WAR DECLARED BY GREAT BRITAIN SIX YEARS AGO TODAY

Memories of Stirring Times Come To Whole Empire On Anniversary.

Six years ago today at midnight Great Britain, following the example set by France, declared war on Germany, and the great struggle which lasted for over four years, was begun. Six years ago tonight local patriots in the thousands, including scores of British reservists and local youths who have since made the supreme sacrifice in the front line, paraded the main streets here when patriotism throughout the British Empire was at fever heat. Several brass bends and members of the militia of this city also took part in the demonstrations, and within a few days recruiting for the First Canadian contingent was begun.

Following the declaration of war, nightly parades were a feature for London, the lads in khaki being cheered, as they marched along, by many citizens who later took part in the titanic struggle; in fact, many young boys wearing short trousers, who followed the parades of the ist Contingent Volunteers here, before peace was declared themselves signed up and proceeded overseas to join those whom they envied in 1914, and unfortunately many of them have never returned from the fight. Thousands of other Londoners have come back safely after great work at the front.

To many Londoners the realization that six years have passed is difficult, their memory fresh with early wartime scenes here. But all over the world those whose homes have been bereft of a son or brother or both, six years ago today at midnight brought back happy memories of the peaceful days preceding the great war.

The matter of styles is scarcely discussed at all—it is not a book of styles, but a book of instructions as to how to perform the various fundamental millinery operations.

WARSAW, Aug. 3. - (Associated [By Staff Reporter,] Press.)—The breaking off of the negotiations between the Poles and the Bolsheviki, out of which it had been hoped would come the armistice and the early cessation of hostilities, was due to a misunderstanding, according to the contention of the Russian Soviet authorities in a wireless dispatch received here today.

The defense of Warsaw has been in-rusted to the northern army under realization of what one's country had actually done for one. For five generations, said Mr. Doherty, his people had enjoyed living in Canada. And loyalty to state was never more important than right now in tinnes of peace.

He referred to the very heavy national debt growing out of the war. He was an optimist, however, he declared, and he knew the debt would be paid, because he knew the stamina of the Canadian people and the vast resources and opportunities of this country. Still, there were days to come that would try the loyalty of the boys and girls of the province of Ontario, although he saw nothing ahead that need cause any tremendous worry. Now every bolt and nut is just a fraction of a line smaller or larger than any identical part from another machine, and it is difficult to get repairs.

Mr. Doherty was right, said Mr. McCoig. Canada is facing great liabilities, and the Government should have conscripted the wealth of the war profiteers for the purpose of reducing the national debt. That was what the Lunion Government had promised to do when it sent the young men from the farms across the seats. AFRAID TO JUMP.

The Government is tired and out of touch with the country. The House of Commons is tired and out of touch with the country. The remedy is a new Government and a new House of Commons, representing public opinion as it is today, not as it was in 1917. Both Government and Parliament are aware of the lack of sympathy between them and the people, but are afraid to apply the remedy. Many supporters of the Government realize that they cannot be re-elected, and for that very reason shrink from a general election. The situation is uncomfortable enough, but not as bad as that which an election would bring about. Holding an election would be like jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

THE IRISH SITUATION.

Lloyd George's announcement in the British Commons that the Government is about to take more drastic measures to put down the shameful outlawry in Ireland should please all save the extremists who have given the Emerald Isle a name for disorder and outrage. All true friends of Ireland will welcome this repressive action, for it is clear that in such manner alone can Ireland be brought back to sanity and safety. The Government has been patient under the most exasperating conditions, but the time has come when it must back down completely or take a firm hold with all its powers. This is, of course, just what the leaders of the Republican movement have been to sell," on opening a box of small woods still exercising his intellect. And Spargo, who had playing for. The story, he thought, was not altogether inapt as an illustration of what had too often taken place in the case of ex-service officers and men. (Applause.) In spite of all that was promised them in the old days of the war, when they had asked since for these promises to be redeemed, for em-ployment for the fit or an adequate pension for the disabled, they had all too frequently been told politely but firmly "to go round the other way." (Applause.) He did not wish it to be thought that he was saying that nothing had been done. He knew that a great deal had been done. The gate had not been wholly closed upon them, but it had been opened to such a partial and insufficient extent that on the 1st of June last-nineteen

Until that gap was bridged. whatever the Government had said or done, the nation was not fulfilling its promises. The men who fought were as good as their word. They had performed their part of the bargain in full, and they had a right to have the other half discharged as fully. (Applause.) The more he travelled about these islands, and met wherever he went men whom he was proud to recognize as his comrades-in-arms of old days, and heard the same story of the still harder battle that many of them had been called upon to fight now that the war itself was over, the more he felt it to be his do all he could to help them. THE VALUE OF TRAINED HANDS. [Minneapolis Journal.] The world could greatly profit by the wisdom of the ancient Hebrews in requiring every man-

THE LITTLE PRISONERS.

It's not much fun to be a puppy!! fone has to be shut up all the time! That's what Tibs and Tabs thought, anyway. Perhaps if their master had known how lonely it was for them in the kennel at the farthest end of the yard he might have taken them nearer the house, but he did not. It was not a nice place to be, but it was much nicer than being out in the big dog run where the old dogs were, for the old dogs did not like having little puppies in their run, and goodness knows what might have happened to Tibs and Tabs if they had been out there.

It was Tabs who was discontented. He did not see how it was his master could not find a nice home for him inthe array.

