

RE-ORGANIZATION OF RECRUITING LEAGUE FOR WINTER CAMPAIGN

Officers and Executive Appointed For Purpose of Furthering Interests of 215th Battalion—$500 Grant From Provincial Government.

Following the recent issuance of invitations to the various societies throughout the city and county to send delegates to the meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium, a representative body of citizens met last night to effect a comprehensive organization to carry on to a successful conclusion, the work of recruiting to its full strength, the second Brant Battalion. As was desired, men engaged in every occupation were present and suggestions were received from every standpoint, so that the original intention was fulfilled when the executive finally formulated a comprehensive plan of action for the population. The local situation was thoroughly discussed and different methods advocated which had met with success in other districts of the country. A feature of the proceedings was the announcement that financial support was being given by the Ontario Government as the result of the visit paid to Premier Hearst in Toronto yesterday by a local delegation, consisting of Lt.-Col. Morris and Mr. J. H. Spence, the president of the Brant County Recruiting League. By means of the promised grant, amounting to $500, the campaign will be carried on far more effectively than would otherwise be the case.

In calling the meeting to order, Mr. J. H. Spence, who presided, stated that the league had been inaugurated shortly after the outbreak of the war and had been instrumental in recruiting some four thousand men, Brant County's share in the present conflict. Not only in men but also in contributions to the Red Cross and for patriotic purposes had the people of this section nobly responded to the call of empire, stated the speaker. At the present time, Mr. Spence said, we had with us the 215th battalion which left this city some months ago, six hundred strong, but that owing to the waning out process now presented a muster roll of five hundred soldiers. At the outset there had been some doubt as to the possibility of securing the required number to complete the battalion, but now that the half century mark had been reached there was a prevalent desire to attempt the greater understanding of filling out the ranks to the fullest extent. The chairman declared that there were still many eligible men in the county and in spite of the scarcity of labor and the difficulty being experienced by the manufacturers, the prime essential was the victorious culmination of the struggle, and if need be, all other interests would necessarily have to be abandoned to ensure the attainment of that aim. In carrying on the proposed campaign perfect harmony was to be desired with the manufacturers, farmers, merchants and other employers of labor. The county had undoubtedly done nobly in the past, but its entire responsibility could not be considered to be discharged until the war has been concluded. The first item of the business to be transacted was the election of officers and committees to conduct the campaign. Mr. Spence stated his position, that as the president of the Patriotic League his duties were manifold and since the resignation of Col. Cockshutt, he had only occupied the chair temporarily and it was now his desire that a permanent president should be chosen to fill the office. Mr. Brewster then stated the officers and committees which were necessary to administer the business of the league. In concluding, the chairman advised that in the selection of an executive that the widest scope possible be given so that all classes in the community would be reached. The first step was then taken by Mr. W. S. Brewster, who nominated Mr. Spence for the position of president. In support of this action, Mr. Brewster stated that his nominee had both the ability and the requisite knowledge as well as being in close personal touch with the league to most capably assume the leadership of such a movement. The motion was seconded by Mr. E. L. Gould, and was put to the vote and unanimously carried. It was then moved by Mr. Norman Andrews and seconded by Mr. A. E. Watts, that Warren Harris undertake the duties of vice-president, which was also carried without dissenting voice. Following a motion by Mr. Hill, Mr. W. S. Brewster, who had acted so capably in that capacity before, was again induced to accept the secretaryship. Mr. P. D. Reville nominated Mr. Reg. Scarfe as the treasurer of the league and was seconded in this by Mr. E. L. Gould. This appointment was also received with favor. It was at this juncture that the announcement was made concerning the outcome of the conference with Premier Hearst that afternoon. Mr. Spence declared that not only would the original grant be forthcoming but that when this sum had been exhausted and a favorable report could be submitted to the government showing that the funds had been put to good advantage, that additional support would be tendered for the maintenance of the work.

In the selection of the committees the president thought that some of the experiences met with in the organization of the patriotic league could be used to advantage. In this connection many of the stories existing had been removed by the incorporation into that body of the factories Patriotic Association which was in close touch with a large share of the population. It was urged that some of these men be selected to work in connection with the executive, and as the best means of accomplishing this end to appoint them as members of that body.

The attention of the meeting was then brought by Mr. P. D. Reville, to the fact that in the previous year a nominating committee had been appointed to choose the various committees and report their decision to the main body.

Mr. T. Hendry referred to the rumor to the effect that the counties of Hamilton were to be added to Brant for recruiting purposes, and if such were to be the case, he thought that they should be represented on the committee that before further steps were taken that they should be consulted. Mr. Spence stated that in that event the organizations would work independently of each other. Col. Morris in reply to this matter said that any such supposition as that put forward by Mr. Hendry was premature, as at this stage the matter was only rumored and no official word had been received from Ottawa as yet. The following gentlemen were suggested by Mr. Hill to act on the standing committee, Messrs. A. K. Bunnell, H. W. Fitton, T. Hendry, Collyer Andrews, Lane, Riley, Simons, and by request Mr. Hill also was included in this number.

While the committee were absent the chairman stated that the resolution passed at the last meeting of the executive to the effect that the services of Premier Hearst and Mr. N. W. Rowell be secured to speak at an opening rally to be held in this city. The Premier stated that although he was largely taken up, that he would be pleased to come to the city whenever it could be suitably arranged and Mr. Spence also announced that he would accept the proposition would make his date coincide with that of Mr. Hearst. Both men had the advantage of a personal inspection on an extensive scale of the first line trenches which were come to Brantford with the experience of the statesmen of England, France and Belgium. The chairman then called upon Col. McCullough, the chief recruiter of this military district to deliver an address.

Col. McCullough said that it was a pleasure to be in the city in doing so he could be of any use in the organization for the coming winter. Those present were all practical men who were far better acquainted with the state of affairs in this section than he could possibly be. After being engaged in recruiting throughout the past two years there was little enthusiasm left to continue the work, declared the speaker and in this respect, he thought that the war was just as much a problem for the civilian to solve as the military man. There was a natural diffidence in approaching a young man and telling him that he was to go to the front in multi admitted Col. McCullough, but there were also many civilians who were especially equipped for this class of work and these persons should be utilized to as great an extent as possible. The speaker continued that 10 per cent. was supposed to mark the maximum of the population, but as far as the war purposes while the county had supplied about 9 per cent, which was exceedingly good. If, however, the full quota promised by the government was to be met, it would require 11 per cent of the entire population of the country would have to be raised.

"The measure of our capacity should be the measure of our responsibility," was the thought expressed to emphasize the seriousness of the situation.

