

THE POWER OF MONEY.

F. S. KIRKLAND AND J. A. WILKINSON RELEASED ON BAIL.

Prof. Goldwin Smith acts as bondsman for the former.

By far the most interesting part of Saturday's trial at the police court of the now famous conspiracy trial was enacted just before the adjournment at 6.15.

It became whispered around the court room early in the day that Goldwin Smith was to become Kirkland's bondsman.

The rumor received some tangible confirmation about 12.30 when Prof. Smith entered the crowded court room by the west door.

He sat in the front row of the spectators and reached the inside of the bar.

His first act was to salute Kirkland and shake hands with him, at the same time whispering something into his ear.

Kirkland who has smiled but very little since the trial opened, arose to his feet, his whole countenance becoming illuminated with gratitude.

Mr. Cameron, his counsel, also seemed very much delighted with the little scene, more so probably on account of the standing of his client's bondsman.

When the evidence for the day was concluded at 6.40 his worship announced that there had not been anything very strong come out against Kirkland, and he would reduce his bail to one surety of $2000 and himself in $4000, and the papers were immediately drawn up.

The magistrate did not reduce Wilkinson's bail, and Edward Gegg and Thomas Graham, who were assistant chiefs of the fire department, became his sureties in $2000 each and defendant himself in $4000.

Mr. Fraser, who was very particular about the standing of the bailsmen of Wilkinson, and requested them to justify, which they did.

When the magistrate told the court that he was going home, Kirkland added that he had heard that some of the members who had been approached had told the government and Kirkland told him that he was going home.

Kirkland added that if they were not all careful they would get locked up in the penitentiary.

By Dowling was rightly cross-examined by Mr. McMaster, and the principal feature of the testimony were unshaken, although the doctor was often charged in his answers and sneaked in tantalizing the M.P. occasionally.

Mr. McMaster asked witness what he had been unseated for at his first election. "Corrupt practices," he replied. "I brought forty shanties down from the woods to vote for me, and treated three different people. The treating was done previous to the nomination and I did not think it was wrong."

Mr. McMaster asked witness how much his elections cost him. "I do not know," he replied. "Possibly between $1000 and $2000."

"Did the reform party ever contribute anything towards your election?" "They did not. I never asked any man to pay one cent towards my expenses."

"Are you a wealthy man, doctor? How do you stand in your county?" "As well as you do in yours," replied witness.

"Did you not often complain to your fellow members in your hotel that you had never received a cent from the reformers to the aid of the cause?" "I frequently mentioned it," replied Dr. Dowling. "The occasions on which I talked about it was when I was in the hospital."

Mr. Murphy asked witness if he had not shown Mr. Wilkinson a private letter from his wife with this sentence in it. The object of this question was evidently to show that Dowling had paraded his heavy election expenses around with an ulterior object in view.

Dr. Cascardi will be the first witness called on Monday. He will probably be the last important witness.

Before the committee.

The first witness examined before the assembly committee was Thomas Goldie of Guelph. Mr. Goldie spoke of the letter which Wilkinson wrote him, but he assured the committee that it had been destroyed. He produced a telegram from Wilkinson to him which read: "Toronto, March 11.—Come down and see me at 10 Walker house, J. A. Wilkinson." With regard to the unsigned letter written on telegram forms Mr. Goldie said that the only reason he could give for its signing was because it was written in a hurry. He said he had no intention not to sign it. Mr. Fraser emphatically denied the latter's charges that the (Fraser) letter was signed by him or otherwise, the round robin signed by McKim and Lyon, and alleged to have been found in Wilkinson's pocket after being arrested. Mr. Fraser said he had never seen the document. Mr. Balfour made some further explanations to the committee of his connection with the alleged conspirators.

Mr. Fraser read a report of the draft he proposed to submit to the committee as their report to the house. The report, which will be submitted to-day, advises that, as the house will not have time to complete the investigation, it be referred to a commission of judges.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

A STRIKING SERMON BY THE REV. DR. WILD.

The way we judge—The uniform of the Army—The Pattern of the Army—Their Rapid Advancement.

The crowd last evening was the largest that has ever been in Bond street church for weeks, while fully one thousand were unable to obtain admission.

THE SERMON.

Text: And he did not drink with wine when he was with the spirit.

In judging of what we see and hear, we must not be misled by appearances.

Everything depends upon the spirit we possess when we undertake the judging.

If a good Methodist mother were to be taken to a dance for the first time, and were to see a crowd whirling madly around and perspiring with the effort, she would naturally enquire why they did such foolish things.

To her it would be a ridiculous and nonsensical sight, while those who were dancing would think it was charming.

And he did not drink with wine when he was with the spirit.

And he did not drink with wine when he was with the spirit.

And he did not drink with wine when he was with the spirit.

And he did not drink with wine when he was with the spirit.

The Stugging Man. From a New York Correspondent. New York, March 22.—It is not the "fancy" brethren alone who indulge in stugging. Brokers frequently figure in that line, club men occasionally have a pugilistic bout when their angry passions, and many actors are as ready for a rough-and-tumble as if they were part of their profession.

