CHAPTER LVII
 "THE TIME HAS COME!"

"There you are, you see, sir! This is just what I expected. Here you are a-fretting yourself about these 'ere gimcracks and a-undoing' all the good as they have done. This is what I told the doctor when he says to me, quite severe-like: 'Don't you let him get excited, he must be kept quiet or I won't answer for it!' For 'goodness' sake, sir, if you don't want to get into trouble lay down again!"

This appeal had the desired effect. Hugh dropped upon the pillow again with a sigh, and said:

"I am an honest man and do not want to reward your noble kindness by deceit. I tell you I am unable to pay for all these things. I haven't a shilling in the world."

Mr. Wiley smiled behind his hand and winked at Mrs. Tovey with supreme enjoyment. It was rich for this man, for whose safe-keeping he was paid at the rate of twenty pounds a week, to be mourning over his inability to pay his doctor's bill.

"Never you mind that, sir; we didn't do it for your money"—which was very true, considering it was the strange young gentleman's. "We have got hearts, sir, I should hope, and we've done as we should hope to be done by."

Hugh stirred uneasily.

"All this but adds to your kindness."

SCHOOL GIRL TELLS OTHERS

How They Can Find Relief From Periodic Sufferings.

Nashua, N. H.—"I am nineteen years old and every month for two years I had such pains that I would often faint and have to leave school. I had such pain I did not know what to do with myself and tried so many remedies that were of no use. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and this is how I found relief from pain and feel so much better than I used to. When I hear of any girl suffering as I did I tell them how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me."—DELINA MARTIN, 23 Bowers St., Nashua, N. H.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, therefore is perfectly safe remedy to give your daughter, who suffers from such painful periods as did Miss Martin.

The reason so many girls write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice, is because from their 40 years experience they have a store of knowledge which is invariably helpful.

ent, grave readiness that, while it attracted and evoked his fellow laborers' admiration, commanded their respect.

Mr. Wiley grew alarmed; his invalid's strength came back to him so magically that he felt it would soon be a very difficult task to keep him within bounds of the docks.

"I never see such a chap," he remarked to Mr. Tovey, in an undertone, as they stood together watching Hugh hold an unusual load into the crane.

"He's a gentleman, any one can see, by the way he carries himself. But did you ever see any one with such a pair of legs and arms before? After his illness, too. It's wonderful, that's what it is—wonderful! 'Pon my soul, Tovey, I didn't give the gentry credit for so much pluck!"

"Ah, it's all blood, blood, Joe—all blood," said Mr. Tovey, sentimentally. "High breedin' is the same in a man as it is in a race 'os. But I'm thinking as he'll soon have worked off the debt you put him down at. What'll you do then?"

Mr. Wiley shook his head.

"That's just what I'm asking myself. He won't have cleared it off for a day or two, but it wants nigh upon a week to the time the young gentleman arranged for. I heard from him last night, and he says we are not to let him leave the dock on no account."

"Ah, it's all very well to talk!" said Mr. Tovey; "but if he said as he wanted to go who'd stop him, I should like to know!"

"Hush! here he comes. Oh, he's going to the gate now!"

And Mr. Wiley, with a well-feigned air of easy indifference, strolled off to interrupt Hugh, who, wiping his forehead, was striding toward the dock entrance.

"Good-evening, sir," said Mr. Wiley. Hugh nodded with grave courtesy. "Good-evening," he said.

"Very warm," said Mr. Wiley, sitting down beside him. "I'm afraid as you are putting it on a little too hard, sir, considering all things. You will upset yourself again if you don't take care."

"That reminds me," replied Hugh, taking no notice of the caution, and thrusting his hand into his pocket. "Here are fifteen shillings. I forgot to give them to you this morning. How much am I in your debt now? I mean for actual money spent—for kindness I shall always be your debtor."

And he smiled gratefully.

"Don't you mention it, sir," said Mr. Wiley, putting the fifteen shillings into his pocket, but very reluctantly. "You are welcome to all the kindness, if there is any, and, for the matter of that, so you are to the money, if so be as I could afford it."

"I believe it, my friend; you are a good fellow—but come, I am anxious to be out of your debt, or as far as I can. How much does that leave?"

ent, grave readiness that, while it attracted and evoked his fellow laborers' admiration, commanded their respect.

"A matter of a pound or two—leaving the doctor's bill out, sir; but there ain't no hurry."

Hugh raised his eyebrows.

"I think differently," he said, with a smile.

Wiley looked at the gate.

"You mustn't think of going out, sir."

Hugh rose from his seat with an easy grace and, laughing his short, grim laugh for the first time in Mr. Wiley's ears, said:

"Come, my friend, you are rather distrustful. You need not fear my running away till we have settled. There, make your mind easy. I give you my word I shall not pass those gates—much as I desire—until I have paid every penny your charity has cost you."

And with a kindly pat on the shoulder he walked away with the much-relieved Wiley, who took the opportunity as he passed his partner of whispering:

"All right, Tovey; he's give his word."

In the evening, after the usual cup of tea, Hugh looked up and asked for a sheet of note-paper, pen and ink.

Joe, with seeming celerity, got them and placed them before him, and Hugh wrote a letter; not a long one, but one that cost him some thought, for once or twice he looked up from the paper and sighed.

It was done at last, however, and inclosing it in the envelope, he directed it, saying to old Mrs. Tovey as he did so:

"It is a long while since I have used pen and paper—I have almost forgotten how to write."

"A letter?" said Joe. "Want it posted, sir? I'm going out directly and I'll take it if you like."

"Thanks," said Hugh, and he gave it to him, resuming his old, thoughtful attitude immediately.

Joe Wiley got up, reached his cap from its peg behind the door and, with a wink to the old gentleman, left the house.

At the gate he stopped to look at the direction on the envelope, and at that moment was startled by a slight tap at the small door.

Hastily dropping the note into his pocket, he opened it and saw Mr. John Stanfield, who was carefully wrapped up about the lower part of his face in a light silken shawl which, together with his blue spectacles, so hid his features that had it not been for his figure Mr. Wiley would not have recognized him.

"Hello, sir!" he exclaimed; but a warning gesture of the secretary's stopped him.

"Hush!" said he, looking round carefully. "Is he anywhere near?"

"No, sir; inside the cottage," replied Joe, and he stepped through the gate. "All right, sir; he's inside, quite comfortable."

"And well?" asked the secretary, eagerly.

"Well—quite well," replied Mr. Wiley. "I never see any one pick up so soon. Why, he's as strong as a lion."

A faint tinge, almost of pride, flushed the young gentleman's brow, but he remained silent for a moment, then said:

"And you have kept the secret?"

ent, grave readiness that, while it attracted and evoked his fellow laborers' admiration, commanded their respect.

Mr. Wiley grew alarmed; his invalid's strength came back to him so magically that he felt it would soon be a very difficult task to keep him within bounds of the docks.

"I never see such a chap," he remarked to Mr. Tovey, in an undertone, as they stood together watching Hugh hold an unusual load into the crane.

"He's a gentleman, any one can see, by the way he carries himself. But did you ever see any one with such a pair of legs and arms before? After his illness, too. It's wonderful, that's what it is—wonderful! 'Pon my soul, Tovey, I didn't give the gentry credit for so much pluck!"

"Ah, it's all blood, blood, Joe—all blood," said Mr. Tovey, sentimentally. "High breedin' is the same in a man as it is in a race 'os. But I'm thinking as he'll soon have worked off the debt you put him down at. What'll you do then?"

Mr. Wiley shook his head.