Col. McCullough then proceeded to outline a measure whereby more recruits could be secured. One plan which met with his approval was the further cultivation of the rural districts and the best work could be done by the league in soliciting enlistment from this quarter. He also advocated the following plan: as about five hundred men were wanted, to divide the county into ten districts and allot to each of them one tenth of the required number of recruits to raise. This suggestion was also made by Col. Williams at a meeting of the executive of the league not long ago. The clerical patriotic association could also be used to advantage in the matter of exchanging pulpits. In the early stages of the movement some hesitancy had been displayed by a few pastors in giving place to speakers appointed to occupy their churches perhaps for the reason of contact with public opinion. There were many splendid fellows in the battalion who could be induced to give pulpits to Swedish and other nationalities of the army. The band could be availed of, to assist in this work by performing a circuit throughout the county and by using persuasive methods, secure additional men for the cause.

A publicity committee would without doubt be a valuable acquisition to the league of men properly qualified to write competent articles for the press that would permeate the sentiment of the community.

"I have found wherever I have gone, outside the pulpits, and all other methods of recruiting, that the fellow who can turn the trick if he will is the man in the ranks," was the manner in which the speaker referred to the effectiveness of the methods employed by the boys in khaki in pursuing this kind of work. Some such individuals were to be found in every military unit, and if they could be selected and sent around the county, together with those who could sing, that splendid results would undoubtedly follow, was the opinion of Col. McCullough. The battalion belonged to the community and it would be up to the district to do its best to assist their own.

He was him to be associated with the pioneer work of the Canadian Pacific, and he complimented the company on the splendid strides it was making in the development of the country. Then His Royal Highness, baptizing the new work, christened it the Selkirk Tunnel. Some weeks later, at the request of Lord Shaughnessy, His Royal Highness consented to have the tunnel called after him. Henceforth it is to be named the "Connaught Tunnel," a fitting compliment to the excellent services which the Duke of Connaught gave to the Dominion during his term as Governor-General.

Col. McCullough concluded by stating that the patriotic work of Brant County demonstrated that there was a lively public conscience prevailing, and that no doubt it would continue to support the cause of the Empire, engaged to do in the future his services could be of any possible assistance to the league, he freely placed his efforts at their disposal.

As there were several members of the clerical patriotic association present, Mr. Spence called on Rev. Gordon to give an outline of the purposes of the body and the officers in charge of the work. Mr. Gordon briefly gave the desired information. Rev. Llewellyn (Broys) was next called upon, and declared that it was unnecessary to assure the citizens of Brantford of his sympathy which the ministers of the city felt for the cause. Although there would be some interruptions, the pastors would always be willing to give place in their pulpits to qualified speakers selected by the league. Mr. Spence stated that a great many men out of uniform were to be daily seen about the streets and that the non-challenge they displayed by these young men hurt the retinae of the older men hating else with which they had come in contact with. He concluded by making reference to the number of men who had answered the call from his own congregation, and assured the gathering that at any time he felt sure that those in charge of his church would willingly allow a thoroughgoing patriotic circuit to leave to occupy the church.

Rev. Smyth concurred with the sentiment expressed by the president of the clerical patriotic association, and expressed sympathy with the undertaking.

Rev. G. A. Woodside, on behalf of the Ministerial Alliance of Brantford, spoke for a few minutes. He was not in accord with some of the methods pursued in the past, and thought that better results would be achieved if the available men were selected and then other responsible persons be chosen to present the matter to them in a more understanding way.

Mr. J. H. Spence referred to some deplorable incidents of the recent Red Cross Campaign, such as the placing of slugs in some of the envelopes provided for the purpose of contributing. Men who would so lower themselves were not deserving of the protection afforded by the Union Jack.

Rev. Archdeacon MacKenzie, as a resident of the city for the past 40 years was sincerely proud of the record of Brant County, whose people had given of their best men, money and service. He doubted if any portion of the Dominion has excelled the record of Brantford, but thought that still greater results could be secured from the rural districts. These portions of the community had not as yet risen to the level to be called the Sons of the Empire. (Continued on page five.)

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

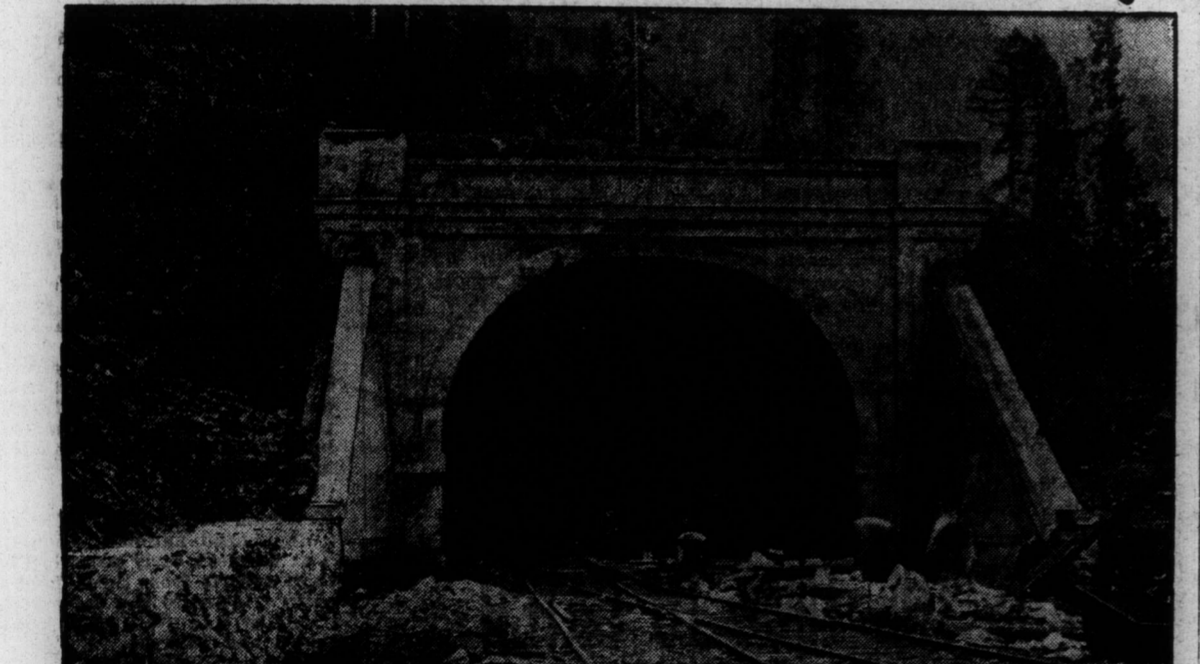

By Anabel Worthington.

A study of the shirt waist designs nearly always gives an inkling as to the ideas that the Paris dressmakers intend to exploit. The information that counts does not seem to be important when details are changed, but it is true that every detail contributes significance. The full length sleeve and the prominence that buttons will have for elevating all garments showed first in the separate blouse. In the illustration we have one that will count among the season's successes. Although it may be made of all one material, the combination idea that has increased steadily since the beginning of the year is still dominant, and will give more than ordinary merit to a waist developed from this design.

