FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

ON LEAVING THE U. S. SENATE

By Jefferson Davis

From a farewell speech to his fellow-members in the upper branch of the national congress, January 21, 1861.

WHEN senators, we recur to the principles upon which our government was founded; and when you deny them, and when you deny us the right to withdraw from a government which, thus perverted, threatens to be destructive of our rights, we but tread in the path of our fathers when we proclaim our independence and take the hazard. This is done, not in hostility to others, not to injure any section of the country, not even for our own pecuniary benefit, but from the high and solemn motive of defending and protecting the rights we inherited and which it is our duty to transmit unshorn to our children.

I find in myself, perhaps, a type of the general feeling of my constituents toward the north. I am sure that there is not one of you, whatever sharp discussion there may have been between us, to whom I cannot now say in the presence of my God, I wish you well; and such I am sure is the feeling of the people whom I represent toward those whom you represent. I, therefore, feel that I but express their desire when I say I hope and they hope for peaceable relations with you, though we must part. They may be mutually beneficial to us in the future, as they have been in the past, if you so will it. The reverse may bring disaster on every portion of the country, and if you will have it thus, we will invoke the God of our fathers, who delivered them from the power of the lion, to protect us from the ravages of the bear; and thus putting our trust in God and in our firm hearts and strong arms we will vindicate the right as best we may.

In the course of my service here, associated at different times with a great variety of senators, I see now around me some with whom I have served long; there have been points of collision, but whatever of offence there has been to me I have given which has not been redressed or for which satisfaction has not been demanded, I have, senators, in this hour of our parting, to offer you my apology for any pain which in the heat of discussion I have inflicted. I go hence unnumbered by the remembrance of any injury received and having discharged the duty of making the only reparation in my power for any injury offered.

Mr. President and senators, having made the announcement which the occasion seemed to me to require, it only remains for me to bid you a final adieu.

his regular vein; others drank coffee that disagreed with them, or smoked cigarettes too highly perfumed. In any case, the inevitable result of these eccentricities has been that a fresh Sultan occupied the throne. Now, don't forget that I am simply theorizing, for I know no more of this business than you do at this moment, but I still think that you will find some connection between my theory and that which has actually occurred. At any rate I have said sufficient to prove to you the importance of not being too ready to make arrests.

"I quite see that," was the thoughtful rejoinder. "But you must not forget, sir, that we in Scotland Yard are bound by rules of procedure. Perhaps you will not mind my suggesting that a word from you to the Foreign Office might induce the authorities to communicate officially with the Home Department, and then instructions could be sent to the police which would leave the matter a little more open than we are able to regard it under the existing conditions."

"I will see to that," said the barrister. "This evening at eight."

"It will be adjourned, of course?"

"Oh, yes; no evidence will be given beyond that necessary for purposes of identification, and this can be supplied by the police themselves and an official from the Turkish Embassy."

"Very well. You will mention to no one the theory I have just explained to you."

"Not if you wish it, sir."

"It is all right at present. Which way are you going?"

"Straight to the Yard."

"One left to myself, I will accompany you a portion of the distance."

They had now reached Hyde Park corner, and, having descended, Brett told the driver to stop outside the Carlton Hotel. The man whipped up his horse and drove in the direction of Constitution Hill, evidently intending to avoid the congested traffic of Piccadilly and take the longer, but more pleasant route through the Green Park and the Mall.

"By the way," said Brett, "did the driver of the hansom convey Mr. Talbot and his companion from Albert Gate on Monday night tell you which road he was pursuing? The mere fact of reality to the case. For a mile, at any rate, there could be no mistake, though he might expect a check at the Carlton."

"Yes," said the barrister, "he went this way."

Brett rubbed his hands with a queer expression of thoughtful pleasure on his face.

"Ah," he said, "I like that. It is well to be on the safe side."

He did not explain to his professional confidant that it was a positive stimulant to his abundant energy and highly-strung nerves, but he was not a man to let anything following the path taken by the criminal when he was pursuing. The mere fact of reality to the case. For a mile, at any rate, there could be no mistake, though he might expect a check at the Carlton."

"Yes," said the barrister, "he went this way."

Brett rubbed his hands with a queer expression of thoughtful pleasure on his face.

THE ALBERT GATE MYSTERY

BY LOUIS TRACY

Copyright 1904 by R. P. Fenno & Co.

