For Her Sake; The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XLIX. "Thank you," he said, frankly. "I know that I have not title and high birth, but I shall make a name for myself, and I shall value it much more than a name that might have been made for me. I intend to stand for the county; and, if I live, and all goes well with me, you shall yet be proud of your son-in-law, Lady Cameron."

wealthy, kind-hearted, and generous. He was of good descent, was the happy possessor of two or three extensive estates, was only forty years of age, and had buried his first wife six months after their marriage. He was tall, not good-looking, but with a kindly, well-preserved face, keen, bright eyes, and a pleasant smile—"the kind of man," Lady Cameron was fond of observing, "who would be quite sure to make a good husband."

CHAPTER L. The marriage was over, and the Marchioness de Vere had left Ferness. She was as happy as she was ever likely to be again in this world. Peter Cameron treated her royally; he gave her a dowry that would have befitted the daughter of a duchess, and Lady Cameron's heart was at rest. Her two daughters were now married, and, if the eldest had not made a very brilliant match, she had secured many solid advantages, while Evadne had taken one of the best prizes in the matrimonial market. She always spoke of Mrs. Marche, the wife of the popular member for the county, with great satisfaction, and of the Marchioness de Vere with unbounded pride and pleasure.

So at length Mr. Cameron and Lady Cameron were left alone. By this time the friendship of the Duke and Duchess of Stone had become a familiar and established fact, and the happy owner of three millions of money had now nothing left on earth to wish for. The Duke, who never did anything by halves, was not merely a friend of Peter Cameron's; he positively revere him. He no longer avoided him on platforms and evaded him at the great county meetings; the Duke and the millionaire were frequently seen together in the hunting-field and at great public gatherings, while the Duchess and Lady Cameron were known to be fast, and even confidential friends. The elite of the county visited Ferness now, and Peter Cameron saw some of the first men in England willing to partake of his hospitality.

For some few years this seemed to be quite enough for him, and he enjoyed his life completely and thoroughly; then it rather palled upon him and he missed Diana—he missed the warm, unselfish love that she had always lavished upon him, and he yearned to be with the one who was, after all, his life's idol. A really noble soul can never be satisfied with mean aims and ends; and Peter Cameron, despite his love for dukes and earls and his desire for their acquaintance, had a noble soul. Even the friendship of the Duke did not satisfy him. When he had won it, when he was on intimate terms with men he had never dared to aspire to know, even then he found that there was something wanting, that his heart and soul were still filled with longing; and it was then that he turned to Diana. He wanted Diana, the only being on earth for whom he had a great and lasting love, and he wrote to her, urging her to come to Ferness. But Diana had no wish to meet with the ghost of her former self. She had grown so profoundly wretched that she did not care to let her misery be seen or known, so she declined all her father's invitations, and it seemed to him that he could read heartache between every line of her letters.

Lady Cameron was, perhaps, the happiest of the family. She had succeeded in nearly all her ambitions; she had more money than she could spend; she held a good position in society; she could dispense patronage to those who had once patronized her; her daughters were well married, the Marchioness de Vere being quite a leader of fashion. Her only regret was the absence of Sir Leslie, her only annoyance that Diana's fortune would never now be his.

So five years passed, and the girl who had sung of sunshine and roses was now a superbly beautiful though most miserable woman. She had gone through another phase of emotional life.

"We have but one life," she would moan to herself, "and mine is spoiled, ruined!" Young, beautiful, and gifted as she was, it was indeed hard to admit that life had nothing more for her than blank despair. Had little children been given to her, it might have softened the severity of her trouble.

When five years of her married life ended, it happened that Peter Cameron fell ill. There was no danger, but he longed to see the daughter he had loved so much, and from whom he had been separated so long. He was always thinking of her, talking of her, and asking if she could not come; and one day, when he felt better, he wrote a letter, telling her how he wished to see her.

Diana told her husband of her father's ill health and his desire to see her. He happened to be in an amiable mood that morning. "I am not surprised," he said. "You had better go, Diana. When a man like your father falls ill, he does not often recover."

Her heart seemed to cease beating at the words. It was four years since she had seen him—and how she had once loved him! A thought of all the love and happiness of her girlhood at Ferness flashed through her mind. She was deadly pale when she answered him.

"I will go, Ronald," she said. "But, as papa is ill, perhaps I had better go alone." If she had expressed a wish that he should accompany her, he would have found fifty reasons to prove that it was impossible for him to do so; as she had uttered a wish to the contrary, he at once decided that he would go, and he declared his intention in pretty strong language!

Diana looked at him. "You know that it will be miserable for us both, if you come," she said. "It will not be pleasant for relatives to witness our quarrels."

"A new view of matrimony for the beholders!" sneered Lord Clanronald. "I shall go with you, you may be sure of that. I cannot flatter myself that I am much of a favorite with you; but I was certainly well liked at Ferness. You may rely upon the pleasure of my companionship, Lady Clanronald." The fire from Diana's eyes neither shamed nor troubled him. "Come, if you will," she said. "It matters but little to me." "I am well aware of it," he answered; "but I shall be glad to let your people see for themselves how little you care for me." "At least they will hear you shout and swear at me," she retorted. "A grand expose on both sides," laughed Lord Clanronald. "I am quite willing. I should think that no one who has ever seen us together could associate the idea of happiness with us."

Many times before when he had said similar things, she had gone to him and had spoken of trying to do better and feeling sorry. He had invariably thrust her away with a brutal word or a coarse oath or something even more painful. To-day she made no such effort; she had long been tired of her endeavors. She merely turned away repeating: "Come, if you wish; it does not in the least matter to me."

It was the month of April then, and she had a keen recollection of the beauty of Ferness in April—the odor of violets and the gleam of the yellow primroses in the woods, of the budding chestnuts and the springing grass. Standing before a long mirror that reflected her stately form, she was conscious that her beautiful eyes had lost their sweetness, and had grown cold and proud. She looked into her own face steadfastly.

"They will hardly know me," she said to herself; "there is not even a trace of the old Diana left. I wonder whether they will guess what has changed my appearance? What will Royal say? He will never be able to call me 'the child Diana' again. I am twenty-three years old now, but my heart is fifty."

How those words haunted her—"the child Diana!" How they brought that faithful noble friend nearer to her! How all the happy past came back to her! All her misery had been caused by her father's marriage; and he had married in order to secure the friendship of a Duke and Duchess. How mean and small it all looked now after the long lapse of years; and her own conduct, how ignoble it appeared! To marry for spite and vengeance to make four lives miserable just for the pleasure of inflicting pain on Lady Cameron, pain that almost vanished with the blow!

She never bowed her head in humility or contrition now, or she would have done so when this warm rush of home-love came over her. She had proudly kept aloof from all in her sorrowing despair; but now, at the thought of her father and Richard—Richard who had loved her so much—and of Sir Royal—who had loved her even more—her heart was softened.

Lord Clanronald had taken it into his head to be what his servants called "awkward" for the few days that had to elapse before the journey. He knew that his marriage had been a wretched failure; he knew that he had treated his beautiful young wife in a most cruel and heartless fashion; he knew that she had grown to hate him, and that the fact of their unhappiness was patent to every one who beheld them. He sometimes felt a tinge of remorse for his conduct toward her; and there were times when he was even ashamed of his excessive drinking.

His Diana's profound contempt for his debauched habits made him wince; but he never had the moral courage to break his bonds, or make any effort whatever to reform himself. He wished everything had been different, and felt his conscience somewhat relieved when he blamed himself for having married a "high-frown" woman.

The journey from Ronald's Court to Ferness was by no means a pleasant one. Diana had made an earnest appeal to her husband that he would keep perfectly sober during their visit, and he was so angry with her for presuming to insinuate that he was ever otherwise than in a state of sobriety that during the whole journey he lavished abuse and foul words upon her. The tears welled to her eyes, but she would not let them fall. After five years of absence, she would not re-enter Ferness with a gasping face. But the effort to bear his savage onslaught with patience incensed her heart though her face bore no sign of it.