"That's just what I'm asking myself. He won't have cleared it off for a day or two, but it wants nigh upon a week to the time the young gentleman arranged for. I heard from him last night, and he says we are not to let him leave the dock on no account."

"Ah, it's all very well to talk!" said Mr. Tovey; "but if he said as he wanted to go who'd stop him, I should like to know!"

"Hush! here he comes. Oh, he's going to the gate now!"

And Mr. Wiley, with a well-feigned air of easy indifference, strolled off to interrupt Hugh, who, wiping his forehead, was striding toward the dock entrance.

"Good-evening, sir," said Mr. Wiley. Hugh nodded with grave courtesy. "Good-evening," he said.

"Very warm," said Mr. Wiley, sitting down beside him. "I'm afraid as you are putting it on a little too hard, sir, considering all things. You will upset yourself again if you don't take care."

"That reminds me," replied Hugh, taking no notice of the caution, and thrusting his hand into his pocket. "Here are fifteen shillings. I forgot to give them to you this morning. How much am I in your debt now? I mean for actual money spent—for kindness I shall always be your debtor."

And he smiled gratefully.

"Don't you mention it, sir," said Mr. Wiley, putting the fifteen shillings into his pocket, but very reluctantly. "You are welcome to all the kindness, if there is any, and, for the matter of that, so you are to the money, if so be as I could afford it."

"I believe it, my friend; you are a good fellow—but come, I am anxious to be out of your debt, or as far as I can. How much does that leave?"

cent. in the mountain Pacific territory

ARCHBISHOP MANNIX SAILS.
NEW YORK, Aug. 1.
Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix, of Australia, sailed today for Ireland yesterday afternoon on the steamer Baltic.
Though the Premier of Great Britain had announced that the Australian Prelate would not be permitted to land on Irish soil because of his expressed views on the Irish question, Eamon
De Valera, President of the Irish Republic, did not sail on the Baltic.
A remarkable demonstration preceded the departure of Archbishop Mannix, who stood on the after deck of the Baltic holding two red roses in his hand, while he invoked repeatedly a silent benediction upon hundreds of cheering well wishers, who crowded the pier from end to end and waved scores of Irish flags. Lying alongside the other side of the dock was the steamer Olympic, whose after-decks swarmed with the ship's company, who staged a counter demonstration by waving British flags and cheering for Great Britain with an occasional hostile note directed against Ireland.

THE POLISH SITUATION.
PARIS, Aug. 1.
The Russian Soviet army is now
within seventy-five miles of Warsaw.
It has captured Lomza, which is just that distance northeast of the Polish capital and the towns of Kolno and Steczczyna, near the German border on the Lomza region. In spite of these and other Bolshevik successes the military experts of the Anglo-French Mission in Poland are reported to be optimistic because of the remarkable stiffening in resistance of the Polish Northern army under General Haller. The chief concern of the experts is the position of the fourth Polish army defending Brest-Litovsk,
but Polish advisers declare the pressure upon that army would be relieved shortly by a Polish counter-offensive, which is being directed northeastward from the region of Brody, northeast of Lemberg. A large number of ships are arriving at Danzig

daily from French and British ports with munitions, which are being unloaded rapidly and rushed to the Polish front, according to word received here. An efficient unloading system has been organized by Allied experts, and in putting this system into effect French, British and Polish workers are laboring side by side without interference, it is declared.

Ancient National Grudge

ATTACKED BY OWEN WISTER
SPEAKING TO AMERICANS.

Owen Wister has taken a unique place among the literary men of the United States. Over in England it is not unusual for a novelist or a poet to be a moulder of public opinion, but on this continent only an occasional man becomes a force in the national life.
Owen Wister is one of the few. He made the reputation first almost a generation ago with his stirring Western novel, "The Virginian," and for many years he was known merely as a virile teller of stories. It was after the outbreak of the war that he made his reputation as a prophet. He attracted attention with an article afterwards published in book form, entitled "The Pentecost of Calamity." In it he interpreted the meaning of the struggle between the autocratic idea and the democratic ideal. He told the people of the United States in plain language that the Allies were fighting their battles, and that while his country might be waxing fat and prosperous in a material way, other nations were finding their souls. It was a daring book to publish at a time when the statesmen (?) of his country were preaching the doctrine of neutrality, and appealing to all the worst forces of greed and smugness and vanity to be found in the nations. But Wister proved to be right and the others were wrong. In the end his countrymen accepted his point of view.

Once again Owen Wister has come forward to take the unpopular side in a great controversy. Now that a presidential election is looming up in the offing, the American politicians are returning to their favorite game, of twisting the lion's tail and throwing dirt over the fence into the backyard of their Canadian neighbors. This vilifying of the British Empire is part of a deliberate campaign, led by men of the Hearst type and other trouble-makers of equal notoriety. Wister has written a book entitled "A Straight Deal, or the Ancient Grudge," in which he attacks his opponents boldly. He shows how ignorant the masses of his countrymen have always been regarding the ideals of the British, and the contribution of the British people to civilization and the progress of the world. Probably no American has ever written such a fair-minded book concerned with the relations of the British Empire and the American republic. It is a manly and straightforward effort to bring about peace and friendship between the two English-speaking nations. He traces the ancient grudge against England to sided, and that England has been to

The High Cost of Living and Its Cause.

Interesting Article on Present Financial Conditions.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—It is generally believed that profiteering is solely responsible for the high cost of living. Such an erroneous idea must be due to a lack of understanding of economic phenomena. But before I enter into a discussion of this question, I would like to give an explanation of the term "Capitalism," which I shall use in this article, so that no one will think that I am a "Red."

Capitalism, as you are aware, signifies the present mode of economic production and exchange of goods of all kinds. The fundamental cause of the high cost of living arises from the scarcity of gold, which has become insufficient to perform its function of means of circulation, and necessitates the use of imaginary money. Here we touch the original and mortal contradiction inherent in money. There is a longing on all sides for a general slump in prices, but it is not realized, apparently, that such a slump would mean the complete destruction of the economic, social and political order of the present day. A longer lease of life for the things that are promised by permitting inflation, as the need of it arises. Inflation, therefore, it shall be. However, a merely transitional form of society cannot be made permanent by following one policy any more than another. As all roads lead to Rome, inflation leads in the end to exactly the same point as contraction—the social insolvency. A shrinkage in the value of paper money cannot be made good by printing more paper money. No matter how much is printed, the value of the sum of the tokens is not increased one iota, while the value of each unit is diminished. Overwhelming necessity has, nevertheless, compelled all countries to have recourse to this ruinous proceeding on an immense scale, the same thing was bound to happen, though, no doubt, more gradually, in the perfectly normal course of monetary development. As the depreciation progresses the amount of the daily deposits of paper money increases. The passage of this money through the banks accelerates the growth of money on account. The swelling of the deposits calls for a relative increase of the reserves. But the additional reserves cannot come from the increased deposits of the depreciated money. Under the regime of gold, when this is the measure of value, the total price of the commodities in circulation calls only for a definite maximum of money. Any surplus of gold or symbols thereof find lodgment in bank vaults, and can stay there for an indefinite time. But it is otherwise under the regime of depreciated paper.

The issue of tokens has been called forth by the needs of circulation, but once they are issued in excess of the economic law, which is the case, they will not return to banks longer than necessary. Their aggregate value is determined by the aggregate of the commodities in circulation, therefore, all the units of the token issue are at all times needed in circulation. Granting that the gold basis has been abandoned, and that the banks consider their own notes, or promises to pay as money, it is, nevertheless, plain that the gain of reserves by the banks must be small relatively to the growth of deposits.