"Doctors were at once sent for and the first medical gentleman to arrive said that each of the four had been dead for many hours, he also imagined that the coffee, the remains of which we found in some cups on the table, had been drugged. So, before disturbing the scene, he called in the Commissioner and after a careful investigation Mr. Coke came to the same conclusion as the other gentlemen. He believes that the Excellence and his assistants were first supplied by the drug and then murdered as they sat in their chairs, whilst the appearance of Haines and the nature of his wounds seemed to indicate that he had been unexpectedly attacked and killed before he could arrange effectually or even call for assistance.

"Of course, the diamonds had vanished, whilst in the sales or on the table, and the fact that he had evidently been taken from his Excellence's pockets. We were all puzzled to account for the disappearance of the diamonds, and the dagger, but you have clearly shown the means whereby they were conveyed out of the room. Mr. Coke took away the coffee for analysis. The four bodies were carried to the mortuary in Chapel Place, and the fourteen workmen were conveyed to Scotland Yard, not because we have any charge against them, but the Commissioner thought it best to keep them under surveillance until the Turkish Embassy had settled what was to be done with them, the matter of paying such wages as were due and sending them back to Amsterdam. The men who were taken away were quite satisfied with our action in the matter. That is really all I have to tell you."

"It is quite clear, then, said Brett, that two men succeeded in murdering four and in getting away with their plunder and arms without creating any suspicion in your mind."

"That is so," admitted Inspector Sharpe, ruefully.

"Then," said Brett, "there is nothing else to be done here. Will you come with me, Mr. Winter?"

"Where to, sir?" inquired the detective.

"To find Mr. Talbot, of course."

"Easier said than done," remarked Inspector Walters, as the door closed behind the visitors.

Inspector Sharpe was less optimistic. "He's a very smart chap, is Brett," he said. "Neither you nor I thought of punching that wire screen, did we?"

CHAPTER V.

A Starting Cue.

Once clear of the Albert Gate mansion, the barrister was bound to confess a feeling of uncertainty which seldom characterized either his thoughts or his actions. He admitted as much to his companion, for Brett was a man who would not consent to pose under any circumstances.

"It is quite true," he explained, "that our first duty must be to find Mr. Talbot, and it is still more certain that we will be able to accomplish that part of our task, but there are elements in this inquiry which baffle me at present."

"What do you mean, sir?" said the detective.

"I fail to see why Mr. Talbot was dragged to the scene at all. On the straightforward assumption that Turks were engaged in the present operation, it would be the duty of the police to follow the way, I attach no great amount of credence—why did they not allow Mr. Talbot to go quietly to his own home? It was not that they discovered more speedily discovery of the crime. The man who made no move which might prove injurious to them next morning, and then the whole affair was bound to be discovered by the police in the ordinary course of events."

"I don't quite follow you, sir," said Winter, with a puzzled tone in his voice. They had not yet taken a step toward the Park, and were now walking toward Hyde Park Corner. "What do you mean by saying that Mr. Talbot would make no move in the matter until next morning?"

"Oh, I forgot," said Brett. "Of course you don't know why the diamonds were stolen."

"For the same reason that all other diamonds are stolen, I suppose."

"Oh, dear, no," laughed the barrister. "It is a political crime."

"Political?" said the amazed policeman.

"Well, we won't quarrel about words, and as there are perhaps no politics in Turkey, we will call it dramatic or any other loud-voiced adjective which serves to take it out of the category of simple felony. Why? I cannot at this moment tell you, but you may be perfectly certain that the disappearance of those diamonds from the room in which they were kept, was not caused by the Sultan to sleep any more soundly."

"What beats me, Mr. Brett," said the detective, viciously prodding the gravel path with his stick, "is how you ferret out these queer facts—fancies, some people would call them, as I used to do until I knew you better."

"In this case it is simple enough. By mere chance I happened to read, this morning that there had been some little domestic squabble in royal circles in Constantinople. I don't know whether you are acquainted with Turkish history, Mr. Winter, but it is a well recognized principle that any Sultan is liable to die of disease which are weird and painful in their nature, the last one is popularly supposed to have plunged a long, sharp scissors into enough to enable him to describe the locality more precisely. It follows then, in unerring sequence that Talbot was conveyed to some place within a very short distance of the spot where I now stand."

