

FIVE NURSES WERE DISMISSED MISTOOK WINDOW FOR DOOR

Sensation at Victoria Hospital Saturday Night—
Young Ladies Broke a Rule of Discipline—
Chivalry Aroused.

Window—An opening in the wall of a building, for the admission of light and air, usually closed by casements or sashes containing some transparent material, as glass, and capable of being opened and shut at pleasure.

Door—An opening in the wall of a house or an apartment, by which to go in and out; an entrance way.

The above are the definitions of window and door, as given in Webster's Dictionary.

And, apparently, Chairman Sreaton, of the hospital trust board, Superintendent Heard and Lady Superintendent Miss Stanley, of Victoria Hospital, are determined to stand by the definitions and run the hospital according to Webster.

At all events three young ladies who were nurses at the hospital were peremptorily discharged on Saturday night, when they were caught in the act of effecting an entrance to the Nurses' Home by way of a window.

The young ladies, and two more, it is understood, who have also been given their walking-papers, are heart-broken today, and are doing all in their power to have the matter straightened out satisfactorily.

A POINT OF DISCIPLINE.

The whole affair seems to hinge on a point of discipline. The rules of the home are that the nurses must be in by 10 o'clock, and that lights must be out by that time.

Saturday night two of the young ladies ran in very hard luck.

They had been visiting in a town west of London and intended returning about 6 o'clock. Unfortunately for their intentions, they missed the train, and they did not reach the city until some time after the closing hour at the Nurses' Home.

Upon their arrival at the home they found the doors locked, and the place in darkness.

The words of the "Mikado" number, "Here's a Pretty How-Do-You-Do," flashed across their minds, and for a moment they were non-plussed. They were alone in a strange city, with their apartments locked.

At last a happy thought struck on of them. How about a window?

The idea looked good, and the girls at once decided to take the chance.

OH, WHAT A SURPRISE!

A small ladder was secured, and in a jiffy the Nightingales were clambering up to the window.

It is said they were allowed to enter without trouble, but they were suddenly astounded to find the lights turned on and to see Miss Stanley, in all the pomp of irate officialdom, standing before them.

Without being given a chance to explain, the girls allege, they were told that their services would no longer be required, and, sobbing bitterly, they were sent away. It is said they were not even allowed to remain in the hospital Saturday night, but that they were compelled to seek shelter in the home of friends.

Five nurses, it is understood, were caught the same night, a couple of them being, it is alleged, only five minutes late, and they were allowed to go.

CHIVALRY AROUSED.

All the chivalry associated with the practice of medicine has been aroused, and half a dozen doctors are taking a very active interest in the case.

It is understood that Dr. Drake, Dr. John D. Wilson, Dr. Niven, Dr. Moore and others have taken the matter up, and further that the intervention of Hon. Adam Beck, M. P., has been sought.

Thus far Chairman Sreaton, of the trust, and the officials at the hospital have stood firm, and have refused to listen to any talk of reinstatement.

A meeting of the trust has been called for Wednesday, when it is understood the matter will be discussed.

The affair has created quite a sensation, as all the young ladies come of excellent families and object strongly to being dismissed, from the fact that the cause may be misunderstood.

Another Consumption Patient and No Hospital Here to Care For Her

Sad Case of a Maitland Street
Lady Reported to Mayor
by Ald. Booth.

Ald. Booth this morning brought to the attention of Mayor Judd the pitiable case of a woman named Mrs. Mills, who resides at 180 Maitland street, and who is suffering from consumption.

The woman has a husband and two children—a girl of 16 and a boy of 12. Mr. Mills has been out of work for some time, and the neighbors have been compelled to look out for the patient.

Now they have rebelled, and have told the city that it is up to it to do something.

Ald. Booth admitted that the city must be very careful about assuming the care of all the sick people in London, but he said it had been suggested to him that the council might arrange to have one of the Victorian Order of Nurses attend the lady, who it appears is in the last stages of the disease.

The question was asked why it is that the city will take care of a smallpox patient or a diphtheria patient, but will have nothing to do with a consumptive? No one appeared able to answer the question, other than to say that the city has no tuberculosis hospital.

Chairman Niven, of the board of health, dropped in the mayor's office at the time of the discussion, and the advisability of taking care of the lady was left in his hands, as well as in the hands of Relief Inspector McCullum.

Ald. Booth stated that the neighbors informed him that they are afraid of carrying the disease home to their families, and, of course, this is a point with which it is necessary for the board of health to deal.

Howard, Christ's Church, London, occupied the pulpit in Trinity Church; Rev. J. B. Freeman, London, the Methodist Church; Rev. J. B. Gerrie, Stratford, Congregational Church, and Rev. Mr. Sonee, Indianapolis, the Presbyterian. Special music was rendered by the choir.

Small Fire Here.

The firemen had a run today to the Pere Marquette track between Hill and Maitland streets, where the grass had caught fire. A small portion of the fence was burned, but no serious damage resulted.

G.T.R. Wants Water Let Out of Rivers Local Boatmen Oppose the Move

Warm Time Over the Removing of the Old Piers at the Cove Bridge.

A deputation of local boatmen waited on Mayor Judd today and protested against the granting of the request of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, that the flashboards be completely removed from the dam for the next few days, and that the water be allowed to escape in the race, so that the railway company may be enabled to remove the old piers from under the Cove bridge at once.

The boatmen informed the mayor that if the request was granted there would be no water left in the river east of the dam, and that boats now anchored in the river would be overturned, as many of them have been tops.

It was further explained that in the wishes of the G. T. R. were met, the city would have to do all its pumping at Sprinkbank by steam, and that this would mean a considerable sum daily for coal.

In conclusion, the boatmen declared that the company can remove the piers without difficulty, if it desires, by putting in cribs, but it seeks to avoid this expense by getting the city to allow the water to run out of the river.

The mayor explained that the matter will have to come before the water commissioners, they being the only people who have authority to meddle with the dam.

Subsequently Ald. Booth, chairman of the railway committee, looked up the agreement with the Grand Trunk on the 29th of last September, by which the company was allowed to elevate its tracks from the Wharncliffe road to Ridout street, and he found that under one of the clauses the company is compelled to remove the piers to the bed of the river within six months after the signing of the contract. And, of course, it is pretty nearly a year now since the agree-

CABLE OPERATORS TO BE CALLED OUT

Sensational Announcement by Union President—Havana
Operators Quit First.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Within a few hours the United States and Canada will be effectually cut off from cable communication with the outside world, according to an announcement of President Small, of the Telegraphers' Union, today. Twelve cable operators in Havana, Cuba, left their instruments today in obedience to the general order of President Small, since which time there has been no telegraphic communication between the island and the United States. It was the first step toward calling out every union cable operator in this country and Canada.

The plans for this latest sensational feature of the strike are still indefinite, but President Small said that plans would be made by which the transmission of Governmental messages would be allowed. Pending the drawing up of some kind of working agreement with the Government, the tie-up will include all messages from Washington as well as commercial business.

Negotiations are now under way between the Telegraphers' Union and the brokers of Chicago and New York City to establish a ticker service independent of the Western Union or Postal Companies, and to form a permanent company to handle such business. Wires will be leased or strung, and the cost is estimated at from $25,000 to $30,000. It is said that the necessary capital has been promised the promoters.

FIREBUGS BUSY AT SEAFORTH TOWN

Salt Derrick and Clothing Factory
Destroyed—Tried to Burn Warehouses.

Seaforth, Ont., Aug. 18.—The very successful Scottish celebration held here on Friday was followed by two serious fires. About 11:30 o'clock it was found that the pumping derrick of Coleman's salt works was on fire. The firemen were promptly on hand and kept the fire from spreading to the surrounding buildings notwithstanding the fact that there was a brisk wind blowing at the time.

Scarcely was the blaze extinguished when the alarm was sounded again. This time the fire was in the clothing factory of the W. E. Southgate Company. Here the flames spread so rapidly that nothing could be saved, and the building, with its machinery and stock, were completely consumed. At one time it was feared that the brick woolen mill on the opposite side of the street, the property of the John Dick Company, of Toronto, would also be destroyed. (Continued on Page Eight.)

CHARGED WITH HORSE-STEALING

County Authorities Make a Quick Capture of Alleged Thief.

Constable J. Clarke, of Dutton, arrested H. R. Hardy, alias Richards, at that place, Saturday, on a charge of horse-stealing, referred by O. J. Keyser, of Adelaide Township.

Mr. Keyser missed his horse, which is valued at about $175, last Wednesday, and at once notified High Constable Hughes, who sent descriptions of the horse all over the country.