Advertisement for Nujol. The Modern Medical Idea—Sickness Prevention. Back in 1796, when he developed the vaccine treatment to combat smallpox, Edward Jenner helped to start the trend of medical thought in the new direction of Sickness Prevention. Today anti-toxins, serums, vaccines and sanitation—all these check disease before it can gain hold. But constipation still remains one of the most devastating of all plagues, because by reducing the body's power of resistance it makes it an easy victim of every and any disorder. Leading medical authorities agree that 70% of disease has its origin in the intestinal tract—in constipation. Your physician will tell you that pills, salts, castor oil, mineral waters, etc., simply force the system and weaken the intestinal muscles. Nujol is entirely different. Nujol prevents constipation because it softens the food waste and encourages the intestinal muscles to act naturally. Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world. Get a bottle from your druggist today. #### Labrador Boundary to Privy Council.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—To the judicial committee of the Privy Council will be left the settlement of the long dispute as to the precise location of the boundary line between the Dominion of Canada and the territory of Newfoundland on the Labrador peninsula. Upon this question, there has been discussion for a number of years, and the controversy has become more acute since the Dominion Government added Ungava to the province of Quebec. Newfoundland has been claiming that the boundary line strikes the coast considerably further north than the Canadian government and the government of Quebec have been willing to concede. It is now announced that the two governments have agreed upon the question to be submitted to the court. That question will be a wide one, reading as follows:

1829 and 1919.

"The present is a most eventful period in the religious and civil interests of this interesting and important portion of the British Empire." So wrote Egerton Ryerson in the first sentence of his first editorial, ninety years ago. The crisis was indeed a great one, and his conviction of its importance and of his own responsibility and opportunity to lead the Church and the country safely through it gave Ryerson a pen that was tipped with fire, and made the Christian Guardian a power in the land. What Church and country owe to this paper and its first editor, Methodists may forget; but Canada cannot. It is enshrined in the very warp and woof of the nation's history. "The present is a most eventful period in the religious and civil interests of this interesting and important portion of the British Empire." The words might be written with tremendous truth of the days that are passing over us. Indeed, they are more tremendously true in 1919 than they were in 1829. They are to-day even more terribly true. For no crisis in the religious and civil interests through which Canada has ever passed can compare with these which are upon us and ahead of us in this hour, in extent, in character, in complexity, in cruciality. Ten years must pass before the Christian Guardian can round out its century. It will be a decade of destiny for Canada, for the Empire, for the world. Next to the earlier years of the Christian era, it will be the most momentous period in the history of the human race. Things that can be shaken will be shaken, that the things which cannot be shaken may remain. Mere shibboleths will be valueless; only the word of eternal truth, only the Word of God incarnate, can save the race from ruin. Mistaken leadership is the danger of the hour. Mad voices are lifting themselves with urgency and clamor. This century is prodigal of Christs, big and small, each of them with a different gospel, and each of them eager to be acclaimed a king. But the Christ of Calvary, with His gospel of suffering love, and with His universal law of love in all men's relations with the other men, in the very nature of things, have the last word. As He had the first word, in the history of humanity. To hear it from Him, and to apply it simply and fearlessly to the problems of the time, was

James Hood, Shepherd & Songster.

On Saturday, November 21, 1835, James Hogg, described by Wordsworth, the post-laureate, as the "strick" shepherd, died at the parish of "that name, in the Scotch county of Selkirk. From twenty years of age he was, for ten years, engaged as a shepherd, but he became known as "the poet" through making songs for lasses to sing in chorus: In 1802 he became acquainted with Sir Walter Scott, and supplied him with further material for his "Border Minstrelsy," but as a farmer he became bankrupt. Moving later to Edinburgh he devoted himself to authorship, and became friendly with Byron, Wordsworth, and Southey, the English poets. In 1823 he was publicly entertained in London; but at his death he left his widow and children in poverty. In 1853 Queen Victoria granted to her a royal pension, and in 1860 a monument was erected to James Hogg at St. Mary's Loch, or Lake, in his native country.

This Sydney Woman Couldn't Stand Ticking of Clock

Was So Nervous and Run-Down She Almost Gave Up—Restored by Tanlac.

"I was so nervous and run-down that life was a burden to me but Tanlac has restored my health," said Mrs. Ronald McNeil, of 61 Ferry St., Sydney, N.S., recently. "I can't express my gratitude to Tanlac because it gave me back my health after everything else had failed," she continued.

"I had a spell of illness last spring and it left me in such a dreadful condition I was afraid I would never be myself again. I had a perfectly terrible cough and was so nervous I could not bear the ticking of a clock in the same room with me. It was almost impossible for me to get to sleep at night and the slightest noise would wake me up and I would toss about for hours without closing my eyes. I would get up feeling worse than when I retired and simply dreaded the day's housework. Every little mole-hill of work seemed like a mountain to me. My stomach troubled me a lot and was so weak I could not ever eat anything heavy, and I was so constipated I had to take a laxative four or five times a week. I tried everything in the way of medicine that I could think of but could get no better and I got so depressed that I often felt like just giving up and crying.

"My husband suggested that I try Tanlac, but I was so run-down that I took I took two bottles before I could tell it was doing me much good. I determined, however, to give it a fair trial and the next two bottles simply took right hold and made me over into a different woman. My appetite picked up and my strength came back almost in a single bound. My nervousness is entirely gone and I sleep like a child every night. I get up feeling fresh and strong for the day's work and eat heartily three times a day without the slightest trouble. I have gained a lot in weight and feel better than I have in years."

"I believe Tanlac will help any one after a fair trial. It certainly made a different woman out of me." Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbour Buffett, by Thos. Wakely & Sons; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son; and in Topsail, by J. K. Bursell.

Proclaimed Prince's Property.

How John Kyle, a Toronto soldier, walked calmly into the Royal suite at the Ritz-Carlton hotel and through a cordon of detectives and purloined a cap and some badges belonging to the Prince of Wales during his visit to Toronto, was learned recently when Kyle was arrested there on a charge of stealing watches at Belleville. Kyle was quietly turned loose when he stole the Prince's property because it was thought he was merely a souvenir hunter. The detention of Kyle at that time gave rise to a rumor that an attempt had been made on the life of the Prince of Wales.

Big Blaze Yesterday.

Empire Barracks and Hospital Wiped Out -- Soldier Patients Removed Safely -- Some Ammunition Exploded, But no One Injured -- Rifles and Machine Guns Destroyed--Store House Looted Last Night -- Cat Remained in Burning Building, and Lived.

The fine, large Empire Barracks and adjoining military hospital to-day stand a charred and blackened ruin, with all their former usefulness and comfort gone forever. Passing along that way up to two o'clock yesterday one would never suspect that within a few hours the fine structure—emblem of mercy and comfort as it was—would be but a blackened mass of ruin and desolation.

As a result of its catching fire yesterday thousand of dollars worth of damage has been done; invalided soldiers have been taken unceremoniously from their beds and the splendid system and orderliness of a hospital and barracks lost.

The two institutions, one adjoining the other, were housed in the one building. The hospital was contained in the eastern section and the barracks in the western. Some forty eight soldiers were indoor patients, while about ninety others were visiting patients of the hospital. Electrical appliances valued at seven thousand dollars were kept in the eastern end, while an X-ray apparatus, of the newest and most modern make, which was installed the day preceding the fire, added greatly to the value.

In the barracks were kept four hundred British rifles and seven hundred German rifles. There were also about seventeen machine guns. Besides those there were a hundred and sixty nine thousand rounds of ammunition, stored in small boxes. Those were not affected by the fire, although the boxes, which were piled up, were scorched and even charred by the flames. Some boxes of machine gun cartridges, contained in gun-belts, fell down, and breaking open, enabled the fire to explode the cartridges. The reports of the explosion could be heard by the thousands of watching people, although the greater majority of them were not aware of their cause. The rifles, or most of them, were burned completely, although some had only the wooden stock destroyed. Others, which were in wooden cases, and well encased in oil and vaseline, were left intact and undamaged, although the boxes, in many cases, were charred and burned. The German rifles were left in a solid mass of steel barrels and locks.

The fire broke out at about two forty five. One of the orderlies was the first to see it, and he acquainted Major Knight, who was down stairs, of the fact. Going upstairs, the latter saw a flame, "about the size of the palm of my hand," as he himself described it, in the ceiling, about twenty feet from the wall separating the barracks from the hospital. This was in a sick ward. He rushed to the phone and tried to get the fire hall. This was busy, however, and by the time he got back the ward was in a mass of flames. Meanwhile Mr. C. E. A. Jeffery, who was teaching a class of soldiers downstairs, called for ten volunteers to remove the patients who were in bed, and heroic work was performed by them. The soldiers were taken to Grenfell Hall, at the Seaman's Institute, while some were taken to the Military Hospital on Military Road. None were injured, excepting one man, who got a slight burn on his face.