He looked along Pall Mall, up the Haymarket, and through Cockspur Street, and he noted with some degree of curiosity that there were very few residential buildings in the neighborhood. Clubs, theatres, big commercial establishments and insurance offices occupied the bulk of the available space. It was a part of his theory that none of the great hotels in this district could harbor the criminals, otherwise there would have been no excuse to stop the hansom outside the Carlton.

Brett did not take long to make up his mind once he had decided upon a definite course. He stood at the corner barely three minutes, and then walked off through Pall Mall and down the steps near the Duke of York's Column into the Horse Guards' Parade, intending to walk quently to his Victoria Street flat. A call at the Foreign Office procured him an official authorization from the Under-Secretary to inquire into the circumstances of Talbot's disappearance and a promise that the Home Office should be communicated with.

He desired to review the whole of the circumstances attending this strange mystery of modern life, and the result of his reflections quickly became apparent when he reached his residence, for in the first instance he despatched a telegram, and then made several notes in his private diary.

HEAD OF HASSAM PAVING CO., HERE

Came to St. John to Look Into Criticisms of Company's Contract—Had Conference This Morning With Mayor and Aldermen—Says He Courts Investigation

The paving agitation and clamor for an investigation took a new and unexpected turn today when Walter E. Hassam, general manager of the Hassam Paving Company, and his superintendent of construction, Mr. Crane, arrived in the city and with R. S. Lowe, their representative here, had a long conference with Mayor Frank and Chairman McDermott of the board of works, in the mayor's office this morning. Others present were City Engineer Murdoch and Aldermen Potts, Elkin and Sproul. The whole matter was the subject of an animated discussion. It was stated in the meeting that the talk at times ran high and waxed somewhat warm, but so much in opposition to the paving people as to demand of writing and doing strong objection to criticism. Apparently those at the conference were not prepared for an investigation of the Hassam paving company. Mr. Hassam announced after the meeting that he was prepared for an investigation at any time, in fact courted one. This was also the assertion of Chairman McDermott. Mayor Frank, when asked if he would avail himself of the offer of Mr. Hassam, said that if any five aldermen were in an investigation he would go ahead with one.

GANGS RACING WITH DEATH

Speeding on Train to See Parents in Baltimore Before He Dies

Pittsburg, Aug. 5.—Joe Gans, one-time lightweight champion of the prize ring, will live to see his parents in Baltimore toward whom he is speeding in a race which will end in death. Gans, who is a consumptive, and only able to faintly articulate between spasms "Eh my head," or "Eh!" the once applauded gladiator of the fistic arena, passed through this city shortly before 7 o'clock this morning. He had arrived at Baltimore at 4:30 a. m. and departed for the seat twenty minutes later and in due at Baltimore at 3:30 p. m. He was accompanied by his wife, his attending physician, Dr. H. T. Southworth of Prescott, Arizona, and a nurse. Gans was in the company of a traveling salesman, J. J. Jackson, who succeeded Dr. Southworth in the care of Gans. Gans occupied a drawing-room.

A TECHNICAL SCHOOL. St. John should have a school or college for technical education. The Royal Commission, which will meet here on August 17th does not confine itself to purely academic training, but desires to gain information which may lead to the introduction of a system which will be of a very practical benefit to a large class who without special training are ill-fitted for the struggle of life.

The Ottawa Free Press rightly observes that for every person who can afford the time and money to attend a school there are scores who cannot. Those people have to educate themselves. If the commission can find a feasible way of aiding them it will do one of the greatest works.

It is desirable that not only manufacturers but working men be well represented before the commission. The farmers also, should have representatives, for the scope of this commission is very wide.

We may reasonably anticipate the time when St. John will have a well equipped institution for technical education. This is a manufacturing city, and it is confidently believed that its growth as a manufacturing centre will be continuous and on an extensive scale.

It is in the plan in New Brunswick where the conditions are favorable for the success of such a school. The citizens, however, must take the matter up, for the federal government is not likely to consider itself bound to provide such schools, nor will the provincial government undertake the expenditure unless there is a very decided expression of public opinion. The present is a most opportune time to set the ball rolling.

The wood-working industry at South Bay is to be a reality. St. John as well as South Bay will derive benefit.

Already three Canadian and two British firms have expressed a desire to tender for building new ships for the Canadian navy.

