood solid against Protective tariffs, but they were not in favour of permitting the importation of articles in this country the production of which were degrading to foreign workers.

WALT MATON

BUILT TO LAST.

Bilger built my stately dwelling, to protect me from the blast, and he said, "There is no telling just how long this house will last; but if cyclones do not break it, blowing it to distant spheres, and if earthquakes do not shake it, it will stand a thousand years. Your remote descendants, bragging, will remark to friends who come, 'Not a jot or ill is sagging, not a beam is out of plumb. Not for gingerbread or gilding did our noble fathers care; they were only keen on building houses that would last and wear.'" That was long ago, my masters, and the builder's rede seems true; other houses meet disasters, but my own's as good as new. Other houses are disbanding when the howling tempests blow, but my mansion still is standing, not a beamish does it know. Other houses burn like tinder, homes of wood and homes of bricks, but my stone walls seem to hinder all the fire fiend's choicest tricks. I should be a happy mortal, sunny smiles I ought to wear, but I do not sing or chortle as I climb the winding stair. For the house is out of fashion, it's a relic of the past; I denounce it with a passion that would make you stand aghast. There is no one who will buy it, there is no one who will rent; and the years that slither by it do not leave in it a dent. All in vain I make endeavor to be blitheome, glad and gay, for I'm doomed to live forever in a house that won't decay.

Enforce The Act

In the District Court yesterday sentence was imposed for drunkenness on a young man who had obtained liquor at the Controller's Department, although he was under the age at which the law permits an individual to be served. The Judge stated that five such cases had come under his notice within a week, and his remark that "such offences could not be committed without the co-operation of the Board" made it clear that he was not very favourably impressed with the manner in which it is functioning.

The comment is anything but a bouquet for the Board of Control, and we trust that it will be food for thought for the members who constitute it. The Judge does not condemn the system, it may be noted, but states his considered opinion that the Act is not being properly administered.

We feel that many will agree with His Honour. Without any doubt there is too much drunkenness observable, but whether it is in excess of that which prevailed under prohibition is a question which has yet to be proved, for it must not be forgotten that the law to-day renders an intoxicated man liable to arrest, whereas formerly he was seldom if ever interfered with unless guilty also of some other misdemeanor.

Several instances have been brought to our attention which would make it appear that the Department could act with greater effect than it does to prevent intemperance, which is after all its chief responsibility. The Alcoholic Liquors Act was not passed to encourage drinking nor yet to swell the revenue. It superceded the Prohibition Law because the latter was found to be unenforceable, because it violated a well recognized principle, and because it not only failed in its main purpose but encouraged a host of other evils, each as demoralizing as that which it was intended to suppress. The spirit of the present Act is to promote temperance, and the powers which it gives to those whose business it is to administer it are as comprehensive as possible. If, however, there is failure to apply those powers through incapacity, or disinclination, or through lack of a proper understanding with the officers of the law, the blame must rest with those authorities and measures must be taken to make them realize their duty. Public opinion is dead against intemperance, and it is the force of public opinion that must make its influence felt.

We are not aware that under the Act it was ever intended that an individual should be permitted to purchase a bottle of rum, gin, or whiskey and at the same time a bottle of wine or quantities of beer. We are informed on good authority that instances have occurred where individuals were sold in the Controller's stores more than one bottle a day of spirits, that is, "brandy, rum, whiskey, and gin among other things," as the law defines that term. We trust that the Controller can give a denial to this report as it constitutes a flagrant breach of the statute. It has come to our knowledge, however, that in a seizure of liquor in the West End more than a week ago it was discovered that such an irregularity had occurred. "Special regulations," the Act states, "to safeguard this rigid limitation shall be made by the Board." Have those regulations been made? Why has no prosecution immediately followed this seizure (which is the business of the Board), and the dismissal of the negligent official or officials however high, been ordered?

It appears to be a matter of little difficulty for one individual to procure liquor for another, and if such is the case, it is easy to see how the various safeguards provided in the act are being rendered useless. The qualification required by an official behind the counter in a controller's store is not salesmanship so much as vigilance, for without it he is a stumbling-block to the effective carrying out of the law. In connection with the liquor 'dispensed at the Controller's stores, we should like to be assured that the whole of the supplies sold are obtained through regular channels, and that none of the liquor is confiscated stock, an opinion which is not unfrequently expressed. Bootleggers' liquor carries no guarantee whatever of quality in spite of the labels with which the bottles may be adorned, and consists more often than not of adulterations or concoctions, compared with which genuinely manufactured stock is innocuous.

In our opinion the regulated sales which take place in these premises are far less responsible for the intemperance in the city than the beer dens and the resorts in which liquor is sold in defiance of the spirit of the law. The police claim that they are practically powerless to cope with the latter, as they are unable to secure evidence that will lead to a conviction. If there is such a loophole in the act, it is a matter for the authorities to find a way to close it, but the question is where such supplies are obtained. If they come through underground channels, there must be considerable laxity somewhere, and if, on the other hand, the vendors assert that the liquor has been purchased at the Government stores, it should be an easy matter to ascertain if their statements are correct or not.

The Act explicitly imposes this responsibility upon the Board under Section 4, as well as the investigation of every other contravention. Is there any misunderstanding between the Board and the police officials as to the respective duties of each, and if so why? Case after case has occurred in which a raid made by the latter has failed to result in a conviction. This fact must make it evident to the Board that there is something wrong somewhere, but it is their duty, and not that of the police, to find a way out of the difficulty, to find by the fullest co-operation of the authorities and by dealing with the drink question in the spirit which prompted the measure can the Act be made effective, and the principles of temperance upheld.

If Cabot Came Again

Long years ago, across the seas, there fared a hardy Genoese. Who sailing round discovered land. A rough, deserted, rugged strand.

That man was Cabot with his crew. Who to their land had said "Adieu." Little expecting to return again. Their home and loved ones to regain.

That land discovered was this, our own. On which those sailors then were blown? And as they viewed their strange command. At once they dubbed it New-Found-land.

But if Cabot would again come here. He'd march his troop to Cavendish Square. And in the building there they'd dwell. Guests at the Newfoundland Hotel.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

Nov. 17th.—My wife busy all this morning about the house, though why it is she should take a notion to clean it out at this time, God knows. I did forbid her to lay a hand upon my study, having papers there that I would not have her disturb, but do leave the house in dread of the state I shall find things in at my return.

This afternoon, to Water Street, and meeting Mr. Cowan that is lately come from England, he tells me how the Tattoo did save the exhibition at Wembley from much greater loss this year, being that night all the people that did visit the exhibition earlier in the year were of the poorer classes and could little afford to spend much money. Anon home, and to my great surprise, find my study has been left alone, but do discover the reason of it is that my wife goes with Mrs. Povey to a sale, and so forgets her house work. Home all this night, and reading in a strange novel by D. Collins, mighty different from aught I have ever read.

The New Chrysler Six, with Startling New Results.

Startling new results are attained in the new Chrysler Six—results made possible by the kind of engineering and manufacturing genius which never rests satisfied.

Walter P. Chrysler and his staff of brilliant engineers, with the fine Chrysler manufacturing facilities, had every excuse—every reason, some might say—to rest on the laurels their cars have won. Inevitably, the great tide of public approval would have carried the Chrysler Six to still more conspicuous success.

