

LONDON ELECTRIC CO. MAY SUE CITY OVER NIAGARA POWER POLES

Case in Toronto Courts May Have Important Bearing Locally.

MANAGER HUNT MAKES STATEMENT

Says That What Affects Toronto Also Affects London—The Situation

"What affects Toronto affects us." This concise statement of Mr. C. B. Hunt, manager of the London Electric Company, may cause a great deal of inconvenience to the city of London, and, incidentally, considerable money.

It was made in connection with the suit entered by the Toronto General Electric Company against the city of Toronto to restrain the corporation from erecting poles in such close proximity with the Toronto General Electric Company's poles as to cause trouble, and even danger, not only to the employees of the company, but also to the citizens generally.

The company have entered suit to restrain the city from the continuance of this condition of affairs.

The same conditions apply in the city of London, although not so aggravated an extent. The city have erected poles on the same side of the street as the London Electric. The company will have to go through the wires of the city in order to reach their own, and there is a possibility of danger there. Also there is a possibility that the city will break and if that happens, there will probably be more danger.

The London Electric have been aware of what has been going on for some time. In fact they have served three notices on the city to the effect that they would hold the city liable for any damage that might accrue.

The city authorities have paid little or no attention to that feature of the case, and have ignored the notices altogether.

London's Case Is Better. The city's case is better than that of Toronto in that the wires of the Bell Telephone Company are not affected to any great extent. The city's poles as well as those of the London Electric are on opposite sides of the street, and little or no damage can result, except in those localities where they cross streets. Manager Hunt and the electric department have, it is understood, provided for sufficient clearance there to prevent any trouble.

The city and the London Electric poles are in close proximity in several places, and this is the source of trouble.

Location of Poles. For some time, the city and the company have been unable to agree on the location of poles. The delay was altogether caused by the company, the city employees state, while on the other hand, the company claims the city has been at fault.

It has become more and more evident lately that a lawsuit was imminent, and the latest developments in Toronto lend a great deal of color to that statement.

However, there is no telling where it is going to end, and it is stated that the city may have to pay considerable money to get rid of the company's poles and wires.

Are Very Reticent. Mr. Hunt would make no further statement than is contained in the brief sentence given above. What their intention is would not be divulged, but it is more probable that a series of suits will result.

There are two suits of a similar nature decided recently, one at Ottawa, and the other at Welland. In both cases the corporations involved have been given the worst of it. In any case, the result of the suit in Ottawa will probably determine what action will be taken in London.

So far as the water commissioners are concerned there is no evidence of worry. It is stated on semi-official authority that the city can order every London Electric pole down under the agreement with the city, and that would decide the question beyond all question.

In any event, there will probably be some thing of interest transpire in this connection within the next few days.

CITY AND COUNTY FAILED TO AGREE

Stratford and Perth in Conference Over Registry Building.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Stratford, Sept. 28.—The meeting of city and county representatives held in yesterday's correspondence, for adjusting cost of the new registry buildings, proved unavailing, notwithstanding the two hours wrestling with figures. The matter will now be left to the registry inspector. It was decided, however, to apply the sale proceeds of the old building on the new structure, which it is expected will amount to $12,000.

The complete Normal School enrollment to date totals 208 students. Of these 86 are experienced teachers, 122 inexperienced, 188 ladies, 20 young men, and 12 from Stratford.

FINE FOR WINDSOR. Windsor, Sept. 28.—Conditional on the granting by the city of a fixed assessment and other special concessions, the Windsor plant of the Penberthy Injector Company will practically double its capacity. The company has secured property adjoining its present premises, and on this site it is proposed to erect a $20,000 addition.

G. T. P. THROUGH LINE ENMONTION TO LAKE

The Winnipeg-Superior Junction Division Will Open for Traffic Saturday.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The Grand Trunk Pacific will begin operation of the National Transcontinental Railway from Winnipeg to Superior Junction on Saturday next. A traffic agreement has been reached with Contractor McArthur and the commission for the use of the line, pending its formal taking over by the commission from the contractor, and the arrangement of the terms of a permanent lease by the company. The G. T. P. will at once put on a regular passenger and freight service, and from now on will have a through line from Edmonton to Port William.

FRENCH-CANADIANS CALL A CONFERENCE

Meet at Ottawa to Consider Appointment of Archbishop Gauthier.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Sept. 28.—A conference of French-Canadians of Ontario has been called to meet in Ottawa Oct. 4, to consider the appointment of Archbishop Gauthier. It is alleged that certain documents forwarded to Rome urging the appointment of a French archbishop have not yet reached their destination. It is planned to send a message from the conference to the Vatican.

BUFFALO SUICIDE WELL-KNOWN IN LONDON

Benjamin R. Davenport Found Dead in a Room in a Hotel.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Benjamin R. Davenport, former bankrupt, and adjuster of Chicago, was found dead in bed at the Iroquois Hotel here. Medical Examiner Danzer, who was summoned, pronounced it a case of suicide, probably from carbolic acid, and stated that Davenport had been dead several hours. A note found in the room read: "I have neither friends, funds nor family. Take care of my poor old body. God bless you all."

The gentleman mentioned in the above dispatch was well known in this city. He worked in London for a realty concern of Buffalo, and stopped at one of the leading hotels here. He did some business in this city, and when he had finished a week's work he left for Chicago. Before going, however, he passed a check for $12 on the hotel proprietor where he stopped. He has never received payment for the check, and it is thought that he spent the money in a carousal in Chicago, taking his life when the orgy was over. "He seemed like a very nice man," said the hotel proprietor. "He was a quiet, gentlemanly chap, and when he presented the check, there was no hesitancy in accepting it. You never can tell, however."

COLLINGWOOD'S FAIR.

Collingwood, Sept. 28.—The Great Northern Exhibition opened here today under most favorable conditions. The exhibits in all classes are greater in number than for some years, all classes showing an increase. The agricultural departments are especially well represented. Tomorrow afternoon the exhibition will be formally opened by Hon. J. S. Duff, minister of agriculture. The Galt Kilites Band will provide the musical programme.

STEAMERS ARRIVED.

Father Point, Que., Sept. 28.—Steamship Manchester, liner, Manchester Line, from Manchester, passed inward at 9:30 a.m. Montreal, Sept. 28.—The Allan Line steamer Tunisian, from Liverpool for Quebec and Montreal, was reported 90 miles east of Belle Isle at 4:30 a.m. today. The Allan Line steamer Lake Erie, from London and Havre for Quebec and Montreal, passed Cape Magdalen at 6:30 a.m. today. The Allan Line steamer Sardinian, from Montreal and Quebec for Havre and London, arrived at the Lizard at 5 a.m. today.

VERY SUDDEN DEATH. Hamilton, Sept. 28.—Death came with startling suddenness last evening to Mrs. R. Heath, of Indian Forks Road, New York State. She was walking with a relative when she became ill and expired shortly after she entered the house.

BLANKET FOUND WITH STAINS OF BLOOD

New Clue Turns Up in Connection With the Goderich Murder Mystery.

JARDINES TELL DIFFERENT TALES

Evidence of Members of Family Given at Inquest Was Very Contradictory.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Goderich, Sept. 28.—Shortly after midnight, after the inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of Lizzie Anderson had been adjourned until next Wednesday, Inspector Greer and Chief Postlethwaite went to Brophy's undertaking establishment, where the girl's clothes are being kept for the purpose of comparing the blood on a blanket found in Swartz's livery with the blood found in the clothing worn by Lizzie Anderson. This blanket was found in the livery stable last night, and was in a rig which was returned to the stable by a local lawyer here, who was asked to take it back by someone he does not know.

The Post-Mortem.

The post-mortem examination held yesterday afternoon proved that the girl was struck over the forehead by a flat board or stick before her throat was cut. The body was so badly decomposed that it was impossible to tell exactly what had taken place, but the doctors know there was no struggle before her throat was cut, else there would have been more blood splashed on the walls of the cellar, and the body would have been covered with it. They expressed the opinion that the girl was stunned before being carried into the cellar, and was then laid on the floor and while there the murderer stood stooped over her and gashed her throat. Their report was not read at the inquest, which lasted from 7 o'clock until after midnight. Nothing of a sensational character developed at the inquest. Several of the Jardine brothers were examined and they all told different stories as to their movements on the night of the murder.

Wesley Anderson's Story.

Wesley Anderson, father of the murdered girl, was the first witness. Continued on Page Eight.

PROMISE $100,000 FOR JOHN REDMOND

Irish League of America to Raise Sum for Cause of Home Rule.

Buffalo, Sept. 28.—A pledge to raise $100,000 within two years for the cause of home rule in Ireland, was enthusiastically made today by the 385 delegates reporting at the second day's session of the Fifth Biennial National Convention of the United Irish League of America, which is being held in this city. The report of the committee on ways and means, which endorsed "the great work done for the amelioration of the Irish people within the last few years by the Irish parliamentary party," was adopted. "Believing that this work is to be crowned in the near future by the realization of the Irishman's fondest dream of home rule," the report of the committee continued, "and having the fullest confidence in the continued leadership of John E. Redmond, we pledge $100,000 to be raised before the next convention. If this sum be insufficient, we feel that even a larger amount will be forthcoming. We further recommend the adoption of national organizers."

MR. FIELDING ILL.

Halifax, Sept. 28.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, came up from Chester on a special train yesterday and left for Montreal. Mr. Fielding is suffering from a slight attack of facial paralysis, and is hurrying to Montreal to place himself under treatment.

SISTER 58, BROTHER 50, MEET FOR FIRST TIME; EACH BELIEVED OTHER WAS DEAD

CHARLES D. SIEVERS. For a half century a man and woman, brother and sister, living but a few miles apart and each believing the other dead, have met for the first time in their lives. Mrs. Katherine Howard, of this city, aged 58 years, became separated from her family before her brother, Charles D. Sievers, aged 50, was born. Sievers lives in Pontiac. Mrs. Howard was told of Sievers by friends, who remarked on the resemblance. She went to Pontiac and the relationship was established.

DUNDAS CAR JUMPED TRACKS NARROWLY MISSED AN AUTO

Stone On Tracks Sent No. 64 Crashing Into the Curb a Few Feet From Machine of Hon. C. S. Hyman, in Which Were a Lady and a Child.

Dundas car, No. 64, going east, jumped the tracks on Dundas street in front of The Advertiser office at two o'clock this afternoon, and a lady and child in an automobile, No. 8376, owned by Hon. C. S. Hyman, had a narrow escape.

The car jumped to the north and crashed into the curb, about twenty feet from where the auto was standing. Had the trolley gone a few feet further the auto would have been knocked into kindling.

There were a large number of lady passengers on the street car and they were badly frightened when it left the rails, but nobody was injured.

Since the pavements were torn up by the company to put down bricks for the resurfacing, there have been very many mishaps, owing to stones getting on the rails and derailing the cars.

As a result of this afternoon's mishap traffic on Dundas street was delayed for half an hour, as the company is only using one line on that thoroughfare now.

MORE STUDENTS AT WESTERN THAN EVER REGISTERED BEFORE

The Western University opened for registration this morning and lectures will commence tomorrow. Not all the old students have yet returned, but estimating the probable attendance by the number already registered, this year will easily break all previous records for the arts department. The freshman class is already the largest in the history of the university, and it is expected that new students will continue to come in up to the middle of October.

President James told The Advertiser today that prospects are exceedingly bright for a prosperous and successful session this coming year.

A Successful University.

The old Western has successfully passed through the experimental stage which all institutions must endure, and after working against great odds and severe handicaps in the past, now gives every promise of becoming a great university.

Improvements have recently been made to the university building which add greatly both to the external and interior appearances.

ROOSEVELT'S SLATE

Stinson Likely to Be Nominated for Governor.

Saratoga, Sept. 28.—With the exclusion of candidates for that office, having been made prior to the convening of the Republican state convention today, the slate for the state ticket which, it was expected, would be placed in nomination this afternoon was as follows:

For governor—Henry L. Stinson, of New York.

Secretary of state—Samuel S. Koenig, of New York.

