By The Way.

Fine weather!

St. Andrews is without a mayor.

The baseball outlook certainly looks good.

The N. B. Southern Railway, appears to be having hard luck this week.

It is reported that some sixty-five students will arrive at the beginning of next month to stay for the summer at Utopia. We will welcome them.

If the town cannot afford to appropriate enough money to keep the roads in repair as "Ratepayer" says, why not cut down the town limits. Good roads are essential in any community.

Now that Teddy's trip is over and he is through teaching the rulers of Europe how to rule we wonder what his next notorious move will be. Probably he can give Taft a few pointers on the subject of "A square deal in reciprocity."

The new band is coming along nicely and in a year or two St. George ought to have as good a band as it had a few years ago and that is saying a lot. We have always been noted for our band and it is a grand thing to get the younger crowd started. We hope to hear them give the public some outdoor concerts in the near future.

Dr. Taylor has furnished the boys with a first class baseball outfit. They also through the efforts of the subscription committee and a number of generous citizens have been enabled to put the field in excellent condition. And yet there is room. The boys need nine uniforms and having obtained these they will be happy. What a chance for some good Samaritan.

Correspondence

St. George, N. B. June 18, 1910.

To The Editor, Dear Sir--

Would it be too much to ask you to allow me a few lines in your paper to bring up a matter that has come to my attention. I refer to the neglected condition of the roads in our vicinity. Is there any need of having to drive through four inches of mud on the street leading to the station after every little rain? Could not this road be fixed so as to drain the water properly? The town streets in the main are good with the exception of this section. The Letang road is in a very bad state and is a disgrace to the town. Surely the town council will take this matter up and put the roads in a better condition. Thanking you for your space I remain ous forms of amusement indulged in. After refreshments were served the party broke up after spending an all round good day. Mr. and Mrs. Kent have the faculty of knowing how to make people enjoy life and are not backward in putting this into use.

Summer Orchard Meetings

To give practical demonstration of pruning, grafting and spraying work the following list of meetings will be held to which everybody interested is invited. The addresses and demonstrations will be given by S. L. Peters, the well-known Queens County fruitgrower, and A. G. Turke, Provincial Horti-

Dr. Taylor's

Generous Gift

To Base Ball Association.

Probably no baseball association in the Maritime Provinces has at the present time so complete and modern a baseball outfit as has that of St. George. This outfit is a recent donation from Dr. Taylor M. P. P. It has been on exhibition for the past few days in the show window of the store of James O'Neill and anyone who has seen anything in the line of baseball outfits will pronounce it the very best that money can buy. For a long time our baseball team has been hampered by having to use a poor outfit, but now since the genial Doctor has stepped up and supplied the long felt want the team can play ball knowing that their best talent can be brought out to the best advantage. The outfit consists of a catcher's mit, mask and chest protector, first, second and third basemen's mits, four fielders gloves, six bats, six balls and three base sacks. All these pieces are of the best quality being the most expensive in the catalogue. Few if any Associations in the Maritime Provinces have received such a "boost" as has the St. George Baseball Association. In addition to the above mentioned outfit the boys possess a fine diamond which after a few days playing will be as level as a floor. Incidentally the managing committee come in for a large share of credit in making baseball a success in the town. Their first and most trying proposition was to put a comparatively rough piece of ground into a level diamond. This has been done to perfection. So along with the hearty thanks which we tender Dr. Taylor let us not overlook the managing committee Messrs. George Frauley, Edward O'Neill and G. S. Lord. The opening of the new diamond will be to-morrow night when a special match will take place between two selected local teams. If arrangements can be made, the band will be present and a procession will be formed to march to the field. Dr. Taylor will have the honor of pitching the first ball. George Frauley the vice-president of the Association will officiate as umpire. A large crowd will no doubt be present and see the beginning of the greatest baseball season St. George has ever known. Once more let us take off our hats to Dr. Taylor and give him our thanks for his timely gift which he has so generously given to further the interests of baseball.

Smallest Man in Canada Dead.

Edward Hapman, probably the smallest man in Canada, died at his home in Allenville, Shelburne County, Thursday, May 26th.

He was thirty-eight years of age. His height was about two feet, nine inches, and he weighed thirty pounds. He had been ill for about five months with stomach trouble, but the immediate cause of death was paralysis with which he was stricken on Sunday.

Both Mr. Hapman and his parents were always adherent to his appearing on exhibit, but when the Dominion Exhibition was held in Halifax four years ago he appeared there in company with his sister, who is now about twenty years of age and of exceedingly small stature. The deceased possessed a good school education, and while he had his health was a constant reader and was well versed in public questions.

A Timely Warning.

According to the postal law now in force newspaper publishers can hold for fraud anyone who takes a paper from the post office and refusing payment, and the man who allows subscriptions to remain unpaid and then orders a postmaster to send notifications of discontinuance to the publishers, lays himself liable to arrest and fine. Postmasters are also liable under the law, for cost of papers delivered to other persons after the death or removal from their office district of the person to whom the paper was first addressed.

Digital Superfluity.

"Turn on the light, Absalom!" Thus, in clear, cutting, metallic accents spoke Mrs. Rambo, leaning over the railing at the top of the stairway.

