At the Mouth of the Treacherous Pit

STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER VII.

A curious sensation, for which she could hardly have accounted, took possession of Dolores. It seemed to her as though this Black 'Foot had suddenly become part of her life, as though she had seen it before and should see it again—a curious feeling that made her shiver, turn cold, and feel faint.

"Do come away, Miss Chiefton," he implored.

He had walked on a few steps, and Dolores, still with that strange feeling upon her, rejoined him. He spoke without looking at her.

"I must have this place altered," he said. "There is a disused coalmine near here. It has long been closed, and almost all traces of it have been removed; but once there was a terrible explosion, and since then the ground about here has never been quite safe. There are deep, treacherous holes which, if a man fell into, he must meet the most horrible of deaths. Some of the openings have been filled up; others are terribly dangerous, as they are hidden by long grass and cannot be seen. Somewhere about here, or at the other side of the pool, is the mouth of what was once the shaft. I have never seen it; but I am told it is a terrible place. When I have time, all this shall be attended to. I should like to change the pool into a pleasant lake, and this place—which is really beautiful—into a pleasure-land. It would be a great improvement, would it not?"

"Yes," she answered, "it would be very much better. Let us get away from the pool," she added, hastily; "it makes me melancholy;" and in silence they walked on, side by side. Then went then to a little wooden picnic situated on an eminence, from which they could see one of the prettiest landscapes in England. Dolores uttered a cry of delight. Sir Karl smiled.

"I have different spots for different moods," he said. "When I want to dream I come to this place. Some of my pleasantest thoughts have come to me here." A sudden pause seized him which he could not control. "The dream of my life—the sweetest, the brightest—is realized when I see you standing here in my favorite haunt."

She shrank from him with something of distress in her face. She must not listen to such words now, but, if he had said them weeks ago, how different life would have been! She looked half-longingly at the path they had left. He caught the glances, and said quickly:

"Nay, do not hurry! I will not say one word to distress you. We shall never, in all probability, stand here together again. Do not take from me the only gleam of happiness that can ever reach me."

A great fear came over her as to what he meant, as to what he was going to do. He had said before that they would never be there together again. Fear overcame prudence; she turned and looked him straight in the face.

"What do you mean, Sir Karl? We shall be neighbors. Why do you say that we shall never meet here again?"

"Perhaps it will be better for me to tell you," he replied. "Will you let me explain?"

She bowed her head in silent assent.

"The reason why I say that we shall probably not meet again, is that I am going away from Scarsdale, and the time of my return is uncertain; it may be never."

The sweet face of the girl by his side grew paler, and her lips trembled; and she spoke no word.

"I could not remain here," he went on, with a tremor in his voice, "and hear all that I should have to hear. Let me tell you why I am going, will you? I will not say a word to please you, but the confession will ease my heart. I await your consent."

She gave it in the same fashion as before, with a bend of her graceful head.

"You will always remember, Dolores—you will let me call you Dolores this once—that, in telling you, I asked for no response, for no opinion, that I sought to win from you not even one thought that belongs to another. You will acquit me of any intention of the kind, I am sure. I am going away because I find that I love you! I do not tell you this with the faintest hope of any return, with the least wish to win from you a word or a thought you should not give me. You believe that, do you not?"

"Yes," she said faintly.

"Then let me tell you once more that I love you. I did not know that I was learning to love you with the best and dearest love of my heart until I heard that you were going to marry Lord Rhyworth. The sudden shock startled me into discovering the truth. I found then that I loved you so well that to lose you would darken all my life, and make it almost worthless to me. You were going to speak," he added, for she had looked up to him with parted lips and eyes, which asked a question.

"Yes, I am wondering, if this be true, why did you choose the red rose in preference to the white one on that night at Beaulieu? It seemed to me as though you made a deliberate choice between Lola and myself."

The circumstance, all important to her, had been of so little moment to him that he had almost forgotten it; but now, as she referred to it, he looked at her horror-stricken.

"Do you mean to tell me, Dolores," he said, "that anything in my manner gave you the impression that I liked Lola better than you?"

"I assure you it was so," she answered. "Lola thought the same thing, I know. I have never doubted it until now."

"And now you know that it is quite untrue. So far as I remember the circumstance, you had done something that piqued me, and I merely took what I thought a little playful revenge. I never dreamed that you would magnify it into anything half so serious. But it is too late to undo the evil now."

"Yes," she replied, "far too late."

"I am not the first man," he continued, sadly, "who has lost all chance of happiness from a little caprice, or from not knowing his own mind. If I had not been so heedless, all would have been different. I must be grateful, however, that I alone suffer, and that you are spared."

He looked keenly into her face as she spoke, but no sign of emotion was there, it was grave and still.

"I have found out my mistake now," he resumed; "but it is too late to remedy it, and I must pay the penalty. I am glad that I have had the chance of telling you this. Do you think I am doing right in going away?"

"Quite right," she replied, firmly. "I think it is the only thing to do."

"The one gleam of brightness about it will be your approval," he said. "Thank you for listening to me, and thank you for coming here to-day; it will be a sweet memory to me always, that of seeing you in my home."

She looked up at him with a curious expression on her face.

"Promise me one thing," she said—"that you will keep away from the Black Pool."

"I will," he answered. "You do not like the place, and we will forget it altogether. And you, Dolores, you who, without loving me, are my only love, you are not displeased that I have told you my story? I hope you will be happy in your future life; there is no one who could desire you happiness more than I do."

"I am sure of that, and I am grateful to you," she said, gently.

"You have no word of comfort to say to me, Dolores," he asked.

"Yes, I have. I think you a noble man; I appreciate from my very heart the compliment you have paid me, and I wish you well."

Her voice faltered, and she turned her pale, sweet face from him; something in her manner struck him.

"Great Heaven, Dolores," he cried in a voice hoarse with emotion, "I believe you care for me!"

When she looked at him the pallor of death was on her face.

