Church Property Sold

Wm. E. Macke has completed negotiations for the purchase of the former Presbyterian Church, at Lucknow, which is being used as a place of worship by the United Church congregation. This church was erected in 1890, but was unroofed by a cyclone in 1913. The purchaser obtains possession about the first of August. The former Methodist Church is being renovated and it is expected that it will be ready for use in a few weeks.

Russel-Voigt

St. Mathew's Lutheran Church was lovely with Pink and White Peonies and Ferns for the marriage at 2:30 o'clock this Wednesday afternoon of Martha Maria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Voigt of Carrick, to Eugene E. Russel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Russel of Carrick. Rev. C. P. Boerner, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. "Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus" was played by Miss Lorena Voigt, sister of the bride, as the bride approached the altar on the arm of her father. The bride looked charming in a gown of peach crepe Romania, with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley. Her bridesmaid, Miss Catherine Voigt, sister of the bride, was pretty in tan georgette, with hat to match, and carrying Ophelia roses. Henry Russel, brother of the groom, acted as groomsmen. The little flower girl was Nelda Hoesfeld, cousin of the bride, who wore rose crepe de chine, with poke bonnet. She carried a basket of daisies and forget-me-nots. Master Albert Voigt, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, when seventy-five guests were present. The bride's table centered by the wedding cake, was pretty with pink and white streamers and daisies. The guests were received by the bride's mother, Mrs. Voigt, who wore a smart black satin gown. She was assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. Russel, who wore a black flat crepe gown. The happy young couple will reside in Walkerton.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Mrs. Louisa Rahn, Deceased

After an illness of over two months, Mrs. Louisa Rahn passed away on Monday evening at the home of her son, Andrew Rahn, on the 4th concession of Carrick. Deceased, whose maiden name was Louisa Kauster, was born in Germany in the year 1847, and came with her parents to Canada when she was seven years old. Forty-seven years ago she came with her husband to Carrick. Mr. Rahn predeceased her two years ago. Mrs. Rahn was a woman of very kindly disposition, a fine neighbor and a devoted mother. Her neighbors loved her for her fine upright character, and she will be greatly missed in that neighborhood. She is survived by her two sons, Andrew of Carrick, and Daniel of London, and three daughters, Mrs. Fred Schaus of Northampton, Mrs. Jacob Weitz of Kitchener and Miss Lena at home. The funeral will take place on Thursday at St. Paul's Lutheran Cemetery, Northampton.

Pretty June Wedding

The Mildmay Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a pretty June wedding on Tuesday morning of this week, when Miss Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fischer of Mildmay, became the wife of Clarence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Montag, of Culross. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Montag. The bride was lovely in blue georgette, and carrying pink roses and ferns. Her bridesmaid, Miss Verena Huber, was attired in yellow georgette, carrying a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Gerald Weishar acted as best man. The wedding guests, numbering about one hundred, assembled at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony, where a magnificent wedding dinner was served. The young couple were the recipients of a profusion of costly and beautiful wedding presents. The groom's gift to the bride was a substantial cheque, to the bridesmaid a necklace and bracelet, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links. Mr. and Mrs. Montag left for a motor trip to Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Detroit, and upon their return will take up residence on the groom's fine farm in Culross. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fischer and Messrs. Fred and Isidore Fischer of Detroit.

Stars Wallop Holstein

The league football match played here last Friday evening between Holstein and the Mildmay Stars, won by the Stars by 6 goals to 1. The grounds were wet and slippery from the heavy rains, but the game was a fairly good exhibition. The Stars jumped into the lead early in the game by scoring on a penalty kick and a free kick. Joe Raybould took a nice pass from Geo. Kaufman and scored the third goal, and before the half-time whistle blew, Mildmay scored another goal. The visitors were also given a penalty in the first half, but Dickson kicked it over the top. In the second half Referee Edbrooks of Chesley gave Holstein another penalty, and they succeeded in converting this one for their only tally of the game. Mildmay added two more counts in the second half, the scoring honors going to Joe Raybould, getting one on Geo. Schetter's rebound, and the other on his own rebound. This brought the final count to 6 to 1, but in justice to the visiting team, we must say the score does not properly represent the play. Referee Edbrooks, we believe, was perhaps too liberal in awarding penalty kicks, and this boosted the score for the Stars a little higher. Holstein has a fine team, and as they still have two home games to play, they will be right up in the running before the group games are finished. The Stars, however, deserve credit for the fine game they played, and looked good enough to win the district. Joe Raybould, as centre forward, tallied all six goals himself, but he was ably supported by Kaufman, Harper, Walker and Howard. The half back line, Geo. Schetter, Clem. Illig and Gordon Loisinger worked well together, and fed the forward line very effectively. Kunkel and Schurr played a steady game on the back line, and C. E. Wendt outgassed the visitors on every occasion.

Sunday School Lesson

June 23. Lesson XII—A Psalm of Praise—Psalm 103: 1-13. Golden Text—Bless the Lord, O my soul.—Psalm 103. 1.

ANALYSIS:

I. PRAISE, INDIVIDUAL AND UNIVERSAL, vs. 1-5; 19-22.

II. THE JUSTICE, MERCY AND COMPASSIONATE LOVE OF GOD, vs. 6-18.

INTRODUCTION— "There are no clouds in the horizon, nor notes of sadness in the music of this psalm. No purer outburst of thankfulness enriches the church. It is well that amid the many psalms which give voice to mingled pain and trust there should be one of unalloyed gladness, as untouched by sorrow as if sung by spirits in heaven." So writes a great preacher whose expositions of the Psalms are unsurpassed for their insight and beauty.—Maclaren in the Expositor's Bible.

The Psalm is attributed to David in its title, but there is much in it which bears the marks of a later age. It seems to be a companion to Psalm 104. They both begin and end with the high praises of God. The one dwells upon his goodness and his mercy manifested in his dealings with his people, the other upon his power, wisdom, and goodness revealed in nature and in providence. "There are no clear marks of division" in this psalm, Maclaren says, "but the river broadens as it runs, and personal benedictions and individual praise open out into gifts which are seen to fill the universe, and thanksgiving which is heard from every extremity of his wide dominion of loving kindness."

I. PRAISE, INDIVIDUAL AND UNIVERSAL, vs. 1-5; 19-22.

The poet, with true feeling, blesses God first of all for forgiveness of sins, then for the healing of all diseases. By this latter we may believe he means diseases of mind and spirit as well as of body. The deeper need of the soul is the need of forgiveness. Jesus recognized this when the man sick of the palsy was brought into his presence. He first declared to the sick man that his sins were forgiven, then he healed his bodily affliction, Mark 2: 3-12. Compare Psalm 85: 1-3 and 147: 3.

It is true that health of mind and spirit ministers to health of body. It is also true in our human experience that there are diseases of the body which the mind, even though depending in strong faith upon God, cannot heal. Nevertheless, faith conquers the disability, rejoices in God's redeeming love, and in his forgiving grace, and endures in hope of immortality and eternal life. In the highest and truest sense the man of faith may, with the psalmist, say to his soul, He healeth all thy diseases; he redeemeth thy life from destruction. And he bears upon his uplifted brow as a wreath or crown the loving-kindness and tender mercies of God.

The meaning of v. 5 is not quite certain. The Hebrew word rendered "mouth" is rendered in the ancient Greek version "desire." So Moffatt translates, perhaps correctly, "He gives you all your heart's desire. Renewing your youth like an eagle's." The second clause of v. 5 is possibly explained by the ancient fable which represents the eagle as from time to time renewing its youthful vigor by plunging into the sea.

The last verses of the psalm (19-22), lift us to the throne of God, whence his kingdom ruleth over all. There the hosts of the Lord, his angels, "strong spirits who obey his word" (Moffatt), ministers of his that do his pleasure, and of his vast creation, are called upon to join in a universal chorus of praise. In like manner Milton writes (Paradise Lost, Book V):

Speak ye who best can tell, ye sons of light,
Angels: for ye beheld him, and with songs
And choral symphonies, day without night,
Circle his throne rejoicing; ye in heaven,
On earth, join, all ye creatures, to extol

Him first, him last, him midst, and without end.
And so still, to the understanding and to the vision of faith, the order, might, and beauty of the world, both of the seen and of the unseen, unite to praise and magnify the Creator God. Compare Psalm 19: 1-2 and Psalm 148.

