Horse Distemper
Prince Edward Farmer solemnly declares Nerviline is a Specific

After fifty years experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results, for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline. Thus upon the very earnest letter of J. J. Ryanston, who lives near Wellington, P. E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper about a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough."
I tried different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat three times a day and you would scarce believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock.
For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large bottles 25c., five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Cattaraugus Co., Kingston, Ont.

Shark vs. Porpoise

Notwithstanding the terrible nature of the shark, he has a yellow streak. The porpoise of to-day kills him in short order, biting through his vital spot just below the lower gill. It is no uncommon sight to-day to see a school of porpoises scare away all the sharks in their neighborhood. When a man eating shark gets venturous a porpoise is detached from the school by the leader to kill them. He pursues, chasing the shark around and around in a circle till he closes on him, giving him the deadly bite. If he can, the shark makes for shallow water and sometimes only sees so last that he lands high and dry on the sand bar, the object of ridicule.

AND PERHAPS DEATH BY FISHERMEN
The largest sharks of to-day are the basking sharks, Ceterhinus maximus, seen in various ocean. They are stated to have a length up to forty feet. The largest one ever captured was taken last autumn in the San Pedro Bay, Cal., measuring thirty-two feet long and weighing 14,000 pounds. Its circumference at the juncture of the head and body was fifteen feet and its mouth opened was two and a half feet wide by three feet high. A photograph of it shows two Italian fishermen were flabbergasted to find the animal in their nets, but you know the common characteristic of the Italian condemned by some, admired by others, of following his knife. The big fellow wobbled around, tore the nets to shreds, but got

WOUND UP IN THE TWINE
While he was snapping at his captors they were driving him towards the beach and driving harpoons into his body. They reached his throat, the vital spot, finally and the greatest shark lattle known to man was over. In his big stomach were bushels of fish that paid the penalty for living.
The man-eating sharks, so called, are feared to range up to twenty-five feet in length. The largest one the writer ever saw was killed in Pensacola, Fla., by a porpoise, in the manner described above, in the presence of several thousand spectators on the wharves, and some three hundred vessels riding at anchor. When it was assured that the monster was dead by the porpoise returning to the school from which it was detached, apparently by the leader, a huge male, boatmen, towed the carcass to the wharf, where it was measured and made good for a full eighteen feet.

Drive Rheumatism out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy and see how quickly pain will depart. Rheum never did reach the real disease Rheumatism isn't in the skin. It's deep down—it's constitutional. Getting rid of the pain is after all what counts. That is why Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy goes by word of mouth from one to another, and herein lies the popularity of this Remedy. It is winning defenders everywhere. Tablets or Liquid. Sold by all Dealers.

Charles VII. Wore First Hat

Charles VII. on his triumphant entry into Rouen in the year 1449, we are told astounded the whole city by appearing in a hat lined with red silk and surmounted by a plume of feathers. It was the first time the citizens had ever seen a hat. From this entry of Charles into Rouen the beginning of the custom of wearing hats in Europe is dated. It was all very well for the rich citizens to follow the example of royalty, but when the clergy began to sigh for similar splendor it was regarded as a falling away from grace. Priests or religious persons were at last forbidden to appear abroad in anything except "chaprons, made of black cloth with decent coronets." A still more striking development took place in the sixteenth century. By the statute of Queen Elizabeth every person above the age of seven years, and under a certain degree, was obliged on Sunday and holidays to wear a wooden cap—made in England—made in England—and finished by some of the fraternal capers—under the penalty of three shillings and six pence for every day's neglect.

33 Best Reasons Urged in the Demand for Ballots for Women

In all places where woman suffrage has been tried in any degree it has been retained and increased in scope.

The present opposition to woman suffrage is the last sullen struggle to keep woman exclusively as a domestic animal.

The tone of the voting booths has been raised by having women sit as judges and act as clerks in company with men.

America needs all the resources of her thoughtful women put into action to secure the greatest progress of the country.