"Hush, Sir Karl; you must remember honor always! Never mind what I think or feel. I am Lord Rhyworth's promised wife; you are bidding me farewell; let no word pass between us that either will regret."

But he could not regain his composure.

"I believe you care for me," he persisted. "If I were sure that such was the case, I would—"

He stopped abruptly, for her hand was laid upon his arm.

"You will not forget," she said, "that in a few weeks I shall be Lord Rhyworth's wife. I—I am willing to say farewell to you kindly; but you must not speak to me in that way."

He was silent. She went on:

"If I have a secret, Sir Karl, you must not try to force it from me; you must respect it."

Interchange of Teachers

TORONTO, Ont., June 24.—(Canadian Press)—Organized exchange of university professors and secondary school teachers is likely to result from the forthcoming visit to Canada of English educationalists in connection with the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, in the opinion of W. J. Dunlop, director of the extension department of the University of Toronto. Mr. Dunlop, who is well known to teachers as editor of "The School" for nine years, has just returned from Wembley, where he supervised the erection of the university's exhibit.

The possibility of arranging a regular exchange of visits between professors in the United Kingdom and the British Dominions, was one of the chief items dealt with at the conference of universities of Great Britain and Ireland, which Mr. Dunlop attended. There exists at present no organized interchange between the staffs of the home and colonial universities, and the exchange of ideas between the leaders of scholastic and scientific endeavor is carried on through sporadic visits and occasional permanent transfers from one side to the other.

"The Universities' Conference is anxious to have a regular scheme established for exchanging professors," Mr. Dunlop told the Canadian Press. "The British Association meeting here will probably give the necessary impetus for the initiation of a movement of this kind."

Primary teachers are exchanged under a plan fostered by the league of Empire, but there is still no agreement whereby masters in secondary schools may spend visiting terms. Secondary teachers would share in the proposed general scheme embracing all branches of education, Mr. Dunlop thinks.

Canadian teachers stand to benefit from the papers in the education section of the British Association, as well as by contact with the distinguished educationalists who are to deliver them, it is pointed out. The program of this group is being registered by the chairman, Dr. Ernest Barker, principal of King's College, London, so that at least two-thirds of the addresses will be made by overseas visitors. In this way, teachers in Canada will have full opportunity to scrutinize the latest ideas from England in education methods, and will be able to decide to what extent they can be adopted here.

"We have a great deal to learn from British educational systems," Mr. Dunlop said. "One admires the thoroughness with which education is conducted. In Scotland especially, the aim is to produce thinkers, in the secondary schools as well as in the universities."

"In our anxiety to impart the maximum amount of information in a given time, and under the pressure of numerous examinations, we often lose sight of the primary object of education."

"Teachers are sure to receive inspiration from the British Association meetings. They will receive an invaluable insight into the manner in which educational problems are attacked in England, and in this way may find a solution for some of their own teaching difficulties. High school and public school teachers throughout Canada, who can spare the time, should make a point of attending the sessions."

Well-known educators who have been delegated to the Toronto meeting include Ernest Barker, D. Litt., L.L.D.; Cyril Burt, D. Sc., psychologist, and C. W. Kimmins, D. Sc., inspector to the London County Council Education Department; Percy T. Nunn, D. Sc., principal, Day Training College, University of London; Sir Harry Reichel, L.L.D., principal of University College of North Wales; E. Young, F.R.G.S., of the Middlesex Education Committee.

Among important lectures arranged are Interchange of Teachers Between Various Branches of Education, by Dr. Nunn; Sense of Humor in Children, by Dr. Kimmins; Tests for Scholarship and Promotion, and the Psychologist on the Education Committee, by Dr. Burt; Modern Tendencies in Geography Teaching, by E. Young. In addition, valuable papers will be presented by Canadians.

Change of the date of the conference from Sept. 6-15 to Aug. 6-13 permits school teachers to join in the sessions without interfering with their class work.

Marriage Difficulties Smoothed Out

TORONTO, Ont., June 24.—(Canadian Press)—The Sunday World prints an interview with Mrs. A. H. G. White of this city in connection with the marriage of her cousin, Miss Eleanor Green, of New York, to Prince Viggo of Denmark. She says that the Prince fell in love with Miss Green when the latter was visiting in Copenhagen. His parents at first would not consider the match, but he appealed to Queen Alexandra. So sympathetically did she plead his cause with Denmark's King and Queen that Viggo was summoned to another family council, where it was decided that the Prince must choose between possible succession to the Danish throne and the choice of his heart. He never hesitated. Joyfully he departed for America, met Miss Green, declared his love for her without restraint and was accepted. But that was not all. A terrible blow fell when the girl's father decisively refused consent on the ground that the difference in the stations and ranks of the lovers might lead to future unhappiness. The couple talked of eloping. It has been rumored that they were on the eve of making preparations to elope. But the world was spared this sensational aspect of royal romance. Viggo decided to make one attempt to soften the stern resolution of the parent. He was granted an interview, and was so convincing, so earnest and so charming, that the father's objections were overcome, and his consent secured.

Germ of Hoof and Mouth Disease Reported Found

Berlin, June 2. (A.P.)—Bacteriologists throughout Europe have been interested in the recent announcement here of the discovery of a bacillus capable of reproducing the hoof and mouth disease in animals. Specialists have come to Berlin to investigate further, while there have been many letters and cablegrams from the United States and England, where there have been epidemics this spring. News of the discovery came from Professor Paul Frosch, of the Royal Veterinary College, who has been working on the problem several years in conjunction with Professor Dahmer.

The new bacillus has not yet been subjected to sufficient confirmatory tests to make it possible to say positively that it is the final solution of the difficulty, but medical journals in Germany and England have written enthusiastic articles about it, and various authorities have ventured to predict that this enthusiasm has not been misplaced.

According to writers on veterinary subjects in these periodicals, the hoof and mouth disease is supposed to have been a European malady for more than 2,000 years, though it was not until the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries that positive proof of its presence was found.

