Ten weeks of tenacious work by both city and county police have failed to unearth any really reliable clue as to the whereabouts of Edward Harlton, who dashed from the laneway by his father's home on Egerton street a few seconds after Traffic Officer Jack Waddell of the county police was fatally wounded with a revolver bullet early in September.

"He had an absolute terror of jail and the law, and was one of the rank-est cowards that I ever had anything to do with. The way I figure it, he was so terrified at the thought of another prison term for stealing chickens that he couldn't resist the temptation of shooting Waddell and taking a chance on escape."

Harlton disappeared after the shooting as if the earth had swallowed him. Fear lent him added energy and he ran with the speed of a Nurmi through backyards near Egerton street and eventually was seen heading towards the C. P. R. Quebec street yards. It is believed he caught a fast freight going east some 10 minutes after the crime was committed. A westbound freight con-ductor on reaching London stated that he had seen a man crouched on the fast freight, and in the minds of police there was little doubt that it was Harlon

The police discovered the lonely barn in Westminster township where the missing gunman cached his stolen chickens until he had time to dispose of them. It looked as if he had recently slept in the hay, and county and mounted police spent several nights at the barn in the hope that he would return.

Out of it all, it is not too much to hope that a definite specific will be found, and the human race eventually freed from the ravages of cancer, just as it has been set free from smallpox, malaria, diabetes and other diseases.

In conversation with The Adver-tiser after his arrival in London, Sir Arbuthnot Lane had some striking things to say regarding cancer. His conversation seemed to betray a liking for paradox, as well as for happy epigrams, and one of his remarks was to the effect that cancer can be made to play a useful and beneficent Slow to Accept Cures.

He believes, of course, that the proverbial ounce of prevention is worth many pounds of cure in the cancer problem. Although avoiding any definite pronouncement on the subject while in the city, he could not conceal his conservative attitude toward the claims of the many new cancer "cures," which have been brought forward in late months. The belief of surgeons in the efficacy of surgery is proverbial, and Sir Arbuthnot is no exception to the rule. "When a person has cancer, it is a case for a surgeon," was the way he

It is a wellrecognized fact that women are far more susceptible to cancer than men, and Dr. Gilford attributes this fact man's modern manner of living and her refusal to bear enough children or to bear them early enough. These are the two major factors contributing to the increase of cancer in the civilized world, he stated. "The cause of all our cancer trouble," he is reported as having said, "is inadequate use of the digessaid, is inadequate use of the digestive and reproductive organs by modern women. The jaws become smaller, the teeth become rotten, the stomach becomes more readily upset, thus causing, among many other ailments,

There is among women what amounts to a strike against reproduction, which is as definite and even more disastrous than man's strike against produc

"It is, therefore above all, necessary," he concluded, "to bring home to women that the chief cause of this form of cancer is that they do not bear children at an early age and in numbers. Even for the sake of precedent it was better that the jury should not return a "not guilty" verdict, for it would be dangerous for the state to agree in this way that a man, no matter what the motive, should have the right to make the momentous decision that a human being's existence should come to an end at a time to be determined by himself.

There have been imbeciles and deformities born into other homes. The parents know from the outset that it means to them a life of sacrifice, probably years of care; their whole method of existence may have to be curbed and altered to meet the new conditions. Yet they have faced their problem without complaint; they may not be able to understand the meaning of it, but to them the immediate problem of doing what they can for the care and comfort of the dwarfed life that has been committed to their charge takes precedence over all questioning or tendency to rebel. In this classroom of uncomplaining sacrifice have grown some of our most beautiful characters. #### Fighting Cancer.

Not in months has cancer, cause and treatment, received such attention in a public way as during the last week. Prof. W. Blair Bell of Liverpool made an important announcement at Toronto regarding his methods, which were new to most of the medical and surgical men in Canada. In London, Sir William Lane has given several public addresses, in which he reverted to the theory that foods and methods of living had much to do with the frequency of cancer. In this way the discussion has been carried to the laymen and they are more interested than the surgeons because there are more of them. The fight against cancer is older than medicine or surgery. In some few of the cases I was personally though slightly concerned; but regard me merely as the historian and on no account as the principal or even minor character in the story. My friendship with Martin Coram led, then, to my first meeting with Moris Klaw-a meeting which resulted in my becoming his biographer, inadequate though my found that he referred to the glass information unfortunately remains. It was some three weeks after the pintment of Coram to the curatorship of the Menzies Museum that the first of a series of singular occurrences took place there.