It is a rather dull day that does not bring the story of some wild scheme in distant fields in which New Brunswick investors have lost money. Why not pay more attention to local investments?

TOO QUICK FOR HER. The suffering of the homeless people in Campbellton has been made greater by much wet weather. The very heavy rain of yesterday caused much suffering. Public assistance cannot be too liberally or promptly given.

Speaking at Moncton, Sir Wilfrid Laurier repeated his assurance that the tariff would be revised downward, and also pledged the government to extend the work of civil service reform, to lessen the patronage system.

A serious condition of affairs exists at Springfield, as a result of the prolonged strike. Members of the militia are still on duty, and there is a deadlock over the choice of special police to take their place. There is also a deadlock in the town council. The affairs of the town cannot be prosperous under these conditions.

A Canadian exchange says: "The London Morning Post complains in reference to the Imperial Conference of 'ten resolutions to one result,' and terms the outlook gloomy. But most great world movements have had a similar experience, of dozens of resolutions being passed, before much real progress is accomplished. Even yet the Imperial Conference is groping its way to an end hardly clearly seen, and this being the case, the lack of speed is but a measure of safety."

A New York paper, referring to what it regards as tendencies toward union between the United States and Canada says: "No man can foretell the future, but it would seem that the forces which make for union are stronger than those against it." Whereupon the Ottawa Journal properly observes: "The time is not now present, if indeed there ever was such a time, when Canada and the United States might be expected to consider union. The destiny of Canada appears beyond doubt to be inseparably linked with that of the British empire and almost every single development of the past decade both here and in Britain, has gone to the strengthening of that idea.

But should this prove not to be the case, then Canada will become a nation within herself. The American newspaper truly says no man can foretell the future, but whatever befalls, with three such alternatives, Canada's position seems to be safe."

BURGLAR ESCAPED. Attempt Made to Enter Home of the "Hundred Million Dollar" Baby, at Bar Harbor. Bar Harbor, Maine, Aug. 4.—A burglar's attempt to break into the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean here early today was frustrated by the night watchman who guards the sleeping hours of the McLeans' "hundred million dollar" baby, as he is known from the great fortune that will some day be his.

The watchman about 3 o'clock heard the burglar alarm attached to a window in Mrs. McLean's chamber. He awoke Mrs. McLean and with him reached the window just in time to see a man running away among the trees of the estate. Four shots were fired at the intruder, who escaped.

There is a general feeling among the citizens that the main street paving matter should be made the subject of a searching enquiry. The aldermen must be aware that this feeling exists. It is their duty to bring on the enquiry, and to make it thorough. A citizen familiar with concrete tells the Times-Star that Mr. Carleton's statements were correct. Who is afraid?

A LITTLE VISITOR

There's a busy little fellow, Who came to town last night, When all the world was fast asleep, The children's eyes shut tight, I cannot tell you how he came, For well the secret's hid; But think upon a moonbeam bright Way down the earth he slid.

He brought the Misses Maple Each a lovely party gown; It was brilliant red and yellow, With a dash or two of brown, And he must have had a Midas touch, For, if the truth be told, The birches all, from top to toe, He dressed in cloth of gold.

Then he took a glittering icicle From underneath the eaves, And with it, on my window, Drew such shimmering silver leaves, Such fair and stately palaces, Such towers and temples grand, Their like I'm sure was never seen Outside of Fairyland.

Who is this busy little man, Whose coming brings us joy? For I'm very sure he's welcomed By every girl and boy; The little stars all save him, Though they will not tell a soul; But I've heard his calling-card reads thus: "J. Frost, Esq., North Pole."

IN LIGHTER VEIN MEN AND WATCHES. With a man, as with a watch, it's the works that count.

BASEBALL AND LIFE Baseball and life are the same; Always searching for men with the goods.

"Well, mother," replied Joe, "I look upon the matter in a different light. I don't mind being in the same class with boys so much smaller than myself, but I mind being in the same class with boys so much larger than myself."

PROBLEM OF THE UNEMPLOYABLE. Lazy Fellows Who Sit on Park Benches While Other Men Work—How They Live—St. John Has its Share of Them.

(Montreal Witness) In connection with some alterations being made in the "Witness" building extra labor has been required: efforts to secure it through the missions having failed, a member of the business staff went to Victoria Square and canvassed the loungers there to see if any of them required work.