On the other hand, the strain on the banks become more severe constantly, while the reserves grow little, the deposits grow much, and naturally causes a growing demand on the banks for cash. How are the banks to meet the situation? There are two ways. One is to pass new paper money out of the paying tellers' window. This increases prices. Hence the high cost of living—which necessitates the issue of still more paper. It is now the method adopted in nearly all countries. But it is a vicious circle, from which there is no escape until the value of money is destroyed in due course of the process.

The other way is for the banks to reduce their loans and thereby their "deposits." This is likewise a road of thorns. It is clear that if tokens have depreciated, say 50 per cent., the borrower would need to double his borrowing to continue the industries on the established scale. On the contrary, it now has to face the withdrawal of the loans, to the extent that before producers and mercantile capitalists can manage to pay off their bank debts they must reduce their operations. By this reduction of money capital alone, aside from other difficulties, great numbers of workers are forced into idleness.

But many other industrial capitalists are too involved to pay up. Their entire business is founded on the expectation of material support by bank loans. Already the raising of prices strains their capital. Many failures of industrial capitalists of this class would add greatly to the already increased unemployment. But, what is much more important in economics, these failures would go close to the heart of many banks, perhaps all of them. Many banks have outstanding loans to the tune of ten or more times their capital and surplus (one large bank in England over twenty times), so that the loss of 10 per cent. of their outstanding loans would wipe out both their capital and surplus and destroy the "solvency" of such banks.

In the first part of this article, I said that the high cost of living is not due to profiteering. This is an overstatement. What I mean to say, is that the high prices asked for goods to-day are not the real cause of the high cost of living; this is rather the effect of what the same shouters against the profiteers call legitimate profit. Now, since we are satisfied with the present system of business, we should not grieve when this system works itself out in such a way as to pinch us. The root cause of the trouble lies in one of those contradictions of which capitalism is so full. He who wants to understand the cause of the high cost of living will need to probe deeper into economics than blaming it all on the "blood-sucking" merchant. The merchant is compelled to ask high prices for his goods whether he likes to do so or not. He is forced to do so by forces, which I am doubtful whether many of them are very familiar with.

Government regulations, such as Food Control Boards and such like artificial panacea, can never have the slightest effect in keeping down

Takes Tanlac To Labrador on Fishing Cruise

After What It Did For Me I Wouldn't Be Without It, Says Goodwin.

"Just wrap me up three bottles of Tanlac to take with me to the Labrador fishery, for after the way that medicine has restored my health and built me up, I wouldn't be without it for anything," said William Goodwin, well-known fisherman from New Melbourne, Trinity Bay, when he called at M. Connors' drug store the other day.

"When I started on Tanlac I was in such a weak and run-down condition that I could hardly get around and simply had to force myself to work. I had no appetite and the little I did eat always upset my stomach. I frequently had awful spells of biliousness and at times became so dizzy I could hardly stand up, and everything would seem to spin around. I sure was in a bad way, and although I tried several medicines nothing did me any good.

"Some of my neighbors in New Melbourne used Tanlac with such good results that I sent for some and the way it overcame my troubles was just wonderful. It gave me such an appetite that I was hungry all the time and could eat anything at all without being troubled in the least with indigestion. I gained a good many pounds in weight and before long was as strong and full of energy as ever before in my life. I never have those bilious attacks now, nor the spells of dizziness and in fact feel fine all the time. I've never come across any medicine equal to Tanlac and strongly advise all who suffer as I did to give it a trial."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Arundale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermanuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewa.—adv

the high cost of living; on the contrary, its effect can only be in the opposite direction, since more money is required to pay the expenses of the officials of such boards. The Food Control Board didn't keep down the price of sugar. Their excuse for not doing so is due, they say, to shortage of this article, but it is no such thing. There is more sugar on the market to-day than for the last six years. The price of sugar has gone up for reasons that the Board of Control neither understand or can control, so what is the use of a Board of Control, when they cannot control anything? You can no more regulate the price of commodities by Government action, than you can regulate the Laws of the Cosmos by Government action. Who ever heard of an artificial law superior to a natural law? Something more than artificial laws are required to reduce the high cost of living, but as we are not ready, psychologically, for this measure, I will refrain from discussing it.

Some say that increased production will solve the whole riddle of the high cost of living, but they do not suspect that over-production was, what philosophers call, a "causating" cause for the high cost of living. Speeding up production will only make matters worse, since increased production calls for the issue of still more paper money, which means higher prices. Aside from higher prices brought about by increased production, there is another greater aspect to the question, and that is, over-production, which means war, and we all know from experience how war intensifies prices.

Government regulations serves the purpose for which they are intended, namely, to keep the minds of the people diverted from the real cause of the trouble. Governments are well aware that if prices are allowed to go up without Government action, the people would begin to investigate the trouble, and there would be a grave danger of their discovering the real cause, which, ultimately, would render the offices of the jumping-jack untenable. But so long as the people can be made to believe that the individual and not the system is responsible for all their griefs and woes, so long will we have grief and woe. But just as soon as the people begin to think for themselves they will have shaken off the first bond that holds them down in the muck and mire, and the dismal swamps at the bottom of the social ocean.

Men fear thought as they fear nothing else on earth—more than ruin, more even than death; thought is subversive and revolutionary, destructive and terrible; thought is merciless to privilege, established institutions and comfortable habits; thought is anarchic and lawless; it is different to authority, careless of the well-tried wisdom of the ages. Thought looks into the pit of hell and is not afraid. It sees man, a feeble speck, surrounded by unfathomable depths of silence. Yet it bears itself proudly, as unmoved as if it were Lord of the universe. Thought is great and swift and free, the light of the world and the chief glory of man.—Russell.

Yours truly,
W. L. BUTLER.

All Money and No Work.

"What we want is five hours a day, five days a week and as much money as we can get," says Alexander M. Robertson, latest exponent of the One Big Union idea. He would want something more than that if the farmers decided to work only five hours a day for five days a week. Is Alexander M. Robertson worth more as a man in the community than the thousands of farmers who simply have to toil about all the time, to keep the world from starving? In what quality, leaving the possession of nerve out of the question, does he excel, in comparison with the men on the farms who just now are toiling twelve and fourteen hours a day, just as he and his kind should starve this winter?—Montreal Star.

CHILD RUN OVER.—A little girl named Wyelean was knocked down and run over on Saturday evening by a horse and wagon near her home, Duckworth Street east. She had her arm somewhat injured and had to be attended by a doctor.

B. I. S. Outing.

It will be good news to our young people to know that the popular outing of the Society is to be revived this year at Donovan's, the favorite resort on the Topsail Road, on Wednesday, August 18th. Some of the older boys and girls will recall the happy days spent at these gatherings of yesteryear, where friendships were formed, which with many ripened into a lifelong partnership. The picturesque surroundings at this popular resort are too well known to need description, and the arrangements of the Committee to provide the fullest means of enjoyment for all will certainly make this outing the most attractive event of the season. The Committee is now energetically working to provide for an expected attendance of about 300 people. The supper will be served in the style for which Donovan's reputation is the best guarantee. During the afternoon a programme of sports will be conducted, including Baseball, Football and Running contests. The train will leave town at 3 o'clock p.m. and returning will leave Donovan's for home at midnight. After supper a dance will be begun, accompanied by the ever popular music of the C.C.C. Orchestra. The well ventilated ballroom with the adjoining veranda artistically decorated and lighted, will be a scene of splendor and gaiety on the night of the dance, and hopeless indeed is the bachelor who will be proof against its allurements. Tickets including train fare, supper and dance, will be $2.50 each, and may be obtained from any member of the B.I.S. and a Committee.

