The Hillsdale accommodation, south bound, left the Lake Shore depot on schedule time, but without orders. On the same track, northward bound, was the way freight from Fort Wayne, running on orders to reach Jackson regardless of all other trains. The two trains met just east of Greenwood avenue, while going at the rate of ten miles an hour, piling up seven cars in a splintered pyramid, and ditching both engines. DENISON, Tex., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Smart, who resides in Grayson county, near Tom Bean, is living with her ninth husband. She is 51 years of age, rather large, and is remarkably well preserved. In her younger days she was noted for her beauty. Four of her husbands were killed in the Confederate army. The lady came to Texas from Tennessee overland. At Texarkana she stopped a season, and married a man who was convicted and sentenced to fifteen years in the Little Rock Penitentiary. From Texarkana she removed to Comanche county, where she married twice more, both husbands dying. Leaving Comanche, she went to Sabine county, where she married a lumberman, who was cut into fragments in a saw mill. She is now living with her ninth husband, and has eleven of her own children.

The Preacher Courted the Choir.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 10.—Wesley Brown, a young and rather good-looking minister, went to Bedford about a year ago to take charge of the Christian Church. He was a graduate of an Eastern college, and was highly recommended. He hardly had located until his attentions to the young lady members of the flock caused comment, but it was not until the last week that the city was shaken by a volcano of jealousy which broke out in the choir. The Rev. Brown has pledged his affections to at least five girls in the choir, and an exchange of confidences on their part has given publicity to the matter. The girls carried their story to the trustees of the church, and the Rev. Brown's resignation was promptly demanded. The church is now without a pastor, and Brown has left for parts unknown.

The Duty on Frogs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Treasury Department is in receipt, by references from the First Auditor of the department, of a letter from the customs collector at Detroit asking information as to the proper classification of frogs (not alive). The department has informed the auditor that the question has never been decided by it, but in a letter to a gentleman in Rochester it was suggested that such frogs were dutiable at 35 per cent. ad valorem, as "prepared meats," but this suggestion, it says, appears to be untenable, as it is understood that the frogs are not prepared in any manner, but are merely dead frogs. The department is of opinion that they are unprovided for in the act of March 3, 1883, and should have been classified as raw, unmanufactured articles under section 2,513, at 10 per cent. ad valorem.

Huron Assizes.

GODERICH, Oct. 10.—Richard Nesbit and William Macdougall pleaded guilty to jail breaking. Macdougall was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, and Nesbit to eighteen months in the Central Prison, the sentences to follow the term which the prisoners are at present serving in the penitentiary.

Bailiffs Campbell and Hagart went to the defendant's premises to seize a horse under a chattel mortgage warrant, and defendant guarded his stable with a large pitchfork. The Queen vs. Thos. Elliott.—Prisoner was charged with, on June 18, assaulting Minnie Nichols, a young girl in his service, who had been brought out from England by Mr. Middlemo. After the trial had proceeded a short distance his Lordship discovered that the bill had not been signed by the foreman of the grand jury, and at once intimated that the trial could not proceed. Colter vs. Young—Action to set aside the will of the late Thomas Colter, of Blyth, on the ground that deceased only intended to leave the property to his wife during her life, and that the wife of the testator promised at the time of the making of the will that she would leave all the property to plaintiff at her death. The property was willed absolutely to Mrs. Colter and willed by her to defendant Young. Judgment reserved.

The Guards at Bermuda.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Inquiry was made at the War Office this morning regarding the story from Halifax that the Grenadier Guards, who were recently sent to Bermuda from London because of the insubordination which was showing itself in the regiment, were suffering to an alarming extent from enteric fever and that many deaths had occurred. It was learned that the War Office had heard nothing of the matter save through the Halifax story, but the officials stated that they would telegraph to Bermuda for all the facts regarding the alleged sickness among the guards.

"A Measure of Violence."

VIENNA, Oct. 10.—The Fremdenblatt, in a bitter article, calls the McKinley Bill a measure of violence worthy of a nation accustomed to the use of revolvers. It appeals to the countries of Europe to act in concert to prevent their becoming tributary to the new world. England, it says, threatens to compensate herself for losses by securing Eastern markets. Thus the McKinley Bill threatens to engender enmity between Great Britain and Europe. The municipal authorities have voted 50,000 florins to the funds of working men thrown out of employment owing to the action of the United States tariff law.

The Tipperary Trials.

TIPPERARY, Oct. 10.—In the trial of the case against the policemen yesterday Mr. Healy asked that ordinary justices should replace the four resident magistrates on the bench. The application was refused. While Mr. O'Brien was giving evidence Mr. Healy questioned him regarding the photographs he had taken. The presiding magistrate ruled that this was irrelevant. A heated discussion ensued, at the end of which Mr. Healy told O'Brien to leave the witness-box. All the complainants and their friends then left the court, and after the refusal of a request to adjourn, the magistrates held a consultation of the bench and the summonses were withdrawn.

When the case of the Crown against William O'Brien and John Dillon was called this morning Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon did not appear. A rumor is current that they have forfeited their bail of £1,000 each and that they sailed yesterday from Queenstown for the United States.

DUBLIN, Oct. 10.—Much excitement prevailed in Tipperary, when it became known that O'Brien and Dillon had abandoned their defense and left the place. Confirmation of the rumor that they have left the country has been received. There is no confirmation, however, of the report that they sailed from Queenstown yesterday for the United States. The information thus far received shows that they did not leave by the ordinary channels of passage. Their bail will be paid by the National League.

An Alpine Tragedy.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Eduard Goehrs, of Strassburg, and two Alpine guides, Brandschen and Graben, have been killed while ascending the Matterhorn. Goehrs was an expert mountaineer and had acquired considerable reputation for his photographic work in the high Alps. Although but 27 years old, he was celebrated for his daring and was supposed to be almost as sure at his work as the guides themselves. His uncle, H. Beck, of Strassburg, had recently forbidden him to ascend the Matterhorn, and, particularly, to take photographic views of the dangerous points near the peak. Nevertheless, in his uncle's absence, young Goehrs began the perilous ascent on a beautiful Thursday morning. His companions, the guides, Brandschen and Graben, were considered the safest and most skillful men of their business in the vicinity of the Matterhorn. The little party passed Thursday night in the Matterhorn hut, and at 8:30 o'clock on Friday morning resumed the ascent just as Herr Dames, of Frankfort, arrived at the hut with the guides, Burzener and Knubel. For some time the two little columns kept within sight of each other. Then young Goehrs pressed well ahead till he was about an hour in advance of the Dames party. At 9 o'clock a terrible wind storm broke out. Goehr's column was about half an hour from the shoulder of the mountain, when both parties began to retrace their steps to escape the storm, which was rapidly swelling to a cyclone. Fifteen minutes after the beginning of the descent Herr Dames heard a slipping and scraping above. He did not look back, but an instant later three bodies on a rope whirled through the air over his head and down 2,700 feet to the Fursen glacier below. The bodies were Goehrs, Brandschen and Graben, probably still alive. All three were subsequently found, mutilated almost beyond recognition. What caused the fall can only be surmised. A loose stone, a misstep, or perhaps the tremendous force of the wind.

The day after the catastrophe Herr Beck returned and alighted at his hotel, just as the guides carried in his nephew's body.

WALLACEBURG SCORCHED.

The Village Visited by a Destructive Fire—Loss, $10,000.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Oct. 10.—At midnight last night fire was discovered in a small grocery on James street, kept by Jas. Cronk. The fire spread rapidly to the adjoining buildings on the west side, occupied by Jas. M. Smith, tinsmith; D. McCrae, barber, and Dr. N. W. Hay, surgeon, which were destroyed with most of the contents. On the east side the double store occupied by Dobie Bros. as drygoods, millinery and gents' furnishings soon caught and was completely destroyed. The fire company did effective work in preventing the fire from extending westward.

The total loss will amount to $10,000; partially covered by insurance. Cause unknown.

THE WORKING WORLD.

The Color Line Cannot Be Made an Issue—Trouble at Sydney, N.S.W.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 10.—Representations of the Supreme Court of the Federated Railway Organization met at Houston, Texas, on Thursday to discuss affairs in connection with the strike against the employment on the Houston and Texas Central Railway of negroes as switchmen. After consultation with Receiver Dillingham, a satisfactory arrangement was reached. The delegation concluded they could not make the color line an issue so that matter was dropped. The Central Railway for its part reinstates all men who struck on account of the trouble, so that the matter is just where it was before the yard foremen struck. As the road pays the Chicago switchmen's scale, there was found no ground for complaint.

A Sydney, N.S.W., dispatch says: The non-union coal miners who took the places of the strikers were attacked yesterday by the unionists, who drove the non-union men away and occupied the mines. The police were unable to cope with the strikers, and reinforcements have been sent to aid them in restoring order.

The miners of the Monongahela (Pa.) district will demand an increase of ½ cent per bushel this month. If the operators refuse the demand a strike will ensue which will affect 6,000 miners.

The Grand Division of Railroad Conductors has paid off an indebtedness of $11,800 in a year and has a large balance in its treasury.

The employes of the Erie Railroad have declared that their hours of labor are too long, and have asked for a reduction to a maximum of ten hours.

I believe that it will be forever impossible to establish securely and perpetually harmonious relations between employers and workmen until there shall be publicly recognized, fixed, and settled a proper and just rule of profits and salaries—a law for the regulation of all free contracts between capital and labor.—[Cardinal Manning.

John Burns declare that out of 2,000 strikes during 1889 only 30 had been unsuccessful. He regards the outlook as encouraging for great improvement in the condition of workingmen. The activity with which the organization of labor is progressing in England is indicated by the fact that 177 new unions have been registered during the last twenty months.

Lady Dilke will visit Belfast, Ireland, Oct. 17, for the purpose of forming a trade union of the working women of that city. Labor leaders point to this as an example that should be followed in America by those who are anxious to further the interests of their less fortunate sisters. Organize them, educate them, place them in a position to help themselves, it is urged, and then teach them to do so.

Commenting on the efficiency of strikes the Southern Industry says: "How in the name of all that is great did mechanics and laborers gain an increase of pay, if it was not by refusing to work for less, and what is that but a strike? Again, how were the hours of labor reduced from twelve to ten and from ten to nine and eight, if it was not by an organized strike against longer hours of labor? Go to, you make us weary. Workingmen are not in love with strikes. Show them some other way to raise wages and shorten the hours of labor under the present system of distribution and you will never hear of another strike. While the present wage system lasts, while the law of supply and demand regulates wages, there will be strikes."

Ald. Osborne, of Kingston, Ont., asserts that the Grand Trunk workshops will be located in that city as soon as the double track is built.

Freight train earning	262,343	294,837

Decrease, 1890		$29,234

The Double Murder at Cumberland.

CUMBERLAND, Ont., Oct. 10.—The terrible murder case is still the absorbing topic of conversation here. An inquest on the bodies of the McGonigle girls was commenced last night. Dr. Wm. Ferguson gave the result of his medical examination. The bodies, he said, bore an unmistakable evidence of the horrible crime. Both girls had been outraged and had come to death by strangulation. A witness swore that he saw the prisoner, Will Gamble, following the girls along the path which led to their home about 5 o'clock. A farmer named Dalrymple heard cries of "murder" and made an ineffectual search of the spot whence they came.

THE FALL SHOWS.