All answered with a decided negative with the exception of one man, who replied that he wanted work, provided it was at his own trade.

"And what is that?" he was asked. "Snow-shovelling," was the brief reply. On recovering from his rebuff the Witness man met a gentleman well known in philanthropic circles who has an office on St. James street, and recounted the experience.

"Scarcely a day passes," said this gentleman, "without some of these people come to my office seeking alms. When I ask them why they do it, they invariably reply that it is because they cannot find work. I give them all the same reply: 'Go down to my yards and there will be work for you. Needless to say not more than one in ten ever goes, and those who do generally try to arise some money before they come back off. One day last week a man came in and after listening to his little tale of woe I told him I would give him employment."

"What shall I have to do?" he asked. "Shovel coal," I told him. "Pardon me," he said, "I am a most indig-

It is known to be very good to the poor fellows in Montreal who fall sick. This man has lost two fingers, and by telling a most plausible story replete with medical technicalities, he obtained a sum of money from this doctor, leaving him with many expressions of thanks and the assurance that it was the "first time he had ever had to beg, and he hoped it would be the last."

By a strange coincidence the doctor had a consultation with a fellow-practitioner that morning who had received a visit from the same man, but with a totally different story.

"Last winter," continued the Major, "another man worked a very plausible game and kept himself and some of his pals in comfort for quite a while. His particular line was that he had no shirt. On a bitterly cold day there would be few people who could resist the mute appeal of his bare chest when he opened his coat. One day he was particularly successful; having collected a number of shirts and other articles of apparel he sold them for eight dollars and he and two of his friends were arrested before the end of the afternoon for being drunk and disorderly."

"If the people who contribute to these institutions of Montreal, and would send these people to whichever institution they were favoring," concluded the major, "if the men who work from the city, we have a system of tickets which people can buy from us and when they are asked for alms they can give to the asker. When the man comes to us we know whether he is a habitual beggar or a man actually out of work and 'up against it.'"

If he belongs to the former class we confiscate his ticket and return it to the donor; if he belongs to the latter we do more for him than the casual donor of charity is able. By our waste paper department last year we were able to give 7,788 beds and meals, and all we ask from the public to enable us to do this was their waste paper and old clothes or furniture. Through the same department we were able to apply the "work test," men who showed that they had sufficient manhood to work for small wages and keep themselves sooner than live on charity were speedily helped to better things. At the present time there is not a man out of employment in Montreal who is willing to work. We have ten applications for men for every man seeking employment."

At the Old Brewery Mission, where many thousands of free beds and meals are given every year, the same story was told. "The public are entirely to blame," said the superintendent, "if they did not give alms at the door or to men who stop them in the street they would soon clear these people away."

Under the Criminal Code of Canada a vagrant is a person who "not having any visible means of sustaining himself, lives without employment." Further he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or to imprisonment with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding six months, or both. In effect, the law recognizes as parasites and a danger to society a number of individuals who are enabled to live lives of ease, by preying on the indiscriminate charity of the public. The police take but little action to protect the public from them—probably because the public takes but little action to protect itself.

REV. DR. HERRICK ON WAY TO YARMOUTH

Bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Church Tells Boston Audience How Colored People in West Indies are Thriving

The Boston Globe of Wednesday says: Rev. Dr. William B. Herrick, of the African Methodist Episcopal church is stopping a few days with his wife at the home of Rev. Dr. T. Wellington Henderson on Camden street.

He is on his way to Yarmouth, N. S., where he will hold an annual conference next week.

Last evening before a large audience at the Charles street A. M. E. church he spoke on "The Two Flags," describing the condition of the colored people under the American and British flags.

"In the West Indies," said the doctor, "the negroes are thriving as never before. They are doing so well there that many can now be spared to come to the United States and make a living, especially in the seaboard cities like New York and Boston, where the West Indian population is noticeably increasing.

Under the British flag the negroes of the West Indies since their emancipation just 70 years ago today by the British government have made good their opportunities.

Relative to the American colored men, the bishop thought that like the West Indian who has had to go through his crucial test, so too, is the American colored man going through a crucial test, out of which he will emerge triumphantly as a leader of the race.

"Things are looking dark, he claimed, for the colored man in this country at present, but behind this cloud shines brightly the star of hope.