Coast to Coast Flight in Less Than a Day

Hertzog is Premier of S. Africa—Labour Government Meets Another Defeat—Postal Strike in Canada Collapses.

LABOR GOVERNMENT AGAIN DEFEATED.

LONDON, June 24. The Labor Government sustained another defeat in the House of Commons last night by the substantial vote of 315 against 175 in consequence of a Conservative Liberal combination in favor of referring a motion dealing with the financial provisions of the Housing Bill to a committee of the whole house instead of to a special committee which the Government sought to impose. The defeat, however, was one of procedure, and not of principle. No political significance, therefore, was attached to it and other business of the House was proceeded with.

HERTZOG PREMIER OF SOUTH AFRICA.

PRETORIA, June 24. General James Barry Hertzog, leader of the victorious party in the recent elections, today accepted the premiership of South Africa, succeeding General Jan Christian Smuts. General Hertzog has begun the formation of his cabinet.

AIR FLIGHT RECORD.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24. Lieutenant Russel L. Maughan wrote a new and spectacular chapter in the history of man's conquest of the air when he spanned the North American continent in less than a day. It was his third attempt. Lieutenant Maughan flew at an average speed of approximately 150 miles an hour, making less than above 2,000

FEET AND MORE AT OR UNDER THAT HEIGHT.

FIVE DEAD IN NAPHTHA EXPLOSION. NEW YORK, June 21. Five men were reported missing and eight others were seriously injured late today by an explosion of Naphtha on board the British freighter Egremont Castle at her Brooklyn dock. Seventeen badly burned were rushed to hospitals, and five unaccounted for, were believed to have been trapped in the vessel's hold. Two tugs towed the blazing steamer into the East River to save shipping from danger of possible explosions. As the tugs caught hold of the vessel her hatches were battened down, ending the last slim chance for life of the five men trapped in the hold. The vessel's cargo included 100,000 gallons of highest grade aeroplane gasoline, 100,000 gallons of naphtha and a large quantity of motor oil. The blaze spread so rapidly that firemen feared other explosions and the freighter was towed into East River and ordered sunk.

TORNADO STRIKES BELFAST.

BELFAST, June 24. A terrific tornado, unprecedented in history, struck here this evening, resulting in extensive damage. Many buildings were wrecked and a number of people injured.

ASK FOR REINSTATEMENT OF POSTAL STRIKERS.

MONTREAL, June 24. Executives of Letter Carriers' Association and Postal Clerks' Association waited on Postmaster Gaudet this morning and asked him to take back Postal strikers unconditionally. Mr. Gaudet promised to consider the case of each man individually, having regard to his ability and to financial considerations.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE TO BE HELD.

REGINA, June 24. The Dominion Government is to meet a delegation of western postal workers with a view to settling the present dispute. Knowles, President, and Charles Gardner, Secretary of the Amalgamated Servants, last night sent a telegram to Premier King, Hon. James Murdock and Charles Stewart, Acting Postmaster General. The delegation will be named from among the employees of the West post offices should the government consent to this suggestion.

STRIKE BREAKS DOWN.

TORONTO, June 24. What was intended to be a Dominion wide strike of Canadian Postal employees has become a fight between striking members in Montreal, Toronto and Windsor, and the Federal Government. At all other points in the country the service is advancing normally, while in Montreal it is expected that mail will be handled effectively in a few days.

LOBSTER SEASON EXTENDED.

OTTAWA, June 24. A recommendation to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, stating that in view of the late season and the very small catch of lobsters around the Coast of Prince Edward Island, and the northern part of Nova Scotia, some extension be made to the season this year, was adopted by the Marine and Fisheries Committee of the House today.

ITALIAN MILITIA TO BE DEMOBILIZED.

ROME, June 24. Premier Mussolini has given orders that the National Militia, which was recently mobilized, be demobilized immediately, according to the semi-official Stefani Agency.

GOOD ROADS ASSN. OPENS.

St. Andrew's by the Sea, N.E., June 24.—Favored by perfect weather and with an attendance of nearly two hundred, and with more on the way, the eleventh annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association was opened this afternoon in the Casino of the Algonquin Hotel, which is convention headquarters. Russell T. Kelly, of Hamilton, President of the Ontario Provincial Highway Association, presided, and declared the 11th convention opened under more auspicious circumstances than any previous gathering.

A Big Store in a Small Town

How many towns of less than 3,000 people have a general merchandise store that can show nearly a half-million-dollar business in the fourth year of its existence; that employs at least three dozen clerks, and keeps open twenty-four hours a day; that sells matches and strawberries by the carload; that maintains its own special fire fighting equipment, and its own detective to watch for light fingers; and that has to have traffic cops out in front on Saturdays or other busy days to handle the crowds? At least there is one such—Winner, South Dakota; habitat of the "Outlaw Trading Post."

Earl and Countess Haig Coming

Padre Nangle received a message yesterday stating that Field Marshal and Countess Haig had embarked on board the Caronia for here. The following is the message:—
NANGLE, War Veterans.
All safe on board. Field Marshal Earl and Countess Haig arrived in Liverpool at noon and were received by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress. Among those present on arrival were:—Sir Thomas Royden, chairman of the Cunard Line; the Senior Naval and Military Officers; Sir Edgar Bowring; Col. Talbot, D.S.O., M. C. The party was then entertained on board at lunch as guests of the Cunard Line.

Walking is President's Only Form of Play

Walking is President Coolidge's only form of play. And he walks as religiously and as solemnly as he prepares or signs State papers. Sometimes he takes a friend along, but usually he is accompanied only by a secret service operative. He walks anywhere and everywhere in Washington.
Once upon returning to the White House from a walk, he and his secret service companion approached one of the little-used entrances. A sign, "Closed," hung on the gate.
"We are not supposed to go in this way," he remarked.
"But it's your house," the secret service man laughed.
"Well, we'll go around to another entrance," the President replied and walked on.
Roosevelt probably would have jumped the gate and would have seen to it that newspaper men were duly informed. Taft would have sent for a key. Wilson would have taken care not to see the sign.
But to Coolidge a sign on a White House gate means as much as he would have it mean to any one else.—Aaron Hardy Sim, in Forbes Magazine (N.Y.)