The shoulder straps are as much to be admired as the button and loop decoration in diagonal effect, telling where the closing is made, and as the three inch facing of the fronts for the stylish revers. The buttoned cuff on a full length 36 to 44 bust measure. To make in size sleeve has a neat turnback of the collar; 36 will require 2 yards of 36 inch material in narrow width. Material and 1/2 yard of 36 inch contrasting. For a conservative design with detail in all one material 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch. Touches that show style influence you goods. You may obtain the pattern by sending the pattern of No. 7,959 is cut in sizes 10 cents to the office of this publication.

THE CONNAUGHT TUNNEL

ONE of the greatest of the achievements of the Canadian Pacific Railway is the Connaught Tunnel. This great work, through the lofty Mount Macdonald, amongst the Selkirk Mountains, is nearly six miles long and double tracked. The excavation has been made at a cost of over $11,000,000 to the great transportation company. But the C.P.R., which has spent from $25,000,000 to $35,000,000 per annum on the development of the West previous to the war, does not even in times of a conflict affecting the greater part of the world, spare expense where the public convenience makes an urgent demand. The opening of the tunnel greatly facilitate traffic, will give a new route, and will do away with many miles of snow sheds.

The Connaught Tunnel will give an Pacific the lowest transcontinental rail-through the Selkirk as bored in less under the super-Sullivan, Chief line, and no under-ions was short run-nes ed with what he saw. The construction work is now rapidly approaching completion. Two miles of steel rails have yet to be laid on one side of the track. It is expected that the formal opening will take place during the first days of December. Since its inception the tunnel has been reckoned, has spent 200,000,000 in the development of the West. The latest estimate is as popular as any that has been made.

His Royal Highness the Connaught and party took through the tunnel on July 10. Duke expressed in words the gratification it ave him to be associated with the pioneer work of the Canadian Pacific, and he complimented the company on the splendid strides it was making in the development of the country. Then His Royal Highness, baptizing the new work, christened it the Selkirk Tunnel. Some weeks later, at the request of Lord Shaughnessy, His Royal Highness consented to have the tunnel called after him. Henceforth it is to be named the "Connaught Tunnel," a fitting compliment to the excellent services which the Duke of Connaught gave to the Dominion during his term as Governor-General.

THE SITUATION

The Roumanians and the Russians in the Dobruja have rallied, captured four villages and forced Mackensen's troops back along the whole Western flank of the front. It is believed that enemy troops in this section will be withdrawn in order to strengthen Van Folkenhain's command.

The fighting on the Somme front is reported to be even gaining in intensity. Picked Teuton troops have been launching fierce counter-attacks against positions recently seized by French and British. During initial onslaughts they were successful in gaining some ground, but that success was short lived, and they were finally repulsed at every point with enormous losses.

The Italians, after their notable gains of last week in the drive toward Trieste, have been straightening out their lines. Incidentally they have repulsed with the bayonet, all efforts of the foe during several counter-attacks.

BRANTFORD MUST MAKE GOOD

The Courier does not recall any occasion upon which the citizens of Brantford failed to more than respond on behalf of giving for any worthy cause.

Yet this has happened with regard to an appeal, of all others, for the work of the British Red Cross.

The City Council voted $7,500 on condition that the balance of $12,500 be forthcoming in order to complete a $20,000 offering. Of the paramount worthiness of the cause there cannot be any question. By general consent there can be no higher or more appealing work than that of efficiently looking after the sick and the wounded at the front.

The brave lads there are risking crippled bodies and life itself for us and the very least those of us at home can do is to go deep down in our pockets on behalf of alleviatory measures.

The man or woman who would do less than that does not deserve the name. Whatever the reason, whether from the lack of sufficient soliciting or from some other cause, the fact remains that the people of this community have fallen short of the standard (an exceedingly reasonable standard) which was set.

There is to be further opportunity to make good that lack and the Courier has no fear that the response will be fully equal to the requirement.

Anyone who has not yet given or those who feel that they can enlarge their first subscription, should call at headquarters, Dalhousie St., formerly occupied by the Tea Pot Inn, or else send contributions to Mr. Harvey Watt, manager of the Imperial Bank.

TO RESUME RECRUITING

The Brant County Recruiting League has been re-organized under auspicious circumstances. All classes of the community were represented at the splendid gathering last evening and the feeling was unanimous that much as this city and County have already done, still more remains to be accomplished.

There can be no let up in either means until the war is ended.

CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA

Some influence or the other, which one it is not hard to guess, has been busily at work in the States depicting the Russians as downcast, sweating under high prices, and anxious to break away from the Allies and secure a separate peace upon almost any terms. The Pro-German papers, across the border, and there are quite a few of them despite the Lusitania outrage, have recently featured these stories and in reply there is the following letter in the New York Times:

"Dear Sir—I desire respectfully to contradict, of my own personal knowledge, the inspired reports, now so prevalent, of the conditions existing in Russia. I have lived a considerable part of my life in that great country, have been between Russia and this country eight times since the war began, and know and understand Russia and the Russian people far better than most outsiders—so much so that my friends in Russia resent my calling myself an 'outsider.'"

"Uniformly I find the people, soldiers and officials, unqualifiedly hopeful and steadfast. On my last visit, from which I have recently returned, I found a much more hopeful view to prevail than before. Russia now is absolutely confident that her 'enemy' is beaten—no hopelessness there, but emphatically the reverse.

Regarding food, there is an increase of prices, no more marked, however, than in two neutral countries I can mention. I lived well and comfortably, had ample food, and at prices that amazed me by their cheapness in view of existing circumstances. Especially in the great restaurants of the terminal stations of Moscow and Petrograd, there was a remarkable quantity, quality and cheapness.

The statement that Russia is discouraged, hopeless, lukewarm, or likely to break from her allies has absolutely no foundation in anything visible in Russia; it is a statement regarding starvation there in the latter respect, Germany is in infinitely more distress than Russia. My sources of information are many, and I am not unwilling to disclose them. I would respectfully ask for proofs of the truth of the statements which I here, of my own knowledge, contradict.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is said that a movement is on foot in Kitchener to revert once more to the name of Berlin. The sponsors ought to be sent to the front and put in the hottest part of the fighting.

The Liberal manipulators would force an election all right if they thought they could win, but now they are not nearly so cock sure as they were.

Presidential candidate Hughes cast his ballot to-day in a laundry. Even so he wasn't anticipating any cuffs from the electorate, and still felt as though he would collar the White House.

In Belfast, Ireland, tab was kept on the financial gain under the daylight saving plan. Results: The electric department saved 250 tons of coal and the citizens $7,000 in the cost of current.

The German dreadnaught which ventured out too far in the North Sea, got a reminder from a British submarine which sent her back to cover in a hurry. Yet the German people still believe the assinine boast of the Kaiser that John Bull has had his naval supremacy teeth drawn.