Big Crowd of West Nissouri People at Thorndale.

The West Nissouri fall show was held at Thorndale Wednesday and was largely attended. From early morning people from the surrounding country came into the village in crowds—the farmers and their wives bringing with them samples of the products of their farms, which, with the contributions from the villagers, made a splendid township exhibition. It is said by the officials and many of the exhibitors and visitors that it was the most successful fall show yet held at Thorndale. About the middle of the afternoon there must have been over 2,000 people on the grounds, and a more orderly, sober and respectable crowd could not be found on any fair grounds in Ontario. The total lack of anything like drunkenness was by some attributed to the fact that there are no hotel licenses here this year. There was but one thing which appeared to give any dissatisfaction, and that was that a number of the gentry known as fakirs were allowed on the grounds. The show in every department was good. A large number of horses of different classes were shown and much admired, and where there were so many first-class animals it would be difficult to make comparisons. The show of cattle, though not so large as at some township shows this fall, was very good indeed, a few head of thoroughbred Shorthorns and Shorthorn grades being on exhibition. A lot of fine long-wooled sheep, as well as short-wooled ones, were shown. Mr. James Anderson, of Westminster, a competent judge, pronounced it one of the best township shows of sheep that he had ever seen. The show of swine and also poultry was very fair. There were four pairs of large turkeys exhibited, which no doubt made many of the London visitors think of Christmas and their friends. The exhibits in the grain, root, fruits and dairy departments were very creditable indeed, and proved that good farming is well understood in West Nissouri. But it was in what is called the domestic class and fine arts departments that a display was made that would be a credit to any township or county in the Dominion.

Among some of the more prominent exhibitors were the names of R. Harding, John McCutcheon, Henry Belton, G. Holland, Emanuel Brock, R. Walker, W. S. Salmon, H. Fitzsimons, W. Hueston, W. Amoss, S. Vining, R. Thomson, W. Carrothers, E. Hodgins, Thos. Logan, M. Flaherty, D. Urquhart, W. Hogg, C. G. Fitzgerald, J. Bryan, J. Johnston, T. Holland, E. Booth, J. H. Brydges, McGuffin, J. Walker, D. Aikens, R. Garner, M. Field and Miss McLean, and many others were on hand whose names were not ascertained.

The Thamesford Cornet Band was in attendance and enlivened the proceedings by furnishing music at short intervals during the whole afternoon. The band also gave a concert and dramatic performance in the Mechanics' Institute Hall in the evening to a large audience. Their musical selections and dramatic efforts appeared to be highly appreciated by all present. The directors and other friends of the West Nissouri fall show have good reason to congratulate themselves on the success of their exhibition this year.

WEST LAMBTON.

The annual fair of the West Lambton Agricultural Society was held at Sarnia on Tuesday and Wednesday. The unfavorable weather did not in any way interfere with the success of the show. Wednesday the attendance was large, the gate receipts being largely in excess of former years. The exhibits in all classes were good, especially in vegetables, grain and other farm produce. The Manitoba exhibits attracted general admiration among the farming community. Fruit exhibits did not come up to the usual standard. There was a large number of entries in the poultry line. The hall was filled with the usual amount of fancy work and domestic manufactures which for design and durability would compare favorably with other years. A good display was made of carriages, wagons, and vehicles of all sorts, and also agricultural implements. Live stock was well represented and was exceptionally fine, and it is admitted on all sides that the horses were the finest ever exhibited here at any annual fair. The great attraction of the show was the trial of speed of horses and the awarding of prizes to lady riders and drivers.

Lady riders—Miss Montgomery 1, Maud Luscombe 2, Annie Foster 3.

Lady drivers—Flora Anderson 1, Mrs. Robert Montgomery 2, Miss Annie MacGregor 3.

Maudie Harris, a little girl under 10 years of age, got a special prize for driving a span of Shetland ponies.

Trotting, 4-year-old colts, ½ mile heats, best two in three—Watson's Lucy 1, R. Owen's Lot-Farmers' trotting, mile heats—Frank Wood's Gold Finder 1, Watson's Lucy 2, Wood's horse 3.

Matched horses, trotting, mile heats, best three in five—Welch's Harry B. 1, McFee's Butcher Boy 2, Story's Fanny B. 3. Best time, 2:51½.

OTHER GOOD EXHIBITIONS.

The North Brant Exhibition at Paris was a success, with an attendance of over 3,000.

The East Wawanosh Fair at Belgrave was a good one, and the society is in a flourishing condition.

Kent's big fair at Ridgetown had 8,000 entries and the attendance was very large. Many special attractions were offered.

The annual fall show of Onondaga township, held at the village of Middlefort, was a great success. The entries in horses and cattle were especially large, whilst in the ladies' department, roots, grain, etc., the fair was in every way a success.

The third and last day of the Howard Exhibition (Thursday) was a success. The crowd numbered thousands, and the weather was beautiful. All the special attractions were fulfilled to the letter, and everybody was satisfied. This year's exhibition goes on record as the best ever held in this town.

Anglican Missions.

KINGSTON, Oct. 10.—At yesterday's session of the Church of England Mission Board a resolution passed providing that foreign missions should include mission work amongst Pagans resident in Canada, other than the aboriginal population, the object being to include the Chinese settlers in British Columbia. For this purpose $500 was voted. The treasurer of the Women's Auxiliary reported the year's collection to be $7,572, and the donations of clothing, etc., were valued at $21,552. The Board adjourned to meet in London next spring. The Provincial Synod Sabbath School Committee adopted a scheme of lessons prepared by the Toronto Diocesan Committee for 1890-91, and arranged a three-years' course of lessons on the Bible and prayer book, to begin with Advent, 1891. A sub-committee was named to prepare a scheme of lessons for 1891-92.

Enforcing the Anti-Lottery Law.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 10.—The postal authorities yesterday seized the weekly edition of the Atlanta Constitution, which contained a prize distribution offer to its subscribers to be settled by a Christmas drawing. The paper offered to give bond for any amount to cover any verdict which might be rendered, but the postal authorities refused to let the papers go through the mails. The objectionable feature consisted in the announcement that it would distribute prizes in its Christmas box which feature the Constitution, like many other papers, has been running for years. The postal authorities claim that this violates the recently passed anti-lottery law. Other publications with similar announcements were also stopped.

CHURCHES WARNED!

Meeting of the Western Congregational Association at Garafraxa.

The Necessity of Exercising Discretion in Appointing Pastors Strongly Emphasized.

The Western Congregational Association held their meeting at Garafraxa, Wellington county, on Tuesday and Wednesday. The delegates from this district were Rev. G. Trotter Carr and Mr. John Hargreaves, of the city, and Mr. James Lewis, of London township. Following is the order of business and devotional exercises:

Tuesday afternoon—Devotional meeting conducted by Rev. James Webb, Garafraxa. Business was then taken up, the principal item being the admission of the Union Congregational Church, London, to fellowship.

Tuesday evening—Public worship was held. Rev. B. B. Williams, of Guelph, preached an able sermon. Collection on behalf of the association.

Wednesday morning—Devotional exercises were held and reports from the churches received, which were, on the whole satisfactory. The election of officers for the ensuing term was proceeded with. Rev. B. B. Williams, of Guelph, was elected chairman, and Rev. J. P. Gerrie, of Stratford, secretary. An admirable address was delivered by Rev. D. McCormick, of Speedside, dealing with the relation of the pulpit to political and social questions. The speaker took the ground that ministers could consistently interest themselves in these matters, but should avoid partisanship. The address will be published in full in the Canadian Independent, the organ of the church.

Wednesday afternoon's session was opened with an interesting study of the book of Jonah, by Rev. A. W. Richardson, of Brantford. The conference on denominational matters, introduced by Rev. E. D. Silcox, of Embro, aroused a good deal of discussion. Mr. Silcox moved as follows:

That because of recent cases of disgrace in the pulpit it is desirable to call the attention of the churches to the necessity of very great care in the admission of individuals to the pulpit, especially of strangers.

No mention was made of the London First Congregational Church trouble, none of its representatives being present; but this resolution was understood to have reference more particularly to the case of R. Neale, and copies of the ADVERTISER were circulated with the account of the difficulty.

Wednesday evening—A public meeting was held, opening with an entertaining address on "The Weekly Offering," by Mr. G. H. Skinner, of Guelph. Rev. G. Trotter Carr, of London, followed with an excellent discourse on "Pulpit and Pew." Farewell Words," by Rev. John Morton, of Hamilton, closed the meeting.

Resolutions were passed expressing admiration of the work done by the Congregational College, Montreal, and the training school at Toronto, and their intention to use their influence to forward the interests of the institutions. Delegates from all parts of the western district were present, and all were loud in praise of the hospitality of the Garafraxa brethren, who did their utmost to make the visitors at home. The next meeting will be held in Hamilton, Ont.

Mr. Ross Sutherland, barrister of Winnipeg, was united in marriage, at Toronto on Wednesday to Miss Nannie, youngest daughter of Dr. J. H. Richardson. Miss Mackenzie of Sarnia was bridesmaid, and Mr. James Sutherland, Grandon, acted as best man.

A dispatch from Calt, Washington Territory, announces the death on Wednesday from typhoid fever of Mrs. Daniels, wife of Mr. Edward Daniels, of that place, a former resident of St. Thomas. Just a week ago her son Emerson died about 16 years, was buried, having succumbed to the same disease.

The tablet ordered to be placed in Knox Presbyterian Church, St. Thomas, by the congregation in memory of their late pastor, Rev. Dr. Archibald, was placed in position Wednesday. It was erected by Ald. Fr Doggett and is a handsome piece of wo Dr. Archibald was pastor of the ch from Nov. 12, 1885, to Nov. 11, 1887, died in Toronto last November at the e age of 37 years.

The acciden was caused by his tripping on a pile o ashes, and the coroner's jury censured th company for allowing the ashes to remai on the track.

An interesting case to farmers and grain-buyers came up in the Brantford Division Court recently. A farmer named Leritt sold 350 bushels of barley to Mr. Harold for 58 cents. He delivered one load to him, and then sold the remainder to Mr. W for 60 cents. Mr. Harold refused to pay for the first load, and Leritt entered action. Mr. Harold also put in a counter claim of 4 cents per bushel for non-delivery. The counter claim was allowed.

Nearly a year ago Miss Provencher of Goyeau street, Windsor, adopted Annie Gillard, an inmate of the Orphans' Home at Kingston, and a few days ago she went to F. A. Bourke, and, stating that Miss Provencher abused her, Mr. Bourke took her to his home. Wednesday Miss Provencher wanted Magistrate Bartlet to issue a summons for the girl's arrest, but he would not. Mr. Bourke says he will not give up the possession of the child until he hears from the authorities at Kingston.

At the residence of Mr. J. W. Manning, Toronto, a quiet wedding came off Wednesday. His second daughter, Laura, was married to Dr. T. Amos, of Exeter. Only family relatives and a few friends were invited. Amongst them were Dr. Graham, of Bothwell, Dr. Clause, Toronto, A. H. Manning, deputy reeve, Clinton, and W. H. Manning, of the Doherty Organ Company. The bride was assisted by her sister and the bridegroom by Dr. Graham; Rev. S. S. Bates, B.A., officiated. Dr. and Mrs. Amos left Toronto for London, Detroit and other places.