THE BABY'S FIRST KISS.

Oh, time shall bring you many things, but none so rich as this— The glory of that happy day your baby learns to kiss. To many a thrill your heart shall leap; but none so sweet and true As when those little baby lips first give a kiss to you.

You'll joy to see her take a step, you'll dance to see her smile. The first glad words she utters in your memory book you'll savor; But never from the countless charming tricks she'll learn to do Shall you be so entraptured as when first she kisses you.

Through many a patient month you'll wait this precious joy to seek. But unreturned shall be that kiss with which you touch her cheek; In vain you'll ask her to bestow that joy which is your due, And wonder when she'll condescend to give a kiss to you.

Then suddenly one happy day when homeward you've returned, You'll find those little laughing lips their loveliest art have learned; And mother, standing at the door, will share your spell of bliss, And you will want to tell the world your baby's learned to kiss.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

QUO VADIS?

A winter evening, an open hearth, a few friends watching in a penitive silence the glow of the dying fire. And then: "Quo vadis? Wether are we going?" Someone asked the age old question.

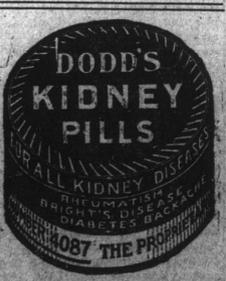

"And why," added someone else, falling into the mood, "if there is another life somewhere after this one, are we so afraid of death? It's the sunniest and commonest of all our anxieties, this clinging to life, this horror and fear of death that everyone has."

"Not everyone," said the Lady Who Always Knows Somehow. "Did you ever stop to think that the only ones who aren't afraid of death are those who are about to die?"

It's true isn't it—and strange. What is it that gives calm and assurance and peace to the dying and takes away the fear of the unknown and the terror of parting that is the portion of those who are left to mourn? It is a God-given grace from the world beyond, a glimpse of something better just ahead, a promise of rest and happiness and of reason in some glad to-morrow?

I love to think so. When you read of the departure of some great ocean liner with its hundreds of happy voyagers, the half gay, half sad farewells, the flowers and gifts, the anticipation, and all the bustle and excitement of those last moments just before the great ship slips away from the shore doesn't it make you want to go journeying, too?

There is another departure I have read of, a last farewell that helps me to think trustfully of the day when I, too, shall journey toward "that bonanza from which no traveller returns." It is the story told by Arthur Benson, the English essayist, of the death of his brother Hugh, the priest. Hugh's was a life lived a-tiptoe. Always alert, always doing something, writing, weaving tapestries, painting, preaching, travelling.

ways doing something, writing, weaving tapestries, painting, preaching, travelling.

He Passed Eagerly Around the Corner
Finding life all too short for all that he wanted to do, how did Hugh meet death? He had been ill but a short time and his brother had been summoned, not so much with the fear of his not recovering as to be with him in his sickness. And then in the middle of the night came the dread call, and Arthur hurrying to his brother's room, tells us that he found him propped against his pillows, his eyes shining with the awe and wondering knowledge of what was about to be.

"Arthur," he said, "this is the end," and in his voice was all the eagerness of one about to embark upon a new and marvellous adventure. A few moments later, with a quick word of farewell and an unflinching, commending of his soul to his Maker, Hugh was gone, and his brother says:

"It was impossible to think of him as dead. It was as if he had passed around a corner, but that unquestionably, just out of sight, he was there alive and eager, hurrying on."

There's a going I love to think of. "And may there be no sadness of farewell when I embark."
"He Giveth His Beloved Sleep."
And to those for whom the lure of adventure has waned, and who are longing rather for rest, the prayer for the road's end, by Theodosia Garrison holds out a promise of peace which is beautifully told:

"Let me not think of Death as one who stalks a helpless enemy To blot away the sun some day, and lay reluctant hands on me. Nay, rather let me think of him as one who in all kindness waits

At the road's end when shadows dim, to draw me gently through his gates.

And lead me, like some kindly host, who gives a long expected guest The comfort that he craves the most, the hospitality of rest."

GOOD WORK.

Pete Fringle tolled for many years; he made silk purses of sows' ears, and seldom took a rest; his purses were in great demand, and it was said through out the land, these purses were the best.

And people sometimes said to Pete, "You have a plant that can't be beat—why not make other things? The wooden nutmeg graft is fine, and you could turn out grafts of pine, and pewter wedding rings." "I don't believe," old Pete replied, "in spreading out a graft so wide; no scheme like that endures; make one commodity so fine there is no equal in its line, and then the world is yours. My purses made of porkers' ears are known in seven hemispheres; wherever men have kale; they're found at home, they're found abroad, wherever mankind has a wad my purses are on sale. When men buy purses they exclaim, "Pete Fringle's have the highest fame, they've held their own for years; before his skill the whole world bows; he only uses Tamworth sows, which have the choicest ears." He does one thing, and does it well, and now we see him calmly dwell in splendour and ease; he has his shack in Easy Street, and he has custard pies to eat, and shrimp and early peas. And many nights who tried to spread their graft too wide are poorly fed on soubones, slaw and bran; they're no umbrellas when it pours, they have to sleep on cellar doors, and dodge the peeper man.

Dear Sir.—In spite of the denial published in the "News," I still believe that piece in the "Advocate" was written, if not in Placentia town, somewhere in the district. I have reasons for thinking the author is a government pensioner, who is always ready to apply for any jobs that may have a remote chance of becoming vacant, and puts in his spare time biting the hand that feeds him. Now, sir, if he is qualified for a job, he is not eligible for a pension. He also promises some more of his "stuff" on other small officials, whose jobs he may be hankering after. Before his programme is filled we may be able to divert his attention, from a campaign of scurrility to one of self-defence. Mister Man, did you ever hear the one about "Sleeping Dogs"? Better let the pup finish his nap.