This occurrence befell one night in August, and the matter was brought to my ears by Coram himself on the following morning. I had, in fact, just taken my seat at the breakfast table, when he walked in unexpectedly and sank into an armchair. His dark, clean-shaven face looked more gaunt than usual and I saw, as he lighted the cigarette which I proffered

"Somehing gone?" I asked.

"No; worse!" was his reply.
"What do you mean, Coram?"
He threw the cigarette, unsmoked, into the hearth. "You know Conway?" he said; "Conway, the night at-tendant? Well—he's dead!"

I stood up from the table, breakfast forgotten, and stared in-credulously. "Do you mean that he died in the night?" I inquired. Done for, poor devil!"

"What murdered?" "Without a doubt, Searles! He's had his neck broken!" I waited for no further explana-tions, but hastily dressing, accom-panied Coram to the Museum. It consists, I should mention, of four long, rectangular rooms, the windows of two overlooking South Grafton Square, those of the third living upon square, those of the third living upon the court that leads to the curator's private entrance, and the fourth private entrance, and the fourth adjoining an enclosed garden attached to the building. This fourth room is on the ground floor and is entered through the hall from the Square, the other three, containing the principal and more valuable exhibits, are upon the first floor and are reached by a flight of stairs from the hall. The remainder of the building is occupied by an office and the curator's private apartments and is completely shut off from that portion open to the public, the only communicating door—an iron one-being kept locked.

The room described in the catalogue that the condition of the public is the fourth adventure of a famous goldsmith of mediaeval Florence, and nothing but a clever forgery. However, Greek or Florentine, amazing ancient or comparatively modern, it was a beautiful piece of workmanship and of very great intrinsic value, apart from its artistic worth and unique character.

"I thought so!" said the plainclothes man. "A clever museum thief!"

Coram sighed wearily. "My good fellow," he replied, "can wou explain by an earthly hypothesis, how a man could get into these apartments and authenticity, several connoisseurs procedants authenticity, several connoisseurs procedations to authenticity, several connoisseurs procedations authenticity, several

George Awrey and all the strategists from under the mountain have come out with suggestions tended to demolish Senators fore and aft—only Senators regard these effusions as a sign of weakness, and the fact that Tigers are switching their team gives them renewed confidence. Trying to beat Senators here is a task that few Tigers have essayed without failure. They face that old bogey of almost certain defeat before they go on the field. McGill will have plenty of supporter on hand, and the students' band of 32 pieces will lead the parade from the King Edward hotel to the stadium. "Shag" will introduce the "huddle" or conference system of giving signals, and Toronto fans can judge it for themselves.

Cochrane, after being called out at first on a close play, dashed over to where Umpire Nallin was standing back of the pitcher, intent on making strenuous protest. As he neared the umpire, Nallin reached for his back pocket, took therefrom a package of scrap tobacco and held it out to Cochrane, saying:

"If you must do some chewing take a mouthful of this." While the fans couldn't hear Nallin's remark his pantomine didn't go over their heads.

Title Goes To Beachers If They Down Spunky Varsity Seconds.

Special to The Advertiser. Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Saturday afternoon at Scarboro Beach, the championship of the O, R. F. U. will be decided, when Balmy Beach and Varsity meet for the second time this week. If Varsity wins it will tie Camp Borden, providing the Flyers beat Hamilton rowing club, and Balmy on the top rung, but if the Beaches come through it will end the suspense and bring to a close the most successful season enjoyed by the old league in many years.

In a rugby campaign that has been somewhat disappointing to the Toronto fans the O. R. F. U. fixtures have stood out as high marks for fast, exciting football. The two games played at the stadium over the last week-end made many new friends for the old union, and the interest being displayed in this contest upon which hangs the outcome of the race is mightily pleasing to the officers of the DeGruchy-McKee circuit. Beaches were general favorites to cop the bunting until Varsity spilled their cart on Monday. The east enders, however, gave their shakkest display of the year on that occasion and as the students were right on their toes ready to grab all openings, it brought the husky paddling crew their first defeat.

