

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.

How far recreation on Sunday is permissible is a question on which there is great difference of opinion in every community.

Sir.—Several members of the Golf Club are reported as having been brought up before the magistrates for breaking the law respecting the observance of the Lord's day by playing golf on Sunday.

The subject of this letter is a practical one, and one on which every person who is desirous to do right should give his best to form an intelligent opinion.

The progress which the Southern States have been making of late years is very remarkable. The inhabitants are now developing the resources of the country at a rapid rate.

THE INTOLERANT MUSLIMS.

The Arabs are disgusted with the precautions that the authorities, at the instance of the Western nations, are taking to preserve the health of the pilgrims to Mecca and to prevent the spread of the cholera to the nations of the West.

The time has evidently come when the Mahomedans must be taught the lesson of tolerance. They must be made to feel that Christians cannot be murdered and tortured and oppressed generally with impunity.

THE YOUNGEST REPUBLIC.

The accounts from Hawaii are contradictory. We hear from those who are friendly to the youngest of the republics that the ruling class in that composed of scrupulous adventurers, who have no support in the country.

"The busy bodies of this country," says the Commercial Advertiser, "have about tired of talking about 'an oligarchy on their last legs' since every event of the last two years has so thoroughly proved the fallacy of such a claim."

THE PROGRESS OF THE SOUTH.

The progress which the Southern States have been making of late years is very remarkable. The inhabitants are now developing the resources of the country at a rapid rate.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 14.—John Lawson, "the scorching Swede," yesterday broke the world's bicycle record for five miles previously held by Bainbridge, whose record was 11:40. Lawson made it in 11:33 2/5.

THE MAYFLOWERS.

The Mayflowers defeated the St. Louis college team at baseball yesterday on a score of 18 to 16. The brilliant Eastern tour of the University of California team was closed yesterday with a series of contests with the Chicago Athletic Association on the latter's grounds.

LONDON, June 15.—Strange as it may seem, in spite of the fact that London is more thronged with visitors and tourists than for several years past, there is a general complaint that this season is not up to the highwater mark of former years.

Naturally this state of affairs has caused a good deal of grumbling among the well-to-do classes, who are complaining of the want of good things to eat and drink.

Another marked feature of the season is the declining popularity of Hyde Park as an outing ground. This may be due largely to the fact that the Londoners have been attracted to a great extent, and it is found to be more diverting to watch the wheel riders in Battersea park than to watch equestrians in Kotten Row.

MANITOBA'S REPLY.

The reply of the Manitoba Government with respect to the remedial order must strike those who have so zealously taken the part of that Government as singularly incomplete and unsatisfactory.

Everyone knows that if the public money is expended in maintaining separate schools in Manitoba the Government has the right in fact to see that the money is not wasted.

Lord Salisbury has again exposed himself to the charge of ultra-loyal Canadianism. He has been telling Englishmen that if they desire to preserve their trade and if they desire to compete successfully with the protectionist nations of the world, they must look to the unutilized and half-utilized resources of the world for new markets.

There may be some who will say that this is a matter that concerns the Roman Catholics of the province alone, and that if they want to have their children badly educated, and if they have a preference for inefficient teachers and inconvenient and insanitary school houses, let them have them.

With reference to the Star libel case, the Montreal Witness says: It seems from the case of Pollard vs. the Star that a minister of the crown speaking in public may cruelly slander a man and go scot-free, while a newspaper for simply reporting what he says may be heavily mulcted in damages.

A NOBLE MONUMENT.

The reader will find in another column the speech delivered by the Hon. Mr. Foster at the unveiling of the statue of Sir John A. Macdonald in Montreal. The citizens of Montreal did well to erect a monument in their midst in honor of Canada's greatest statesman.

It is also safe to say that the Canadian Pacific Railway owes its existence to Sir John Macdonald. There was not another man in the Dominion who had the courage to undertake that gigantic enterprise or the genius to carry it out to a successful completion.