Comptroller—James Thompson, of Valley Falls.

Treasurer—Thomas F. Fennell, of Elmira.

Attorney-general—Edward R. O'Malley, of Buffalo.

State engineer and surveyor—Frank M. Williams, of Oneida.

Associate judge of the court of appeals—Irving G. Vann, of Syracuse.

It was said today that Colonel Roosevelt had expressed his willingness to stump the state in support of the ticket.

MACKENZIE & MANN ARE SAID TO HAVE SECURED OPTION ON LONDON STREET RY. STOCK

Canadian Northern Interests, Says the Story—Also Looked Over London and Lake Erie Traction Company With a View of Buying It.

COMPANY IS AFTER MANY FEEDER LINES

Representatives in This City Who Had Charge of Negotiations—Some of the London Street Railway Directors Deny the Story.

It is stated on the best of authority that the Mackenzie & Mann interests have been looking over this city and its possibilities.

Some time ago they had agents in the city of London taking stock of the London Street Railway and the London and Lake Erie Traction Company.

They made close inquiry into both propositions, dealing with their capital stock, earnings and the rest of it with an eye to their value as investments.

It was also stated that they had secured the option on all the stock in the London Street Railway held by local persons, and had approached Mr. A. H. Everett, of Cleveland, for a price on the stock.

The president of the road was on a trip around the world, however, and could not be seen, and, as a result, the deal could not be consummated. However, he has returned, and it is understood that a definite proposition will be submitted to him when he is able to transact business at his office in Cleveland.

AFTER THE TRACTION COMPANY.

With the possibility of doing business with the London Street Railway, they have turned to the Traction Company, and will make an offer for that system in a very short time, it is claimed.

This would give the Canadian Northern lines and franchises from Toronto to London, access to the big manufacturing industries of this city and practically all of Western Ontario.

They have at the present no connection with this district, and those on the inside say that they are anxious, extremely anxious in fact, to get their foot in here in order to supply their western line through the west.

ARE BUYING MANY LINES.

"There is no doubt about the proposition," said a man in close touch with the traction situation in this section. "Mackenzie & Mann, as a matter of fact, are purchasing lines in every direction. They are using radials as feeders to their big roads, and London, with its geographical situation is in a position to afford them great possibilities in the future for development of trade. They will eventually secure this whole territory, and in my mind will take hold of all the traction projects in this city."

SOME STOCKHOLDERS DENY.

Some of the local stockholders deny that they were approached by agents of Mackenzie & Mann, but positive information comes from Toronto that they have been approached, and that when the time comes information will be received to that effect.

PLEADED GUILTY TO STEALING A BICYCLE

Richard Powers Was Remanded Until Saturday for Sentence.

Richard Powers, a young man who stole a bicycle from in front of the public library on Monday evening, and at 7:45 made an attempt to pawn it with Thomas Fox fifteen minutes later, appeared in the police court this morning, and was remanded by Judge.

He came up before Judge Macbeth at the courthouse later, and upon pleading guilty he was remanded till Saturday for sentence.

The wheel belonged to Gordon Woon, of 144 Maitland street, of 74 Maitland street. The young fellow had ridden down to the library and left the bicycle in the hall. He was caught by Thomas Fox fifteen minutes later, and he came up before Judge Macbeth at the courthouse later, and upon pleading guilty he was remanded till Saturday for sentence.

When he came out a short time afterward the machine was missing. Mr. Fox, the pawnbroker, notified the police that the machine was in his possession when Powers gave different stories and addresses.

WANNUTELLI AT FALLS

The Papal Legate Sees the Wonders of Niagara.

Niagara Falls, Sept. 28.—Cardinal Vannutelli, papal legate and cardinal protector of the Carmelite Order, accompanied by Prince LeRoy and suite, and Bishop Muldoon, Chicago, and Bishop O'Connell, San Francisco, arrived here at 6 o'clock this morning by special car on the Michigan Central Railway. He was met at the station by Rev. Arthur Dion, provincial of the monastery and members of the community, and escorted to Falls View Church of Our Lady of Peace, which was beautifully decorated with flowers. Here the high prelate celebrated mass, and Rev. Dr. D. F. Best, provincial, and Rev. S. McDonald, prior, assisting.

Breakfast was served at the Hospice, after which the prelate was escorted around to the many points of interest, including the various power plants. The annual reunion of Niagara University on the New York side is being held today, and here the cardinal delivered an eloquent address at 11 a.m. to a large gathering of students, and alumni. The cardinal subsequently dined at the hospice with the community of Mount Carmel, and a few invited guests. The party left at 2:25 for Buffalo.

"Bump It" took the detective into his confidence and told him that he had "beat" the trains from Detroit to St. Thomas, where he was arrested, and given an hour to shake the dust of the city from his feet. He rode a freight from there to London, where he worked as a pin boy in a bowling alley until he raised $5. Then the fever got in his veins again, and he boarded the baggage of the Chicago express for Hamilton as it pulled out of the London yards.

A Rocky Road. "The road seemed kind of rough," he said to the detective, "and I climbed onto the tender and then into the water tank. I feel my career nearly ended at Brantford. The crew took on water there and I got an awful dinking. Two or three times I felt like crawling out and asking for a life preserver. The youthful hobo informed the detective that he was giving a 'phony' name, because he didn't want to disgrace his father, who had a good position in a Detroit telegraph office. "And take this from me," he added, "if I was a Canadian or an Irishman, you wouldn't pinch me."

"Bump It" appeared before Magistrate Jeff yesterday morning in juvenile court, charged with vagrancy. "He was there with the tears," said a constable, "and he did some business while he was in the coop. He bought a ticket for Niagara Falls from another prisoner for 65 cents. He produced a ticket, and was allowed to go. A G. T. R. detective saw him board a passenger train yesterday morning for the Falls."

Some Experiences. On his way to the station young Miller talked freely with the detective and told him of some of his life-raising experiences. "I've had a bunch of trouble for a kid," he said. "I couldn't make myself at home at school, and I didn't want to cause trouble around home, so I took to the hobo game. I'm going to head for Buffalo after I take the Falls, Continued on Page Nine.

NEVER HEARD OF ROOSEVELT.

DOCTORS TELL HOW "CUTICURA" CURED SKIN DISEASES

One says, "I have Great Faith in Cuticura Remedies." Another, "They Always Bring Results."

"I wish to let you know of a couple of recent cures which I have made by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. Last August, Mr. J. L. Galbraith, of this city came to my office, troubled with a severe skin eruption. At first I could not understand the nature of the disease. I finally traced it to his occupation, as he was a painter and decorator. It was dermatitis in its worst form. He had a large, red, inflamed, and would affect most parts of his body—thighs, elbows, chest, back and abdomen—and would terminate in a little pustule. Itching and burning was dreadful and he would almost tear his skin apart, trying to get relief. I recommended all the various treatments I could think of and he spent about fifteen dollars on prescriptions but nothing seemed to help him.

"In the meantime my wife who was continually suffering with a skin trouble and who had been trying different prescriptions and methods with my assistance, told me she was going to get some of the Cuticura Remedies. But as I did not know much about Cuticura at that time, I was doubtful whether it would help her. Her skin would thicken, break and bleed, especially on the fingers, wrists and arms. I finally decided to try Cuticura. I gave her a box of Cuticura Soap and applications of Cuticura Ointment and very soon a decided improvement and in a few days she was completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies to Mr. Galbraith, and this was two months ago. I told him to wash with warm water of the Cuticura Soap and to apply the Cuticura Ointment generously. Believe me from my own experience, the use of Cuticura Remedies was greatly relieved and to-day he is completely cured through their use. I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies and shall always have a good word for them now that I am convinced of their wonderful merits." (Signed) B. L. Whitehead, M.D., 108 Dartmouth St., Boston, Mass., July 22, 1910.

As though in confirmation of this most convincing statement, G. M. Fisher, M.D., Big Pond, Md., writes: "My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician and very often prescribe Cuticura Remedies in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. I still find the Cuticura Remedies as good as ever. They always bring results."

Cuticura Remedies are sold by druggists everywhere. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed free, on request, latest 32-page Cuticura Book on the speedy treatment of skin diseases.

MOCHA TEMPLE MEETING IN LONDON IN DECEMBER

Notices Sent Out For a Great Trek Hither on Seventh of That Month.

Notices have been sent out for the Mocha Temple meeting in this city on Dec. 7.

Arrangements have not been completed, but it is expected that a large number of visitors will be in the city on that occasion. Detroit, Buffalo, Toronto, Saginaw and other cities will be represented, and will assist in the ceremonial work.

The list of candidates is a large one. Notices are being sent out also in connection with the imperial council meeting in Rochester in July next.

Mocha Temple has secured quarters along with Isabella Temple, Buffalo, on the third floor of the Whitcomb House. The Arab Patrol will go, and it is expected that fully 100 other Shriners will make the trip.

J. L. GALBRAITH IN THE SOUTH
Former Londoner Is Highly Praised in Virginia.

The following extract is taken from the Bristol Herald Courier of Sept. 17, 1910:

Recital at Virginia Institute. The piano and song recital given by S. T. Schroetter, pianist, and J. Lamont Galbraith, tenor, at Virginia Institute Thursday evening had been eagerly anticipated by many lovers of classic music and the occasion was in no way a disappointment. The admirers of Mr. Schroetter were anxious to hear him again after his absence from the city, and every number of his varied and delightful programme gave intense pleasure and revealed anew his wonderful skill as a performer. The Nocturne by Chopin and Second Rhapsody by Liszt were exceptionally pleasing selections, but applause after each was most insistent and was responded to with some exquisite numbers.

Keen interest was felt when Mr. Galbraith, the new director of voice culture, faced the expectant throng, it being his first appearance before a Bristol audience. He has a delightfully flexible and sympathetic voice, and the liquidity of his notes was unsurpassed, but he is most truly great in his climaxes where his voluminous tones rise to the rank of tragic music. His execution of each number was very fine, but a programme of such music as the noted Bosphorus singer would suit his voice admirably and would possibly give a better disclosure of his powers.

As mentioned in the extract, Mr. Galbraith has been appointed to the very lucrative position of vocal director of the Virginia Institute, Bristol, Virginia, the conservatory roll of which numbers above two hundred; also director of the choir of the First Baptist Church in that city.

ANNEX TO TELEGRAM.
Toronto, Sept. 27.—The city architect has granted a building permit to John Ross Robertson for the erection of a six-story addition to the Telephone Building. The building is to be at 35 and 37 Melinda street, will be 70 feet high and 60 feet wide, and will be connected by an arch over the lane with the present building. The cost is to be $70,000.

Dropsy— Given up by Doctor

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. My limbs and body were swollen one-third larger than natural, water collected around my heart and I had to be propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

REGULAR W. C. T. U. MEETING ON TUESDAY

All Those Who Assisted in Fair Dining Hall Were Thanked.

The regular session of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the lecture hall of the public library on Tuesday, the president, Mrs. Hubert Ashplant, in charge.

The minutes were read and approved. A request from Mrs. R. J. Webster, 230 Oxford street, was read, to the effect that any who desired to subscribe to the lumbermen's work shall send such largesse to her at her address, or to Mrs. Ashplant at 466 King street. She hoped that none would permit her inability to make a personal appeal for this very important part of their Christian service to interfere with their giving, and the time for sending it draws near.

The president then reminded the county superintendents to take the necessary steps to secure and send to the provincial superintendents their reports. These should be in the latter's hands by Oct. 3. She hoped this work would be so thoroughly well done as may secure for Middlesex County the good record she is sure each union has well deserved.

The Scripture lesson was given by Mrs. Newton. That followed by a solo, "Will Not Be Long," rendered by Mrs. Morgan, soloist in the Centennial Methodist Church, who was accompanied by Mrs. Armstrong.

The resolution of committees passed at the Middlesex County convention were read and approved. Fair work and its incidents were then discussed, and all who assisted in the dining hall were heartily thanked, as were also all the patrons.

BANDEAU IS IN STYLE FOR HAIR ONCE MORE

Jewelled or Sequined Ribbon or One of Gold To Be Much in Favor.