About four weeks ago Martin Ludwig, a picture frame dealer, doing business on Antoine street, Detroit, complained to the police that his wife had deserted him and was living with Charles Elston on Pitt street, Windsor. Elston and the woman were arrested, had a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Bartlet, and were sent down to stand their trial before Judge Horne and were acquitted. Wednesday night Ludwig crossed to Windsor and at the ferry landing saw his wife in company with Elston. He grabbed the woman, who fought like a tiger, and Detective Campau took them both to police headquarters. Ludwig tried to prevail upon his wife to return with him, but she refused, and they were both locked up.

At Berlin the other night Rev. R. Hobbs, of Tilsonburg, was married to the widow of the late J. B. Fellman, the Rev. Mr. Howell performing the ceremony. The affair was very quiet, only a few personal friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs, took the 7 o'clock train for London and other points in the West. The Berlin News speaks of the affair as follows: "We congratulate the happy bridegroom on his good fortune in winning so excellent and worthy a companion as Mrs. Fellman, who commanded the highest esteem and respect of all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. She will be greatly missed in social and religious circles, having always taken a very lively interest in church matters and been specially liberal in contributing to the financial necessities. While all her friends will greatly regret her removal from Berlin we are sure they will heartily unite in wishing her and her new companion a long and happy wedded life. In her new home she will have increased opportunities for taking part in all good and religious enterprises."

The Caradoc Township Fall Show was held at Mount Brydges on Thursday. There was a large number of people from the surrounding country present. The show of cattle, principally grades, was very fair, among the leading exhibitors being Ed. Trott, James Weeks and Peter Tools. Messrs, Nagle and Donaldson showed a few good head of the Holstein breed.

The show of horses was a very creditable exhibition indeed, there being a number of handsome animals in the ring, some of the more prominent exhibitors being Chas. Bateman, E. Pierce, W. Clark and N. Falls.

While there was but a small show of either vegetables or roots there were some very good lots of potatoes. There was but very little fruit shown and the exhibition in the ladies' department was not up to that of former years. The Strathroy Brass Band was present and furnished good music.

Do not be induced to take some other preparation when you call for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Be sure to get Hood's, which is peculiar.

NEW NEW YORK.

The Beautiful West Side of the States Metropolis.

Elegance and Sumptuousness of Its Modern Architecture.

[Special Correspondence of the ADVERTISER.]

New York is cleaned and scoured by the recent big rain as she has not been for many a year. A visitor would imagine that the street-cleaning bureau had been busy for a week making ready for a constitutional centennial or some other fete of equal gravity. In no quarter of New York are the grass plats and trees so fresh and so spring-like in verdure as in the new west side—the region which stretches from Central Park to the Hudson. Business is fast converting Fifth avenue into a second Broadway, and fashion is betaking itself to West-End avenue, and the streets intersecting it, where some of the finest city residences in the world are now displayed. In this new New York the architectural traditions of the city have been abandoned. Instead of brown-stone indefinitely repeated, we have granite, marble, sandstone of every hue, and brick of the mellowest tints. Even when the building material is a simple cream colored brick a rich and novel effect is bestowed by using mortar red or olive in color. Weary of the dead level uniformity which once characterized a New York residential street, the new houses fairly revel in architectural originalities. No two are alike in design or decoration, there is variety in the disposal of the steps the porch, the bay windows, the roof, and the chimney, once hidden away, is often brought out as a highly ornamental feature. Here and there are loggias wherever they can be so placed as to command the river view. In not a few corner houses a diminutive turret, scarcely larger than a bird cage, diversifies the façade. Not seldom a block various in the houses which go to make it up has a unity as a whole which adds much to

ITS ARCHITECTURAL BEAUTY.

A good many of the terraces have been erected together by a single builder, and with rather a violent recoil from the rameness and tameness of an old New York terrace. Variety is certainly strained when a milk-white residence is sandwiched in between two others of chocolate and tawny hue. Still, taken as a whole, there is little to call forth anything but praise in the region which beginning at Seventy-Second street extends all the way to Eighty-Sixth street. There is nowhere among the new houses the effort at display with cheap material which one is apt to see in the new residential streets of other American cities. Land here is too dear for anything but solidity and good finish in its houses. The roofs, often skimped and mean even on Fifth avenue, are here handsomely executed in Dutch tiles, or in fine bronzed metal, a material also used for not a few cornices and bay-windows. Riverside Drive itself, perhaps, because of its publicity and the enormous prices charged for its lots, has as yet attracted but few builders of mansions. Its views, commanding the Palisades and the suburban villages nestling on the New Jersey shore, are among the finest in America. At One Hundred and Tenth street one reaches the northern limit of Central Park, and at Tenth avenue on the grounds occupied by the Leake and Watt's orphanage, is the site of the new Protestant Cathedral of St. John the Divine. When St. Patrick's Cathedral was founded at Fiftieth street and Fifth avenue, it was thought a striking act of faith in New York's future growth. Today the astute Episcopal body are about to plant their cathedral three miles farther up town, and deliberately leave Fifth avenue a mile to the east. Significant testimony this as to the expansion of the city and the direction it is likely to take. On a lofty eminence overlooking the Hudson and almost at the end of Riverside drive, is the tomb of General Grant. The present shabby structure, a semi-circular arch of common red brick, is soon to give place to the stately monument designed by Mr. Duncan. Thus, one by one, do the reproaches of New York pass away.

While the increase of New York's population during the past ten years has undoubtedly been larger than the figures credited to her by Mr. Robert P. Porter's slip-shod census bureau, the city proper is not growing with anything like the rapidity of its suburbs. Brooklyn, Jersey City and scores of little towns within a radius of 25 miles from the City Hall, are advancing by laps and bounds. Men with families and they find suburban homes, roomy and healty, within easy access of their stores and offices. The locomotive has but begun its work in relieving the pressure on the business thoroughfares of New York, and no influence more perturbs the calculations of real estate speculators than the possibilities of rapid transit in the near future. Let an express train carry a passenger from the postoffice to One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth street in 15 minutes, and what becomes of values on Twenty-Fifth street? The reason why the city's business is so concentrated below Chambers street is purely topographical. The tip of the tongue of land which ends at the Battery is much more closely approached by the Jersey City and Brooklyn shores than any other part of Manhattan. This determined the location of Brooklyn bridge, and decides which ferries shall be busiest. So great is the tide of traffic to these down-town ferries that it is proposed that they shall be connected with Broadway by elevated sidewalks. At present it is not safe to cross the streets in their vicinity, so thronged are they with market wagons and trucks, heavily laden with merchandise. Since the elevated roads were built, with their termini at the Battery, the rise in the value of land thereabout has been remarkable. For a corner on Broadway and Cortlandt street was recently paid, and the purchasers had only the land for their outlay, as the existing building must be torn down to make way for a modern structure. With offices rented at $2 and more per square foot per annum, the architect now requires the assistance of the engineer. The World's new building will number ten stories, with five more in its tower. Its inner walls of steel, filled in with brick, measure but a foot in thickness. Were they two feet in thickness, as they would need to be were not steel employed, the rent roll would suffer a reduction of $5,000 a year. Lower Broadway, in its Equitable, Aldrich and Washington buildings, displays expenditures that fifteen years ago would have been deemed extravagant, and yet they are profitable investments. Near them is reared the Chamber of Commerce, a triumph in the way of massive simplicity. From its lofty tower one can view the harbor swarming with craft—ocean and coast steamers, fishing smacks, schooners laden with brick and stone, ferry boats, and a sprinkling of pleasure yachts gay with bunting. Near at hand is Liberty's statue, and almost at one's feet are the Long Island and New Jersey shores.

TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS A SQUARE FOOT

Wall street has within a year or two adorned itself with some magnificent business palaces. The new Bank of America, the Gallatin Bank, and the offices of the Central Trust Company are in diverse styles, at once dignified and ornate. It was in their immediate neighborhood, at Wall and Broad streets, that the Drexels, eight years ago had to pay for a bit of property to complete their corner! Not far from the Drexel office there is, on Nassau street, what is perhaps the most attractive office building in New York, that of the Mutual Life Company. Its granite exterior is simply decorated with carvings in low relief in exquisite taste. Its interior of Mexican onyx and white marble is as airy and sunny as if it were some spacious premises in the country. On all hands in this quarter of New York the old-fashioned, low-ceiled, inconvenient offices are disappearing. In their stead quick elevators, electric lights, power ventilation and handsome decorations are making business srroundings as wholesome and cheerful as those of an elegant home.

TWO DOLLARS AND THIRTY CENTS A SQUARE INCH

When one takes the elevated at the Battery it becomes clear why stores and offices in the vicinity are at a premium. At the starting place we can get a seat, not a safe expectation even at the next station, so inadequate are existing facilities. Let us keep our seat, now we have one, until we get to One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth street, and we shall see another section of New York—no other than the Harlem of ten years ago. Here is a thoroughfare almost as busy as Broadway, with its opera house, theaters and hotels, all eight miles from City Hall. How recent is its invasion by business we can observe in the gardens and orchards which in a few places separate a drug store from a tailoring establishment, or a restaurant from a drygoods bazar. At this point Manhattan is an island of width, and on its comparatively cheap lands factories are springing up right and left, so that a large proportion of the local population is fairly independent of the vexed question of getting up and down town. With a few gaps here and there new and old New York are being built up into a continuous city. Fifth, Madison, Park and Lexington avenues are stretching out their mansions toward One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth street, if not with the beauty and originality of the west side, still in a style decidedly better than anything they had to show five years ago always excepting the Vanderbilt, Whitney and Villard palaces. Park avenue is a thoroughfare comparatively few people see who do not live there. It is an extension of Fourth avenue above the Grand Central station, and the tracks of the Hudson River Railroad run in a tunnel beneath it. Despite this drawback it is embellished by some capital new architecture. At Sixty-Seventh street is the fine armory of New York's crack regiment, the Seventh. Not far off, at Sixty-Second street, is the Yosemite Apartment House, modeled after a Florentine palace, a design adopted in the new Imperial Hotel at Broadway and Thirty-Second street. At Eighty-Fifth street is a pretty structure which might have been so much does it resemble in material and outline many of the convents of that city. Coming down Madison avenue one sees many new houses of striking design. The castellated pile at the corner of Seventy-Second street was built by Mr. Tiffany, and is now the home of Mr. Villard, the president of the Northern Pacific Railroad. Below it on either side range apartment houses alternating for two miles with private mansions. At Forty-Fifth street is the Manhattan Athletic Club House, fast approaching completion, and the finest building of the kind in the world. Its swimming bath is 125x30, and under its ample roof is an unrivaled smoking-room of splendid proportions. Near by, on Forty-Third street, just west of Fifth avenue, one can see the results of concerted enterprise. Here two years ago stood a succession of livery stables. They were bought up by a few rich men, the ground cleared, and now three sumptuous buildings are being finished on sites only the other day devoted to boxstalls and hay lofts. On the north side of the street are the Century Club House and the new medical school. Opposite is

A HOTEL OF THE PUREST WHITE MARBLE.

It is very likely that this example will be imitated in other streets, which only need to have stables banished from them to become as desirable as any in town.