THE JUST-SO HAT.

A friend of mine paid more than she should for a hat, and then regretted buying it because it was a perfect hat, she should have gotten to justify her extravagance. She told me about it over the telephone and when I saw it for the first time, I was as agreeably disappointed.

"What in the world is the matter with that hat?" I said. It's a stunning hat and I think it's becoming."

"Yes," she said. "It is becoming today because I am feeling well and my hair went up well, but the next day I wear the hat everything won't be so propitious and it will make me look like a hag. It's what I call a just-so hat. It's all right when everything is just so, but it isn't becoming to you when you don't look your best. Well, I suppose I'm coming on. It's hotter than the gate of hell. I hope I've learned a lesson so that I'll beware of just-so hats the rest of my life."

When I knew She Spoke the Truth, I fancied she was merely exaggerating her misfortune, but a few days later I saw her again and then knew it was a just-so hat. Did you ever have a just-so hat? I have—only I didn't know what to do with it before.

There are just-so gowns, too, of course, but they aren't quite so bad. It's easier to fool with them and improve them with a collar or some other slight alteration. And then I don't think anything matters so much as becoming or an unbecoming hat. The hat's the frame of the face, and the face is YOU.

Living Without a Head.

Though the starfish goes through life without a head, it still manages to enjoy its meals. It has, however, to take them in a peculiar manner. It likes oysters at meal-times, and likes them fresh, so it opens the oyster-shells itself just before partaking of the contents. It does this by means of the suckers which are provided as part of its feet. With some of these suckers it gets a grip of the valve of the oyster, and then stands on the tips of its other feet, thus exerting a strong pull on the shell. It's a real tug-of-war, but at last the strain becomes too great for the oyster, and the shell gives. The starfish then commences its meal.

Although this fish has no head, it has a small mouth, which is quite toothless, and not nearly large enough for oyster-eating purposes. It gets over this difficulty by digesting its food before eating it. In other words it passes a part of its stomach thro' its mouth, wraps it round the food it is about to eat, waits until the food is digested, and then swallows it.

The suckers of the starfish are not worked by air, but by hydraulic power, and the water required for working them is drawn in through a porous plate, thus ensuring its absolute freedom from even the smallest particles of grit.

THE ROOM OF MY OWN.

I've slept in many a splendid room. One night I can remember well at Battle Creek they gave to me the bridal suite in their hotel. I've spent the night in costly homes with hangings rich around my head. And gloried in the luxury of silken covers on my bed. But there was once a little room that I recall with lasting joy—The room they gave me for my own when I was but a little boy.

There everything of mine I kept, hung pennants on the plastered wall. Nailed pictures whereso'er I chose, with Buffalo Bill the first of all; My room, they called it, and it was—for there my toys were strewn about. And every corner held some thing I thought I could not do without; Books, toys and bat and ball were there, and treasures that I valued much. In secret places where no hands save those of mine should ever touch.

The little bed was made of wood, and bare and very plain to see, But sweet the sleep which found me there, and oh what dreams it brought to me! Age knows no slumber, through the years, however free it be from care, Like that rich rest which closed my eyes and strengthened and refreshed me there, Oh, I have lived in many rooms, with luxury lining every wall, But on the page of memory that first "own room" outshines them all.

SUMMER HEAT.

Beneath the sun the victim cringes, and mutters, as he mops his face, "It's hotter than the seven hinges—such weather is a rank disgrace." He should in silence smile and suffer, recalling that the sizzling heat is quite a godsend to the duffer who's raising corn and prunes and wheat. The red hot sun that sears and blisters, and burns the whiskers from his dome, will bring the farmers and their sisters new clothes when comes the Harvest Home. So that the farmers raise their carrots, what matters it if folks in town are baking in their stuffy garrets, until both sides are crisp and brown? The heat is good for rye or barley, or Lima beans, or peas or straw, and when I see folks getting snarley, I think there ought to be a law. "It's hotter than the gates of Hades," remarks the thoughtless, loomed loon, regardless of the passing ladies, who are so shocked they almost swoon. He cares no hoot for distant strangers, or for the circumstance profound that heat is growing on the wane.

A Conjuring Butterfly.

The orange-tipped butterfly has the power of vanishing as you look at it, without flying away and with scarcely a movement of its wings. One moment it is there in all the glory of its vivid wing-tips, the next nothing has happened and nothing is there.

This butterfly does not trouble to fly away even should you attempt to catch it; instead, it just folds up its bright orange tips under its lower wings, the undersides of which are spotted with green and white.

The vanishing trick is made perfect by the smaller space occupied by the butterfly when its wings are thus folded, together with the contrast between the vivid colouring when the orange is exposed and the quiet colouring of the white and green, which harmonizes perfectly with hemlock flowers and other plants which it frequents.

The tonic effect on the overblushes is on the wane.

MUTT AND JEFF— THE LITTLE FELLOW UTTERED AN EAR-FULL, AT THAT.

By Bud Fisher.

Regatta Jingles.

It is now likely that there will be four entries in the Fishermen's Race, Torbay, Flatrock and Broad Cove crews are certain and another crew from "down the shore" will likely come in to-day.

All is wanted now is a fine day to make the Regatta a big success.

There will be one more meeting of Committee to-night, positively the last till they meet on the green.

The tents are fast assuming shape. Many are ready to be covered and the others have their sections staked off by pegs. There is great activity down on the course to-day amongst those interested.

There is a raw look on the three wharves. Some Kalsomine and bunting would make a decided improvement and be in harmony with the general holiday attire of the race course.

Not the least interesting feature on Wednesday will be the number and variety of wheeled conveyances whirling over the King's Bridge. Every known style of carriage since the days of the chariot race described in Ben Hur will be there.

I never bet upon a boat. Fast gliding to the Western goal; But some fool chaw mouth got my goat. And took away my hard earned roll.

It is easy to lose the stakes holder in a dense crowd. We suggest that he be made wear a loud colored hat or a white vest, so that you won't want a field glass to find him.

The programme of dances on the platforms inside Ross's gate will, we understand, be confined to Quadrilles, Lancers and an occasional Waltz, according to the mood of the dancers. The Fox Trot and One Step can only be danced by special arrangement with the musicians.

An impresario will be in charge of each pavilion and with loud voice and vigorous gesture will announce the programme which will be accompanied by the familiar strains of the fiddle and accordion.

"On with the dance, let joy be unconfined. No sleep till morn when youth and pleasure meet. To chase the glowing hours with flying feet."

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen.—I feel that the Committee generally will pardon me for a special reference to Jim Noonan and George Coen and Jimmy Crotty, who as Secretary and Treasurer for years have borne the heat and burden of many Regattas. Their enjoyment of the day was confined to the knowledge of services well and cheerfully rendered. That their efforts have been fully appreciated by all concerned needs no extended comment.

Wrecked Schooner Towed to Port.

