Major Osborne An Old Soldier of Imperial Service.

The Men Accept His Judgment Without Question in Dealing With Military Crimes.

Major Baron Osborne, provost marshal of No. 1 military district, is the take cognizance of these cards in reman chiefly responsible for the good behavior of soldiers on London streets That he is quite capable of maintaining discipline appears to be the consensus of opinion among Londoners who have observed his work.

Major Osborne is a soldier of many ears' experience, and like all good soldiers he is more than modest as to his personal achievements in battle while being justifiably proud of his long period of service.

Enlisted in 1883. He enlisted with the 23rd Hussars in 1883. In 1887 he went to India with his regiment and during his nine years' stay in the east his duties took him to many parts of the great empire. Of his war service there he says little. > Major Osborne's method of handling men is based on his experience. While inclined to leniency where his judgment tells him a man may possibly be not altogether at fault, he is stern with the persistent evildoer. The men have confidence in an old soldier, because while they know they will be severely dealt with should their conduct merit in the groups, the A. M. C. being the t, their punishment will be just.

Do you really know how to shave?

Make this striking test and see.

O many men do not know how, that this is not intended as a joke. Most men take twice the time necessary and undergo unnecessary torture. A simple test will show whether you are among them.

Shave one side of your face with the preparation you now use. Then shave the other side with Mennen's, following the directions contained with every tube. You will be astounded at the difference—not only in the way your razor acts and how the two sides of your face feel, but in the shorter time it takes you to shave with Mennen's. The reason is that Mennen's is absolutely different in composition from every other preparation. It took three years' experimenting to perfect it. It requires no "rubbing in"-no relathering-no lotions.

The Big Thing for Breakfast

And it's BIG in more ways than one.

First, there's that wonderful flavor. The crisp, nutty granules of Grape-Nuts food combine the sweets of whole wheat with the smack of malted barley-a flavor that no mere wheat food can rival.

Next comes the remarkable digestive quality. (Malted barley contains a natural digestive element.) Grape-Nuts digest quickly, and weak as well as strong stomachs handle it comfortably.

And then comes the wonderful nourishing value. No other cereal food puts the vim and vigor into body and brain that Grape-Nuts does.

A writer in Everyman takes up one of the Mail's charges, that the Government was not executing the blockade as it might, but was even impeding the work of the navy. He shows how Sir Edward Grey dealt with this charge, e. g., in the case of the increased imports of wheat by the four northern Hughes is said to be "surprised" by neutrals from the United States. Grey showed that of the thirty-one millions increase, twentythree millions were re-exported to Spain, Greece, etc., and some other millions were sent through Holland to the Belgian relief commission, not much being left for Germany! Other cases being similarly analyzed and explained, it does not appear that the Mail's charge was proved. But "Nemo" saw the false charge in big Mail headlines, while he and his like never read the veracious small point text of Sir Edward Grey's painstaking reply.

Before the war the Mail was barking for a protective tariff, prophesying that persistence in the free trade policy would entail loss of trade and of the colonies, emigration of capital, and general decline of wealth and prosperity. But between 1903, when the tariff reform cry was started, to 1913, British imports and exports rose from 900 million pounds to 1,400 millions, over 50 per cent; the National Debt was reduced at an unheard-of rate; without any tariff bond the colonies drew IN New York a bet of $500 is reported closer to the mother country, and the to have been made that a German national wealth at the opening of the submarine merchant liner will register war was such that Great Britain will her arrival in that port before July 5. certainly crush Germany, as Lloyd She is expected by the optimists to car- George said, by silver bullets. Yet for years before the war, and for two years since it began, the Mail has poured out daily jeremiads, diatribes and lies, telling the country how it was heading for the rocks. Bitter feeling and fear were engendered in consequence. JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE, MOTHER. Just before the battle, mother, I am thinking most of you; While upon the field I'm watching, With the enemy in view.

Comrades brave are 'round me lying, Filled with thoughts of home and God, For well they know that on the morrow Some may sleep beneath the sod.

Chorus. Farewell, mother, you may never Press me to your heart again; But, oh, you'll not forget me, mother, If I'm numbered with the slain.

Oh, I long to see you, mother, And the loving ones at home. 'Till in honor I can come. Tell the traitors all around you That their cruel words we know In every battle kill our soldiers

By the help they give the foe.

Hark. I hear the bugle sounding. 'Tis the signal for the fight; Now may God protect us, mother, As he ever does the right. 'Tis the battlecry of freedom-How it swells upon the air; Oh, we'll rally 'neath the standard, Or we'll perish nobly there.

The day being a public holiday, with celebrations in an adjoining town, the village street presented an appearance of desertion as the little lady hurried along, scarce glancing to right or left. Past the silent blacksmith shop, over the railroad tracks, past stores with drawn blinds, she turned in at the gate of the fellow worker whose advice she sought, when a look of utter dismay

LABOR SHORTAGE CAUSE

Question Arouses Sharp Discussion at Hamilton Convention.