The East End Firemen, seeing the flames from the outside, rushed to assistance, and in a very short time had several streams of water playing on the burning building. The flames first broke through at the back, near the eastern corner, and the roof began to burn furiously, beginning at the East and working West. The two top flats were demolished, both roof and walls being razed. The bottom flat was not burned as much, although the water did a lot of damage to it. The end of the Hospital, separated from Lynch's Bakery by a lane, soon was weakened and fell against the latter building, adams and burning as it was. For a while it looked as if this, too, would go. A couple of hoses were turned on the fallen wall, however, and it was soon extinguished. Meanwhile the firemen had turned their attention to the Eastern section of the building, which has a brick frame. Water was poured in through the windows in inexhaustible torrents, and a lot was done to check the progress of the flames. The wind was high, unfortunately, and the building itself being high on a bluff, was exposed to the wind. Consequently the flames shot up to the heavens, and people outside the city limits for miles around could see them and the dense clouds of smoke that rolled blindingly through the air. Not many flankers were in evidence, and people stood near the building until well past six o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was feared that the front brick wall of the Barrack section, facing on Water Street, would give way and fall across the street. Especially as this wall was anything but strong and the plaster being not very adhesive, the possibility of the wall falling was great. This did not happen, fortunately.

A very pleasing feature of the fire was the splendid service rendered by the soldiers themselves. The convalescent patients who could work were there in numbers and their help to the firemen was of great value. As soon as word of the fire was received at the Militia Department, Lieut-Colonel W. F. Rendell despatched as many of the Record and Pay soldier-clerks as were available to the scene, so that they could render any aid that they could. Several of them had their clothing ruined by fire and water, and they presented rather comical sights as they rushed in and out of the burning building.

Men working on the Digby, just opposite, also rendered excellent service as soon as they saw the smoke and fire they rushed across the street and "dug right in," as one of the soldiers described it this morning to the Telegram reporter. The inevitable small boy was present, and the police had great difficulty in looking after him and keeping him clear of the burning building. One little fellow cried in great glee, "Gee! but this is the first real fire I've seen for months!" In truth the sight was a brilliant one, for the shooting, crackling flames and clouds of black smoke constituted a sight that the many beholders will not for some time forget.

The origin of the fire is not definitely known. Major Knight, with whom we were in conversation this morning, would not make a dogmatic assertion. "I would not say what caused the fire," he said. "The fact is that I don't know. I do know that just where the fire first broke out two electric wires ran along near the ceiling. Perhaps they caused it." The general opinion is that the wires were the cause. Soon after the fire broke out men from the Electrical Department of the Reid Mfd. Co. were on the scene and severed all of the wires leading into the building.

A story of more than ordinary interest is told of the fire. A certain cat which was always in the kitchen, and which was a general pet of the soldiers of the two institutions, was in the burning building all yesterday afternoon and last night, and when found this morning was quite intact and just as happy. The pussy must have crept under some box or other article and thus protected herself from the smoke and flames. Needless to say she was more than pleased to see some of her friends of the hospital this morning, and they were just as pleased to see her.

Several soldiers lost sums of money in the fire. Sergt. Richard Woods, one of the hospital staff, lost clothing amounting in value to two hundred dollars, and bank notes to the value of five hundred dollars—Masseur M. Walsh lost $78. This money, which was in the care of the matron of the institution, was kept in a pocket book. When found, the book was burned considerably and some of the notes blackened and scorched by the flames. The Bank has agreed to pay the amount of $28, however, notes of that amount being found with their numbers. The others must be counted as a loss. Nurse Fitzgerald, the matron of the hospital, lost all her belongings, and also a sum of money. Corporal Sydney Rendell also lost $150 in notes. None of it was recovered.

Many papers of importance were lost in the fire. The records of the institution were kept in cabinets and in some cases cabinets and all were destroyed. Many other papers were found this morning, being damaged none, beyond a water-soaking. They will be dried and re-copied. In the office a sum of five or six dollars, which constituted the petty cash, was found in the search this morning.

Many freaks of unusual interest were in evidence after the fire had had his way. For instance the boiler was safe just as usual, and the queer sight of smoke coming from the tall steel chimney, which was left standing, was to be seen. In many cases the offices were passed over but lightly by the fire, and the desks and chairs were left in practically the same positions. Papers which had been contained in the ordinary clasp files which hung on the wall were burned and the files left hanging on the nails.

Capt. Hector MacNeil, the quartermaster, was not at the institution when the fire broke out. He was at the Escapant Hospital, where a fire had broken out the day previous, and was there for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of damage. When he got back he found his own institution in flames. A large amount of the Quartermaster's stores were left intact. In the bottom storey of the Hospital is a large store room, where are kept the stores and supplies of three hospitals—the Escapant, Military and Empire. The fire passed this by, and excepting some that were water soaked through the ceiling overhead, were damaged none. Last night, although the police were on guard, some marauders broke in, and smashing a Yale lock on the door of the store-room, got in and looted a large quantity of stores. Whole tubs of butter, cases of raisins and currants, and others were taken. At present there is no clue that will enable the officers to apprehend them.

The damage is very considerable. Whereas the electrical appliances and other medical equipment were saved, the building itself is a wreck. Costing originally twelve thousand dollars, this had forty thousand dollars spent on it in alterations and additions. On the building was insurance to the amount of $10,000. The loss, therefore, is roughly forty thousand dollars.

The medical appliances, which were saved, will be immediately gotten together and placed in running condition as soon as possible. Another, a temporary, building will have to be secured, and the medical men hope to have the instruments and appliances in working order within a few days so that the treatments may be continued without any great break. The wooden fittings of the X-ray equipment were burned, but new ones will be made. Otherwise it was not damaged.

The quartermaster's supplies were covered by insurance to the amount of $21,000. This takes in foods, rifles, ammunition, mattresses, cooking utensils, etc., and Hospital equipment.

It has not yet been decided as to what steps will be taken concerning a temporary building for the soldier-patients. As they number one hundred and twenty eight, 48 indoor and 90 visiting—it is obvious that something will have to be done.

I DIDN'T WANT

Some people I knew once accepted the loan of a summer cottage from some friends of theirs.

When they came back after the two weeks' vacation they had spent in it, the wife looked more tired than she had when she went away.

"Never again," said her husband. "She spent about half the last week cleaning up that cottage."

"Well, I wanted to leave it just as she when I took it. I didn't want her to say that she had to clean up after us."

"You left it in better condition, you know you did," accused her husband. "You said yourself you had to do all the black off the bottoms of these palls and kettles because you didn't know just how much was on when you got there."

That Old Oil Stove!

"That old oil-stove," explained the wife, "it smokes things up just as fast as you get them clean."

"Exactly," said her husband, "so what's the use of wearing yourself out cleaning them?"

"But Henry, I didn't want her to say—"

"No," said her husband, "you didn't want her to say this, and you didn't want her to say that. She must be a very disagreeable woman if she looks her cottage and then sneezes around trying to find something to fault with and talk about."

"A man never can understand these things."

Men Have Too Much Sense!

"I should hope not. They have much sense. I never saw anything like the way women are afraid that other women will say, whether it has any basis in reason and sense or not."

"That's a fair accusation?"

"That's the way women are? To a certain extent I must admit I think it is."

"Two couples I know once took a drive together for the winter. And

I DIDN'T WANT HER TO SAY—

Some people I know once accepted the loan of a summer cottage from some friends of theirs. When they came back after the two weeks' vacation they had spent in it, the wife looked more tired than she had when she went away.

"Never again," said her husband. "She spent about half the last week cleaning up that cottage."

"Well, I wanted to leave it just as nice as when I took it. I didn't want her to say that she had to clean up after us."

"You left it in better condition, you know you did," accused her husband. "You said yourself you had to get all the black off the bottoms of those pails and kettles because you didn't know just how much was on them you got there."