But Mr. Chrysler, his producing organization and his engineers have never relaxed for a moment their labors to emphasize and enhance its wonderful performance qualities.

The most surprising thing about the greater Chrysler Six is not its new lower price—remarkable though THAT achievement is.

Its most impressive feature is the amazing ability which succeeded in improving the quality and the performance of a car that everywhere had met with overwhelming public acclaim—and WHICH MARKED A REVOLUTIONARY ADVANCE OVER ALL PREVIOUS PRACTICE AND RESULTS.

In this new Chrysler Six, the power is increased approximately 10 per cent. The 70-mile speed is more easily and quickly attained. The breath-taking get-away and acceleration are still swifter. In smoothness, this new Chrysler actually exceeds the former super-smoothness introduced by Chrysler.

The beauty originated by Chrysler—and which still belongs to Chrysler alone—is re-expressed in refined and attractive body lines and new body colors, with Chrysler-designed closed bodies built by Fisher.

12 Weeks in Hospital

We have just entered a claim for twelve weeks' disability for a client who only paid $25.00 for his policy less than six months ago.

This $240.00 cheque will be very acceptable to meet the cost of such a long disability plus the loss of income. This man isn't asking "what's the good of insurance?"

In the Central District Court

The enquiry into the charge of obtaining money under false pretences against a man named Snow of Glazeb's Beach, and another charge of aiding and abetting preferred against one named Griffin of Colliers, was begun in the Central District Court yesterday afternoon before Judge Morris. Both the accused pleaded not guilty. Mr. R. A. Cramm is conducting the prosecution. Mr. W. R. Warren, K.C. appears for the defendant Snow, and Mr. J. A. Barron for Griffin.

The charge preferred against Snow is that he wrongfully obtained certain sums of money amounting to $15.00 belonging to His Majesty with intent to defraud, between June 1st and July 31st. Snow was engaged as a Supervisor of the Highroads Commission, and had a number of men engaged in and around Colliers working on the roads, while Griffin who worked as a labourer used his house to help Snow to pay the men. It is alleged that they put more hours on the pay sheets than they had worked. Some of the cheques were cashed, and the over amounts, which totalled $15.00, were kept. Before the hearing adjourned yesterday three workmen named McGrath, Grace and Conway had given their evidence. The case was resumed at noon to-day, when two more witnesses were called and examined. Upwards of fifteen witnesses will be called before the case concludes.

Schooner Beulah Mae

STRIKES AT BURNT POINT. A message from the Collector of Customs at Port Union to the Deputy Minister of Customs reports the loss of the schooner Beulah Mae at Burnt Point last evening. The message reads as follows: "Schr. Beulah Mae from Pernambuco struck on Burnt Point whilst entering Catalina last night. Crew landed safely. Later schooner floated off and presumably sank."

Gone to Sea With Canvas Set. A message to the Marine and Fisheries Department states that the Beulah Mae struck at one o'clock last night and that she came off the rocks and went to sea with her foresail set. The crew left the vessel when she struck. This morning a boat out to Northern Head Catalina saw no sign of the vessel. This morning a message was received by Inspector General Hutchings from Sgt. White, Catalina, reporting the loss of the schooner "Beulah Mae" which reads as follows: "Three masted schooner Beulah Mae owned by Union Trading Company, Capt. Holt, thirty days from Pernambuco in ballast ran ashore on Burnt Point here last night. Vessel a total wreck, hull drifted to sea; crew saved."

Lost Her Canvas

Schr. Ella Mae, Capt. S. Spurrel from Valleyfield arrived at Harbor Grace this morning with all her canvas gone. The vessel has a load of fish and presumably was caught in last night's breeze. She is bound to this port and will be towed here by a whaling tug which left port this afternoon for Harbor Grace.

Police Made Seizure

Last week, acting on information received, the police made a raid on a premises lately opened on Water Street west and seized some 8 or 10 bottles of rum which it is suspected were kept for purpose of sale.

Where is the Chiropractor?

A large clientele of a Chiropractor who opened a premises on Water St. West about three months ago are now wondering where he has gone and what has become of their money. For some time he carried on a flourishing trade, but suddenly about a week ago he disappeared for parts unknown. On Tuesday the police made a search of his premises, but found nothing in the room which had been closed from the inside with an iron bar so that the door had to be smashed in. The landlord, it is stated, is out three months' rent. How many patients are out of pocket is not known. Several who had paid $20 in advance for treatment have made complaint to the police. It is alleged that by offering his services at reduced rates for payment in advance many parted with their money.

A Conductor's Ruse

Presence of mind in handling an escaped patient of the Lunatic Asylum was shown a few days ago by Conductor Lee of the Shore train. The patient, suffering from homicidal mania, joined the train for Carbonear at the St. John's terminus, but before reaching Manuels had badly scared a lady passenger by his actions. Conductor Lee discreetly refrained from interfering until reaching Manuels Station when, by the ruse of stating that passengers had to change cars, he got the maniac to alight into the arms of two policemen.

Two Boys Had Narrow Escape From Death

Last midnight two boys, named Wakeham and Ryan, fell into the new dry dock, and would, without doubt, have been killed only for the fact that their fall was broken by landing on one of the alters. Ryan sustained injuries about the body, while Wakeham had his left ankle put out of place. They were taken to the General Hospital's first aid station, where they received every attention, and were later driven to their homes in a cab.

Caribou Cross Railway Tracks

The train crew of a freight train which arrived in the city last night from across country, report that 32 caribou were seen crossing the track at Caribou Station, above the Gulf Topsalis, on Monday. In this section of the country winter has already set in, with two feet of snow covering the ground.

Identity of Unknown Hero

WILL REMAIN SECRET FOREVER.
Winnipeg Officer Selected Body of Empire's "Unknown Soldier."

WINNIPEG, Nov. 16.—Five years ago November 11, there was laid in Westminster Abbey, London in the presence of a vast multitude, the body of the Empire's "Unknown Soldier."

Every safeguard was employed to hide the identity of the unknown soldier, even those who disinterred the body, do not know it. It is now disclosed that the responsible task of locating the body was entrusted to a Winnipeg officer. He is Captain J. J. Walsh, of the Connaught Rifles, formerly on the staff of the Imperial War Graves Commission.

It is a closely guarded secret who conceived the idea of burying an "unknown soldier" in Westminster Abbey, but the order is known to have come from an officer high on the general staff. Captain Walsh's account of the search is related as follows: "After receiving instructions, I took 12 men with me and went out to one of the great battlefields. Official reticence prevents me from saying which battlefield was visited. We were able to tell from the color of the soil, where bodies might be found. Several were disinterred—until we came across one that was absolutely without identification. There was nothing on the clothing or anything at all to show whose body it might be."

"All I can say is that it had on a private's uniform but even that is not significant, for many officers wore private's uniforms when going into action. "The body was brought to camp, stripped of its clothing, wrapped in a canvas shroud, placed in a coffin and forwarded to London. "That is all that can be known or ever will be known."

TRAIN NOTES.—The express with Caribou's mails and passengers left Port aux Basques 8.30 am. Tuesday's express is due at Port aux Basques on time. The Carbonear train arrived at 12.35 p.m.