As far as Greece is concerned the muddled condition of affairs continues to be most chaotic.

Just about time to be getting ready for that Christmas shopping and to do it early.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddler, we must keep the liver washed prevent its sponge-like pores, from becoming almost every morning, to be cleaned with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a stomach that becomes rascid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release its dammed-up body wastes, which poison the system. Most folks resort to violent cathartics, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bomb was placed in the hold. We were all crowded aboard the submarine and therefore could not see what happened to our ship after the bomb exploded.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, toning and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like cathartics, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless, and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quart for a few cents. It is a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

While we were on board an Italian ship came into sight and this was sunk, the commander making the remark: "This is the fourth" after this large British ship passed us. She was attacked by the submarine, but returned to the surface and at last the Germans drove off and the British ship escaped.

According to the engineer all on board the Lanao were American citizens, except two officers. London, Nov. 7.—The morning papers gave great prominence to the report that the steamer Lanao, sunk by a German submarine, was an American ship. Lloyd's report that the vessel was no longer of American registry has not yet been published here.

The Lanao was hailed in the darkness 25 miles off the Portuguese coast by a German submarine on November 2. The chief officer, who is a Chinaman, reported that the submarine which sank the Lanao had a bomb placed in the engine room. Members of the crew say that while they were aboard the submarine a British steamer was unsuccessfully attacked.

MORE LOST STORIES

The Lost and Found Department for lost stories is still flourishing. The story is of the father of a family of daughters who, having married off the last one, feels an immense relief and asks for a holiday to go on a spree to celebrate. After receiving the coveted permission, he returns in a few days and tells his fellow-workers at the office what a delightful spree he has had, going across the ferry and back, watching the gulls.

"Do you think you can help me locate a little poem which was published in some of the Sunday papers at the time the Teddy-bears first became popular, telling what the dolls thought of the bears, for usurping their place in the affections of children that had hitherto been theirs? If this poem could be found, I would be very glad."

"How The American Flag Was Made." Could you give me any information concerning a story that was published in one of the city newspapers in July about the American flag? It started "Gee, ain't it fierce ain't got no flag," and then went on to tell how the woman took her skirt and made a flag."

"He Watched The Gulls." "Can any of your readers tell me where I could find a story which appeared some years ago in a paper partly given up to advertisements? The story is of the father of a family of daughters who, having married off the last one, feels an immense relief and asks for a holiday to go on a spree to celebrate. After receiving the coveted permission, he returns in a few days and tells his fellow-workers at the office what a delightful spree he has had, going across the ferry and back, watching the gulls."

"I am one of many who think this department a blessing to seekers of lamented lost stories."

About A Youth Who Wanted To Learn A Trade. "I would like to find a lost poem. We had it for examination, years ago. It was about a youth who wanted to learn a trade and he always found some fault with each, for instance, when he took up paper-hanging, he did not like the smell of paste, etc."

Can anyone help these people out? The payment for such help is, as before stated, other people's willingness to try and help solve any similar problems you may have.

ROLL OF HONOR

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and the majority of them are now in Europe, bravely battling for Canada and the Empire. As particulars of Army service are not available, these lists of those who have given up their lives for their country or been wounded in action are necessarily incomplete, and do not therefore indicate fully the extent to which the Company's officers and employees have participated in the great struggle.

THE GRAND With a very long record of past triumphs in this city to her credit, Miss May A. Bell Marks last evening opened a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House, winning fresh and deserved praise from a large house, in her performance of a romantic comedy drama "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy." The play is new, original and interesting to the highest degree, and, supported by a strong and well balanced cast, Miss Marks is afforded ample scope for her high talents, and a successful week's engagement is presaged. With a new repertoire of plays, the company presents a different offering each night, and their presentations should be missed by none who are capable of appreciating good comedy and drama.

NEWS OF NORFOLK

Town Council Gives Grant Of $2,000 to British Red Cross.

(From our own correspondent) Since, Nov. 6.—The town council had a short session this evening and voted $2,000 to the British Red Cross. Over this amount will be donated by private subscription.

The question of getting in touch with Manager Todd of the L. E. and N. came next. For months the council has been trying to have a chat with Mr. Todd. The council is prepared to connect up the walks and light to the depot as soon as the company puts the new street way or eastern approach to the bridge in shape for acceptance. The chairman of the Board of Works was instructed to make an effort to have Mr. Todd come over and take the matter up.

It is probable that a light will be placed near the west end of the skenjee bridge, in the meantime. The congregation of St. Paul's not St. James, as stated in this evening's issue, met this evening to confer in the matter of choosing a pastor from among the five men already named. The first vote through the church, although he said that those men were evidently in the lead, and on the second, the vote was almost evenly divided, so it was resolved to hear five more men and meet again.

One of Pitt's sons left Simcoe this evening after his last visit home before going overseas as a "sky-pilot" of the Curtis School. Letters received from members of the 138th, en route to seaboard, speak of the trip through Quebec as revealing the absolute indifference of the habitant to the struggle in Europe. The boys detained for a week on the march at Mt. Joli, a place of 2,500 population, which had sent two men overseas. They did not get a single cheer. At St. Hyacinth (16,000) which had contributed about 30 men, one lone loyal heart gave the "hip, hip" and finished the cheer. He was an Englishman. With Quebec behind, the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia people turned out loyally, with refreshments and good cheer.

The farm house of Wm. Gray, one mile north of Windham Centre, was destroyed by fire about three o'clock this morning. Nothing whatever was saved, and the origin of the fire is a mystery. Mr. and Mrs. Gray had been away a couple of weeks. The hired man lived close by, but was unable to get anything out. It was a good house, and had practically two sets of furniture and furnishings at the time. The insurance is light. Loss from $3,500 to $4,000. Rev. J. P. Falconer, of Rodney, preached at Delhi and Windham Centre Presbyterian Churches yesterday. His morning sermon at the Centre was a ringing appeal for recruits. The annual tea-meeting has not been held since the war broke out.

RE-ORGANIZATION

In closing, the speaker once again emphasized the need of exploiting the rural sections to the greatest possible extent.

The report of Mr. Andrews on the members selected for the various committees was then read, which showed the personnel to be as follows:

Publicity—Messrs. Andrews, Lane, E. C. Gould, Hill and a representative from the retail grocers' association.

Meetings—Messrs. Wiley, Tench, S. Stedman, Lahey, and a member of the Trades and Labor Council.

Finance—Messrs. T. Hendry, Geo. Wedlake, J. M. Young, Hearst, and a member of the retail grocers' association.

Reception Committee—Messrs T. H. Preston, F. D. Reville, W. G. Raymond, H. W. Fittou, and Judge Hardy.

In choosing the committees the selections were made from the manufacturers, merchants, employees (factory) clerks and professional men. As the work of organizing the county had been so capably discharged last year by Messrs. W. S. Brewster and A. E. Watts, the chairman suggested that they again assume the work on this occasion. This action met with the unanimous approval of the meeting, and the two mentioned gentlemen were delegated to manage this phase of the campaign.