II. THE JUSTICE, MERCY AND COMPASSIONATE LOVE OF GOD, vs. 6-18.

This central part of the psalm begins with an assertion of God's jus-tee, especially as revealed in his dealings with the people of Israel, vs. 6, 7. The Hebrew poets were not blind to the seeming inequities and injustices of the world. Again and again they tell us of doubt and questioning, and complaint and distress of mind, of the prosperity of wicked men, and the suffering of the righteous. See Psalm 73: 1-13; 89: 38-51; Job, ch. 9; and compare Jer. 12: 1-2; 15: 15-18; Heb., ch. 1; and Mal. 2: 17; 3: 13-15. Nevertheless, their faith in God, in his truth and justice, prevails over every doubt, perplexity, and fear. Compare chs. 73: 16-28; 89: 1-18. In him justice, mercy, and love are inseparably joined, ch. 85: 9-11.

The poet dwells upon the mercy and forgiving grace of God, vs. 8-12. With this memorable passage compare Exod. 34: 6, 7; Psalm 86: 15; Isa. 55: 7; and Jer. 3: 12. Not wrath, but love rules the world. His loving mercy reaches beyond our highest thought. Not only does God forgive, but he puts away, out of sight for ever, the sins of which we have been guilty. Compare Isa. 43: 25. And by the grace of his spirit given to those who love him, he delivers them from the power and dominion of sin into the freedom of the children of God.

The heart of God is touched with the weakness of his children, the brief period of their earthly life, the sorrows with which they are encompassed. It is a great comfort to know that he cares, like a father (vs. 13-16), and that his merciful kindness is unfailing, vs. 17, 18. Surely they who come under that loving care, who claim through obedience that everlasting mercy, may rest in hope of life eternal:

So when this earthly mist
Fades in the azure sky,
My soul shall still be close to thee,
And in thee cannot die.

IT'S MODERN.

A toast-tan silk crepe with new classic lines, achieved through clever designing. It's typically modern, smart and slender. Among those afflicted with the foot and mouth disease who should be isolated are those motorists who step on the gas and yell at the pedestrian to get out of the way.

This is how the Trans-Canada appears as she leaves Montreal each evening. The all-steel equipment of this train, which was built at the Angus Shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway is epitomized in the Solarium car, which is carried at the rear end. With a vita-glazed solarium, two shower baths, men's and ladies' smoking-rooms and a large observation-lounge, this car is the most luxurious to operate over Canadian lines and is open in its entirety to patrons of the Trans-Canada Limited.

Farm Notes

HEMP FOR FIBRE.

Hemp, the fibre of which is used for making rope, binder twine and other cordage, is grown to a limited extent in Canada. In Western Ontario one firm grows upwards of 250 acres per year, while a cordage company in Manitoba grows two or three times this acreage. Both these growers use special hemp machinery which is too expensive for the grower who might devote a portion of his farm to this crop. The Fibre Division of the Experimental Farms has made tests of this crop, using the ordinary grain reaper and the horse-drawn hay rake for handling the crop. The hemp fibre being cut by the reaper requires to be spread by hand to give it a chance to ret properly. When the proper stage of retting has been reached the crop is gathered up by ordinary horse rake and tied in sheaves. The cost of the work done this way amounted to $1 an acre for the cutting, $5 per acre for the spreading by hand, and $3 for the lifting and tying. The crop handled in this way yielded from two to two and a half tons of retted straw to the acre. Commenting on this work in his report for 1927, Mr. R. J. Hutchinson, Chief of the Fibre Division, observes that while the cost of harvesting the crop in this manner is higher per acre than when the special hemp harvesting machinery is used, it has shown that it is possible for the average farmer to grow and handle a crop of hemp with such machinery as he may have for the ordinary farm harvesting operations.

Tests for growing hemp were made at several of the experimental farms and stations. At Fredericton as high as 1,325 pounds of fibre were produced per acre. This was from seeding done on the 20th of May. At Lennoxville, 1,246 pounds were obtained from an acre seeded about the first of May. This crop reached a height of nine feet, eleven inches. A full account of the work of the Fibre Division, which devotes its attention to flax and hemp carried on at Ottawa and different Experimental Stations, is contained in the report of the Division, published by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

INCREASING THE COLONIES.

Beekeepers multiply their colonies by either of two systems. The bees may be allowed to swarm or the colonies may be divided by the beekeeper and queens added when necessary. At the Scott, Saskatchewan, Experimental Station, swarming is not permitted, as it is considered at better way to increase by division. In the report of the Station for last year the Superintendent explains two systems that are followed, one of queenening and requeening an dthe other separation of queen and brood. In the first of these methods the queen is removed and all queen cells are destroyed. The colony is left queenless for ten days when all queen cells are again destroyed and a young laying queen introduced. Where this system was followed in the Scott Station no further swarming was evident during the season. The other system is to separate the queen and brood. This plan is preferred by many beekeepers on the grounds that it is more easily done and is very effective. The procedure is to destroy all queen cells and move all brood to an empty super above the honey super, leaving only one frame of stores in the lower chamber with the old queen. The remainder of the brood chamber is filled with drawn comb or foundation. At the end of a week all queen cells are again destroyed. These, the Superintendent points out, are to be found in the old brood chamber above. As soon as the larvae hatch in the old brood chamber the combs are cleaned by the bees and used for the storage of honey. Swarming was overcome in all the colonies treated in this way at the Scott Station last year. The Scott Station carried no other work in apian management described in this report available at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

NEW EGG GRADING STATION

Co-operation among farmer producers in the matter of the sale of eggs has been advocated and assisted by the Federal Dept. of Agriculture for many years. Last year the Trenton Egg Circle did a business amounting to over $18,000, and the members of the circle received an average price of 31.8 cents a dozen.

Farmer poultry producers in Trenton and vicinity are taking steps to extend their operations, with the ultimate object of forming a Poultry Improvement Association that will embrace every phase of the poultry work in the district. In this co-operation of the business men has been sought by the farmers, and at an Egg Banquet, which the Egg Circle members gave to the merchants, one of the latter remarked, "In supporting you, we realize that we are really supporting ourselves. . . . Any proposition which is of interest to the farmer will receive the hearty support of the Trenton merchant body, as a unit."

As a result of this trade and producer co-operation a grading station was opened May 29th at Trenton, and this, together with the large up-to-date hatchery doing custom hatching and distributing blood-tested stock and the splendidly organized fowl poultry fair, will eventually form the basis of the Trenton Poultry Improvement Association.

The merchants of Trenton buy their eggs from the Grading Station, and as one of them said, they can offer them for sale without fear of a Government Inspector. Previously the grocer was inclined to hide the eggs he was offering for sale if he knew the Inspector was in town.

Reggie: "I have a cold in my head, Miss Sharpe."
Miss S.: "That's better than nothing in your head, Mr. Sapp."

Tasty Recipes

CREAMED CRAB MEAT.

One slice of onion chopped, 1 small can of crab meat. Fry together in 2 tablespoons of butter five minutes, being careful not to burn. Add 2 tablespoons of flour and cook 1 minute. Add 1 cup of milk and 1 beaten egg yolk. Stir constantly until thickened. Serve on squares of toast.

CASSEROLE OF PORK.

Two cups of roast pork, 1 large carrot, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 green pepper, sprigs of sweet herbs, 1 apple, salt, 1 slice onion, 1/2 cup fat, 5 tablespoons flour, 6 small onions, 2 cups of water, 1 1/2 cups cooked macaroni, pepper, 1 teaspoon mustard. Brown chops in fat, place in casserole, add onions, macaroni, carrot, pepper and apples cut in pieces. To fat in pan add sliced onions and cook until brown. Add flour, brown, add stock or water, salt, pepper, mustard. Stir sauce until it boils, pour over meat and vegetables and bake; cover for 1 1/2 hours.

DATE PIE.

Two heaping cups of stoned dates stewed in a little water until soft, and put through a sieve. Add 1/2 cup sugar, butter size of a walnut (melted), 3/4 teaspoon salt, 1 well beaten egg and a scant cup and a half of milk.

Put into pastry-lined pie plate (small size if it's deep) and bake in a quick oven for 15 minutes, reducing heat for remaining 45 minutes.

DOUGHNUTS.

Cream 3/4 cup sugar with 2 tablespoons shortening and mix in 2 well-beaten eggs; add 3/4 cup milk and then stir in 3/4 cups of flour with 3 teaspoons baking powder sifted in, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg. Roll dough on well-floured board and cut with doughnut cutter. Test fat with a cube of bread; if it browns in one minute fat is of right temperature—365 degrees F. is right. Fry doughnuts until delicately brown and drain on brown paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar while still warm.

Dog-in-the-Manger

Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph (Ind.): The farmer—and particularly the western farmer—is not interested in schemes of immigration, however scientific, being resolutely opposed to any artificial increase in our population. . . . The home market is always the best market and if there were enough people in Canada to enable the western farmer to sell the bulk of his produce in this country, exporting the remaining surplus afterwards he would be much better off than he is or can be under present conditions. And considering that, in the majority of cases, he himself entered Canada as an immigrant, it is singularly ungracious of him to attempt to shut others out from the opportunities that have been freely accorded to himself.