Yours truly,
"TOWSER."

Women a Bundle of Nerves
"Everything irritates me.—I am a bundle of nerves, I ache all over and cannot sleep and am so despondent." This extract from a letter written from one woman to another describes the condition of many women who suffer from feminine ailments. Nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs. For fifty years it has been restoring sick and ailing women of America to health and strength.

FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD WHO RECEIVED DEGREES FROM NEW YORK UNIVERSITY.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Robert Saunders, of 23 Franklin Avenue, St. John's, Newfoundland, received the degree of Master of Science in Commerce at the ninety-second annual commencement exercises of New York University which were held Wednesday morning, June 11, on the terraced campus of the University just west of the Hall of Fame.

The Deans of the eleven schools and colleges of the university, together presented 1,900 candidates to Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, for the conferring of degrees in their several schools. These students represented ten different foreign countries, two territories and thirty-two states, including all the races but the Indian, and practically all of the known religious sects of the world.

Professor Jeremiah Whipple Jenks, research professor of government and public administration at the university and who is an international authority on the business and political situation both at home and abroad, delivered the commencement address, speaking on "America's Role in Europe." Dr. Jenks was in Europe while the Dewey Committee was at work and was able to observe at first hand the impressions made in the different countries of Europe by the committee's work and judge of its probable effect.

The Harbor Grace Election

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—During the past four years our beloved country has been subjected to a systematic mode of squandering unparalleled in our history. During the Commission the revelations brought to light by T. Hollis Walker were a source of amazement, not alone to the people of Newfoundland, but to the world at large. The most influential and widely circulated newspapers of the world made extended and special reference to the unfortunate state of events, and in most instances the pictures of those most conspicuous in the charges were displayed in their columns. Had they been given another two or three years in power, all the statements in England would have been unable to place Newfoundland on an even keel again.

We have had many periods of depression in our country, but our recuperative powers have been wonderful. We have had failures in the fisheries, Bank Crash, financial difficulties, etc., but nothing to compare with the deplorable condition of affairs which have existed during the past three years. The result of the Commission was sufficient to stagger the whole of us, and yet the investigation only touched on the fringe of the real state of affairs.

During the periods of depression and difficulties in the past, Providence always brought forth the man to grapple with existing conditions—such men as Sir Frederick Carter, Sir Wm. Whiteway, Sir Robert Bond and others. But their difficulties existed only in the thousands of dollars, but now we have to face millions, which have been squandered without any return to the people.

During the past four years we have seen thousands of Newfoundlanders—the bone and sinew of our country, the fishermen—our mechanics, laborers, and our people in every walk of life compelled to leave our shores to seek a living, which has been denied them in our own country. Nor is this exodus confined to the male portion of our population, for we know that thousands of our talented and beautiful daughters and sisters have been compelled to emigrate, the great majority of them never to return to live in the land they love so well.

And yet while our sons, daughters and relatives have been compelled to emigrate from our shores, a combination of political pirates and buccaneers have banded themselves together to loot the public funds of the Colony, as has been amply verified by the Commission. Mr. Hollis Walker, K.C. Four years ago these political bandits were barely able to keep body and soul together. To-day they have mansions, motor cars, pianos, and all the luxuries that can be purchased for money which has been easily obtained through the apathy and indifference of our people all over the country who have not asked themselves the question: "Where and how did they procure such wealth and luxury in such a short time, which enabled them to live like princes?" Our people have but to think over this matter seriously.

And now notwithstanding that thousands of dollars have been expended in elections the past four years, those "unquiet spirits" wish to burden the people with further expense. It is now up to the people of Harbor Grace, Spaniard's Bay, Island Cove, Bishop's Cove, Bryant's Cove and Bay Roberts to teach them a lesson. What earthly good could Archibald or Snow accomplish even if elected? Do they think that the people of this District are so ignorant of the best interests of the country, as well as their own district, as to take seriously the dishonest utterances of these individuals? What power or position would they have to look after the interests of the people? Are they such orators or statesmen as to make themselves felt? If they opened their mouths to make a harangue, they would be "snuffed out," like the obsolete farthing dip. In Bennett, the Colonial Secretary, and Russell, the Minister of Public Works, they have men who are both able and in positions to help out the people of this district. Their influence in the Assembly will be felt. They can hold their own in the House of Assembly, Bennett, with his thirty years' experience, and Russell from his experience as a journalist of many years.

The Privileged Boy

TORONTO, Ont., June 20 (By Can. Press)—Much has been said and done about the problem of the "under-privileged" boy, but the delegates to the Rotary International Convention here took on a new angle of interest in the youth of to-day, when David I. McCahill, of Pittsburgh, Pa., addressed the big gathering on what he considered a far greater problem, namely that of the "privileged" boy. Having in mind recent revelations in Chicago, the Rotarians gave special attention to Mr. McCahill's remarks and recommendations along this line.

"The privileged boy at the present time presents a far greater problem than that of the under-privileged boy. I mean your boy and my boy, the average garden variety of boys of Rotarians and others occupying a similar position in the social fabric of our cities.

"The problem of the privileged boy has not been recognized by our organizations and institutions for boys, and therefore like the dangerous street crossing it constitutes a grave danger and will continue to constitute a grave danger until it is recognized and steps taken to solve the problem."

"My personal investigation of this matter leads me to the conclusion that full responsibility for this can be placed direct I place the responsibility right back where it belongs—upon your head and mine. There is a time in every boy's life when he seeks the companionship of other boys outside the home and even separate and apart from his father, no matter how companionable that father may be. That boy has not lived who at some time or another has not entertained the "gang" spirit; the future of the boy, then, depends upon the leader of his "gang" and very often one boy in a neighborhood courageous and daring, the usual type of which will not join any of the service organizations, can very shortly undo by his unwholesome companionship and ideas, all the teaching and examples that a boy takes with him from the best homes.