American women feel themselves to be citizens, and as such suffrage for them is merely a matter of justice, not chivalry.

The increasing employment of women in factories and offices requires that women should have some voice in making the laws that control these occupations.

Suffrage causes a great awakening of dormant faculties and would lift millions of women out of a narrow run into a newer and bigger scale of life, thought and action.

Experience in Colorado has shown that most women vote the same ticket that their husbands do, but that where the wife votes differently it causes no friction in the home.

Woman's standpoint and interests differ vastly from man's and it is quite impossible for him to make or execute laws that affect her as well as members of her own sex could do.

The time has come when women will be heard, and it would be a great saving of time to them if they could vote and go about their regular business instead of having to devote so much time to agitation for their rights.

With increasing freedom from household drudgery of the modern woman, she needs the ballot and civic affairs to take up her attention, or she will deteriorate and run to foolish fads and social extravaganzas.

The non-partisan women's vote in Denver last fall caused the election of the best Juvenile Magistrate the city has ever had, Judge Lindsay, on an independent ticket after he had been refused a nomination by both the regular party managers.

That women's presence at the polls is an elevating influence is shown by the fact that in Denver many of the polling places are in private residences and going to vote is much like making a social call. The entire family of adult age usually go together.

That the good classes of women vastly outvote the bad class was proven at the last election in Denver, when 55 per cent of the women of the select Capitol Hill district voted, 37 per cent of the women of other good residential parts, and only 10 per cent of the women from the disreputable district went to the polls.

While women might not go to the polls as regularly as men, they would be a reserve force for good that would come into effect with overwhelming power whenever a moral principle was at stake.

As women are natural housekeepers they should have a chance to direct or administer certain departments of a city's housekeeping, such as tenement inspection and street cleaning, as men do not recognize dirt when they see it.

That feminine votes and legislation can quickly raise the wages and industrial condition of women is shown by the fact that in Norway women postal clerks have been given the same wages as men, and the equal pay plan is being extended to other vocations since women have had the full franchise.

Women have been warriors, like the Shield Maidens of the Norse people, the famous Amazons of ancient times, while Joan of Arc in recent history has shown that woman has not lost her ability to fight in war, and there have been and are to-day many Queens and Councillors of State, thus answering all arguments against her ability to take part in every function and emergency of government.

In Idaho women's potential influence has shown itself in the making and executing of better laws.

Fires are so constructed that heat passes directly under every pot-hole and around oven twice before passing up chimney. The amazing thing is that people should hunt for excuses for denying Woman's Suffrage, instead of being rejoiced that women are anxious to vote and help carry the burdens of government.

Woman's suffrage is gaining ground all over the world, being in full operation in four of the Western States, in partial use in twenty-five States, and South Dakota and Washington are preparing for equal suffrage, while most of Australasia grants women full voting rights and Norway and Finland have also given them universal suffrage, and in England women can now vote for nearly all candidates except for Members of Parliament.

Women's clubs, societies, and trades unions have been educating and fitting women for intelligent voting and full citizenship.

Women can do more good with the ballot than with all their pink teas, charitable entertainments and stum work combined.

Child bearing and child rearing are a greater service to the State than military service by men, and should have their reward in the ballot.

Since women are taxed, they should have a voice in selecting the assessors and appraisers. Men would refuse to be taxed under such conditions.

Women should be allowed to elect judges and officers to administer women's courts and look after the particular needs of their sex.

Women, if voting, would extend the custom of holding juvenile courts to check the increasing degeneracy of youth in the large cities.

Until women are able to reinforce their trades unions with votes they will never be able to get recognition in Legislatures and Parliaments.

Woman's influence has been the main-spring of the Prohibition movement and her vote would put the severest check on alcohol, both in making temperance and anti-gambling laws and in enforcing them.

A practical example of the wisdom of woman's suffrage is shown in Colorado, which has the best laws of any State in the Union for the care and safeguarding of children and for the treatment of unfortunate.