Lord Salisbury has again exposed himself to the charge of ultra-loyal Canadianism. He has been telling Englishmen that if they desire to preserve their trade and if they desire to compete successfully with the protectionist nations of the world, they must look to the unutilized and half-utilized resources of the world for new markets.

OUR UNARMED ARMY.

The armament of the Canadian militia is the subject of an interesting article in the Canadian Magazine for June, contributed by Captain Charles F. Winter, a well informed officer who, having proved his worth by active service with the Imperial as well as the Dominion forces, has been placed upon the Canadian Special List. He urges the adoption of the Lee-Enfield magazine rifle, the new arm of the British forces, and gives data establishing its superiority.

British Columbia has a special interest in this matter, for in strange contrast to the modern artillery to be mounted as Regiments at a cost of about half a million dollars, the men of the Canadian Garrison are numbered with a weapon so antiquated as to be utterly useless for modern offensive or defensive operations.

There may be some who will say that this is a matter that concerns the Roman Catholics of the province alone, and that if they want to have their children badly educated, and if they have a preference for inefficient teachers and inconvenient and insanitary school houses, let them have them.

James McGregor was sentenced to one month at hard labor for the theft of a bottle of liquor from the Abilene. The bartender, it appears, got drunk, and all hands and the cook made merry without any money being rung up in the register. McGregor was no worse than the rest, but he was caught.

THE sergeants of the fleet last night gave a farewell dinner to Mr. Smith's "Coach and Horses" to Sergeant J. Scanlan of H. M. Naval Dockyard, who is about to return to England, his time having expired. Mr. Taylor, ship's steward, E. S. Hyacinth, took the chair, and Mr. Key, ex-Sergeant R.M.L.I., the vice chair. There were present: Sergeant Noske, Holland, Ford and Wood, Royal Artillery; Sergeant Barton, Wild Swan; Sergeant Barnard, Hyacinth; and Sergeant Whiston, Mr. Speckles were made by the representatives of the several ships, all wishing the guest a very pleasant passage, and enjoyable leave. Several songs and recitations were given, all tending to make the evening a success.

FOR PATROL DUTY. It is quite likely that the Dominion government will accede to the wishes of sealers in granting the Queen's services for patrol duty along the West Coast. The matter will, however, be definitely shipped this morning a telegram extorted from Ottawa, in answer to one sent yesterday by Collector Milne. This was sent partially in accordance with a petition which the sealers presented to Mr. Justice O'Connell, the Quads is in strong demand for regular duty just now, and a suspension of her usual operations has been recommended. Mr. Milne also received a letter from Captain Larsen of the American sealing schooner Bering Sea, yesterday, giving a flat denial to the reports already circulated about that vessel's illegal trafficking. The latter stated that the schooner had not been away from Seattle since last spring. Captain Larsen said he had the highest respect for Canadian laws, and sympathized much with the Canadian sealers. He had hired a man to secure his Indians, but in no way to interfere on British rights. Local sealers have now but a short time to prepare for Behring sea and they are in danger of the Siwash detaining them when they are ready to ship their hunters. The natives are very cunning and crafty and may possibly act tardily in going to sea, in the hope of obtaining larger wages, than they have already experienced to a certain extent, but would be tenfold greater than it ever has been if encouragement were offered by the competing American sealers. That systematic sealing of crews is being carried on, Victoria sealers do not doubt. Yesterday the Libelle, Captain Fred. Haskett, and the Victoria, Captain J. McDonald, were expected for their Behring sea cruise; each will carry a crew of seventy-five Indians, besides eight and seven whites, respectively. After securing their crews on the Coast they go direct to Ounaslaka for water, and from there enter the sea.

EXPLANATION REQUIRED.