West Indian Trade

Moncton Transcript (Ind.): Although Canada buys from the West Indies only a small proportion of its tropical importations, it sells in the market an equally small proportion of the purchases which the West Indies make abroad. There is ample room for the extension of the trade between Canada and the West Indies, in both directions, and the proposal to establish a trade commissioner service in this country appears to be a reasonable one.

What Is Home Without a Name?

Family Crest on Car Must Pay, Why Not the Luxury of a "Bellevue" or "The Chestnuts" on Suburban Bungalow? Asks Perplexed Mailman

London.—Post-war years in England have seen a tremendous development of suburbs and garden cities. Apparently every purchaser of a suburban villa feels that he is entitled to paint whatever seems to him an appropriate name on the front fence. He it ever so humble, it still becomes Sans Souci, The Chestnuts, Rudder Crange, or something equally impressive.

Now the postmen are showing signs of rebellion. Too many letters are being mailed to such addresses as "The Willows," Golders Green," without adding the street and number, and it has been suggested that the proper remedy is a tax on such names. A tax is already exacted from anyone who wants a family crest on a carriage or motorcar, and the question is asked whether a high-sounding name on a cottage is any less an exhibition of vanity.

Sometimes, however, all the neighbors are not in accord on the subject of names. A writer in the "Manchester Guardian" says he knows two small villas side by side in a Thames-side village which face the great wall of an estate. One owner put the name "Bellevue" on his gate, and his neighbor matched this with "Wallview." Another villa name in a northern suburb of London seems to hint that all of the family were not agreed in choosing the house. The cottage is called simply "Mary's Mistake."

The Reparations Conference

Sisley Huddleston in the New Statesman (London): From start to finish the conference at Paris has been an affair of bargaining, and not an affair of precise reckoning. The Allies want to extract as much money from Germany as possible. Germany wants to pay as little money as possible. On one side are the Allied needs—and these can be, and have been, calculated in accordance with a number of systems. On the other side is Germany's capacity of payment, which, dependent on unknown factors, present and future, is utterly indeterminate. At this capacity is influenced by Germany's willingness to pay, Germany's interest in paying, and the degree of pressure of various kinds which can be put upon her to compel payments. The problem, therefore, is more political than financial and economic, or, using the word in this connection as a synonym, psychological.

Stock Market Gambling . .

Ottawa Journal (Cons.): No country can be in a wholesome state when a lot of its citizens think that all they need to do to get rich is buy stock in some enterprise one day and sell it at a profit the next. To that crazy notion, prevalent for the past few years, too many of our people subscribed. They thought, or appeared to think, that stocks must always go up, not stopping to reflect what effect such continued soaring must eventually produce upon national economics. Now, and perhaps not too soon, their disillusionment has come.

Bilingual Difficulties

Guelf Mercury (Ind.): Those who have become intimately acquainted with the history of Ontario in recent years are well aware of the difficulties caused by the spread of the French language into New Ontario, where the overflow of population from "Lower Canada" has been for years causing social and linguistic troubles that future generations will find it difficult to overcome. But these will be trifles compared with the linguistic and other social obstacles that the Dominion Government is confronted with in the Canadian West.

Women now control nearly half the individual wealth of North America, women millionaires being as plentiful as men.

Dreaded anaemia can be banished!

IN middle life, when vitality is not as great as it once was, and the blood stream is naturally thinned and de-vitalized, anaemia easily lays hold on the system. At first, just a tired feeling, it quickly results in bodily weakness that ordinary tonics cannot avail.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills then become a wonderful aid. They supply the necessary oxygen to the blood, increase the blood count and renew waning vigor.

"I was seized with anaemia," writes Mrs. Charles Lambert of Port Hope, Ont., "and was in a very bad state. As a girl I had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a run-down condition and decided to take them once more. Again the result was marvelous. In a little while I was fully well again."

You cannot begin too early to check anaemia. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold at your druggist's or by mail, postpaid, 50 cents, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Aviation at Exhibition

Another giant stride has been taken in the Canadian National Exhibition's program for Aviation, Transportation and Commercial Travellers' Day, Thursday, September 5th. The distant drone, dipping roar and intricate evolutions of fleets of planes will make a spectacle of the sky above Exhibition Park on that occasion. Deputy Minister G. J. Desbarats of the Department of National Defense has notified the Canadian National Exhibition that permission has been granted for the Canadian Air Force to operate over the park with a fleet of Avion, Avro, Courier, Fairchild, Atlas, Siskin and Moth planes.

Major Wilson, Controller of Civic Aviation, will send an inspector from his department to be attached to the Canadian National Exhibition for the two weeks period of operation from August 23rd to September 7th. Rapid progress is being made in the negotiations for an airplane derby from Cleveland to Toronto, sponsored jointly by the Canadian National Exhibition and other local organizations and the United States national air race committee. Cleveland will be the rendezvous for hundreds of planes during the Exhibition. It is present negotiations are brought to a successful issue the greatest international congress of the air ever seen in America will be one of the attractions at the Exhibition.

Truth

For my own part, I am fully persuaded that the most powerful goddess, and one that rules mankind with the most authoritative sway, is Truth. For though she is resisted by all, and oftentimes has drawn up against her the plausibilities of falsehood in the subtle forms, she triumphs over all opposition.—Polybius.

"Greenwich time," famed throughout the world, is determined by the movement of a certain star which arrives due south once every twenty-four hours.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

THE ONLY GIRL

First she's on your thoughts a lot. She has many charms; Soon she's in your motor car; Then she's in your arms.

Then she's in your family; Oh, a lackaday! Then, of course, for evermore She is in your way.

Boe: "What is it?"

Joe: "A liquid which, when applied to a girl's lips makes her kisses taste like oranges."

Boe: "That's not so good; why not a liquid that'll make an orange taste like a woman's kiss?"

A good credit can't stand much abuse.

OUR FRUITFUL LANGUAGE

A girl shows her raisins when she makes a date with a brune for whom she doesn't care a fig. She may be a peach, but they make a funny pear. She may be the apple of his eye, but she hands him a lemon, although she may have a cheery disposition. It is plum wrong, and if her name is Anna he ought to ban Anna. By this time he would realize that his efforts had been fruitless.

Hush money probably talks loudest.

Some people try to learn so much by watching the mistakes of others that they never see their own.

The station-master rushed out of his room after hearing a crash on the platform. He discerned a disheveled young man sprawled out perfectly flat among a confusion of overturned milk cans and the scattered contents of his travelling bag.

"Was he trying to catch the train?" the station-master asked a small boy who stood by admiring the scene.

"He did catch it," said the boy, "but it go away again."

What part of speech is a kiss? Well, it is a pronoun provided "she" stands for it.

Angus MacArdie could not be persuaded to attend the village kirk on any pretext whatever. "How is it, Angus?" asked the minister one day. "How is it ye won't come ta church?"

Angus made answer that the sermons were far too long to please him.

"Och," retorted the minister wrathfully. "You'll probably end up in a place whaur ye'll hear no sermons either long or short." "Ah, well, maybe you're richt," agreed Angus placidly. "But it'll no be for war o' meenisters, ye ken!"

IS THERE A BABY IN YOUR HOME?

Is there a baby or young children in your home? If there is you should not be without a box of Baby's Own Tablets. Children ailments come quickly and means should always be at hand to promptly fight them. Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal home remedy. They regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach; banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers—in fact they relieve all the minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Joise Cabotte, Makamik, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are the best remedy in the world for little ones. My baby suffered terribly from indigestion and vomiting, but the Tablets soon set her right and now she is in perfect health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Going Home

Going home? Then you will see again The wonder blue of woods in early May;

Watch April blow with beauty in the lane, Breathe the shy scent of willow palms asway.

The soft enchantment of the cuckoo's note Will break the quiet of the dawn-lit copse;

June fields, with saffron buttercups afloat, Will shake from glistening blades The rainbow drops.

Lime flowers, mist mornings in September, Beech trees and oaks burnt copper, scarlet chrome—

And frosted nights—all these things I remember Because you say to me, "I'm going home."

The Colonial Empire

London Spectator: We are only at the beginning of developing our vast Colonial Empire. It will give us the opportunity to write a fresh chapter of Imperialism, and to write it very wisely from the old chapters. The vision is of white men and men of other colours co-operating in mutual respect for the wealth and health of mankind. The wealth of the tropics cannot be withheld, for it belongs to humanity; but when the well-being of the native has been secured as the first charge on and the first duty of the developers, there will be an ample share for those, including men now unemployed, who will help to build and to provide the equipment for these great new countries.