"Flash 'w'at I'm trying to do, Nan s'ay," mumbled Mr. Rambo.

"Can't you find the button?" "Vesh, I 'e'n find th' button av' ro' Nanshy, but I've gots to blame many thumbs an' fingers I don't know which of 'em to turn it with!"

Clerical Gender.

A truly eloquent parson had been preaching for over two hours on the immortality of the soul.

"I looked at the mountains," said he, "and could not help thinking, 'Beautiful as you are, you will be destroyed, while my soul will not.' I gazed upon the ocean and cried, 'Mighty as you are, you will eventually dry up, but not I.'" Harper's Magazine.

Canada's Part in the Play of Peace

The loud and lofty talk of Canadian jingoism may win rounds of empty applause at the irresponsible smoking concert in Toronto, but he is neither intelligent nor rational who does not perceive that on this American continent the country of over ninety millions of people has it in its power to inflict serious injury on the country of little more than seven millions. It becomes the country of the lesser population to go on growing big and to keep a civil tongue in its head. It is well that the blatant jingo is not taken seriously. Canadians are learning the proper Anglo-Saxon habit of letting jingoism talk itself out, knowing that the thin air will swallow up its foolish vaporing. No much harm will be done by allowing all sorts of wild talk about Canada's commercial independence of the United States. The talk is nonsense, but it need do no harm.

The time has gone by in the world's history when one civilized nation can cut itself off from trade intercourse with any other civilized nation except to its own hurt. Least of all can the two nations holding this North American continent afford to isolate themselves one from the other. No one but fools or pagans would try to do it. Every instinct of civilization in both people approves the principle laid down by President Taft that these two countries with their more than three thousand miles of international boundary have trade interests in common with neither has or in the very nature of things can have with any other country in the world. And when the people of the United States come to their senses in the matter of freedom of trade they will find the people of Canada civilized enough to welcome such easy exchange of commodities as would serve the needs and promote the interests of both countries. In the meantime Canada's part, as the custodian of British traditions and British aspirations on this continent, is dignified enough to make Canadians self-respecting and is critical enough to make them serious. There is no place in Canada either for the fawning sycophant or for the arrogant braggart. By being true to what is best in their inheritance from Britain, and by holding themselves self-controlled and conciliatory, Canadians of today may weave the bands of mutual confidence and co-operation between Britain and the United States which will mean an Anglo-Saxon alliance for the peace of the world. To play that part would be greatly worth while. Toronto Globe.

Drunkness as a Disease.

The progress made towards treatment of habitual drunkenness as a disease rather than a penal offence is shown by the enactment of a law permitting the municipality of New York to establish a hospital and farm colony for dipsomaniacs. Certain obstinate cases may be disposed of by the courts, in cases the treatment is established, with a view to the pathological treatment to the curable victim or to occupation in a healthful mind of outdoor calling if he is incurable. In a few states experiments along this line are being made and in Massachusetts legislation is proposed embodying advanced ideas.

Misquoted.

"I am delighted to learn, Miss Tartan, through a friend of mine, that you think I resemble Walt Whitman."

"She didn't quote me correctly, Mr. Featherstop, I said that if you wore full beard and a slouch hat, were twenty years older than you are, and had a little poetic fire in your composition, you might easily be mistaken for Walt Whitman by any nearsighted person who did not know you." From the Chicago Tribune.

Good Man.

"Good Man--Ah, my poor fellow, I feel sorry for you. Why don't you work? When I was young, for ten years I was never in bed after five. An hour's work before breakfast, then five hours work, then dinner, then four hours more work, then supper, then bed, then up again at five the next morning."

"Loser--I say, gov-nor, where did ye serve yer time?"

Helen's enjoyment of the party given in honor of her ninth birthday was nearly spoiled by the ill-tempered outbreaks of a very pretty and well-dressed little girl who was among her guests.

A peacemaker appeared, however, in a plain and rather shabby child, who proved herself a veritable little angel of tact and good-will.

After her playmates were gone Helen talked it all over very seriously with her mother. She summed it up in this piece of philosophical wisdom:

"Well, I've found out one thing, mamma. Folks don't always match their outsides."

Jokers' Column

"Doctor, is it absolutely necessary to operate on me?"

"N--no. But it's customary."

He--Concerning love, everything possible has been said and thought.

She (cooly)--But not to me.

"They say he got rich quick."

"He did. His wealthy uncle died from heart disease."

He--One kiss is worth a hundred letters.

She--How silly you are.

He--Not at all. A kiss, you know, can't be shown in a breach of promise suit.

They had been courting just a week, and at last he ventured to ask her to go to a football match. He was pointing out the members. "Now, there's Johnson," he said; "in a few weeks he will be our best man." "Oh, George," she hissed; "this is so sudden."

Nan--The trouble in trying to entertain Clarence is his painful bashfulness. After you have talked yourself out there comes the inevitable awkward pause.

Fan--Awkward pause? I should say so! Why, if he even so much as touches your hair it all comes tumbling down.

Father had just climbed the step-ladder to take down the art works on the walls, preparatory to the arrival of the paper-hangers.

"This is what might be called a moving picture show at home," he said with a laugh that rattled the chandelier.