Hardy, who belongs in Queen's County, Nova Scotia, is alleged to have also stolen a valuable horse from a farmer residing near Clinton, on the town line, and a cart and harness from a Clinton hotelkeeper. All of the thefts took place within three days.

The accused man has for several weeks been taking orders for cleaning feathers.

After stealing Mr. Keyser's horse, it is alleged, Hardy sold it to Mr. James McCartney, of this city, for $99. High Constable Hughes, however, recovered the check before it was cashed, and Mr. McCartney is nothing out as a result.

As is customary, the county will pay a small reward for the capture, and the money will be divided between the high constable and Constable Clarke. Mr. Hughes stated this morning that Clarke should be accorded great credit for his clever work in accomplishing Hardy's arrest.

Hardy will be given a hearing some time this week.

HURRY-UP WAGON BUMPS STREET CAR

About 8 o'clock on Saturday evening the police patrol wagon collided with a street car at the corner of Dundas and Maitland streets, and narrowly escaped being demolished.

The wagon had gone out Queen's avenue, and after turning on to Maitland street was proceeding across Dundas, where a trolley, which was advancing rapidly from the east, passed so close in front of the horses that before they could be stopped the tongue of the wagon struck the side of the car.

Fortunately there was no more serious damage done than the breaking of the tongue of the vehicle. The horses and their driver escaped serious injury.

The driver claims that he was unable to see the advancing car on account of the Dundas Center Church building obstructing the view, and states that the street car was running at a very rapid rate.

MOORS AMBUSH FRENCH TROOPS

Body of Arab Horsemen Narrowly Escape Annihilation at Casablanca.

Casablanca, Morocco, Aug. 18. (Sunday).—A large force of Moors attacked the French camp early this morning, but were driven off after a sharp conflict. The tribesmen advanced to within 300 yards of the city, when Gen. Druze sent against them under the guns of the warships a detachment of 50 Algerian Spahis (Arab horsemen in the French service). The Moors permitted this small body of cavalry to advance for half a mile unmolested, when they suddenly ambushed them, and in a wild charge got right after them. The head of a Spahi was cut off at one sweep of a big Moorish sword. The French officer in command of the Spahis and several of his men were wounded, but the officer rallied his men and beat off the enemy.

COMMITTED TO ASYLUM

Young Farmer Threatened Relatives
and Refuses to Eat.

William Olett, the young Mount Brydges farmer, who was arrested last Friday on a charge of insanity, was this morning committed to the London Asylum by Squire Chittick.

The unfortunate young man until recently has only been mildly insane, but last week he threatened to kill his sisters and his other relatives. Since his arrest Olett has eaten nothing except what was forced upon him, and has frequently tried to do away with himself.

A RUNAWAY HORSE RAMS A WATER CART

An exciting runaway occurred on the Market Lane this morning, when a horse owned by Dr. Mahen, of Hill street, took flight while standing in the alleyway of the Columbia Hotel, on King street, and bolted through the market at terrific speed.

At the corner of the Market Square and Market Lane at the time was a city watering cart, and into that the frightened animal ran full tilt. The force of the collision threw the horse on its side, but there was no serious damage done.

The watering cart was slightly damaged.

OLD AND HOMELESS

Unknown Sick Man Dies in Hospital
at Woodstock.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Woodstock, Aug. 19.—An unknown man died in the hospital here last night, and an inquest will be held to establish his identity and the cause of death.

The man on Friday night went to the house of Walter Smith, on the 14th line of East Zorra, and said he was ill. He was given a bed in the barn. The next morning he was worse, and Dr. Campbell, of Tavistock, was called. He had the man sent to the hospital here. He was unconscious when he arrived here, and died without regaining consciousness. There was absolutely nothing in his pockets. The man was about 70 years old and very thin. He was walking when he called at Mr. Smith's place, but was too ill to give any information about himself.

Fort William Goes Through 1,000 Feet of Rock for Spring Water Supply

Mayor Judd Returns From Convention—A Statement Re Electrical Vote.

Mayor Judd returned to London at noon today from Port Arthur, where he attended the convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities. His worship says he heard there very much which will assist him in his duties as mayor, some very interesting addresses being made.

His worship denies that he voted against the municipalities when the motion was brought in by the Montreal delegates to ask the Dominion Government to regulate the rates to be charged by companies supplying light and power to municipalities.

To The Advertiser, he maintained that he had only opposed the taking of the entire matter of the making of contracts out of the hands of the municipalities, and the putting of such power in the hands of the Dominion Government.

"I was in favor of allowing the Government to fix the maximum rates to be charged by any company," Mr. Judd said, "but I wanted the municipality to be left free to make a contract for a lower figure if it could. In brief, I wanted London to be able to dick with a company for a less rate than the figure quoted by the Government, if the city thought it could get it."

As to Filtration.

When a certain paper was being read, Mayor Judd asked an ex-mayor of Fort William why it was that that place had gone eight miles to Loch Lomond for water, instead of using river water at its doors.

The mayor replied that the town had been using water from the river, and that an epidemic of typhoid fever had broken out, making a change of supply necessary.

The water from the lake or river had not been filtered, and the question of filtration was taken up and considered at length. The result was that the people decided to have nothing to do with filtration, and instead went to Loch Lomond, a body of spring water, eight miles away for a supply. The fact that it was necessary to tunnel through 1,000 feet of rock did not deter the people from going after spring water.

Mayor Judd refused to discuss the attacks the Free Press are making on him, but he says he is still out for spring water, and will do his best to block any attempt to saddle the city with a filtration plant.

Cut Glass Factory Mooted for London

It was stated today that a move is on foot to establish a glass factory in London, and that the man behind the guns is Mr. William Gray, the well-known traveler, of King street.

The firm for which Mr. Gray travels has, it is said, come to the conclusion that much of the fancy glassware imported into Canada could be made right here, and Mr. Gray is credited with the intention of having the factory located in London.

According to the story, only the very finest cut glass would be manufactured and the factory would give employment to about one hundred men.

Mr. Gray sails for England this week to complete the deal, according to the story.

All the workmen who would be employed would have to be imported, as it is understood there are no cut glass workers in this country at present.

Komoka Water Bylaw Goes To People

The water commissioners have been called to meet Tuesday afternoon in the city hall.

It is understood that a motion will be introduced to submit the Komoka bylaw to the people, and that the city council will be asked at its next meeting to make the necessary arrangements for the taking of the vote.

Of course, it is not likely that the whole matter will be settled tomorrow, but as the mayor and the two commissioners are spring water men, and are apparently in favor of Komoka, the commissioners feel that they will have no difficulty in having the scheme advanced so as to send it to the council at its next meeting.

How the Teachers Were Sacrificed

The following table, prepared by Principal Radcliffe, appears in the last annual report of the Board of Education, and shows in what order the teachers of the Collegiate Institute stood on the salary list:

	Experience.	Salary.
S. J. Radcliffe	20½ years.	$2,200
R. A. Little	22½ years.	$1,600
W. C. Ferguson	17½ years.	1,500
W. M. Govenlock	14½ years.	1,400
A. McVicar	14 years.	1,400
Fred A. Stuart	12 years.	1,400
F. W. C. McCutcheon	9½ years.	1,325

By the action of the board, five of the senior members of the staff have been sacrificed. Mr. R. A. Little was entitled to the principalship and Mr. W. C. Ferguson to the vice-principalship. Under this arrangement Mr. W. M. Govenlock would have been head of the assembly room, which carries an increase of $100 per year. Mr. Frank P. Riddell would have become classical master in succession to Mr. R. A. Little, at an increase of $200 per year, and Mr. W. H. T. Mooney would have taken Mr. Riddell's place as assistant classical master, at a substantial increase. Now all these remain in their present positions, while Mr. McCutcheon is boosted over their heads.

CURIOUS CROWD WAS DISAPPOINTED

Gathered at Police Court Hoping to Hear Something of Spicy Nature.

At court time this morning a large crowd of curious persons gathered in the hope of hearing several cases which promised to involve the airing of much family linen. They were disappointed. Before court time most of the cases had been amicably settled, and the remainder left over until some future date.

William Mahon, proprietor of the Grand Central Hotel, was arraigned on two charges of breach of the liquor license act, but his case was adjourned until the 26th inst.

Two bartenders, Robert Ralston and Thomas Selby, employed by Mr. Mahon, also appeared on a charge of breach of the liquor license act. They were both alleged to have been tending bar without licenses. The charge against Ralston was dropped, it being found that he held the necessary document, but Selby was to explain his case to the court on the 26th inst.