Canada's Far North

Vancouver Province (Ind. Cons.): As for the Arctic's resources, they are scarcely appreciated as yet. But the great pre-Cambrian shield is there, and that has become known as a treasure house. There is copper on the Coppermine River, and copper is becoming scarce in the world, while the demand for it promises to increase. There is zinc on Great Slave Lake. There is oil on the lower Mackenzie, an apossibly further up. There are fish in the Arctic lakes. There are reindeer pastures that have not yet been exploited. There are furs, of course, and possibly other resources as well. The Arctic slope is sure to come into its own sooner or later, and its development will give Canada a breadth she has lacked from the beginning.

Moscow Cancels Chinese Immunity

Soviets Take Action Following Raids on Harbin Consulate

Moscow.—The Moscow Embassy of the Chinese Nationalist Government and Nationalist Consulates throughout the Soviet Union were deprived of normal extra-territorial immunities by the Soviet Government.

The action was the result of a series of alleged provocations which were climaxed by the raid of the Soviet Consulate at Harbin this week and the arrest of more than forty persons, including two Soviet consuls-general.

At the same time, the Soviet Government warned Nanking to avoid "further tests of the Soviet Government's patience by provocative acts and violations of agreements."

A note couched in indignant terms was handed the Chinese Charge d'Affaires here last night by L. M. Karakhan, assistant foreign commissar.

The Way It Works

Detroit Free Press: Thugs who entered a drinking place in Hamtramck recently commenced their operations by shooting the proprietor without warning. From their callous standpoint there was no reason why they should not do that. They place no value on lives except their own lives, and the law in this State is no more severe on robbers who kill than it is on robbers who abstain from killing. The Legislature did its best, but the open season for murder continues.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the cruelest pang of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Victims of the Market

New York World: It is the small and inexperienced traders who are the last to go in and the first to get hurt, and who usually get hurt the hardest. They are victims of what is sometimes called the "psychological lag." Their bullish enthusiasm comes too late and is poorly directed. Instead of cautiously investing they are prone to buy volatile stock on margin and thus play into the hands of those who know the market better and who can afford to indulge the luxury of a chance. The experience may be worth something to them, but it comes too high.

ACCIDENT VICTIM DIED

Wm. F. Newton, who last week was reported as the victim of an accident, passed away in King Edward General Hospital on Wednesday last. He was working for Mr. John Fair, 12th Huron, when the team he was driving ran away and hurled him violently to the ground, being later found in an unconscious condition and rushed to the hospital. Deceased was 35 years of age, and came to Canada from England when a lad, since that time working as a farm hand in this district. He served overseas with the Canadian forces.—Kincardine Review-Reporter.

Can you imagine a woman with a stove-pipe skirt so tight that a natural leaf sheep-ranchman went out with his dog and herd; a noseless fisherman caught a barrel of herring and snuff; a defunct hatter was tenderly deposited on a pile of hats and felt; a forty-ton elephant inserted his trunk into a grate and flue."

DEATH OF PETER H. MACKENZIE

Full of years and at the eventide of a useful active career, there passed away on Thursday another of Ontario's grand old men in the person of Peter H. Mackenzie, who for over a long period of years was a recognized leader in agricultural activities and a public man of note in Bruce County—a man who gave freely of his time and energy to the political as well as agrarian affairs of his day.
Mr. Mackenzie, who was in his eighty-fifth year, passed away at the home of his daughter, Miss M. J. Mackenzie, 37 Speeding Road, Toronto, after a brief illness, closing a career that had spanned some of the most important epochs in Canada's history, in the making of which history he, as a public representative on Township and County Councils, as well as in the Parliament at Ottawa, took no small part.

The late Peter H. Mackenzie, Esq., M. P., was a native of Puslinch Township, Wellington County, and the son of Scottish pioneer settlers who came to this country in the thirties. It was in Puslinch that he spent his boyhood and received his early education, moving to Bruce county after his marriage to Elizabeth Valens, also a native of Wellington County, and who predeceased him by some twenty years.
Mr. Mackenzie was actively engaged in farming until about fifteen years ago, at which time he retired. He came to Toronto to live two years ago. During his long life he always took an active interest in the public affairs of his community and of the Dominion. In turn, Bruce County citizens honored him with public trusts in the capacities of school trustee, Township Council, County Council and Parliamentary representative. He is credited with the founding of the Agricultural Association in Bruce, and was President of the Kinross branch for many years.
M. P. From 1904 to 1909.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of Dominion Parliament from 1904 until 1909, during the regime of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The character of his political thought is perhaps best expressed by a national newspaperman of his day, who said of him, "He was a striking type of the old school of Liberalism, strong in his convictions, but always with the kindest feelings toward his political opponents." He was one of the persons of his political thought in the British Isles. It was during these two years of service in the Old Land that he was the guest of Lord Strathcona.
During his career in the House of Commons he was Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, and later representative of the post of special representative of the Dominion Department, when he visited all the important agricultural communities in the British Isles. It was during these two years of service in the Old Land that he was the guest of Lord Strathcona.

BENTINCK MAN FINED

Game Warden A. L. Rolston, of Owen Sound, was in Walkerton on Saturday in connection with the prosecution of Herbert Schenk, a farmer who resides a few miles from Hanover. He was charged with buying small lake trout from Indians of Cape Croker, which is an infringement of the game laws. Schenk did not put in an appearance himself but was represented by counsel from Hanover, who pleaded guilty on behalf of his client. He was fined $15 and costs, making a total of $39.40. Mr. Rolston stated that this man has given the Department considerable trouble on previous occasions, says Rolston.

The Owen Sound Sun-Times and Magistrate Walker informed his counsel that Schenk must be informed that he cannot do these things and expect to get away with it, in fact, the practise of buying these small lake trout must be stopped if at all possible.

McCOSH REMAINS SILENT

Wingham, June 16—John McCosh, "the mystery man of Brussels," who under constant questioning by police and hospital authorities refused to name the assailant who attacked him on the evening of May 25th, preferring to exact his own vengeance on the attacker, has recovered sufficiently to leave the local general hospital and return to his home in the neighboring village.
Physicians described McCosh's injuries as being of the most serious nature, yet, despite that, the victim, an elderly umbrella mender and stepple jack, adopted an attitude of silence. He refused to name his attacker, and the only information police received was the nonchalant statement, "I'll get the man who did it myself." The same attitude marked his two weeks' stay in the local institution. The day he was discharged officials knew no more of the assault details than they did the night he was admitted, despite the fact that a former Londoner is held by Huron County authorities on a charge of assault in connection with the case.

Three days after the assault Wm. Allan, 49, itinerant notion peddler and driver, was arrested by London detectives in a Forest City lodging house and taken to Goderich to stand trial for the assault.

CHARACTER BY THE MONTH

If a girl is born in January she is a prudent housewife, given to melancholy, but good tempered.
If in February, a humane and affectionate wife and tender mother.
If in March, a frivolous chatter box, somewhat given to quarreling.
If in April, full of life and activity, quick tempered and sometimes extravagant.
If in May, handsome and likely to be happy.
If in June, impetuous, will marry early and be frivolous.
If in July, passably handsome, but with a sulky temper.
If in August, amiable and practical, and likely to marry rich.
If in September, discreet, affable, and much liked.
If in October, pretty and coquetish, and likely to be unhappy.
If in November, liberal, kind and of a mild disposition.
If in December, well proportioned, fond of novelty and extravagant.

trial for assault. High Constable Whitesides, of Goderich, is in charge of the investigation.
Allan, who is now on remand in Goderich jail, will appear in police court at Brussels on Monday on a charge of assault. Until the present he has not been asked to plead and High Constable Whitesides would not divulge whether or not he has made a confession of the crime or whether Allan claims innocence of the entire affair.
Allan and McCosh had been "chummy" together before the attack on the latter. Then Allan disappeared, to be apprehended a few days later.
About 10 o'clock on the night of May 25th McCosh staggered into Patrick's gas station, Brussels, weak from the loss of blood and with a terrible open wound showing on his cheek. The gash extended from his right ear to the chin, disclosing his teeth, and thence from the chin upwards. Medical attention was given by two physicians who found that a broken knife blade had become imbedded in the man's jaw. Several stitches were required to close the wound.
For a time it was feared that McCosh would lose his voice. Hospital officials here said, however, that there is no chance of such an occurrence.

It is a rare case fo parenthood—and doubtless also of childhood—when children and parents become friends, and serve and obey each other not because they must but because they really want to.
Once in a while, a little old-fashioned plain talk does us all good. It may not be pleasing to our sense of things, but honest, constructive criticism never yet hurt anybody, and it is our very best friend who is not detectives in a Forest City lodging house and taken to Goderich to stand trial for the assault.