"Did Higgins enjoy himself at the banquet?"

"I'm afraid not. He was scared all the evening at the possibility of being called on for a speech, and when it was over resented the fact that he was overlooked."

"You don't amount to much."

"Tut, tut, father, I could paddle my own canoe at your age."

"Well, dad, I do pretty well for a rich man's son. I can operate my own motorboat."

"I don't like your heart action," the doctor said, applying the stethoscope again. "You have had some trouble with your angina pectoris."

"You're partly right, doctor," said the young man, sheepishly, "only you haven't got her name."

"If you sympathize with the 'Jopement how could you tell the girl's father you didn't approve of it?'"

"Oh, I simply stated a fact and drew my own inferences."

"What fact did you state?'"

"I said an elopement was generally a miss-taken affair."

STUPENDOUS BUSINESS

There are 233,000 miles of railway in the United States, and according to the figures published by the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics, Chicago, the cost of construction and equipment of these lines represents the vast total of $14,417,538,876, or $58,031 per mile of line. The gross earnings amounted last year to 12,443,312,000 and the operating expenses to $1,613,497,000. The ratio of expenses to earnings is 66.12. The rail was carried 880,764,000 passengers and moved 1,486,640,000 tons of freight in the twelve months. The amount available for dividends after the reduction of the annual charges on the capital was $175,551,528, and the amount actually paid in dividends was $171,607,550.

Rooseveltisms

"Let us try to level up, but let us beware of the evil of levelling down."

"It is foolish to reject a proposal merely because it is advanced by visionaries."

"The good citizen will demand liberty for himself, and as a matter of pride he will see to it that others receive the liberty he thus claims for himself."

"The overbearing brutality of the man of wealth or power and the envious and hateful malice directed against wealth and power are really at root merely different manifestations of the same quality."

"Ruin looks us in the face if we judge a man by his position instead of judging him by his conduct in that position."

The Immigration Policy.

It is said in England that our immigration policy is a 'dog in the manger' policy. This is not the case. What the authorities are aiming at, is to exclude those who have neither trades nor money to support themselves, and who are neither able nor anxious to take up the Canada welcomes mechanics and agriculturists, for those are men who can support themselves. There is no room in Canada for hangers on who have too many of them already. It would seem that there is widespread apprehension in Britain regarding the import of our new immigration regulations, and that it would be wise to have their meaning explained in detail in some of the prominent newspapers in the Old Country.

The British Medical Journal says that there has been a gradual decrease in the number of medical students throughout the United States. In the academic year 1908-09 the total number of students of medicine was 20,551, as against 21,011 in 1907-08, and 24,930 in 1902-03. This decline is somewhat remarkable, as it coincides with a period of financial prosperity increasing population and of constantly enlarging facilities and endowments for medical teaching and research. One reason suggested for the falling off is that the increasing use of automobiles has lessened the number of doctors needed for the service of the public. Another influence making in the same direction is the advance of preventive medicine owing to which there are fewer sick requiring attendance.

More than fifty moving picture making machines were lined up along the route of the King's funeral in London last month, and the result is an enormous output of films by means of which that memorable procession will be produced on canvas screens all over the world. It is mentioned as a fact of some interest, that no record of King Edward's voice on a phonograph was ever made. Arrangements for securing one were completed at one time, but the King was too busy with State affairs at the time appointed, and so he went out of the world without leaving to posterity the most interesting moment that any public man can bequeath to the world.

Mary Garden, at a tea in Philadelphia, praised the skill of the modern corset-maker.

"It is really wonderful," said Miss Garden, "what this artist can do. I have seen fat old women who, from certain aspects, looked like supple girls. It was the corset-maker."

"And that reminds me of an answer that I heard in Sunday school when I was a little child."

"What is it, our superintendent asked that binds us together and makes us better than we are by nature?"

"Our corsets, sir, piped a wise little girl of eight."

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

ST. STEPHEN

The home of Mrs. M. S. Thomas E. Acheson, Main street, was the scene of a pretty international wedding on Friday at one o'clock, when the bride, Miss Elizabeth May, was united in marriage with James Haren, of Canada, Me. Rev. Samuel Howard of the Methodist church performed the ceremony, the bridal party standing under a bell of white lilacs suspended from an arch of ferns in the bow window. The bride looked very attractive in a handsome gown of white liberty satin trimmed with sequins. She wore a veil caught up with lilies of the valley. The house was prettily decorated with evergreens, white lilacs and lilies of the valley. There were about 50 guests. After the ceremony and several lullabies, dainty refreshments were served by a number of the bride's and groom's friends. Later the bride donned her travelling suit of blue broadcloth with hat to match and the happy couple left on a train, the destination being unknown only to themselves. Among the many handsome wedding gifts were a case of silver from Mr. and Mrs. McKim of New York; a beautiful hand painted tea set from the groom's sister, Miss Georgia Elliott, substantial cheques from the bride's and groom's parents, a handsome cut glass bowl from the choir of the Methodist church, of which the bride was a valued member. Did you ever hear any one say they could not get good coffee except in the States?

I have heard it, scores of times, and it's one of the reasons that made me decide to go into the Coffee business.