Robert Smith, a drunk and disorderly, was fined $5 or ten days. Smith had been using profane language on the street while intoxicated. Lou Greer appeared on a charge of using abusive language toward Thomas Wainwright, but the case was settled.

Arthur Sadler paid over several dollars to Mr. J. Cooper, whom he had assaulted, and in that way saved himself from punishment. Cooper agreed to drop the case if Sadler paid the expenses occasioned by the assault.

A charge of non-payment of wages which had been preferred against Mr. Arthur Brenner, was dropped. Several other cases of minor importance were dropped.

JAPS COMING IN BY THOUSANDS

Vancouver Asks the Government to Check Oriental Immigration.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—Oriental immigration to Canada is increasing, though not so fast as some dispatches have intimated. During July last about 700 Japanese landed on the Pacific to reside permanently in Canada. In the same month there were a number of Chinese arrivals. A hundred and thirty-three of them became Canadian residents and contributed $65,500 to the treasury, or $500 each. The Pacific Coast fears further increases. Last week Mr. Robert Macpherson, M. P. for Vancouver, wired a request to the Prime Minister to have steps taken to check arrivals of Japanese. He said that since January 7,000 Japanese had come to Canada, and the steamship Indiana was on the way from Honolulu with many more of them.

WESTERN HOPES ARE HIGH.

The first call for the annual army
of harvesters is coming from the west,
and the eyes of the country are turning in that direction. The western crop has become such a determining factor in the prosperity of the country that there is always a period of intense anxiety when the race between the harvest and the frost begins.Western journals are sounding a cheerful note, and reproving eastern pessimists. The Edmonton Bulletin complains that some Ontario newspapers are representing the prairie crop as next thing to a failure, and suggests that they are trying to divert attention from unfavorable conditions nearer home. Westerners may be assured that the people of Ontario rejoice to hear favorable news from the western provinces, where Ontario money is liberally invested, and where Ontario industries find a great and growing market. There is no jealousy of western prosperity in this section of the country.The Bulletin admits that the crop in Western Canada is late, and will not show the phenomenal increases of recent years, but the late spring was common to the whole country. "More than this," says the Bulletin, "the growth of the western crop since spring really opened, has been such as Ontario people know nothing about,
and it is a conservative statement that our grain has 'caught up' more of the early delay already than the Ontario people know nothing about,
entire summer. Though delayed six weeks at most by the backward
weather of spring, grain in Central Alberta is not now more than two or three weeks behind the average. The rains of June and July provided abundance of moisture for rapid growth, while the hot dry weather of part of July provided conditions for maturing which could not be improved upon. In consequence our crops show but little evidence of their early delay and promise a uniform yield of high average."The Bulletin adds that while in Manitoba some areas formerly under grain are devoted to other purposes,
this is more than counterbalanced by the newly-broken ground in Alberta and Saskatchewan now maturing its first crop of grain. The crop area of the west will be greatly in excess of last year.The Saskatchewan Phoenix says the wheat harvest will not start until the last week in August or the first week
in September, but thinks the chances of safety are as good in the early days of September as a week or ten days sooner. "During the past three years," it says, "there has been no
frost to work any widespread hurt
till October, and that too after comparatively early spring seasons. It is not altogether unreasonable to anticipate that after the late prolonged winter the summer season may be slightly extended."Making allowance for the incalculable optimism of westerners there is every reason to think there will be no such thing as a crop disaster this year.

A CITY MADE TO ORDER.

Gary is the name of a city which has been planned to order, and is being rapidly built on the southeastern shore of Lake Michigan, in the State of Indiana, within half an hour's ride by rail from Chicago. Where a little over a year ago there was a waste of land and hillocks is rapidly rising a modern city. It is the project of the United States Steel Corporation, which originally appropriated towards it the sum of $75,000,000, and to which an additional sum of $45,000,000 has recently been given.The object of the promoters is to make the city of Gary the steel capital of the world. Three thousand men are engaged in the work of city building, and the number is being constantly added to. According to the plans as at present the city will accommodate a population of 300,000.The site embraces 6,000 acres, with over six miles of a lake frontage, and with possibilities as to extension inland limited only by the boundaries of the prairie. The preliminary work has advanced with remarkable activity. The sandhills and hillocks have been leveled, and the sand has been utilized to fill up the shallow beach,
the swamps of the Grand Calumet River, which at this point empties its sluggish waters into the lake, and other low-lying lands. By this means and by dredging the site, the future
industrial city has been given an elevation of 22 feet above Lake Michigan's level. A harbor has been formedby dredging deep enough to admit the heaviest freighters bringing iron ore to the contemplated iron and steel mills from the Lake Superior region.The mills and the homes of those who will operate them have, of course,
first claim on the attention of the builders, the convenience, health and comfort of the future inhabitants receiving every consideration. At the same time architectural effect and beauty have not been lost sight of.
Parks, playgrounds, promenades, theaters and all the pleasures and conveniences common to modern city life are provided for. The river has been made a uniform width of 250 feet,
with steel bridges for the accommodation of the four trunk lines of railway centering there to distribute the mills' products. The tearing up of streets for gas, water and electric mains will be unknown in Gary, for,
with the experience of other cities in mind, care is being taken to lay all mains and pipes in the alleyways at a uniform level. In short, everything has been planned to make Gary a model, up-to-date city. Already it has its Broadway, running a distance of some three miles, with cement sidewalks and two miles of business blocks on either side. The experiment is a notable one, and so bold that it deserves to be successful.

PROBLEM OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

The laboring classes in Great Britain have now a larger representation in the House of Commons than ever before, and with one of themselves,
Mr. John Burns, in the ministry, they evidently believe that the present is an opportune time to seek legislation in their own interests. The problem of the unemployed is receiving special attention. A bill recently introduced by one of the labor members, Mr.
Ramsay MacDonald, deals with this question on new lines. The ground is taken that Great Britain is destined to have always an unemployed class.
It cannot be disputed that change of method by the introduction of machinery is one of the chief causes of displacing many men trained in one line of work. Some of these succeed in turning their hands to other work,
but others, lacking the adaptability,
are unable to do so, though, doubtless,
no less willing. Consequently there sooner or later comes a time when these latter become a public burden.
What makes their position less bearable is the old country prejudice against taking a man from the workhouse, so that the taint of pauperism increases the difficulty of obtaining employment of any kind. Moreover, the recently passed workmen's compensation act is expected to materially add to the ranks of the unemployed, as it is found that employers are now more averse than ever to taking on men beyond a certain age.In his bill Mr. MacDonald proposes the establishment of a central advisory committee to make suggestions to and co-ordinate the work of local committees. The latter would register the unemployed, and draw up schemes
by which work may be provided, such schemes to include afforestation and the reclamation of lands and foreshores. The projects would be undertaken by the central committee. It is provided that the money necessary to carry out the work be taken from the rates, and that the imperial government grant aid in cases of emergency.Unfortunately there is a class of men who are idle through sheer dislike of work. The bill provides that such men be taken before magistrates and committed to the care of the unemployed authority for six months,
during which time they would be compelled, if necessary, to do a reasonable amount of work. It is further stipulated that any relief given under the act does not disqualify for the parliamentary or local franchise. By a system of classification of applicants for employment it will be possible to set them to work, which is most suitable, so that in all cases of physical and industrial fitness special regard shall be given to the ultimate improvement of applicants. Provision is made for the emigration of suitable and deserving cases, care to be taken that only those who are fully qualified for colonial life are assisted in making a fresh start away from home.If the measure passes into law, it will be interesting to watch the experiment—for such its promoters, no doubt, intend it—in dealing with one of Britain's gravest social problems.

KNOWN THEIR NUMBER.

[Exchange.]
"You must come and see us, my dear,"
said a lady to a little girl of her acquaintance. "Do you know our number?"
"Oh, yes," responded the innocent child.
"Papa says you always live at sixes and sevens."

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

[Oxford (Iowa) Mirror.]

Having tired of my business, my meat market and slaughter house are for sale.
People have used me rough, and I want to leave Oxford Junction; therefore business is for sale. Also please call and settle for the meat you have already eaten and haven't paid for. Come and pay your accounts, and if you want to buy the business, come at once. August Teich.

TOO RAPID A PACE.

[Winnipeg Telegram.]

While expansion along productive lines
is the main cause of financial stringency in Canada, it is well to reflect that if theCanadian people are, on the strength of their resources, exhibiting habits of extravagant expenditure, they are actually diminishing their power of dealing with
and developing these resources.