London, Sept. 27.—True to historical precedent the present season brings up the problem of what particular kind of ornament shall be made the vogue, and the approaching season is to be no exception.

"London's fashionable world feels that it has decided that question already," said Mons. Jules Scollors, the court hairdresser, who speaks with authority about such things. "There never has been a time when the ornaments for the hair have been so popular. At the same time a note of simplicity will be struck this season. What can look more charming, for instance, than a string of pearls wound loosely through the hair and falling just above the left ear? Such an arrangement lends a charming effect.

"On the other hand, there is nothing in reality so effective as the ribbon bandeau. This season it is introduced in all sorts of ways—jewelled ribbon, sequined ribbon and ribbon of gold and silver tissue with pearl embroidery. They all serve the same purpose, and give a most finished appearance to a well dressed head of hair. The reign of the artificial flower as a hair ornament is absolutely over. The ribbon of 'paste' banders has entirely taken its place. High bandeaux of colored paste, fashioned after the old Greek key pattern, will be the popular wear for the theatre or dinner party, while the aigrette, which long has been out of fashion for the evening, is returning to favor.

"For certain styles of hairdressing nothing looks more effective than a sweeping aigrette of black or white, fixed into the hair with a jewelled clasp. In fact, some of the most beautiful aigrettes have a stem of jewelled peacock's feather design standing up in the aigrette itself. Personally, though, I think the most beautiful ornament for the hair is the Grecian double fillet, either of paste or jewelled ribbon, worn at the back of a Grecian coiffure, and drawn lightly through the wavelets in front."

COOK BY HOT AIR

Superheated to 1,000 Degrees May Supplant Fire in Kitchen.

London, Sept. 27.—It would seem that "hot air" finally is to serve a more useful purpose than the convenience of the political orator. According to the big guns of chetism, who gathered themselves at the Bakers' Exhibition in Agricultural Hall, it will be utilized to cook the succulent steaks of the future.

Grillrooms will lose some of their picturesque quality when the white-capped cooks turning the lamb chops have departed, but the health faddists, it is pointed out, can be reconciled by the knowledge that their food is being prepared under still more cleanly conditions than those attendant upon the fire that roasts.

This utilization of superheated air for cooking purposes is held to be simplicity itself. The steam from an ordinary kitchen boiler is conveyed in pipes to the "superheater" where it is a series of coils above a coke fire its temperature is raised to 1,000 degrees, Fahrenheit. At the same time the heat is not increased, thus obviating any danger of burning pipes.

Passed through the hollow rods of a grill the air quickly raises the iron to the same temperature as itself, and then anything can be cooked from a loaf of bread to beefsteak.

U. S. WATER TERMINALS

Railways Prevent Development of Waterways Traffic, Says Government Investigator.

Washington, Sept. 27.—"Probably the greatest single deterrent to water terminal advance in the United States is the present adverse attitude of the rail lines toward independent water traffic, in their exclusive control of frontage, in refusal or neglect to coordinate general water traffic, and in refusal to promote generally with the water lines in through movement of traffic."

This is one of the conclusions of Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, in part 3. Just made public, of his report to the President on water transportation in the United States. After an exhaustive inquiry into the harbor situation of the country, and analysis of conditions, Commissioner Smith deals in this section of the report with water terminals and he finds five facts regarding them: That terminals are as important underlying relation of rail to water transport as channels; that the harbors of the country have not fully developed their terminal frontage, nor are they properly organized or controlled; that railways largely control water terminals, often to the disadvantage of general water traffic; that there is almost no linking up of the rail and general water systems at the water's edge, but rather the opposite tendency, and that there is little co-operation by localities with the Federal Government, which improves their channels.

Relating to railroad co-operation, Commissioner Smith says: "Until this underlying relation of rail to water transport is adjusted on some common sense basis of harmony, there is little hope of great advance in water terminal relations."

Lack of co-operation between localities and the Federal Government in water terminal development, he says, is in contrast with continental countries whose waterways have been most highly developed.

ANGLO-GERMAN DUKE

King George Said Not To Be Partial to His Expatriated Relative.

London, Sept. 27.—The Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha are touring England in an automobile, and it is rumored that their reception by King George at Balmoral was not marked by any great show of enthusiasm, because the duke chose to become a German for the sake of a title. The duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha was originally held by the brother of Queen Victoria's Prince Consort. When he died, the next heir was the late King Edward, but as the acceptance of the title meant the adoption of Germany as fatherland, his inheritance was out of the question.

The Duke of Edinburgh, his brother, however, accepted the Saxe-Coburg title. When he died his heir was the Duke of Connaught, but that typically English prince refused to give his fealty anywhere but to his motherland, so the throne was naturally offered to his son, Prince Arthur of Connaught.

He, too, refused it, and the title ultimately found its way to his cousin, the son of the Duchess of Albany, who was placed under the direct care of the Kaiser, and so became a German prince.

MASONIC CASE QUASHED.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—The famous Emancipation Lodge exposure case came to notice again today in the court of king's bench. This lodge of French Free Masons is the one that a month ago was said to be conspiring to damage the Eucharistic Congress. The exposure, which led to a civic investigation, was based on papers alleged to have been stolen by A. J. Lemieux from Larose, secretary of the lodge. Lemieux was indicted by the grand jury, and his case came up in the king's bench today, when Judge St. Pierre made the startling discovery that not a single paper in connection with the case had been signed by court officials.

There being no case to go on with the judge could do nothing but quash the indictment.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay in bed, and was unable to get up. I became very despondent and didn't care what happened to me. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. I was induced to consult Dr. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I clung to the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor rising through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so."

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 28.
 THE UPHEAVAL IN NEW YORK.

Roosevelt's election as temporary chairman of the New York Republican state convention yesterday was the most spectacular triumph the insurgents have yet scored. Hitherto their successes have been in the western states, where the movement originated.
 The Republican machine in New York was regarded as impregnable, and would no doubt have withstood any force but that of Roosevelt. The ex-president himself was an unexpected recruit to insurgency. Until two weeks ago there was no reason to believe that he would re-enter active politics so soon after reaching home.
 His irruption was hastened by the tactless course of Vice-President Sherman in proceeding to organize the state convention on machine lines without consulting Roosevelt, after the latter had intimated a desire to be included in the party councils.

Sherman's conduct threw Roosevelt at once into the insurgent camp. Then began a campaign for the Republican primaries, a feature of the American political system which has no counterpart in Canada. At the primaries each party chooses its delegates to the state convention, and the delegates choose the party candidates. If there are two factions in a party, each faction endeavors to elect delegates pledged to its own views. As the latter are ticketed and labeled, the proceedings of the convention are practically determined at the primaries. This machinery lends itself to "boss" manipulation. The boss controls a standing army, which in New York is said to represent 50 votes at each primary. In addition he has always a trained force of workers to bring to the primaries the voters believed to be favorable to delegates of his own choosing. Unless there is an insurrection in the party, the regular leaders have little difficulty in securing a hand-picked convention. That Roosevelt should have routed the "regulars" at the primaries in a two weeks' campaign is proof of his unique popularity, and of the widespread spirit of revolt in the Republican party.

Since the death of Lincoln the Republican party has been dominated by the plutocrats, but within the past few years Republicans like Cummins and Dooliver of Iowa, and La Follette of Wisconsin, have dared to challenge the rule of the moneyed oligarchy intrenching in the senate. Roosevelt also prepared the soil for the growth of new ideas, though under his presidency the party maintained an appearance of unity. It needed only vigorous leadership to bring to the surface the latent dissatisfaction. Today the wave of insurgency is sweeping over the whole country, and the Republican party must either be overwhelmed, or it must swim with the current. It looks as though President Taft had decided to take the tide at the flood, and throw Aldrich and Cannon overboard. The Republican party may yet save itself by transforming itself.

BRITAIN'S NAVY ALL RIGHT.

An address on the naval question delivered by Lord Brassey at Montreal recently has been published in pamphlet form. Lord Brassey is an acknowledged authority on naval matters. He is founder and editor of the Naval Annual, and a former secretary of the admiralty. He is a practical seaman as well.

Lord Brassey declares that as it stands today the British navy is fully up to the two-power standard. In the number of ships building and in the appropriation to construction in the present year Britain is slightly below
 the two-power standard, the two countries making the highest expenditure next to Great Britain being Germany and the United States. Great Britain is this year spending in naval maintenance and construction $203,- 000,000, as against Germany's $106,- 000,000 for the same purpose.

But, as Lord Brassey points out, efficiency in the navy depends not alone on ships. In no other country is naval training given on the scale to which it has been carried in the British navy. More than that, no navy compares with it in the number of ships permanently in commission, nor with respect to the number of naval forces mobilized for manoeuvres.

Lord Brassey's address should be read by the scare-mongers in this country, who proposed that Canada should at once present one or more Dreadnoughts to the mother country.
 Canadian politicians who had all along favored the alternative of a

Canadian navy professed to discover at the last moment that Britain's naval supremacy would be threatened by Germany within two or three years. It was a mere pretext for trumping up a party issue. The panic which partisans both in Canada and Great Britain tried to engineer is now an absurd memory.

IRELAND'S NEW ERA.

It would really seem that Ireland is at last coming to her own. For the first time since the famine there was last year an actual increase in the population—a small gain of only 115, but sufficient to indicate a turn in the tide.

The country is establishing firmly the improved position which she has gained in the markets of the United Kingdom. Last year her cattle trade showed an export value exceeding $51,- 098,250—the highest total but one in the past six years—while the total export value of what have been called
 "breakfast table commodities"—butter, bacon, eggs, hams, poultry, milk and cheese—is even more satisfactory, having reached a higher sum in 1909 than in any preceding year. In the case of butter the drought in the summer and autumn of last year caused a marked shrinkage in output, but the total value of exports of this commodity has risen steadily from $4,971,788 in 1904, to the record figure of $5,520,- 465 in 1909.

These figures make no allowance for home consumption. There has been a marked falling off in the imports of American bacon and hams into Ireland, and the Irish-cured article is replacing the imported in the home market.

It is interesting to note, as showing the extent of the market open to Ireland, that the total estimated value of the commodities mentioned imported into the United Kingdom from abroad amounted in 1909 to $264,375,493, of which Ireland supplied $54,520,038.
 From other reports similar expansion is seen in Irish industry. The political outlook also is brighter than ever before. A British Government is pledged to Irish self-government and, what is equally important, it is pledged to the destruction of the absolute veto of the House of Lords, which has been the impediment to home rule in the past. With the Irish owning the soil they till, and managing their local affairs, the Emerald Isle will feel the thrill of a new life.

The Republican party is shedding its old skin.

A heading, "An Insurance Cry," in yesterday's edition was a misprint for
 "An Insurance Cry."

Mr. Roosevelt has joined other reformers by declaring for direct primaries, under which the members of a party would choose their candidate directly, instead of delegating the choice to a convention. The reform would clip the claws of the bosses, who manipulate the primaries so to insure the election of their hired men
 as convention delegates.

Many Middlesex electors remember the late Lieutenant-Governor Fraser of Nova Scotia, "The Guyboro Giant."
 There are few parts of the country in which this stalwart Scotch-Canadian had not lifted his voice—a splendid organ it was—in the Liberal cause.
 He was one of the many big men sent from the smaller provinces by the sea—and educated in the small universities there.

Lord Northcliffe is building great pulp and paper plants in Newfoundland, but has stipulated that every ounce of material shall enter free of duty. In England he is an advocate of tariffs. His fiscal principles vary with the longitude.—London Advertiser.

"Nonsense. Northcliffe is a consistent protectionist in demanding that his raw material be admitted free of duty. That is a protectionist principle."—Hamilton Herald.

Nonsense. It is impossible to draw a line between raw and finished materials. Paper, ink, machinery, type, and scores of different articles are the raw materials of Lord North-cliff's publishing enterprises in Great Britain; but they are the finished products of other British manufacturers.

A PERENNIAL PERIL.