Of the Americans who visit us in summer, hundreds take home a supply of Red Rose Tea because they have never used such good tea before. I determined to put up a coffee that would make for itself just as good a reputation. It has not been easy, but I am sure I have succeeded.

Estabrooks' Red Rose Coffee, put up in sealed tins is well, it's good coffee. You and your American friends will say so.

A good combination is Estabrooks' Coffee for breakfast and Red Rose Tea for other meals.

L'ETETE

Word was received here Sunday last of the death of Mrs. Golding of consumption. Mrs. Golding was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Emery of Eastport, Me. The news seemed more sad as this is the first break in the family of twelve children, all grown up to man and womanhood.

Mrs. Claston Holmes returned home to Lubec Wednesday, after spending a few days here with friends.

There was a large attendance at the anniversary of the church held here Sunday, the 5th. There was a large number from Deer Island and the surrounding places; the day was all that could be desired and the people enjoyed three very able sermons delivered by Mr. Davidson of the Disciple church of Deer Island, and when pledges were called for the people were ready to respond most liberally to help wipe out the building debt. Some of the ladies have done good work in this line and have worked hard and faithfully. The day closed with all pronouncing it a success in every way and one that will long be remembered in the minds of those that attended, especially those that were the most interested in the services and work. We thank our many friends who have helped us in any way either with their presence or pocket book, and hope they will be doubly repaid in both.

Mrs. Wilson Wentworth went to Eastport Monday, to attend the funeral of her cousin, Mrs. Golding.

Quite a number of our St. George friends, attended the anniversary of the church here on the 5th.

Colin McNichol of Eastport, called on a number of his friends here while attending the anniversary of the church, we were all glad to have him with us for a few days.

For Coughs—Take This

Do you know a remedy for coughs and colds nearly seventy years old? There is one—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Once in the family, it stays. It is not a doctor, does not take the place of a doctor. It is a doctor's aid. Made for the treatment of all throat and lung troubles. Ask your own doctor his opinion of it. Follow his advice. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

You cannot recover promptly if your bowels are constipated. Ayer's Pills are gently laxative, act directly on the liver. Sold for nearly sixty years. Ask your doctor all about them.

A Man's Way

It was somewhere near 9 o'clock on a cold February night when I came across him. There had been pandemonium in the Kaffir market and prices had been snapping at little bargains and re-selling on half-point rises until one of the big houses had come in and unloaded. Prices had gone down with a crash.

As a "natural" corollary, I had been forced to stay at an office long after the usual time, and was quite four hours late as I elbowed my way down to the bank. I was stepping off the curb at the corner when a hand gripped my shoulder and a voice growled gruffly—

"Hello, Maxley!"

I turned and found myself face to face with Kettick. I hadn't seen him for over five years.

We first met at school. I had had rather a hard life there before he came. There are certain points in my character which do not appeal to popular taste, and my school-fellows were not always slow in giving rather vigorous expression to their animosity. However, one day, soon after Kettick's arrival, when the boys were jollying me for having taken advantage of a fellow's ignorance of mathematics by purchasing a spare guinea for nine shillings, he saw fit to intervene. It meant his fighting his way through the school, a proceeding which occupied most evenings for nearly a month, but he seemed to thrive on battles, and each fight seemed to draw him closer to me, and a tough afterwards he occasionally gave me a cuff when my financial experiments amongst the boys exceeded his approval, yet we remained splendid friends for years after we left college. Then suddenly he disappeared.

"Why Jimmie, my boy, I am glad to see you!" I exclaimed, as I gripped his hand. "How are you, old chap?"

"Rotten!" he said decisively. "I'm on the drink, and don't care how or where I finish. Here, come and have a fill-up, get drunk for once like a man. You never were much of a bouncer so come and show you've got a spirit in you. We'll paint the town red, even if we finish at Vine St."

He beckoned a cab, and before I scarce knew what he was doing, he had pushed me in and we were bowling up Cheap-side.

I saw there was something radically wrong with him, and by dint of careful manoeuvring I piloted him to a quiet little place off Garrard St., where he could have a private room, and ordered a thumping supper. Jimmie was always a terrible one to eat, and I thought this would straighten him; but when I was served he pushed it away and, leaning back in his chair, closed his eyes wearily.

"What's wrong, Jimmie, my boy? Can I help you in anything?"

"It's no good, Joe. I'm going to the devil, going at express speed, and the sooner I get there the better. I'm dead broken and beat, and I won't struggle another inch."

His eyes were bloodshot and I noticed by the way the muscles of his face were twitching, that he was completely unhinged. All my old love for him was awoken in my heart; I am rather a hard man, perhaps a mean one; I always exact my due to a sixteenth-fourth, but Jimmie was different.

"Why don't you tell me what's wrong, laddie?" If you in trouble I think I could help you; anyhow, let me try, if it's only to repay a little of what I owe you from the old days. If it's money—well— I quickly signed a blank check and flung it over to him.

He dropped his head on his arms and sat with heaving shoulders.

"I'll tell you how it was. Our estate sold the Manette Manor; ran acre by acre for nearly a mile. You know Mr. Manette, he was cut up in that affair. He left an only child, the richest heiress of the southern counties. It was a bitter struggle, but I made up my mind I would never go back to the old footing until I had cleared off her loan. We had a very miserable parting, but I was very firm on that point.