Rio Grande Valley, Texas

Accepting the invitation of J. C. Engleman Jr. Inc., owners of a large tract of land in the Rio Grande Valley, Texas, the editor of this paper, and Mr. Geo. W. Scott, of Walkerton, left Mildmay on the morning of June 3rd, motoring to Windsor, and took the Wabash train out of Detroit, leaving at 7 o'clock in the evening. We had a few hours to spare in Detroit and enjoyed looking about the big bustling city that has absorbed so many of our young people during the past ten years.

All arrangements for our journey were made by Messrs. W. W. Spatzel of Kitchener and R. W. Riedson of Galt, representatives of the Engleman Company, who also accompanied us. After a comfortable night on the Wabash, we awoke near St. Louis and as the train crossed over the mighty Mississippi, which divides Indiana and Missouri States, an American passenger proudly announced "You are now crossing the second largest river in the world," and if he had added that it was also the dirtiest, filthiest river in the world, we would have had no hesitation in accepting his statement as being correct. The Mississippi is navigable as far north as St. Paul, Minnesota, and carries a tremendous amount of traffic.

The fine old city of St. Louis lies immediately west of the Mississippi, and is a very important railway centre. The city has a population of 750,000, and has one of the finest depots in the Union. The party was escorted to Forest Park, the city's magnificent 1500 acre zoo, where nearly every animal from a gopher to a 2500 pound sea lion could be seen. In the museum here, Col. Lindbergh's magnificent trophies and testimonials are on exhibition, and we spent a very pleasant and interesting hour looking them over. St. Louis is very proud of its world-famed aviator, and arrangements are being made to establish the largest aviation school on the continent in the city. The street car service in St. Louis does not, in our estimation, compare with Toronto's system, the cars being rather antiquated and shabby.

Leaving St. Louis at 2:30 on the Missouri Pacific, we commenced our long trip through Missouri and Arkansas. The State of Missouri, from what we could view from the train, did not look like a choice agricultural country, in fact, we saw very few fields of good crops during the trip through the whole state. Negro shacks are numerous along the railway, but very few signs of real progress are in evidence. The Ozark mountains, which rise to a height of 1400 feet, is crossed by the Missouri Pacific, and as we climbed the mountain, we naturally thought of Harold Bell Wright's popular novel "Shepherd of the Hills", the scene of which was laid there.

San Antonio, Texas, was the next stop of importance. This is an historical city, and the inhabitants enjoy telling of the battles between the Texans and Mexicans, which finally resulted, under General Houston, in achieving the independence of Texas from Mexico. Upon our arrival at San Antonio, nearly fifty motor buses to view the beauties of the place. San Antonio has a population of 300,000, and is a lovely city. Its many fine parks, sunken gardens, magnificent buildings and palatial residences attract and please the eye of the visitors. Our guide proudly pointed out the fine post office, where the city's most popular soldier, General de Lierre, made his home; the building formerly used as a brewery, but since prohibition has been converted into a glass factory to manufacture glass eyes for blind pigs; the Y. W. C. A., variously described as the city's greatest broadcasting station, and no man's land, and where they do not even allow a mail box; the beautiful home of a man who made a hand to mouth living, by having a strong pull—he was a dentist; lovers' lane, where assemble peaches, pears and dates, many of which develop into lemons; and finally millionaires' row, where the people are so wealthy that every blade of grass in their lawns has a green back, they wash their clothes with gold dust, and use diamond tires on their cars.

San Antonio is wonderful for the beauty and originality of its architecture, which delights the eye of the visitor. There is a large Mexican population here, but they appear to be fairly good citizens.

When we had completed our tour of the city, the party assembled at the Plaza Hotel, a magnificent twelve story hotel, equipped with every modern convenience and luxury, where dinner was served, and the party returned to their train at 10 o'clock in the evening.

Thursday morning we reached Palatine, an important railway centre, reputed to be the hottest place in Texas. It was a real sizzler, and as most of the members of our party were northerners, there was a wholesale shedding of underwear at this point.

Our destination, Engelman Gardens, Rio Grande Valley, was reached on Thursday noon. This region is the extreme southern portion of Texas, and the U. S. and is 400 miles further south than the southern line of California. The valley consists of a million acres in the Counties of Hidalgo and Cameron, the unsurpassed fertility of which was not known earlier than twenty years ago. To-day the valley is dotted with thriving, prosperous, substantially built towns. There are thousands of acres now yielding the finest citrus fruits that the world produces. The soil is a deposit of silt, humus and soil brought down in countless floods from extensive areas of rich land in the vast basin drained by the great river and its tributaries. The topsoil, varying in depth from two to twelve feet, and its wonderful fertility can scarcely be described. The climate is semi-tropical, semi-arid and is delightful all the year round. Even in July the thermometer stays well below 100, and from May until September the valley is fanned by the great southeast trade wind, with a high percentage of iodine and salt. Rheumatism, asthma, catarrh or other bronchial troubles are said not to exist in the Delta, and goitre is unknown.

The valley has an average rainfall of approximately twenty-five inches yearly, and this is augmented by a comprehensive system of irrigation. The water used for irrigation purposes is brought from the Rio Grande River through large canals to practically every section of the valley. The party, through the kind courtesy of Mr. Engelman, was taken by automobile to visit a number of the older established ranches in the valley, and what they saw and heard was certainly a revelation.

Mrs. Volz, the owner of the first plantation, was visited, and she entertained the party with the interesting story of her success as a fruit grower. In her gardens Mrs. Volz grows grape fruit, oranges, lemons, dates, olives and a great variety of other fruits. Her grape fruit trees yield a net profit of $1000 to $1200 per acre, and she values her lands now at $5000 per acre.

We next visited Richard Wade's fine farm. Mr. Wade was formerly a hog farmer in Wisconsin, but came to the Valley about fifteen years ago. He has a fine fruit farm, and is now a very wealthy man. He still loves his hogs, but realizes that the time he spends in attending them is largely wasted, as the cultivation of citrus fruit is much more profitable.

The party was next privileged to visit Mrs. Carter's beautiful home. Mrs. Carter told us how she came to South Texas fourteen years ago in the hope of recovering her health. The climate proving beneficial, Mrs. Carter completely recovered, and in the fourteen years of her stay there, she has increased her holdings thirty one times. She has a lovely home, beautiful gardens, and hundreds of acres of producing fruit lands, and is reported to be one of the wealthiest citizens in the valley. She is a real booster for South Texas, and she has every reason to do so.

Our itinerary included a trip to Old Mexico, and the party crossed the Rio Grande River and entered the Mexican town of Reynosa on Thursday afternoon. The streets in the lower part of the town were abominable, and our drivers had to be very careful to keep the machines from tipping. They had also to keep a sharp look-out for the numerous dogs which inhabit the town. Each Mexican has one or more canines, and if an American motorist by any chance should injure one of these curs, there would be a terrible row. Mexican dairymen at Reynosa do not trouble with milk wagons. They drive their cow up to your front door, take your order, and extract it from the bovine, a creature with tremendous horns. The town's water supply is taken from the Rio Grande River by means of mule carts, who receive ten cents per barrel.

The party, wishing to secure some souvenirs of Mexico, entered the store of a big burly Mexican, with a fierce long black moustache, who proved to be more merciful than his appearance indicated. His prices seemed pretty high, but under the bantering of those in our party, who happened to be of Scottish descent, he compromised, and reduced his prices about thirty per cent. The citizens of Reynosa are looking forward to a big celebration in their town on July 4th, when the main attraction is to be a bull fight.

THE FORD CAR STEEL BODY

Combines Strength with Beauty

THE high grade steel used in building Ford car bodies gives maximum driving protection. Beauty of design has been combined with rugged strength in these all-steel bodies. The wood parts shown in the diagram are used only for attaching the interior trim and roof material.

If this body—that of the Tudor Sedan in this instance—mounted on a Model "A" chassis, were turned over and resting on the roof, it would support the chassis, engine and all without even bending the narrow window pillars. Such is the strength and high safety factors of Ford engineering.

Vision obstruction is reduced to a minimum by the use of narrow steel pillars. Lower rear panels, including the wheel housing, are made in one piece. This unusual feature on body construction gives additional strength.

Electrical welding adds greater rigidity and reduces the possibility of squeak and rattle. Panels and frame sections are welded or riveted. In assembly of large units where bolts are necessary, strips of anti-squeak material are used between sections. Sound deadening material is also used. Soft roof construction, of heavy padding over galvanized mesh wire, provides an additional element of quietness.

CHAPTER I UNREST.