Mr. T. L. Wood believed in the personal touch more than anything else. He also considered that the agricultural districts had done as well in proportion as the city.

Col. Morris of the 215th battalion then spoke for a few minutes at the conclusion of the meeting and expressed pleasure at becoming acquainted with representatives of so many of the organizations in the county. He thought that the attendance augured well for the prospects of the battalion and the feeling in the county toward it. In assuming the position of leader of the battalion, he fully realized the responsibilities of attempting to fill the position vacated by Col. Cockshutt, but he also experienced a feeling of honor in being entrusted with such an undertaking.

No steps had been taken as yet to obtain recruits as the battalion were waiting the decision of the league and wished to co-operate with them. The battalion belonged to the county and it was up to the county to support it to the best of its ability. He assured those present of the willingness on the part of the officers to help make the battalion a success and closed by making a final appeal for the support of the people of the county.

It was then moved by Mr. W. S. Brewster and seconded by Mr. A. E. Watts that Col. Harry Cockshutt be chosen to fill the position of Honorary President, which was carried unanimously.

The meeting was then brought to a close to be called again when the different committees had determined upon a definite course of action.

NEW CONTRACTS

Chicago, Nov. 7.—New contracts will be presented to American and National League baseball players when the season for signing comes, according to a statement to-day by B. B. Johnson, president of the American League. Johnson also said these new contracts will not be the handiwork of the David L. Fultz, of the Players Fraternity, attorneys for the major leagues being the only ones being engaged in the drafting of the contracts. President Johnson denied to-day that the clause in regard to the forfeiture of pay by injured players was incorporated in the present contracts, although he said that those now in force were not satisfactory to the two leagues.

HYDRO ELECTRIC FOR PARKDALE

Echo Place and Grandview Also To Receive Lighting Decides Township Council.

The afternoon session of the Brantford Township Council was opened at two o'clock yesterday, in the Court House.

The clerk was instructed to notify the post office inspector that the council was willing to place mail boxes in any position desired by him, where they will not interfere with pedestrian or vehicular travel and that this might be more expeditiously done than a representative be appointed to go over the ground with a representative of the council.

The clerk was also instructed to communicate with the Dominion Railway Board on behalf of the township, asking that suitable and proper water ways be constructed across the Brantford and Hamilton Electric Railway Co., at lots 10 and 11, south of the Brantford and Hamilton stone road.

A motion was passed to the effect that the taxes of seven residents for different amounts be remitted.

A committee comprising Messrs. Seace, Geo. S. Hall, Patterson, Robt. Sowden, and A. Brown, waited on the council last evening and presented the claims of the residents of Parkdale, Echo Place and Grandview, for Hydro Electric service. Each of the delegates spoke and urged that a by-law be passed, authorizing the issuing of debentures to cover the cost of the work and that it be proceeded with as soon as possible.

Reeve Morgan Harris, on behalf of the council, stated that as soon as a reply was received from the Hydro Commission regarding the matter, that the by-law would be passed and the work proceeded with this fall if possible.

The communications introduced at the morning session regarding Road Overseer, Roberts and Davies' line fence, Good Roads System, Inspector of Bridges, and the Brant County Recruiting League were all placed on file.

The funeral of Mr. A. W. Daniels took place from his late residence, 65 Queen street, to Greenwood cemetery on Saturday afternoon. The services, in the absence of Rev. Dr. Henderson, the pastor of Wellington Street Methodist Church, were conducted by Rev. R. D. Hamilton, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. Llewellyn Brown and Rev. Bowyer, friends of deceased. The large attendance and the number and beauty of the floral tributes testified to the popularity which the deceased enjoyed in the community. Members of Gore Lodge were present and took charge of the service at the grave. The pallbearers were Messrs. R. T. Whitlock, A. L. Vanstone, W. G. Barton, I. W. Strain, D. H. Coates and J. W. Shepperson.

CHOICE OF PRESIDENT FOR UNITED STATES

Conditions were favorable and the largest vote in the history of the state was expected to be polled throughout Pennsylvania to-day. The Republican leaders declared that Hughes will have not less than 200,000 majority, while the Democrats were sanguine that President Wilson will receive a record-breaking vote. The polls opened at 7 o'clock and will close at 7 o'clock to-night.

Long Branch, N.J., Nov. 7.—President Wilson was up soon after day-break and left for Princeton. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson. He expected to cast his vote before nine o'clock.

agers to aid in bringing about a heavy vote. Approximately 2,000,000 voters have registered in the state and party leaders estimated that close to 1,800,000 votes would be recorded, of which number between 600,000 and 700,000 would be cast by women. The women, however, enjoy only partial suffrage, being permitted to vote for President and Vice-president, but not for state officers.

Chicago, with its more than 800,000 voters—men and women, started the voting in the state, the polls here opening at 6 p.m. and closing at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Down state the polls opened at 7 a.m. and will remain until 5 p.m.

New York, Nov. 6.—That Baseball Players Fraternally is determined to carry its demand for revision of the "injury clause" certain of the player's contracts, finish is indicated in a statement made public to-day by President David L. Fultz of the Fraternity. The statement in part is as follows:

In brief we stated that certain contracts gave the owners the right to misuse players if they saw fit and asked that such clause be moved.

Mr. Herrmann, however, wiring for copies of contracts, claiming the objectionable clause which is an entirely different one. Players Fraternity Make Demands on Commission

Members of Major League Baseball Union Will Insist Upon Revision of Injury Clause To Give Full Pay To Injured Players.

By Courier Leased Wire
New York, Nov. 6.—That the Baseball Players Fraternity is determined to carry its demand for a revision of the "injury clause" in certain of the player contracts to a finish is indicated in a statement made public to-day by President David L. Fultz of the Fraternity. The statement in part is as follows:
"Mr. Johnson is reported to have said in a recent interview that the Fraternity petition accused certain American league clubs of suspending injured players without pay. Either Mr. Johnson has been misquoted or he is evading the issue. We made no such accusation. In our brief we stated that certain contracts gave the owners the right to suspend players if they saw fit and asked that such clause be removed."
"Mr. Johnson made a somewhat heated denial of the supposed accusation and said he had demanded of us the names of players so suspended. He has made no such demand. Mr. Herrmann, however, did wire for copies of contracts containing the objectionable clause, which is an entirely different request. We replied that contracts could not be forwarded without consent of the players, but that Mr. Johnson would find the provision in section 4 of some of the Washington and New York contracts. As copies of all contracts are already lodged in his office, our compliance seemed unnecessary."
"The clause reads as follows: 'Should the player be disabled, or his ability to perform his duties be impaired at any time during the term herein prescribed, the club may deduct from the amount then due or to become due under this contract, such proportion thereof as the period of said disability or impairment may bear to the term herein prescribed, and may at its option terminate this contract; but no such deduction or termination of the contract shall be made by reason of any accident or injury received by the player while in performance of his regular duties under the direction of the club, unless such injury or accident shall wholly or partly incapacitate the player for a period of fifteen days, in which event such deduction may be made for the period of disability or impairment in excess of fifteen days and this contract may be terminated at the option of the club; provided, however, that the player shall be given written notice thereof by this club.'"
"The words in which event such deduction may be made for the period of disability or impairment in excess of fifteen days are new and are the ones in which the vice is contained. There is no ambiguity in the clause. It permits a player to be held in bondage without salary and prohibits him from seeking employment elsewhere, simply because he has been so unfortunate as to be injured in the service of his employer."