"I came to London. I fought and wrestled and starved to make money, until at last, two months ago, I had accumulated nearly four thousand pounds. He stopped with a groan and drummed his fingers spasmodically on the table.

"If I had sent the money to her then it would have been all right. But I received information that Kaffirs were going to boom. I invested heavily, thinking that I might have a chance of doubling. Then today the panic came."

Now, Jimmie, my boy, listen to reason. Do you think you have looked at the matter sanely? Do you think you have acted fairly to Miss Manette? Just look at it this way: She steps into the breach saves your estates, saves your father's reason, perhaps his life, all out of love for you. The money was a mere fleabite to her. But leaving that aside, the only result of her generosity is that you practically jilt her and leave her there to eat her heart out waiting for you.

"No good, Joe. Don't rack my wounds afresh."

"Stuff and nonsense, man. Now, Jimmie, go back and make one good woman happy."

"Never!" he cried, dashing his fist on the table. "If I could go back with seven thousand pounds I would kiss the ground she walks on; but I would wear my heart out rather than go back and tell her the truth, that I am not worthy of her love and trust."

I am not a rich man, Jimmie, and the world will tell you I am rather a miserly one; the markets have hit me hardily of late, but I think I could muster a couple of three thousand pounds. Will you take that and go back to her."

He looked at me for a moment, and with a wan smile gathered about his lips. Then he took my hand in his and pressed it.

"I thank you, Joe, from my heart I have taken a loan once, but never again. No, I've got 600 left, and I'll speculate with that. If I win—ah, Heaven—if I win, and his eyes gleamed. "If I lose, my last sovereign buys a revolver."

"Well, Jimmie, I'm sorry you won't take my offer. Three thousand pounds is a lot of money to me, but you can have it freely. Still, if you have made up your mind, promise me this. I've got a lot of inside information, and may be of assistance to you. Promise me you will not buy or sell a single share without consulting me, and I will do my utmost to help you."

The markets continued panicky for some months. It is not easy to turn hundreds into thousands on the stock exchange, even when markets are favorable, as many have found to their cost, and our progress was slow. At the end of three months, by buying and taking short profits, we had made something like two hundred pounds. This was not over much, but the satisfactory part was we had crept into four figures.

One morning some extra special information reached me. I knew from the source whence it came that it was worth a plunge. Jimmie then had something like two thousand three hundred pounds. I added twelve hundred to it, and bought a thousand "Boulders" at seventy shillings; within five days that had risen to eighty, and ninety, hundred, and on the eighteenth day they stood at one hundred and twenty-three. Then we sold and Jimmie's bank account stood at nearly five thousand pounds.

So we went on slowly but surely, until one morning he burst in upon me.

"Joe," he said, when he had recovered himself, "you never told me about that last deal. I made two hundred on that Selwick case, and when I got my pass book this morning I found my balance stands at over seven thousand three hundred. I'm going down on the midday train."

That afternoon I got a telegram, the only one I have treasured in my rather cold life.

"Everything all right, Joe; wedding six weeks from today."

"Many a man who boasts that he is making history is really making it out of the whole earth."

Rarer Ones.

What is so rare as a day in June? Why—a balmy, breezy, idle day In the country's heart, 'mid the fresh young green, And first fair blooms of the early May.

When the air is touched with a tender trill, And life and nature are all a-tune, And the summer's heat doth not scorch and pierce, Ah, that's more rare than a day in June!

The June sun kisses with ardor fierce, Which makes one shrink from its stinging heat: The sun of May woe in gentleness, No burning hurt in its kisses sweet: The air of June is heavy and rich, That wraps one round in languorous sleep;

The May air's full of an eager zest, With a dash and a glow in its happy sweep. June is the accepted queen of the year, Whom the month must worship for high estate;

May is the maid whom all men love, The lovelier still that she be not great, Ah, her fresh young days and her fair young hours, Her youth, her youth, oh, her charm is there!

Life hath its time of glorious power, But the day of youth is the day that's rare!

Sciatica EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

We have all read and heard of the agonies of Sciatica, but only those who have been tortured by this dread malady can fully appreciate what it must mean to be cured after years of suffering.

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail Service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended 'Nerviline.' I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferruzone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured, he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline," sold everywhere, or the Catarthozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CHICAGO MERCHANT MAKES STATEMENT... I have had cataract for more than thirty years. Have tried everything on earth and spent thousands of dollars for other medicines and with physicians, without getting any lasting relief...

The Bishop and the Tramp A pastor in an uptown New York church recently told this anecdote during his sermon: A certain bishop, who had a great persuasive address coupled with what would usually be called personal magnetism, was on the lawn with a party of other gentlemen when a tramp came up. He was a devout looking fellow, persistent and well spoken. He approached one of the men and unfolded a tale of woe...

The Habit of Blushing

Many young women suffer from the habit or it may possibly be an infirmity of blushing. Certain it is that it is nervous in origin. Those who blush and blush easily become self-conscious and this increases the trouble.