The tug John Green arrived in port Saturday afternoon with the schooner M. J. Parks in tow. The Parks which went ashore near Crow Island, Ferryland on Tuesday last, during a fog in a gale of wind, filled with water, shortly afterwards and was abandoned. On Wednesday Wreck Commissioner White, assisted by Constable O'Flaherty began salvage operations on the vessel's gear and fishing outfit, and with some difficulty succeeded in having it done in an orderly manner despite the fact that some hundreds of fishermen were eager to have a share in the work. On Thursday Mr. Fred H. Ellis, manager of the Tug Company, upon receiving word from Messrs. Tessier and Company, agents for Dale & Co. Underwriters, accompanied by diver John Taylor, went to the scene by motor car for the purpose of seeing if the vessel could be salvaged. The proposition looked hopeless and return to town was made. However, on Friday morning word was sent to Mr. Ellis that the vessel had floated off the rocks, and was on an even keel. Early Saturday morning the John Green had the schooner made fast, and started for port. It took 12 hours to tow the wreck along, a 7 inch tow line having in that time stretched so much with the strain that it was but 4 inches at the bits. The M. J. Parks the last word in banking schooners was built about 9 months ago at Shelburne, N.S., and was operating with much success under the command of captain Arnold Parks, a young captain, but of much experience. She is now moored at Bowring's North Side premises and will be surveyed during the week when the matter of her disposal will be decided on.

Excursion Attractions.

The excursion trains yesterday afternoon carried nearly one thousand persons to stations to Tor's Cove and Kelligrews. The attractions were the Garden Party at Mandels and the C.L.B. in camp at Topsail.

To-day's Messages.

CONFLAGRATION IMMINENT.
DUBLIN, Aug. 1. Fears that the Irish situation, which is daily growing more tense, might burst into a general conflagration at any moment, are expressed in responsible quarters here. At present there is virtually no civil law south of the Boyne River, except that administered by Republican Courts, but it is pointed out that each day finds the balance between military and revolutionary rule growing more equal. It is estimated there are between sixty thousand and eighty thousand fully equipped British soldiers in Ireland, and they are being reinforced daily by men arriving from across General Lucas, who escaped from Sinn Féiners Thursday, got away by removing the bars guarding the window of his room. His health is good and he had no complaint regarding his treatment while a prisoner.

WILL PARALYZE TRAFFIC.
DUBLIN, Aug. 1. If Premier Lloyd George's threat to "dismiss every man on Irish railways, unless they carry arms, munitions, soldiers, police, or anything that the Government asks them to carry," is enforced, there will be no railways operating next week, according to predictions from those best informed here.

HUNGARIANS ON THE WAR PATH.
VIENNA, Aug. 1. A Hungarian force of more than eight thousand armed and unarmed men crossed the Austrian frontier on Friday morning, overpowered the guards and raided the Fürstentum Arsenal, seizing two thousand rifles, two thousand uniforms, and twenty one machine guns. The raiders returned to Hungary with their booty loaded on motor trucks. The Government has protested to the Hungarian Minister, demanding punishment of the raiders, return of the loot, and an apology and payment of damages. It has also communicated the fact to the foreign missions.

St. George's Coal Fields.
It looks as if the Government is going to move quickly in the matter of operating the St. George's Coal Fields, as already we understand, a survey for a spur line from the Reid track to the mines, a distance of 8 1/2 miles, has been made. The Gas Co. will likely be the first industry in the city to receive supplies from this source, and arrangements to that effect are being made.

Removed to Safety.
TO BE SOLD ON SCRIPTS.
Many envious eyes and parched lips moved this morning while Customs Detective Tobin was having a quantity of liquor, seized recently on the Southern Shore, removed from the police lockup to the Controller's Department. Two horse loads of liquor were removed. The first consisted of 10 kegs of rum and the second 3 cases of whiskey. The authorities did not seem to notice the large number of interested people who were watching the operations in vain hopes that something would happen.

Forest Fires.

SETTLEMENTS IN DANGER.
The operator at Nipper's Harbor sent a message this forenoon to Mr. G. Turner, of the Crown Lands Office, stating that a fierce forest fire was raging at Harry's Harbor, Sitewdale and Jackson's Cove, N.D.E. All the boats from Nipper's Harbor had gone to these places, which are near each other, and many residents with some of their belongings were brought to safety. The S.S. Home is now at Nipper's Harbor and has been ordered to stay there a case of emergency. All available help, including a large Survey party, under Mr. Duder, is being gathered to try and save life and homes from the devouring flames.

Moonshine Outfits Seized

During Saturday and Sunday the police detective force, comprising Head Constable Byrne, Sgt. O'Neill, Constables Symonds and Lee were busy rounding up moonshine outfits and succeeded in locating a still on Topsail Road, which for size would do credit to a well established distillery. On Prince of Wales Street an outfit consisting of two square boilers and the usual amount of coil, etc., together with a 4 burner oil cooking stove was seized. This apparatus belonged to a painter, and it is said that not long ago this stove caused him some annoyance by taking fire at the wrong time. The heater used in the outfit seized on the Topsail Road was not brought in by the police, as it was rather heavy, being an up to date range. A small outfit, known as "a baby," consisting of a 5 gallon tin, 1 piece of copper pipe, a tap and a 1 gallon kettle, was seized at a residence on the Waterford Bridge Road. A quantity of the "brew" was captured in each seizure.

DIAMOND DUST
Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

As there will be no boats on the water to-morrow night, the main source of attraction will be the baseball game between the Cubs and Lions for the Bowing Cup, and medals presented by the Sports Committee of the Church of England Orphanage.

In addition to this the preliminary softball games will be played, so that an enjoyable evening is assured to all who attend at St. George's Field to-morrow evening.

The entire proceeds are for the C. of E. Orphanage.

After being ousted out of the Red trophy, Hiltz and his crew naturally feel very much aggrieved and have sworn a solemn vow to put it over the Cubs.

Then again it must be remembered that Doc hasn't yet won a medal for the season, and the Rev. Mr. Fletcher's looks pretty good to him while cavorting around the old third sack. Still there's many a slip, etc.

On Thursday night the regular League series will be resumed when the C.E.I. and Wanderers will clash in the opening game of the second round. Harvey is busy every night working Churchill. Even the Amateur Race has no attraction for him.

IVORY.

He looked like a wonder in spring. He threw to the base a shot. The kid had a cracker-jack wing; And he gobbled up drives piping hot. But the majors gave him his release. Now he plays in the bushes instead. He was clever and neat with his hands and his feet. But he played bush-league ball with his head.

His speed got applause from the stands. His pep and his vim were a treat. The kid had a nice pair of hands. And his hitting was awfully sweet; But he drifted away to the sticks. When it seemed that his job was a cinch.

For he did the right thing at the wrong time, by fate. And he pulled the wrong thing in a pinch.

He looked like a Mafese for speed. The scribes wrote, "He hits 'em like Cobb." But his attic was vacant, indeed. He was comical up in the knob. The boss tried him out for a while. But at last had to send him back home. In a physical way that bird surely could play. But he carried an Ivory Dome.

WHY!

Why on earth does the modern ball player always meekly surrender the advantage and the right of way, as it were, to the pitcher when the call is "three balls and two strikes"? Wallace, Fritchard, Dave Duff and all the old time batsmen didn't try to make things smoother for the pitcher or to treat him with parlor courtesy. Not those birds! They jumped and danced and snorted; they pawed up the dust; they capered up and down the batting range, and, in every possible manner, endeavoured to rattle the hostile hurler and make him leave that last one wild. Nowadays, the batters stand up like so many solemn sheep, often bending back from the plate to give the pitcher a good chance and a clear

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES DISTEMPER.