In the first game, J. O'Brien (B.L.S.) defeated W. Harvatt (Masonic) by 200 points. The second game was more closely contested and resulted in a win for H. Buckingham (B.L.S.), over G. Harvatt (Masonic), by 51 points.

The breaks were:

J. O'Brien (B.L.S.)—400—30, 21, 10, 14, 20, 10, 10, 10, 25, 11, 10, 11, 10, 14, 18, 37—282.

The game for to-night will be N. Snow (Masonic) vs. J. Carberry (B.L.S.).

TO-NIGHT'S BIG SPORTING ATTRACTION, PRINCE'S RINK.

The combined indoor sports meet by the St. Bon's and Guards Clubs, will be held in the Prince's Rink to-night, under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor, commencing at 8 o'clock. The programme, of 21 items, prepared by the Committee, is all that can be desired and those who patronise the big meet will have an interesting night's amusement. Some sixty athletes, who have undergone strict training for the past two weeks, have entered, and feel in fine fettle for the fray. The feature events of the programme will be the Risky Races and the Tug-o-War, between St. Bon's and the Guards athletes. In the High Jump to-night, Gordon Baker, of the Guards, is expected to set up a new Newfoundland record. He has cleared the bar 5 ft. 6 in. in practice, which is two inches above the record mark made by R. Cullane on St. Bon's Campus in 1906. The prizes to be competed for are of a varied collection and will be presented to the winners after each item. Amongst those who will patronize the sports, besides His Excellency the Governor, are the Prime Minister, Hon. W. S. Monroe; and His Worship the Mayor, Hon. Tasker Cook. The judges conducting the meet to-night are as follows:—Captain of Track, S. P. Cullen; Timekeepers, J. M. Tobin and C. Hall; Messrs. W. Noel, B. Hayward, S. R. Steele, G. Burnell, F. James, J. W. Morris.

NEW DEFENCE RULE MADE AT MEETING OF N.H. LEAGUE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—Seven teams will compete in the National Hockey League this season. Pittsburg was admitted to the pro-hockey circuit at the annual meeting of the league here Saturday afternoon; the Ottawa club having withdrawn their objections to the entrance of Pittsburg, so that their inclusion in the loop was unanimous.

Playing rules were altered. The anti-defence rule which has been in vogue in pro hockey in the west recently, was adopted by the league at its sessions. This will allow only two men of a team, exclusive of the goalkeeper, from standing behind their own blue line to await the advancing puck.

"Ragging Puck."

Regarding the "ragging of the puck" by the side short a man, and wanting to adopt defensive tactics, the league ruled that the team should be penalized and the puck faced off again when the player carrying the puck stopped with it. It was felt by the representatives of the league that the side with the odd man should make it a point to go after the puck, and that as long as it was kept moving there could be no satisfactory rule made to half the defensive of a handicapped team.

The goal keeper's pad in future will be limited to 12 inches of exposed surface. Another rule embodied in the code was that practised last season regarding the automatic suspension after three major penalties received by any one player in a season. In the event of suspension and later reinstatement three more major penalties will be necessary before the next suspension the player once having been suspended and reinstated starting off again with a clean sheet. To clear up possible arguments over the ending of a game, it has been definitely settled in the rules that the timekeepers' bell ends each period of the game and not the referee's whistle, this regardless of the position of the puck.

The opening game will be played at Pittsburg on Thursday, November 26, the United States' Thanksgiving Day, when Boston Maroons will be the opponents of the new team in the circuit.

SIXI APPLIES FOR CITIZENSHIP PAPERS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Batling Sixi, conqueror of Georges Carpentier, the French light-heavyweight, appeared to-day at the naturalization bureau in the federal building and made application for his first citizenship papers.

Sixi was ordered deported within seven days last August, but on direction of the secretary of labor was permitted to extend his visit in this country until January. Last August he was forbidden to visit Canada by the immigration authorities who said he was looked upon as an undesirable alien.

INDOOR ICE MEET TO BE HELD AT NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The 1926 International Indoor Ice skating championships will be held in the new Madison Square Garden, February 28, March 1 and 2, if the application filed with the International Skating Union is ratified. This was revealed to-day by James M. Savage, President of the Middle Atlantic Association. This blue ribbon indoor skating meet of the season, will bring to New York the outstanding amateurs of Canada and the United States.

The present champion is Joe Moore, of New York, who won the title at Pittsburg last year for the second straight time and will defend it this season.

WILL LOCATE IN NEW YORK FOR SEASON.

J. E. "Gee" Ahern, after several years sporting editor The Herald, (Halifax) and prominent in local baseball, football, hockey and other sport, will leave next week for New York where he will spend the winter. Ahern's departure will rob the Crescent Club of one of its mainstays of last season.

THRILLING CONTEST.

Terrific Blows Between Rolfe and Hood.

The fight between Joe Rolfe, of London, and Jack Hood, of Birmingham, only lasted ten minutes, but it can be truthfully said that it was a dozen fights crowded into one.

The third round will not quickly be forgotten by those who saw it.

After giving and taking sufficient punishment to satisfy most men, Rolfe was suddenly driven beneath the ropes but, still on his legs, where for several seconds he was the recipient of a hurricane of blows. Extricating himself he rushed at Hood and staggered him with a right flush to the point. For an instant it looked as though Hood, who trembled from head to heels, would go down, but, like Rolfe, he recovered with marvellous rapidity and started a period of sheer "bawling" that, instead of producing the customary tumult of noise, compelled a silence that could almost be felt.

I have never known a minute like this. It was like sitting in a Cathedral. There was scarcely a person in the building who was not sitting far forward in his seat and breathing heavily.

Toe To Toe.

When the men returned to their corners it was seen that both were feeling the effects of punishment, but so well trained were they and so eager to resume that as soon as the bell went they were at each other again, toe to toe.

For twenty seconds it was hammer and tongs; then Hood, steadying himself, shot over a right cross to the chin that dropped Rolfe squarely on his back. He regained the upright after eight seconds, only again to be put down with lefts followed by a right.

His second count was seven seconds and the next, which immediately followed, was nine seconds. By then Rolfe was in a vedy bay way indeed, shaking his head and giving other signs that his endurance had run out. He made a valiant attempt to rise, but while doing so Mr. J. H. Douglas, the Referee, stepped to the ringside and mercifully said, "That's enough."

His action was loudly applauded, the spectators realising that further punishment to a very gallant loser would have been inexorable.

Rolfe, although beaten, has improved. This means, of course, that his conqueror is a discovery of the year. Hood, to put it shortly, is so good that he cannot possibly be omitted from the next fight for the welterweight title. Only 21 years of age, and finely fashioned, he is the sort of a boxer and fighter combined to win world's championships.

Between Newfoundland Banking & Trust Corporation, Limited, Plaintiff and The Reid Newfoundland Company, Ltd., Mines & Forests (Newfoundland) Limited and Newfoundland Power & Paper Company, Limited, Defendant.