That Old Oil Stove!
"That old oil-stove," explained the wife, "it smokes things up just as fast as you get them clean."

"Exactly," said her husband, "so that's the use of wearing yourself out cleaning them."

"But Henry, I didn't want her to be able to say—"

"No," said her husband, "you didn't want her to say this, and you didn't want her to say that. She must be very disagreeable woman if she sneaked her cottage and then snooped round trying to find something to find fault with and talk about."

"A man never can understand these things."

Men Have Too Much Sense!
"I should hope not. They have too much sense. I never saw anything like the way women are afraid what other women will say, whether it has any basis in reason and sense or not."

Is that a fair accusation?
"Is that the way women are? To a certain extent I must admit I think it is."

Two couples I know once took a two together for the winter. And both women were so afraid that the other would say that she hadn't done her share of the work that they fairly made themselves and each other miserable by each insisting on doing more than her share.

They'll Say We are Inhabitable.

I sometimes catch myself at that sort of thing. "If I don't entertain the So-and-Sos (when it is very inconvenient to do so) they'll say we're awfully inhospitable."

There's no use in being bullied by people into doing things that you would not otherwise think it wise or right to do.

It really is a form of cowardice to permit it.

Try to do the square thing, the just thing, the kind thing all the time, and then trust to your reputation to stand what any unjust "she" will say.

Price of Humble "Spud" to Soar.

The price of potatoes will be considerably higher this winter than last, local wholesale dealers told The Record recently. Potato rot, which has played havoc with part of the Prince Edward Island and Cape Breton crop will cause the jump in price, due to the fact that considerably more labor is required to pick and cull this year's crop. Although high prices will prevail the supply of potatoes will be plentiful the dealers affirm. Large shipments of potatoes are being made from the island to the United States this year. One island dealer alone has contracted for the shipment of 1,000 cars of the commodity, it is reported.—Sydney Record.

Who Knows About Quiberon?

(From the London Chronicle.)

"But who knows about Quiberon, one of the greatest of sea fights?" asks Lord Fisher in the last serial chapter at his "Memories." Unfortunately, our classical history books throw little light on this remarkable sea scrap, fought in the teeth of a stiff northwesterly gale on November 20th 1759. Perhaps its chief importance lay in the fact that Hawke came out of Tor Bay just in time to upset Confans's plan of a raid on Scotland, and his success dispelled at a stroke the English nightmare of a French invasion.

When Confans, with 21 sail of the line on look-out for a squadron of British boats, spotted Hawke's fleet, he made a dash for Quiberon Bay, in the fond hope that his British pursuers would be stranded on the rocks. But the gallant Hawke, taking all risks, sank five of the enemy, severely crippled four, and scattered the rest in different ports, where they were easily blockaded. And Hawke's total casualties were only two boats, which ran on the rocks!

What Big Strikes Cost.

The recent railway strike is calculated to have cost the country close on £50,000,000. This includes the loss in wages and trade, which naturally was hit very heavily through the upsetting of transport.

This is by no means the heaviest loss due to a strike. The railway and transport strikes of 1911 cost the country over a hundred millions before they were settled.

The worst year for strikes in recent years was probably 1908, when there were more industrial disputes than there had been for many years past. Engineers, shipbuilders, and cotton-spinners all went on strike that year, as well as numbers of other small trade unions. The three big unions lost over £2,000,000 in wages alone, and the loss to trade is hardly to be estimated. It mustn't be forgotten that the loss of one pound before the war is equivalent to the loss of two now.

It has been said by Mr. Thomas that the recent strike came as near civil war as any strike in England. The great series of Russian strikes which broke out in St. Petersburg in October, 1905, actually did lead to civil war. In Moscow and Odessa there was bitter fighting between the strikers and the troops. In all some 15,000 people were killed, and the actual property destroyed was officially put at £20,000,000. This, added to the loss of wages, trade and credit, probably created a record in costly strikes.

THE ONE UNION.
One for all and all for one!
This was the cry that once we made.
And great the building reared upon
The stones which our forefathers laid;
Our Flag lights every sky to-day.
A symbol of the world's renown,
The beacon of the better way,
Shall selfish creatures tear it down?
Beyond your need for yellow gold,
Above your care for hours of ease,
Oh, toiler at the bench or mold,
Greater than all idolatries
There is a trust for you to keep,
A love that's better than them all:
For ages shall your children weep
If now the Starry Flag shall fall.

Honest toil and fair the pay!
United thus must free men stand
To hold the gate and bar the way
To all that would destroy our land.
Above the fortune and the place
Of which too much the wealthy brag,
Now, for the glory of our race,
Must capital esteem our Flag!

But one way now all men must take
One path to journey, side by side;
No discord must our courage shake,
No hatred must our strength divide.
The greatest union calls us all,
Its fate upon our will awaits;
Now rich or poor, whatever befall,
Must work for our United States.

CAESAR HAD NEVER MET CLEOPATRA!

(John O'London's Weekly.)
A very modern (and, maybe, a very high) writer has said that the whole of life is to create with the labour years, and then to destroy in the night. That is exactly what Julius Caesar nearly succeeded in doing; what, indeed, only his wonderful luck saved him from. Caesar was fifty-two when he met Cleopatra, was at the zenith of his fame. He overcame all the insistent and persistent troubles that accompanied the conquest of Gaul.

[CONDENSED MILK]

"THE MILK THAT CUTS THE COST OF COOKING."

patra a reckless hoyden. As a matter of fact, Caesar was a man tired for the moment of wars and conquests and public affairs, and ready to be amused and flattered and cajoled by a pretty woman. He had been in the centre of intrigue since his youth. He had been compelled to fight ceaselessly for his own hand, and his very success had wearied him. He wanted to forget for a while, and Cleopatra well knew how to conjure up forgetfulness. Ferrero says of her:

"Herself utterly cold and callous, insensitive by nature to the flame of true devotion, Cleopatra was one of those women gifted with an unerring instinct for all the various roads to men's affections. She could be the shrinking girl, too shy to reveal her half-unconscious emotions of jealousy and depression and self-denial; or a woman carried away by the sweep of a fiery and uncontrollable passion. She could tickle the aesthetic sensibilities of her victims by rich and gorgeous festivals, by the fantastic adornment of her own person and her palace, or by brilliant discussions on literature and art; she could conjure up all their grossest instincts with the vilest obscenities of conversation, with the free and easy jocularities of a woman of the camps."

An Autocratic Empire.

Caesar stayed with Cleopatra, was besieged in Alexandria by her brother, and altogether spent nine months in Egypt. Caesar returned to Rome in the early autumn of the year 47 B.C. But he only stayed there four months. One more Pompeian army remained to crush, and he had to hurry across to Africa. During those four months he attempted to allay popular discontent by cancelling all rents under a certain figure for one whole year. The campaign lasted six months, and he went back to Rome to consolidate his authority. He had made many promises. Some at least of them had to be kept.

His ambition is very evident. It was to build an autocratic empire on the basis of popular prosperity.

Cleopatra came to Rome at the end of the year 46. She brought the son she had had by Caesar with her. She whispered to him of an empire greater than any that the world had yet seen, ruled by a dynasty that they should found. Meanwhile he distributed largesse with a generous hand, and initiated a scheme of sane and moderate social reform.

The Caesarian Dream.

But he lacked capable backing. New difficulties continually arose, and the man himself was worn out. He grew irritable. He never rested. He was overburdened with work and responsibility. His connection with Cleopatra was bitterly resented by the whole people. The attacks of epilepsy, to which he had always been subject, became more frequent and more violent. He had been appointed perpetual dictator, which meant in effect that the republic was dead and that the empire had begun, and he became obsessed with the necessity of strengthening his position by the annexation of Parthia.

Caesar was inventing the Caesarian dream which afterwards came to Napoleon I., Napoleon III., and the ex-Kaiser Wilhelm—conquest abroad, social reform at home, as the two props of an autocratic throne.

Caesar was a very great man. Mommsen has said, "No doubt Caesar was a great orator, a great writer, and a great general, but he became all these because he was a great statesman." An Italian writer has described him as "an incomparable opportunist." Certainly he was an amazingly shrewd politician to whom Tammany Hall could have taught nothing. He knew his people and he knew how to manage them. He was tremendously sure of himself. And his self-control was, until the last few months of his life, almost superhumanly complete. He suited the means to the occasion. Sometimes he was the very soul of forgiveness. Sometimes he was pitiless. His whole life was governed by considerations of policy, until he met Cleopatra and lost his head at the dangerous age of fifty-two.