GIANT INDIAN TOTEM POLE FOR JASPER PARK-ALBERTA

Through the efforts of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway there has been preserved for Canada one of the most magnificent specimens of the Totem Pole in existence. This was obtained on the North Pacific Coast, the scenic territory served by the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamships, and has now been erected at Jasper Park Station in the centre of the Dominion's largest National Playground in the Rockies. This Totem Pole was for generations the pride of the important tribe of Alaskan Indians known as "Canadda Clan." The Totem presents the Raven as symbolic of the powerful and mystical beings who watched over the tribe. It is indeed an heraldic shield, which carries the Indian's mind back to the dim past, and to the very foundation of the tribes.

This Jasper Park Totem is read from the top to the bottom, and it tells a story of how the first Indian Chief obtained the help of the spirit power of the Raven. It is estimated that this Totem took the tribe some three years to carve, it being fashioned out of a large cedar tree. In accordance with Indian custom, when the Pole was finished a great Pow Wow and Potlatch, with extensive feasting, rewarded the workers. The head and beak of the Raven at the top of the Pole can easily be recognised. Immediately beneath, protected by the wings of the bird, is the figure of a man, which indicates that the Raven with the power of a God could change itself into human form and move among men, controlling the destinies of the tribe through supernatural insight and intelligence. The Raven, according to the tradition of the Indians, taught man how to live, and how to make war, also demonstrating to him the various primitive arts, and the season of the Potlatch. One of the stories of Indian Mythology tells of the overwhelming flood which submerged the good land and spread death and destruction all around. At the time of the flood, the Raven is credited with flying above the clouds, with his mother in his arms, and by sticking his bill into the sky remained there until the flood subsided. This is given as a reason why the Raven's beak is bent or crooked.

In addition to being one of the very best Totems carved by the Indians this Jasper Park Totem is one of great age. The carving of the Totem Poles became a lost art many years ago although Indians still manufacture miniature Totems for sale to curious hunters. With Christian Missions active among the Indians, Totemism is becoming extinct, and the poles that are left standing in some of the native villages are sinking into decay. Care has been taken to guard this fine specimen from damage through climatic action, and it will be undoubtedly a source of interest to the thousands of passengers using the Grand Trunk's Transcontinental Line in the future.

LAST INVESTMENT

Before I buy my gasoline, I pay the grocer for his prunes, the druggist for his Paris green, the clothier for his pantaloons. I wouldn't much enjoy my car, if merchants watched it as it goes, remarking, "I would be better far, if he would pay us what he owes." While scorching up the village street, behind the walnut steering wheel, I'd hate it much if I should meet a man I owe for buckwheat meal. I'd hate to drive, in my pomp and state, across the market's paving stones, and run across some needy skate to whom I owe eleven bones. My car may rust in yonder shed before I'll send it on its way, to meet the chap who sold me bread and had to whistle for his pay. I pay the barber for his shave, the newsman for his magazine, the sexton for his hand-made grave, before I buy my gasoline. I pay the butcher for his veal, the tinner for his soap tureen, the learned attorney for his spiel, before I buy my gasoline. I pay for soda, salts and soap, for my supply of nicotine, for surgeons' saws and druggist dope, before I buy my gasoline.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color And Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of mess.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell because it does not just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE MOON MAN

In the fairy glen where each night the glow-worms and fireflies turn back to fairies, Knight Fairy-Fire and Knight Flash-and-Flicker were talking.

"This strange glow-worm knight" said Knight Fairy-Fire, "whom the Princess Glow-and-Glimmer has chosen for her husband—who is he? To be sure, by the test of the winged rubies, he has proven his love and nobility, but is he a fire-fairy? The law of the glen says that the little green men shall keep guard against all fairies by the fire-fairy-ies."

"If he is a fire-fairy," said Knight Flash-and-Flicker, "no fire will blind his eyes. We will put him to the test. If we find he is not a fire-fairy he must leave the glen and I shall marry the princess."

"No," said Knight Fairy-Fire, "I shall marry the princess."

Now as they walked away a queer little man with a twisted nose and twisted toes and a long, long, very long beard crept out of a bush in which he'd hidden, turned himself into a little green man like the guards. Then he hurried through the fairy glen until he found the princess's lover.

"Prince Rupert" he whispered, "I am not really a green man of the glen. I am the little old man who turned you into a glow-worm and then into a glow-worm knight that you might win the lovely fire-princess. You are good and kind and noble, but you are not a fire-fairy and the glow-worm knights are suspicious. They will put your eyes to the test. Walk down the glen and when you come to a strange cloudy-looking fellow polishing up a shield rub this fair ointment on your eyes."

Prince Rupert walked down the glen as he was bidden and there was the cloudy-looking fellow polishing up a round shield. The moon man! As sure as you're alive, the moon always came to the Glow-worm Glen to polish up the moon. Sometimes when he polished all of its surface, the moon was full. Sometimes he only polished half and sometimes he polished but the barest crescent. Tonight he was polishing all of it to a dazzling, beautiful silver.

Prince Rupert rubbed the fairy ointment on his eyes. At that minute the queer, cloudy fellow turned the moon square upon him. Thousands of little green men sprang out from the bushes with their arrows ready. But Prince Rupert never blinked. He stared and stared at the silver moon.

Whereupon the two knights, Fairy-Fire and Flash-and-Flicker, went off grumbling. For the prince was either a fire-fairy or had better eyes against fire than any of them.

SISTERS THREE

She obeyed him, perfectly cowed, the dog, answering to Gaston's word of command, allowed her to rise, but keeping his watchful, wary eyes upon her. She stood upright, her hands by her side, her eyes fixed upon the ground—impossible, as though awaiting any further word of command that Gaston might think fit to utter.

"Now go down the path; the dog will follow you. You will find my boat in the cove. Take it and go home. I will come later and see your father about it all. I have nothing more to say to you. Now you can go!"

She moved down the path like one who walks in a dream. At a sign from Gaston, Wotan followed her, still keeping close watch upon her every movement. She went with bowed head and a strange docility, as though all the fire of her passion had been quenched, and Gipsy, watching her with wondering eyes, turned from the next moment upon Gaston's strong, stern face.