One of the best pieces of good fortune that ever befell New York was her creation of Central Park; much as the site cost her, it was a trifle in comparison with the benefit the city derives from its fresh air, its charming walks, its shady nooks, and enticing play grounds. Every passing year adds to its beauty, and a city government otherwise corrupt and inefficient has here one valid claim to the community's respect and gratitude. With a far-sighted policy which do them credit, the civic authorities two years ago possessed themselves of two large areas for parks at the extreme northerly limits of New York. As yet Van Cortland and Bronx Parks are not within easy reach of the city; railroads however are planned to make them cheaply accessible at an early day, and before many years a teeming population in their neighborhood will bless the forethought which made timely provision for their health and recreation. In making these park purchases the city issued bonds bearing 2½ per cent. Low as the rate is, the bonds brought a small premium, testifying to New York's high credit. Some of her wealthy lovers of fast horses last week came out with a project to make a road parallel with Riverside Drive, a little nearer the water, to be set apart for fast driving.

GEORGE ILES.

Sing a song of sixpence,
The price of "Diamond Dyes;"
The fairest of all colors,
That please the ladies' eyes;
They happy make each mother,
Each wife and daughter true;
And all tell one another,
What "Diamond Dyes" can do
So sing a song of sixpence
For what these dyes have done,
In giving glorious colors,
That hold in rain or sun.

Greer, of London, respecting the Independent Order of Foresters, relative to the proposed incorporation of the order. In the State of New York it appears that the State is willing to grant the incorporation asked for, provided that the Canadian law is reciprocal with regard to United States fraternal organizations.

On Friday evening H. V. C. R. Mr. David Millar, assisted by D. S. C. R. Carey, instituted a court of the Independent Order of Foresters in Shaftesbury Hall, Toronto, with a membership of 22.

ANCIENT ORDER UNITED WORKMEN.

W. H. Ziegler, D. D. G. M., paid his official visit to Waterloo Lodge, No. 155, where he found a large number of brethren in the lodge room to receive him. The officers of Waterloo Lodge are among the first to dispense with the ritual. The D. D. G. M. gave them great praise after witnessing an initiation without its use.

Last Tuesday evening Court Forest Queen appointed a committee to make all necessary arrangements for one of their popular socials to take place at an early date.

The regular meeting of Ionic Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Toronto, Tuesday night was most interesting on account of the visit of Temple Lodge, Hamilton, and the official visit of R. W. Bro. Geo. T. Bennett, D. D. G. M., of the eleventh Masonic district. The lodge was also honored by the presence of the deputy grand master, Lieut.-Col. Hon. J. M. Gibson.

SONS OF ENGLAND.

Since the establishment of the Order of the Sons of England in this Province, over 120 lodges have been organized, and the growth of the order has been phenomenal.

Tuesday evening was an eventful time in the history of the order in Hamilton. There were three new lodges instituted, making four in the city during the past month. The ceremonies took place at St. George's Hall. Ald. J. C Swaite, of Toronto, grand president of the order, and Mr. John W. Carter, secretary, were the chief installing officers. There were 63 candidates initiated as members of the three lodges, and 8 members transferred from other lodges. The anniversary services of the Independent Order of Good Templars of Paris will be preached on Sunday next. On the evening following an entertainment will be given in aid of the order.

Daniel Zeimer, secretary of American Council, No. 7, Order of Chosen Friends, has been missing from San Francisco since last Wednesday, and it is stated that he has taken $6,000 which was due beneficiaries of the order.

Ridgetown has two lodges of Foresters and one each of Masons, Oddfellows, Workmen, Royal Templars, Knights of Pythias, and it is proposed to institute lodges of the Sons of Canada, Sons of Scotland and a branch of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association.

YOUNG MEN ORGANIZING.

This evening the Young Conservative Club of this city holds its annual meeting for the election of office-bearers and for the arrangement of the winter programme. It is a good sign when the young men take an interest in the conduct of public affairs, no matter on what side of politics they may, for the time being, ally themselves.

If the young men set honestly to work to investigate the science of government and the best means for promoting the public welfare, there is hope that the country will be benefited by their efforts.

It does not always follow that the earnest investigator will not obtain new light on the principles of government. We all know that Gladstone began life in England as a hard-shell Tory, though for nearly the whole of his mature manhood he has been a Liberal of the Liberals. In Canada we have Sir Richard Cartwright, who experienced a similar change of heart.

What the Dominion needs—what it specially calls for nowadays—is young men of independence, of unselfishness, who will work for the advancement of the whole people and not be champions of sectional interests. If the political organization of young men results in the production of that type of manhood it will be well for the country. By their fruits we shall know them. If they simply exist to register the decrees of life-long office-holders and office-seekers, without so much as taking thought of the right or the wrong of any of the great questions of the day, their organization cannot be of real benefit to themselves or to the mass of their fellows.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—Has an epidemic of homicidal mania struck the Dominion? Murders are perpetrated these days with a regularity that is shocking and much to be deplored.

—The Dundas Banner man is wrestling with the great tramp question. It must be hard working collecting subscriptions in the back townships these months of mud and neglected toll roads.

—Senator ..varts, the distinguished New Yorker, asserts that he will not be a candidate for re-election. When the long-sentence orator goes out of public life Congress will lose a politician of marked ability and personality.

—New York State criminal officials will have another opportunity within the next week or two to try electricity as a substitute for hanging. The victim this time is a negro who killed a companion while drinking in a grocery.

—The United States Congress passed a law, in the closing hours of the last session, imposing a fine of $50 upon any person who shall so prostitute the United States flag as to use the Stars and Stripes for advertising purposes. Will the politician who takes "the old flag and an appropriation" as his campaign motto be liable to the penalty?

—The London Times advises Canada to go in for free trade. Worse counsel than this might be adopted. If Canada were to so reduce her tariff on British imports that our merchants could buy to advantage in the old world markets, every border city, town and village would become a depot for the sale of goods to Yankee smugglers. Millions of dollars worth of imports would be thus disposed of, and one of two things would occur: Either the United States Government would have to establish a cordon of customs officials, many thousands in number, along the entire border of 3,000 odd miles, or it would agree with alacrity to the Liberal proposition in favor of complete reciprocity. Meanwhile the development of the new lands in the Dominion would be promoted at an unprecedentedly rapid rate.

—Even the greatest of musicians have a cranky side to their characters. By a system of fines for alleged petty breaches of discipline the original and only Strauss caused a rebellion in his orchestra which culminated at Milwaukee in a demand that the impositions should be remitted on pain of a breaking up in the organization. The fines were remitted. Besides, Strauss has had to dispense with what is known to the players as the "Hoellenzeichen" (sign of hades). The reader may not understand the term. Every time a concert began a cantam-player had to give it two blows so as to apprise the audience of his approach. The orchestra did not like it and insisted that he should cease having his appearance on the stage heralded that way. His vanity was greatly offended, but he could do nothing but give in. The Strauss orchestra is thus an inharmonious organization for the purpose of exemplifying harmony. Slightly paradoxical, yet true.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS.

Come Forth! By Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and Herbert D. Ward. (Boston: Houghton Mifflin & Co.; Toronto: Williamson & Co.) This is a dramatic narrative of the time of Christ, into which romantic incidents not recorded in the Gospel are woven. The Savior himself figures as one of the principal characters, and his summons at the tomb of his friend, "Lazarus, come forth!" suggested the title of the book. Upon Martha and Mary and their brother Lazarus, the dramatic interest of the story centers. The latter is employed by the High Priest Annas to make repairs to the women's apartment of the palace, and while resting after his labors in the shade of the palace wall the vision of the beautiful Zahara bursts upon him. To him she is "Music become woman," and his new-born passion for her is speedily returned, though she rails at him for recognizing the pretentions of the despised Nazarene. Later in the story Zahara goes in a pleasure boat on the Sea of Galilee; a storm arises and not one of the Galilean fishermen dare venture forth. Lazarus in vain essays to reach the boat, but a majestic figure stills the waves, walks on the sea, raizes Zahara in his arms, lays her at Lazarus' feet, and disappears. Lazarus is made the honored guest of the High Priest till he explains that not he but Jesus of Nazareth rescued the girl from the water. The lovers enjoy many stolen interviews in a subterranean passage connecting the temple with the palace until they are discovered by the High Priest. Lazarus is dragged to the palace entrance of the passage, and ignominously thrown over the wall. He never rallies from the shock, but shortly sinks into that long sleep from which he is wakened only by the voice of Jesus crying "Lazarus, come forth!" At this restoration of the dead to life Zahara yields her allegiance to him whom until then she had regarded as a Messianic imposter.

The Trees of Northeastern America, with illustrations from original sketches by Charles S. Newhall (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York; Toronto: Williamson & Co.) This is a handsome work, containing 116 illustrations of leaves of our native trees, and the descriptions embrace all the native trees of Canada and the northern United States, east of the Mississippi River. The constant characteristics of each tree are numerous, but for the ordinary observer the leaf alone is sufficient for the identification of the tree to which it belongs. In addition, it describes each tree in simple fashion, so that it can be easily recognized from its foliage, bark and style.

The Story of Scotland from the earliest times to the present century. By John Mackintosh, LL.D., (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons.; Toronto: Williamson & Co.) In this volume the author gives an account of the conflicts of the chief tribes with each other, the foundation of the monarchy, the gradual extension of the kingdom, and the development of a distinct nationality. He describes the struggle against external enemies, the Romans, the Danes, the Norwegians; and finally the long and unequal contest with England, in which the Scots finally won their independence. Then follows a narration of the quarrels between the Scotch nobles in their efforts to control the Crown; the religious contests connected with the Reformation; the accession of King James to the English throne, the subsequent events down to the union with England in 1707, with chapters devoted to the religious movement in Scotland, and its modern literature.

Essays of Elia. By Charles Lamb (London: J. M. Dent & Co.; Toronto: Williamson & Co.) No apology is needed for another edition of "The Essays of Elia," and there is no need to say anything here in praise of what all the world praises. Sufficient to explain that the editor of this edition has given the immortal Essays good type, careful printing, excellent paper and a form as agreeable to the hand as to the eye.

Tom Brown's School Days. By an Old Boy. (Toronto: Williamson & Co.) Another old classic in a new and inviting shape. It is profusely illustrated and will be a welcome addition to any boy's library.

Memoirs of the Military Career of John Shipp. Written by himself. (New York: Macmillan & Co.; Toronto: Williamson & Co.) This is a new, illustrated edition of the extraordinary career of a late lieutenant in his Majesty's 87th Regiment. The "Memoirs" first appeared in 1829, and have since passed through several editions. It is the history of a friendless farmer's boy, who, without any educational advantages, "qualified himself to be at once the hero and the author of a remarkable work."

The Nursery "Alice," with text adapted to nursery readers. By Lewis Carroll. (New York: Macmillan & Co.; Toronto: Williamson & Co.) "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," so long a favorite with youthful readers, is here translated into the simplest and winsomest phraseology for the benefit of children "aged from nought to five." The author's ambition for this book is that it may be thumbed, cooed over, dog's-eared, rumpled and kissed by the illiterate, ungrammatical, dimpled little ones of the nursery. Judging from the quality of the contents this ambition is very likely to be realized. Why cannot "Alice in the Looking Glass" and Kingsley's "Water Babies" be translated into child language for the benefit of very little readers?

The Dark Continent and Its Secrets, compiled and edited by G. Mercer Adam (Toronto: Rose Publishing Company.) The object of this compilation of Stanley's great work is to supply in a compendious form, and at a modest price, a popular account of the great explorer's discoveries in Africa. "In these days of big books on small themes," says the author in the preface, "there may be room for a small book on a big theme." The work admirably fulfills the object in view, and should meet with a wide circulation.