Women do not want to get all the offices and control the Legislatures, as has been charged, and drive men out of politics. They are perfectly satisfied with a few educational offices, which the men willingly give them.

Man has always placed figures of women as symbols of Truth, Justice, Liberty, upon public buildings, which is really a confession that in his inner consciousness man recognizes woman as his superior in all that good government stands for.

In the midst of such indifferent citizenship as prevails largely to-day, the sight of women working, praying and fighting for liberty and a noble use of the ballot is the best example that could be set before men, and should shame them not only into granting women's demands, but inspire men to make better use of their own franchise.

10 Best Reasons Against

Women without character readily become the tools of unscrupulous politicians and are guilty of the grossest election frauds.

Where woman suffrage has been tried in Western States it has not had any appreciable effect in purifying and uplifting politics.

Politics, like business, is something that the majority of women are not fitted for, the few exceptions to which only serve to prove the rule.

The ballot is not a natural right, but an expedient of government which man by universal consent in past ages has been found more fitted to exercise.

Politics is a nerve-racking struggle, which deadens woman's finer sensibilities and causes her to lose her greatest power her influence over and the respect of men.

Government is the strong protecting arm of society, which man by a natural instinct conducts, but as he universally stands as the protecting head of the family.

To give woman the ballot would only reveal her weakness, render her liable to fall into legal and political traps and bring ridicule and disgrace upon her and her family.

In the case of the fraudulent election of a Colorado Congressman it was proven that women played a conspicuous part in election frauds, even inclining men to fight at the polls.

Even if women should vote in sufficient numbers to make it worth while, the votes of the ignorant, the disreputable, the thoughtless would outweigh those of the thoughtful.

Men do not want to be compelled to argue with woman on the platform, or else meekly yield to her wishes in weak and undutiful gallantry, in ways that would be harmful to the community.

In addition to the great body of women who are totally indifferent to it, there is a numerous class of the most intelligent women in every community who are actively opposed to having their sex drawn into politics.

Woman would be a dangerous element in politics, especially in great emergencies, when her emotional nature might make her precipitate the nation into war or other serious trouble against the calmer judgement of men.

The argument that women who own property should vote is invalid, because there is no property qualification in this country, it is contrary to the spirit of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

Laws which tax women's property were made by men who are taxed likewise; if they are unjust, the men themselves will repeal them, and if just, then women taxpayers have no right to complain.

In Chicago, Cleveland and other American cities where women have been allowed to vote in municipal elections the number of women who registered and voted has grown less from year to year until it has amounted to nothing.

Drawing women into politics would be only another wedge forcing women into further competition with men, a condition which is unsexing the woman, unfitting her for motherhood to an alarming extent, wakening her children and endangering future generations.

The voters of the parish will soon be called upon to elect councillors. This year the town will not have a vote in the election. The parish will choose their own representatives and the electors should see to it that good men are sent to the shiretown. The municipal council is an important body and the new road act lays certain duties on the councillors which are worthy of the attention of the best men available. Your councillor is a member of the "road board" and aids the chairman of the board in selecting commissioners who lay out your money on the roads. Good roads are imperative, select good men for councillors they in turn will appoint good men to office and good roads will follow.

THE CARE OF SHADE TREES

"One of the things that are particularly noticeable in New England," said a man who recently returned from a trip through that section, was the beautiful shade trees that are in evidence and of which the greatest care is taken.

"The people there have come to realize the value of trees, a fact which results in the care of them that is so apparent to the observers. They are carefully guarded as property of at least a semi-public kind, for it is considered that they add to the beauty and comfort of the street.

"This one feature adds a charm to old villages which is lacking in those where trees are not to be found. Compare the pictures of a village in the East with those of some of the Western plains and the difference in this respect will be very evident. As the years go on this will be changed, and the Westerners will see to it that the streets of their towns are lined with trees.

"No city and no village can afford to lose the trees that shade its streets without replacing them. Moreover, none of them can afford to neglect to set them out along new thoroughfares. They add to the beauty of the town and to the value of its real estate.