He was a man without illusions even about himself. His personal life was generally abstemious, and he cared nothing for luxury. He loved glory, but he despised flattery. The difficulties that faced him in 45 and 44 were tremendous. The task that he had set himself was as perilous as Napoleon's invasion of Russia, but he would almost certainly have succeeded if he had not been sick and worn out. Caesar in 44 was a sick man, as Napoleon was in 1812. He was only the shadow of the man who had contrived to snatch victory from defeat in Gaul and to write the "De Bello Gallico" in two months.

A Great Destroyer.

While Caesar dreamt of Parthia, Italy was living in a state of economic chaos. Every class was eaten up with discontent, and the discontent came to a head in the aristocratic conspiracy engineered by Cassius and Brutus, and culminated in the assassination of the dictator in the Forum on the Ides of March, 44 B.C. To Ferrero, Caesar is nothing but a great destroyer.

In him was personified all the revolutionary forces, the magnificent but devastating forces, of a mercantile age in conflict with the traditions of an old-world society—its religious scepticism, its indifference to morality, its insensibility to family affection, its opportunism and undisciplined politics, its contempt for precedent and tradition, its Eastern luxury, its grasping militarism. Its passion for the baser forms of commerce and speculation, its first tentative efforts towards intellectual refinement, its naive enthusiasm for art and science. But men often build better than they know or ever intend.

What Might Have Been.

The scattered, mutually hostile tribes gathered together as the Roman legions marched through the land, first as Caesar's enemies, afterwards as his allies and as Roman citizens.

While Eastern influences were destroying the ancient virtues of the Roman republic, Rome was giving the best of herself to the great people bordering her northern frontiers. Thus history works out her own schemes and men, even the greatest men, are but the puppets in her hand.

There remains, nevertheless, the inevitable speculation of the might have been. What would have happened, for example, if the Spanish Armada had sailed up Channel in fair weather? What would have happened if Anne Boleyn had been ugly? What would have happened if Napoleon had listened to reason and had never marched to Moscow? What would have happened if Caesar had never met Cleopatra?—S.D.

The One Great Figure.

He had faced the dangers of the civil war forced on him by Pompey, he had defeated the Pompeian armies in Spain. Finally, he had beaten his great rival himself at Pharsalia, and Pompey had been murdered. He was the one great figure left in the Roman world, with the exception of Cicero, who was too old and too weary to bother much with public affairs. There was great work waiting for him to do, and no man ever had a more favourable opportunity.

As Ferrero says:— He had only to make use of the enthusiasm of Italy, all the more overwhelming because it was inevitably short-lived, to return to Rome and attack the great problems of the age—to adjust the old republican institutions to a mercantile society, to consolidate liberty with imperialism, Latin traditions with the new demands of Eastern luxury and culture.

But Caesar met Cleopatra, and their meeting profoundly affected the course of Roman and of world history. Caesar wanted money. He always wanted money, for the art of government in Rome during the last century before Christ was the art of bribery. The politician hungry for power was forced to embark on a war of conquest to obtain the wherewithal to buy patrician votes and plebeian acquiescence. Caesar was in Syria. Ptolemy owed him money, and was fighting with his sister, Cleopatra. Caesar decided to go to Alexandria to collect the money and settle the quarrel. Thus the meeting.

A Bald-Headed "G.B.S."

Mr. Bernard Shaw has written an entertaining comedy round the meeting. He has drawn Caesar as a bald-headed G.B.S. in a toga, and Cleo-

Industrial Unrest.

Ever since the conclusion of the Great War, the world has been a seething mass of industrial unrest. Spreading from country to country, crossing the oceans and traversing continents, the strike germ has fastened itself upon all nations and all tongues, and almost simultaneously as it were the industrial avenues have been closed and production has ceased. A state bordering on chaos, is existent everywhere, and no day passes without intelligence of one or more bodies of workmen throwing down the implements of their craft and demanding shorter hours and more wages. Refusal to comply on the part of employers means a close down of operations, with consequent loss to both sides alike.

These strikes have been described as "anarchy of labor," because in many cases lawlessness and defiance of authority have characterized their progress, and force has been used to prevent non-strikers from continuing the very necessary work of production. The big striking Unions of America allege that the strike weapon—the only one they can use—is a remedy against "executive autocracy and judicial anarchy." But, as a prominent American newspaper argues, "What is more autocratic than labor when it presents an unacceptable ultimatum to capital?" "Everybody," continues the same journal, "is against autocracy and anarchy, and everybody is also for reason and justice." In many cases neither reason nor justice has characterized the demands of the various striking bodies in the different countries involved.

Suggestions have been made that commissioners be appointed to enquire into the causes, and if possible adjust the difficulties between capital and labor, but it is pointed out that the disadvantage of such commissions lie in the fact that labor is not bound by their findings, and if the report was unfavorable, the labor leaders would refuse to accept the recommendations made. Still those who seek justice should practice justice. When all do that, all questions can be adjusted on a basis of equity and right. One of the Justices of the United States Supreme Court, has this message for labor:

"Industrial liberty, like civil liberty must rest on the solid foundation of law. Disregard the law in either, however good your motives, and you have anarchy. The plea of trade unionism for immunity, be it from injunction or from liability for damages, is as fallacious as the plea of the lynchers. If lawless methods are pursued by trade unions, whether it be by violence or by intimidation, or by the more peaceful infringement of civil be put down at once and at any cost."

What therefore is to be the remedy for the prevailing labor unrest that permeates the world to-day? Must the Church or the State, or both together, put their hands to the plow in an effort to restore normal conditions, or will the one leave it to the other, saying, It is your particular work to reorganize industrial life. Democracy is asserting itself everywhere, as it never has done before, but it needs a guiding hand to shape its destinies and direct its future. The State has made an attempt to do the guiding, but democracy will have none of its advice or direction. Now, according to the most prominent men of the age, it is up to the Churches to show the way toward adjustment of social questions and the shaping of true democratic ideals. Here is what one of these men has recently stated, and his dictum is worth quoting:

"Groups are forming within the social organism which are anti-social and anti-democratic. Appeals to cupidity, class antagonisms and the weird enterprise of social destruction—just to see what will then happen—are increasingly manifest. To live as a democracy is to live dangerously. Apart from all groups, with their sectional passions, interests, jealousies, policies, there is needed the great keeper of the people's conscience. Into the turbid stream of social passions must flow the pure waters from the fountains of truth and love to clarify them as far as possible. Increasingly must the Church interpret the Christian evangel into terms of social life and communal righteousness, and she must speak in language understood by the people."

St. Barbe for Coaker.

The final returns in the St. Barbe election count were reported last evening, showing a big win for Scammell, the F.P.U. candidate, over Captain A. Kean. The complete figures at the declaration of the poll were:

Scammell	1507
Kean	660

The present standing of the three party leaders in the new House of Assembly is:

Cashin	13
Squires	12
Coaker	11

Current rumour says that the Cashin ranks will be still further strengthened by the defection of several Squires men, who are not at all satisfied with the way in which party affairs have been managed. The Liberal Reform leader has no bed of roses these days.

Our School System

AND THE NEW MINISTRY OF EDUCATION.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—A question of vital importance to the future of the people of this country is involved in the announcement of the new Government that a Ministry of Education is to be created. This may mean much or it may mean little, but the circumstances surrounding it are such as to justify godfearing people in regarding it with the gravest suspicion. It involves an extreme departure from the accepted methods of administering educational affairs in this country, and, those who, like the writer, believe in the denominational system, cannot fail to see in the way this occasion is being brought about, occasion for the gravest misgiving as to the future of the Anglican community.

We, of the Anglican community, have had cause more than once already to deplore the stand taken on public questions by some of our so-called representatives, and our Roman Catholic brethren will probably see in the fact that they are barely represented on the Government side in the House of Assembly at all, proof that their absence has been seized upon as an opportunity to bring about a "reform" (?) the value of which is open to the gravest doubt.