Alden Talbot Drake possessed characteristics which fitted all three of his names. But chiefly he was restless. The urge, which had taken him to sea on leaving school, had never left him. He had left the sea. That, he now believed, had been a mistake. The sea was in his blood. Even where his horizon was bounded by terraces of dull brick and sooty trees, his nostrils ever quivered questioningly whenever the wind blew from the eastward. To the eastward lay the muddy river, and the docks, and the ships; ships and the ports where Romance still beckoned to bold youth.

He stood awhile at the gateway of his house, nostrils all a-tingle, his black eyes a-glimmer, a discontented grin of discontent "marring" the good-humored lines of his strong mouth. He had come from golf, and there was a trace of contempt in the fashion of his unslinging and dropping the bag of clubs he carried.

The big house which he called home was one of those stately old places which always seem to have had owners provided for them as they were built, stone by stone, timber by timber; owners to fit their dignity, growing, maturing as the years mellowed them. And Alden Drake had the looks aspect. Alden was about to raise his voice in apology; he raised his cap instead, and stared with sharper interest at the other occupant of the chair, the driver, who, her horses again in hand, turned a fair face full of haughty reproof upon the cause of her brief discomfort. Then the equipage turned the corner of the road, and Alden went in.

As he bathed and lounged, smoking a rich old briar pipe, relic of his "prentice days at sea, he scowled impatiently at the thought of the evening before him. His duty to Society ordered that he play host to a ponderous dinner party.

"There'll be Patty, all set to flirt," he growled. "Caesar! How I hate that perfume she drenches herself with! Bilge! Phah! She'll call me Alden, dear! Oh Lord! And that cute little trick, Celeste. Thirty-eight, if she's a day. Wonder she doesn't go up in smoke every time she lights a cigaret. Talk about putting a match near powder! Scissors! And the old hens, whose chicks are just getting old enough to be flown at my head—Suffering sailor! Why should I put up with it? A lot of birds of prey! Damn women, anyhow!"

The youthful cynic knocked out his pipe, refilled it, and flung himself into a deep lounge chair to smoke another

Ceremonies for Edinburgh's 600th Anniversary End in Colorful Pageantry

Edinburgh.—The season of pomp and pageantry, which this city has en-Commissioined, closed on May 28th, with the unveiling of statues to the national heroes, William Wallace and Robert the Bruce.

It was exactly 600 years ago (on May 28, 1329) that Edinburgh's oldest existing charter was signed by the Bruce. The Duke of York, as Lord High Commissioner, unveiled the statues at Edinburgh Castle and the Duchess, who is a descendant of the Bruce, also took part.

The ceremonies began with a service in St. Giles Cathedral, after which the Lord Provost, magistrate and representatives of public bodies proceeded on foot to the castle. Beautiful sunshine lit up the gaily-colored robes of the dignitaries and Knights of the Thistle, the heralds and representatives of law, art and natural sciences, and added variety to the red robes of Edinburgh and other Scottish corporations.

Messages were received from famous burghs who were unable to attend, among them one from J. Ramsay MacDonald, which said: "Either the Bruce or Mr. Baldwin is much to blame—the one for dating your royal charter May 28th, the other for having fixed a general election for May 30th."

Elections

An interesting editorial in the "Christian Science Monitor" explains the chief difference between British and American electoral systems. It reads as follows:

One of the most interesting features of the British election—at least to Americans—is the shortness of the period allowed for the active campaign. The electoral laws make it certain that the struggle will be over quickly. On the eighth day after the proclamation of the election is issued, nominations take place. The poll is held on the ninth day after nomination. Parliament assembles on the day of the proclamation summoning it. Thus this year Parliament was dissolved on May 10. Candidates are nominated on May 20. The election takes place on May 30.

This time-table is in striking contrast with the time-table of American elections. The British election is an express train which runs as rapidly as possible. An American election is a local train with many stops. From February to June of presidential years is the period during which delegates to the nominating conventions are chosen. After the convention, four months are given over to the presidential campaign. The election takes place in November. The electoral college meets in January and the votes are counted by Congress in February; the President takes office on March 4. Unless he calls a special session, Congress does not meet until the following December.

There has always been a tradition in the United States that presidential years were disturbing to business. The statisticians have shown that this is not the case. Fluctuations in business activity between 1888 and 1924 have been exhaustively examined by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Company. He found that business has improved in election years more often than it has declined. "In seven of the twelve cases the year closed with business at a higher level than it held when the year opened. In the remaining five cases the level of business was lower at the close of the year than it was at the beginning." But it is doubtful whether the election had any effect.

The speed with which British elections are conducted makes it impossible for the effect on business activity to be marked. Great Britain is particularly favored, it should be noted, by the fact that only parliamentary elections are held. The poll for members of the House of Commons is uncomplicated by a simultaneous choice of local governmental bodies. In the United States the Chief Executive, members of two branches of the National Legislature, governors, state legislators, mayors and other officials are voted for at the same time; in addition, many laws go before the people of different states for a popular referendum.

The American system of nomination, furthermore, seems extremely complicated, in comparison with the British practice. A candidate may run for the House of Commons if he is proposed in writing by a registered voter of the constituency and assented to by nine other voters. Freak candidacies or candidacies by those who have no chance of polling any considerable strength are prevented by a provision of the electoral law requiring a deposit of $750. This deposit is forfeited if the candidate fails to receive one-eighth of the votes which are polled. This year, however, more than 2,600 candidates have presented themselves for the 615 seats in the House of Commons. It is likely, therefore, in view of the many three-cornered contests, that there will be a number of forfeited deposits. This device, however, is a safeguard against too many nominations, and enables the ease of nominations to contribute to the quickness with which a British parliamentary election can be concluded.

"That congressman is sick, suffering from exposure."
"So? Didn't know he'd been investigated."

Fasting for Health

How and When to Give Your System a Rest
By DR. FISHER

We are unmerciful nigger-drivers of our own organs. We work our stomachs, livers and kidneys from morning till night, in a most ungalant manner, and the wonder is that they put up with it at all.

Most of us, I think, would consider ourselves under-fed and ill-done by, if we had less than three meals a day. There are people who are always taking "snacks," who believe that if they are not eating something at every possible moment, they will waste away.

Did they but know it, they are heading for disaster and an early grave. Our digestive organs can only absorb a certain quantity of food at one time. Each individual's powers of absorption vary. Put in more—and it is merely wasted.

This excess only imposes additional strain upon our secretory and excretory systems. The glands, which secrete digestive juices, and the liver, work overtime—for nothing. And our kidneys find themselves faced with a formidable quantity of waste products to dispose of.

Day by day this goes on. Is it any cause for surprise that our organs wear out before their time?

The Overfeeding Danger
More people are in danger of overfeeding than of underfeeding. Those accustomed to live freely would benefit immeasurably from an occasional day's fast.

Choose one day every fortnight when you will make a point of studying your own internal economy. That day will be your organs' period of rest. On that day eat nothing except, perhaps, some buttered toast. The more non-alcoholic fluid you drink the better.

It is surprising how much finer everybody feels the next day after the harmful excretions of overwork have been expelled, and the blood has been cleansed.

Apart from the hygienic importance of a fast, there is a psychological value; the more we feel we want our food—and we shall feel we want it badly the day after—the better will be our digestion and absorption.

A fast not only purifies our blood and organs, but muscular growth is benefited. It is Nature's own cure for fever. What better method is there of treating a severe cold or influenza than by strict starvation for a day or two, in conjunction with the liberal drinking of warm water.

It was Mark Twain, I believe, who said that "no cold in the head could survive 24 hours unmodified starvation."

Many diseases respond favorably to short periods of fasting. Acute pneumonia, acute nephritis, diabetes, gout, indigestion, high blood pressure, rheumatic affections, skin disorders are examples. For severe obesity strict dieting is essential.

But fasting, while an excellent practice if indulged in with care and judgment, can be very dangerous. Long periods of starvation do more harm than good.

When food is withheld the body feeds on its own store of fat and carbohydrates. At the start, the weight falls rapidly; then it settles down to a steady loss of a pound a day. Excepting the fat stores of the body and the glycogen in the liver and muscles, the loss falls first on the glands.

Then the liver, spleen, and pancreas suffer; and, in their turn, the muscles. Finally, a call is made on those vital organs—the heart and brain.

A Geographical Inexactitude

London Free Press (Cons.): (The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix received a letter from the assistant editor of the National Geographic Magazine, Washington, D.C., in which reference was made throughout to "Saskatoon, British Columbia.") If all the other information published in National Geographic is equally as accurate as the above, it is no cause for wonder that the Americans picture Canada only as a land of igloos and England as a country of beer mugs and plus-fours.