Determined Bunch.

Now they are burning up to redeem themselves for the slip-up, and it will be a determined bunch that take the field in the old gold and blue colors this Saturday. Varsity, though, with that win to their credit, have taken on a heap of confidence and they are going to be hard to beat. Their light but fast combination that couples good tackling and nice kekking has given every team in the union a tough game this year, and it may be that they have just the right style to take the Beaches number any time out.

The Beach players have been getting such a merry razz around their own district this week that they will gain revenge on the Collegians this week or ruin themselves in the attempt. The main trouble with them in Monday's game, aside from the bad catching of the highbacks, was the poor effort at making interference displayed b Toronto, Nov. 13 .- Saturday afternoon at Scarboro Beach, the championship of of the wingmen. This week they have had interference dinned into them hard and they know that the man who does not take his "check" out of the way on the plays in Saturday's game will receive an invitation to the bench while someone else takes his place on the field so there will be none of the "take-it-easy" stuff this time out.

As for handling the elusive pigskin, the Beach halves have been out early every day this week kicking and catching. Up till Monday their work in the fielding line had been rearly perfect, and the blow up in that respect was a bombshell to their supporters. Back at practice they have been catching well again and it looks as though the "dropsy" was only a temporary ailment.

Seconds Turn Out.

The presence of "Ek" Lickley and "Red" Moore, two of the junior halfs, at the workouts has stirred the backfield department up considerably, too. The two newcomers from the Balmy Seconds are just good enough to make the others step right along to keep their positions.

are just good enough to make the others step right along to keep their positions. The starting halfline on Saturday will Cawkell and Robertson with the first two changing positions. Cawkell, whose all round play this season has stamped him as one of the game's best backs, will be on the catching end with Robertson, while Smith will take his place on second defence. Smith can tackle, while the other two paired up effectively in the one game they played back together earlier in the year. Three quarter time gave the locals the wind, but it wasn't till the last five minutes of the period that Quarter Graham found he could make good use of it in extending his kicks. Several onside kicks in quick succession made the odds look small, and gave Peacock a chance to score. He crossed the goalline all right, but dropped the ball in the scrimmage, making the difference between victory and defeat. The remainder of the game was all in the Woodstock part of the field, with the S. T. C. I. claiming a distinct advantage, taking another point on exchange of kicks. Canada has received the Chrysler Four with the declaration—heard from one end of the country to the other -that only such a master manufacturer as Walter P. Chrysler could produce such a car.

It was a foregone conclusion that so extraordinary a development of the four-cylinder principle and so outstanding a value, would be greeted with intense interest.

Conservative opinion hails the Chrysler Four as the most modern and the soundest contribution to finer fourcylinder engineering.

Unquestionably, there has never been a four at anywhere near the price that delivers the Chrysler combination of speed, smoothness, acceleration, pick-up, roadability, riding comfort and ease of handling, fuel mileage and charm of appearance. In every respect, it is a fitting companion to the famous Chrysler Six.

Nature's Wonder and Mystery

There is something very strange about this tree. It grows buds, fruit and flowers all the year round and all at the same time. The Indians used to gather the pods that grow on it; split them open; take out the beans; and, after drying them in the sun, they ate them just as you would eat the chocolate bar sold in stores.

268 years ago there appeared this advertisement in an English newspaper called the "Public Advertiser."

"In Bishopsgate Street, in Queen's Head Alley, at a Frenchman's house, is an excellent West Indian drink called Chocolate, to be sold, where you may have it ready at any time, and also unmade at reasonable rates.

Brisk and breezy Kitty Madison, one of the real stars of real burlesque, comes to the Grand next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with daily matinee at 2:15, with her Jazztime Revue, and a chorus of twenty jazz beauty chorus girls.