C. L. B. Camp.

Yesterday's weather was ideal at the old camp ground, Topsail, where some 200 of the 41st Battalion Church Lads' Brigade Cadets were under canvas. Camp Commandant Raley, M.C., was in charge and the following officers were on duty: Rev. A. Pittman, Chaplain, Rector of Topsail; Major Williams, Quartermaster, Major Lindsay, O.C. of Wabana Company, Bell Island; Lieut. W. R. Motty, Camp Quartermaster; Lieuts. Norman Henry, Frank Miles, G. House, Reeves (Medical Officer), James Miller, "Paymaster of Bell Island, Captain Herbert Outerbridge, Recruiting Officer. Amongst the visitors were Rev. Canon Jeeves and E. A. Bowring, Esq., who lunched in the officers' mess, and we noticed the following who visited the camp grounds during the afternoon: Sir Edgar Bowring, Mrs. McCowan, Sir Frank Steer, Hon. Tasker Cook, and Messrs. J. R. Bennett, James and Daniel Monroe, Dr. Burden, Mrs. A. Pittman, Miss Pittman, Mrs. R. G. Ash.

Units were present from Bay Roberts, Bell Island and Heart's Content who are fitting in splendidly with the camp life and conducted themselves like veterans. The day's routine is as follows:

- 5.30—Reveille.
- 7.30—Inspection of lines.
- 8.00—Breakfast.
- 9.00—Orderly Room.
- 9.30—Battalion parade, mess tent.
- 10.00—Fatigue duty.
- 12.40—Bathing parade.
- 13.00—Dinner.
- 13.00—Tea.
- 18.00—Grand mounting.
- 21.00—Prayers, first post.
- 21.30—Lights out.

General leave will be granted to all ranks not on duty after 17.30. Lieut. Norman Henry is in command of No. 1 Co., and Lieut. Fred Reid commands No. 2 Co. Yesterday there was a steamer connection from Bell Island and the C.L.B. Co. there came over for the day with their brass band under Bandmaster Martin. The brigade has twenty tents erected and the ground has been well laid out under the expert knowledge of Major Raley, M.C. At the entrance we noticed the crest of the Brigade finished up in whitewashed stones and is quite an ornamentation. Yesterday the Brigade attended Topsail Church at 8 a.m. for Holy Communion and at 11 a.m. for Morning Prayer. During the service the new organ—an Estey—purchased and donated to the Church at a cost of over four hundred dollars, by the Women's Sewing Class of the parish, was dedicated by the Rector, Rev. A. Pittman, with the usual consecration service. Mrs. Pittman presided at the organ very nicely and the music was quite an addition to the service. The church was filled to overflowing, many could not gain admittance. During the afternoon a drum head service was held at 3.30 conducted by Rev. A. Pittman and Rev. Canon Jeeves. The latter made a very practical address to the lads and referred to the character and life of Sir Walter Scott. After the service the battalion band gave a recital of appropriate music and the latter part of the programme was furnished by the new brass band of J. Company, Wabana. Visitors were quite pleased with the progress Bandmaster Martin has made with his recruits. The transport officer wishes to express his appreciation to Miss Mary Rendell, Miss Helen Reid, Messrs. William Spurrell, Harold Mitchell and the Direct Agents for bringing in the band to the camp and back to the city. All the lads in camp are well. Cooking is also excellent and food supplies ample. Lieut. W. R. Motty is Camp Quartermaster, which is a guarantee of good work in seeing the tables well provided for. On Saturday a challenge football game was held—Heart's Content Company vs. St. John's sixes. St. John's won by 3 goals 3 corners, to 1 goal and 2 corners. The St. John's team were: Messrs. Major Raley, Lieut. Reid, Sgt. Major Rendell, Sgt. Feaver, and Andrews, with the following representing Heart's Content:—Corporal White, Pte. E. Farnham, Pte. E. Hodder, Pte. C. Legge, Pte. N. Bradbury and Sgt. Feaver. A prize has been offered for the football games and keen competition is seen between the various tents. On Tuesday night the officers' mess are holding their guest night. The guests of the evening will be Sir Edgar Bowring, High Commissioner for Newfoundland, who has kindly consented to respond to the toast of "The British Empire," and Col. R. G. Rendell, C.B.E., Hon. Tasker Cook, and Dr. Burden. The latter has been looking after medical cases of the camp with his usual generosity, and has been of great assistance. There is no doubt about it but the lads are getting the benefit of a glorious ten days holiday in the open air.

The expense will likely be a thousand dollars. This money is partly raised by the efforts of the brigade and the balance usually is kindly provided by friends who voluntarily send along subscriptions to the funds. We have to thank John R. Bennett, Esq.,

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)

CHEAPER MEATS.—Good news comes in this week from Chicago to the Board of Trade about provisions. The price of Pork, Lard, and in fact all meat products are declining, and Pork went off $1.50 to $2.00 a barrel. The tendency to downward values seems to have permanence in it, and there is justifiable ground for believing that we shall have cheaper Pork the coming fall.

The present change will not affect the prices of the stocks held here, as they were bought when prices were high, but in August and September imports of Pork, there is no doubt that the favorable change will be noticeable, and fishermen will be able to get cheaper Pork for the coming Winter by many dollars than last season.

Beef too is comparatively cheap and there will be no grounds for complaint in these commodities when the fishermen start to lay out their Summer export this week was only 2,715 quintals from St. John by the S.S. "Rosalia." This is all 1919 fish, of which only a few cargoes now remain. The Shore Fishery is poor on the whole in Newfoundland so far, but there seems to be a good fishery on Southern Labrador down to Grady. There is no price fixed yet for new fish and buyers here are unable to reply to the many enquiries from markets abroad, but we understand the Advisory Board with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries are endeavouring to fix the minimum price of No. 1 Shore fish at $11.00 a quintal, and No. 2 at $10.00. In localities where it will not be possible to cull, when loading, the fishermen to be given the option of $10.00 to let the fish go tallow, but the desire is to do away with this system altogether. As there is no Labrador offering yet, and will not be till September, no price has been named. The price fixed then will of course, depend on the quantity of fish that is caught.

COMMON COD OIL.—Buyers are holding off looking for still lower prices. There is so little moving in the local market these days that we are unable to give any accurate and reliable figures as regards price. It is reported that $200.00 per ton is easily obtainable at present, but whether even this figure will hold, it is impossible to say. There was none exported since the 23rd inst., when 1,426 gallons were sent out.

COD LIVER OIL.—The competition of Norway is being felt all round, and consequently there has been a cut in prices in all the foreign markets. We still believe, however, that $1.50 per gallon will be the average price for this season, and that there is small chance for any advance this year. There was none exported this week as practically all the 1919 product has gone out.

BEEF.—The Beef market is stiffening a little, especially in price of "Boneless" grade. Other qualities also show firmness as indicated by Cables received this week. Boneless values are covered from $25 to $29.00. Packett and Family from $25 to $27, according to quality.

BEEF.—The market is weak and the Chicago quotation went off $1.50 this week. The local trade shows the usual dullness that always occurs between seasons. There is a marked shortage these days in U. S. export to Europe with a consequent accumulation of stocks. Prices therefore will be more favorable from the buyers standpoint during the coming months. Imports for week 370 barrels.

THE FLOUR MARKET.—Conflicting crop advices made on a very unsettled wheat market have come in during the week. The Western Crops have reached the crisis stage and need very heavy rains, as drought generally is becoming alarmingly serious, especially in Saskatchewan districts, Alberta and many parts of Manitoba. In some sections the wheat crop cannot be revived, no matter how much rain may fall. This unfavorable outlook for the crops, together with heavy sales of wheat for export which are reported to be over two million bushels, has had a very bullish effect on the market.