[Lady's Pictorial.]
 The crinoline of the fifties is believed to have been invented by one of three Frenchmen—a certain Joseph Thomas, who died a short time ago in the United States; a draper's assistant, who is nameless; or one Heidenreich, an executioner, who flourished during the Second Empire. On what one might very well call circumstantial evidence I rather favor the executioner.

It is pointed out that the soft hoop which now encircles so many smart skirts might easily develop into something much more substantial, and that from wearing beehive bonnets Dame Fashion might easily turn for variety to beehive petticoats. But I hope the No Crinoline League of 1855, if it is still in existence, has its corporate or secretarial eye on that hoop.

RAILROAD SCHOOL IN CHINA.

[Pail Mail Gazette.]
 An indication of the interest taken by the Central Government in the future of railways in China is afforded by the establishment last year, in connection with the ministry of communications at Peking,
 of a school for training railway officials.
 The school is built for 600 students, but the number is at present limited to 350,
 who come from all parts of the empire and vary in age from 18 to 25. There are about 20 teachers, including one British, one American (a drill sergeant), two French and two German. Most of the teachers are Chinese students returned from abroad, and they are well paid.

The curriculum includes the Chinese language, drill, geography, history of Chinese railways, physics, mathematics, drawing, chemistry, physics, elements of engineering—steam and electrical, workshop administration and railway company law.

WHITHER.

 No word!

Whither across the night
 Soul of mine?
 Back from its darting flight,
 No sign!

THE CITY FARMER.

[Denver Republican.]
 The average city man who tries farm life makes a failure of it.—Government report.

The city man upon the farm
 Has donned his stiff white collar;
 He ambles forth at ten o'clock
 To earn an honest dollar.

He strays into the garden plot
 And hoes for one brief hour;
 And trails all the truck that's there
 Save one small cauliflower.

He knocks off for his midday lunch—
 At two he tackles his bag;
 His back soon tires, and not three
 We find him homeward straying.

An hour at tennis—then he cranks
 His auto and goes spinning;
 At six he's back, and ends the day
 Of rural biscuit-winning.

There is no moral to this tale
 For you to gaze on raptily;
 The sheriff's notice on the gate
 Will summarize things aptly.

TELLING.

[Life.]
 Lots of people have to tell what they are going to do, or they would have nothing to tell.

THE PRACTICAL SIDE OF IT.

[Atlanta Constitution.]
 "Behold the tall pines," said the youth Just graduated from college. "How they speak to the soul as the wind whispers through their branches."
 The old man eyed him distrustfully.
 "John," he said, "what you need is exercise. Take that axe and cut down a dozen of 'em. Tomorrow's log-hauling day."

A Scientist on Spiritualism

[From the London Daily News.]

The deaths of two distinguished writers, both of whom had devoted much time to the investigation of spiritualism, have recently occurred within the same week. I refer to Professor William James and Mr. Frank Podmore. It is fortunate that the latter had just completed what we must regard as his most important book,
 the book, published today, which sums up the results of his prolonged inquiries on the subject of spiritualism.
 To this subject Mr. Podmore brought just that sort of intelligence which is indispensable if the study of the supernatural is to be put on a scientific basis. His criticisms tend to be destructive. He will accept no loose evidence; he demands rigorous experiment and verification. Every strange incident or startling communication
 he examines in the dry light of logic.
 Where others see no possible normal interpretation he insists ruthlessly on examining all the possibilities, and shows us that these things, at any rate, admit of an explanation which is not spiritualist. There are other more normal explanations which satisfy the conditions. If we are to frame an hypothesis, he prefers the hypothetical which is within the domain of human experience to the hypothetical wholly in another, conjectural, untested plane of the universe.

But he approaches these occult questions with respect. He would not interfere with your or my belief, but this which he is concerned with is a matter of science, of proof. He would not have the universe settled too easily. There is no disrespect to the hypothesis of departed souls or of particular deity when he denies that the one or the other is responsible for the table-turning of Daniel Home or Eusapia Palladino. He himself is not carried away by the darkest and most mysterious movements of the medium, the inexplicable writing, nor by the noble passion of proving that the human mind is capable of doing things that even such distinguished in-quirers as F. W. H. Myers, Sir Oliver Lodge, Lombroso, Dr. Hodgson, and William James could not wholly avoid the bias of their desire, and no such bias appears in Mr. Podmore.

Fraud.

His object in the first place is to put out of the discussion all the frauds and impostures. He distinguishes between two different kinds of frauds; those that are committed with intent to deceive, by the waking selves of the mediums, and those tricks or subterfuges which are practiced by the trance personalities who, in the subconscious or hidden part of the mind is in the ascendant. In charity he admits that even some of the more obvious frauds may be the result of without the full connivance of the ordinary, waking personality of the medium.

For some time the Psychological Research Society has abandoned serious inquiry into such feats as table-turning, levitation, materialization, elonga-tion of the medium, and the production of strange lights, and wisely, for these feats lent themselves too readily to trickery, and the study of them merely promoted fraud. There has been too little absurdity in the manners of these great seances allowed themselves to be deceived by the brilliant conjuring of Eusapia Palladino (effected possibly by her trance personality). In the past she has been exposed by some recent exposures of Eusapia's methods. Mr. Podmore examines in detail the evidence of her sittings, and shows that not one of them is convincing. He adds a note referring to two sufficiently conclusive sittings held last December and last April.
 During the latter:

While Eusapia's attention was momentarily diverted two extra sitters were introduced, who placed themselves flat on the floor, with their eyes
 only a few inches from Eusapia's feet.
 These observers were able to prove that at this particular seance the whole of the movements of the table, the bulging of the curtain, and the movements of objects in the cabinet were produced by Eusapia's free foot.
 She was enabled to free a foot because owing to the narrowness of the table
 the feet of the controllers were necessarily very close together, and it was an easy matter for Eusapia to make one foot do duty for two. The whole

STATUE TO GENERAL WOLFE.

[London Daily News.]
 Apropos of the 151st anniversary tomorrow of the conquest of Quebec by General Wolfe, I mention that the Wolfe memorial committee has entrusted the task of erecting the bronze statue of Wolfe, which is to be erected at Westminster, his birthplace, to Mr. F. Derwent Wood, A. R. S. The sculptor's first important work since his election to the Royal Academy, and the first statue of Wolfe in the British Empire. The figure will represent the famous young soldier as he appeared just prior to receiving the fatal bullet in the moment of victory.
 The fund is now all but completed, less than £100 being required. If no unforeseen obstacles occur, the unveiling will take place on Jan. 2 next, the hero's birthday.

SHEPARD MAY BE MAN FOR DEMOCRATS

Rochester Convention in a Fix
 For Candidates For Governor.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The men who will run the Democratic state convention that opens here tomorrow had a hard day's work before them today. The sudden and unexpected scratching of Mayor Gaynor's name from the list of gubernatorial candidates left the leaders confronting the problem to pick a candidate from the field that remained, with no one man looming pre-eminently above his rivals.
 There was no lack of gubernatorial timber today, but what the leaders wanted was a giant that spread its branches high above the surrounding forest.

"We can win with any clean man,"
 said one of the New York members,
 "but with Gaynor we should have cleaned up the state so that the Republican party would have had to go out of business."

Some of the leaders frankly admitted that having been disappointed in their expectation of getting a candidate with the spectacular attributes of Mayor Gaynor, the party must now devote us for this selecting another man with an absolutely clean record and few enemies. They believed that the issues and the opportunity were strong enough to win almost by themselves.

When Gaynor took himself out of the race the booms of Congressman Sulzer, Thomas M. Osborne and Congressman
 James S. Haven were the only active ones on the ground. Today, however, there was decidedly more discussion of the availability of Edward M. Shephard, of New York.

EMBRO HAPPENINGS.

SHOCKED TO DEATH.

Williamsport, Pa., Sept. 27.—While
 Mrs. Lewis Yarrington, of Rauchtown, was seated at the telephone last night
 during a heavy storm, waiting for central to give connection, a bolt of lightning struck the wire, killing her instantly. The same bolt dashed her sister from the porch, injuring her severely.

DOROTHY'S CALENDAR

When Dorothy smiles, 'tis sweetest
June;
Lark and linnet are all attune;
Bee in clover, and daisy white,
Whisper her name in fond delight.

When Dorothy frowns, the skies are grey;
'Tis chill November instead of May;
Shadows lie over vale and hill,
And whippoorwill cry, "Poor Will, poor Will."

When Dorothy frowns and smiles to-

Then I know it is April weather;
But I care naught what the weather is,
If she frowns on the world, but smiles
on me.

MEN MONOPOLIZE COMBS IN CEYLON.

The native men of Ceylon, where the tea comes from, wear combs in their coiffures. They adopted combs along with other civilized attributes, regardless of original use as to sex. But because the Cingalese men have taken this woman's privilege to themselves doesn't mean that they have handed over any of their privileges to the women in return. Not yet!

CYNTHIA GREY'S CORRESPONDENTS

Dear Miss Grey: I am only 17, and although my general health seems good, there are dark circles under my eyes. How can these be removed?

JUNIOR.
A.—Improve your intestinal indigestion. Eat less fatty, sweet, rich and meat foods. Eat plain bread and potatoes, with fresh fruits and vegetables, stewed vegetables, and one egg daily. Bathe the eyes in alternate hot and cold water once or twice a day.

Dear Miss Grey: In sending a souvenir postcard to a recent acquaintance, what salutation is proper? Should a girl sign her given name? Where should the address go? R. E. A.—"Greetings from" on first line, your full name just below at right, and the address on next line below at left.

Dear Miss Grey: I am only 12, am tall and thin, and wear No. 7 shoe. What kind of shoe will my feet look smallest in? I have a green felt hat. In what colors shall I trim it for fall?

THANKFUL.
A.—1. Since you are slender your feet are probably narrow, and you should wear narrow shoes, with rather low and broad heels. Don't trim it about the size of your feet—they look better larger than if they were too small. There's an old saying, "Large feet, keen wit. Small feet, little brain." Let that comfort you. 2. Trim it in wide satin ribbon, with very large bow. The ribbon should be but a shade darker than the hat.

Dear Miss Grey: 1. What will kill cutworms? 2. What is the first marriage anniversary? A READER.
A.—Wherever vegetation is killed, dig up worms and kill with hoe all you can find. Then mix paraffin green with middlings, using just enough of the paraffin green to slightly color the later. Add a very little water to it and scatter about the infested places. 2. Cotton.

CHURCH PROPERTY IN NEW YORK.

In New York Episcopal places of worship are worth $25,830,000; Presbyterian, $14,400,000; Methodist, $10,600,000; Baptist, $9,400,000; Reformed, $7,900,000; Lutheran, $6,300,000, and Congregational, $4,260,000. The value of church property in New York is $183,953,740, exclusive of parsonages, hospitals and asylums. The debts in New York are $19,062,419, or about 12.3 per cent. Boston has invested in churches $27,000,000, with debts of 7 per cent of their value. Chicago has the same sum invested, with 15 1/2 per cent debts; Baltimore, $14,000,000, with debts of 10 1/2 per cent; Philadelphia, $6,000,000, with 9 per cent debts; and Washington, $10,000,000, with 10 1/2 per cent debts.—The Christian Herald.

Beaver cloth toques and turbans, either self or velvet trimmed, will be extensively seen this fall and winter.

"I'll Tell Papa!" Said Sonny

What Grandmother Did Then Was Sufficiency—A Little Talk on Boy Management by Cynthia Grey.

Father was a commercial traveller and seldom at home. Consequently his eight-year-old son was to him the most marvellous boy he'd ever seen. He couldn't understand how HE, with all his shortcomings, ever had the luck to be "father" to a boy like his.

When mother saw fit to chide this prodigy, father was horrified. Of course, MOTHER knew just how vexatious sonny could be occasionally during the days that father was away, but father only knew him at his best. Mother had a sneaking belief that she wasn't firm enough with her small boy, but it was easier to drift—and so it went on.

To sonny, father was a never-failing source of interest. What wonderful tales of the big world he could tell! And then, too, father appreciated HIM! So sonny WAS an "angel child" while he was being so delightfully entertained. What child wouldn't be?