"The problem is not to subdue the courage and daring of the "Gang leader" but to guide it in the proper direction, in proper channels and utilize it in making good citizenship. I would like to see a non-sectarian, self-governing boys' club in every community—where the boy is King—so attractive that he will be glad to spend his spare time during his adolescent period in healthy companionship with other boys of his own age and where the "gang spirit" will have full sway in clean wholesome play and exercises and in that way this same gang spirit, so dangerous when not controlled or directed, will be utilized to the fullest extent by developing leadership, initiative, and courage along the right lines among the boys.

"If such a club be organized, general, though inviolable, supervision and guidance of the boy will take the place in the life of the boy of the present unhealthy moral destroying counsel which is now available for your boy and mine in pool-room and dark alleys and which can only result in bad citizenship and often in degradation and crime. If every Rotarian would appoint himself individually as the organizer of such a club in his community, this great work could be accomplished and the problem of the dangerous crossing will give place to a broad highway which can be trod by your boy and mine in perfect safety to the end that our last days may be peaceful and happy and that we may leave behind us no regrets about "our boy."

We are facing facts, not theories; let us see this problem as it is and let us work for its solution."

Let the people of this District think well over the fact that the eyes of their exiled countrymen in the United States, Canada and elsewhere are upon them, as well as the newspapers and statesmen of other countries. Hundreds of Newfoundlanders abroad will return to their Native Land as soon as the terrible state of affairs left as a legacy by the previous government has been cleaned up. Already we see the bright sun of prosperity once more shining upon our beloved country. New life has been infused into the Commerce of our country, and supplies have been issued to a greater extent than for years past. Our credit abroad has taken an upward tendency, and our customers in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Greece and Brazil have greater confidence in our commercial transactions, and are no longer afraid of some "wild-cat" scheme being put into operation to paralyze the trade. Before two years Newfoundland will be swarming with a wind, canvas all set and flags flying. Then it is up to the District of Harbour Grace to assert its independence, and assist Walter Monroe and his associates to once more place our beloved country in the proud position she has occupied for centuries. Our countrymen abroad will be watching our actions on the 3rd of July. They but wait the opportunity to once more return to their Native Land, and take up their time-honored avocation from which they were driven by incapable rulers, who sacrificed the country for their own aggrandizement. Already many of our exiled countrymen have returned, and more are to follow.

People of Harbor Grace District, will you disappoint them? They are anxiously awaiting the result. Out with the vaudeville politicians and support the good and clean Government under Monroe and his colleagues. I remain, Mr. Editor, Yours very truly,

Queen Victoria's Memorial Finished

New picture postcards of the Queen Victoria Memorial in front of Buckingham Palace will have to be printed. Recently two statutes of bronze figures, cast from the designs of the sculptor, the late Sir Thomas Brock, have been placed on the balustrade.

One piece of statuary, representing "Naval and Military Power," looks towards St. James's Palace, and contains the figure of a man clutching a sword and a woman holding a boat of an early period.

The other, representing "Science and Art," and facing the main entrance to the Green Park, shows a man and woman in a reclining position, the woman with an easel on her arm.

Thus, after 13 years, the Queen Victoria Memorial is complete.

Child Welfare Association

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A ST. JOHN'S COMMUNITY NURSE.

(By S. S.)

In bringing to the public the work-a-day life of the Child Welfare Workers we realize that while all of you have a passing acquaintance with the Community Nurse, yet perhaps many of you know very little of the real work she is doing in the homes of the people that our child life may be saved; our mortality rate lowered and babies feet set on the right track that will enable them later to face life more efficiently and successfully, and so we will give you a simple word picture of "A Day With A Community Nurse," taking you through scenes that are perhaps strange and unfamiliar and to the door of folk who are bearing heavy burdens.

Our first visit will be in response to an early call made by a bright child of nine years who iseping, informs us that "a new baby has cummed and was sick." On approaching the house our first impressions are made by the clean scrubbed steps, while the inside of the house is but an echo of the out, telling us of the grit of a true Newfoundlander. Here we find a brave little mother, with the "sick" baby, three days old, who has been annoying the upstairs tenants by its cries, mother diagnosed trouble as "crossness." Here we advise regular feedings, with drinks of cooled bottled water between and suiting the words to action we boil out a lemonade bottle and from the recesses of our bag bring forth a nipple, which is likewise boiled, then baby has a drink and after a few moments falls asleep contented. Directions are left with the housekeeper of nine years, who has three other toddlers under her care for as well as a "sick" baby.

From her we hurry along to make re-visits to newly-borns, finding here and there, in spite of our eternal preaching, beautiful "comforters" adorning baby's dress. Here we preach the ill-effects produced by use of comforters and that regular feeding by the clock will overcome this habit. We invite these mothers to the "Well Baby" Clinic.

Our next visit is to a motherless bunch of boys and girls, to invite them to an outing which takes place two days later. They are singled out by ages, the lucky ones grinning, the unlucky ones in tears; here we are perplexed for we find from the boys' stories that four of the family were born in the same year and are the same age. We push ourselves past the swarm of children and find ourselves in the kitchen; the father has gone to work early and the fire is out. Pushing back the dishes from the table, let us see what this family of growing boys and girls have had for their breakfast: a plate of meat holds the central position on the table, a knife on the side indicates that self-service has been the method used, a can of condensed milk; remnants of bread; a crock of molasses, with the unfriendly flies reposing in numbers thereon; the dregs of a strong cup of tea at each place completes the fare. Right here we tell the children who crowd around, the first requirements for a healthy body and sound mind. Here we find ourselves face to face with real tragedy—the mother weary with the burden of living, has passed out, leaving a family of children ready to be set adrift on the sea of life without a rudder, bound for shipwreck on the rocks, and some, perhaps, to find shelter later on in our penal institutions. Before we leave we must find a neighbor to keep an eye on the children until the father returns from work.