The departure of our summer visitors furnishes food for reflection for us all, and should impress us with the importance of looking after this source of revenue. Three or four months sojourn in our town or vicinity, by a stranger, means the circulation of a certain sum of money, and that is good for the town. Now it is a fact, no one questions, that we are naturally in a position to command the approval of visitors. Nature has been lavish hereabouts. We have everything that takes the eye of "lovers of the wild." The salt breeze, cool and invigorating and the sea over which it blows, no distance away, the Magagnadic, whose rock and tree decked banks between the town and the bay, never fails to attract the eye of the artist and excite the admiration of travellers; the falls and rocky gorge, through which the water rushes, forming a scene of grandeur unrivalled, the smooth tranquil river above the falls, with its turns and currents; the level intervals, fields of beauty, hills and mountains and miles of forests, whose foliage rival the rainbow in the beauty of their different hues. Brooks whose sources are found in mineral beds and whose waters contain all the ingredients the weary seeker after health travels thousands of miles to obtain; canals upon whose surface the mirrored back trees appear to grow, and lakes where the gamy trout are found. Nature has indeed been generous.

St. George should be the mecca for all the tourists coming this way. It is the central point, with the soft water lapping its Southern shores—the lakes and hunting grounds in every other direction, and yet the stranger comes and passes through. Why? We have no place for him to stay. Let him do as he can and let a notorious fact that they must go hungry or go to Bonny River. Civic people should spur our citizens to end this plight of strangers and the returns the investment would undoubtedly bring should spur our business men to action and a new hotel should be built.

BY THE WAY

School days!
The hunting season.
Send your boys and girls to school.
Thunder in September and November is said to indicate a fertile year to come.
Before going into the woods, obtain a license. Before shooting, be sure of your quarry.
Carry your rifle with the muzzle away from your friend, carry it ready for action.
A bullet will pierce your shoes, moccasin or boot, never rest your gun had end down on them, they are not armour proof and your foot pains dreadfully with a bullet hole through it.
Don't travel fifty miles, it is not necessary. A moose drank at the town pump trough yesterday, another swam the canal, a deer inspected the corduroy bridge at Armstrongs and didn't think much of it, crops in all directions are suffering from the depredations of deer, moose, porcupines and bears. Stay out of the woods till the leaves are off, hunt the roads, hunt in the open, it is safer and your chances are better.

There is an affection in every employment, and it gives the spirit energy, and keeps the mind intent upon its work or study. This, if it be not relaxed, becomes dull, and its earnestness flags—as salt that has lost its savor, so that it has no pungency or relish; or as a bent-down bow, which, unless it be unbent, loses the power that it derives from its elasticity. Just as the mind, kept from day to day in the same ideas, without variety. So the eyes, when they look only at one object, or continually upon one color. For, to look continually at a thing which is black, or continually at red or at white, destroys the sight. Thus if one looks continually at the snow the sight is destroyed; but it is enlivened if he looks in succession or at the same time upon many colors. Every form de-lights by its varieties—as a garland of roses of different colors arranged in beautiful order. Hence it is that the rainbow is more charming than the light itself.—Emanuel Swedenborg.

Lines to a Common Hen

O hen!
Thou bunch of feathered imbecility.
Disturber of the soul's tranquility.
Whence comes thy consummate ability
To rouse such wrath in me?
O hen!
Again!
Must I walk 'round the coop
And give an awkward scoop
To clutch the vacant air
And find that you're not there
Nor anywhere!
And then
Begin again,
O hen!
Thou gem of animal depravity,
Thy skull not but a witless cavity.
Philosophers assert with gravity
That I am kin to thee.
O hen!
What then?
Must I walk 'round the fence
Because you squawk pretence
You cannot find the hole
Through which you lately stole
In aimless stroll,
And then
Walk 'round again,
O hen!
—Woman's Home Companion.