The two English actors, Eric Bailey and Edmond Arthur, who had it out with their fists at the Union Square hotel the other day, the fight beginning in the restaurant and ending on the sidewalk, went for each other with all the energy of regular hitters, if not with quite so much skill.

Among the spectators at the impromptu stugging match were John McCullough, Stuart Robinson and several other notables of the profession. As very often happens, there was a woman in the case. Bailey came to New York a few years ago with his wife and a play called The Colonel. He found Arthur here and employed him as a secretary. Arthur and Mrs. Bailey disappeared at the same time soon after. Bailey subsequently recovered his wife and promised himself to give Arthur a thrashing as soon as he should find him. When he did find him the thrashing was not all on one side.

Another affair of pretty much the same kind happened in the Petroleum Exchange the same day. Broker Fredericks and Broker Halk had been at odds for some time as to which was the better man. They decided to settle the question in the Exchange, and for that purpose they not only put on gloves, but actually started for the contest.

A ring was made and at it went, hammer and tongs, a crowd of 200 brokers or thereabouts looking on. Only a few rounds were fought, and neither showed any particular skill. The question of superiority was decided in favor of Fredericks and the brokers went right back to business.

Take a number of skirmishes were taken quite among the stock exchange from time to time, but no regular ring fight as yet. Now that the oil brokers have set an example in this line, the Wall street boys may take a notion to show that they do something with the gloves, too, and it is within the possibilities that "stugging matches" will become one of the regular pastimes in the exchange when business is dull.

A Great Advertising Scheme. CLEVELAND, O., March 22.—Duncan C. Ross said last night relative to the proposed match between Sullivan and Thompson: "What Mr. Sullivan says we're agreeable to, except that we want three months to prepare Thompson for the fight; otherwise it's all satisfactory. Thompson's articles of agreement provide for a fair stand-up fight, according to the new rules of the prize ring, for $5000 a side and the championship of the world, the contest to be fought on behalf of Mervine Thompson for a fight with John L. Sullivan. The offer is to match Thompson against Sullivan in a fair stand-up fight, according to the new rules of the London prize ring, for $2500 a side and the championship of the world. The fight is to come off four months from signing the articles.

Buckles in a Sparring Contest. CHICAGO, March 22.—The public was invited to witness a four-round glove contest at a shady resort to-night between two local boxers named Tom Anderson and James H. Dalton, and the affair it was announced would be interesting from the fact that some feeling existed between the two men. After a few preliminary passages Dalton struck Anderson several heavy face blows, when the country of the latter was shown to be covered with blood from several apparently deep dashes. The police parted the men, and one of them seeing Dalton disclosed the fact that both his gloves were fastened with iron buckles which served their purpose of mutilating the blows, when the country of the latter was shown to be covered with blood from several apparently deep dashes. Little Billy of Brantford. A Pennsylvania correspondent writes to the Spirit of the Times as follows: "In your issue of Feb. 2 you credit Clear Grit with three representatives in the 2-30 list, among them Bay William, boy getting (3), to this Little Billy, mentioned on the enclosed poster of Dan Allen? Do you know anything of the records—2-22, at Guelph; 2-16, at Toronto—of the boy getting (3), to this Little Billy's claim? Answer.—There is a good deal of uncertainty about this horse Bay William. Some reports describe him as a gelding, others a stallion. We are inclined to think he is really Little Billy himself (previous record 2-30). The poster abounds in misstatements, and the 2-22 and 2-16 are very glaring ones."

A Hint for the World Over. From the Pittsburg Leader. Two old friends of the thirty-sixth ward, John Lowrie, an old gentleman, 65 years of age, and Mr. Michael Rodgers, have been accustomed on the anniversaries of St. Patrick's day, and orangean's day, the 12th of July, to meet each other and have a friendly bowl of punch. This has been carried on for the last sixteen years by the two gentlemen and has not in one instance been forgotten. Mr. Lowrie and Mr. Rodgers came from county Tyrone, in Ireland, and were neighbors, but of different religious views. They renewed the friendship in this country, and made the above compact. This morning Mr. Lowrie called on Mr. Rodgers and the two had quite a friendly chat about old times in Ireland. Mr. Lowrie drowned the sham rock with Mr. Rodgers, and on the 12th of July Mr. Rodgers will call on Mr. Lowrie and "water the lily" with the same kind of beverage.

Mr. W. A. Wing, Westport, writes: "I wish to inform you of some wonderful results which followed the use of Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphates of Lime and Soda. My case of six months' standing had reduced me to such an extent that I was unable to work. I tried many remedies without effect; at last I used this Emulsion, and before three bottles were used I am glad to say I was restored to perfect health.

Whatever is planted in Dakota grows rapidly. Having this in mind a Dakota settler refused to bury his wife there, and sent her back to Ashtabula county, Ohio. He was afraid she would grow again. This story is told at more length in a Bismarck Journal. We suppose it is correct.