Awarding the contract for the construction of the filter beds to a firm whose bid was some sixteen thousand dollars higher than that of the lowest tenderer, requires a clearer and a more satisfactory explanation than was made at the meeting of the City Council yesterday. The estimate of the engineer, we are informed, was $68,000, and the offer of Mr. John Haggarty was $84,000—a little more than a thousand dollars less. It is, we venture to say, very seldom indeed that a contractor's bid comes so near the engineer's estimate as does that of Mr. Haggarty. We are not told that the Engineer made a new estimate, or what are his reasons for pronouncing Mr. Haggarty's estimate, which comes within a thousand dollars of his own, too low. The rate-payers are, we submit, entitled to a better explanation than was made by Ald. Bragg for the refusal of the lowest tender and the acceptance of one $16,000 higher. Mr. Bragg said that the Engineer had not in his estimate allowed for contingencies. It is to be presumed that if there are contingencies the Engineer would know what they are and would in his estimate make the proper allowance for them. It seems to us, too, that 25 per cent on the estimate of cost is quite a large allowance for "contingencies."

LYNCHING.

Lynching, we are glad to see, is not in these days, the favorite amusement of the white inhabitants of some parts of the Southern States. When a crime of a certain kind is committed, say in Florida, a mob of white men assemble, and immediately set out on a "negro hunt." There is no attempt to "see in motion" the machinery of the law to trace and arrest the criminal, and afterwards to try him and "convict" him to "punish" him. This is "too long" too intricate and too uncertain a way of proceeding. Those who suspect the mob of being "infamous" and "barbarous" are, we are told, "killed" because they were "too good" for the mob. In another case, three negroes were killed because they were "too good" for the mob. For still another crime, three negroes had been killed, although there was no conclusive evidence against any one of them. Of the fourteen negroes killed, the Advertiser says, "evidence was simply innocent, and there was no positive evidence against the remaining three."

SKETCHES IN THE SENATE.

An Official Body But Little Known Yet Full of Historic Interest.

Its Necessity as a Safeguard to the Well-Being of the Nation.

Parliamentary procedure and terms become familiar as household words to those who live in the Capital as well as those who frequent it. "Senate and Commons Chamber," "Government and Opposition," "Speaker and Leader," "House and Press Gallery," "Sergeant-at-Arms," "Black Rod," "Maos," "motions," "debates," "adjournments,"—all these terms become veritable A B C's to the frequenters of the house on the hill. But I often wonder whether they convey any definite conception to the mass of our people, those who have not the opportunity of visiting our legislative halls, or looking down with curiosity on the proceedings of this august body, past and present, in full of interest, and the record of its work endures in the constitution and laws of which Canada is so justly proud.

LOUISBURG MONUMENT.

LOUISBURG, C. B., June 18.—Howland Peppell, chairman of the general committee, presided at the dedicatory exercises at the dedication of the monument at Louisburg yesterday, and after stating the object of the gathering, which was to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the capture of the fort by New England troops, called upon Rev. Dr. Slater, of Burlington, Iowa, to offer prayer. Dr. Slater is a lineal descendant of the hero of the battle of Pepperell, the commander of the New England land forces at the siege of Louisburg. A address prepared by Frederick J. Depeyster was read by the chairman. Mr. Depeyster paid tribute to the brave and obstinate defender of the fortress, Mr. Pomroy, of Ohio, a great grandson of Major Pomroy, who distinguished himself at Louisburg, and extended to the present generation the lessons of his valor. The Rev. Dr. J. C. Bourne, of New Glasgow, followed.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN.

LONDON, June 17.—The nineteenth annual meeting of the British Women's Temperance Association opened in the Queen's Hall this morning. The principal feature of the session was the annual address of the president, Lady Henry Somerset. She said in the course of her address: "The temperance question was never so generally before our country as to-day. No other great nation ever saw a direct veto bill included in the platform of a party, twice recognized by the House and the Commons. The strength of public sentiment is indicated by these facts, and marks England as a leader of national sentiment and purpose legislation among the nations of the earth. Never before have so many women congregated representing an organization so large and thoroughly equipped and staffed for the purpose of the good of their country and of every nation. To an English it is a home-like fact that many of our delegates have come from Canada."

"THE NEW WOMAN."