Well, sonny soon discovered that father didn't approve when mother scolded, and he was cunning enough to make the best of it—for he DID hate to be corrected! So he laid for mother, and the next time she rebuked him he astounded her by whispering, "I'll tell papa on you!" Mother immediately surrendered and smothered the youngster with caresses, saying to herself, "Maybe I AM too severe with the child."

This trump card he used more and more, often with telling effect on mother, but his day of reckoning came. After grandmother, papa's mother, had overheard it a time or two, she was so disgusted that she calmly laid the youngster over her knee one day and administered a thorough and complete spanking.

"There!" she exclaimed. "Tell your pa that his mother gave you just what you deserved!"

To mother she said, for her blood was up: "You are really to blame, daughter, for you should have settled him the very first time he threatened to tattletale. Boys are really naturally chivalrous, and that trait is a good foundation to work on. Children are so easily spoiled. If you would just make sonny feel that he is your protector—that he is the man of the house while father is away—it would be the making of him. Appeal to his latent sense of responsibility, talk with him, reason with him, and I'll wager he'll not threaten you again. On the contrary, he'll soon be telling the children what a dandy chum mother is and how he is taking care of her."

And wasn't grandmother right? I'm sure of it. The sooner the facility for doing things and the accompanying sense of responsibility for the doing are taught children, the more firmly will the love of the duties become a part of their characters.

Wise mothers will begin at the cradle to adopt this theory to the mental, moral and physical uplift of their little ones. Every child is born with a wonderful instinct for good in its heart, and the mother's power to stimulate this natural desire is almost immeasurable.

Look Out For The Advertiser's New Story

The opening chapter will appear on this page Saturday, Oct. 1.

The title of the new story is "THE SON OF THE IMMORTALS."

The author of the new story is Louis Tracy, who wrote "The Wings of the Morning," "The King of Diamonds" and other popular stories. A new Tracy story is an event in the publishing world, and the newspaper that gets it is fortunate.

Watch for the first instalment in The Advertiser on Saturday.

FASHIONS

The drum-shaped muff, much larger, though, than the shape our grandmothers carried, will be one of the fashions of the coming season.

Girdles and belts of satin are again fashionable for dresses of crepe or marquisette. They are fastened at the left side in front and finished with only one long streamer caught at hem of skirt.

Because of the popularity of all shades of grey, there is again the return to fashion of cup of steel. Many of the designs are copies of those worn in the eighteenth century. Pendants, buttons, buckles, bag ornaments and slides to wear on velvet throatelets are among the novelties.

Street shoes of calfskin and even of patent leather will be severely tailored with plain-stitched seams, and with only the smallest of eyelet holes. The evening slippers and pumps will be as elaborate as the individual taste and purse will warrant. They will be made of velvet, satin, kid and suede, and will be decorated with fancy rosettes of ribbon, tulle or flowers.

Girdles of satin, taffeta and moire ribbons are seen on street and fancy gowns that have just arrived from Paris. The favorite arrangement is in pleated form, with long ends reaching almost to the knee and laid in fine pleats. These are caught together several inches above the ends with a covered buckle or passementerie ornament, or at the very end, in which case a tassel or padded pendant ornament is attached. Frequently the pleated ribbon is knotted near the end.

Narrow black velvet ribbons are used in several rows as edge trimmings on afternoon gowns, while velvet ribbon, from one to two inches wide, in light colors, is used for the same purpose on evening gowns of satin or chiffon.

When a Man Marries

By Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Copyrighted, 1910, Bobbs-Merrill Co.
Mr. Harbison went out, muttering something about a storm coming up, and seeing that the tent was secure. Betty Mercer went with him. She had been at his heels all evening, and called him "son" on every possible occasion. Indeed, she made no secret of it; she said that she was mad about him, and that she would love to live in South America with him, and have an Indian squaw for a lady's maid, and sit out on the verandah in the Southern Cross shooting across the sky, and eat tropical fruit from the quaint Indian pottery. She was not even daunted when Dal told her the Southern Cross did not shoot, and that the food was probably canned corn on tin dishes.

So Betty went with him. She wore a pale yellow dinner gown, with just a sophisticated touch of black here and there, and cut modestly square in the neck. Her shoulders are scrawny. And after they were gone—not her shoulders; Mr. Harbison and she—Aunt Selma announced that the next day was Monday, and that she had only a week's supply of clothing with her, and that no policeman who ever swung a mace should wash her. She paused a moment, but nobody offered to do it. Anne was reading De Maupassant under cover of a table, and the rest pretended not to hear. After a pause Aunt Selma got up heavily and went upstairs, coming down soon after with a bundle covered with a green shawl, and with a white brilliantine stocking training for an opening in it. She paused at the library door, surveyed the inmates, caught my unlucky eye and beckoned to me with a relentless forefinger.

"We can put them to soak tonight," she confided to me, "and tomorrow they will be quite simple to hear. After a lace to speak of—Dal raised his eyebrows and very little measure, "—and I went to the laundry. It never occurred to anyone that Bella should have gone; she had stepped into all my privileges—such as they were—and assumed none of my obligations. Aunt Selma and I went to the laundry, and I was washing up the kitchen floor with cold dishwater, it would have developed sooner. The two most unexpected events of the whole quarantine occurred that night at the same time, one on the roof and one in the cellar. The cellar one, although curious, was not so serious as the other, so it comes first.

Aunt Selma put her clothes in a tub in the laundry and proceeded to dress like a vegetable. She threw in a handful of salt, some kerosene oil and a bit of ammonia. The result was villainous, but after she tasted it—she sniffed it—she said it needed a bar of soap cut up to give it strength—or flavor—and I went into the storeroom.

The laundry soap was in a box. I took in silver fork, for I hated to touch the stuff, and subbed a brush successfully in the semi-darkness. Then I carried it to the laundry and dropped it on the table. Aunt Selma looked at the fork with disgust; then we both looked at the soap. It was covered with round holes that curved around on each other like a coiled snake.

Into the storeroom, and there, a little bit sticky, and smelling terribly of rosin, lay Anne's pearl necklace!

I was so excited that I seized Aunt Selma by the hands and danced all over the place. Then I left her, trying to tell the others. I met Betty in the hall and waved the pearls at her. But she did not notice them.

"Is Mr. Harbison there?" she asked breathlessly. "I left him on the roof and he hasn't come down."

"Don't be a shrew, Kit," she said. "He isn't here. He doesn't seem to be in the house." She tried to laugh, but her voice was shaky. "He couldn't have got down without passing me, anyhow," she supplemented. "I suppose I'm silly, but so many queer things have happened, Kit."

"I wouldn't worry, Betty," I soothed her. "He is big enough to take care of himself. And with the best intentions in the world, you can't have him all the time, you know."

She was too much startled to be indignant. She followed me into the library. When I had been over ever inch of it, I produced a tremendous excitement, and then every-where the necklace had been and marmosets and Max examined all the bars of soap.

Mr. Harbison did not appear. Max commented on the fact caustically, but he had up. And so, Anne hugged her pearls, and Aunt Selma having put a final seasoning of washing powder on the tub, we all went upstairs to bed. It had been a long day, and the morning would at least bring bright.

I was almost ready for bed when Jim tapped at my door. I had been very cool to him since the night in the library when I was publicly asked and married, and he was almost cringing when I opened my door.

"What is it now?" I asked, cruelly. "Has Bella tired of it already, or has somebody else a rash?"

"Don't be a shrew, Kit," he said. "I don't want you to do anything. I only—when did you see Harbison last?"

"If you mean the last of him yet," I said. "I haven't seen the last of him yet."

"Then I saw that he was really worried," Betty was leading him to the roof. "I added, 'Why? Is he missing?'"

"He isn't anywhere in the house. Dal and I have been over ever inch of it." Max had come up, in a dressing-gown, and was watching me insolently.

"I think we have seen the last of him," he said. "I'm sorry, Kit, to nip the little romance in the bud. The fellow was crazy about you—there's no doubt of it. But I've been watching him from the beginning, and I think I'm upheld. Whether he went down the back stairs or across a board to the next house—"

"I—I dislike him intensely," I said angrily, but you would not dare to say that to his face. He could strangle you with one hand."

Max laughed disagreeably. "Well, I only hope he is gone," he threw at me over his shoulder. "I wouldn't want to be responsible to your father if he had stayed." I was speechless with wrath.

They went away then, and I could hear them going over the house. At one o'clock Jim went up to bed, the last, and Mr. Harbison had not been found. I did not see how they could go to bed at all. If he had escaped, then Max was right and the whole thing was heart-breaking. And if he had not, then he might be lying—"

I got up and dressed.

The odd part of the night had been cloudy, but when I got to the roof it was clear starlight. The wind blew through the electric wires strung across and set them singing. The occasional beat of a belated automobile on the drive below came up to me raucously. The tent gleamed, a starlit ghost of itself, and the boxwoods bent in the breeze. I went over to the parapet and leaned my elbows on it. I had done the same thing so often before; I had carried all my times of stress so infallibly to that particular place that instinctively my feet turned there.

And there in the starlight I went over the whole series—comedy, and I loathed my part in it. He had been perfectly right to be angry with me and with all of us. And I had been a hypocrite and a Pharisee, and had thanked God that I was not as other people, when the fact was that I was worse than the worst. And although it wasn't denied to think of him going down the drain pipe, still—no one could blame him for wanting to get away from us, as he was quite muscular enough to do it.

I was in the depths of self-abasement when I heard a sound behind me. It was a long breath, quite audible, that ended in a groan. I gripped the parapet and listened, while my heart pounded, and in a minute it came again.

I was terribly frightened. Then—I don't know how I did it, but I was across the roof, kneeling beside the tent, where it stood against the chimney. And there, lying prone among the flowers, I was almost entirely hidden, was the man we had been looking for.

His head was toward me, and I reached out shakily and touched his face. It was cold, and my hand, when I drew it back, was covered with blood.

CHAPTER XXII.
It Was Delirium.

I was sure he was dead. He did not move, and when I caught his hands and called him frantically he did not hear me. And so, with the horror over me, I half fell down the stairs and roused Jim in the studio.

They all came with lights and blankets, and they carried him into the tent and put him on the couch and tried to put whiskey in his mouth. But he could not swallow. And the silence became more and more ominous until finally Anne got hysterical and cried, "He is dead! dead!" and collapsed on the roof.

But he was not. Just as the lights, in the tent began to have red strings around them and Jim's voice came from away across the river, somebody said, "There, he swallowed that," and soon after he opened his eyes. He muttered something that sounded like "Andean pinnacles" and lapsed into unconsciousness again. But he was not dead! He was not dead!

When the doctor came they made a stretcher out of one of Jim's six-foot canvases—it had a picture on it, and Jim was angry enough the next day—and took him down to the studio. We made it as much like a sick-room as we could, and we tried to make him comfortable. But he lay without opening his eyes, and at last the doctor brought a consultant and a trained nurse.

The nurse was an offensively capable person. She put us all out, and scolded Anne for lighting Japanese incense in the room—although Anne explained that it is very reviving. And she said that it was unnecessary to have a dozen people breathing up all the oxygen and asphyxiating the patient. She was good-looking, too. I disliked her at once. Anyone could see by the way she took his pulse—just letting his poor hand hang, without any support—that she was a purely mechanical creature, without heart.

Well, as I said before, she put us all out and shut the door, and asked us not to whisper outside. Then, too, she refused to allow any flowers in the room, although Betty had got a florist out of bed.

CAUTION.—Be careful to inclose above mentioned and send size of pattern wanted. When the pattern is sent measure, you need only mark it 32, 34, or whatever may be. When in waist measure, 22, 24, 26, or whatever it may be. If a skirt, give waist and length measure. When misses' or child's pattern, write only the figure representing the size. It is not necessary to write "inches" or "yards." Measure one week from the date of order. The price of each pattern is 10 cents in cash or in postage stamps.

the boxwoods bent in the breeze. I went over to the parapet and leaned my elbows on it. I had done the same thing so often before; I had carried all my times of stress so infallibly to that particular place that instinctively my feet turned there.