There are tiny nerves which go to the coats of all the blood vessels, and keep the rubber-like tubes which form the arteries and veins in which the blood is distributed to the different parts of the body just the right size, so that the blood flows evenly on its course to the finest blood vessels of all, the capillaries, which are so called because they are as fine as hairs.

These nerves, which keep up the tensions, may, through some thought, some shock or other cause, fall in their duty, and then one becomes pale or the opposite happens, and flushing or blushing occurs. When the skin is thin an delicate the capillaries are near the surface, and the changes in the circulation of the blood show more readily.

There are several ways to remedy such conditions, depending on the causes which occasion the redness. If it is due to sensitive nervous organization, measures should be taken to strengthen the nervous system by means of baths, salt rubs and the like.

Plenty of exercise in the open air is desirable. Tea, coffee and all stimulants should be avoided. Above all, use every endeavor to gain self-control. Why should the fact of blushing or having a red face destroy the pleasure of a whole evening? Such foolishness should be resolutely put aside, and when this is done it will be found that the circulation in the face will be normal.

The flushing of the face in a hot room is due to the fact that the nerves of the blood vessels are affected by temperature. To toughen them the face should be bathed first in very hot water and then ver-cold, so that the changes of temperature will be felt less quickly.

Pain anywhere stopped in 20 minutes with one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. The formula is on the 25-cent box. Ask your doctor or druggist about this formula. Stops womanly pains, headache, pains anywhere. Write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., for free trial to prove value.

Superstitions

Climbing.—To dream of climbing denotes dignity and honor. Cathedral.—To dream that you are in a cathedral foretells a wealthy marriage.

Beggar.—To dream of a beggar is a sign that you will receive a present to give alms to beggars betokens prosperity.

Kaleid scope.—To dream that you look through one of these instruments indicates that you will travel much in foreign lands.

Pearls.—To dream of pearls is most fortunate. It implies that your qualities are many. You are generous, just and constant. Other people look upon you with admiration and respect. You will marry well and have a good estate.

What Rum Cost One Man.

A pitiable instance of how strong drink will drag a man down was furnished a few days ago when a Salvation Army officer took to Bellevue Hospital as a victim of nephritis a man of fifty-five who was penniless, broken and cast off by his family and friends. The victim of rum is the son of one of the world's most famous men. A young man he was a member of the New York stock and produce exchanges. He was a member of the most exclusive clubs, and had a wife and four children. He became involved in a financial scandal, was for a time in an asylum, and then dropped far down in a social scale. It was impossible for his family to aid him other than to pay his board in places where he could not obtain money or credit. He became familiar with men who frequent resorts late at night. He was often seen sweeping out saloons, doing errands, happy to acquire liquor. Disheveled, ragged, unkempt, he was almost unrecognizable. Now he is apparently near a pauper's grave. And he, who is but one of the many thousands who go the same career. Can rum have a stronger arraignment?

In a short time the price-list for the Dominion Exhibition, to be held in St. John, September 5th to 15th, will be ready for distribution. It will be the most interesting publication of its kind ever printed in Eastern Canada. Not only will it explain the vast field of competition among farmers, breeders, manufacturers, dairymen, school children, household workers and all sorts, but it will contain detailed information relative to the distribution of prize money, which in this case will be increased from 50 to 125 per cent. over former appropriations. This general increase is possible through the grants of the Dominion, Provincial and Civic Governments, and prizes, especially in the Southern, Herford, Avonshire, Holstein and Jersey classes have been increased 100 per cent; in the Closesdale, Shire, and Percheron horse classes the increase is to be 50 per cent. Dairy breeds of cattle will receive 125 per cent. more money than on previous occasions, while sheep and swine breeders will receive much greater incentive than heretofore. Poultry fanciers will be interested in a new system of judging, and the prize list will vary with the number of entries in each class. Dairy awards have been revised upwards, as well, after consultation with representatives of the Provincial Department. A notable feature in this section of the show will be the separation in competition of the professional dairymen and the household butter-maker, special prizes being awarded for each. In the Horticultural department the prize list has undergone a lot of changes, made with a view to improving the quality of exhibits. Naturally this has entailed the elimination of several classes of apples, not fit for competitive purposes so early in the autumn. The trends withheld on this account have been put into new classes. Potatoes will be judged in a new manner instead of judgment being rendered on each individual variety, they will this year be classified in six types—White Round, White Long, Rose Round, Brown Long, Red and Black. The Women's Work and Household Science Department, also the Educational section, have been included in the increase of prize money.

Medical Science Advancing Fast.

Formerly doctors prescribed stomach treatment for Catarrh and Bronchitis. They seldom cured and Catarrh has become a national disease. Today the advanced physician fights Catarrh by medicinal air. He fills the lungs, by means of the antiseptic vapor of Catarrhose. Cure then is certain. Catarrhose to cure. It contains the essences of pure pine balsams, which soothe the germs and destroy the disease. Every case of Catarrh, Bronchitis and Sore Throat can be cured by Catarrhose. 25c. and $1.00 sizes. St. Croix River Improvements

Washington, June 2.—The river and harbor bill appropriates $339,000 for Maine rivers and harbors. It is probable that there will be some delay in getting to work on the St. Croix river improvement, because of the stipulation for negotiations with the Government of Great Britain toward co-operation in the work. There is a feeling here that these negotiations are unlikely to come to much and that probably Canada will be unwilling to contribute toward the improvement of the St. Croix. The Canadian commerce on the St. Croix is much smaller than the commerce of the United States and it is said that if Canada should decide to contribute at all it would probably be not more than one fourth as much as Congress has just voted. In any event the improvement of the St. Croix is not likely to start until after there have been diplomatic exchanges.—Globe.