HAMILTON, June 13 .- The question of grappling with the increasing shortage of labor by suspension of the Lord's Day Act in the case of certain industries, as proposed by the executive committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which opened its annual meeting here today, and the report of the legislation committee advocating the same measures and chronicling an application to the Dominion Government which J. R. Shaw stated had been successful, led to a sharp discussion this afternoon. After several members had registered a protest and others had pointed out that in the present crisis it would not do to hew too close to the line, the proposal was eventually Workmen's Act Successful. The legislation committee's report, showing a satisfactory working of the workmen's compensation act, was presented by Mr. Shaw. "The Lord's Day cannot be a day of rest for our naval and military resources," said the report, and it should not be a compulsory day of rest for our producing forces."

The twenty-three affiliated societies were very well represented at the morning session, of which the important features were the presidential address of Mrs. H. A. Boomer, and reports from the recording and corresponding secretaries, the Local Council treasurer, and the Belgian relief

Mrs. Boomer gave a general survey of the important patriotic and other activities of the women's organizations affiliated with the council, and timely warning concerning the problems to be grappled with as a result of the war Were Trained To Aid.

Concerning the manner in which the women have met the emergencies of the nour, she said: "They are not patriotic in a narrow sense. They are just a band definite purpose and a spirit of helpfulness, who, having been already organized, not only to study, but to find a so- buying of flour, and subsequently a lution for sociological and civic problems, to discover and make use of densed milk, clothing, etc. methods through which to conserve the October, in response to an imperative highest good of the family and state, appeal, $1,000 aws cabled to the Nacome with prepared minds and faculties rained by experience to face the more complicated problems of the day."

Mrs. Boomer expressed her gratitude being spared to extend, with the Local Council, a few weeks ago, a welcome to the founder of the National Council, and president of the Interna-Tribute to Heroes.

Mrs. Yarker, corresponding secre tary, dwelt especially upon one communication which had come to the council, a resolution sent on from the National Council regarding the advisability of the appointment of women censors for moving pictures, and accompanying this a request that some action be taken on the matter. Mrs. member for the Provincial Legislature. Sir Adam Beck, who assured his support when the proper time came for Want Police Women.

Steps were also reviewed which have recently been taken in regard to the petitioning for the appointment of two police women for London, and the meeting reminded that the local council inaugurated the movement three years ago, which has been revived by the Young Women's Christian Association and other affiliated societies. In passing, touched upon the excel-lent work which has been done by police women in other cities In order to illustrate the fact that Dealing with the subject of prohibition, he said: "Now that prohibition is soon to become the law of Ontario, it may not be amiss to clear away some of the confusion that has clouded the discussion of it. War Conditions. In regard to the war conditions, he dwelt first upon Anglican enlistments, expressing gratification at the response of Anglicans to the call for service in defence of the Empire. Though, ac cording to the civil census of 1911. Anglicans numbered only one out of every seven in the Dominion of Canada, among those enlisted up to February 29 of this year. Anglicans numbered nearly one out of every two. The exact figures were given as follows: Anglicans, 124,688; Presbyterians, 63. 146; Methodists, 18,418; Roman Catholics, 32,836; Baptists and Congregationelists. 10.325; Jews. 343; other de ominations, 13,155; total, 263,111. "In other words," said the bishop, 'Anglicans number over 47 per cent of all the enlisted soldiers in Canada.

A Fine Showing. With one million of seven millions inhabitants Anglicans in 1911, according to the census of 1911, of the total army of 500,000 men to be raised by Canada, the Anglicans should only contribute 71,000. As a matter of fact haven't been satisfied since unless they they have given nearly twice that numher already.

"With hardly an exception," continued his lordship, all the sons of the clergy of this diocese available for service have enlisted. Out of students preparing for the ministry in Huron College, 18 have enlisted, and of the 18, three have made the supreme sacrifice. In many congregations, every available man has enlisted. Over 6,000 men who have enlisted from this diocese are accounted for by name.

"Bearing in mind the figures quoted above, one is pained and amazed to hear complaints that the number of Anglican chaplains is out of proportion to the number of Anglicans in this district, according to the civil census of 1911. I would most respectfully suggest that it would have been much more to the point, in view of the figures given above, if the denomination that complained had devoted its energles towards securing more enlistments from its membership, than to securing berths for its ministers as chaplains to battalions, in which its members are conspicuous for their fewness. Would Be Unjust.

"I would further submit, as a matter Thursday. of plain justice, chaplains should be selected according to the declared It would have been a monstrous injustice if the church that supplied the Movement." lains.

In a democratic country, where there is no privileged class and the citizenship is common, the defence of that citizenship should be a common responsibility. In other words, military service should be universal and obligatory in every democracy, just as universal as the vote." Church parades, which prevented soldiers worshipping in their own churches regularly, were disapproved. In regard to the delayed victory in the war, the bishop believed it to be for a cause, owing to the fact that the moral discipline of the war has not yet been achieved.

Revival Needed. The need was strongly emphasized of a definite revival movement in the church, both in regard to the deepening of the spiritual lives of the members and the reaching of those outside the church. Special parochial efforts were advocated, also the making of the church a social centre and perhaps some such movement as the church army to hold services in outlying dis tricts.

Stress was laid on the thought that his is the psychological moment for such a movement, when the hearts of the people are prepared, as never be-