MAGAZINES.

Harpers for October (Harper & Bros., New York) contains "Agricultural Chili," Theodore Child's second South American article. It is a personal study of the rich agricultural provinces of Chili. "Antoine's Moose-Yard" is a narrative of hunting adventures in the great Canadian woods, accompanied by twelve spirited illustrations. The production and marketing of petroleum is described in "The First Oil Well." There are five short stories, and other interesting matter. The "Easy Chair" contributes some pleasant recollections of the early days of N. P. Willis, and Lydia Maria Child, and the "Editor's Study" refers to certain novel readers in our own country, who "had better get some sackcloth and ashes and put them on," because of their defective tastes.

Wide Awake for October (D. Lothrop Company, Boston) is a capital number, containing a good football story, a war story, a quaint darkey story, an Acadian old folk lore tale, "A Story of 1812," and other more substantial matter for the entertainment of young people.

The Pansy (D. Lothrop Company, Boston) is another attractive magazine for youthful readers. "A Ball, a Doll and a Man," and "When I Was a Girl," are among the best of the little stories in the October number. Both are written by "Pansy," whose books are so deservedly well known.

The Century Magazine for October (Century Company: New York) gives the conclusion of two notable series of papers, "The Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson," and Mrs. Barr's "Friend Olivia," "Out-of-the-Ways in High Savoy," written in Edward Eggleston's always bright and entertaining style, takes a deserved first place in the number. "Meteorites and the History of Stellar Systems" gives an insight from an earthly point of view into celestial things. "Women of the French Salons" is continued, and a very good idea is given in another article of the progress of "Women in American Literature." Two characteristic and well-written short stories are "How Jerry Bought Malviny," and "In Dark New England Days."

There are half a dozen poems in The Cosmopolitan for October, and a single and rather unusual short story. The twin cities of the Northwest, St. Paul and Minneapolis are well and accurately described, St. Paul as the home of the merchant and the professional man, Minneapolis of the lumber king and miller. Both have an intensely cold, exhilarating winter climate, free from depressing changes, fog and slush; and both are within easy distance of Minnehaha Falls, a name immortal wherever Longfellow is read and loved. It is in his poem of "Hiawatha" where

—"The Falls of Minnehaha
Flash and gleam among the oak trees,
Laugh and leap into the valley."

The Dominion Illustrated (the Sabiston Lithographic and Publishing Company, Montreal) is full as usual of clearly-printed pictures, and a high grade of contributed and selected matter.

The Canadian Congregational Year Book. (Toronto: Congregational Publishing Company.) All that is of interest in the Congregational churches and societies for the year is given to the readers of this year book. There is a good approach to perfection in the statistics, and a church map of Ontario contained in the book will be found useful.

SEWERS AND SIDEWALKS.

Number Two Committee Awards Contracts for the Construction of Several Sewers.

A meeting of No. 2 Committee was held last evening. Those present were: Ald. Jones (chairman), Garratt, Dreaney, Thomas, Wyatt and O'Meara, Secretary Graydon and Engineer Tracy. The matter of laying a drain on Bruce street, from Henry street, came up, and it was agreed to be necessary. It will be advertised and tenders called for the work. It was also decided to go on with the work of the Richmond street drain, from Kent street to the Carling Creek.

The communication from Gibbons, McNab & Mulkern, asking what action the city would take with reference to the injury to John Garvey's horse was referred to the Engineer and member of the ward. The amount claimed was $74.

The communication from Love & Dignan respecting Mrs. Sarah Hulbert's claim for injuries received owing to a stumble over a gas pipe at the corner of Bathurst and Burwell streets, was referred to the Engineer and member of the ward.

Two petitions respecting the construction of a sewer on Wolfe street were presented. Five names appeared on the one in favor of the work and four against it.

Capt. John Williams asked that the drain be constructed as far as his property and connected with the proposed drain on Wellington street. It was decided to advertise for the construction of a drain on Wellington street from Princess avenue to Hyman street and along Hyman street to Richmond street. The Wolfe street petitioners can, if this is done, run drains under the boulevard and connect with the Richmond street drain.

Capt. Young and Assessor Buckle urged that a sidewalk be laid on the west side of Colborne street between Princess avenue and Central avenue. It was decided to recommend the work to the Council.

Tenders for constructing a ten-inch tile drain on Maitland, Horton and King streets were received as follows:

John Walters—King street, between William and Adelaide, $349, not including gully holes, which were set at $10 each.

John Walters—Maitland street, from Dundas street to Dufferin avenue, $791, including twelve gully holes.

John Drummond—King street sewer, $404, not including gully holes.

Moses Cox—Ten-inch sewer on Horton street, from Burwell to Colborne street, $274; twelve-inch sewer, $338, including gully holes.

It was decided to give Walters the contract for the King and Maitland streets sewers. The Horton street sewer fell to the lot of M. Cox.

It was decided to notify the Street Railway Company to put Dundas street in order.

Baggage smashers say Scarrows Trunks beat them all; Trunks and Valises at factory prices repairing a specialty. 227 Dundas street.

Dyspepsia

Makes many lives miserable, and often leads to self destruction. Distress after eating, sick headache, heartburn, sour stomach, mental depression, etc., are caused by this very common and increasing disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla tones the stomach, creates an appetite, promotes healthy digestion, relieves sick headache, clears the mind, and cures the most obstinate cases of dyspepsia. Read the following:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced. It relieved me of that faint, tired, all-gone feeling. I have felt so much better since I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I am happy to recommend it." G. A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

Paris bicyclists are required to obtain licenses, which may be withdrawn in case of reckless riding.

The Sarnia Bicycle Club received a challenge last Monday from the Forest City Bicycle Club for a team road race of not less than ten miles nor less than five on a side. The Sarnia wheelmen, while anxious to accept the challenge, consider it too late in the season for a good race, and will likely decline the challenge.—[Sarnia Canadian.

BASEBALL.

MEETING OF THE MAGNATES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The National Baseball League representatives met at the Fifth Avenue Hotel to-day, and some talk was heard of a conference with the Players' League. Mr. Spalding is authority for the statement that all were satisfied that something must be done soon for the benefit of the game and the capitalists who have their money invested. The outcome, he thought, would be the appointment of a committee of the League to confer with a committee from the Players' organization. The general opinion of the delegates on the consolidation subject is that the National League has the best of the fight, and that if any concessions are to be made they should come from the Players. The National League went into session at 1:30 p.m.

THURSDAY'S GAMES.

American Association—Athletics 4, Rochester 10; Syracuse 3, Baltimore 6; St. Louis 5, Columbus 7; Toledo 7, Louisville 6. At Cincinnati (exhibition game)—Cincinnati 1, Buffalo 4.

"Ratsy" Wright, of the Clevelands, expects to play in Syracuse next season.

Pittsburg wants another League team next season. Pittsburg is a great ball town, the attendance frequently being as high as 100.

Harry Stovey again demonstrated this season that he is the champion baserunner of the country. He stole about twenty more bases than any other player in either of the three big leagues.

Paul Alexander Johnston, the mind-reader, gave a private exhibition of ball playing at Chicago a few days ago with his eyes blindfolded. With a hood over his eyes he batted, caught the ball and ran bases, controlled by the will of Anson and one of his players. His hood was carefully examined both before and after the exhibition, and, so far as the spectators could discover, there was no deception.

CURLING.

The Brantford Curling Club has elected officers as follows: Patron, Lord T. Whitehead; president, Thomas S. Wade; vice-president, A. J. C. Galletely, secretary, R. A. Watt; treasurer, D. Jolly; Chaplain, Rev. J. C. Tolmie; representatives members, Thomas Woodyatt, G. S. Perks.

THE TURF.

The running horses Charlie Stuart and Cleveland have been matched to run a half-mile heat race for $50 a side at Strathroy next Tuesday.

A horse at a 2:30 gait covers 35½ feet every second. When Salvator made the mile record he went at the rate of 55 feet per second.

The trotting mare, Pixley, by Jay Gould, started the season with no record, and though she has one of 2:16, she has been unable to win a single race during the season.

The stakes to be run for at the Victoria Racing Club of Melbourne, Australia, for the season of 1890-91 amount to over $300,000, with over $200,000 added. The handicap sweepstakes for the Melbourne cup on Nov. 4 has $50,000 and a $750 trophy added.

All the horses comprising the Castle stables, including Diablo, were sold at public auction on Tuesday in the paddock at Morris Park, N. Y. Diablo brought $9,000, his purchaser being J. E. Campbell. The colt Bermuda brought $5,500, and the colt Thorndale $3,100.

RECORDS BROKEN.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 10.—The three fastest harness records in the world is the mark hung up yesterday on the Terre Haute track, viz., the fastest stallion record, 2:11½; the fastest mile ever paced or trotted in a race, 2:09¾, and the three fastest heats in a race, 2:09¾, 2:12¾, and 2:13. The great attraction was the announcement that Nelson would go to beat Axtell's time, 2:12, made over this track last fall. The great Maine stallion was driven by his owner, O. H. Nelson, and was given a warming-up heat to 2:23, the last quarter in 32. The second time down, the word was given with the stallion going smooth and strong, with the runner back. The rate was deceptive, but the furlong being completed in 16¾ was a pointer to the great effort that was on. The watches split at 32 seconds at the first quarter, the half in 1:04¾, the horse going entirely on his courage. Now the runner quickened his stride and moved up, and with his ears laid back, the great stallion caught the hoof-beats behind him, and another link was let out as he gamely fought against Father Time. He reached the three-quarter pole in 1:36¾, and as he swung into the turn all knew another record had gone down. Cheer after cheer went up as he flashed under the wire in 2:11¼. The time by quarters was 32, 32¾, 31¾, 34¾.

RUNNING AND TROTTING AT PORT ELGIN.

PORT ELGIN, Oct. 10.—The second meeting of the Port Elgin Turf Club took place yesterday. In the 2:30 class Bay Fly captured first money and Grey Tobe second. Best time 2:33. In the running race Topsy B. captured first, Ciara K. second and Long Spin third.

AT ST. CATHARINES.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 10.—Some months ago Simon James, of Hamilton, and the Fitch Bros., of the same place had a little newspaper war over the abilities of their trotting stock, and as a result two matches were made. The first was a race between James' black filly, Canadian Girl, and the gelding, Major Stanton, owned by John Batten, of Thorold. The Stanton horse won this race. The second match was decided at Fairvale Park here. Summary:

Match trot, 3-year-olds, $200 a side; mile heats, 3 in 5:

Guy Allan, blk. c., Fitch Bros., Hamilton	2	2	1	1
Gen. Howard, b. c., F. Green, Stoney Creek	1	1	2	2

Time—2:56, 1:51, 2:50, 2:49, 2:50.

TROTTING AT WINDSOR.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 9.—There was quite a large crowd at the races at the Windsor Driving Park yesterday afternoon, and the three-minute and 2:40 trots were very exciting and closely contested. In the three-minute trot Albert Foxe's Strogoff won first money, H. B. Edwards' (Detroit) Columbus Belle second and J. H. Louis' Baker Boy third. Best time, 2:44¾.

There were only three entries in the 2:40 trot—Iron Chief, owned by F. X. Bertrand, 1; Little Fred, owned by Teed Bros., Detroit, 2; Alkadia, owned by E. Raume, 3. Best time, 2:30.