 The arrangements embodied in these exchanges of letters were the result of discussions that had previously taken place between the parties to them. Early in Feb., 1921, Mr. Reid and Messrs. Greenwood, Thomson and MacDonald had discussed the services they had rendered to the Reid Co., and they asked him for an additional commission of 10 per cent. of the proceeds of the Humber Deal which he agreed to give them, together with a contribution towards their expenses. He thought this was no more than was ordinarily paid for similar work, and that it was no more than he had agreed to pay Mr. Thomson in 1919 before the Trust was formed. On the 8th of February, 1921, Mr. H. D. Reid wrote his brother, Mr. R. G. Reid, saying "I have had several talks with Messrs. Greenwood and MacDonald, (Thomson was not then in London), in regard to the fees or payments they get out of the different deals that are put through by the Trust. We decided in the end that we could make a separate arrangement for each transaction. They have asked for ten per cent. of all we get out of the Humber Deal, which I agreed to give them. They have been working now for 1-1/2 years and, of course, have not made much money, and I think that the amount of work they put in on this one proposition entitles them to a liberal amount. After that, we might cut them down when I find out exactly what other people in London would charge for the same sort of work. At the same time, I suppose you recognize as much as I do the importance of having our own Trust Company dealing with our own affairs and giving us their whole attention and I really believe that we could not get better men about us than Greenwood, MacDonald and Thomson." A draft agreement to pay them the extra 10 per cent. on the Humber Deal was then prepared, by Messrs. Greenwood and MacDonald, and left with Mr. Reid, who submitted it to Mr. Patterson of the firm of Patterson & Ross, Glasgow, Solicitors. Mr. Patterson drafted, on Mr. Reid's instructions, an agreement setting out the terms of payment of the additional commission of 10 per cent. and the contribution to be made towards expenses. This draft was shown to Major MacDonald by Mr. Reid and accepted by him on behalf of his associates. Mr. Reid then sent it to his brother, Mr. R. G. Reid, in St. John's, under cover of a letter, in which he says: "Enclosed you will find an agreement I have made with the Trust. You can show it to Conroy and then have it filed away. I had Jim Patterson from Glasgow down here and he drafted this letter."

The agreement was in the form of a letter from Mr. Reid to Messrs. Greenwood, Thomson and MacDonald, dated 21st Feb., 1921. When Mr. R. G. Reid received the letter, he placed it with some papers on Mr. Conroy's desk, but Mr. Conroy, in his evidence, says he did not see it, that it must have become mixed up with other papers and been filed away with them unobserved. Nothing further was heard of or done in connection with the draft or the agreement it contained until the 5th April, after the agreement with Mr. Blakstad had been signed, when Mr. E. M. MacDonald, K.C., of the Canadian Bar, who was then in London to advise Mr. Reid in connection with the Blakstad agreement, without any previous reference by them to the matter, told Messrs. MacDonald, Greenwood and Thomson to see Mr. Reid as he wished to read the draft agreement for the personal commission which he had prepared on Mr. Reid's instructions. Mr. Reid read the letter to them and then signed it. It was addressed to them jointly. Major MacDonald, after Mr. Reid had left the office the same day, asked Mr. E. M. MacDonald for a signed copy of the letter for each of them. This Mr. MacDonald promised to do. I think the weight of evidence is that just before dinner at the Carlton Hotel, Mr. Reid signed the two other copies. It is, I think, important to note in view of the attitude taken later on by the Directors of the Reid Co., that in February, when this matter first came up, Mr. Reid thought the services rendered and to be rendered by Messrs. Greenwood, Thomson and MacDonald, justified the payment to them of this extra commission, that he had then the advice of Mr. Patterson, his solicitor, who drafted the letter of Feb. 21st, that on April 5th the final letter was drafted by Mr. E. M. MacDonald. Mr. Reid's legal adviser, on Mr. Reid's instructions, without any previous suggestions from Mr. Greenwood, Mr. Thomson or Major MacDonald. I have considered this matter entirely as it affects the relations between the Reid Co. and these gentlemen and not at all as it concerns their relations with the Trust, of which they were Directors.

As regards the agreement between Mr. Blakstad and Messrs. Thomson, Greenwood and MacDonald, as to the $500,000 shares of the Products Co., the matter was discussed by Mr. Blakstad with them some ten days or a fortnight before the documents were signed, the evidence leaves it in doubt whether this subject was brought up first by Mr. Blakstad or by the Trust, but I think of the whole evidence, that it was first mentioned by Messrs. Greenwood and MacDonald. As a result of their discussions, it was decided to make a bargain by which Messrs. Greenwood, Thomson and MacDonald would give Mr. Blakstad

The Best Cough Syrup
 Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to make it. You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 10 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is a sure penetrator through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, breaks the mucus, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat ticks, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and whooping cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To get the best results, use your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Can.

one-third of what they would receive under the personal commission agreement with Mr. Reid as arranged in previous February, and that in return he would give them $1,500,000 shares in the Products Co. to be equally divided between them. I think both parties to this bargain were satisfied with it. I also think Major MacDonald at some previous time to the 5th April, informed both Mr. Reid and Mr. E. M. MacDonald, K.C., of the arrangement they had made with Mr. Blakstad, and were told by them that they saw no objections to it. Nothing was done in the matter until the agreement of April 5th in regard to the Humber and the personal commission agreement had been signed. All these demands were signed on that day, only Mr. Reid and Mr. Blakstad were to leave London next day for Newfoundland, and all concerned wished to finalize matters so far as they could in connection with the Humber Deal. Two of the letters were drafted by Mr. Parker, the Solicitor of the Trust; one to be signed by Mr. Greenwood, and his associates enclosing copies of these letters exchanged with Mr. Blakstad and asking Mr. Reid to acknowledge their receipt, the other to be signed by Mr. Reid, acknowledging the receipt of the first and expressing his concurrence in the receipt by Messrs. Thomson, MacDonald and Greenwood, of $500,000 shares from Mr. Blakstad. Mr. Greenwood and the others signed the first and Major MacDonald brought it, with the draft of the letter for Mr. Reid to sign, to Mr. Reid and gave it to him in the presence of Mr. E. M. MacDonald, his solicitor, and asked him to sign it. He did so, and later in the afternoon it was returned to them by Mr. E. M. MacDonald.

I do not think that a man of Mr. Reid's experience having, as he had, a knowledge of the circumstances, and being, as he was, advised by an experienced lawyer like Mr. E. M. MacDonald, K.C., failed to understand and appreciate the nature and the effect of both these transactions, namely, the personal commission agreement and the bargain with Mr. Blakstad, under which they were to receive the $500,000 shares each, and I think he accepted them and completed them with his eyes fully open. I think he recognized that these gentlemen had rendered long and valued services to the Trust and to the Reid Co., and its interests, during the time they had been connected with them and that he wished to reward them on that account. Nothing was done without his full knowledge and consent. The whole arrangement with Mr. Blakstad's regard to the Humber was entirely dependent upon securing the guarantee of the Government of Newfoundland and the raising of the money by Mr. Blakstad to carry out the scheme. If either failed, the whole deal collapsed. It was necessary to secure the agreed amount of timber and to show good title to the land included in the scheme. These matters had to be attended to in Newfoundland.