An American Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church has been preaching against the "New Woman." The new woman, as this American divine represents her, is not by any means an attractive or a lovable creature. He not only does not like, but he fears the new woman, who, according to him, is bringing society to the verge of a dangerous precipice. The New York Commercial Advertiser as in duty bound takes up the cudgels for the new woman, and tries to show that she is by no means so very new as her enemies represent her to be. There have been from the earliest historical period capable women who, when necessity required, did a man's work better than most men. Everyone has known women of ability who, as tender in their affections, and as assiduous in the performance of their household duties as the wisest and most "ladylike" of their sex, have been the support of their families in the absence of their husbands.

Its Necessity as a Safeguard to the Well-Being of the Nation.

Parliamentary procedure and terms become familiar as household words to those who live in the Capital as well as those who frequent it. "Senate and Commons Chamber," "Government and Opposition," "Speaker and Leader," "House and Press Gallery," "Sergeant-at-Arms," "Black Rod," "Maos," "motions," "debates," "adjournments,"—all these terms become veritable A B C's to the frequenters of the house on the hill. But I often wonder whether they convey any definite conception to the mass of our people, those who have not the opportunity of visiting our legislative halls, or looking down with curiosity on the proceedings of this august body, past and present, in full of interest, and the record of its work endures in the constitution and laws of which Canada is so justly proud.

LOUISBURG MONUMENT.

LOUISBURG, C. B., June 18.—Howland Peppell, chairman of the general committee, presided at the dedicatory exercises at the dedication of the monument at Louisburg yesterday, and after stating the object of the gathering, which was to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the capture of the fort by New England troops, called upon Rev. Dr. Slater, of Burlington, Iowa, to offer prayer. Dr. Slater is a lineal descendant of the hero of the battle of Pepperell, the commander of the New England land forces at the siege of Louisburg. A address prepared by Frederick J. Depeyster was read by the chairman. Mr. Depeyster paid tribute to the brave and obstinate defender of the fortress, Mr. Pomroy, of Ohio, a great grandson of Major Pomroy, who distinguished himself at Louisburg, and extended to the present generation the lessons of his valor. The Rev. Dr. J. C. Bourne, of New Glasgow, followed.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN.

LONDON, June 17.—The nineteenth annual meeting of the British Women's Temperance Association opened in the Queen's Hall this morning. The principal feature of the session was the annual address of the president, Lady Henry Somerset. She said in the course of her address: "The temperance question was never so generally before our country as to-day. No other great nation ever saw a direct veto bill included in the platform of a party, twice recognized by the House and the Commons. The strength of public sentiment is indicated by these facts, and marks England as a leader of national sentiment and purpose legislation among the nations of the earth. Never before have so many women congregated representing an organization so large and thoroughly equipped and staffed for the purpose of the good of their country and of every nation. To an English it is a home-like fact that many of our delegates have come from Canada."

CHINA CREEK MINES.

Frank McQuillan Tells of the Richness of the Quartz Veins.

Mr. Frank McQuillan, who was the pioneer among the prospectors of Alberni district, is in town making arrangements for the further development of placer ground on China creek. Mr. McQuillan told that only preliminary work has been done on the quartz and placer claims in the China creek region. Had the mining field been further developed, it would probably have greater attractions, but being within almost a day's run from Victoria investors are dubious or careless about its value.

CHAPTER VI. A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

But the cup of Mrs. Heselgrave's triumph was not yet full. Her momentary pause had allured her into the drawing of an undesirable acquaintance was opened upon her.

It was charity that did it—pure feminine charity, not mingled with a faint sense of duty noblesse oblige and who begrudged demands from a potential Lady Bountiful.

So they went into the Scuola di San Rocco together. But Rufus Mortimer, landlubberly anxious that his friend should expend no more of his hard earned cash on such unseasonable gallantries, took good care to go on a few paces ahead.

Arnold handed the money hastily to the struggling old bystander.

languidly drew back involuntarily at the first glance with a little start of astonishment. "Dear me," he cried, turning round in his surprise at Kathleen and twisting his left hand in a lock of hair behind his ear.