The Canadian Government have withdrawn all control, except power to reduce the price of wheat. It is very likely that wheat will follow the same course as Sugar, when the control was removed. We predict $18 and $20.00 later per barrel for flour in the local market for highest grade of Manitoba patents in the near future.

SUGAR.—This week there was a big movement of Sugar from wholesalers' hands, owing to the impending advance in price on the part of the Food Control Board, announced a few days ago, and which is expected to come into operation at any moment. Imports to Friday this week, 125 barrels only.

POTATOES.—The Importers of Potatoes are losing money on their stocks. What were purchased at a cost of $12.90 stored in May and June are now being cleared out at $12.00. There are large stocks of these old potatoes held in the city and a large percentage of them have gone bad. Holders, therefore, are unloading as fast as they can, at a loss before the new potatoes come on the market.

The Romantic Story of Sugar.

In 1914, granulated sugar cost two pence per pound; loaf sugar, two pence farthing.
 To-day they are respectively 1s. and 1s. 2½d. per pound—a rise of 600 per cent. To-morrow the price may be 1s. 6d.
 There is a possibility of a sugar famine, unless grown-up people cut down their allowance, leaving their share for the kiddies. The reason is that the demand is greater than the supply, and countries are bidding one against the other for the crystal that sweetens the cup of tea. We might have been paying 1s. 9d. per lb. ere this if we had not bought big stocks when the price was low.
 These, however, won't last indefinitely, and the fact that the sugar crop in Cuba, which rules the world's sugar markets, is 250,000 tons short this year, emphasizes the necessity for stricter rationing. America is willing to pay almost anything for sugar. Prohibition of intoxicants has brought about a huge demand in the States for sugar for the chocolates and soft drinks which are now wanted.
 In Java, another country, on which the world relies to a great extent for cane sugar, the production has fallen by over 400,000 tons; and although the output of cane sugar has increased in such colonies as Jamaica, Trinidad, Barbados, India, Ceylon, and parts of Australia and Egypt, the fact that Russia, Poland, Hungary, and Germany are no longer exporters of beet sugar more than counterbalances the increase.

How Germany Beat Us.

It is estimated that the world's production of sugar is 2,000,000 tons less than before the war, and by the irony of circumstances we are suffering now from high prices and shortage because we allowed Germany to get control of the beet sugar industry. Less than fifty years ago we controlled the world's supply of sugar. When war started the monopoly was held by the Germans.
 In 1913, 1,969,259 tons of sugar were imported into the United Kingdom. Of this amount only 72,019 tons were obtained from the British Empire. Thus no less than 1,296,401 tons of sugar had to be imported from Germany and Austria, and 600,839 tons from other countries. In other words, we were forced to rely upon foreign countries for 95 per cent. of our necessary sugar supply.

President's Petition

TO MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE AND MINES.

July 31, 1920.
 Editor Evening Telegram
 Dear Sir,—The following petition is now being numerously signed and will shortly be presented to the Government. When the facts complained of are considered there can be no doubt of the justice of the claims of the petitioners, nor of the action which the Government is expected to take in the matter.
 Yours truly,
 LIBERTY.

July 31, 1920.

(Copy of Petition)

July 25, 1920.

To The Minister of Agriculture and Mines, Newfoundland.

Honorable Sir,—The undersigned residents of the vicinity of Long Pond and the city of St. John's (East) hereby petition the Government against the encroachment on their rights by a private Corporation doing business in St. John's under the name of the Trade Bakery Limited.

WHEREAS The above named Corporation has constructed a permanent concrete dam at the outlet of Long Pond which has the effect of preventing the natural flow of water from the lake thereby at times flooding the margin of the pond which is the public right of way. This margin is availed of by hundreds of Citizens particularly women and children during the summer season for purposes of healthful recreation and is frequented as much by citizens of the East End of the city and suburbs as Bowring Park is in the West End. The use of the pond for bathing and fishing is also obstructed by the flooding of the resorts along its banks, and

WHEREAS The flooding by this dam prevents farmers from raising bog at the head of the pond as well as sand for building purposes, which is procured there, and from the carting of which several farmers make a living. Among the names of your petitioners are those of several men who cut ice from this pond, and owing to the shifting from time to time of the water level during the freezing season, the formation of ice is interfered with. The road regularly used for carting ice from the pond in winter also has to be abandoned from the same cause, and

WHEREAS This pond being recognized as one of the few lakes containing pure water near the city from which ice is taken for manufacturing and food purposes, we submit that its water should be protected against contamination from sewers by those living near it. IN CONCLUSION we would point out that Long Pond is from several standpoints one of the most valued assets belonging to the citizens of St. John's East and suburbs, and is frequented by thousands of our people, and we humbly submit that it should be jealously and sacredly safeguarded against the encroachments from time to time of different private interests who seem to selfishly ignore the rights and claims of the public who own this point. We have every confidence however that when this infringement on the Public rights is brought to the notice of the shareholders of the Trade Bakery they will be disposed to emulate the generous impulses and public spirit of Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring and the late esteemed Mr. John Munn who have set the pace in Newfoundland by their munificent donations in bringing closer together that friendly feeling between all classes which splendid sentiment should be still further encouraged in the Public interest. When they consider this they will no doubt be willing to set this matter right and see it from the public viewpoint. Trusting you will favorably consider the prayer of this petition, and take measures to cause the removal of the dam above mentioned, your petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray.

Personal.

Gallipoli Hero's Fatal Accident.

Lieut. George Leslie Drewery, R.N. V.C., one of the heroes of the Gallipoli landing, was accidentally killed at sea in northern waters on August 2, 1918, through a block falling from the end of a derrick and striking him heavily on the head, causing very severe injuries, from which he died shortly afterwards. Lieut. Drewery gained the Victoria Cross when a midshipman for conspicuous bravery during the attempt to form a bridge of lighters from the transport "River Clyde" to the shore, for the landing of troops in Gallipoli in 1915. He was given charge of a hopper and was steering it towards Cape Helles when the bombardment began. There was a gap in the intended bridge and the troops could not cross it, so Drewery jumped overboard and waded ashore. Meeting a wounded soldier in the water he and another soldier tried to carry him ashore, but the wounded man was again shot in their arms. He afterwards waded out to the lighters and climbed aboard one, when a piece of shrapnel struck him on the head. Though stunned and bleeding, and under rifle fire, he, without hesitation, jumped overboard again, swam from lighter to lighter, and eventually succeeded in completing the bridge. Returning to England Lieut. Drewery was the first naval officer from the Merchant Service to receive a sword of honour in recognition of his bravery from the Merchant Service Guild at Liverpool. Only 23 at the time of his death, he was the son of Mr. Thos. Drewery of the P. and O. service, and his home was at Claremont Road, Forest Gate, London. Educated at the Merchant Taylors' School, he left it at the age of 14 to go to sea, and in 1912 joined the P. and O. service, with which he voyaged to China, Japan, and Australia. He had joined the Royal Naval Reserve in 1913, and when the war broke out was appointed to H.M.S. "Edmont" guardship, at Malta, as a midshipman, being transferred first to the torpedo gunboat "Hussar," and then to the "River Clyde."

Hidden Identities.

Writers use a pseudonym, and so some use only part of a name, such as "Katie Hoop" whose name is J. Katie Bell, Anthony Hope, whose full name is Anthony Hope Hawkins, George A. Birmingham, is the name of Canon Hanny, and "Gerard" that of the Rev. Teague, "Mark Allerton" the serial writer and novelist, is Cameron, "Bartlett" is A. Paymaster, "Rice" of the British...