"The future will find this country a country where a man is not judged by the former conditions of his fathers, but of what the individual man or collective race stands for," he said.

REAL ISSUE IN SPAIN; WHAT VATICAN WANTS

Catholic Register Says Protestants Should Not Want to be Treated as Bogus Catholics Fighting Irreligion

(Toronto Telegram) Very Rev. A. E. Burke, of Alberton, P. E. I., the Catholic Church Extension Society, asks the Telegram to publish the following editorial on "The Spanish Crisis," from the "Catholic Register."

The news from Spain, Father Burke thinks, is "colored by passing through altogether partial sources."

The editorial is as follows: "The published despatches from Spain would convey the impression that the Holy See has been standing out for unreasonable restrictions upon Protestant missionaries. Both of these impressions are false and misleading. Under the terms of the present Concordat, the Spanish Government has pledged itself to see to it that Protestant places of worship are prevented from displaying distinctly Catholic insignia.

Conform to Canon. "Catholics, who are familiar with the methods of certain mission societies in Porto Rico, the Philippines, and amongst the Roman Catholics in Canada, can easily understand the reason for this prohibition. In all Catholic countries the mission societies, with the exception of the Anglican, are pursuing the same course. Their churches and services are made to conform as closely as possible to the Catholic externals. The cross is displayed on the steeples, altars are erected and statues of the Blessed Virgin and the saints are not uncommon signs. The Holy See has merely insisted that these good people conform to the customs and practices of distinctly Protestant countries.

"This on the face of it, does not seem to be an unreasonable requirement. People engaged in an honest attempt to convert their Catholic brethren to Protestant views ought not to object too seriously to their being treated as real Protestants, rather than as bogus Catholics.

Hierarchy a Unit "On the question of religious orders, it is enough to say that the Spanish Hierarchy is a unit in opposing the action of the present Liberal Government. In the public protest, published a few days ago, the bishop called attention to the very pertinent fact that the Government is not making any attempt to close the places of infancy, though greatly preoccupied with the task of closing the places of prayer and study. The following passage from the Bishops' protest forcibly sums up the case against the Government:

"One cannot understand the reason of so much preoccupation to diminish the number of places of prayer and study, while there is nothing effectual done to diminish houses of corruption, atheistic schools, centres of anti-military and anti-patriotic propaganda, and of periodic that, in open violation of the law, threaten the foundations of family life, rights of property and order."

Fighting Irreligion "Those who have given any attention to the doings of continental atheism, must have been impressed by the bitterness of its campaign against religion in every form. Protestants, who range themselves on the side of the Atheistic Plunderband, which is now contemplating an assault on the property of the religious orders may live to discover that the Catholic Church is fighting the battles of revealed religion against continental irreligion, impiety, and unbelief.

GARDEN FROCK AND HAT OF PICTUREQUE TYPE

The French lingerie frocks are very to be seen in the window of the store. The frocks are never intended to visit the laundress, a carefully dry cleaning being the only way to freshen the color of the fabric. Such a frock is shown here, striped and netted of handsome Japanese embroidery being combined with Irish and Val lace.

The lady costume is dropped over a fitted slip of palest ciel satin, this slip being, of course, carefully feathered at the neckline, while the sheer stock of the lace frock is kept in place daintily by light strips of the featherbone. The hat, of blue silk and lace, has a wreath of little pink roses, and black velvet streamers add a picturesque touch.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By BETH CAMERON

WHEN the first peck-took waists began to appear last spring I found the usual crop of miscellaneous tirades against them in the magazines and newspapers.

Some were on the grounds of morality, but several were on the grounds of health. Think of that from a man. I shouldn't think they'd dared to say, "Well, I'll tell you why. Ask any doctor if it isn't just as unhealthy to be too heavily dressed as too lightly and see what he says."

How any man would dare to protest against the wearing of unduly thin clothes to spring when he himself offends nature and common sense every bit as much by wearing such absurdly thick clothes in summer is more than I can understand.

I was out on the street with a man on a very hot day recently. Coolness and in my shirtest gown I was fairly sufficed by the heat. What must he have suffered in a shirt about the thickness of my winter shirtwaists and a coat quite as heavy as what many women wear in January.

Several years ago, as perhaps you may remember, a certain side was started to make it proper for men to appear in their places of business and on the streets without their coats.