THE SCHOOL BOARD OUTRAGE.

[Galt Reformer.]
There is a large-sized row going on in London over the appointment made to the principals of the Collegiate Institute by the board of education. The old game of politics "butting" into educational affairs
seems to be at the bottom of the trouble.

THE BATTLE OF LIFE.

[Edmund Vance Cook.]

Did you tackle the trouble that came your way?
With a resolute heart and cheerful
Or hide your face from the light of day.
With a craven soul and fearful?
Oh, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce.
Or a trouble is what you make it;
And isn't the fact that you're hurt that
counts?
But only how did you take it.You are beaten to earth? Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face;
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there—that's a disgrace!
The harder you're thrown, why the higher
you bounce;
Be proud of your blackened eye;
It isn't the fact that you're licked that
counts.
It's how did you fight, and why?And though you be done to the death,
What then?
If you battled the best you could,
If you played your part in the world of men,
Why, the critic will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl or comes with
a pounce;
And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that
counts,
But only, how did you die?

THAT LONDON PEANUT.

[Ottawa Journal.]

On the top of the declaration by a Scientist of note that there is more nutriment in ten cents worth of peanuts than there is in a porterhouse steak, comes the announcement that a London man has nearly died as a result of eating one pe-nut. We hear too much nowadays. When you get both sides of all stories your convictions begin to get flabby.

AND THE RAIN.

[Baltimore American.]

"Who were with you on the picnic?"
"The usual contingent. Our sister and our cousins and the ants."

DEFENSE OF THE BACHELOR.

[Madame.]

The modern bachelor is by no means so black as he is painted. He is simply one of those exceptional men who have been born without the genius for matrimony.
To marry at all, a man requires inspiration; to marry wisely, inspiration; and to marry foolishly, desperation. None of these qualities have been vouchsafed to the singular being who deliberately and of malice prepense leads the single life.

EVILS OF PROCRUSTASTION.

[Strand Magazine.]

An Irishman who was traveling in England for a drygoods firm, says Harry Furniss, was once showing a line of sample dress goods to a merchant who was weaving suit in making up his mind as to what he would order. He handed them over, and the merchant traveler was at his patience end. Finally the merchant asked if the goods shown were fashionable.
"They were when I first made a dress maker and he rebuffed them, 'show them to me,' replied the traveler, 'but I'll be hanged if I can tell you now.'"
It is said that the buyer was so pleased with the answer that he pardoned the rudeness of it and became a steady customer.

COST OF AN ENGLISH GIRL.

[London Mail.]

The discussion of the cost of bringing up children continues to go on in a lively manner. The most conspicuous contribution today is the experience of a woman whose eldest daughter was presented at court this year. Her statement deals with a girl reared in such a home as that of St. Louis, and Oxford boy described Saturday, and represents that the daughter cost her parents in twenty years a grand total of $7,400, an average of $370
yearly.
The details show she cost $220 yearly for the first eight years, $233 for the next six years, while in her 16th, 17th and 18th years her annual cost was $470. The mother adds that her 19th and part of her 20th year were spent in Paris and Braken at a cost of about $750. The statement continues:
"I then took a house in London for the season, in order that she might be brought out and presented at court, an essential part of her education. I paid a dressmaker and milliner on her season account $580; a jeweler, $240; a shoemaker, $75; a coiffeur, $46; and in entertaining on her account, probably $500."

BASEBALL.

LABATT VS. TIGERS.

A very interesting game of ball was played Saturday afternoon on Chicago's Green between the Labatt baseball team and the South End Tigers, resulting in a victory for the South End boys by a score of 7 to 5. The feature of the game was McGuire's pitching.
He struck out 12 men. The lineups:
Labatts—W. Laundry, catcher; W.
McGuire, pitcher; E. Brown, first base; W. Monahan, second base; A.
Weston, third base; G. Loughrey, shortstop; A. Brown, left field; W.
Hayes, center field; G. Monahan, right field.
Tigers—Pugsley, catcher; Boyle, pitcher; Pritchard, first base; W. Reid,
second base; A. Going, third base; M.
Gowers, shortstop; T. Gardner, left field; Moxley, center field; W. Smith, right field.TIGERS AT LAST
STRIKE OLD GAIT

Donovan doubled and Charlie made third. Bobby Lowe celebrated his return to the game with a double and both O'Leary and Bill scored. Lowe was caught trying to make third. With two down they started all over again.
Schofer, Crawford, Cobb and Ros-
mand singled and three runs were in.
Rossie's hit was a pop back of second, and while Williams and Hoffman argued as to who should have taken it, Cobb scored from first.
Dowens forced Rossman at second
and the fun was over.
Donovan was strong and steady in the ninth, and the Yankees' attempts to get on were futile.
The Tigers were wild with joy in the clubhouse after the game. They felt that their slump was over, and had all their old confidence back with them again.
It's Boston today.The summary:

our customers came too late asking for the bargains their neighbors had come for instance, fifty pairs of lace curtains will not go round one hundred people. But it's a fact, if you miss one snap, there's no doubt you'll get another. All the news cannot be told. No details today of the sale of Ladies' Waists at half price;

no special mention of the sale of Boys' Blouses at half price; no description of the

My Lady Cinderella

By Mrs. G. N. Williamson

Author of "My Friend the Chauffeur," "Lady Betty Across the Water," Etc., Etc.

"But he'd met you twice after I'd talked with you in the park, not dreaming that you were the girl I had chosen for my experiment. He had ever seen, and begged that, if it were not too late, I would no longer try to find a protegee to chaperon on his behalf. If you could be got to fill the place it would be perfect from his point of view. But already he was half in love, and his conscience had begun to wake."

"He saw that, though in carrying out his plan a girl would have advantages given her which otherwise she could never enjoy, still she might have reason to complain if she learned the truth, discovered that she had been used as a sort of pawn in a game of chess. He felt it might be an injustice; but then you came up with Captain Weyland and interrupted us. I had guessed already from his description, that the paragon of beauty he had seen was none other than Constance Brand."

"The day before, I prevented his meeting you at my house, for I wanted him first to behold my protegee in her pretty new clothes, charmingly framed, presented against a becoming background. But Fate had circumvented me, and I scented a romance. You can imagine what concealed delight I felt in introducing him to the 'experiment' in the shape of the girl he had found and lost again."

"I had almost given up finding the right sort of person when I chanced to see you in the park that afternoon, and overheard your wish for a different lot in life. Then a voice seemed to say to me, 'There's the very one you have been looking for.' And you must remember, Constance, that I asked if you would be ready to give up your old, dull existence for even a few weeks of pleasure and admiration?"

"I remember everything—everything," I said.

"You took your chances. And I honestly thought them very good. I'm a poor woman, and I should not have been able to provide for you; but I saw that you were beautiful, and might be made far more beautiful. I hardly dared to hope you would succeed in snaring so splendid and wary a bird as George Seaforth, but it was probable you would have opportunities of marrying well. Now, as it has turned out, you have done better than any other debutante for years. Don't, for the sake of pique, throw away your happiness."

"I could not answer. I had dropped into a chair, at last, and sat with my face buried in my hands."

"Tell me, dear, that you are going to be a good, sensible girl," she went on coaxingly.

What should I say to her? My mind was fixed up. There was only one thing for me to do, and I meant to do it. If I killed me, but I did not want to make a scene, which would only inflame the wound that had been dealt by turning the dagger in the quivering flesh.

I felt so weak, so utterly spent in body, that I dreaded lest my spirit also should be robbed of strength if again it were flooded with the torrent of her pleading.

"Let me think—I beg that you will let me think," I implored.

I did not look up, and my fingers still covered my wet eyes, but I heard a faint, quick sigh of relief.

"Of course you shall think, child, as much as ever you like," Lady Sophie soothingly assured me. "It is only sudden decisions that I dread. Think—think how good George really is, how handsome, how dearly he loves you, how his heart would be broken if you would not forgive him. When you have thought of all those things, and said to yourself 'Perhaps if I'm harsh with him now I shall lose him irrevocably, because in sheer misery and angry pique he may ask some other less scrupulous girl to marry him,' you will be ready to possess your soul in patience, and quietly wait for him to propose to you. When he has safely done that, you can fly out at him and accuse him of what you like. He will know then how to defend himself and win your pardon. I defy the hardest woman not to forgive George Seaforth, with his arms around her, those honest eyes of his looking into hers. Now dear, I'll bathe your head with eau de Cologne as you did mine when I was ill; and presently you'll be ready to tell me that you've thought it all satisfactorily out, that you are yourself again."