On arriving at New York, Mr. Blakstad and Mr. Greenwood, at the request of Mr. Reid, went to Montreal to explain to the Bank of Montreal the bargain they had made for the development of the Reid Co.'s properties on the Humber and to obtain its approval and assistance, if necessary in their efforts to secure the Government guarantee. They went to Montreal and saw the Bank officials there and later rejoined Mr. Reid at North Sydney and accompanied him to St. John's, arriving here on or about the 15th April, 1921. Mr. Blakstad failed to obtain the Government guarantee for the issue of 5,000,000 debentures; the Government thought the amount too large but it was willing to recognize the interest on an issue of $12,500,000 to be used for construction work only and the terms of an agreement to that effect were arranged between him and the Government. On the 25th of April, Mr. Blakstad informed Mr. Conroy of the attitude of the Government in regard to the guarantee and on the 28th or 29th he sent Mr. Conroy, through Mr. Greenwood, a memorandum of suggestions for the amendment of the agreement made in London on April 5th. On May 2nd, Mr. Blakstad and Mr. Greenwood met the Directors of the Reid Co. to discuss Mr. Blakstad's suggestion on an amended agreement. As Mr. Greenwood was going into the meeting, Mr. Conroy handed him a letter saying: "To prevent any misconception, I have been requested by the Board of Directors to say that as in consequence of Mr. Blakstad's inability to secure the guarantee by the Government of $25,000,000 interest and sinking fund, all agreements with Mr. Blakstad are terminated. The same will apply to all agreements with the Newfoundland Banking & Trust Corporation, Ltd., with regard to the Humber Valley proposition."

"Should a new agreement be entered into with Mr. Blakstad, a new arrangement with regard to any commission payable to the Trust will have to be arrived at."

"I am also to say that even if the original agreement with Mr. Blakstad had been carried out, the Board would have felt themselves unable to ratify the agreement entered into by Mr. H. D. Reid with yourself and Messrs. Thomson and MacDonald of April 5, 1921."

Mr. Conroy had with him at the meeting schedules showing the lands proposed to be scheduled to the Blakstad agreement, and at Mr. Blakstad's request, the quantity of timber upon it was worked out at the meeting. It was finally agreed that the Reid Co. would submit to Mr. Blakstad an offer based on a reduced acreage. Next day Mr. Conroy wrote Mr. Blakstad giving the conditions of a modified agreement, which it was thought would meet the requirements of the Government as to the guarantee. Mr. Blakstad did not reply to this letter. He left St. John's on May 5th intending to return to England accompanied by Mr. Greenwood. Before he left, Mr. Greenwood replied to Mr. Conroy's letter of May 2nd, saying he had no authority to vary any agreements existing between the Reid Co. and the Trust. Mr. Blakstad and Mr. Greenwood went to Montreal in accordance with a promise they had given to the Bank Manager to return and inform the Bank of how the negotiations in St. John's had turned out. He informed the Bank of the failure of the negotiations with the Reid Company. I do not think either Mr. Blakstad or Mr. Greenwood did, or intended to move the Bank to put pressure on the Reid Co. to enter into an agreement with Mr. Blakstad, on the contrary, I consider that the efforts made during this visit of Mr. Blakstad to bring the parties together again were made by the Bank Officials and by Mr. E. M. MacDonald who had been advising Mr. Reid in London. Mr. Blakstad consented somewhat reluctantly to the proposals that were forwarded by the Bank to St. John's, but which the Reid Co. did not accept.

I think that there is no doubt that the failure of the London agreement with Mr. Blakstad of April 5th, was caused by the refusal of the Government to guarantee the debentures and I have no doubt that that guarantee had been secured, the schedule of the land over which the timber rights were to be given to the Products Co. would have been settled to the satisfaction of the parties before the 31st of May, the date fixed by the agreement.

Before formulating a judgment upon the complaint of the Reid Company of Mr. Greenwood's conduct during his visit to St. John's, I think it must be remembered that the principal object of his visit to St. John's was to direct the final negotiations in regard to the contract with Mr. Blakstad. In the first place, it was necessary to secure the Government guarantee for the proposed issue of debentures. It was thought, for some reason, that the negotiations with the Government should be conducted by Mr. Blakstad alone without the interference of the Reid Co. Mr. Greenwood's efforts would therefore be directed at first entirely in assisting him in that matter. Mr. Reid knew that during negotiations in London, the Trust had been negotiating with the Armstrong Whitworth Co. and financial firms in the city of London with a view to securing the money for Mr. Blakstad to carry out this part of the agreement. After the failure to secure a Government guarantee, an undefined atmosphere of unfriendliness surrounded the relations between Mr. Greenwood and the Directors of the Reid Co. Some of the Directors expressed their dissatisfaction with the agreement of April 5th and with the undertaking given by Mr. H. D. Reid to pay a personal commission to the Directors of the Trust and in consequence did not maintain that friendly touch with him that had characterized all their previous relations with the Directors of the Trust. It is possible that a little frankness on both sides might have restored confidence between the parties, particularly before the letter of May 2nd, purporting to cancel the agreement with the Trust as regards its commission on the Humber was delivered. It must be remembered that nothing was done in connection with the personal commission without the consent and approval of Mr. H. D. Reid, the President of the Reid Co., who had apparently full authority to act in all matters for the Company, after having the advantage of legal advice both in February and in April and that up to the receipt of the letter of May 2nd to Mr. Conroy neither Mr. Greenwood or any of his associates in London knew of the dissatisfaction of any of the Directors of the Reid Company. It must also be remembered that in February, 1921, the Trust knew that the personal Commission agreement drafted by Mr. Patterson on the instruction of Mr. Reid, was sent to Mr. R. G. Reid in St. John's and that it was only through an oversight that Mr. Conroy did not then learn of its existence. I think Mr. Greenwood acted unwisely during his visit, but the Trust and its other Directors in London did not know of this and the Reid Co. did not inform them of their dissatisfaction with Mr. Greenwood's conduct.

Shortly after Mr. Blakstad left St. John's, Mr. H. S. Waite, a civil engineer sent out by the Armstrong Co., came to St. John's to report upon the engineering side of the Humber proposition for the purpose of the proposed contract for the construction of the works contemplated by the Blakstad agreement. He expected to meet Mr. Blakstad in Newfoundland, but Mr. Blakstad had left before he arrived. Mr. Waite visited the Humber on his way to St. John's and expressed to Mr. Reid and Mr. Conroy his approval of it for the purposes intended. Mr. Conroy in his evidence says: "He came here in connection with the Blakstad agreement and when he got here he discovered that Mr. Blakstad was away and there did not seem to be much prospect of Mr. Blakstad's accepting our offer of our coming to terms with him, so we asked him (Mr. Waite) if his principals, the Armstrong Whitworth Company, would be interested in going into the scheme and that was when he explained that he was not a member of the firm and he had no authority to speak for them, but he said that when he got back to England, he would tell his principals frankly what he thought about it and recommend the proposition as a sound engineering and economical proposition and he went away from here about the 5th of June." On the 3rd of June, while Mr. Waite was here, the Reid Company cabled the Trust saying: "Humber area, for the information of all concerned. Blakstad offer has expired, negotiations at an end, we are negotiating elsewhere." The offer made to Mr. Blakstad in Mr. Conroy's letter of May 3rd expired on the 3rd of June. I infer that the latter part of this cable refers to the discussions then being held with Mr. Waite. Mr. Conroy says that he was hoping at that time, that the Armstrong Whitworth Company would step into Mr. Blakstad's shoes subject to some modifications but on the same lines.