Unfortunately it was a good opportunity for ridicule and men can never endure ridicule; talk about women being convention bound. Anyone with any common sense at all knows that women aren't a circumstance to men in that particular. As you doubtless remember, caricatures and the name "the shirtwaist man" frightened most men away from this move towards common sense and the movement died. Now it doesn't seem to me it would have, despite men's cowardice, if women had given their enthusiastic support, and I wish one could be started and have the thorough backing of my sex.

Now don't say you don't approve of a man on the street without his coat. There is nothing that you have any reason to object to in a man wearing a negligee shirt. It is simply because it is an unaccustomed sight and in any way an objectionable one that you feel that way about it.

I wish every girl who reads this would say to her father or brother or man friends the next time she sees any of them obviously suffering from the heat, "Why don't you take off your coat? I think it looks all right."

Yes, probably they will look horrified or laugh at you the first time. But if enough girls say it to them enough times they will probably begin to consider the matter.

Yes, of course, it would take years, maybe a generation or two to get men to do such a tremendously radical thing as to take off their coats. But if it made them sweeter tempered and more reasonable--and of course any thing that added so much to their comfort would do that--don't you think it would be worth even several generations of effort?

Daily Hints for the Cook

GOOSEBERRY POOL. Green gooseberries; to every pint of pulp add half a pint of cream and half a pint of milk; sugar to taste. Cut the tops and tails off the gooseberries, put them into a jar with two table-spoonfuls of water and a little brown sugar; set this jar in a saucpan of boiling water and let it boil until the fruit is soft enough to mash. When done enough beat it to a pulp, press through a sieve, and stir to every pint the above proportion of cream and milk. Accept it if the mixture is sweet enough and put in plenty of sugar, or it will not be eatable in mixing add the cream very gradually to the gooseberries. Serve in a glass dish.

PEPPER SALAD. Mix two finely chopped hard boiled eggs, two table-spoonfuls parsley, chopped fine, two table-spoonfuls chopped red pepper, one teaspoon salt, one-third teaspoon black pepper, a little paprika, five table-spoonfuls oil, and one egg yolk. Cook Shake well before serving on lettuce or watercress.

CHERRY PUDDING. Beat two eggs lightly, add one cup milk little salt, table-spoon sugar and sufficient flour to make a thick drop of batter, add one teaspoon baking powder to each cup of flour. Lastly, stir in one cup of stoned cherries. Turn into a buttered mold and steam two hours or until done. Serve with a hard sauce.

BLUEBERRY GINGERBREAD. One cup of molasses, one-half cup of soft butter, two well beaten eggs, one-half cup of sour cream, or milk, one rounding teaspoon of soda, a pinch of salt, one teaspoon of ginger, flour to make a batter. Beat well, then stir in a heaping cupful of floured blueberries, and bake a little slower than ordinary gingerbread. A simple frosting improves it.

Flowered crotonas in blended tints tints many of the Country hats, and the few poke bonnets that have been seen this season.

REFORM OF CIVIL SERVICE AND TARIFF

Premier Tells the West That Present Tariff is Not Satisfactory to Him--Last Speech in Saskatchewan

Moosejaw, Sask., Aug. 4--In a day of traveling, punctuated by brief stops where the premier speaks his mind informally from the rear of his car, the people of the west are getting close to the personality and convictions of Canada's first commoner.

The premier reached Moosejaw this afternoon and tomorrow evening will make his last speech of the tour in Saskatchewan.

To the United States settlers in Yellow Grass, Sir Wilfrid appealed to take a public part in the public life of their new household in civic, provincial and Dominion affairs.

"Identify yourselves with one of the great parties under our system of government," he stated, adding, with a smile: "It were better that you should become members of the wrong party than none."

He was impressed with the great opportunity confronting the American-Canadian. "You're in the greatest of all patriotic privileges," he observed. "You can do much to improve the relations between the land of your birth and the land of your adoption. You can do much to weld together the two peoples."

To the grain growers of Moosejaw, Sir Wilfrid said: "Speaking frankly, the present tariff is not satisfactory to me. Our goal is to meet your views, but progress must be made steady, and not revolutionary, as was the case in England."

"A protest was made against the political patronage system, and Sir Wilfrid readily gave assurance of a reform of conditions. The civil service commission, under which competitive tests were obligatory, was only the commencement. "We propose to gradually extend this reform to all parts of the service," was his emphatic comment.