In the manifesto to the electorate, which he issued as recently as November, Hon. R. A. Squires, the leader of the present Government, outlined certain features of educational advance which he pledged himself to carry through, but this document contained no reference to a Ministry of Education and we are entitled, I think, for an explanation of why this new Ministry is being created.

His co-leader, Mr. Coaker, is, if the utterances of his paper are to be regarded as those of himself, an avowed champion of undenominational schools. Mr. Squires advocated at the "educational drive" of our Methodist brethren last summer, steps for the union of that body on educational lines, but whether he spoke under the inspiration of the liquid refreshment which Team 16 was claimed to have in abundance, I do not know, and possibly he may be inclined to disavow to-day his declaration of that time. Mr. Warren played a similar part when the C. E. educational drive took place later in the summer, and thus we have three principal figures of the present Government committed to a radical alteration of the educational policy of this country. This, I take it, is but the first step. Others, no doubt, will follow later. The prospect is not an inviting one, and I hasten to lift up my voice as a member of the good old Church of England, and protest against what I cannot but consider a glaring attempt at undermining our rights in this respect. If the educational situation was such as to justify the creation of a new Ministry why was not this stated in Mr. Squires' manifesto? If the position is being created merely to make a job for Mr. Burgess surely that is a negation of the very principle on which Mr. Squires founded his appeal to the country. If it is neither of these it can only be, in my judgment, the first step towards the overthrow of the present school system.

Yours truly,
AN ANGLICAN LAYMAN.
St. John, Nov. 20, 1919.

Codfish Export Regulations.

A Royal Gazette's Extraordinary published yesterday, contains the following regulations under which hereafter the export of Dry Codfish will only be permitted:

- (1) That a license to export codfish shall have been obtained from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.
- (2) That no codfish shall be exported without a permit therefor having been obtained from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and filed with the proper Customs Officer.
- (3) That the sale and price of codfish exported under such license shall have been confirmed by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.
- (4) That an affidavit shall be made by the holder of such license, or his duly qualified agent, describing the quality of such to be exported, and such affidavit shall be filed with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.
- (5) That such license shall be subject to forfeiture if the terms of this proclamation are not complied with, or if the contents of the affidavit therein provided for prove to be false or incorrect.

Warning to Parents.

A number of young boys are in possession of numbers of unexploded rifle cartridges, taken from the scene of the fire at the Military Barracks. Parents are warned to question their sons and not allow them to keep such dangerous things. As boys are mischievous and curious, some fatal accident may be the result of neglect on the parents part to take these cartridges from the lads.

No Claimants.

Seeing that the owners of the two kegs of "ardent" seized by the police some days ago, have not made any claim for their liquid refreshments, it is likely that the stuff will eventually be handed over to the Controllers department. It is suggested however, that the goods be analysed before being vended to "script" holders.

The Peasant Girl Who Became an Empress.

Few women in history have so deeply engraved their name on the scroll of fame as Martha Robe, the Swedish peasant girl, who rose from the very humblest rank of life to the great and dazzling splendors of a queen; from abject poverty to the dignity and all-powerful position of wife to Peter the Great, the Czar of all the Russias. Her childhood was a pitiful record of suffering. Born November 21, 1671, her father died three months previous to her birth, and her grief-stricken mother was left without any means of support. At the age of twelve Martha began to show promise of developing into a superb and perfect beauty, and there were indications that she would be possessed of a brilliant intellect. An old Lutheran clergyman took her into his family as nurse, and instructed her in the higher branches of education. By the time she was sixteen she had become an exquisitely beautiful woman. About this time Sweden was plunged into war and Marienburg was filled with troops. She fell in love with a handsome young private, and married him, but in less than a year she found herself a widow. The Russians then entered Marienburg, and the Russian Commander, General Bauer, struck by her peerless beauty, offered her safe escort from Marienburg to Moscow. The general proved himself a true friend indeed, and through his influence she became a guest in the house of Prince Menchikoff, the Czar's most powerful minister. Peter the Great soon learned of the existence of Martha, and her great beauty, and, out of curiosity, sought a meeting. The mighty ruler of all the Russias was enchanted, and Martha realized at once that the "Emperor" had become her slave. She seized her chance, joined the Greek Church, of which the Czar was the nominal head, and slowly and skillfully cleared away all difficulties that it was likely the State might raise. The result was that finally Peter led her to the altar where they were legally married, according to the rites of the Greek Church. At the end of four years Peter raised her to his throne, the coronation ceremony being one of the most gorgeous in the whole history of Russia. Thus on the early age of thirty-five, the waif-child of Marienburg was proclaimed absolute ruler of all the Russias, and she who had cried in the streets for bread became known in history as Catherine the Great.

Pat's Strategy.

An Irishman had to go to law and in consultation with his counsel he was told that he had a good fighting chance. Paddy, who was anxious to win the case, was meditative for a moment, then he said: "Do you think it would be any good to send the judge a pair of ducks?" "No, no, you mustn't do that," said the lawyer. "If you send him a pair of ducks he will be sure to decide the case against you." A day or so later the case was heard and Paddy won with flying colours. In the course of the congratulations, Paddy remarked: "It was just as well I sent the judge them ducks." "What?" exclaimed the lawyer, "did you send the ducks?" "Yes,"

In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants—without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air. At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney flue keep the atmosphere in healthy motion. That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell. ## HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—“For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pain in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her.”—Mrs. W. D. WELLS, 228 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, headache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulcerations would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

Great Blows to the Whole World.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The action of the United States Senate on the Peace Treaty, especially with regard to article ten, receives prominence in some of the London papers, whose headlines embody President Wilson's reference to “Cutting the heart out of the Treaty.” Few of the papers, however, comment editorially. The Daily Chronicle attributes the Senate's action to “hostility to President Wilson, rather than hostility to Europe” and says:

Great Blow to World.

“This in no wise relieves Europe from serious, possibly tragic embarrassments, for which American obstruction is responsible.”

The Daily News sees little hope of America entering the League of Nations on the same footing as other nations and says that it would be a grave blow to the hopes of the rest of the world, who looked across the Atlantic for full unselfish leadership in the task of re-ordering the world.

The paper, however, does not believe that the Senate to-day represents what will be in the mind of America next year or the year after, and adds: “The attitude of the Senate is a misfortune, but a misfortune which time will remedy.”

Export of Coal Prohibited.

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—In view of the critical fuel situation, export of coal from Canada to all destinations has been prohibited, except under license issued upon the recommendation of the Canadian Trade Commission. Exportation of coal to Europe will cease immediately. As the prohibition includes coal for all purposes license will have to be obtained in the usual way for bunker coal. In the case of coal already loaded for export, the Canadian Trade Commission announces that consideration will be given applications for licenses by telegraph.

Low Bids.

Bids for vessels the U. S. Navy put up at auction recently, at the Charlestown Navy Yard, were ridiculously low. There were no bidders for the submarine chasers. The converted yacht Adelante, valued by the Government at $40,000, brought only $1,400. The Cigarette, also a converted yacht, which the Government appraised at $15,000, was bid up to $1,900. Two of the barges each valued at $7,000, went for $1,100 and another for $1,400. The Adelante was built in 1888. She is 125 feet in length and of 131 tons gross. The Cigarette was built in 1906 and is 125 feet in length. She has a speed of 22 knots, is of 99 tons gross.

A Race of Blunderers.

Officers of the late Imperial Government in Germany, testifying before the coroner's inquest on the autocracy as to what they believed, feared, hoped or suspected concerning the attitude of the United States, would save themselves much trouble by admitting the truth at once, which is that they stupidly underestimated the morality, the courage and the power of this country. On that basis and no other are the blunders of militarism to be explained and understood.—New York World.

END THAT COUGH!

Peps will end it! Simply dissolve Peps tablets in your mouth. The Peps forest vapors which are thus released are breathed down to the remotest parts of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing the inflamed membranes and bringing quick relief from that irritating and exhausting cough.

Mrs. Luther Brown, of Wilson's Beach, N.B., writes: “For two years I was troubled with a very bad cough. At nights it became worse and I coughed incessantly and could not sleep. I tried every remedy I had ever heard of, but nothing did me any good until I used Peps. Even the first few tablets gave me relief. I continued their use, with the result that my cough has entirely disappeared.”