And there in the starlight I went over the whole series—comedy, and I loathed my part in it. He had been perfectly right to be angry with me and with all of us. Two Minute Talks About

PANDORA RANGE

for Coal or Wood

THE Pandora is the range of many conveniences. It has a special Flue Construction which enables you to cook over every pot hole and bake in the oven at the same time. It has a Steel Oven which reaches baking heat faster than a cast iron oven. It has an absolutely Level Oven Bottom which prevents pies from running over. It has a tested, reliable Thermometer with easy-to-read figures.

The Pandora also has an Interchangeable Cooking Top. You can set a boiler lengthwise or crosswise on the stove. You can remove the Fire Box Linings instantly with your hands. You can change the Grates from coal to wood in a few seconds. You can sharpen your knives on the Emery Section of the Patented Towel Bar.

Still other conveniences are the Larger Ash Pan—the easily-cleaned Enamelled Steel Reservoir—the smooth as glass Burnished Surface which only requires polishing once a week—the Perfect Spring High Closet Door which provides room for fourteen more dinner or dessert plates in the Polished Steel Warming Closet.

Several other conveniences described in our Pandora Booklet. Send for a copy.

IRISH ENTERTAINERS FOR A GOOD PURPOSE

Dr. Collison and Percy French
Here Under Auspices of the
I. B. S. of London.

The Irish Benevolent Society will give an entertainment at the Grand Opera House on Friday, Oct. 14, when Dr. Collison and Mr. Percy French, two of the most renowned entertainers in the British Isles, and both of them Irishmen, will appear. The funds thus raised will be used for benevolent purposes. It was thought that the society should take over the Recreation Building of the Byron Sanatorium, and pay for its erection. A number of the members were favorable to this, but it was decided to lay the matter over for a time.

Mr. Philip Pocock introduced the proposition, and heartily supported it. The men who wished to come to London were the best in the land, and ranked with the highest-class entertainers to be found anywhere.

As for the purposes of the funds, he thought that the sanatorium should be considered. Securing the money for purposes of looking after poor consumptives was a most worthy object.

He advised delay as to the disposal of the fund, as there was a scheme on that would materially assist the society.

President Stevely was empowered to sign contracts with the artists and appoint a committee to complete the arrangements.

A report of the picnic held by the society on Aug. 11 was read by the secretary, E. J. Carty. The receipts were $317 10, and the expenditures amounted to $700 44, leaving a balance of $116 66.

The report was received and filed.

Those present were President S. Stevely, Secretary Ed. J. Carty, Philip Pocock, R. McMordie, Dr. Shoebottom, John Stevely, A. B. Greer, John Porttall, John M. Daly, W. A. Martin, Fire Chief Aitken, W. Cooney, Peter Taffe, Harry Merritt, J. F. Crummy, Jeremiah Loughlin, and others.

IF LORDS HOLD OUT POLLS IN JANUARY

Redmond at Buffalo Says Home Rule Party May Force
New Election.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Irishmen from all parts of Canada and the United States today rallied to the standard of John E. Redmond and his colleagues in the Irish Nationalist party. It was the opening of the fifth biennial national convention of the United Irish League, but the sessions resolved themselves into a continuous eulogy of Redmond, Devlin, O'Connor and their colleagues.

Money pledges to the home rule cause came from all quarters, Montreal Irishmen stating in a telegram that they would raise $10,000.

Mr. Redmond was one of the speakers at the opening session. His review of the things accomplished in the last ten years aroused great enthusiasm.

"We are assembled here today to forward a great goal of national independence," said Mr. Redmond. "We did not come across the ocean to ask you for either your material or your moral help to get any minor reforms. We have come to tell you that we believe now that all our energies should be concentrated in an effort to settle in our lifetime the question of national self-government. We believe that at this moment we are in a position by which we can achieve that, and we have come without doubt or hesitation or misgiving to ask the Irishmen of this great continent to make one supreme effort to strengthen our arms that we will be able to achieve home rule for Ireland in the immediate future."

In another address to the convention tonight, Mr. Redmond said that a conference had been arranged between the partisans of the House of Lords and their opponents, the result of which would not be known until Parliament reopens on Nov. 15.

If that conference leads to a compromise whereby the House of Lords will agree to surrender the power of rejecting any bill, then the great obstacle in the way of home rule will have disappeared.

"If on the contrary, the conference fails then the fight against the Lords will instantly revive and there will be a general election in January upon that issue."

The Times, London.

A. McKim, Limited, the well-known advertising Agents—Montreal and Toronto—have been appointed sole agents in Canada for financial advertising in the Times.

Only a few years ago it was quite a rare thing to see Canadian advertising to any extent in any London daily, but things have changed. Big things are being done every day in Canada now and people of Great Britain and the continent who have money to invest are anxiously looking for information about Canadian industries. The Times, perhaps more than any other paper in the world, is looked to for reliable information of this kind and the Canadian Government, the railways, the Canadian banks, the larger brokerage firms and financial agents are beginning to use the Times and other foreign papers to make known to the moneyed people of the old world the details of Canadian enterprises.

The Times is to be congratulated on the appointment of the McKim Agency as its representative in this country.

DOUGS GOOD SETTLERS

C. N. R. Official Pays Tribute to Their Energies.

Winnipeg, Sept. 27.—George Stephen, general freight agent of the N. R., who has returned from a visit to the Doukhobor colony at Verigin, is very enthusiastic over those much abused people.

"While I always understood that the Doukhobors were progressive and modern people, I was simply astonished at their progressiveness and modern methods. Thrashing operations commenced last week and no less than 40 threshing outfits, owned outright and manned by the Doukhobors themselves, commenced work with instructions to operate in two shifts of twelve hours each, that is, day and night, until all the grain has been threshed. This year's crop of grain, particularly in oats, is the largest harvested by the Doukhobors since they came to Canada, and it is expected that threshing operations will continue well into November."

They are Enterprising.

"In addition to the raising of grain the Doukhobors are engaged in horse raising. They have also an up-to-date flour mill with a capacity of 200 barrels per day. Then, too, they manufacture brick on a reasonably large scale, and find a ready market for all they can produce."

While Verigin is the headquarters of the Doukhobors, the people, who number about 7,000, are distributed throughout the territory occupied by them, into 41 villages, each of which has a population of from 100 to 200. Another feature indicating the progressiveness of the Doukhobors is their private long distance telephone system of some 100 odd miles. I believe that the Doukhobors are an acquisition to western Canada. They are producers in the fullest meaning of the word."

INTO THE ARCTIC.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 27.—Harry V. Radford, of New York, and two companions have started on a five-years' exploring trip to the Arctic regions. They will follow the trails of the Canadian mounted police, along the shores of Hudson Bay into the Arctic.

MAKE ALL MISERY IN STOMACH VANISH IN FIVE MINUTES BY TAKING A LITTLE DIAPEPSIN NOW

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn, Headache and other distress
will go in five minutes.

If you had some Diapepsin handy and would take a little now your stomach distress or indigestion would vanish in five minutes and you would feel fine.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, out-of-order stomach before you realize it.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lay like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drug store waiting for you. These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disturbance.

"A Winning Miss."

Max Bloom, who plays in "A Winning Miss" at the Grand on Monday, will be remembered for his connection with "The Mayor of Tokio," and he has a much larger scope to show his versatility in this vehicle.

The music hits in "A Winning Miss," are "Eve," "The Land of Tomorrow," "Mean Thing," "Different Ways of Making Love," and "Did You Ever See So Many Funny Looking Hats."

The costuming of the show people will prove a revelation to the audience.

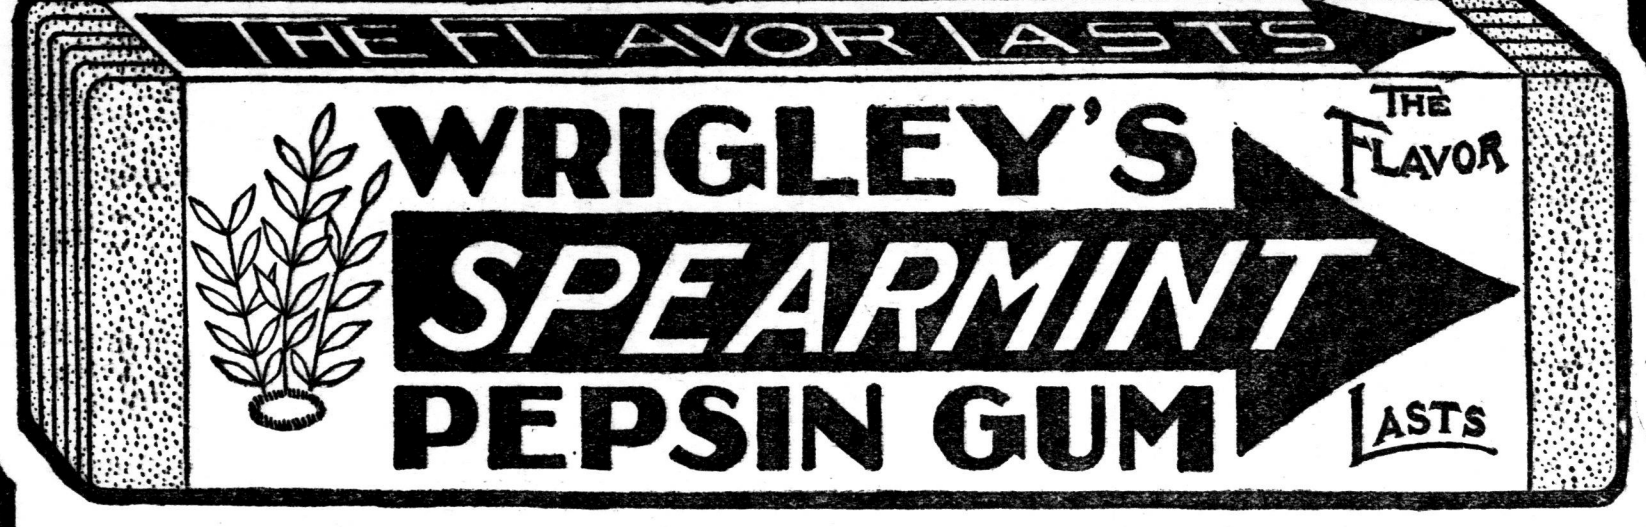

"The Travelling Salesman."

"The Travelling Salesman," James Forbes' latest comedy, which Henry B. Harris will present at the Grand Opera House Tuesday, Oct. 4, is being designated by some of the press and public as one of the greatest comedy successes. The faithfulness with which Mr. Forbes has depicted certain incidents in the life of a drummer on the road is worthy of

Thursday at the Grand.

Miss Thelma Fair, who plays the title role in "The Girl From Rector's," which will be seen at the Grand Opera House Thursday night, Sept. 29, it is said, enjoys the reputation in New York of being one of the best-dressed women either on or off the stage. She has made a study of women's garb in America and Europe, and in addition to the fact that she designs all of her own garments, she is often called upon in the off season to pass upon styles created by the experts in the famous stores of the metropolis. Seat plan now open.

Romona, in "The Vulture."

Romona, the girl with the unknown power within her eyes, is a new and peculiar character to the modern stage. The power is unknown to herself and in modern times is called hypnotism. Romona, whose education has been limited to the teaching of one man, shocks and startles Herbert Hackett by her innocent overture of love upon first meeting him. This supplies a very pretty comedy vein, which runs all through the four acts of the play. It will appear at the Grand Opera House Friday night, Sept. 30, at popular prices.

Domenico Russo With Aborn Opera.

Domenico Russo, the Italian tenor, with the Aborn English Grand Opera Company, seems almost as much an American as an Italian, for he has been singing on this side of the Atlantic for more than a decade. His first trip over was to South America, more than ten years ago, and he had sung there for two seasons before he ever came to North America. His first appearance on this continent was at Mexico City, and his first in the United States was at San Francisco, in which city he appeared at the Tivoli Opera House. Tetrazzini, the great coloratura soprano, also made her first appearance in America at the Tivoli, and Sig. Russo sang opposite to her there before Hammerstein brought her to New York via Italy. The seats are now selling for both performances on Saturday.