On June 7th, the Trust replied to Mr. Reid's cable of June 3rd, "We cannot understand your telegram June 3rd, referring expiration option. We cannot agree any alterations agreements Humber area except by consent of all parties." When this cable was sent, the Trust evidently did not know of the offer made to Mr. Blakstad on May 3rd. The Reid Co. replied to the Trust's cable of June 7th next day, "In reply to Telegram No. 37 Nfld. Banking & Trust Corporation, Ltd., must understand authority is withdrawal of the authority of the Trust."

Mr. Greenwood returned to St. John's about the time when Mr. Waite left. He then had a conversation with Mr. Conroy on July 4th, in regard to the proposition and the Light & Power Co.'s loan were the only matters with which the Trust was at the time actively dealing. This cable was equivalent to a withdrawal of the authority of the Trust.

which Mr. Conroy says in his evidence, "We were under the impression that the Armstrong Whitworth Company might come in and take in Mr. Blakstad's share and in that event, I felt that the Trust would be entitled to be paid the money whether it was direct from Armstrong Whitworth Co. or direct from Blakstad. On the other hand, I explained once more to Greenwood that under any circumstances we would not pay the 10 p.c. personal commission and the third matter was that the Trust at this time, was supposed to be negotiating the sale of $1,000,000 worth of bonds and no agreement as to commission had been arrived at. I think that was the only incomplete matter they had in their hands and Greenwood wanted to know what commission was going to pay on it and I told him that there had been no agreement about it." Following this conversation, Mr. Greenwood sent the following cable to the Trust in London (after first showing it to Mr. Conroy): "Reid declares if they negotiate Humber with Armstrong Whitworth Company and final deal Trust gets 10 p.c. commission, no other commission will be paid. Reid declares no definite figure arranged commission Light bonds. What commission you willing accept?" On the same day he sent a copy of this cable to Mr. Conroy in a letter in which he says, "If there is any matter touched upon in this cable, or in any subject that you think advisable to discuss with me, I shall be glad to call over to see you."

After Mr. Waite returned to England, some correspondence passed between Mr. H. D. Reid for the Reid Co. in St. John's and the Armstrong Co. in London. It is quite clear from this correspondence that the proposal discussed with Mr. Waite in St. John's was reported by him to the Armstrong Whitworth Co. This correspondence was chiefly concerned with the proposed construction contract and the obtaining of the money to finance the scheme. On Oct. 1st, Mr. H. D. Reid, Mr. Conroy and Mr. Blakstad arrived in London to discuss the Humber project with the Armstrong Whitworth Co. The Armstrong Whitworth Co. at that time was prepared to discuss the matter only as engineers and as to finance. The terms of the Construction Contract were worked out and with the assistance of the Armstrong Whitworth Co. A firm offer to undertake the necessary funds, provided a Government guarantee of interest and sinking fund were given, was contained. When this proposal was submitted to the Government, it refused to guarantee and the plan fell through. Mr. Waite who had again come to St. John's to assist the Reid Co. in its negotiations with the Government, returned to England in the month of January, 1923. On March 1st, the Armstrong Co. made definite proposals to the Reid Co. to come into the scheme as part owners. The negotiations that followed this proposal finally resulted

Booming Britain

When a reputable commercial firm finds that trade has rapidly fallen off, the directors immediately set about finding a remedy for this state of affairs—and usually decide that the most effective cure is an advertising campaign. Why should not Britain try to revive her industries by the same means?

Sir Charles Higham, the eminent publicist, is all in favour of such a course. He believes that if the British Government spent £1,000,000 on Empire advertising, an immediate trade revival would ensue. Statistics show that only one in every eight people has anything cleaned or dyed, only one in five knows the value of eating fruit, only one in forty persons knows the value of electricity for use in the home, and only about one in thirty knows what Canada, New Zealand, or Australia grows, makes or sells. Very few people can tell the difference between imported and the home-produced commodities.

The almost inevitable result of such an advertising campaign, with whole-hearted co-operation from growers, farmers, and producers throughout the Empire, says Sir Charles, would be the selling of more goods, the reduction of overhead costs, higher wages, and bigger profits all round.

Representatives of British industries throughout the world have passed a resolution strongly in favour of the expenditure of £1,000,000 of the public moneys in this way.

Lost Millions

COTTON FIRMS WRITING DOWN CAPITAL.

Sir Charles Macara's estimate that the Lancashire cotton trade has lost a total of not less than two million sterling was significantly borne out at Manchester Chancery Court recently, when it was admitted that in one case alone—the Grove Mill, Ltd., Rochdale £120,000 had been lost since the close trade revival would ensue. Statistics show that only one in every eight people has anything cleaned or dyed, only one in five knows the value of eating fruit, only one in forty persons knows the value of electricity for use in the home, and only about one in thirty knows what Canada, New Zealand, or Australia grows, makes or sells. Very few people can tell the difference between imported and the home-produced commodities.

Sweeping the Ocean Highways

In a channel commonly traveled by shipping in Alaska waters there was discovered not long ago, the sharp nose of a huge rock hidden just beneath the water's surface. Month after month and year after year unsuspecting vessels had followed that path; yet by some miracle, fate always had steered them clear of the lurking peril that might have sent them down with fearful loss of life and cargo. Along the ocean shipping lanes there are scores of grim reminders of ships that have gone to destruction on unseen rocks, sandbars, and uncharted obstructions. And while dragging the waters of the world for these dangers is somewhat like hunting for a needle in a haystack, the safety of present-day commerce is demanding that ocean highways be marked with danger signs as are our land highways.

It is with this idea in mind that the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey recently has undertaken the tremendous task of sweeping the seas. From Eastport, Me. to Long Island, N.Y., and along stretches of the southern, western, and Alaskan coasts, Uncle Sam is casting a dragnet for huge rocks and treacherous shoals that lurk beneath the surface. By the use of various kinds of drags, vast expanses of water now are being combed.

When a sea-dragging expedition sets out, there are two high-powered motor boats, as a rule, each carrying one end of a wire drag or sweep. One of the ships is large enough to carry all the equipment of dragnets, wires, and buoys to mark dangerous spots.

Although a wire drag 15,000 feet long has an average speed of only 1 1/2 miles an hour, as many as 15 shoal spots have been found by this means in one day. A sweep drag, with less buoys and upright than the wire drag, can be reeled out at the rate of 10,000 feet in nine minutes. This unwieldy "broom" can be operated with surprising speed, sometimes covering as much as 60 square miles in a day.

In the design and construction of the dragging apparatus, considerable ingenuity has been brought into play. One ingenious device that has proved very effective is a buoy made from a gasoline drum and used to hold the drag wire in position at any given depth. The drum is fitted with a heavy rounded bottom to which is attached the drag wire and from which a weight is hung. By means of a reel above the top of the drum, the buoy is lowered to the desired depth.

Whenever the sweeping wire strikes a jagged rock pinnacle or a sandy shoal, the Survey ships immediately chart the exact location of the obstacle and mark it with a danger signal.