Norman Angell

is Ralph Lane, and "John Oxenham" W. A. Dunkerley. The late "Maarten Maartens" was handicapped by the name of J. M. van der Poorten Schwartz, so he cannot be blamed for changing it; while "Maurice Geckel" is Alexei Malmovitch-Peshkov.

Line pseudonyms

"George Elliot," "John Oliver Hobbes," and "Carrer Bell" are famous examples. Miss Clo Graves calls herself "Richard Deban," while the late Mrs. Frankau used to write under the name of "Frank Danby." "Curtis Yorke" is Mrs. Richmond Lee, and "Ralph Irons" real name is Olive Schreier.

These are short, simple and built on straight lines. Fine French made gloves are shown in picture. Black and white combinations in jewelry will be favored.

Some Bowling Feats.

How far can you throw a cricket ball?

One of the longest officially recorded thrown covered a distance of 140yd., 2ft., and was achieved by Mr. R. Percival as long ago as Easter Monday, 1884. The scene of his record throw was the Durham racecourse. The record was previously held by Ross McKenzie, a Canadian, who, at Toronto in 1872, threw a ball 140yd., 9in. At the Bankers' Sports at Herne Hill in 1901, Mr. A. E. Maaly threw 133yd., 2ft.

A ball can be bowled much faster than it can be thrown. The longest distance covered by a bowler is 300yd. That record has several times been approached but never surpassed, and the general average is 250yd.

The highest record for length of drive by a batsman was achieved at the practice nets at Christ Church, Oxford, by Mr. W. Fellows, who drove a ball 175yd. The distinction of making the longest drive at an actual match fell to V. F. S. Crawford, who, playing for Gloucester at Bristol on one occasion, hit a ball 160yd. Mr. C. I. Thornton made some big hits, his highest being 133yd. when playing against the Australians, and 183yd. while at the practice nets.

Stump Hurdled Forty Feet!

Even Bonner, the Australian slogger, could not equal this, although once, when practising at Metcham, he drove a ball 157yd.

There is always a thrill when a fast bowler sends the balls flying. How many spectators could tell how far the balls actually travel? Brearley, the Lancashire fast bowler, did a big thing when, in 1905, he bowled Mr. W. B. Burns, sending the balls a distance of 48yd.

Two years before, W. Sargwell, playing for Sloughbridge against Kidderminster, dispatched a ball—89yd., but the record achievement in this respect is credited to Mold, who, bowling at the Oval in 1896, sent a ball 83yd., 6in. On another occasion, Howitt, playing for an English XI at Hull, sent a ball out of the ground, a distance of 69yd.; and Fielder, the Kent fast bowler, once bowled Tydesley with a ball that sent the balls a similar distance. Brearley once sent his opponent's middle-stump flying back for 48ft—a unique record.

In the hands of a fast bowler a cricket ball can be made to travel at an amazing speed. Tests were made one one occasion at Woolwich Arsenal. Mr. C. B. Turner bowling through the electric screens used for measuring the velocity of projectiles. The experiment showed that even a medium-paced bowler can dispatch a ball at the rate of 55 1/2 miles per hour. Really fast bowlers, like Brearley, Cotter, Mold, and Tom Richardson, must have bowled at a rate of over sixty miles an hour.

The Romance of Lloyd's.

"At Lloyd's" This is a common phrase, yet many people do not realize its real significance and application. It stands for British honesty and accuracy in the shipping world.

If you tell a Frenchman, a Spaniard, a German, or an Eskimo that a ship is "at Lloyd's," he knows that he can trust it as such, because "Lloyd's Register" is never wrong.

The ships built in all parts of the world are examined and classified by Lloyd's surveyors, and all particulars are entered in the Register. Thus underwriters, when they are called upon to insure a vessel, may obtain precise information as to its state and record.

Furthermore, in order to provide underwriters with information concerning the doings of ships, Lloyd's publish every day a shipping newspaper, the "Shipping and Mercantile Gazette." This is printed in the basement of the Royal Exchange, and information is collected and cabled by thousands of agents throughout the world.

The Insurance of Shipping. The "Gazette," which, with the exception of the "London Gazette," is the oldest existing London newspaper, was started towards the end of the seventeenth century by a certain Edward Lloyd, at whose coffee-house in Lombard Street merchants and others used to meet to arrange marine insurances. These covered all sorts of contingencies, but gradually the insurance of shipping became the chief business of the frequenters of Lloyd's.

Lloyd was an energetic man. In order to develop the operations of his customers, he produced, in 1696, a daily newspaper called "Lloyd's News," which contained information concerning the movements of ships.

For a while the paper was suspended, through Lloyd publishing a reference to the proceedings of Parliament, which he refused to withdraw, it being illegal at that time to make any such reference. It resumed publication in 1726, when Lloyd, or at any rate the then proprietor of Lloyd's coffee-house, started it again under the name of "Lloyd's List." After a time Lloyd's moved to the Royal Exchange, where it still carries on the underwriting part of its business.

Lloyd's underwriters by the way, not only insure the ships that sail on every sea, but all sorts of other ships as well. They will insure you against fire, and even against a change of Government.

A Keeperless Lighthouse

An automatic lighthouse that does everything but talk, stands guard over the northeast shores of Guernsey. Holiday-makers to the Channel Isles should not miss this sea marvel.

Platt Fougere Lighthouse consists of a concrete pillar set in the sea; it is unmanned, and is worked by a submarine cable one and a quarter miles in length, which links it up with civilisation. A specially contrived clock switches its acetylene beams on and off with the utmost precision; during fog a compressed air fog-signal installed therein is enabled to ring a bell on shore to inform officials that the lighthouse is functioning properly.

When the lamp supplies of acetylene become low, a pressure-gauge intimates this knowledge to the Guernsey engine-room, while a telephone is installed, and any pilot at sea can ring up Guernsey free of charge. The telephone is situated fifty feet up the side of the lighthouse, and its position is probably a unique one among call-boxes.

All these various services are performed by the original cable, and the whole contrivance cost ten thousand pounds, or one-eighth of the sum needed to equip an ordinary lighthouse. So successful is this "sea sentinel" that another on similar lines is now in course of construction by the Lighthouse Bureau of the United States.

Freeman's English Foods

A complete supply for your larder.

Custard Like Cream.

Freeman's Custard, made according to directions, provides a creamy dish that softens the tartness of fruits. It is ideal for trifles, and as a hot sauce with puddings it is delicious.

Making Better Cakes.

There is nothing better for making cakes than Freeman's Egg Powder. It is an improvement upon eggs rather than a substitute for them; making cakes lighter and more digestible, and never "dry."

A Popular Blanc Mange.

Freeman's Blanc Mange Powder is distinctly flavoured with fruit essence, and is agreeably smooth to the palate. A packet in the house ensures a delightful "emergency" dish, easily made.

A Clear, Light Jelly.

The delightful clearness and colour of Freeman's Jellies is the next best thing to their taste. There is absolutely no heavy sediment in a jelly made with Freeman's Jelly Crystals, and the flavours are true to the fruit.

A Comforting Drink.

There is no more comforting drink on a cold day than Freeman's Glass Lemon and hot water—as hot as you can drink it. Freeman's Glass Lemon is sweetened sufficiently for the average taste; it is made with real lemons by an entirely new process—a great advance on the old lemon crystal.

If a cold drink is required it is only necessary to add Freeman's Glass Lemon to cold water; it dissolves immediately—no need to wait while the drink cools.