"The Travelling Salesman."

"The Travelling Salesman," James Forbes' latest comedy, which Henry B. Harris will present at the Grand Opera House Tuesday, Oct. 4, is being designated by some of the press and public as one of the greatest comedy successes. The faithfulness with which Mr. Forbes has depicted certain incidents in the life of a drummer on the road is worthy of commendation. It has been approved by critics of Toronto and Montreal.

WHAT IS PROPER
LENGTH OF NOVEL?

H. G. Wells Answers by Asking What Is Correct Size for a Painting.

London, Sept. 27.—The silly season in the British world of letters has been enlivened by a discussion in newspapers and elsewhere as to whether the modern fiction writer is too verbose. Library subscribers expect a minimum of 80,000 words for each novel they take home to read. Several of the American day novels most popular with British readers this year, have been well over 100,000 words in length. There is indeed reason to believe that a good market exists on this side for more novels in the form of a trilogy, such as Frank Norris attempted in the "Octopus" and the "Pit."

Nothing like unanimity of opinion is to be found among authors and publishers as to the proper length of the novel, in spite of much talk. One publisher significantly pointed out that "Ships That Pass in the Night," a very popular novel in its day, was far shorter than the average volume of present-day fiction. And as William de Morgan's stories have run to as many as 300,000 words, no hard and fast rule can be laid down as to length.

H. G. Wells gave the coup de grace to this controversy by sarcastically asking what should be the right size of a picture.

AGAINST RECIPROCITY

Sir George W. Ross Opposes It Even in Natural Products.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—Sir George W. Ross, in a two-column article in the Globe today, opposes reciprocity with the United States. He even questions the advisability of the free interchange of natural products, on the grounds that in some instances it would mean a revolution in our transportation system in which Canada has spent hundreds of millions since reciprocity was in force in 1866 and that it would imperil imperial interests.

OWN THE RIGHT CAR
WITH THE RIGHT EQUIPMENT

Here is the equipment of the 1911

RUSSELL-KNIGHT 38

Attention to details is what makes for satisfaction in a motor car today. Generally manufacturers, even with high-grade cars, have sold them with only a small part of the equipment needed by the user. Then the extra equipment was added by the agent or purchaser. Often this was very ill-suited to the car and marred the effect, and the satisfaction got from the car.

We supply the Russell "38" with practically a complete equipment. Any extras wanted can be added without affecting the car. Our equipment has been studied out and forms a complete unit in harmony with the car.

Regular Equipment Includes
Selected head lamps and Prest-O-Lite tank Bosch magneto and accumulator (double

BLANKET FOUND

He said he saw his daughter alive for the last time at 7 o'clock last Tuesday morning. He was at work all day, and when he returned from work he remained in his home until about 10 o'clock, when he saw his daughter, who was alone, sitting on the bed. He went home, when Lizzie did not return with him, the boy was questioned, and said he had not seen her since 8 o'clock. Mr. Anderson waited half an hour, and then went out to the Colborne Hotel, thinking his daughter might have stayed with her sister. She was not there, and he went home, arriving about 11:30. He then took a lantern and went to the room occupied by Mamie, the Italian, to see if she was there, and found him in bed. Mamie said he had been speaking to Lizzie about 8 o'clock.

Speaking of his daughter, Anderson said the girl strongly resented any suspicion of intimacy on the part of young men. He did not think she could be induced to go with a stranger at any time. On his second trip to town, he continued, he was accompanied by his wife, his son, and a neighbor. They went to the fair grounds after midnight, and asked for Lizzie. His wife and son went to Lizzie's house and knocked at the door, but got no answer.

The search party then went home, and after getting something to eat, Anderson again returned to town, leaving at 5 o'clock. He waited around the Colborne Hotel until someone got up, and then he went to Lizzie's house. Then he went to Lizzie's house, and found her in bed. He did not see her, but he was informed that Lizzie was not there, he asked where "Punk" was. Mrs. Jardine said her son, Edward, known as "Punk," was sleeping in a room on the far side of the house, and was told there never had been a tent there. He continued the search for his daughter, day and night, and found her body about 10 o'clock on Sunday morning in the cellar. The gate leading to the grounds of the house, he said, was shut and tied with a rope. The house was visited after a search of a couple of hours along the river bank. It was on his own suggestion that the deserted house was visited. Asked if Mamie ever carried a knife, Anderson said he had never seen the Italian carry one. He did not lend his own knife to Mamie at all. The coroner reminded Anderson that Tuesday was the big night of the fair, and that he must be wrong in his calculations when he said the Colborne Hotel was closed at 10:30 on his first trip to Goderich. Mrs. Jardine said the lights were all out, and the doors closed.

Lizzie Took Fits.
Mrs. Mary Ann Anderson said her daughter left for the fair grounds at 2 o'clock, after promising to return with her brother about 10 o'clock. She took 35 cents with her. Mrs. Anderson thought her son Willie reached home about 8:30. She did not hear the boy say anything about having heard the town clock strike ten. The boy said he thought Lizzie was home, as he had seen her at half-past six. Mrs. Anderson said she had called at the Jardine house about 2 o'clock on Wednesday morning. She knocked loudly on the door several times, but no one answered. Jardine had called on her last night, she said, but did not mention anything about Lizzie. Mrs. Jardine had called on Mrs. Anderson on two occasions. Mrs. Anderson twice stated that Albert Jardine had not visited them on any other occasion, but under pressure from the coroner, she admitted that he had been at her house twice before. "My daughter took fits or fainting spells at times," continued Mrs. Anderson. "She would froth at the mouth, get deaf, and fall down. My husband used to take similar fits. He seldom was cross with Lizzie."

Miss Elsie Anderson, sister of the murdered girl, saw Albert Jardine at her home last night.

"Did he talk about your sister?" asked the coroner.

"Yes," he said he was sorry about the whole thing. He went to the house in the afternoon, and stayed till about 10 o'clock.

"Was he there when the police were there?"

"Yes, he was in the kitchen," Willie Anderson told of meeting his sister in the fair grounds, where she said she was going home at 9 o'clock, and Eddie Jardine was going to meet her at the corner to take her home. Willie went to meet his sister, and when she did not appear, he thought she had gone. He went straight home, arriving at 10:30. The boy corroborated the evidence of the search for his sister.

Jardine's Movements.
Mrs. Elizabeth Jardine said she had four sons, Thomas, Edward, Charles and Frank, living at home, and two, John and George, married, while Albert boarded in Goderich. She was well acquainted with the Anderson family, and sometimes visited them.

Her son Edward arrived home about 8 o'clock last Tuesday evening, after being out about one hour and a quarter. He stayed in the house where he stayed for about an hour before going into the house to bed, as it was too cold to sleep outside.

"Do you remember saying that the boys slept in the tent Tuesday night?" asked Mr. Seager.

"I think I said Monday night," Mrs. Jardine replied.

"You said positively yesterday that they slept there Tuesday, and showed us the tent," continued the coroner.

"Well, perhaps I did." "Then, they didn't sleep in the house that night at all?"

Mrs. Jardine revealed that the boys slept in the tent Tuesday, but since that time they had been sleeping in the house. When he went home Tuesday, Eddie said he had lost Lizzie Anderson in the fair grounds. He spoke of having seen Lizzie talking to a man wearing a brown suit with a red tie in his hat. Mrs. Jardine said she did not hear the noise of anyone coming out of the door, as she is a sound sleeper. She declared she did not tell Mr. Anderson her son was sleeping in a tent on the fair grounds, but said he was sleeping on the bed in the tent. She was positive she had not mentioned the grounds.

Edward Jardine Called.
When Edward Jardine was called, Coroner Holmes suggested that he be the young man under suspicion.

Jardine could scarcely walk into the courtroom, so badly is he crippled by rheumatism. He told of his visit to the fair, and said he saw Lizzie Anderson at 7:15. When he gave her 15 cents. At 7:30 he saw the girl talking at the chicken-house to a tall, stout, clean-shaven man in a brown suit, wearing a black Christie.

With a narrow band, and a small red ticket stuck in the band. He could not describe anyone else he had seen that day. He and his brother Tom, he said, slept in the house Tuesday night, as it was too cold to sleep in the tent.

"You told me last Wednesday that you slept in the tent all Tuesday night, and your mother has just sworn you slept in the tent," said Mr. Seager.

"I made a mistake," said Jardine, "and I guess my mother was asleep when we went into the house from the tent. We got up early in the morning, and went out to the tent, where we fell asleep again."

Jardine denied telling Lizzie he would meet her at 9 o'clock, and said the girl must have been telling an untruth. He denied his mother's statement that he went home for tea at 6:30, and then went back to the grounds. He said he took his lunch in his pocket.

Thomas Jardine corroborated his brother, and said their mother spoke to them when they went into the house, after finding it too cold in the tent.

Herbert and Charles were called and swore Edward had tea at 6 o'clock before going to the fair. Charles swore Tuesday and Thomas slept in the house Tuesday night. At 7 o'clock Wednesday morning he said Edward and Thomas were in bed in the house.

"Your brothers have sworn that they got up at 5 o'clock and went to the tent."

"They were in bed in the house when I left to go to work." "Then you all sat down at tea together?"

"Yes." "Well, Edward says he was not there, and that he took his lunch with him. He says he left home at 2 o'clock, and didn't get back till eight."

"He came home and sat down to the table with us." Mamie Spatoro gave a satisfactory explanation of his movements last Tuesday evening.

Murder About Midnight.
If the evidence given and statements made by people living in the vicinity of the house where the body of Lizzie Anderson was found turn out to be correct, the girl must have been murdered about 1 o'clock last Tuesday night. Two of the neighbors, Mrs. Donald Buchanan and Mrs. Millon, stated positively that they heard the abandoned homestead. Mrs. Buchanan stated she heard a woman's screams and listened. About five minutes later she heard another scream, but as she heard no more she supposed that someone going home from the fair had been skylarking and paid no further attention to it.

Frank Jardine, the brother of Edward, is quite friendly with the Anderson family. He drove the dead girl's sister about town yesterday morning, and later drove to Duncannon with the girl and her father for the purpose of choosing a plot in which to bury the murdered girl. Anderson has buried five children, and as they all are in the cemetery at Duncannon, he wished to bury Lizzie there.

Chief Pottier, thwaite, drove to the country yesterday morning for the purpose of interviewing some of the special constables who were on duty the day of the fair, but gathered no new information, except the fact that Constable Steele had seen the murdered girl about nine or half past nine Tuesday night near one of the booths used by a sideshow on the fair grounds.

THE WELSH CHOIR.

The Mountain Ash male choir of Wales, which is to appear in the Auditorium for two evenings, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, is, according to the Philadelphia Record, the best male choir that ever visited this country. Dr. Turpin, the noted musical critic, commenting on their singing, said: "We have heard today the finest voices in the world. The rendering of the Mountain Ash choir was perfection."

Arizona Earthquakes Start a Panic

Flagstaff, Ariz., Sept. 27.—A territory, 50 miles square, extending from here to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado River, tonight stands practically depopulated because of earthquakes and rumblings which, beginning on Saturday, are steadily increasing in magnitude and violence. Indians, of whom there were many in the region, fled when the quakes began. Tribal tales of the ancient activities of now burned-out craters, of which there are more than 50 in the region, hastened their flight. The

BRUTAL TREATMENT

Man Who Ruined Her Made

ADMITS KILLING A CHILD

Found Guilty of Murder, But Pleads That Man Forced Her To Take Life.

Barrie, Sept. 27.—Guilty of murder, with a recommendation to mercy, was the verdict of the jury at 6 o'clock this evening in the case against Mary Dolan, of Orillia, charged with the murder of her babe on March 26. The judge reserved sentence. The verdict, although expected, came as a shock to the spectators in the crowded courtroom upon whom the prisoner's pitiful story had made a deep impression. When placed on the witness stand this morning, Miss Dolan in response to questioning by Mr. T. C. Robinette, told of the birth of a former child, of which McNulty was the father. It had been left in Buffalo. She had followed her instructions, being afraid of him.