We hurry to our next call, which is to take two children to the hospital to have tonsils and adenoids removed, arrangements having been made two days previous. On entering the house we find that bribery and corruption has been used by the mother to get the children in their present clean condition and decent mood. At the mother's request we next cross the hall and see her baby and on returning to the kitchen we find no trace of our "tonsils and adenoids"—search proving fruitless. On emerging from the doorway we behold the culprit grinning and peering around the corner of the square. We call and beckon; the children scamper and we give chase, losing ourselves in a lane; we have to report to hospital and try our luck at pacifying the two M.D.'s who are waiting for the patients.

After lunch the phone tinkled merrily and we are told that a bed has been prepared in the hospital for one of our expectant mothers, who is living in poverty and filth, on arriving we find six or seven neighbors, all in the capacity of Job's Comforters, telling the mother that she will "never live to see home if she goes to that place." Permission on our part is of no avail, we phone the Clergy, he comes and also fails. Feeling terribly depressed and beaten we leave. Next day the husband calls and says "the wife will go to hospital." Arrived in the neighbour's clothes and like the daw in borrowed feathers, we make a triumphant entry into Hospital and breathe a sigh of relief.

Back to the Centre we find a message saying that a baby in an outlying district is ill. Here we find a baby suffering from "thrush" which has left baby in a terrible condition. The mother insists "thrush" is something all babies must have; we inform her that it is lack of cleanliness in handling baby's bottles and nipples. We show her how to take care of these, and advise treatment for baby's condition.

Passing on our way home we hear our name called and looking up we see a woman leaning out of a window asking us to come up and see the baby. There we find the baby terribly scalded and suffering agonies. The baby had pilled at a cup of hot tea while sitting in the mother's arms at table; we immediately apply treatment and instruct the mother to call a doctor and he may arrange for a nice white bed in the hospital and give baby a chance.

And now as we make our way back to the Clinic, thinking back over the day—for it has been a hard one—we wonder if after all it has been worth while. Then there flashes over us the remembrance of the hand-grasp and smile that speaks appreciation more truly than words; and we hear the age-old message ringing down the years:—"Inasmuch as ye did unto the least of these, ye did it unto Me."

Your grocer will be glad to recommend Crisco for frying fresh codfish. The chances are he is using it in his own home and knows how good Crisco fried fish tastes.—adv.

Last Chance to see "The Challenge"

BEAUTIFUL PHOTOPLAY NOW SHOWING AT THE NICKEL.

One of the finest photoplays seen in a long while is the production entitled "The Challenge" which finishes its engagement at the Nickel Theatre to-night. The leading feminine role is in the capable hands of Dolores Cassinelli, whilst the hero is cleverly portrayed by one of the screen's most handsome stars, Rod LaRocque. To give you an idea of what a beautiful story "The Challenge" is we herewith give a short synopsis.

Barbara Hastings, hostess at a fashionable mountain resort, has two suitors—Stanley Roberts, an artist, and Ralph Westley, banker. Her preference for the artist brings the banker's jealousy to a climax. When she marries Roberts and goes to live in New York, Westley determines to separate them. First he anonymously purchases Roberts' big picture and sees the artist plunge into extravagance. Then he causes a position to be offered to Barbara. After that she is offered her old place back at the hotel. Through it all she remains steadfast in her duty to her husband. Finally when Roberts is brought to him down and out the banker makes his big decision. This is the surprise of the story.

A treat of singing is in store for those who attend to-night. Miss Marjorie Hutchings, St. John's gifted Contralto was never heard to better advantage than in her renditions of "Land of Hope and Glory" and "Danny Boy." Her voice is rich and full to which there is added beautiful touch of expression and clarity. To-night Miss Hutchings will again render the above popular songs.

The test of Ivory Soap is that it keeps its promise which is to cleanse the skin thoroughly. No soap can do more. Many promise to work wonders with your complexion—but how many soaps can faithfully keep that promise?

Fun in Galore in "Squibs, M.P."

LAST SHOWING AT THE CRESCENT TO-NIGHT.

The laughs are supplied in wholesale quantities in "Squibs, M.P." in which Betty Balfour is starred at the Crescent Theatre to-night.

From the entertainment point of view the essential thing to know is that large successful laugh in wit succession, and "Squibs, M.P." loquacious succession, and "Squibs, M.P." easily proves to be the funniest film in which Miss Balfour has ever played, and she outshines herself still further in her already assailable position as Britain's leading screen comedienne, if not of the whole world.

The master touch of George Pearson runs through the whole production, and is particularly apparent in the characterisation. Attention is called to the fact that another big American Contest will take place on Friday night. Names of contestants are now being received at the Box Office. It's going to be a big night—keep it open.

MYLER—CAREW.

With a number of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom present a pretty wedding took place at St. Patrick's Church yesterday afternoon, the principals to the ceremony being Mr. Gerald Carew of the Nfld. Government Dock Office, and son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Carew, and Miss Ida Myler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Myler of Brian Street. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Fr. St. John and the bride was assisted by Miss Patricia Carew, sister of the groom, while Mr. Frank Armstrong, cousin of that happy personage, performed the duties of best man. The bride looked very pretty in a handsome dress of grey Canton crepe, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of sweet peas, maiden hair fern and smilax trails, while the bridesmaid was attired in a gown of tawn Canton crepe and black picture hat, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and forget-me-nots. After the wedding ceremony the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where the health of the newly wedded couple was duly honoured, after which they motored to Holyrood where the honeymoon will be spent. They were the recipients of many very beautiful presents, testifying to the esteem in which they are held by a large circle of friends. Several telegrams of congratulation were received from relatives in Chicago and Boston. In the many wishes for prosperity and happiness extended them the Telegram heartily joins.

The Outer Cove Garden Party

BRILLIANT SUCCESS AND BRILLIANT SUNSHINE.