Chapter XXXV.

"What did you do to her? What did you do? Oh, Gaston, I never saw anything so wonderful in all my life!"

He faced round quickly upon her; there was a different expression on his face now; he took a step rearward and spoke urgently.

"Gipsy, are you sure you are not hurt?"

"Quite, quite sure, Gaston! I was only horribly frightened. I am ashamed that I was so frightened. But it was because I was running away. I had been brave like you and had faced her—"

"Thank Heaven you did not try! Gipsy, there was murder in her face when I saw it first!"

"I know there was, Gaston. I felt it even before I saw her brandish knife. Besides, I had just seen—"

"What had you seen? Yes, I want to know that. She admitted that she had been up to some devilry. Tell me, Gipsy—I must know everything! What was it you found her doing? What made her turn upon you like that?"

"She was up there, Gaston, just up yonder, where that juniper-bush grows, and she had a huge stone in her hands. She had rolled it up one of those big boulders from below where they lie. And you were coming up the path; we heard your whistle."

"Ah, I understand now! The amiable lady was going to fling the stone down upon me and send me flying into the gulf, if it did not dash out my brains on the spot. The truly charming and the delightful personage we have just dismissed! And you frustrated that little game, Gipsy? How did you do it?"

"It was awful for a moment! I did not know what might happen if I took her unawares or set Keeper upon her; whether the stone might crash down and hurt you and all—a zigzag path is so difficult to reckon about. Or she might have plunged down herself and been badly hurt, though it would have served her right!"

Gipsy set her teeth and her eyes flashed, but Gaston's questioning smile kept her to the point of her story.

"But she put down the stone and moved. I think now it was to get her knife out where she could seize it better or perhaps to open it. And that gave us our chance. Keeper knocked her down; I got her stone and sent it flying down the hill. But she made a stab at Keeper, and I knew she would stab me next, and so I turned and ran. I knew you were coming up the path."

"And I heard the scuffle and then your voice. Gipsy dear, I'm glad you called to me like that. You thought I would not let you be hurt, didn't you?" He checked some words that trembled on his tongue.

Gipsy's face was crimson; she was all in a tremor that she did not understand—an ecstasy which was something new in her experience, and which was charged with poignant emotion.

She ran a few steps forward and dropped on her knees beside her dog, as though to hide her glowing cheeks and shining eyes, but something in the tremor of her voice betrayed her.

"Oh, Gaston, do look at Keeper's wound! Do you think it is a bad one? Will it scar his beautiful coat and skin? Will it hurt him much or be bad to heal?"

Gaston knelt down beside her. Perhaps he too was glad to busy himself over the hound. Gipsy and he were in close proximity but for the moment all their talk was of poor wounded Keeper, who responded to their ministrations with understanding and gratitude.

The rain had left pools in the rocks and Gipsy dipped her handkerchief in the water and bathed the wound. Gaston always carried about him a few accessories useful in case of accident, and a band or two of strong strapping kept the edges of this wound well together.

"He'll be all right in a few days, you'll see," said Gaston, his hand upon the dog's sagacious head.

"You've trained him well, and he will be the best of patients. But we will walk him gently back. He will be more stiff to-morrow than he is to-day."

They rose to their feet, one on either side of the dog, facing each other, and for an instant they stood like this, face to face, she flushed and sparkling, he rather unwontedly pale and labouring under some weight of emotion that seemed to hold him rigid and still.

It struck Gipsy with a sense of amusement that here was a lover who had served no apprenticeship to the art of love, one who had had no practice in facile wooing and the coining of soft and tender phrases. She knew what the expression of his eyes meant. She lowered her own and they should tell her heart's secret too quickly and too clearly. She was quivering all over in a rapture that was altogether new—wonderful, mysterious.

Gaston put out his hands towards her as the dog raised himself and moved somewhat haltingly away. She hesitated only for an instant and then she put out hers to meet his.

"Gipsy," he said, "just a little hoarsely—'my little Gipsy!'"

She looked up at his eager face, charged with meanings she had never read in any face before her secret.

"Gipsy, may I kiss you? Because I love you, and I have no words fit which I can tell you how much!"

She blushed and they raised her face. The next instant she was in his arms. Oh, the strange, bewildering joy as they stood thus! Were they seconds or hours, weeks or days? All the world seemed charged with the world from the time they had risen from their knees beside the dog to the moment when Gipsy gently withdrew herself out of his encircling arms.

"My little love, my brave little love! Gipsy, this is the second time that I owe my life to you. But if you had not been ready to give yourself to me besides, I should scarcely have thanked you for the gift!"

"Oh, Gaston dearest, how you are getting on! That was really quite a pretty old-world speech! Oh, you are such a darling!"

"I've not been called that for a good many years now."

"Well, I shall have to teach you to take to the name again. I love you when you are a bear, when you are so very, very bashful; and I love you when you stand up against danger and never show so much as a quaver or a tremor! And I love you best of all when you hold me fast in your strong arms so that you crush and hurt me!"

"Dearest, did I hurt you? Oh, forgive me! I am such a clumsy fool of a lover."

"I love you for being rude and rough. I know what it means. Nobody knows what you're saying or are but me. I have the monopoly. Nobody will ever share them with me except your mother, which is quite different; Gaston, do you know what it was that made me first understand what was down underneath the beardiness of your upper crust? It was seeing you with your mother, at you and the way your eyes answered hers. And then I knew."

"What did you know, you clever little witch?"

"I knew that the old cross bear had a heart somewhere under his shaggy coat. And I used to think sometimes how interesting it would be to get right down to that great heart and feel what it was doing so sweetly, what does it feel like?"

"And now that you have done so, sweetheart, what does it feel like?"

He bent his head woefully, and she looked up at him, and with his arm about her once more, they stood together, looking down the wild cleft in the cliff and away to the shimmer of the sea beyond.

"It feels like home!" said Gipsy softly, and he caught his breath in a short, quick gasp as of joy.

"Heaven help me to be such a husband to you, dear one, that you shall never have cause to 'unsay' that word!"

Hand in hand they mounted up the path, and at the top by the juniper-bush Gaston looked down.

