

Wreck of the North Atlantic.

WRECKERS OF THESE CENTURIES. In the North Atlantic Ocean, about eighty miles off the southern coast of Nova Scotia, lies a small, crescent shaped island of sand known as Sable Island. About its shores the great waves beat in ceaseless thunder, and its name is freight with terror.

The first wreck of which there is record was that of the ship Spirit, commanded by Sir Humphrey Gilbert, half brother of Sir Walter Raleigh. In 1583 he sailed from Sable Island and every soul on board perished, 100 in all. In 1598 the Marquis de Roche landed forty French convicts here, the island having been apparently reported as a suitable place for a convict settlement. The poor convicts, abandoned here, managed to sustain life for some time, but their number gradually decreased.

At the present time there are about sixty persons on the island. They consist of the superintendent and his family, the lightkeepers, the firemen, and patrol men and their families. Everything on the island is Government property.

Agricultural.

The Dog in the Dairy. A very wholesome sermon might be written on dogs in the dairy. The only instance I have ever seen, where the dog seemed to be in the dairy, was when he was doing the churning. Even then he must be tied to the handle, or he soon learns when churning does come, and makes it a special point, to bark and howl, and generally to get in the way of the churning.

The Blessing of One Newspaper. At the newspaper, it is obvious that in the country you appreciate it much more when you have to wait for it and when it comes at unexpected moments. I never properly enjoyed a newspaper till I settled in the country. The reason is that in town you have too many journals and get perfectly nauseated with them.

Kittens.

In some portions of Germany the kittens, or church mice, formerly danced in honor of the dedication of a church; it is now observed with the special character of a harvest home. It marks the close of the year's labors and is celebrated by three days of merriment, feasting and dancing with partners chosen or allotted, according to degrees of comeliness, at the preceding May festival.

Photography for Women.

A prominent New-York photographer declares that if he could obtain the services of a woman to take photographs, he would not have a man in his employ. It is a woman's natural lightness, her delicacy of touch, her keen eye for light and shade, and, perhaps most of all, her artistic instinct, which peculiarly render her fitted for the work of photography.

When the Child has Done Wrong. Obedience in children is a prime requisite; but there are right and wrong ways of compelling it, and the exercise of patience on the part of the parent is sometimes called for even in the case of a child that has done wrong and known it.

The Servant Girl Problem. "Bridget has been so cross and hateful and impatient that there's no living with her today," said Mrs. Juniper, when her husband came home the other evening.