These breathable Peps are also unequalled for colds, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and chest and lung troubles. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25. All dealers or Peps Co., Toronto.

Snapshots.

The most valuable gift received by President Wilson during his European visits was a gold casket which contained a certificate of citizenship from the city of London. Italy's King presented him with two old guns and the King of England gave him a book.

Admiral von Tirpitz, hated the world over for his submarine horrors, has the usual experience that often comes to a man who has been beaten of sharing with some other war lord the hatred of the German people. He is most happy these days when calumniating the former Kaiser.

The Bible is to be filmed, in its entirety, Raymond Wells, a California director, has made a version of “Julius Caesar” sometime ago—is planning the production now, making 104 reels in all, presenting them in 52 episodes of two reels each. The venture is to be non-sectarian; captions will follow with absolute fidelity the text of the Scriptures; and to insure correct detail an archaeologist will be a member of the staff.

Winston Churchill, English war secretary, once grew a moustache. It was responsible for considerable comment, and, among other things, for the following brilliant example of Mr. Churchill's gift at repartee: “Do you know, Mr. Churchill, that I like your moustache as little as I like your political views?” a frivolous little lady said to him, rather pertly, at a certain reception. “That is of no consequence, madam,” was the instant reply. “Since you are never likely to come into contact with either.”

Screen Comedian RECEIVES OVER A MILLION A YEAR.

BIGGEST FILM CONTRACT EVER SIGNED.

Special to Evening Telegram

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.

Larry Semon, famous screen comedian, to-day signed a contract with Albert E. Smith, President of Vitagraph, by the terms of which that company will pay $3,000,000 during the ensuing three years for the comedies of this star. One third of this stupendous sum will be paid each year of the three year contract, the annual payment thus averaging over $1,000,000 a year. So far as is known, Charlie Chaplin is the only other comedian in the world whose salary is on the same plan. The signing of this agreement forms the climax of a general scramble by the big producing companies for the services of Larry Semon. Mr. Smith made a special trip to Los Angeles last week to close the Larry Semon deal. Mr. Semon's signature to the contract was secured at 2:45 a.m. after a conference lasting a little less than four days. Larry Semon's rise to his present altitude of fame has been meteoric. A few short years ago, he was a cartoonist on the New York Evening Sun. He is not yet 30 years old. The new contract provides him with unlimited funds to spend in the production of each of his two reel comedies. He will make twelve of these comedies each year. It is a fact worthy of note that on the day that Larry Semon signed his new contract, his newest comedy “The Headwaiter,” was booked as a featured offering for next week at New York's Capitol Theatre, the largest place of entertainment in the world, and during the same week it will be shown at the new million dollar California Theatre of Los Angeles, of which Samuel Rothapel, former impresario of New York's Mammoth Rialto and Rivoli Theatres, is managing director.

The Sabbath Breakers.

Welsh Calvinistic Methodists are sorely exercised at the growing disregard of the Sabbath by their members.

At a Cardiff meeting, Mr. James, a Portchaw magistrate, said the town was invaded by char-a-bancs full of people singing hymns. Deacons, too, he complained, came by motor to spend the Sabbath by the sea. It was time that they rid their churches of such people.

A resolution was passed appealing to church members to refrain from shopping on Sundays and from buying Sunday newspapers.—EX.

Carrier pigeons in China are protected from birds of prey by a little apparatus consisting of thin bamboo tubes fastened to the birds' bodies with thread passed beneath the wings. As the pigeon flies along the action of the air through the tubes produces a shrill whistling sound which keeps birds of prey at a respectful distance.

The Dress Goods Remnants alone are worth a visit. Dress Lengths, Skirt Lengths, Children's Dress Lengths and so forth.

Flannellette, Scotch Winceys, Cord Velvets, Plaids, Lawns, Muslins, Scrims, Tablings, and Heavy Tweeds for boys' wear, etc.

Thought.

(Written for the Evening Telegram.)
See you! the beautiful Conception Bay where our future King—the noblest manly lad—the Prince of Wales recently landed! Again our Iron Isle Wabana, where Germany got some of her ore for death-giving strokes in the World War, and yet again the spacious Handley-Page ground from which the great British Air-Bomber the "Atlantic," a deadly weapon prepared for Germany just as the Armistice of 11th, 1918 was signed, flew, and is still flying perchance, hoping to cover the round, round earth with her ambitious air flights!—Pause a while, omitting prejudice and plans of station, and where can you find a better site for our Memorial University, Normal and Technical School to commemorate our noble 1200, than here!—here, we have bays, lakes, coves, hills, flora and fauna covered, the stately canopy above and mortal man to engineer. What need we better to enable our future asset the child—the boy, the girl to cry "Ereelstee!" while they in truth can make a successful, holy and happy blend of the Natural and Artificial. International interdenominational — inter-individual, inter—what did you say? for man or woman or both.

The scene changes! Nov. 17, 1911 see men measuring, pegging away again the Handley-Page grounds! What for? Say! Can it be true Handley-Page ceases his tenure in the old site, and that Newfoundlanders give sanction to the Memorial site thereon?

Thought is everything and everything is thought.

Wedding Bells.

RYAN-WALSH.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday the 19th inst., in Petty Harbor at the Deamery, by the Rev. Dean Tierney, when Mr. John Ryan, the well known Cabman of the city and son of the late John C. Ryan, printer, led to the altar Miss Lucy Walsh, daughter of Mrs. Johanna Walsh of the Goulds. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Agnes Walsh, while the groom was supported by his brother. After the nuptial knot was tied the bridal party motored to the residence of the bride's mother where the reception was held, only the immediate friends of the contracting parties being present; afterwards motoring to Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent.

GOSSE-EARLE.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the C. of E. Cathedral on Wednesday morning, Nov. 13th, when Miss Lizzie M., daughter of F. C. Earle, Esq., of Change Islands, was united in Holy wedlock to Rev. Heber Gosse, Rector of St. Margaret's Church, Change Islands, by His Lordship Bishop White, assisted by Rev. Mr. Jeeves, Rector of the Cathedral. The bride who was given in marriage by the Rev. Dr. Facey, was beautifully gowned and looked charming in white georgette crepe with veil and wreath of orange blossoms and carried a magnificent bouquet of carnations and chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy White was becomingly attired in a pretty pale pink crepe de chine gown and also carried a choice bouquet. The groom was ably attended by Dr. C. V. Smith, of Hr. Grace.

More Heat on Less Fuel.

Many thousands of users in City, Town and Country have learned from natural experience that the Caloric, the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace, heats
 the homes better than they were ever heated before, in all kinds of weather. Also that it save one-third to one-half the Coke, Coal and Wood. If you want real winter comfort, if you want to turn your houses into homes, and if at the same time you want to cut your heating expenses practically one-half, install a Caloric.
 The cost of installation and maintenance, in money and labor, is much less than the number of stoves required to heat the same space. Thousands of Caloric users have paid the first cost of their furnace through the saving of fuel. It can be installed as quickly in the old houses as in the new, frequently in a day, because it has but one register, and requires no pipes in floors or walls.
 More than fifty thousand Calorics are giving satisfactory and economical service in all types of homes, up to eighteen rooms in size, as well as in churches,
 stores, factories and other buildings.

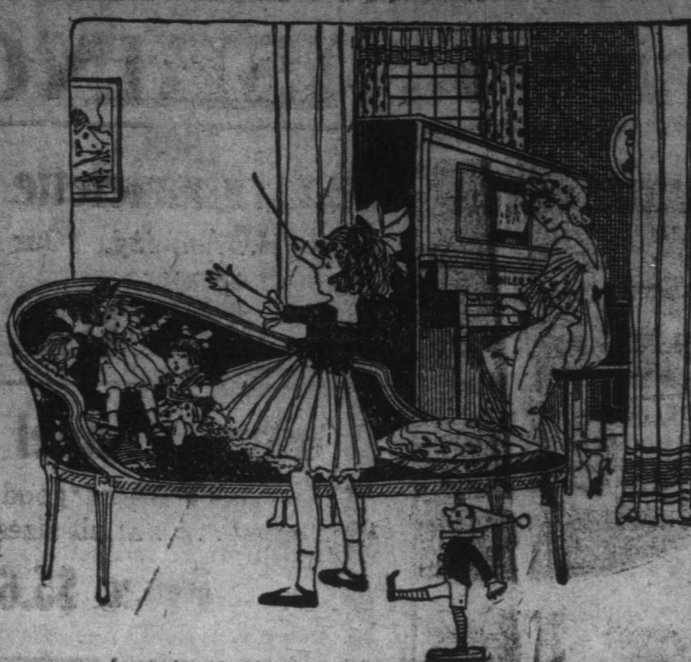

Read the following testimonial from one of our customers:—
 St. John's, Newfoundland,
 November 12, 1919.