Miss Madison has surrounded herself with a notable company of favorite burlesque stars, among whom are Bennie Moore, one of the best impersonators of Italian characters on the stage; Grace Tremont, a dashing, gingery singing and dancing soubrette; Chuck Wilson, a capable and versatile comedian; Frankie Markett, an excellent character actor, and Jack Young, a personable juven-

Kitty Madison has come to be regarded as a comedienne of excep-tional ability. She possesses all of the qualities that appear necessary in a burlesque star. One Year to Live. M. C. COAL STRIKE COMPROMISE

IS AGAIN TALKED TODAY

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 14.-Re-Philadeiphia, Pa., Nov. 14.—Reports are again in circulation in the anthracite fields of a possible compromise offer to end the hard coal strike. These reports have it that the proposal would be either a five per cent increase in wages or the granting of a partial check-off. The partial check-off would mean the collection by the coal companies of only union dues, but no assessments that might be levied by the union against its members.

Velvetex Rugs Are Well Known

Company Has Been Utilizing Old Carpets For Seventeen Years.

For seventeen years now the Canada Rug Company, at 98 Carling street, has been making old, worn-out carpets—ready for the scrap pile into fine new rugs that combine both beauty and longevity. These Rugs are to be found in many homes in almost every community in West-ern Ontario, and their name, "Vel-vetex," is now known all over Canda as the growth of the Canada Rug Company, has necessitated establishing branches in Montreal,

'oronto and Windsor.
The rugs are made from customers' own old rugs and carpets—brus-els, wool, wilton, ingrain, union, tap estry, moquette, wilton and velvet and, in fact, every kind of carpet exept rag carpets or hand-wover

pes. These "Velvetex" Rugs are the ongest wearing and the most attractive that it is possible to produce. The "Velvetex" process thoroughly sterilizes and destroys all moth eggs and germs so that there is no danger from moths or disease germs. "Velvetex" is the result of many years of costly experiment and research, years of designing and building new machinery. "Velvetex" Rugs e not made like rag rugs or the so called fluff rugs of some concerns
The old rugs, before being turned ne out rugs, before being curried to "Velvetex" go through a score if processes. No rug is passed by ispectors unless they are convinced that a better rug could not possibly ave been made from the materia upplied. The company gives a thorough guarantee. A large proportion of its business has come from satisfied cus-tomers telling their friends.

HOME FOR NURSES SHOWN NECESSARY

Dr. Alfred Grant Convinces PROPER AERIAL Large Audience of Need For Better Quarters.

PRESENTED FACTS

Prevailing Situation Calls For Support of Bylaw by Ratepayers.

Dr. Alfred J. Grant, chairman of he Victoria Hospital nurses' home campaign committee, and his associates had little trouble in convincing a large number of men and women at a meeting held in the hospital last night of the positive necessity for the adoption of the bylaw by the ratepayers on polling day.

All present listened with the closest of attention to the presentation of the facts of the situation, which demands the expenditure of $225,000 to provide additional accommodation for the 150 nurses-in-training at the hospital, and at the close all indicated in no uncertain terms that they were prepared to work enthusiastically for the bylaw to insure its endorsation at the polls.

At the very outset of his remarks, Dr. Grant commented upon the demands made upon a nurse-in-training, first as a probationer for three months and then three years in training without salary, except $5 per month allowance for uniforms.

"Our nurses have to work 12 hours a day, seven days a week and half of that at night," declared Dr. Grant. "and we expect the best they have to and we expect the best they have to give. Our present nurses' home, which was built 20 years ago to provide accommodation for 60 nurses, is all right; we are not finding any fault with it, but the capacity of Victoria Hospital has doubled, and we have

"It costs the hospital trust $3,500 per annum," continued Dr. Grant, "to house nurses in two buildings, the old Carbon and the McClary Colborne school and the McClary home, while at the same time 26 rooms are being used in the hospital itself as nurses' quarters at a loss of from $2 to $3 each per day. Taking this proposition from a financial standpoint alone, those two items alone so nearly equal the interest and sinking fund payments of the proposed debenture issue that there can be no argument against it on that

Not For Retired Nurses.

"This home is not for nurses who are past the labor point," declared, James Gray, member of the hospital trust, amidst laughter. "Some people think it's going to be a home where pointed nurses are to go and live reretired nurses are to go and live re-tired. The home is not to be built on extravagant lines at all; there are on extravagant lines at all; there are not to be any fads or frills; no elevator even, nor any plunge. And the building is to be so constructed that it can be extended at any time in on expression means. in an economical manner."