It is not without justice that this branch of the Coast and Geodetic Survey has been called the "police of the sea," for it is making the sea lanes safe for mariners.

Geologists tell us that the origin of these undersea rock formations goes back to the Glacial Age. Slowly as climate became more temperate, masses of ice slid into the sea, carrying with them the rocks that are the source of so much danger to those who go down to the sea in ships.

GREAT MEMORIAL UNVEILED.

Thousands massed at Hyde Park Corner were touched to the uttermost depths of their feelings when the Duke of Connaught unveiled the grim, awe-inspiring memorial of the Royal Regiment of Artillery. As the flag sank to the ground there were seen, bathed in the autumn sunshine, a mighty stone howitzer, muzzle uplifted, as though defying the world. On three sides stood revealed the grim figures of artillerymen, in the full panoply of war. But it was the fourth artilleryman that attracted attention, for he typified the regiment's dead. Recumbent, with his greatcoat partly unbuttoned, and his "fin" hat on his breast, he was somebody's husband, a brother, a little mite's dad. Small wonder that on the waiting multitude fell a hush that was almost painful. On the platform from which he performed the unveiling ceremony, and in a voice which, by means of amplifiers, was heard by all present, the Duke of Connaught referred to the great growth of the regiment during the war, and spoke of how, out of 880 of all ranks, 49,076 fell in action or died, 128,186 were wounded, and 5,689 were reported missing. "To future generations of the Royal Regiment of Artillery," declared the Duke, "I say 'See to it, ye that come after, that their names be not forgotten.' The Chaplain-General of the Forces, the Rev. A. C. E. Jarvis, dedicated the memorial, and then came the sound of bugles. From the grounds of Buckingham Palace trumpeters sounded the

Prosperity in British Building Industry

When so much that is pessimistic is heard to regard industrial conditions in coming-over from Great Britain, it may be worth while to take cognizance of the facts about one industry which is said to be flourishing—that is the building industry, according to information received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service. The building industry in Great Britain is experiencing a prosperous year, not only in the metropolis but throughout the country, with the possible exception of the shipbuilding areas and certain parts of the coal fields. Although building costs remain high, the latest report of the Inter-Departmental Committee, appointed by the Ministry of Health, after a survey of prices of building materials shows that there have been no spasmodic changes in prices in building materials since 1924. Some materials have increased a little in cost, but others have decreased in price, and on the whole it has been possible during the past 12 months, to assure prospective building owners that final costs would not be much in excess of the original estimates. The price level, however, is too high to enable economic housing schemes to be undertaken for the accommodation of the poorer grades of the population, and yet with government assistance some 330,000 houses suited to the working classes have been erected in recent years, and contracts have been made for 55,000 more houses, while a further 75,000 have been authorized. Many houses of a comparatively small type, under £25 a year taxable value, have been built without any subsidy at all from the taxpayer during the past two years. In fact, since the beginning of 1923 no fewer than 160,000 houses have been built in England and Wales by unaided private enterprise. Many small builders have been making substantial profits out of building houses for sale, and some have not troubled even to claim a subsidy, as they did not wish to be annoyed with official forms and limitations.

Building in London has been of a very improved character due to the fact that within the last few years leaseholders have been falling in, and this has made it possible for the owners of the land to make new leases, and in connection therewith to require an improved form of building construction. This is said to be particularly true of the great shopping streets—Regent, Piccadilly and Oxford Streets, where new construction has almost entirely changed the former appearance of the streets. This reconstruction has brought about a revolution in building, and has led to the use of steel in many ways. It has also caused the British architects and builders to adopt many of the methods which have for some time been so successfully used in the United States. It is hoped that for such construction it may be possible to develop a rustless steel. A material of this kind is expected to present opportunities to engineers and architects to design buildings possessing elements of novel beauty and capacity.

In connection with house building, many interesting experiments are being made. A number of houses are being built of steel plates, on light steel frames, and insulated by the use of a core of cork, covered with gunite. In another group houses of cast iron are being erected and as 11 tons of pig iron are used in each house it is expected that should this method become popular it will mean a decided stimulus to the iron industry.

The building boom, if it may be so called, has helped many other subsidiary industries, such as the manufacturers of light castings, manufacturers of sanitary ware, and particularly the manufacturers of brick. It is stated that compared with 3,000 million bricks manufactured in England and Wales before the war, there are now 5,000 million bricks being made each year. One of the most encouraging signs of the present situation has been the decision of various branches of the trade, manufacturers of building materials, employers and others, to co-operate in research. This movement of co-ordination, if continued, is expected to result in the future in more economical work and the greater prosperity of the building industry, which is one of the three largest industries in England.

"I wonder who stole Lady Love's clothespins," said Uncle Lucky as he ended yesterday's story. "You remember the little rabbit's mother and Cousin Cottontail had just hopped up the path to the tiny white bungalow.

"I'm trying to guess," answered the bunny boy, as the old gentleman rabbit locked the Luckymobile and pushed the key in his pink waistcoat pocket. "I'll make sure that thieving person doesn't steal my car." Then, with a hop-tee-ty nimble Uncle Lucky jumped the fence, just to show his small bunny nephew that he was not as old as he looked. Well, he sprained his little pinkie, just the same, the one that has the rheumatism, you remember, Little Reader.

"Hope Lady Love will have a good luncheon," he sighed as he hobbled up the little path through the bushes, followed by his small, bunny nephew, whose anxious face made the old gentleman rabbit say the next minute, "My pinkie's all right, or it will be by the time I reach the kitchen porch." Plucky Uncle Lucky, if Old Man Rheumatism would only let him alone he would hop as fast as any young bunny in all Rabbitland. Maybe faster; for in his day the old gentleman rabbit was a mighty fast sprinter. Yes, he was, and no mistake. Any time you happen to be in Rabbitville, Little Reader, just call at his red-shingled house on the corner of Lettuce Avenue and Carrot Street and ask him to show you the medals and cups he has won in the good old days when he was young and all the birds sweet carols sang; when skies were blue and flowers grew all lovely pink and white and blue. Dear me, my old typewriter is turning into a poet. Making up rhymes as it jogs along on its iron red.

Well, by the time plucky Uncle Lucky reached the kitchen porch his little pinkie ached so badly that he was forced to sit down on the step and medicine bag and placing his derby hat on his head, kissed Mrs. Duck goodby and hurried forth. Meantime, Lady Love and Cousin Cottontail had helped the dear old gentleman rabbit into the kitchen. Carefully placing him in the big rocker, they lifted his left hind foot on a little stool and lighted a cabbage leaf cigar for him. "I don't care if the smoke gets into the curtains," sighed unselfish Lady Love. "Please be as comfortable as you can, dear Uncle Lucky," and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Do Our Indians Talk Old-Chinese?