Other officers of Moosejaw, Sir Wilfrid said: "Speaking frankly, the present tariff is not satisfactory to me. Our goal is to meet your views, but progress must be made steady, and not revolutionary, as was the case in England."

"A protest was made against the political patronage system, and Sir Wilfrid readily gave assurance of a reform of conditions. CAMPBELLTON PEOPLE SUFFERING FROM STORMS

Much Distress on Account of Wet Weather--Hopeful of Aid from Dominion Government

Campbellton, N. B., Aug. 4--Suffering from the effects of a terrific rainstorm, which has almost deluged the desolate town, the people here are in a state of frenzy tonight. Accompanied by a high east wind the rain started falling at noon and has been coming heavier ever since. At no time since the fire swept down this thriving little town, rendering thousands homeless and penniless, has the town presented a more heart-rending scene. With their tents beaten down, camp fires extinguished and houses water-soaked, men, women and children are on the verge of despair.

Judge McLaughlin arrived here from Ottawa today and expressed himself as being highly pleased with the treatment accorded him and other representatives from here by the federal ministers.

The following is the list of cash contributions received today: A. P. Panning, Patavawa, $5; C. T. Hillson, Edinburg, $5; Residency No. 25, Baker Lake, (N. B.), $15; W. B. FIRST AID WORK

Illustration of Value of St. John's Ambulance Association in Care of New Brunswick Man (Ottawa Citizen)

The work of the St. John's Ambulance association is beginning to attract widespread attention throughout Canada, and particularly in Ottawa, since the appointment of R. J. Birdwhistle as general secretary. An instance of the value of the first aid work in which an Ottawa man, F. Waterman, of 432 Laurier avenue west, figured, has just been brought to the attention of the Citizen. Mr. Waterman is engaged with the cement party on the international boundary survey between Maine and New Brunswick. They were working near Baker Brook, N. B., a few days ago, when a farmer loading hay in an adjacent field was thrown from his load and sustained a bad compound fracture of the tibia in splints and made the sufferer comfortable until a doctor could be summoned. There was no physician nearer than five miles and but for the timely aid rendered by Mr. Waterman the patient would have been in great distress pending his arrival.

DAIRYING IN SPOKANE

Need 1,000 Experienced Dry Milkers to Help in the Industry

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 4.—Dairyman in Spokane and throughout the Inland Empire report there are places waiting for not less than 1,000 experienced dry milkers, at wages ranging from $50 a month in the summer and $40 a month in the winter with board and sleeping quarters.

The other duties are to wash the animals and take care of the barn. Bringing the fodder to the barn and feeding is done by laborers. Thomas S. Griffith, president of the Glen Tana dairy farm, Spokane, says that at no time in the history of the city or district has there been such a dearth of experienced men in the dairy business, the causes assigned being the rapid growth of this part of the country and the increased consumption of dairy products. He said also there is need for several hundred thousand additional cows to supply the demands in eastern Washington and Oregon, north and central Idaho and western Montana, where the dealers and buyers are now sending from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 to other states for supplies.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER AND HENRI BOURASSA

(Le Soleil)

"When one reads the one and a half columns of argument used to show that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the villain in the Canadian melodrama, and that he is, for all kinds of reasons, the principal agent of the destruction of the Canadian empire, the only feeling that remains is one of immense pity, mingled with disgust, for the poor monomaniac who so miserably tires himself in rearing the web of his ridiculous sophisms." MANY MATTERS TO BE DEALT WITH IN CONFERENCE

Equal Rights for Laymen and Ministers—Admitting Women—Missionary—Work Change in Pastoral Term

Some matters of interest to be dealt with at the coming general conference of the Methodist at Victoria, B. C., were dealt with in an interesting manner by Rev. Thomas Marshall, superintendent of missions for the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, who leaves with the married delegation from here this evening.

The admission of women to the annual and general conference will be a question, Rev. Mr. Marshall said, to come some time in the future. The suggestion is that the word 'layman' be changed to 'lay members'.

The question of missionary policy and administration will be dealt with by the people of the western country, Rev. Mr. Marshall said, are anxious for an executive and in order to meet their views it will be necessary to appoint three representatives instead of one, as at present.

The change of pastoral term will be an all-important question.