 Hardware Department.
 I have installed the Caloric Pipeless Furnace in my home (it is also the first Caloric in Newfoundland) and find it to give all the satisfaction claimed by its manufacturers. I would therefore recommend it to anyone that wants the most perfect system of heating by the circulation of warm, moist air through one register.

Falling? Here's Where It Shows.

DON'T WORRY! LET "DANDERINE" SAVE YOUR HAIR AND DOUBLE ITS BEAUTY.

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Your hair will grow strong, thick and long and appear soft, glossy and twice as beautiful and abundant. Try it!

American Notes.

(Special Correspondence.)

The Battle at the Polls passed, would a few notes from Boston be of interest? Newfoundlanders abroad enjoy news from home, and there are friends at home who would welcome news from abroad.

This is a live country, yet a country seething with unrest which politicians say is but the reaction or aftermath of the war. The Boston police strike had scarcely subsided when the racial riots at Omaha followed. A week ago the bituminous coal miners' strike had reached a critical stage, but on Monday morning, after an all-night conference, when the miners decided to return to work, probably open warfare between capital and labor was averted. Even on Armistice Day several war veterans in the parade were shot down in cold blood by some "Reds" in Washington.

Armistice Day was observed as a holiday, but more of the usual holiday desertion was evident than on November 11th, 1918.

In the Senate another reservation has been passed on the Peace Treaty, this time Article 10 is the stumbling-block. The President denounced the act and declared it meant the death of the Treaty. The outcome remains to be seen.

Recently, the Boston Herald asked whether Newfoundland was wondering if the U. S. was also importing a hangar with the large dirigible now being shipped from England to the Navy Department. Newfoundland answers either that, or get I.C.M. to show them how to moor it in a gale of wind. Speaking about hangars, reminds me that the world's largest single room is a hangar now being erected at Lakehurst, N.J. The building is being treated at home.

ing which will be of solid steel, and will weigh 8,000 tons, will be 300 feet long, 76 feet wide, and 180 feet high. Each of the doors for the hangar will weigh 1,800 tons and will be operated with electricity.

Let the teachers of Newfoundland note that in this country also, they are demanding an increase in wages, and by uniting and going about it in a systematic way they are well on the way to receiving it. They demand a $600 increase—a salary for an outpost.

The final returns of the elections have not yet reached us, but whatever the result we hope that some improvements may be inaugurated.

The Telegram is the only Newfoundland paper obtained in the Boston Public Library, and it is read with interest. It should be in Chelsea Library, too, for Chelsea is composed to a large extent, of "folks from the old sod."

Boston, Nov. 14, 1919. —C.L.A.

C. Blackiston, director and general manager of the United States office.

C.L.B. Educational Class

The class recently opened by the C. L. B. Brigade, for the purpose of providing elementary education for any of the members requiring it, is proving a great success. About 30 lads availed themselves of the splendid opportunity offered and are making good progress, under the direction of Lieut. F. E. Emerson.

"OH, I REMEMBER THAT!"

You'll gasp out a delighted cry at every one of the brilliant episodes in "SNOW-WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS," to be presented at the CASINO THEATRE on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,

November 26th, 27 and 28th,

by the pupils of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy.

A wonderful production that makes more vivid the memories of the story-book. Picturesque settings, scenic effects that present a picture of harmonious colourings; music and singing a treat for the musical; artistic displays a treat for the artistic. An amateur presentation that rises to the level of the highest in pantomime.

"We have worked hard to make this a memorable affair. It is for Education. We want you to come." Geo. P. Kearney, Men's Haberdasher, sells the tickets. Today's the day. Reserve your seats NOW. nov21,19

To-day's Messages.

DIVERGENT VIEWS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. The State Department is emphatic in its stand that no American Consuls can be sent into Germany until Peace has been definitely established between the United States and that country, and they declare that only an imperfect trade relation can be built up without the consent of the international community, who are in charge of the legal end of international trade. A contrary view is held, however, by some of the Senators, who oppose ratification of the Treaty. Notable in that connection, is the stand taken by Senator Knox, Republican, a former Secretary of State, who holds that by the language of the Treaty, full commercial and dependence intercourse is to be resumed with Germany, by all her former enemies, as soon as the process verbale is exchanged.

CONDITIONS IN SERBIA.

PARIS, Nov. 20. Conditions in Serbia are appalling, and reconstruction work is proceeding with discouraging slowness. Dr. Milenko R. Vesitch, of the Jugo-Slav Delegation to the Peace Conference said to-day. The whole trouble lies in the crippled condition of Serbia, he declared. Serbia was overrun three times by their enemies, but the Bulgarian invasion being conducted along lines of thorough devastation, resulted in not one railroad bridge being left intact in the country.

ICE BROKEN AT LAST.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. Though operators and miners of the central competitive fields remained hard locked all day to-day in their negotiations for new wage scale contracts, prospects for an agreement, that would settle the coal strike, were considered brighter to-night than at any time since the strike was called. The operators offered the miners representatives a flat increase of fifteen cents a ton on coal mined, and twenty per cent. increase for day workers. John L. Lewis, acting President of the Mine Workers of America, outwardly stamped the concession as wholly inadequate, but both sides plainly took the offer as a breaking of the ice, and an opening for trading to-morrow.

OPINIONS WITHHELD.

LONDON, Nov. 20. Nearly all British public men are silent concerning the United States Senate's dealings with the Peace Treaty. The reason for this is that they understand Americans regard the question as an American political affair, and fear that any expressions from them might give offense and be taken as attempts to influence American politics. Lord Robert Cecil and Lieut. General Jan Christian Smuts were the British sponsors for the League of Nations, and are largely responsible for the details thereof, and both have registered their disapproval at the latest turn of events, General Smuts in his appeal to America, and Lord Robert Cecil in his brief speech in the House of Commons Monday. Lord Robert stands on that speech, and refers all questioners to it as being all he has to say on the subject for the present.

BORDEN TO ACCOMPANY PRINCE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 20. Sir Robert Borden, who since leaving White Sulphur Springs, some weeks ago, has been getting the benefit of the ocean air at Atlantic City, has accepted the invitation of the Prince of Wales to accompany him on the Renown from New York to Halifax, where the Prime Minister will be present at the farewell dinner to His Royal Highness on Monday evening, the 24th inst.

TAKES EFFECT IN DECEMBER.

PARIS, Nov. 20. While the Supreme Council did not positively decide to-day to put the Peace Treaty with Germany into effect on December 1st, its members all agreed it would be desirable to do so, and an effort will be made to have preparations for the enforcement of the Treaty completed by that date, and it will probably be put into effect very early in December, regardless of the failure of the United States to ratify the treaty.

MUCH SPECULATION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. Avenues of speculation, leading many ways, were opened up to-day when officials and diplomats turned over in their minds the possible results at home and abroad that are to follow the termination of the special session of Congress last night, without Senate ratification of the Peace Treaty. The thoughts of the Treaty's friends in the Senate centred on accomplishing some compromise for a ratification in the session beginning December 1, and to that end steps are understood to have been taken to ask that President Wilson ascertain from the other Powers what reservations they would accept. At the White House silence was maintained, and

TESTIMONIAL!

The White Clothing Mfg. Co., Ltd. Oct. 15th, 1919.
GENTLEMEN,—We received your bill and the 59 Suits O.K. and let me congratulate you and the working people on the workmanship of the clothes.
I inspected the Suits and they were done to the "point." You can show this letter to your workmen as they deserve it. I just came from the States and I consider the style and fit wonderful, and we can assure you that as long as we receive work rs good as these you can be assured of our trade.
Hoping you will do all of our work like this, and thanking you very much,
I am, respectfully yours,

We received the above testimonial from one of our most particular outport merchants. We value his opinion and pass it on to our many customers.