The Garden Party in aid of St. Francis Parish, which took place at Outer Cove on Sunday past was most successful from all viewpoints. Apparently those responsible are on excellent terms with the Toronto weatherman, as the day was really the first brilliantly beautiful day for the summer.

Thanks to the taxi and bus owners co-operation a record attendance was present and record receipts are the result.

Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the table-holders. Their catering was most excellent, as it is always, and the teas served were so deliciously appetising and satisfying that one and all rendered without tiring, a verdict of guilty—guilty of supplying the very best teas served at Garden Parties. Among the numerous and very welcome visitors was Mr. Jas. T. Parker, who unfailingly patronizes the affair year after year and handsomely makes his presence felt.

Several Honorables, genial and generous they were too—Sir John Crosbie, W. J. Higgins, and M. S. Sullivan, kindly made a prolonged call, and is very much appreciated. Many familiar faces, prominent amongst whom were Messrs. C. J. Fox, and N. J. Wincombe, L. V. Cashin, C. L. Cahill, J. T. Piggot, W. J. and J. Ryan, J. Kelly, M. J. O'Brien, T. Kennedy, J. Nugent, M. J. and P. Myrick, S. D. Ryall, W. F. Graham, J. J. Parker, R. Crosbie, Messrs. Coffin and hosts of others equally prominent and equally generous, but really too numerous to mention, very kindly came and very generously assisted along the good cause.

Of course the ladies were there too. "Citizen" had assured us they would be in hundreds—all smiling and generous, and all delighted with the weather-man, the genial surroundings and the hearty welcome extended.

Several of the city priests kindly came along and lent the weight of both influence and purse to the affair; whilst others of the clergy, unable to be present, generously assisted from afar.

To one and all as well Catholics as Protestants Fr. O'Callaghan endeavored to live up to "Citizen's" promise, and who is now assiduously practising the "June Best Smile" and the good people of St. Francis parish are deeply grateful for they forget the genial greetings of the Orphan Band. Indeed the Mount Cashel Band is quickly making its way to the very forefront and the boys' reflect the very greatest credit upon Rev. Bro. Walsh and the enthusiastic Mr. Bulley. Again many grateful thanks, God's blessing and good luck to all.

MILNARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

Democratic National Convention Opens

BEN DEACON, Canadian Press Correspondent.

YORK, June 24.—On the eve of the Democratic national convention the most prevalent opinion—and undoubtedly too, the accurate—regarding the big Madison Square Garden assemblage to-day is that "anything may happen."

There are other predictions, of course. Judge David Ladd Rockwell, of Chicago, is predicting that William McAdoo, son-in-law of the late President Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson Cabinet, will be the choice of the convention.

Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, is predicting that the coming Democratic nominee, are the following:—

wood, who at one time had pre-convention booms but who recently have faded from view, and even others who have not been boomed but merely "mentioned" are in a better strategic position than either McAdoo or Smith.

Judge Rockwell, McAdoo's manager, undoubtedly has a majority of delegates pledged to vote for his man, even though their number is variously estimated and the Rockwell tabulation differs widely from that of Tammany. However, it requires a two-thirds vote to nominate under the present rules of the Democratic party.

A month ago Rockwell was predicting that McAdoo would be nominated on the third ballot. He now admits that his man will win the prize only after a long battle.

The linking of McAdoo's name with the oil scandal undoubtedly gave additional strength to Smith, but some of the leaders of the Smith faction appear to be rather less confident than formerly as the delegates gather for the convention.

The New York governor appears to be wearing a bit thin. From both camps there continues to come, of course, the customary predictions of victory, but to the neutral observer there are many indications that both sides are in reality much in doubt as to the outcome.

No Shortage of Candidates. There is no lack of available candidates. The difficulty in the event of a deadlock will be finding the man upon whom the contending factions can agree as a compromise.

Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama. Senator Jos T. Robinson, of Arkansas. Homer S. Cummings, of Connecticut.

Willard Salisbury, of Delaware. Mayor Dever, of Chicago. Senator Samuel Moffatt Ralston, of Indiana.

Ex-Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, of Iowa. Governor Jonathan Davis, of Kansas. Governor Albert G. Ritchie, of Maryland.

Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris, of Michigan. Governor Chas. Bryan, of Nebraska. Ex-Governor Cox, of Ohio, nominee in 1920.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia. John W. Davis, of West Virginia, ex-Ambassador to Great Britain. Senator John B. Dendrick, of Wyoming.

Governor Fred. H. Brown, of New Hampshire. Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York. Governor Silzer, of New Jersey.

Josephus Daniels, North Carolina, ex-Secretary Navy. Senator Walsh, of Montana. Governor Pat Morris Neff, of Texas. Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri.

William Jennings Bryan, of Florida, veteran Democratic politician and one-time power in the party. Some of these men have declared they do not want, or will not accept, the nomination. Nevertheless they stand a good chance of figuring in the balloting.

Impress upon Copeland the theory that there can only be one candidate for President from New York this year. It is claimed that some of the Smith leaders, fear that Copeland may become independent, and in the event of a deadlock precipitate a break from Smith.

Senator Underwood occupies a favorable position among the dark horses by reason of a vigorous pre-convention campaign. This, while it failed to gain him many pledged delegates, focused attention upon his undisputed excellent qualities and brought him favourable mention from a number of the "conservative" leaders of the party.

Optimism in Both Camps. In the other camp gossip names Senator Ralston as second choice. The Indiana senator undoubtedly has an advantage over the majority of the other dark horses.

It may seem strange but this Company has been doing just that thing for a quarter of a century. We pay for all injuries, $25.00 weekly or $5,000 for loss of life, at an annual premium of only $16.00 which is thirty cents per week.

At this cost what business man can afford to be without it? You may never need it, but if you play with Fate, you may be caught napping. It costs only five cents a day while you're o.k. to give you $25.00 a week when that injury happens.