Seem against him, for soon he got such pains in his "tummy" he thought sure he was going to die.

But Tabs did not die. The pains left him, and again he made up his mind he would not eat. For three days he persisted, but at last he had to give hungry while his brother was eating enough for two little dogs?

Of course, Tabs was thin after his long hunger strike, and so, of course, was his brother fat, for Tibs had eaten every bite put before him. And, would wou believe it, the very day Tabs had decided to eat was the day the man who was to choose one of the puppies came to look at them.

"What a thin, scraggly-looking pup-

It was Tabs who was discontented. He did not see how it was his master could not find a nice home for him right away.

"I'm not going to eat. I'll show them if they'll make me a prisoner," Tabs threatened.

"Dear me, isn't it bad enough to be shut up without missing one's meals," Tibs exclaimed. "I'm not going to miss my meals, I can tell you that."

So little Tabs thought everyone was against him. Even his brother Tibs had disagreed with him. Well, he would show them, he thought.

From that moment Tabs refused food. His master coaxed and coaxed, but he just went into a corner and hung his head stubbornly. Then his master came with a big black bottle of medicine, and although Tabs squirmed and kicked, a big teaspoonful was forced down his throat.

"Oowwk!" Tabs cried as he spluttered and spit. "It's the most dreadful tasting stuff I ever tasted."

"It serves you right. Because you won't eat our master thinks you are sick," was all the sympathy he got from Tibs.

KITCHENER, Aug. 3.—The Beavers outplayed the Hamilton Tigers here in clash of the Ontario teams in the the first of the two-game series this Michigan-Ontario League, as witnessed Tecumsehs were not to be deevening by a score of 4 to 2. It was one of the snappiest and hardest fought agames witnessed on the local grounds.

Combined with a lot of good baseball, there was the headded feature of Sumpter Clark being banished from the game for endeavoring to pull the lapels off the coat of Umpire Franklin, and it had to be admitted that the indicator-handler was quite justified, as the decision against the hot-headed Caroligian did not even seem close.

In the ninth Estelle got the first two batters, and then the home crowd groaned as an easy pop-fly off Briger's bat was let fall between Buckley and Estelle, the former drawing the error. To stop the agony Crichlow struck out. The box-score shows the heavy hitting of both teams, Brantford fans still adhering to their belief that Tom Estelle is not only a good pitcher, but has pitching luck as well.

Both these pastimers have been caught off third this year by Pinelli on the hidden ball trick, their deaths having come close together. The Bostonian

There doesn't seem to be any logical reason why they should not continue to force the pace they have for the last month.

A cry comes from Brantford that London's lead has been accumulated by playing the Michigan clubs, but all the Canadian clubs have been on the same, speedy despite his weight. diet for the last month and it has been or should have been just as fattening as it has been to London. The Tribe may, however, have been a little more awe nspiring than some of the rest of the Ontario clubs. The team leads in both team swatting and team fielding, showing that the Tribe have plowed their way upwards and stayed there through the medium of a perfectly balanced offensive and defensive. The city soccer season came to a close Menday after the best year the game has ever enjoyed in London, and will now be followed by a city cup tie series, which should bring out still better football. All over the continent the game seems to be in a healthy condition, even in United States, where soccer was all of them having the combination game down pat, an essential that not only counts in soccer, but in almost unknown a few years ago.

It is an arresting fact that there are professional teams in the States, the players on which receive their good jobs and their football pay, almost as much as the average major league ball player. In St. Louis alone there is a professional league, comprised of six teams, playing a brand of soccer that would find favor in the best of pro circles in the British Isles.

It is of interest to trace football through the States. The Hamilton Spectator says: Frank Shaughnessy is said to have had an offer of a job as umpire from the American League, but those who know the big fellow realize that the berth is not the kind he desires. We would wager that Shag would prefer to place a Montreal club in a trong Canadian circuit made up of Brantford. Kitchener, Ottawa, Montreal and possibly two other towns. It is un-derstood that Shag, Knotty Lee and others are not any too well pleased with the Michigan towns, and that they would like to try a new deal. The only fault with the proposed arrangement is the fact that the International League magnates are again looking to Montreal, and when the much-needed shuffle in the Fultz circuit takes place the eastern city may again be found in the Inter-national. Should the plans of Shaughnessy and Knotty Lee materialize, it is understood that the famous Knotty will take charge of the Ottawa club.

George H. Maines, president of the George H. Maines, president of the Michigan - Ontario circuita and Freddy Wilson of the Toronto Globe and secretary of the M.-O. ON two million wheels rolls the traffic of Canada's steam railways.

As each train reaches a divisional point these wheels must be tested. For this work nine hundred car inspectors are required.

While the train crew pick up their orders, while engines are changed, while ice and water tanks are charged, the Car Inspector strikes each wheel and axle-and listens for the false note that marks a flaw.

Though he rarely finds one, the vigilance of the railways cannot on that account be relabor must be paid for this service alone every year.

In 1913, the car inspector received 26 cents per hour for a 10 or 12 hour day.

To-day he is paid 67 cents per hour for an 8-hour day, and $1.01 for every hour or portion of an hour thereafter!

The wage bill of the railways for car inspection alone rose from $757,373 in 1913 to $2,260,756 in 1919!

MOST of the increased cost of railway service in Canada goes back, directly or indirectly, into the pay enlaxed—and 3,500,000 hours of velopes of Canadians and the cash registers of Canadian merchants.