"Thank you, Lady Sophie," I whispered brokenly. "But—but I want to be alone. You are kind—you mean to be kind—only it is better for me to be alone. Please, please! I don't know what will become of me if I can't be quite by myself for a while."

My voice rose stormily. I could not hold it in control; and Lady Sophie rose from her knees by my side with rustling haste.

"Very well. You know what is best for yourself, I suppose," she agreed. "I should have liked to stay with you, but, of course, if you don't want me now, I shall come again by and by."

"Not too soon, please! I must have a little time," I pleaded. "If—if anyone asks for me, I have a headache."

"Trust me for that, my poor one; I know how to manage these affairs. Inquiries will come, without doubt, from a certain person by whose desire I really made an excuse to run up and find you. I said I would look for a book I'd brought to Southwood with me, a book we'd luckily been talking about downstairs. They will think I have been a long time gone, but what they think doesn't matter."

"No; what they think doesn't matter," I repeated drearily.

"I'll go now, then, since you send me away. Won't you give me some little message for poor George?"

Poor George! What of poor Constance? I bitterly thought.

"I can't say anything," I sharply uttered aloud.

"Oh, well, I can make up something that must do instead."

My lips opened to beg that she would do no such thing, but they closed coldly together again. What did it signify what she said in this brief interval? He would know the truth soon enough.

"In an hour or so I shall peep in at you again," purred Lady Sophie. "Then I hope you will look at me with a smile on your poor little face. Good by, dear. Is it in your heart to give me a kiss?"

For an instant I hesitated. But it was only for an instant. At the end, I lifted my tear-stained face, and we kissed each other on the lips. Mine quivered under the touch of hers, and the tears fell once more. I had loved her well. I had been so happy only an hour ago.

"Good by," I said softly.

"Good by is a sad word. An revoir—let it be an revoir."

"I like good by so much better," I insisted. "Good by, dear Lady Sophie. Good by."

In another moment the door had gently closed after her sweeping satins, and I was left alone.

My mind was ready made up as to my next act, which was to close the next chapter in my brief love story. What I had to do must be done quickly, for I could not count upon more than one undisturbed hour. I had told Lady Sophie that I wished to think; but thought must be beyond all else avoided—until the afterwards.

If I sat still and let myself weep over the pictures of the past which would be before me in a panorama, George Seaforth's face and figure always in the foreground—such little strength and courage as were left to me would go.

No sooner had the door shut behind Lady Sophie than I sprang up and began unfastening my dress.

"His money had paid for it!" I reminded myself, with a sick shiver. "I am the doll which it has amused him to see tricked out in the latest fashion. His doll was to be the smartest in the sphere of dolls, or he would not be satisfied. Oh, my God! I thought him so honorable, so chivalrous!"

But I was thinking again, and I must not think. I tried desperately to fix my attention on the business of the moment. What would I not have given

if the despoiled and long-discarded Peckham garments had been in my box, under all the finery brought to Southwood Park. But they lay at the bottom of a drawer at home—no!—at mustn't call it home any more!—at Lady Sophie de Grette's house. The best I could do was to dress myself from head to foot in the plainest things I had at hand—the things, I bitterly reflected, which had cost Sir George Seaforth the smallest amount of money.

Some day, perhaps, I could repay him. My heart beat with a fierce agony of joy as I saw myself in the future writing a check for money. I had earned. It would have to be a large check. I should send from some far-off place, the farther away the better; and I should add a line, saying, "This is, as nearly as I can calculate, the sum to which I am indebted to you for board, clothing, and incidental expenses during the season I spent in Park Lane."

If he had any heart any manliness left, this would cut him to the quick. But till then the fact that I must leave his house dressed in the garments paid for by him would remain a part of my humiliation.

I roused myself with a start. Once more I had indulged in the forbidden luxury of thought. In a few minutes I was clad in traveling dress, the neat little frock which I had hopelessly put aside that afternoon for the short journey.

Then, with a shock, realized the difficulty regarding money. In my hurried preparations I had not fully looked that question in the face. My purse (what a mockery to call it mine!) was still in the pocket of the gray mohair gown. I remembered, with curling, quivering lips, that it held nearly ten pounds. I could go a long distance with ten pounds. I had not yet quite forgotten how to be economical. But I could not take that money. I could not touch a penny of it, knowing whence it came.

I had kissed Lady Sophie when she had given it to me, as I always did, with a passionate impulse of gratitude which must manifest itself with each new kindness. No wonder she had blushed and looked so uncomfortable sometimes, saying that she "wished I would not thank her."

There were so many things I understood now, and, understanding, felt that the world was a cold and cruel place—a place for hypocrites, for pit-falls under the roses, for grinning skulls where once I had seen faces benevolent as heaven. I marvelled that I did not feel greater bitterness against Lady Sophie for her part in my tragedy. But I told myself, sadly, that I could forgive her, because I had not to teach her image from my heart, leaving wounds that must bleed forever. There were other roots that had gone deeper, and they—but I turned my back to the crude aesthetes of money.

There was my little store of jewelry in the morocco case, and the string of pearls also, which I had hung down on the dressing table after wearing it tonight. But these things had come from Sir George, though they had passed as presents from Lady Sophie. I saw now that my suspicions should have been roused long ago by such gifts from a woman who never ceased to bemoan her poverty. I could not make use of the jewels, but thankfully I remembered certain other possessions, comparatively insignificant, yet enough, perhaps, for the present emergency. And afterwards might come the deluge, for all I cared.

Once I had admired an old-fashioned ring, containing a sapphire and a few small diamonds, which Lady Sophie sometimes wore. Next day she had insisted on transferring it to me, saying it was too tight.

There was also a red enameled watch, a brooch of curiously twisted gold, and a bangle with a pearl and ruby butterfly. These trifles had been Lady Sophie's. Sir George Seaforth had never owned part or lot in them. (To be continued.)

FIRE AT BRIDGEPORT

Sixty Thousand Dollars Damage Done to Pleasure Park.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 18.—Fire swept the amusement grounds at Steeplechase Island today, causing $60,000 damage and creating something of a panic upon the 20,000 visitors.

No one was seriously injured. Six structures were burned, including the grandstand and bleachers on the baseball diamond, where 8,000 persons had gathered for the Chicago-Bridgeport game. The greater part of the loss falls upon George C. Tillyou, proprietor of the amusement grounds, whose Steeplechase Park at Coney Island was burned a few weeks ago.

A woman likes to be proud of her husband if it's only about how he once saw the President at a public meeting.

Wonderful Miracles Worked By Dr. Hamilton's Pills

Learned Physician Astounded by the Increasing Number of His Cures.

—Halifax, N. S., Aug. 19.—That unusual knowledge is possessed by Dr. Hamilton is evidenced by the statement of Mrs. MacLeod, of 514 Campbell road, of this city. For years this lady suffered with torturing, reeling headaches that could only be allayed by strong narcotics. "Dr. Hamilton's Pills," she states, "failed, so I decided to see what Dr. Hamilton could do. I purchased a few boxes of his Mandrake and Butternut Pills and their use immediately gave me the most grateful relief. Headaches and their depressing influence left me. Spells of fainting weakness, long hours of sleeplessness, fear of nervous collapse, all these disappeared after treating with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. My restoration to vigorous health is complete and no remedy could do more than Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

By searching out all weak spots, by enriching the blood, nourishing and purifying the system, Dr. Hamilton's Pills work marvels for the sick and weak. 25 cents per box at all dealers.

OPERATOR FAILS TO "BURN UP" CHIEF

Chicago Man Spurts With Dots and Dashes and Gets a Shock.

St. Louis, Aug. 16.—One of the Chicago operators of the Postal Company opened his key and called St. Louis yesterday. The response was not forthcoming immediately, and he monotonously reiterated the "a" which represents the St. Louis call where-ever the Morse code is known.

After several minutes of drumming the circuit sharply broke with a curt "G. A." the signal to go ahead. Then, wondering who was on the south end, he proceeded to increase his speed until he was "burning up" the wire. Still no break.

One message followed another in quick succession, but the operator on the south end declined to be "frazzled." When all the messages were in there was an instantaneous "O. K.—H. M." and the northern operator nearly fell off his chair, for he had been trying his hand against S. H. Mudge, of St. Louis, the general superintendent of the company for the southwestern division.

Mr. Mudge's start in the telegraph service was in a little inland town in Illinois years ago, and his first position was as night operator for the Jacksonville and Southeastern Railroad, which is long since out of existence. For eight or ten years his duties have been managerial, but this week he has shown that the dots and dashes never have gotten away from him.