"OH, DEAR—THAT HORRID TOBACCO AGAIN!"

and the dignity to fit smoothly into the groove worn so unbrokenly by his immediate forbears. Trouble was, they failed to fit him. In externals he was part of the picture. His face was brown and clean shaven, his hands were brown and well kept, his golf toggery was brown and of fine tailoring; and all appeared in exquisite harmony with the fine old house within the gate. But there was that glitter in his eyes, that vague something about his mouth which jarred the harmony.

He turned in and flung the gate to with a harsh iron clang which startled a pair of fat horses just trotting past, dragging an old-fashioned low chair.

The discontent fled from his face, giving way to a genuine smile of amusement. Those horses looked as if nothing short of a cataclysm could startle them, so fat were they, and so staid. He realized how tremendously he must have slammed the gate to startle them, for they regained their steadiness in a moment, trotting placidly on. It was one of the two occupants whose tranquility was less easily restored, and the innocent offender raised his eyebrows surprisedly at the turbulent flood of deep water expletives that issued from "somewhere in the thick grey beard of a sturdy, copper-bronzed gentleman of nautical round before his man came to fix him up for the evening. The second pipe always made his see a gleam of sunshine behind the stormiest of horizons. There flashed before him now the face of an indignant feminine face, the prettily angry face of the girl who drove those two fat, lazy horses. He smiled more brightly. That face had only flashed across his vision for an instant, yet he retained a more vivid notion of its graces than close acquaintance with many another woman could leave.

"That brown hair might have golden glints in the sunlight," he mused. He gripped one wrist with the other full hand, sailor fashion, leaned his head back against the chair top, and blew smoke about his head until he saw nothing of the room at all. Then he could form pictures. It was an old trick of his. He saw quite sharply clear the picture of those fat old nags hauling that fat little low chariot. And the copper-bronze leathery face of the old gentleman with the gray whiskers. "A seaman, that," he decided. "The face of the girl was not quite clear cut. He purposely permitted that vision to remain vague."

He wanted to put in something of his own there. But he started with her brown hair, which might hold golden glints.

His picture stopped short of the ears. But her eyes had been blue. He vividly recalled how frostily blue they had been: like the clear blue of an iceberg in shadow. They were shadowed with anger; but he knew they would be gloriously blue, with ocean's own blue, when fat old horses and human events went placidly. How well that deep blue would go with her color!

At seven o'clock he was dressed and ready to go down. He knew his guests were arriving. But on his way down he entered his den again. He felt uncomfortable. He never liked entertaining, but never before had his dislike taken the bitter turn it seemed to have taken now. He felt as if he simply could not play host, even to save a reputation for courteous hospitality. He loaded up his pipe again, flung wide the eastern window, and stood puffing quick little smoke balls out into the night. There was a suggestion of fog creeping up from the river. The street lights, and the lamps of moving vehicles were blurred and yellow. There was a tang in the air, too. A vague, salty tang.

He stood there, peering hearing the

A Secret of Indian Riots Is Revealed

Communist Activities Organized Largely, If Not Mainly, from Berlin

By SIR MICHAEL O'DWYER
(Formerly Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab)

Sir Michael O'Dwyer, formerly Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, is one of the best-informed and most accomplished critics of Indian affairs.

Recent information he has received has tended to confirm that—as he shows in the special article below—Communist activities in India, such as have lately resulted in riots and deaths, are organized largely, if not mainly, from Berlin.

When the German War Lords, in April, 1917, transported Lenin "in a sealed truck like a plague bacillus" from Switzerland to Russia, they secured the speedy downfall of Tsarist Russia, the defection of Russia from the Allied cause and the establishment in Russia of the ruthless Communist tyranny under which she is groaning to-day.

But effective as the German move was at the time, the War Lords did not then realize—though Ludendorff ruefully admitted it later—that it would recoil on the Fatherland as a boomerang. Recent cables from Berlin described vividly the Communist rising which began "according to plan" under Moscow's instructions on May 1st, and led to a "state of siege" with all the panoply of armored cars, machine guns, barricades, arsenals of arms, etc., attending a dangerous revolutionary outbreak.

The outbreak is believed to be directed by a Bolshevik leader, three Cheka organizers from Moscow and three officers of the Red Army. Doubtless German efficiency and discipline will prevail now, as in past years, against the forces of world revolution; but some may see in the present disorders a retribution for having let loose on the world the poisonous propaganda of the Third International. For to-day Berlin is the advanced base of Moscow, and from there the revolutionary propaganda of the Third International is being effectively disseminated East and West and in particular over the British Empire.

A Nest of Indian Revolutionaries
During the war, if not before, a strong colony of Indian revolutionaries was established in Berlin, and formed an active and well-subsidized branch of the German Foreign Office. Their function was to keep in touch with every seditious movement in India itself, to corrupt Indian troops—and prisoners—at the front and in India, to incite the Indian Princes—to whom alluring letters prepared by Indian experts were despatched over the signature of the German Chancellor—to revolt, and generally to prepare the Indian masses for revolution and rebellion.

Those men are well-known to the authorities here and India: they are still active. The collapse of Germany in the war for a time frustrated their designs. The new German government had no direct use for them but it continued to afford its late trusted agents asylum. Presently, when Bolshevism became a world-force, these Indian revolutionaries offered it their allegiance, which was readily accepted. Since the war the old nucleus in Berlin has received fresh recruits from India direct and secured others by corrupting some of the many Indian students sent to Germany for technical instruction. Some few of these men are probably genuine Communists; others have joined the cause tempted by Bolshevik gold; and their masters see to it that they earn their pay. They are just the type the Bolsheviks want, possessing brains and knowledge of India, but lacking any moral sense or moral restraint. Most of them are Madrassis or Bengalis.

The judicial findings in the many recent conspiracies against the British Government in India prove that the brains and direction are largely centred in Berlin.

The mysterious figure of the Bengali, M. N. Roy (a prominent member of the Third International), fits across the stage between Berlin and Moscow, working the controls which produce murders and anarchy in India; and it is well known that the German Government has been giving these Indian revolutionary donaries—whether in ignorance of their designs or not—many facilities for moving from one headquarters to another.

These frequent strikes and sabotage in Indian mills and railways, and the sanguinary outbreaks in Bombay, since February have cost 200 lives. The murder of Mr. Saunders at Lahore a few months ago and the bombs which wrecked the Delhi Assembly last month are claimed by them as the work of the organization they direct; they even profess to specify the individuals by whom these and similar outrages were perpetrated.

Indeed, they make no secret of their programme, which, as advertised by the organs of their Moscow paymasters, the Pravda and Ivestia and the "red" leaflets scattered broadcast in the Bombay strike area and the Delhi Assembly, is to create throughout India a spirit of defiance of British authority. Up to this point they are at one with the Indian Congress Swarajists, who, under the direction of Messrs. Gandhi and Moti Lal Nehru, have publicly announced that there will be a general revolt against the law unless their preposterous demands are conceded by December 31 next.

Lessons of the 1919 Riots
Here it may be noted that Moti Lal and his son, Jawahr Lal, who openly and unchecked preach the subversion of British rule, last year visited Berlin on their way to Moscow.

The defiance of the law will, it is hoped by the Berlin conspirators, prepare the way for widespread internal rising on the day, sometime in 1932, if not earlier, when war breaks out between the British Empire and Soviet Russia, and the bulk of the British Indian Army is massed in the Punjab and N. W. Frontier to resist invasion from the north.

That game was tried in the spring of 1919 when the revolutionaries shrouded their designs behind Gandhi's Civil Disobedience. It failed then because the internal risings in Bombay, Delhi and the Punjab were suppressed before the Afghan and tribal offensive was ready.

But the revolutionaries and their Bolshevik masters will profit by that lesson, and, as in 1919, the extremist political leaders in India are consciously or unconsciously playing into their hands.

Meantime they are elaborating their plans and vigorously pushing their Bolshevik propaganda from their safe asylum in Berlin.—"Montreal Standard."

Ford to Operate Plant in Russia

Agreement Said to Have Been Signed to Build Factory at Nijni-Novgorod

Moscow—Newspapers here express great satisfaction at the news of the Ford agreement by which the American, it is reported, will build a large automobile factory at Nijni-Novgorod and supply the Soviet Union Workers' secretariat with his technical manufacturing secrets. The authorities which plan the rapid industrialization of the country expect to learn much from Mr. Ford's rationalization methods.

Leo Hinchuk, vice-president of the Commissariat of Trade, said that the agreement was a continuation of the policy of the rapprochement between the United States and the Soviet Union, the latter being anxious to employ American skill and machinery. Mr. Hinchuk declared that the Ford agreement was especially valuable because it would enable the Soviet Union to develop the infant automobile industry according to the latest methods.