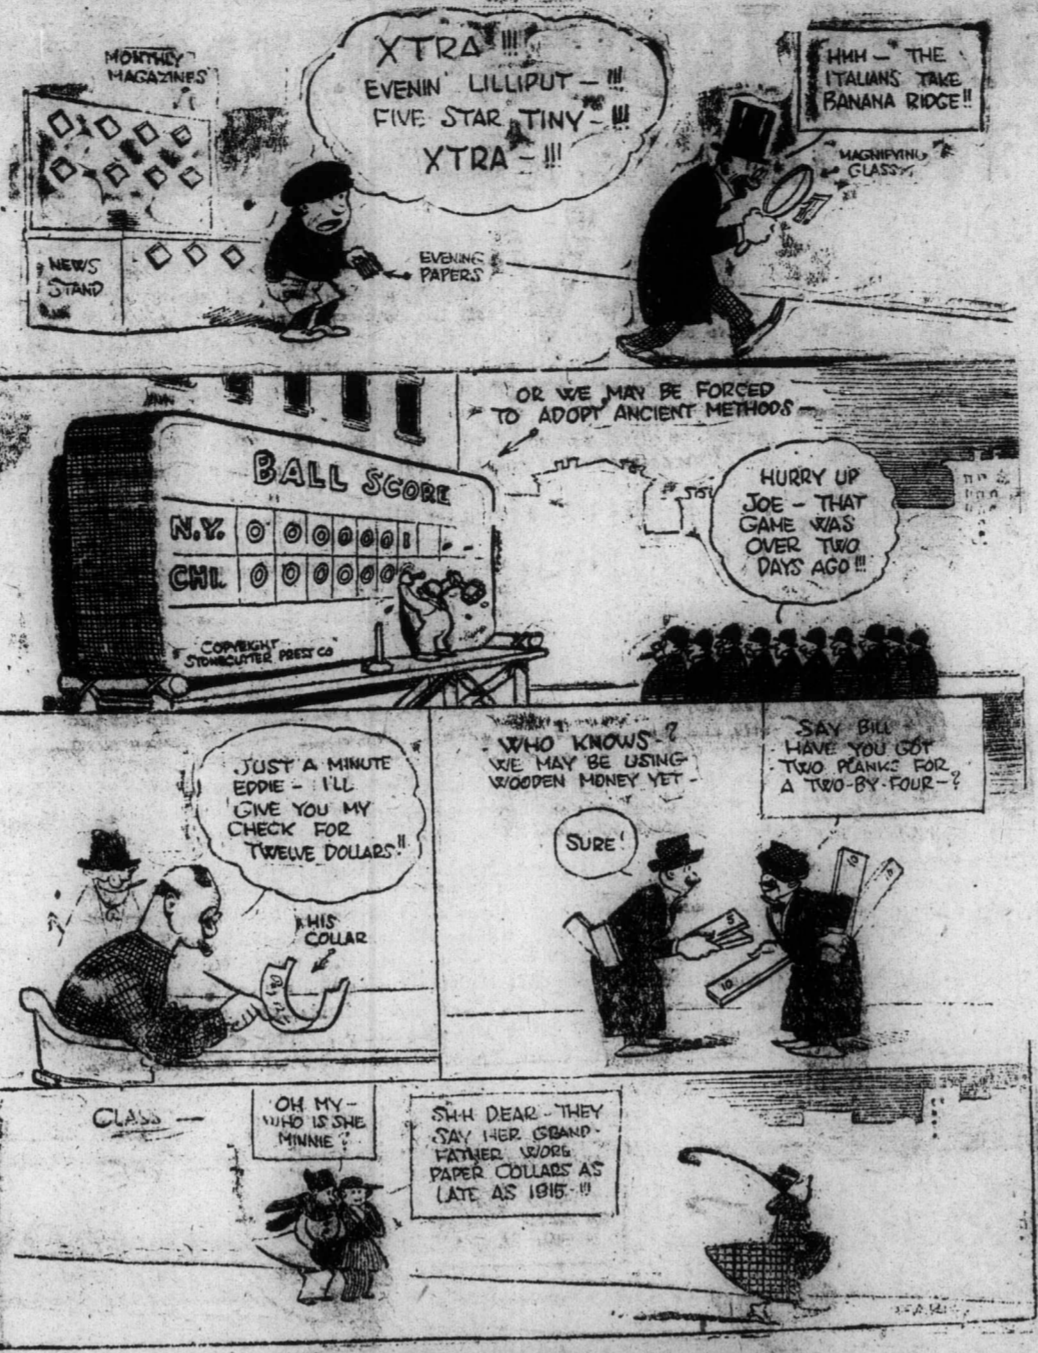

"Morwenna knows how to throw and how to judge distance," he said quietly; and as Gipsy leaned over to look she was seized with a shuddering of horror, for she saw how easy it would be to hurl a great stone so that it must crash down upon the head of any one advancing up the track.

"Gaston, Gaston—promise me! Don't ever use this path again! Promise me that, my love!"

"Sweetheart, I promise for the present, while that mad, foolish girl is still about. But her father must remove her elsewhere. In new surroundings she may become calmer."

"Gaston, was she in love with you? Did she ever dream—"

"I don't think in her sober mind she could ever have had such a thought. I know that when we were walking together she would sometimes talk as if she were in love with a big boy I heeded very little. But she has a double strand in her nature; and about her heart, fancies that they are the descendants of some Spanish grandee, wrecked with the Armada three centuries ago. We used to

DEATH RATE IS ALARMING

Work of Belgian Relief Alleviates Suffering of Out-raged People.

Reports out of the city of Brussels show that the death rate is mounting to fourteen people per thousand every month, and most of these deaths are due directly or indirectly to starvation.

The starvation that the Belgian Relief Committee has been endeavoring to ward off for so many months is coming and bringing with it its ravages. Actual deaths from starvation are not so frequent but day after day some poor woman, some helpless child succumbs to the lack of nourishment experienced for months past.

Here are brave people scourged into submission by their German conquerors, brave because their husbands, sons and brothers are away fighting for their country and only now forced to see their little ones taken from them by death—a death that might be averted if they were given food.

The picture of these little ones standing in the long queues outside the feeding stations is a pitiful one. Clinging, cringing with fear, to the skirts of their frail mothers, their whole mien is one of pleading for something to eat. Starvation is written all over their faces. Their sunken eyes and thin little bodies tell the terrible tale of the suffering they have undergone. Death is the only relief if food does not come. Soon the death rate will be more than fourteen to the thousand every month.

The Belgian Relief Committee is doing its utmost for these people, doing what is can to relieve them in their plight but the work is futile if the food is not given. Will you not send your bit to the Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal, or to the branch in your town?

An Enthusiast on Canada

One might almost think that three million miles of travel would satisfy any man, but Mr. Burton Hines, the famous American trotter, wanted more and spends three months this summer in cradling Canada from coast to coast at the first stage of his fourth trip. The country was new to him, it provided him with such wonderful variety of beautiful pictures that he now declares he never spent three more interesting months in his life. He is lecturing now audiences of two and three thousand at a time in the great cities of the United States, urging them to spend next summer either in the romantic, historic centres of Eastern Canada or the mountain fastnesses of the Canadian Pacific Rockies. His moving pictures of Banff, Lake Louise and the Yoho Valley are the finest of their kind ever produced, while the photographs in natural colors taken by Mrs. Burton Holmes are a revelation as to the possibilities of this new process of picture taking. Canada has probably never been drawn to the attention of our American neighbors in a more attractive fashion.