City Leaguers Didn't Put Up Very Fast Brand of Ball

McClarys and Stars Won on Saturday in Rather Loose Games—Good Work.

Every time the writer thinks of those set-tos at Tecumseh Park Saturday he yawns. Spectators and players alike enjoyed one long, uninterrupted fiesta, which left one feeling more tired at the finish than at the start.

The Champions and the Satellites had the greatest of snags in handling it to the Bakers and Rockets, respectively, and neither crew turned a hair in pulling out the victories.

The ball put up was of the crudest of the crude variety, and both franchises were thrown away in the opening chapter, on the rawest or raw flukes, as it afterward turned out, the victors would have won out anyway for the fellows lower down on either side couldn't have hit the city ball had it been heaved at them on Saturday.

Like Selling Platers.

The Champs and the Bakers were first away, and the latter aggregation got off like a lot of selling platers.

Jackson landed on an error, and went up a peg on an out. Gibson bluffed to Ward, and that party fell over himself—and the pill. Costello rode, and the trio rambled in on McHugh's two sacker. McHugh went to third on a bad throw to second, and scooped over the pan when a heave to that station went skyward. Ball pointed, but was copped at station two, and Ecclestone was out at first.

All hands then took a vacation until the seventh, when three errors, and two outs at first netted the Bakers a lone tally.

In the next the Champs bumped Brer Thompson's slants for a total of five hits and these with an error allowed the bigbuns from the tinshop to ring up three more of the real things.

The last time out the Champs corralled an additional point on a two sacker, two errors and a base on a pitched ball.

The playing on both sides was on the ragged order, but the fumbles and bungles of the Bakers were by far the most costly of the two.

The Score.

Splinters Off City League Swatsticks

Perhaps old John McHugh wasn't present with his swat stick! Two doubles, a single, and a base on a fielder's choice.

Both Ecclestone and Costello connected for three sacks apiece.

Perkins reached hit three times out of four times up, but was nailed at second on two occasions.

O'Rourke was the busy kid. A hit, four pucuts and five assists. Not bad for the old man, eh?

Costello made an error which cost his team three sacks, and then turned around and knocked out a three bagger just to even up scores.

Thompson and Wilson each had four assists. The first named was the only one of the four pitchers to connect safely.

Wonder what hit Nig Jeffries? Two fumbles in one game for the dark one is "sumthin' orful," besides it set a bad example for young brother Walter, who monopolized the left garden.

Doc Sippli had more business than a striking barber at the second stop-off. Five assists and one putout besides a hit. My!

Umpire Smith was a trifle off-color on base decisions, and some heartless fan remarked that he was in a hurry to get back to St. Thomas.

Pop Stein almost made a hit. The pill got there before he did though and the official scorer was compelled to make an erasure. How's that Mac?

Next Saturday we are promised good ball. Until then let us yawn.

SECOND GAME.

No hits, no errors, and three runs in the first inning. Sounds kind of peculiar, doesn't it?

Never before has anybody accused Bob Mines of having a leak in that usually trusty mitt of his, and yet he was credited with three passed balls in one brief session in the second fricas.

To the spectators it looked as though Woe Tommy Hyttnerauch and his backstop were playing a little game of "show me and I'll show you," when the gong sent the crews on their way. Tommy drew first blood by walking O'Rourke. Then Bobby let a ball get through his fins and honors were easy. And so the seasawing went on until three sturdy Satellites had meandered over the pan, after which both parties and the battery end of the argument steadied down for a brief spell, with the result that two batters bit the dust. Then came lucky little Toots Jeffries to the plate. Toots fanned nicely, but Mines had again located the hole in his glove, and the pellet went standard while the runner dove into first, from where he purloined second and went to third on an error by Roberts. Fitzmaurice poked the bummy thrice and the stuff was off.

Nothing Stirring.

Dad Gillette connected for a triple in the next session and scored on a fluke by gingery Nig Jeffries, which enabled Gibson to make the first stop-off. Gib was nailed at second, and Roberts and Hyttnerauch went down via the fan route.

Three safe drives, and a stolen sack gave the twinkling ones a tally in the third, while a bluff, a pass, a base on a pitched ball, and an out placed another to their credit the next time away.

After that there was nothing stirring until the sixth when three pokes in succession placed as many Satellites on sacks. It looked bad for Thomas the wee at this juncture, but good pitching and clever fielding prevented further damage and the bunch died where they had landed.

Tommy Dewan awoke the dozing fans in the third by making a remarkable backward running catch of a poke from Toots Jeffries' stick which looked good for a triple at least, and was handed a generous round of applause for the effort.

REV. W. J. CLARK AT KNOX CHURCH

Popular Clergyman Preached Twice in South London—His Evening Discourse.

Large congregations, including many of his old parishioners of the First Church, greeted Rev. W. J. Clark, of Westmount, Que., at Knox Church yesterday. Mr. Clark preached two impressive sermons. In the evening his text was Matthew, xliii., 27: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" This he described as perhaps the most terrible denunciation that could be found in any literature, ancient and modern, and all the more terrible because it was spoken by him whom we thought of as the loving Lord. Mr. Clark's first point was that there was such a thing as the responsibility of a community. The action of a mob was something more than the sum total of the actions of the individuals. Speaking of the formation of public sentiment, he said that in modern days it was more easily crystallized than in ancient times, because of the press, the telegraph and other facilities for communication. Alluding to the responsibility of the leaders of the people in Jerusalem and their shortcomings, he said that we should in our own day do something toward the formation of public spirit, and should see to it that our quota was helpful and not harmful. Social deterioration was not the work of a day; no community became bad at once, any more than an individual. God had many times given Israel the opportunity for penitence, but all these offers had been rejected. It was a mistake to say that whatever had happened was the best that could have happened. The French revolution, for example, would not have been a failure if the people had been wise in their time.

The preacher called attention to the beautiful and homely figure under which Christ represented the love of God, and pointed out that the world did not realize how great a blessing the representation of God which Christ has given to the world has been to the world.

Though we may philosophize about the relation of man to God, the responsibility for refusing to accept God's message lay upon man himself. "How often would I have gathered thy children together, and ye would not," the preacher pointed to the result in the case of Jerusalem, and said we must not imagine that we were exempt from the same great laws whose consequences were visited upon that city.

JOURNEMEN BARBERS' STATEMENT TO PUBLIC

Journemen Barbers' Union, No. 366, desires to thank the citizens of London for their sympathy and support during the late strike, and their very liberal donation at the band concert in Victoria Park; also the different local unions who aided them morally and financially assistance. The union is proud to know that during the strike only one man was so lacking in principle as to break his obligation, and desert his fellow-workmen. The settlement arrived at was only carried by a bare majority. The master barbers acknowledged that they had not received any replies to their advertisements for men, while the union was in a position to place every one of its members in first-class shops outside the city if it so desired. The union desires to call attention to the fact that the association has made through the public press have always been honest and fair. To supply the places of the striking journeymen was a clear impossibility. Three weeks' failure to do so, with the Western Fair approaching, would have meant a still further loss to the employers. The local union believes that if it had stood for the full limit of its demands they would ultimately have been granted. The strike has demonstrated that the journeymen barbers of London are loyal to their organization, and to each other, and worthy the support that was accorded them by their fellow-low-trade unionists, but by the public in general.

He will occupy the same pulpit again next Sunday. A pleasing feature of the occasion was the singing of Mr. Erskine, of Woodward Avenue Methodist Church, Detroit, whose powerful baritone voice was heard to advantage at both services in several well-chosen selections.

A Giant Meteor

New York, Aug. 13.—The World today says: At 6 o'clock last evening an immense meteor, apparently about 75 feet in circumference, fell into the sea about a mile off the Amagansett, L. I., life-saving station. First a roar was heard, and an instant later a great stream of fire seemed to come down from the sky, and plunged into the sea, in the wake of the meteor. The meteor fell into the water with a noise as of a mighty boiler letting off steam. Great waves rolled in upon the beach. Part of the bathing pavilion was washed away along with it several fishermen's huts. Much damage was done to property abutting the waterfront. Some persons thought the strange incident marked the end of the world. Even the old fishermen, used as they are to facing death at sea, were terrified, and not for an hour or more did the excitement quiet down. The meteor apparently fell vertically. From the time the noise was first heard until it plunged into the sea, was probably three-quarters of a minute. After the disturbance had subsided hundreds of dead fish were found on the shore.

fall a prey to the flames, but good work on the part of the firemen saved it. Both fires were unquestionably the work of incendiaries. There had been no fire in or around the salt derrick for years, and only electricity was used in the Southgate factory. Two warehouses along the railway track were also set on fire, but the night watchman discovered them and put them out while in the incipient stage. In these instances, cotton waste soaked in kerosene had been used. As yet there is no suspicion as to who the incendiaries are, nor can any object be assigned for their dastardly acts.