LONG STANDING SCIATICA

Completely Cured by One Box of Father Morrissey's No. 7 Tablets.

Sciatica is hard enough to endure, and harder still to cure, in many cases, with ordinary remedies. Caused, like rheumatism, by impurities in the blood, which in this case set up an irritation of the sciatic nerve, it is so difficult to get at with external applications that many sufferers try in vain to get relief. Mr. Charles McEachern, of Summersville, P. E. I., was in just that position until he started to take Father Morrissey's "No. 7." He writes: "After trying several doctors and spending large sums of money without avail, I was completely cured of Sciatica of long standing after using one package of your Medicine (No. 7 for Rheumatism)." No matter how long you have suffered from Sciatica or Rheumatism of joints or muscles—no matter how much medicine or liniment you have used without result—try Father Morrissey's No. 7 before you give up. It has restored health to many who were almost hopeless. 50c. a box at your dealer's or from Father Morrissey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N. B.

First Woman Physician

Boston, June 2.—Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, aged 59, the first graduate woman physician in the world, and sister of the late Dr. Henry B. Blackall, of this city, died yesterday in Hastings, Eng.

She was born in Lancaster, but came with her parents to this country at the age of 11; lived on Long Island, N. Y., till she was 18; later at Cincinnati and in Kentucky, where she taught school. She aspired to become a physician but tried in vain for a long time to find a medical school that would admit her. She packed up some knowledge of the science which she had acquired at a school principal in Asheville, N. C., who had formerly practiced medicine, and she finally succeeded in getting admitted to the medical school of Geneva, now Hobart college when she was 24, and graduated in 1849, as leader of her class, received many commendations from officials and students of the college, though she had not received a license outside the institution during her course. Her name was spread abroad, and London Punch predicted she would become a prominent physician.

She continued her studies in England and France, and in 1851 undertook to establish a practice in New York city, but found little encouragement for many years. She established in New York city an asylum for women and children, overcoming great obstacles in the way of prejudice, and today the institution is a flourishing one. In 1858 she returned to England and tried unsuccessfully to establish an infirmary there. At the outbreak of the civil war she started an organization for the relief of the wounded of the Union army, which evolved into the sanitary aid association. In 1865 she found the woman's medical college in connection with her infirmary. Dr. Blackwell had lived in England for the last 41 years. She never married, but had an adopted daughter, Katherine Barry, who was devoted to her to the last.

Question for Every Reader.

If you could find a simple vegetable remedy for keeping all organs healthy and strong, would you use it? Most pills are harsh, cause pain, cost sick stomachs. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are different. They regulate and cause the system to get rid of its own poisons. You are cleansed, appetite improves, color clears, sleep is restored. Every man, woman and child is helped by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c. box.

Toronto, Ont., June 9. The estate of the late Goldwin Smith is said to amount to approximately $1,000,000. It is understood generous provision is made for the old servants of the Grange, some of whom have served for over thirty years. Goldwin Smith lived generously and gave still more generously. He shaped out a policy of investing his money in the way of helping people in moderate circumstances to buy homes of their own. As a matter of price of the homes they are buying at extremely low rates of interest and it is a matter of interest to know that he never lost a dollar through this generous philanthropy.

The body will lie in state in the drawing room at the Grange tomorrow afternoon where the general public will be permitted to see the remains. All details for the funeral on Saturday have been completed.

It was said today that Mr. Smith's last book, A Series of Personal Reminiscences, was practically completed a few days before his death and will be published at the end of the year.

Getting Ready To Live

The chief event of the past two weeks has been the graduation of a large number of young men and women from our Universities and Colleges. From the attention this has received on every side, one might say that the main business of life is in getting ready to live. This is not a thought which is characteristic of College boys and girls alone, it is one common to us all. We are to begin to live after a little, but just at present we are only getting ready; making certain preliminary passes from which when done we will turn to the real business of life: warming up, if you please, preparatory to the game. U. N. B., Memramcook, Mt. Allison and Acadia, each have sent out their quota prepared to make a life. Each of these are looking into the future full of expectancy. So they have adjusted their thoughts and hearts to an expected life which as yet is wholly in the future and may never be anything to them but future. This may be a weakness, as it is in not a few lives, that they do not lay hold firmly of present actual conditions, rather reaching forward toward expected conditions which may never become actual. "Work to make a life" would be the motto of every thoughtful student. Such looking forward have been busily preparing themselves for expected conditions, and the mature life and its demands towards which their eyes are turned. The point of interest to us all just now is that the College student is only one of the larger class, including many of mature and even declining years, whose life is not in the present, but in the future.