FOOTBALL.

Stratford beat St. Marys at football on Wednesday, 4 to 0.

The Canadians put a strong team in the field against Upper Canada College at Toronto Thursday, and scored a try and a rouge (5 points) against a try (4 points). As the rules require a majority of two points the result was officially a draw.

THE TRIGGER.

AYR, Oct. 9.—The Ayr shooting tournament opened to-day.

First event; 10 singles—Sutherland 9, Rutherford 9, Thompson 8, Murray 7, Blake 5.

Second event; 20 singles—Sutherland 18, Thompson 15, Murray 12, Blake 12, Rutherford 12.

Third event; 15 singles—Thompson 15, Wayper 14, Sutherland 12, Blake 11, Rutherford 10, Murray 8, Hall 5.

TORONTO LETTER.

Found Dead in Bed—Chautauqua Convention—Wycliffe College Convocation.

TORONTO, Friday, Oct. 10.

The Methodist Women's Missionary Association decided to meet next year at Brampton, and elected Mrs. Dr. Williams president, Mrs. Dr. Carman first vice-president, Mrs. Tyner recording secretary, and Mrs. Dr. Briggs corresponding secretary.

J. J. Franklin has resigned the position as superintendent of the Toronto Street Car Company, and accepted the position at a salary of $6,500 per year as head of the street car system in Paris, France, which has just been bought up by an English syndicate.

The annual convocation of Wycliffe College was held last evening. An address was presented by the graduates to Sir C. S. Gzowski, president of the council, congratulating him on his elevation to the knighthood, and a paper was read by the principal, Rev. Dr. Sheraton, on "The Church the Household of Faith."

R. G. Doherty was found dead in bed at 121 Bleecker street yesterday. Heart disease was the trouble. Deceased was not more than 33 years of age, and was formerly in business as jeweler, on Queen street west, but latterly had been employed as advertising agent. He leaves a wife and three children.

The first Chautauqua convention ever held in Canada began yesterday in the Normal School. Bishop Vincent, chancellor of the Chautauqua University, took a prominent part in the proceedings. Papers were read by Rev. John Ewan, head of the movement in Canada, Wm. Houston, Mrs. Cole, of Lakefield, Mr. J. H. Fryer, Galt; Mr. W. W. Wickens, Brantford; Mr. John Hunter White, St. John, N. B.; and Mr. S. Strickland, Rockwood. The convention indorsed the idea of erecting a building to be used as a hall of philosophy, on the grounds of the society at Niagara-on-the-Lake, and resolved also to hold annual conventions in future. In the evening a public meeting was held at the Normal School, the principal feature being an address by the newly-appointed Provincial Treasurer, Hon. Richard Harcourt.

The Ontario Society of Artists asks the Civic Executive Committee to sanction a grant for a new art school.

A building permit was issued yesterday to the Confederation Life Association for their six-story building on Yonge, Richmond and Victoria streets, to cost $300,000. The building is now up to the first story and a permit was necessary to go on with the work.

Has Proved a Failure.

It is said that the casting of the bronze statue of General Grant, to be erected in Lincoln Park, Chicago, has proved a failure, and will cause a delay of several months. The loss will be considerable to the contractors who have undertaken the job. The great contract for supplying this broad Dominion with package dyes, is now in the hands of the proprietors of the celebrated "Diamond Dyes," who turn out immense lots every week for every city, town and village from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. The manufacturers of "Diamond Dyes" have never known a failure to result when their dyes are properly used. Ladies throughout Canada have the most implicit confidence in their great possibilities. Makers of inferior dyes use every means to introduce their crude and common preparations to the public, but without much result. The public are so wedded to the reputation of Diamond Dyes that seldom is a package of any other make sold. Ladies, do not be deceived by imitators. See that you get Diamond Dyes, and thus avoid trouble and loss of time.

A Lady Dies While Under Christian Science Treatment.

Extraordinary Developments Revealed by a Correspondent and a Reporter.

Testimony of Dorchester People Who Profess to Have Been Cured.

Visit to the Village—Talk with Believers and Disbelievers—Miss Spring, the Clairvoyant, on the Scene—Her Doings and Ideas.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

NILESTOWN, Oct. 6, 1890.

I have been watching with considerable interest your reporters' interviews with the so-called Christian Scientists and their dupes, as published in the ADVERTISER, and in one of them I notice that the nabob of the fake in London states that our suburb (Dorchester) has a good many residents who have taken the benefit (?) of his mediatorial influence; of course at $1 for each fifteen minutes' spin, or at wholesale price, seven such arguments for $5.

As I happen to know a good deal about the result of his operations on Dorchester invalids, I thought I would give him a lift by a free ad. with your permission. So far as I can find out, two persons only, having organic troubles, have been treated in that place. One is still being treated, I believe, for partial deafness. It must be a couple of months since she began, and her most intimate friends can see no improvement as yet. Fortunately hers is a case that cannot be injured by their tomfoolery. The other case was a Mrs. Smith, who was troubled with some derangement of the heart, as a result of the grippe. Dr. Graham, of Dorchester, the physician called in, honestly told her that her malady would prove fatal before many months passed away, and prescribed heart tonics for her, which would have in all probability preserved her life for some time at least if their use had been continued. But, alas! some admirers of the new fake advised the invalid to try Robb, and so she did. Now mark the wonderful result. The regular physician gave her some months of life, with care and proper medicine. She visited Robb, and he at once ordered the use of all medicine to be stopped. She followed his orders, and at once of course her symptoms became worse. The Scientists, or more properly speaking, ignoramuses, assured her that was a good sign, as she must necessarily be worse before she could be better. But about two weeks of such treatment was sufficient to cause the death of a devoted wife and loving mother. There is no doubt that following Robb's advice hastened her death. I think he should have been dealt with in the same way as his instructress in the city of Toronto is being dealt with. I sincerely hope that the exposes of this iniquity may be the means of keeping at least sensible people from taking any stock in the devilish science.

INCREDULOUS ODL.

The articles which have appeared in recent editions of the ADVERTISER respecting "Christian Science," its adherents and operations, have aroused a good deal of interest, which will be emphasized by Mr. David W. Robb, the representative of the sect in this city, criticising Rev. Walter M. Roger's sermon, together with the above communication. The latter bears out the statement made by Mr. Robb in a previous interview, when he asserted that many of his patients resided in Dorchester. An ADVERTISER reporter dropped down on that village the other afternoon to make a few inquiries in reference to the matter, which had been agitating the community there. Those whom he conversed with, who profess to have been benefited by Mr. Robb's treatment, did not claim to embrace the doctrines of the sect, but only extended their faith in it, so far as an apparently sincere belief in the curative power of prayer, as practiced by Christian Science. They comprise some of the leading people of Dorchester and vicinity, and standing members of the church, who do not consider that this belief conflicts with their principles as church members.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

Dr. A. Graham stated to the reporter that Christian Science was obtaining quite a hold on the village until lately, but it seemed to be dying out now.

"Do you think the death of Mrs. Melvin Smith had something to do with it?"

"Well, I rather believe that had a depressing effect on the adherents here."

"You attended the lady, I have heard?"

"Yes; I treated her for heart disease. When she had particularly bad spells, I prescribed heart tonics, which had a stimulating effect; they tended to protract her life, for her death was only a matter of time. However, I think she would have lived longer had she not discontinued the use of medicines in compliance with the order of Robb, the Christian Scientist in London. She went to him on a Saturday for treatment, and I called on her the next week. She remarked at the time that Christian Science had done her no good up till then, but she refused to take medicine. She died. There are several residents of the village who have visited Robb and profess to have benefited. Personally, I have no faith in their teachings or power of healing."

AN ADMIRER OF THE BELIEF.

The scribe subsequently called on Mr. Richard Aylesworth, who lives a short distance from the village. Particular stress is laid by the Scientists on the cure Miss Aylesworth received at the hands of Mr. Robb, which had the effect of converting that lady into an ardent adherent of his doctrine.

Her brother received his visitor courteously, and on the latter explaining that he was considerably interested in Christian Science, became communicative on the subject.

"Yes," said Mr. Aylesworth, "I was first induced to visit Mr. Robb by the cure effected on my sister. Why, the doctors gave her up entirely and told her she would only live till May. She is away at present but is perfectly well."

"What was your complaint, Mr. Aylesworth?"

"Well, it was at the time la grippe was prevalent and like the rest of mortals I caught it. It developed into inflammation of the bowels together with kidney trouble. I tried the doctors and they checked the inflammation but could do nothing to help the other. I suffered very much with it from April till July when my medicine run out and then I thought that as it had done my sister so much good, it might do the same for me. I went to Mr. Robb in London and took several treatments. At first I didn't feel much better, but after a while I felt it doing me good—in fact I can remember the very day when I knew the change, it was one Sunday morning."

"How many treatments did you take?"

"I should say half a dozen, or somewhere thereabouts."

"Did it cost you a great deal?"

"It was quite an expense, but then I look to the cure. I am as well as ever now."

Mr. Aylesworth certainly looked the picture of health, strength and good humor.

"I suppose you thoroughly believe in the curative powers of Christian Scientists?"

"Yes, when I see what it has done, it's impossible to doubt it."

"Do you understand their doctrine entirely? You know their creed asserts that death may be overcome. Do you agree with that?"

"Well, I think it is not impossible. These things are done by the mind, and you see there are so few Christian Scientists against so many people who do not believe in it, that it cannot be done at present. When they increase and become more than the others, I think it will be accomplished; it only needs time. There is no reason why the miracles recorded in the Stripture should not be performed at the present time."

Speaking of the death of Mrs. Smith, he said he could not see why she died under Mr. Robb's treatment. "And those opposed to us do not forget to tell us of it," he added. "Mr. Robb apparently did not understand the exact state and action of her heart, otherwise he might have cured her."

CASES OF CURE.

The reporter was informed that Mrs. I. N. Burdick, a respected member of the Methodist Church, had been taking the treatment. He accordingly called at a handsome two-story brick house, and was politely received by a prepossessing lady, who announced herself as Mrs. Burdick.

"I started the treatment in June," she said, "and have been to London several times. I was troubled with the most violent sick headaches and also with deafness, but I am perfectly well now, with the exception of the latter, and that has not been improved."

"Does that not give you cause to doubt the power of the Christian Scientists to do what they claim?"

"No; it does not make me doubt them, but I only wonder how it is."

"Do you believe in the doctrine personally?"

"Well, I have seen such results that I cannot help believing there is something in it. My own cure convinces me. I was under the doctor's care, but received no benefit at all. I first started treatment with Mr. Robb, from motives of curiosity, more than an expectation of being benefited; for I had no faith in it at the time, but I thought it would do no harm to try. The issue justified me in the action. I consider Mr. Robb a science young man.

Referring to Mrs. Smith's death Mrs. Burdick stated the deceased suffered a paralytic stroke after returning home from London, and Mr. Robb, not being aware of that, of course was not to blame.

Mrs. John McCann, who is also a member of the Methodist Church, gave the reporter a pleasant reception when he called on her. Mrs. McCann said she started treatment under Mr. Robb about two months ago.

"I have completely recovered now and do not think I shall need any more. My trouble was a complication of several disorders which the doctors did not benefit. I had heard of Mr. Robb and the cures he effected, so I went to him and the change was almost immediate."