Miss Grace Fairley, superintendent of the nurses' training school, replied to a question asked by Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt as to the recognition of the certificates granted nurses graduating from Victoria Hospital not being recognized because of lack of proper nurses' home accommodation. "Educationally," stated Miss Fairley, "we are meeting all the requirements, but the inspectors feel that when we teach requirements, a hospital the inspectors feel that when we teach requirements, a hospital the size and of the name of Victoria Hospital should live up to its teachings and provide suitable nurses' quarters. Dr. G. G. Clegg, superintendent of Victoria Hospital, stated that the increasing number of patients at the Children's War Memorial Hospital, the number having doubled during the past six months, as compared with the same period last year, and the proposed transfer of eye, ear and nose patients and surgical cases to that part of the hospital, prevented absolutely the turning of the children's hospital into a nurses' home And, besides, it was not built for that purpose, and the dormitories are not at all suitable."

Hospital's Great Work,

"The children's hospital is doing a wonderful work," asserted Dr. Grant, "but it had to make its way, and it is doing so. It would have been foolish to build the children's hospital only as a cubicle to handle only the children a cubicle to handle only the children as the storms being more common in these company. WATER-DRIP IS BAD

Many amateur radio fans are too prone to be satisfied with radio equipment which is approximately correct, is the opinion of L. G. Kerr, of the Reliance Garage, one of the outstanding radio authorities in this part of the country. "A proper aerial is the big need in a receiving set," he says, "and what is more, 95 per cent of the effectiveness of the set depends upon the condition of the aerial. If it is carelessly put together or does not conform with the recognized rules in all respects, the operator has no right to expect good reception.

According to Mr. Kerr, both the antenna and lead-in wire should be antenna and lead-in wire should be kept away from trees at least ten feet, and preferably more. The lead-in wire should have at least three or four feet clearance from walls where it comes down from the aerial proper.

Water Drip Is Bad. Another thing that is often overlooked by amateur aerial installers is the fact that the lead-in wire should be so placed that there will be no possibility of water dripping on it. Better reception will always follow observance of this rule. Much inexplicable trouble apparently inexplicable trouble is in the end found to have been the result of the lead-in wire having become covered with water or snow.

Mr. Kerr explains that the reason for certain stations coming in on London radios more clearly of late is that they have moved their broadcasting apparatus from crowded districts covered with high buildings to casting apparatus from crowded districts covered with high buildings to areas of lower buildings.

The reason for the fact that Hamilton is seldom heard in this city, a distance of about 80 miles, is that the main broadcasting station there is surrounded by buildings which, because they contain a great deal of metal in the way of pipes deal of metal in the way of deal of metal in the way of and fittings, thus seriously impede the wave lengths emanating from the broadcasting apparatus. The waves which are set up by this apparatus just nicely get across the street on their way to the Forest that they then meet a sudden

If the broadcasting station were higher than the surrounding buildings, thus permitting of the waves shooting out over the tops of the other structures, the Mountain City station could be heard here clearly

Another station which has appreciably increased its range by such a move is WJY of New York city which, before it shifted from the crowded Broadway district, was selden heard here and then were read then been such that is practical and feasible. WHY A NEUTRODYNE?

Practically all radio circuits now in use, except the Neutrodyne circuit, were designed PEFORE radiocasting stations began to operate as they are now generally operated.

The Neutrodyne circuit was designed after the present type of radio stations was perfected. That is why the Neutrodyne circuit gives such realistic reproduction. It was built to fit present-day radiocasting.

The Nuetrodyne principle plus Thompson radio experience has produced the ideal radio receiver.

As Many Died at Home of Tuberculosis as Died in Great War.

In an address delivered at a recent ongress on tuberculosis in London, England, Prof. A. Calmette, associate director of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, said: "Let us refer to the statistics of tuberculin reactions, which have been recently published by a good many authors and which indicate with all desirable accuracy the ratio of individuals in a state of infection by the tubercle bacillus, although they are not yet or are no longer ill with the disease tuberculosis. It is found that in large cities, like Paris, Vienna and Prague, 20 per cent of the children are already infected at the age of 2 years, 55 per cent at 5 years.