CAPITAL TURNS TO CANADA

A Million-Dollar Trust Company To Be Started at Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 13.—The story is that English and French capitalists are about to establish a trust company here with a capital of $5,000,000, although details are being withheld for the time being.

A Montreal financier said today that a large amount of capital would soon be brought to this country, although he could not yet say what turn the affair would take. He said that capitalists were getting apprehensive of affairs in the United States, and as the political situation was by no means certain in South America he now believed we would see very large investments made in the Dominion. In a word, he considered the trust story well founded.

CONGO TRANSFER TREATY

King Leopold Particular as to Personnel of Commission.

Brussels, Aug. 13.—The representatives of the Congo Independent State, who will draft the "treaty of transfer" in conjunction with the plenipotentiaries of the Belgian Government, are Gen. Wahis, governor-general, who has been connected with the Congo Independent State since its foundation, and M. Drouin, secretary-general of the Congo Government, and Charles Graux, minister of state. The Belgian plenipotentiaries have not yet been appointed. King Leopold strongly opposes the selection of any members of Parliament, insisting that the representatives shall be members of the Belgian Administration, with special knowledge of colonial affairs. It is considered practically certain that two of the members will be M. Van Mervelen, of the court of cassation, and M. Van Outsem, a high official of the finance ministry. The first meeting is not expected to occur before October.

ROCKEFELLER INVITED TO GIVE A MILLION

New York, Aug. 13.—According to a dispatch to the Tribune from Cleveland John D. Rockefeller was invited to contribute $1,000,000 to the cause of evangelism yesterday. Shortly after hearing the invitation made from the pulpit of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church by the Rev. Courland Myers, of New York, Mr. Rockefeller gripped the preacher's hand cordially and invited him to Forest Hill to dinner. Mr. Myers, in his sermon, attacked newspaper, charging them with responsibility for the impression that present day conditions, economic as well as sociological, are rapidly nearing a crisis which might cause a revolution. Incidentally he praised Mr. Rockefeller's recent utterance, in which he pleaded for "fair play" for big corporations. Mr. Myers adding his own for a more deal, and predicting that the present attitude of misrepresentation, misunderstanding, and criticism cannot long be endured.

PULP FROM REFUSE

A New Industry To Be Started on the Chaudiere.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—A new industry is to be started at the Chaudiere within another month, that of making pulp from spruce and hemlock refuse, which up to the present time, has nearly all been cast aside as waste. The Ottawa Pulp and Paper Company has been formed for the purpose of carrying on the work. The pulp will be shipped to Massena, N. Y., where it will be manufactured into various kinds of paper. The enormous demand for all sorts of pulp and paper on the other side of the line makes a venture of this kind important. The United States paper manufacturers are unable to procure sufficient raw material and every day the situation is growing worse owing to low water in the rivers and the closing down of factories for various reasons.

SAVED FROM ANGRY CROWD

St. Catharines, Aug. 13.—There was great excitement around the corner of Niagara and Church streets last evening, when a little girl named Ethel Bell, 8 years of age, was missed, and it was learned that a strange man had been seen leading her away. An alarm was given and a large number of neighbors started in search of the pair. They were followed along Niagara street and the canal bank to near the Queenston street bridge, where the man was arrested. The police had been notified and arrived on the scene in the nick of time, otherwise the man would have received severe treatment. The man, who has a wooden leg, gave his name as Emory Brague. The little girl said he had bought her candy and enticed her along with him. He was taken to the police station, and after a brief hearing remanded until Tuesday.

AGREEMENT SIGNED WITH ENGINEERS

Report of the Government Conciliation and Investigation Board.

Ottawa, Aug. 13.—The report of the board of conciliation and investigation, appointed to adjust the dispute between the Grand Trunk Railway Company and its locomotive engineers, has been presented to the Minister of Labor by Prof. Shortt, chairman of the board. The report states that a final settlement has been reached, and an agreement for three years has been signed, giving a substantial increase of wages to the engineers. This is the second important dispute between the Grand Trunk and its employees, which has been settled under the industrial disputes investigation act passed last session. The act has thus averted a serious railway strike, and has probably in this case alone saved the country hundreds of thousands of dollars. The agreement is signed on behalf of the Grand Trunk by Messrs. Hays and Robb, and on behalf of the locomotive engineers by Messrs. Cameron, Battley and Johnson. It is for three years from Aug. 1, 1907, and covers rates and rates of remuneration applicable throughout the Grand Trunk system. The substantial increase of wages to the engineers is given in consideration of the agreement extending over a three-year period. The board of conciliation and investigation under which this settlement has been effected was comprised of Prof. Adam Shortt, of Queen's University, chairman; Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., representing the company, and Mr. John Cardell, of Regina, representing the locomotive engineers. It commenced its sittings at Montreal, July 23, and took a considerable amount of evidence during the succeeding days. There was some delay occasioned by the absence of Mr. Nesbitt, the company's representative, during part of the inquiry, but a provisional agreement was practically reached on all matters in dispute before Mr. Nesbitt was obliged to leave.

A PHENOMENAL CATCH

Schooners at Sydney, N. S., Report a Record Fish Crop.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 13.—A dispatch from North Sydney says: From all sources come reports of phenomenal catches of fish, and the indications are that the present season will be a record one on the fishing grounds. All of the Gloucester fleet to call here so far have reported a full catch, and the French trawlers have eclipsed all expectations. One of the latter vessels now in port, the Ladorne, has on board 2,500 quintals, which makes a total catch for this vessel alone up to the present, of 4,300 quintals of fish. The Saché is also in the stream with 2,700 quintals on board, a result of the successful efforts of the trawlers last year, and again this season. The French concerns which own the fleet of trawlers now prosecuting the industry in these waters will send four or more vessels of the same class to join the present fleet.

TO SACRIFICE A SUBMARINE.

London, Aug. 13.—The British admiralty is about to sacrifice one of the earlier type of Holland submarine boats with the object of acquiring knowledge of the effect of mine explosions upon a boat of that class. Mines and torpedoes will be exploded as a result of which it is hoped to discover the effect of explosives on the boat's equilibrium and furnish torpedo specialists with hints regarding the best means of fighting submerged craft.

UNREST IN CHINA

Revolutionary Movement Gains in Strength, and Outbreak is Impending.

Berlin, Aug. 13.—A special dispatch from Shanghai, published today, says that the situation in China, especially in the Tangtze Valley, continues unsatisfactory. It is impossible, the message adds, to say whether a general outbreak is pending, but the revolutionary movement gains strength daily and the secret organizations are growing visibly. The Chinese officials say that thousands of revolutionists are concealed in the foreign quarters of the cities, thus placing themselves outside the jurisdiction of the Chinese courts. The revolutionary agitation recently carried into the army. The provincial officials are doing their utmost to suppress the revolutionary movement, especially trying to promote reforms, but they feel themselves helpless. Murderous plots against the Manchus continue to be disclosed in Peking.

SIXTY-TWO HORSES BURNED.

Massillon, O., Aug. 13.—A livery stable and two residences were burned today. Lawrence Line, a hostler, was burned to death, and 62 horses, including two race horses, were destroyed. The loss will be about $100,000, partly insured. The racing horses burned were Effi K., and Atwood, with records of 2:12. They were owned by F. W. Arnold, of Massillon.

PULAJANISM WIPED OUT.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Pulajanism has been eradicated in the Island of Leyte for the first time, it is said, since the American occupation, according to advices received at the war department, and peace conditions now prevail there. It is said there is but one chief, Felipe Ydos, with three followers, still at large.

JOY AT ALBANY.

Albany, Aug. 13.—A daughter was born this morning to Governor and Mrs. Hughes. Mother and child are doing well. Governor and Mrs. Hughes have three other children, Charles E. Hughes, Jun., about 9, a junior at Brown University; Helen, about 16, Catholic, about 10.

A GREAT METEOR IN VERMONT.

Middlebury, Vt., Aug. 13.—Professor Samuel Sheldon, of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, went to Bristol Beach today to investigate the fall of an unusually large meteor, which was observed by many people throughout Addison on Sunday morning. Those who saw it fall said it was of unusual brilliancy and size. The effect of its fall was like an earthquake, the country within several miles of the scene of its landing experiencing shocks which caused damage to many houses.