"Have you studied their creed?"

"Not to any great extent, but I would very much like to get some of their literature, so as to comprehend it better."

"I presume you have every faith in their power to heal diseases?"

"Yes; my personal experience makes me believe it."

"There has been some talk about Mrs. Smith's death. What is your opinion of it?"

"I do not think that Mr. Robb was given fair play on that at all. She only took one treatment and then came home, where she was worried by her friends and the doctors, telling her she would not get better and advising her to take medicines. She became much worse, but Mr. Robb was not notified of the change at all, and it is not right that he should be blamed, for if he had been told, the case might have been different.

A TALK WITH MISS SPRING.

It was with some trepidation that the ADVERTISER representative ventured to pay a visit to Miss Spring. This lady will be remembered as a resident of South London some time ago, where she became notorious through her predictions relative to the discovery of Squire Sifton's body, which she averred, through her supernatural sight, would be found under a pile of brush, a prophecy which eventually proved to be untrue. She also practiced as a clairvoyant and professed to heal the sick through the faith cure process, which was applied to a considerable number of patients in this city. On this account she was fined $50 for a breach of the Medical Act. The reporter knocked at the door of a commodious brick structure and was shown into a room, awaiting the appearance of Miss Spring. There is nothing remarkable looking about the latter. She received the scribe politely, but was not disposed to be communicative.

"Do you perform your cures by the same principle as Christian Scientists?" was asked.

"Yes; I suppose so. I effect my cures through faith."

"The Scientists use no outward form, such as 'laying on of hands,' etc. Is your method of operation the same?"

"No; I use the 'laying on of hands.' You know Christ and the apostles laid on hands; did they not?"

The scribe acquiesced and asked Miss Spring if she had treated any patients in Dorchester.

"No; but I made some splendid cures in London; cases that the doctors had given up entirely," and then added: "I only take patients when they have been given up by the doctors. I believe it is right the physicians should deal with them when they have studied and worked for their positions. I graduated in the States myself in medicine and have the diploma. If I took it to Toronto I could have it transferred to allow me to practice in this country."

In speaking of her powers, Miss Spring stated that once she had fallen into a trance and had been nearly buried. To this fact she attributed her mysterious faculty of second-sight and faith-healing.

"You have heard there are a number of Christian Science patients in the village?"

"Yes; I heard one of them died, too."

A MINISTERS' OPINION.

Rev. J. A. Ayearst does not regard Christian Science in a very high light.

"Of course, I believe God can heal diseases if he sees fit," he said; "but he places in our hands the means to do so, in medicine, and he expects us to use them. The Almighty usually executes his will on this earth by material and not supernatural methods. Their doctrine, which proclaims physical death as a thing that may be overcome, is ridiculous." Mr. Ayearst expressed himself as decidedly opposed to the belief.

Rev. J. E. Moore is also ranged against the principles of Christian Science. He was not at home when the reporter called.

PROS AND CONS.

Mr. R. E. Shaw, of the Dominion Mattress Company, said it had cost him $24 50 to date for his treatment, at the rate of $5 a visit. He got no satisfaction from the doctors, and having heard of other cures thought he would try Mr. Robb. "I felt better at first, but my complaint is coming on again, so I think I'll pay him another visit shortly. Yes; I believe in faith cure, although my family are opposed to it. Studied the matter? No; I have some literature here, but I never applied my attention to it. I don't know anything about their doctrine, although I have faith in their healing power. There are several people in the village whom he has cured."

Mr. Wm. H. Chittick, the proprietor of the Chittick House, did not have a very high opinion of the powers of Christian Science.

"Why, suppose a man broke his leg at the railroad track here and Christian Science methods were used, do you think all the prayers and faith in the world would set that limb?"

Mr. E. Capstick hoped everybody who adopted the Christian Science treatment would be cured, but asserted that those people who had been talking about being healed were slightly wanting in the upper story. He had no interest in the matter, although he had no faith in it.

Mr. W. H. O'Neill coincided with Mr. Capstick. He thought some people were deluded with the idea that they were sick and were just as easily made believe they were cured.

Mr. I. N. Burdick, said he did not understand the doctrine thoroughly, but he certainly had faith in the power of healing as practiced by the Christian Scientists, because his wife had experienced the benefit of their treatment.

Phœbe Campbell's Confession.

The recent murder trials have set people recalling reminiscences of former murders. Among others thus engaged is a correspondent who writes: "Did Phœbe Campbell ever confess to the murder of her husband?" Inquiry from good authority tends to show that she never made a written confession of the deed, but that she made numerous statements acknowledging her guilt. She had made so many different statements of the affair that but few gave what she afterwards said credence. Previous to her execution she sent to the matron, the late Mrs. Doyle, word that she wanted to make a full confession. The Crown Attorney was communicated with, but for some reasons the confession was never taken. In her final statement she had implicated her paramour, Nelson Coyle, but her word went for almost nothing. In order to prove what she had said to be true the condemned woman consented to become a party to a scheme by which Coyle might incriminate himself. Phœbe Campbell was conducted to his cell and talked to him of the crime with a reporter in the adjoining cell shorthanding the conversation. It was generally believed that sufficient evidence was found against the man Coyle, but when he came to trial the jury acquitted him.

A Cat and Her Kitten.

Two queer natural history fairy tales reach us from Scotland. At Haddington last week a cat gave birth to four kittens, and with her offspring took up her abode in the garden summer-house. Three of the kittens were removed, and the lady of the house, on visiting the summer-house the next day, was surprised to find that the fourth kitten had also disappeared. Search was made, but to no avail. Several days passed, and the attention of the inmates was attracted by the somewhat stealthy movements of the mother cat, when it was seen to go repeatedly to a thick arch of honeysuckle in the garden. Here the missing kitten was found safely ensconsed in a blackbird's nest. A better retreat could not have been chosen, as the nest is fully seven feet from the ground and in the thickest part of the honeysuckle. Here the kitten remains, apparently comfortable in its novel quarters.

STEAMER IN FLAMES!

Catastrophe on Lake St. Clair Narrowly Averted

By the Timely Assistance of a Canadian Tugboat.

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—A frightful catastrophe was narrowly averted on Lake St. Clair yesterday afternoon. The steamer Remora left Detroit for Port Huron about 3 o'clock in charge of Capt. Benjamin Emory, with between 40 and 50 passengers and a cargo of merchandise on board. When in mid-lake an alarm of fire was sounded, and a moment later flames burst from the hold, filling the cabin with smoke and driving the passengers to the upper deck. A stiff breeze was blowing and the destruction of the boat with all on board seemed inevitable. The flames were confined to the merchandise in the hold, and while the crew worked heroically to subdue them Captain Emory managed to avert a panic among the passengers, who were thoroughly frightened.
Signals of distress were answered by the Canadian tug Jessie, Capt. McAllister, which was fortunately only a short distance away. The little boat crowded on all steam and hurried to the rescue. Finding that she was unable to reach the Remora from the port side, Capt. McAllister dropped astern and came up on the starboard side. The two boats were lashed together, and twenty minutes later the tug poured a stream of water into the Remora's hold until the fire was extinguished.
In the meantime every passenger on board the Remora had been transferred to the Jessie. After the fire was out and the excitement had subsided, Capt. McAllister made an examination of the Remora's hold, and reported that the boat was not damaged, but was able to continue the voyage to Port Huron. The flames had been confined to the cargo, and had not burned into the boat's frame. Being thus reassured all but four of the passengers returned to the boat, many intending to stop at the Flats. The four passengers remaining on the Jessie were H. Davis and two children, of Moore, Ont., and J. T. R. Brown, an insurance agent, of Detroit, who were brought to Windsor.
"If the Jessie had been a mile farther away every soul on board the Remora would have been lost," said Mr. Brown, when seen by a reporter last night. "It was a very narrow escape, in fact it was providential. Let it be recorded that a Canadian captain came to the rescue of an American vessel, and fought bravely for the lives of the passengers and crew, while a large American barge passed without noting our distress. Capt. McAlister and crew stayed by the Remora until the last spark of fire was extinguished."
"Too much praise cannot be given the captain and crew of the tug Jessie," said Mr. Davis, "for their heroic efforts. They undoubtedly saved the lives of all on board. After the fire was out the tug was placed at the disposal of the Remora's passengers. I decided to return with my children rather than risk the seaworthiness of the Remora."
The fire occurred about six miles from the Flats. The Remora is owned by S. H. Davis & Co., of Detroit, and the Jessie by J. Nesbitt, of Sarnia.

The Thing for Weak Lungs.
[From the Evening Wisconsin.]
If those who have weak lungs would put their breathing organs through a course of daily exercise, filling them to the utmost with air, and expanding every cell without any violent straining, they would gradually increase their lung power, strengthen the circulation of the blood, improve their digestion and re-establish bodily vigor. Non-use produces atrophy, either in lungs or in muscles, and we should pay as much attention to lung gymnastics, so to speak, as we do to the exercise of the legs and arms. A half-used lung is more likely to be the seat of disease than a full and vigorous lung that is able to throw off germs and other foreign matter.

I find my Ordered Tailoring Department increased to such an extent that I require every inch of room on the first floor for Tweeds and Woolens. Consequently all Boys' and Men's Furnishings must go at cost. This is not a clearing sale at the end of a season, but I am placing before the public a stock in the beginning of a season when they will require the goods. The above consists of the balance of R. Wallace's bankrupt stock, bought at 65c on the dollar, and over $3,000 worth of the finest new goods bought this season, under the most favorable circumstances, in the best markets. This is an opportunity for all to buy their Fall and Winter Furnishings at cost and under.

Desperate Remedies

By Thomas Hardy,

AUTHOR OF "A PAIR OF BLUE EYES," "THE TRUMPET-MAJOR," ETC.

They were opposite Layning shore. The cliffs here were formed of strata completely contrasting with those of the farther side of the bay, whilst in and beneath the water hard boulders had taken the place of sand and shingle, between which, however, the sea glided noiselessly, without breaking the crest of a single wave, so strikingly calm was the air. The breeze had entirely died away, leaving the water of that rare glassy smoothness which is unmarked even by the small dimples of the least aerial movement. Purples and blues of divers shades were reflected from this mirror accordingly as each undulation sloped east or west. They could see the rocky bottom some twenty feet beneath the surface, luxurian with weeds of various growths, and dottet with pulpy creatures reflecting a silverd and spangled radience upwards to their eyes.

At length she looked at him to learn the effect of her words of encouragement. He had let the oars drift alongside, and the boat had come to a standstill. Every thing on earth seemed to take a contemplative rest, as if waiting to hear the avowal of something from his lips. At that instant he appeared to break a resolution hitherto zealously kept. Leaving his seat amidships he came and edged himself down beside her upon the narrow seat at the sterny

She breathed more quickly and warmly; he took her right hand in his right; it was not withdrawn. He put his left hand behind her neck till it came round upon her left cheek; it was not thrust away. Lightly pressing her, he brought her face and mouth towards his own; when, at this very brink, some unaccountable thought or spell within him suddenly made him halt—even now, and as it seemed as much to himself as to her, he timidly whispered, "May I?"