New light has been thrown on the ancestry of the American Indian by Dr. Edward Sapir, noted Canadian anthropologist, now on the faculty of the University of Chicago, says Science Service's Daily News Bulletin (Washington). Dr. Sapir says that his research work on Indian linguistics has convinced him of the identity of language of certain Indian tribes with that of the primitive Chinese. We read:

"The similarity of the two tongues and the linguistic distribution of tribes scattered at random over the Americas have convinced Dr. Sapir that these groups must have entered this continent as a wedge from Asia. By a close comparison of the primitive Chinese, Siamese, and Tibetan, all in the same language category, with the language of the 'Nadine' group of North America, Dr. Sapir has found the same peculiarities of phonetics, vocabulary, and grammatical structure on both sides of the Pacific Ocean. The American Indians speaking the language of the Nadine group are found in all parts of the North American continent, from northern Mexico to the southern boundary of Alaska, widely distributed among other Indian tribes whose language and customs are entirely different. With minor changes, he asserted, the Navajo of New Mexico, speaks the language of the Sarcee in Alberta, and the linguistic stock of the Tlingit, just south of the Eskimos in Alaska, is much the same as that of the Hupa in California. It is probable, according to Dr. Sapir, that the migration of Asiatic speaking primitive Chinese or Tibetan took place some time in the past, and that these immigrants settled or moved over the mountains and plains, some remaining in northwestern Canada to become the Tlingits, and others moving out to the Queen Charlotte Islands of the west coast to form the Haida group, and still others penetrating to the deserts of the Southwest. From the modern Chinese, which in academic circles is considered relatively simple, students of linguistics can reconstruct primitive Chinese, which is vastly more complex than any of the dialects known to the Mongolian of to-day. Dr. Sapir has discovered not only that the Indians of the Nadine groups speak with a tonal accent, raising or lowering the voice to give certain meaning to words, in a manner similar to the tonal peculiarities of the Chinese, but also that the meanings of certain words are identical. Further, he has disclosed the fact that the Indians have retained certain prefixes and suffixes that long ago have disappeared from Chinese speech, but which are clearly discernible in the early forms."

Religious Accord in Ireland

Irish Catholics and Irish Protestants live together in happy accord and exhibit a fine spirit of co-operation, according to two recently reported instances in which Irishmen of different faiths have lent each other a helping hand. They are culled by The Catholic News (New York), which reports first the story told by the Protestant Bishop Henry E. Patton, of the Church of Ireland, at the Synod of Clonsart. According to Bishop Patton, the Protestant Church of Aghna-meadle, in the village of Toomevara, was set on fire by some miscreant. He goes on:

"There was not a single member of our creed resident in the village. But the Catholics, its sole inhabitants, have always lived in harmony with the rector of that church and with those who come to the church to worship in it. When the fire was first discovered, our Catholic fellow countrymen came to the rescue, and forced their way into the blazing building, where the flames at the east end were so fierce that the blistered western door. In that burning building these neighbors of a different faith did their utmost to save all that was possible. And when the rector afterward applied to a mainly Catholic tribunal for compensation, it was not only granted, but in such a manner as to mark the sympathy of the whole Catholic community. The achievement betokens a brotherhood of mutual confidence and willing service in the district wherein it was wrought."

The other story tells of the assistance rendered to a Catholic congregation by the Rev. Dr. Simms, of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, who is also a member of Parliament. He attended a Catholic bazaar in Newtownards, in County Down, which was organized to raise funds for the purchase of a new parochial house. "You have a claim on my services," he said to the assembled Catholics, "because I am your Parliamentary representative, and my duty to you is not confined merely to sitting in the House of Commons. Besides, being a clergyman myself, I have a fellow feeling for the parish priest. We both know how helpful it is to a minister of religion to have a good roof over his head." Leading Protestant laymen, we are told, participated in the opening ceremony. "Here," comments The Catholic News, "we have instances of good-will of both Catholics and Protestants in Ireland toward those of different faiths. The country where such fellowship prevails can not fail to be happy and prosperous."

Encroaching the Sea

SOUTH COAST BEACHES DISAPPEARING.

During the last six months the foreshore at Sidmouth, Devon, has sunk between four and six feet, and the present position, as a result of Sunday's storm, is serious.

There is now a complete absence of shingle, and the foundation of the old wall is undermined. A gap 100 ft. wide has been torn in the wall to the east of the causeway last January. The waves during a recent gale broke clean over the houses on the whole front, and the lower part of the town was flooded.

The encroaching sea at Swanage, Dorset, is causing much anxiety. What was some years ago a large stretch of fine, hard sands is now submerged at ordinary tides right up to the sea wall. The shore road is now often impassable as the sea dashes right over it.

New Tyre for Racing Cars

Tyres are one of the chief sources of anxiety among racing motorists today (writes the Motoring Correspondent), and the leading tyre makers are carrying out extensive experiments in order to evolve tyres that will stand up to the terrific speeds of which motor-cars are now capable. One firm has just constructed a machine that will test a tyre in the factory at a speed corresponding to 250 miles an hour on the road or track.

A new tyre, with a special safety rim to prevent it from coming adrift at high speeds, made by the Rapson Tyre Company, has just passed through successful tests. This tyre was originally designed for aeroplanes, which hitherto have shed tyres freely on landing.

The rim has a raised centre which is slightly higher than the beaded edges. The raised centre of the rim is almost flat and is made of steel.

For racing cars it has this additional advantage—not only is it almost impossible for the tyre to leave the wheel but also the raised centre acts as a steel tyre on which the car can run quite safely.

How Police Dogs Are Trained

No matter how much natural aptitude a dog may possess, it is unreasonable to expect him to show any peculiar cleverness unless time and trouble have been expended upon his education. The raw material has to be worked into the finished article. We may concede that the Alsatian wolf dog has the intelligence, activity, and disposition to fit him for police work, and, this being the case, it is desirable that these qualities should be developed. Any breed that can work should be taught to do so. This laudable object is best fostered by public trials, in which dogs are pitted together in open competition. The Alsatian League of Great Britain, whose trials have just been held, is a powerful body intent upon following the lead set on the Continent.

Johnny Hines in "Little Johnny Jones" Drama

Comedian Plays Part Made Famous By George M. Cohan On Stage. Johnny Hines, called the George M. Cohan of the screen, has the starring role in "Little Johnny Jones," which will be the feature attraction at the Nickel Theatre, beginning to-morrow. This comedian of shadowland is credited with possessing an assortment of pep and laughter that is the envy of his rivals and the delight of his audiences. By his ability to gallop through a picture and squeeze his personality into every inch of it, he has rapidly forged to the forefront of screen personalities.

To-Day's Features at the Majestic

MEM-O-REA AND DANCERS AND "THE BANDOLERO"

It's thrills they want and you've got 'em in this one. "The Bandolero," Tom Terriss's great achievement, pictures the most thrilling bullfight scenes ever photographed. The great thrills, positively, ever shown in a motion picture theatre and it's the genuine article, no fake or studio stuff, all photographed in Granada, Spain, where excitement runs riot and men risk their lives to provide blood tingling entertainment for the crowds that pack the place.

Mem-O-Res, the mental wizard, who again last night held the attention of Majestic patrons for over an hour was very fascinating in his revelations whilst the Johnson dancers won rounds of applause. Both Mem-O-Res and the dancing are proving very popular attractions. To-night a complete change of program starting at 8 o'clock.

The Pony Contest is creating lively interest amongst competitors and soon the excitement will be keen as is often the case during the closing days. With the series of attractions outlined the Majestic are giving the public a great deal more than the average entertainment.