In the Framingham, Mass., demonstration, which is perhaps the most thorough survey ever made on the subject of tuberculosis, of 460 children examined between the ages of one and seven years, 306, or 66.7 per cent, showed a negative reaction to tuberculin, and 154, or 33.3 per cent, a positive reaction. Associated Press Despatch. Dublin, Nov. 13.—The question as o when the Prince of Wales is likely o make his long contemplated visit to the Irish Free State has been revived here. The belief prevails that in all probability he may be expected early next year, although no

James L. Hughes Came to Assistance of Graham

Saved Present United Church General Secretary From Losing Year in Ministerial Work

R. J. W. GRAHAM, who as general secretary of the United Church of Canada is known from coast to coast, would have lost a year in his ministerial career but for the kindly intervention of Dr. James L. Hughes.

Originally it was the intention of the present doctor of divinity to become a lawyer, but after studying law for some time at Osgoode Hall he decided to switch to the church. When applying, however, to the official board of the Broad way Tabernacle, Toronto, of which he was a mem ber, for the recommendation that it was neces sary to secure before embarking upon his the ological course, two of the four members present -holding that the application did not strictly accord with the discipline-opposed the concurring resolution. In the hope of breaking the tie vote Rev. Mr. Philip, pastor of the church, burriedly summoned Dr. Hughes, who, on taking his seat.

"And what's the difficulty? Isn't young Graham's character good?" "I know nawthing about his character," replied an Irishman who was leader of the non concurrents.

"Well. I can vouch for his character. But possibly you do not consider the young man sound in the faith. Is that it?"

"And, sure, I know nawthing in regard to the soundness or otherwise of the lad's faith. All 1 know is that, according to the dasepline, he is some six days late in making his application to us. Consequently he's got to wait another year."

"Has he?" interjected Dr. Hughes. "Well, I don't think so, for I am going to vote with the brethren who are concurring in the resolution."

And so young Graham was officially launched on his ministerial career.

She has sold the business, not because it beat her, but because she has managed it so thoroughly, and converted sufficient cold cash into securities to enable her to realize the ambition of her life-to go trout fishing, rabbit-hunting and driving in the country for the rest of her life. The amount of money she has made may not be disclosed. But it is more than the business ever paid before.

"When my husband died," said Mrs. Clark, "I was ready to give up. But hardly was the funeral over before a certain reputable person tried to 'do' me over a certain detail of the estate. S O Mrs. Clark knuckled down to work. She was at the office from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m., and even later in times of rush. The freight which her one boat carried was in part furniture and baggage for the Island cottagers. She also got bread, milk and other supply contracts from big firms, lumber and building supplies and so forth. Her tug was one of the busiest craft on the bay. Her daughter undertook to look after

> One example of her business ability was in the selling of her husband's car. It was a big car, and more than Mrs. Clark felt she could afford to maintain at the start of her cafeer. She sold it, after her husband had had it three years, for $415 more than he had paid for it!

Mrs. Clark married Captain Clark when she was not yet in her twenties and the captain was in his forties. She loved the romance of the lakes and shared fully with her husband in the Reza is the son of a peasant farmer and it is even now a debatable point as to whether the prime minister's academic achievements extend beyond the ability to write his own name.

His career he commenced as a private in a Russian Cossack regiment. Yet Reza Khan must have shown exceptional abilities since he rose continually in the esteem both of his superiors and his comrades. That was the reason why men after imperial Russia collapsed and his regiment was disbanded.

In February, 1921, Reza Khar, together with his soldiers, overthrew the government, appointed a prime minister, and selected himself as the minister of war of Persia. In October, 1923, he discarded the civilian cabinet and, with the aid of a second coup d'etat, assumed the premiership. Since that time he has been Persia's prime minister.

Reza Khan possesses much of that straightforward brutality which is the privilege of the incorrupt egotist. He is fighting for a centralized Persia because the expansive power of his ruling ambition demands the widening of his field of action. It is only incidental that while he is satisfying his primitively savage hunger for power he accomplshes the unification of the unruly tribes in a single rational entity.

Reza Khan has an army such as Persia has not had for a long time. It consists of 40,000 soldiers. Reza pays them regularly, feeds and clothes them, thereby assuring for himself their loyalty and fitness for military action.