Her endeavor to say No, so denuded of its flesh and sinews that its nature would hardly be recognized, or in other words a No from so near the affirmative frontier as to be affected with the Yes accent. It was a whispered No, drawn out to nearly a quarter of a minute's length, the O making itself audible as a sound of a spring coo of a pigeon on unusually friendly terms with its mate. Though conscious of her success in producing the kind of a word she had wished to produce, she at the same trembled in suspense as to how it would be taken. But the time available for doubt was so short as to admit of scarcely more than half a pulsation; pressing closer he kissed her. Then he kissed her again with a longer kiss.

It was the supremely happy moment of their experience. The "bloom" and the "purple" were strong on the lineaments of both. Their hearts could hardly believe the evidence of their lips.

"I love you, and you love me, Cytherea," he whispered.

She did not deny it; and all seemed well. The gentle sounds around them from the hills, the plains, the distant town, the adjacent shore, the water heaving at their side, the kiss, and the long kiss, were all "many a voice of one delight," and in unison with each other.

But his mind flew back to the same unpleasant thought which had been connected with the resolution he had broken a minute or two earlier. "I could be a slave at my profession to win you, Cytherea; I would work at the meanest honest trade to be near you—much less claim you as mine, I would—anything. But I have not told you all; it is not this; you don't know what there is yet to tell. Could you forgive as you can love?" She was alarmed to see that he had become pale with the question.

"No—do not speak," he said. "I have kept something from you, which has now become the cause of a great uneasiness. I have no right—to love you; but I did it. Something forbade——"

"What?" she exclaimed.

"Something forbade me—till the kiss—yes, till the kiss came; and now nothing shall forbid it! We'll hope in spite of all. I must, however, speak of this love of ours to your brother. Dearest, you had better go indoors whilst I meet him at the station, and explain everything."

Cytherea's short-lived bliss was dead and gone. Oh, if she had known of this sequel would she have allowed him to break down the barrier of mere acquaintanceship—never, never!

"Will you not explain to me?" she faintly urged. Doubt—indefinite, carking doubt had taken possession of her.

"Not now. You alarm yourself unnecessarily," he said tenderly. "My only reason for keeping silence is that with my present knowledge I may tell you an untrue story. It may be that there is nothing to tell. I am to blame for haste in alluding to any such thing. Forgive me, sweet—forgive me." Her heart was ready to burst, and she could not answer him. He returned to his place and took to the oars.

They again made for the distant parade, now, with its line of houses, lying in a dark gray band against the light background of sky. The sun had set, and the stars began to peep out. They drew nearer their destination, Edward as he pulled tracing listlessly with his eyes the red stripes upon her scarf, which grew to appear as black ones in the increasing dusk of evening. She surveyed the long line of lamps on the seawall of the town, now looking small and yellow, and seeming to send long tap-roots of fire quivering deep down into the sea. Bye-and-by they reached the landing-steps. He took her hand as before, and found it as cold as the water about them. It was not relinquished until they reach her door. His assurance had not removed the constraint of her manner; he saw that she blamed him mutely and with her eyes like a captured sparrow. Left alone, he went and seated himself in a chair on the parade.

Neither could she go upstairs to her solitary room, feeling as she did in such a state of desperate heaviness. When Springrove was out of sight she turned back, and arrived at the corner just in time to see him sit down. Then she glided pensively along the pavement behind him, forgetting herself to marble like Melancholy herself. She heard, without heeding, the notes of pianos and singing voices from fashionable houses at her back, from the open windows of which the lamplight streamed to join that of the orange-hued full moon, newly risen over the shore on the left. Then Edward began to pace up and down, and Cytherea, fearing that he would notice her, hastened homeward, flinging him a last look as she passed out of sight. No promise from him to write; no request that she herself would do so—nothing but an indefinite expression of hope in the face of some fear unknown to her. Alas, Alas!

When Owen returned he found that she was not in the small sitting room, and creeping upstairs to her bedroom with a light, he discovered her there lying asleep upon the coverlet of the bed, still with her hat and jacket on. She had flung herself down on entering, and succumbed to the unwonted oppressiveness that ever attends full-blown love. The wet traces of tears were yet visible upon her long drooping lashes.

"Love is a sowre delight, and sugred griefe,
A living death, and ever dying life."

"Cytherea," he whispered, kissing her. She awoke with a start, and vented an exclamation before recovering her judgment. "He's gone," she said.

"He has told me all," said Grave soothingly. "He is going off early to-morrow morning. 'Twas a shame of him to win you away from me, and cruel of you to keep the growth of this attachment a secret."

"We could not help it," she said, and then jumping up—"Owen, has he told you all?"

"All of your love from beginning to end," he said simply.

Edward then had not told more—as he ought to have done; yet she could not convict him. But she would struggle against his fetters. She tingled to the very soles of her feet at the very possibility that he might be deluding her.

"Owen," she continued, with dignity, "what is he to me? Nothing. I must dismiss such weakness as this—believe me, I will. Something far more pressing must drive it away. I have been looking at my position steadily in the face, and I must get a living somehow. I mean to advertise once more."

"Advertising is of no use."

"This one will be." He looked surprised at the sanguine tone of her answer, till she took a piece of paper from the table and showed it to him. "See what I am going to do," see said sadly, almost bitterly. This was her third effort.

The Agricultural College Course.

A correspondent signing himself "Dreamer" writes us an interesting letter regarding the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, the work of which is becoming more and more favorably recognized by the agricultural public of the Province. The great demand upon our space precludes the publication of "Dreamer's" letter in full, but some of his suggestions are well worthy the attention of wide-awake men.

He proposes, in brief, that there shall be one term—from Oct. 1 till March 31. The students shall spend all this time in instruction and study, and not, as at present, the half of every day in labor. There shall be only three days' vacation at Christmas. No tuition fee shall be charged and there shall be no entrance examination. During this term a young man not from a Canadian farm shall not be found there. Idlers shall at once be passed out. There shall be one summer term—from April 1 to Oct. 1. Young men from towns and from abroad shall be admitted. The whole of the days they shall labor on the farm; and in the evening they shall listen to lectures on agriculture. No tuition fee shall be charged for residents, and no pay for student labor.

There always will be, as there always have been, students at the college who are tired of books, but who like the farm work. These hitherto have been a nuisance, but henceforth during the summer terms they will be benefited themselves and be a blessing to the institution, our correspondent foresees. When they have finished their course in September, and shown themselves approved workmen of whom the farm superintendent is not ashamed, will not Ontario farmers receive them on their farms for the winter? Besides this, Prof. Shaw would be no more hindered, but rather greatly helped in the work he has begun, in making the farm the pride of the Province.

What say the readers of the ADVERTISER to the scheme proposed above?

Hogs on Poor Land.

Recently we had a conversation with a "hill" farmer concerning hog growing. He said he could always make more out of hogs than any other stock. His land was of the quality that an increase in the number of acres would only add to his care without any increased profit—in fact make him land poor. We thought that if this sturdy and reliable farmer could make hogs pay on such a farm, they certainly should yield a profit when grown on land that gives good crops that could be cultivated with improved machinery. The hog is such a rustler that he adapts himself to nearly all kinds of farms and farming, giving a profit for food consumed.

How to Cure a Corn.

It is one of the easiest things in the world to cure a corn. Do not use acids or other caustic preparations, and don't cut a hole in your boot. It is simply to apply Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, and in three days the corn can be removed without pain. Sure, safe, painless. Take only Putnam's Corn Extractor.

—As Mr. Keays, of lot 20, con. 4, London, was coming to the city on Tuesday last with a load of pork he noticed a broken plank on the bridge in Spook Hollow. The horses refused to cross and became refractory, backed off the bridge, tipped the wagon over the steep embankment and broke Mr. Keays' thigh and otherwise mutilated him. The democrat wagon was smashed. Mr. Keays is father of Mr. J. E. Keays, of Saunders' drug store.

—On Monday and Tuesday next the attractions at the Grand Opera House will be "Two Old Chums," of which the Evansville Courier says: "'Two Old Chums' is a charming musical comedy, and one of the kind that will always be popular. It is interspersed with superior specialties, adding additional interest to an already meritorious performance, and is replete with scenes of the most comical nature imaginable, as is evinced by the continuous roars of laughter."

—The announcement of the approaching appearance here of Miss Clara Louise Kellogg, the great operatic prima donna, has created quite a ripple of excitement. Clara Louise Kellogg is not only celebrated on account of her great artistic achievement, but she is known to be a great favorite in the best society of New York, Paris, London and other European capitals. She will appear in the Grand Opera House Wednesday next. The programme will conclude with the fourth act in full of Il Travatore, with stage settings and scenic effects complete.

—Robert Armitage was arraigned before the Magistrate again this morning, charged with the larceny of a watch, value $30, the property of Henry Duley, engineer at Patterson & Joly's works. The complainant stated he had left the watch in his coat pocket in the engine room, and having gone out for a few minutes found the article missing. He had seen Armitage near the blacksmith shop at the time, but the latter was missing when he came back. Wm. Dwyer, another employe, said he had seen the prisoner go into the engine-room. There was no evidence to show that Armitage had taken the watch, which has not yet been recovered. He was accordingly discharged.

—The celebrated Emma Juch Company is a double and in many departments a triple organization. They have two first tenors, three leading sopranos, two first basso profundos, and in fact two leading artists in every line, making disappointment to the audiences almost an impossibility, as should sudden illness or any other unforeseen incident or accident render the appearance of any artist impossible, there is another lady or gentleman ready to take the place thus left vacant at a moment's notice. This enables the management to faithfully carry out all promises made to the public and produce all the operas announced on the date announced. On Friday next Londoners should crowd the Opera House to see and hear this great company.

A Handful of Chestnuts.

Sauntering along Dundas street last evening, a man named Henry Bullen, slipped his hand into a basket containing chestnuts in front of French's fruit store and helped himself. Mrs. French noticed the action and P. C. Nickel also saw the proceedings and stopped the young man. A crowd soon gathered and Nickel tried to make an amicable settlement and get Bullen to go about his business. He did not feel like it, however. "Who do you think I am? I pay for the clothes that are on your back; let me go." But the constable intimated that he did not care who he was. Bullen also used some language towards Mrs. French of an improper character and so the policeman finally walked him off to the Police Station and placed him behind the bars, being followed along the street by 100 or 200 men and boys who jeered and laughed as if the arrest was specially prepared for their amusement. At this morning's Police Court a charge of drunkenness was registered against Bullen, and the case was enlarged until to-morrow.

AT THE FAIR.

The great attraction to the left on entering the main building was the display of W. S. Bryers Barkwell, consisting of those fragrant and lasting perfumes, Fedora and Winona Bouquet, the great sensations; here hundreds of ladies may be seen to throng around that center with their handkerchiefs extended to the spray of the atomizer till they are almost saturated, then they pass on sweetly smiling at being the happy possessors of those popular odors for which Mr. Barkwell received first prize at the Provincial Exhibition and so completely filled the Crystal Palace to the great admiration of all. Surrounding these are Toilet Articles and pharmaceutical preparations all of which are most harmoniously arranged in every particular and contained in an inclosed case, on either side of which is to be seen elegant show bottles, towering to a great height and containing liquids of various bright and beautiful colors, but we would not do Mr. Barkwell and especially our readers justice if we failed to mention, Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure and Barkwell's Bronchial Balsam, they are well known and reliable articles, which he sends to all parts of the Province. A new one has been added—the now famous Diamond Tea—which promises, if possible, even greater success, and is really the greatest blood remedy ever offered to humanity.