In an article entitled "Rubber Made from Wheat," William T. Walsh, writing in reference to the matter, says: "The importance of the discovery can scarcely be overestimated, coming as it does at a time when the world is anxiously asking whence its future supplies of rubber are to come. In half a decade, it is said, the annual consumption of the elastic material will be at least 80,000 tons. Even 100,000 tons is regarded by many as a conservative estimate."

DAIRY MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, DAIRY REPORT, WEEK ENDING AUG. 9.

[Hodgson Bros.' Letter.]

Cheese—Our market is firmer and the demand has been somewhat better. The position generally is influenced by the cable advices of the continued heavy buying and storing in Canada, which has forced the market up. Colored cheese still maintains a premium over white. English cheese, while still plentiful, meets a good demand, and there is no accumulation. We quote today: First choice Canadian, 56 to 57 1/2 per cent; do. colored, 53 1/2 to 55 1/2; lower grades, chiefly Swiss, 52 to quality, 48 to 50.
Butter—Choice qualities find a better market, and are slightly dearer on the week. The Copenhagen quotation is cables unchanged for next week. There has also been a somewhat better demand for medium grades of butter, and values are

DOG TO TRACE MURDERER

Bloodhound Leads Searchers for Slayers to Suspect's Home.

Niles, Mich., Aug. 18. — Clarence Shapaley, night watchman, who was shot four times while going his rounds in the D. R. Smith lumber yards late last night, died this morning. His assailant is unknown, but a bloodhound which belonged to the murdered man was used to trace the assailant, and led the searchers to the home of William Johnson, who is considered a suspicious character.

Johnson was making his usual rounds when he saw a man and woman sitting on a pile of lumber. He struck a match to see who they were. The man immediately shot him four times. The couple fled. The bloodhound picked up the trail, which led it to the Johnson home.

Johnson vigorously denied that he had had anything to do with the shooting and said he could prove a perfect alibi. He was locked up as a suspect. Johnson is said to have arrived here from South Chicago, Ill., a year ago.

DEATH OF MRS. BRENTON

Former Well-Known London Lady Passes Away—Many Tributes of Sympathy.

The following reference to Mrs. Brenton's death is taken from the Winnipeg Tribune of recent date:

Last Saturday evening the death took place of Gertrude Brenton, whose unselfish and loving life was limited to the brief span of 27 years. Deceased was born in Brantford, Ont., where she lived until 20 years of age, when she married A. J. Brenton, of London, Ont. After a few years in London, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton came to Winnipeg.

From the first Mrs. Brenton caught the spirit of the west and seemed to understand the ambitions and needs of the young men, especially who were attracted to the genial hospitality of her home. She was a woman who had a high Christian standard of living and was possessed of marked intellectual attainments. But what made friends for her was her delightful musical powers. Her sweet and humble character was never spoiled by the applause of her many musical admirers.

Over a month previous to her death, Mrs. Brenton was stricken with typhoid fever and although her physician and nurses fought for her life with all the skill at their command, the disease had such a hold of her that even her magnificent constitution could not withstand it.

Besides many tributes from the family and other dear ones, beautiful floral designs were sent from the First Baptist choir, of which Mrs. Brenton was a member, from the staff of J. Arthur Paquet's wholesale, of which Mr. Brenton is manager, and from the different members of a city literary club of which Mrs. Brenton was organizer and secretary-treasurer, and to which she used to delight to refer as the "Help-One-Another" Club.

Besides her husband, the deceased leaves behind her a grandmother, Mrs. Turner, of Brantford, and one aunt, Mrs. Hall, of Toronto.

Love is so strenuous here that couples have been known to remain on the beach watching the waves from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., dining, evidently, on sand. But that is only one page out of Cupid's note book.

Miss Paxman, of Parkhill, who has been camping here during the last three weeks, left on Friday.

A very enjoyable little dance was given on Friday evening by the young men of the camp in Brenner's Hall.

Mr. Norris Dight, of Theford, who has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. Clarke, for ten days, returned home on Saturday.

On Thursday evening the session of the summer school took the form of a temperance meeting. On Friday night a concert was given at which vocal and instrumental music added to the enjoyment of the evening. However, the chief attractions were the limelight views, both still and moving pictures being shown by Rev. Mr. Coupland, of Watford.

Two Thousand People Attend the Open-Air Meeting in Tecumseh Park

Services in Many Churches of London Sunday—Impressive Sermons Preached.

The open-air service in the Tecumseh Park last evening was attended by an audience of nearly two thousand people. The musical part of the programme was in charge of the Gideon's Band of Talbot Street Baptist Church. Mr. Webster sang "The Home Land" in a splendid voice and the male quartet, consisting of Messrs. Miller, Rosser, Webster and Elliott, rendered "Steal Away" very sweetly.

The chief speaker of the evening was Mr. W. A. Cameron, B.A., leader of McMaster Band and at present supplying the Talbot Street pulpit. Although young in years, Mr. Cameron is evidently not young in experience.

MR. W. A. CAMERON, B. A.,
Who Last Night Preached to 2,000 People in Tecumseh Park.

He is generally regarded as one of the ablest platform orators among the younger men of the denomination. Last evening he chose as his text Hebrews, ii, 3: "How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation?" The large audience listened attentively while he employed arguments to emphasize the greatness of salvation, and while he pleaded for an immediate acceptance of the same. At the conclusion of this eloquent appeal a number signified their willingness to live the Christian life.

A duet by Messrs. Elliot and Miller closed the service.

Rev. Mr. Kempster preached in the morning and Rev. D. E. Martin in the evening in Wellington Street Methodist Church yesterday in the absence of Rev. James Livingstone, who on Sunday preached to the summer school in Grand Bend.

At Askin Street Methodist Church Rev. Mr. Birks preached to large congregations at both services. Sunday. His subjects in the morning was "Following After Christ," with Philippians iii, 12, as the text.

Services in All Saints' Church were conducted in the basement of the new edifice yesterday, when Rev. T. B.

DEATH IN RACE ENDS SCANDAL

Wild Auto Ride Climax of the Famous McCormick Affair.

New York, Aug. 18.—The scandal which for years has hung over the names of the young millionaire, Paul McCormick, and his wife, formerly the beautiful society matron, Carrie Converse, wiped itself out in death Friday, when she was instantly killed, and he was fatally injured in a frightful auto wreck at Darien, Conn. Two other women were badly hurt in the tragic ending of the "romance."

Racing sixty miles an hour with another machine from New Haven to Stamford, young McCormick hurried his great Ford car into the rear of a buggy, then crashed from the road into a maple tree.

When the coroner reached the scene, two hours later, the women sat bolt upright in her seat, her head laid open and a great hole gaping in her side. Forty feet away upon the hillside lay McCormick, his skull fractured, both legs broken, unconscious and upon the point of death. The rival automobile had sped away, only stopping to learn that death had ended the race. The two women who occupied the buggy escaped with fractured shoulders and arms.

Eloped in "Red Devil."
The violent finish of the notorious McCormick-Converse alliance had been often predicted by those who knew the history of its beginning. McCormick, the scapegrace scion of one of the richest and oldest families in Poughkeepsie, became a "speed fiend" the first day that auto racing was introduced in the country.

ished speed, and dashed head-on into a great maple at the summit.
The racing car crashed in like an egg-shell against the two feet of tree trunk. Mrs. McCormick, caught full in the terrific impact, met death instantly, without a move. Her head was literally impaled upon the lowest branch, and a great rent was torn in her side by a blow from the steel wheel of the wrecked machine.

Her husband, flung through the air fifteen feet, dropped almost as fearfully wounded in a pasture over the hill. He lay there bleeding and unconscious for hours, for the other machine sped off without so much as giving a warning of the accident.

But Mrs. Norton and her sister staggered or crawled as best they could to a farmhouse, and soon afterward Dr. Charles Keeler, of New Canaan, drove by and saw that Mrs. McCormick was dead and her husband beyond aid.

Ambulances were summoned and McCormick was carried, with the two injured women, to the Norwalk hospital, his wife to the Norwalk morgue. In the hospital last night he rested unconscious just long enough to deny at first the identity of the dead woman—then later to admit that she was his wife. Physicians said he could not live until daylight.

In his pockets they found the clippings of a newspaper detailing another accident in which he had recently escaped death by a miracle within five miles of the spot where he was mortally hurt.

Since he married the Poughkeepsie beauty he and she have been in no less than a dozen auto wrecks, ranging in territory from Maine to Missouri, and in seriousness from explosions to mutilated legs and arms.