There are some very hopeful and helpful present indications as to this body of young men who are now coming to the front crowned with College honors, and ready to reinforce the ranks of the responsible manhood of the nation. One interesting fact is the large proportion among them who have strong clean bodies. It may be that athletics have been overdone in some quarters, that some physical sports are too prominent, but it is still true, and more true than it once was, that the average young man graduating from college, is of a good physical type, healthy and strong, and bids fair to do his work, whatever it may be, without breaking down. It is also true that the intellectual training he has received is in the main thoroughly practical. The days when academic seclusion bred a type of over-cultured nerveless scholars, hiding behind the spectacles of a helpless strangeness to the wide world into which graduation ushers him, are days long gone by. As the young man now comes out into the real world, he is grave and thoughtful, for he knows it will tax all there is in him, but his training has been such as to encourage him to step out into this practical life ready to meet it. More and more our Universities and Colleges are making their courses of study more practical, and the "arts" of which these young graduates are "bachelors" and "masters" are less and less the lost arts of a culture ill-adapted to the times, and more and more the practical arts of daily life and usefulness.

Our Immigration Policy

The critics in Great Britain of our Canadian immigration restrictions will find very few sympathizers in this country. One clause in our regulations requires that immigrants coming to the farm, or in case of females, to do domestic service, shall have in their possession the sum of $25.00 as well as railway transportation to their ultimate destination. We believe that the government is doing the right thing when it calls for a guarantee that immigrants shall not become a public charge as soon as they are admitted to this country. There is always land and plenty of work for men capable of farming and women prepared to do domestic service, but it is not too much to ask of an immigrant who does not purpose taking up farming to have twenty-five dollars in his pocket with which to begin life in Canada. No immigrant can be certain of obtaining work upon his arrival and he will then have this amount to fall back on. This regulation does not require men and women who have employment on the farm or doing domestic work to have this amount. It is only aimed to protect this country from becoming Great Britain's poor house. The second objection is against the regulation providing that the consent of the Assistant Superintendent of Emigration for Canada in London shall be given only to such as are suited for, willing to accept, and have assured employment at farm work. Is this not a wise condition? We do not want workings who will populate this country with a like prodigy. We want a strong and robust class of people who will continue to people our Canadian race with healthy and rugged children. The agitation in Great Britain is strong to have these regulations abolished or altered, but so far as public opinion goes, Canada is strong in her desire to have the sole right of saying who shall or who shall not be allowed to enter this country.

"DAVE HOLCOMB"

At the Opera House, to-night, Wednesday, June 15th will be offered in this city for the first time, "Dave Holcomb," with William Lawrence in the title role. The play is entirely new and original in plot and different in conception from anything heretofore offered by this popular star. Mr. Lawrence will never be forgotten for the Uncle Josh he gave us in "The Old Homestead," succeeding Deman Thompson for the past five seasons in that play. "Dave Holcomb" is now in its first year, comparatively new to the public, but wherever it has appeared, the public sentiment has run high in its favor. Lawrence has spent his summer vacation during the past three years up among the hills in Old Vermont. It was here he met the characters he is using in "Dave Holcomb" drawing them from real life. The character he portrays, "Uncle Dave," lives on a farm near Rutland, Vermont, his good wife, Naris, in the same household; his drunken brother, Hiram, also finds shelter beneath the same roof, "squire" Jackson runs the village hotel sells "best goods" intending to tickle the palates of the Green Mountain youths. Hank, the mischievous boy; Phoebe, the village organist; the village choir, and in fact all those who contribute towards the success of "Dave Holcomb" met Lawrence face to face in real life in old Vermont before he ever thought of introducing them into a play. Nothing has been overlooked to make the play a veritable country outing, in fact you can almost smell the fragrance of the meadow and hear the babbling of the brook as the curtain ascends on this masterpiece of rustic offering. Lawrence as "Uncle Dave," the good-natured easy going, old honest farmer is a Chinese puzzle. You can never tell when he is going to make you laugh, and you never suspect when he is going to make you cry. It is the best part he has had in his entire strolling career and fits him more admirably than Uncle Josh in "The Old Homestead." The play will be seen here in its entirety exactly as presented this season in Boston, Providence, Philadelphia and other big cities.

Dr. Wilson has improved the condition of the sidewalk in front of his new house, and is completing operations by painting the house a pretty drab color with white trimmings.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was murdered in Conti's Hall by the Steven's Co. on Friday evening. Those who were present, to use a vulgar phrase, declared it "rotten." Have not the people of the town been fooled enough by these tump shows?

About thirty people lost their lives owing to the collapse of the building occupied by the Montreal Herald staff at Montreal on Monday morning. The cause of the disaster was the failure of the supports of the immense tank of water.

It is stated that Mr. S. D. Scott, editor of the Standard, will presently go to Vancouver, B. C. where he will become editor of the News-Advertiser, a daily morning paper, of course conservative in politics. In connection with the statement is a rumor that the position is quite a lucrative one, worth, say, four thousand dollars a year. It is understood that Mr. Scott will leave in a few weeks to take his new position. Thoroughly acquainted with all phases of Canadian politics, well informed as to the personal motives and aims of individual politicians, Mr. Scott's acceptance of this position will no doubt bring the News-Advertiser to the very front rank of Canadian political journals.