Youth a State of Mind
"Youth is not a time of life, it is a state of mind. It is not a matter of ripe cheeks, red lips and supple limbs. It is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions."
"Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure over the love of ease. This often exists in a man of 50 more than in a boy of 29."
"Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years; people grow old only by deserting their ideals."
"Years may wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul."
"Worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear and despair—these are the long, long years that bow the heart and turn the greening spirit back to dust."
"Whether 60 or 16, there is in every human being the lure of wonder, the unflinching, childlike appetite of living."
"We are, as young as our faith, as old as our doubt; as young as our self-confidence, as old as our fear; as young as our hope, as old as our despair."

The Wheat Crisis

Quebec Evening (Cons.): (President Hoover has used $100,000,000 of treasury money to buy a hundred million bushels of wheat at a dollar a bushel. The President's policy is not a new one, for it dates from the time of Joseph, son of Jacob and Rachel, who profited by seven years of abundance to accumulate great stores of wheat to preserve Egypt from the seven years' famine which he foresaw. But we have to admire the practical mind and clear vision of Mr. Coolidge's successor at Washington. By buying one hundred million bushels of wheat Mr. Hoover is not only protecting the American farmer, but later on he will be protecting the consumer.

Intensive Immigration

Quebec Soleil (Lib.): We shall soon come to the conclusion that life will not be livable in this vast Canada of ours if we do not soon put a limit to the number of its inhabitants. How then is it possible to live and prosper in Europe, where on an area about equal to that of Canada a population fifty times as dense can exist? Surely there must be an excessive egotism somewhere in this? Should we leave unproductive the immense natural resources which Providence has entrusted to us? We should remember what happens to the man who hires the talent which has been entrusted to him instead of making it produce more.

To be an optimist, you have to think you have arrived before the start.

Norwegian Vessel Had Eventful Trip

Ranefjord Was Damaged by Ice on Voyage Across JETTISONED CARGO

Fore Hold Filled With Water and Pumps Disabled
With her fore hold full of water, the Norwegian-American Line's freighter Ranefjord came into Montreal recently following a thrilling though hazardous 16-day voyage from Sweden via England.

Leaving Sweden with a cargo of pulp, the Ranefjord was caught in a big field of close pack ice some of which she hit. It was not until the vessel left England, however, where she had called for bunkers, that the damage was considered serious, for she began to make water in No. 1 hold.

As the days wore on and the anxiety of all on board increased, the pumps which had been put in action in order to reduce the influx of water, were rendered useless owing to the pipes being choked by pulp. The vessel, because of the weight of the added cargo of water, was down by the head.

CARGO OVERBOARD.
Finally, it was decided that some of the cargo should be jettisoned and accordingly the watch on deck were employed throwing bale after bale of pulp overboard, considerably over 100 tons being sacrificed in this manner before the water ceased rising.

The fact that the weather during the voyage across was good and the sea moderate favored the Ranefjord, for had there been a rough sea running at the time it would have been impossible to uncover the forward hatch and reach the cargo, and the vessel would have continued to make water.

The vessel and cargo will be inspected by the surveyor and it is considered likely that she will have to be dry-docked for repairs.

Turco-French Agreement on Syrian Border

Foreign Officers to Undertake Elaboration of Treaty of Arbitration and Amity

Paris—Elaboration of a treaty of arbitration and friendship with Turkey is being undertaken at the Quai d'Orsay. Aristide Briand, Foreign Minister, will take the matter up on his return from the League Council meeting at Madrid with the Turkish Ambassador here, Fethy Bey, and Franco-Turkish relations will be crystallized on an amicable basis.

Announcement from Angora of an accord in substance on all outstanding Franco-Turkish differences arrived at by Tewfik Ruzhd Bey, Foreign Minister, and the French Ambassador, Count Chambrun, has given great satisfaction here. The semi-official Temps speaks of the event as marking an important date.

That feature of the convention to which most attention is directed is the successful delimitation of the Turco-Syrian frontier. Gain or loss of this strip of territory was not so vital to the French as that frontier conditions be regulated on a basis of the internal situation in Syria. Difficulties appear lessening in Syria for the French as mandatory power but the disturbed frontier has presented many difficulties, and open intertribal raids have aggravated French troubles with natives. Removal of all danger of a military coup on the part of the Turks to fix the line to suit only their own interests and guarantee of appeasement on all other points has created a favorable atmosphere for the proposed pact.

Jugoslav Unity Moves Haltingly

Slaying of Croatian Editor Laid to Opposition to Reign of Dictator

Zagreb, Yugoslavia—The recent assassination of the leading editor and publisher in Zagreb, and the police and judicial investigation connected with it, would seem to indicate that one should not be too sanguine in regard to the ability of the dictatorship to preserve peace and tranquillity and to unite all the nationalities in a single nation.

It seems to be certain that the deed was committed for political reasons by persons opposed to the present regime. The editor, Tony Shlegal, who was assassinated, was a personal friend of General Zivkovich, the Prime Minister, and the chief exponent in Croatia of the present absolutism.

He advocated a united Yugoslavia in opposition to the separatist demands of the Croatian patriots. He was slated for a high position in the present Government. It is probable that his enemies favored Croatian autonomy and opposed Serbian hegemony.

Air Mail in the U.S.A.

Sherbrooke Tribune (Lib.): Each year American pilots fly about 35,000 miles. The United States are establishing airports and installing everything that is needed for the lighting of aerial routes. . . . An intense propaganda by the sight of planes and by press articles is making the public familiar with aviation and inviting them to make use of its passenger and postal facilities for commercial purposes.

Mother was entertaining company in the drawing room when Betty clattered noisily down from the nursery. "Go upstairs again, and come down very quietly," said her mother. A short pause followed, and Betty reappeared, saying, "You didn't hear me this time, mother, did you?" "No," replied her mother, "you came down without a sound, as every lady should, Betty." "Humph!" returned Betty, "I slid down the bannister!"

Claim to Earldom of Egmont Made

London Baker Lacks Only One Document to Assert it

London, Eng.—Claimant to the Earldom of Egmont, a castle in Hampshire, and an estate worth $610,000, James William Percival, of Birkbeck Road, Hornsey, N., works in his bake house for another baker.

Mr. Percival is a dignified, soft-spoken, bearded man. Aged 66, he has a nasal bearing and personality. As he talked about his claim he showed a silver snuff-box, embossed with the Egmont crest and polished by age, which he said had been the property of his father.

His claim to the earldom, he explained, had been brought forward by his son, Augustus Percival, who also lives at Hornsey and who works in the City of London.

"The claim is held up by the lack of one document—my birth certificate," said Mr. Percival. "The matter has been under discussion for some years, and in 1907 a firm of solicitors had it in hand. Among the documents they had was my baptismal certificate, granted at Trinity Church, Bowen, Queensland, when I was four years of age."

"The members of the firm left England and the document was lost. Our present solicitors, however, have agents in Australia who are making inquiries."

"I am a son of Augustus John Percival, a son of a brother of the 6th earl."

"My father was the heir-presumptive, but he died in 1896, a year before the death of the 7th earl. He was buried at Hove, and it is recorded on his grave that he was heir-presumptive to the earldom."

It is not certain whether Mr. Percival was born in Brisbane or Sydney, as for private reasons his father concealed the details of his birth. There are, it is stated, important documents in existence which throw considerable light on this.

Old photographs, inscribed Bibles, and other objects in Mr. Percival's possession are considered to be important evidence.

Lindbergh Asked To Bleriot Fete

First Flier of Channel to Celebrate Anniversary July 25

Paris—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has been invited as the guest of honor when France and England fete Louis Bleriot on July 25 to celebrate the 20th anniversary of Bleriot's flight across the channel.

The invitation was extended by Bleriot in a letter asking the first trans-Atlantic lone flier to be his guest on that occasion.

"I wrote to Lindbergh asking him to arrange his honeymoon so as to be here for the end of July, for his presence would make the celebration very agreeable to me," Bleriot told the United Press.

The plans in which Bleriot flew the channel for the first time, soon will be brought from the conservatory of arts and trades, in Paris, where it has remained since his epochal flight, and will be taken to England for exhibition.

Fred Stafford, of McIntyre, had a miraculous escape from serious injury Saturday noon when run over by a land disc. He was in the act of unhitching a three-horse team and had released two of the animals. The third animal, on seeing its mate start for the barn, made for there also, drawing the disc with it. Stafford endeavored to catch the line leading to the horse's mouth but only succeeded in catching the tongue. He was then tripped by the tongue of the disc and the heavy disc with its sharp wheels went completely over him. His leg, back and left shoulder were severely cut.