Brutal Treatment.
Last fall, before the birth of the dead child, from about the 17th day of October until about Feb. 8, McNulty kept her locked in a barn at the rear of his poolroom.

The snow blew in the wide cracks, and her only covering was a horse blanket. She had only the food McNulty gave her, and this was little. No warm meals ever came her way. She admitted being under the influence of McNulty, and that she obeyed his every command and suggestion.

She had to stay in the barn, because, being in a delicate condition, she had no money, and did not want to go with friends. Her father and mother refused to have McNulty going to her home to see her, as he was a married man, and had two children of his own. She told how, on McNulty's order, she had thrown the child into the Niagara at Hawkestone.

When the court resumed, after luncheon, Mr. Robinette, for the prisoner, addressed the jury.

After deliberating for two hours the jury found as above. The verdict was received by the prisoner with sobs. These were soon subdued, but she still looked dazed as she left the courtroom.

McNulty heard the verdict unmoved. As soon as the jury retired in the Dolan case the crown proceeded with the charge against McNulty.

TO ILLUMINATE FALLS

Falls to Be Decorated With Scores of Electric Lights.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 27.—If plans announced today do not mis-carry, the catenets of Niagara will be permanently illuminated by scores of powerful electric searchlights when the season opens next year. An effort will immediately be made to raise $20,000 to carry out the plan. A prominent Niagara Falls, N.Y., businessman has offered a contribution of one thousand dollars to the fund. The balance will be raised by subscription on both sides of the river.

Plans are already prepared for the permanent illumination of the falls. The Falls were illuminated by powerful batteries of searchlights on the Canadian side for two weeks in September, 1909. It was successful, but owing to the great expense, has not since been done.

Mr. McDermid's Successor.
Rev. Dr. Manning presided at a meeting of the teachers and officers of Dundas Centre Sunday school last night, when Mr. C. E. German was elected superintendent to succeed Mr. D. A. McDermid. The resignation of Mr. E. J. Allen as superintendent of the intermediate department was laid over till a future meeting.

A New Fire Engine.

At the regular meeting of No. 3 committee tonight, the question of calling for tenders for a fire engine will be decided. Ald. Ashplant and Ald. Jeffries will report on the trip to Detroit, and will favor the purchase of an auto engine. Tenders for a steam engine, an auto engine and an auto combination engine will be called for. There is little other business to be disposed of.

Travellers Will Attend.

"The Travelling Salesman," which will be played at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening next, is creating a great deal of interest among travelling men of this city, and large numbers have already signified their intention of being present. Special arrangements will be made for them, and those of the fraternity who purpose attending should send their names at once to Mr. J. L. Whitehead, secretary of the Travellers' Club.

ately following the introduction of the antagonistic Hart-Agnew bill at Albany, in the winter of 1907, and when the measure was finally bludgeoned through both houses by Hughes, who threatened right and left, and finally put the state to an expense of $50,000 for an extra session in order to have their own way, panic-stricken breeders threw their stock on the falling market, and many were beggared. All this to satisfy the personal ambitions of one man, despite the showing by eminent authorities, among them, the chief of the bureau of animal husbandry at Washington, that the thoroughbred horse was necessary for the perpetuation of all branches of the equine family, and that the only way he could be kept at the level of the breed was by racing. The poor ones would by this process go to the discard, while those that showed that they possessed courage, stamina and speed, as well as the natural requisites of beauty of conformation and density of bone, would be put to breeding.

Roosevelt Insists On Hughes' Renomination.

"Thus at the outset Mr. Hughes and those who became converts to his policy, many of whom were willingly, antagonized the breeders of fine horses throughout the country. They also had arrayed against them those who were interested in a great sport in a financial way, and lastly, and more potent, they had as enemies all those who believe that they are entitled to a certain amount of freedom, and who are always ready to resist any invasion of their liberties. The rank and file of the Republican party knew that they had committed a grievous error in favoring such legislation, and when Governor Hughes and those who were nearest to him reached out for a presidential nomination, they got a handful of ashes. No narrow man could ever hope to become president of the United States. Hughes' attitude on sport condemned him as the narrowest man who had ever been governor of the Empire State. Charles Evan Hughes' political star set then, and there, and he never again shone brightly. He was not only blind that they could not see it, Mr. Roosevelt insisted on Hughes being renominated for governor. This was a presidential year—a landslide for Taft, whose wildest dreams never conjured a majority of more than 100,000 in New York State. He pulled Hughes and all the others on the ticket through with him, but it was a significant fact that the governor ran 60,000 behind the next lowest man. He was at the bottom of the polls. Smarting under the sting, and realizing that racing could be continued in spite of the passage of the Hart-Agnew bill, which legislated against everything but speech, Hughes began another campaign against the sport, ignoring other matters which called for remedial legislation. Louis Marshall, of New York, was asked to draft a measure which would stop speculation absolutely, and he produced what is now known as the Perkins-Agnew law, the most ridiculous measure ever placed upon the statute books. It is a significant fact that Mayor Gaynor, of New York, then one of the judges of the supreme court, had given the decision which enabled those who cared to make a wager that privilege, so long as no money was posted. Gaynor has but to lift his finger, and the nomination for governor next week will be his; in fact, there is no doubt that the convention at Rochester next week will refuse to listen to any name but his.

T. A. ROWAT & CO.

Now that Roosevelt has succeeded in overthrowing the machine Republicans at Saratoga, he will nominate one of his progressives for governor, out the "old guard" will get even in November. Let Democrats victory is confidently looked for, and only recently ex-Sheriff Buttling, of Kings County, a prominent Republican, offered to bet $100,000 that his people could not vote. The grin on his face was a foreboding omen. He was active till election day, and the knives, well sharpened, will be driven home. The Democrats, for the first time in years, outside of Hearst, and his so-called Independence League, are working in harmony, and with Gaynor as candidate for governor, the majority would be tremendous. It is not generally known that Mayor Gaynor's chief adviser is a young man named Charles H. Hyde, who was born in Nova Scotia. Mr. Hyde is city chamberlain of New York, and an astute lawyer. "Why was racing discontinued in New York at the close of the Saratoga season on Aug. 31?" asked The Advertiser man.

In order to make a test of the so-called director's liability feature of the Perkins-Agnew law. Under the provisions of this portion of the act, any director or officer of a racing corporation could be arrested if speculation of any kind took place within the grounds. You can readily see how an over-zealous district attorney or sheriff, goaded by the executive, could harass those who wanted to live within the provisions of the law and the gentlemen who are interested in a sport which they believe to be clean, would not go on, but determined to have a test of the measure, which they have been advised by the most eminent legal authorities is unconstitutional. Mr. Marshall, who drafted the Perkins-Agnew bill, said that he had been determined to go so far, and to such extremes, to cover every point, because there was no other way to stop all sorts of betting. Under the present law a man is liable to arrest if he bets a pair of gloves or a hat on a baseball or football match, or on a bet on any other contingency. It is prohibition gone mad, and the courts will be asked to set it aside on the ground that it is not only cruel and inhuman, but farcical in its bargain, and tends to hold us up to contempt. It was Cardinal Gibbons who said that morals could not be legislated into a people, and I regard him as a man of eminent authority. The gentlemen of the Jockey Club are sanguine that there will be racing in New York State again next year. Our last meeting, which was at Saratoga, was the best of the season. The tracks in Canada have benefited this fall by the conditions around New York, and there are now at Toronto the best lot of horses ever seen on this side of the border.

"The feature of the racing on the trotting turf this year to date," said Mr. Fitzgerald, in conclusion, "has been the marvellous performances of the members of the famous Election family of trotters. Uhlan, a great-grandson of Senator Sanford's record 1:53 1/4, and the subject of the record to 2:01, while The Harvester, another great-grandson, has reduced the stallion championship to 2:01. The former trotter is owned by C. K. G. Buildings, of New York, who held the reins when the horse trotted in 2:01 at the North Randall track near Cleveland, while The Harvester of Milwaukee, Mr. Buildings gave $50,000 for Uhlan before he became a champion, and offered $100,000 for The Harvester at Hartford a month ago. Another prominent member of the Election tribe to achieve greatness this year is the young mare, Duelle Archdale, winner of more money this year than any other trotter. She is by Archdale, a son of Expedition, by Election. I have personal interest in this great young mare, for her sides being owned by my good friend, Frank G. Jones, of Memphis, Tenn. I have a colt here in London that is from Election, now two years of age, called by Belshire, 2:18, the only son of Electioneer in Canada, and one of few sons of the old horse now living. Electioneer's dam is Lady Electra, by Re-Election, another son of Electioneer, and a brother of Expedition. This is in-breeding, and is following out the lines approved by the French and the American Horse Breeder, the closest student of breeding the trotter in America today. Mr. father, Dr. G. J. Fitzgerald, owns this colt, as well as Belshire, 2:18, and he is going to have him trained and developed by Mr. Fitzgerald, the well-known driver of Falconbridge, who is campaigning his good horse, Unko, 2:11 1/4, this year."

BUILT ON SURE FOUNDATION

Explanation of the Reappearance in London of the Genuine Semi-Ready.

The wonderful growth of the Semi-Ready tailoring system in Canada has not been evident in London as in the other large cities of Canada. One reason ascribed is that other and cheaper made clothing was for years sold on Dundas street, masquerading under the name of "Semi-Ready," and actually being sold from Semi-Ready wardrobes. Each sale of ready-made clothing as genuine Semi-Ready naturally meant a loss of confidence in the store. Several years ago the Semi-Ready Company withdrew from any association or connection with the store which had previously sold their product, on the ground that much of the stuff being sold in the store was not "Semi-Ready" at all, though the customer was led to believe that it was. Such a store policy can have only one outcome—the business will suffer. The Semi-Ready policy has always had the sure foundation of one price and a plain tale signature.

LONDON AUTOMOBILIST IN A DETROIT MIX-UP

Assaulted By a Man When the Machine Rubbed Against Him.

A London automobile man had an exciting experience in Detroit on Monday that he will remember for some days. He was driving up Woodward, when a policeman ordered him to stop to allow the traffic to pass. He did so, but ran past the mark set by the police, and was ordered to back up a little. He did so, but while he was running back the wheels of his car rubbed a stranger's clothes, and soiled them somewhat. The fellow became angry, and running around the side of the car he slugged the Londoner on the jaw. The blow toppled the latter over in the car, completely knocked out. His auto continued to back up until it struck a street car, where it stopped. The policeman saw the scrap, and arrested the assailant. The Londoner was taken into a drug store and restored to consciousness. He was able to take his car home in a short time. The man who was arrested will appear in the Detroit police court today, and the Londoner will probably give evidence against him.

TORONTO'S ASSESSMENT

Last Year It Was Boosted Above $300,000,000 Mark.

Population 341,991
Increase 30,537
Assessment $309,147,053
Increase 40,409,106
Toronto, Sept. 27.—Toronto's assessment mark has been boosted above the three hundred million mark by the new assessment for 1911 taxes, just completed at noon today. The population also shows a boost worth noting. Ward 1 and Ward 4 have an increase of nearly 25,000 between them. Every ward in the city had an increase this year, which is better than last year's record, when Ward 2 dropped a couple of hundred, and the total increase over the year was only 4,000. The big jump in the assessment total means also a decided boosting of civic revenue. The forty millions more should be added to the city treasury, the city should get on a 1 1/2-mill tax rate, something like $700,000.

THROWN FROM AUTO

Rich New York Merchant a Victim of Foul Play.

New York, Sept. 27.—Foul play is suspected by the police and the family of Joseph Richards, a rich manufacturer of Washington Heights, who was found unconscious on a sidewalk in West street early today. The head scalp wound and a fractured skull from which he was suffering were believed to have been sustained when he was violently thrown from a passing automobile. Residents of the neighborhood reported they had seen a party in an automobile moving at a rapid rate through West street less than an hour ago.