And indeed even Mrs. Heselgrave was forced to admit in her own mind that in spite of his rough clothes and his worn and beaten face the young man seemed to have a certain grace in his walk.

Arnold noticed that dainty blimp had become her wonderfully—and was confirmed by it in his good opinion of Kathleen's character.

"I see," Kathleen answered, very much taken aback. It had never even occurred to her that a man could so choose his calling.

"But didn't you long for art, too?" she went on after a brief pause. "You, who were a lister's son, and whose father could see with his own eyes that you had a taste for art and color."

"Yes," he answered frankly, with a scrutinizing glance. "I did. I longed for it. But at that time I was only a child."

"But aren't you an artist?" Kathleen asked, much wondering in her soul at this strange intrusion of conscience into such unfamiliar fields.

was following my own inclination, but I felt too I was doing right to some extent.

Arnold Willoughby's face flushed, all aglow with pleasure. The misogynist in him was thoroughly overcome. Nothing remained but the man who had loved the first time the art of the very earliest Venetian painters, the man who so loved the great Romanesque arcades of the Fondaco del Turchi and who gazed over the details of the mosaic in St. Mark's—could consent to live in a petty Italian shop, pecking with salt cod and overhauling the noisome bank of a side canal more picturesque than sweet smelling.

CHAPTER VII. MAKING THEM MEET.

That winter Kathleen saw a great deal of the interesting sailor who had taken to painting. He had by accident, half by design, they had chosen their pictures very judiciously.

This painting side by side they saw much of one another. Rufus Mortimer, who cherished a real liking for Kathleen, grew jealous at times of the penniless sailor man.

Money gives a man a pull, and Arnold Willoughby felt it when every morning Kathleen floated up to her work in Rufus Mortimer's private gondola, with Mrs. Heselgrave leaning back over the cushions of her chair.

Arnold Willoughby's face was aglow with excitement, but he did not say anything of his own work.

But when her glance fell on Arnold Willoughby she looked up at him with a merry twinkle in her big brown eyes and dropped her eyes to the canvas of the essay.

ing—what else save Kathleen Heselgrave? It was a pretty enough window in its way, too, that looked out onto the high fourth floor in the Calle del Paradiso, and as often happens in Venice a side street when you mount high enough in the skyward clamoring houses it commanded a far more beautiful and extensive view than any stranger could imagine as he looked up from without at the narrow chink of blue between the tall rows of opposite tenements; for it gave upon a side canal full of life and bustle, and it looked out just beyond upon a quiet, round tower with a Romanesque staircase winding spirally outside it and disclosing glimpses in the farther distance of spires and domes and campanili innumerable. But it wasn't of the staircase, or the crowded canal, or the long, shallow barges laden with eggs and fruit that Arnold Willoughby was just then thinking.

He knew he was in love with her. He recognized her in love with her. And what was more, from the way she had said those words, "I respect you so much I don't believe anything but what you could ever make me think the worse of you, if he felt pretty sure in his own mind she loved him in return and had divined his love for her.

Thus openly challenged, Kathleen turned round to him with her fearless eyes and said perhaps a little more than she would ever have said had he not driven her to avow it.

Nevertheless Arnold Willoughby was not disinclined to believe that Kathleen Heselgrave really and truly loved him.

But how could he ask her? That was now the question. He certainly wasn't going to turn his back upon his own deliberate determination and claim once more the title and estates of the earldom of Axminster.

Summer Slaughter of Innocents.

The slaughter of innocents will soon begin. The hot, enervating weather of mid-summer will quickly lay low the young babes who are weak, puny and sickly.

At this time there is hope and salvation for every weak and sickly child. The saving of life is not accomplished by medicine; the work is effectually done by feeding the child on pure and life-giving Lactated Food.

When Lactated Food is used as a diet at this season, babies escape all the dangers of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. Babies when fed on Lactated Food, thrive and flourish as well in the hot weather as at any other season.