The saying that one cannot meet a red-haired girl without there being a white horse in the vicinity, and vice versa, is by no means modern, having originated from the old English game called the "game of the road," or "ups and downs." This game consists of one person taking the upside of the street and the other the down, counting one for every ordinary object that passes and five for a white horse, until a certain number agreed upon carries off the victory. But if either of the contestants meets a red-headed woman or a donkey, he wins the game at once.

Still another explanation is that derived from an old Irish superstition that if any one starts on a journey and meets a red-headed girl he will be followed by bad luck unless he retraces his steps to the starting point. But if on his way back he meets a white horse, the spell is broken. In the midland counties of England, it is bad luck to meet a white horse without spitting at it, and in Scotland to dream of a white horse foretells the coming of a letter.

The prejudice against red hair is firm and ancient. Tradition gives Judas red hair, and no doubt this has something to do with its universal unpopularity.

There is an old French proverb which warns all mortals to "salute no red-haired individual nearer than thirty-five feet, with three stones in the fist to defend thee in thy need."

The ancient Egyptians looked on any one with red hair as being connected with evil spirits, and they sacrificed red oxen in preference to others.

The government has fixed Monday October 25th, as Thanksgiving Day.

Miss Elma Brown, of this town, was a winner in the Tiger Tea contest, in which she was awarded for the best written letter.

Hunters will be interested in the "sports" line of Sweaters and Hunting Boots at Frauley Bros. Finest line we have ever seen here.

Bridge Inspector Austin, with a crew of men is repairing the Canal bridge. The structure has been raised two feet eight inches and securely bolted and a new top and rail put on.

It would be to the advantage of parties wishing moose, deer or caribou heads mounted to consult Henry E. Matheson, Bonny River, licensed taxidermist, whose work in this line is unexcelled.

The excursion last week under the auspices of St. Mark's church, on the St. Henry F. Eaton was well patronized. The day was fine and the sail was thoroughly enjoyed, the band furnished music during the trip.

Peace and quiet again reign in McKee's Rocks, Pa. The costly strike which has been in progress fifty-three days at the Fressed Steel Car Company's plant, is over. The men have won a complete victory.

Hon. W. C. H. Grimmer, Surveyor General, says at Mac's Bay it will be necessary to construct a wall about 100 yards in length and at Little Lepreau a wall nearly 200 yards long of crib work to protect the highway from the sea. Asked as to the cost of lumber this year Mr. Grimmer said it would be about 40 per cent. below the average.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, has verbally accepted the date Sept. 28 for the banquet in his honor and will give a formal acceptance. Mayor Bullock is chairman of the committee in charge. It is understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his cabinet will all be invited. The Dufferin hotel will have charge of the catering. The banquet is to be at the Keith assembly rooms.

Woodstock, N. B., Sept. 5.—(Special)—At the residence of Donald Munro, M. P., where she has resided for a month, Mrs. Mary McFarlan, widow of Amantas McFarlan, for many years a C. P. R. locomotive engineer, died this morning at 5 o'clock. Mrs. McFarlan, who has resided here the greater part of her life, was born at St. George. (N. B.) sixty-nine years ago, and was a daughter of the late Adam Gillmor. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Donald Munro, and one grandson, Roy McFarlan. The funeral will take place at 2.30 on Tuesday afternoon from the residence of D. Munro, with interment in the Methodist cemetery.

Here's a hen story, from the pen of a correspondent, who vouches for its truth: A lady residing in Milltown, N. B., wishing to break up a hen from setting, placed the hen under an empty barrel and left the barrel beside the barn, intending to release the hen in a day or two. The following day she went to St. George on a visit, forgetting all about her prisoner under the barrel. The visit lasted 14 days, at the end of which time the lady arrived home. The next day her attention was attracted by a peculiar noise; on investigation she found to her astonishment the hen which she had placed under the barrel just fifteen days before still alive, although it had been without food or water during the whole period. We don't imagine that particular hen will show any inclination to set again this season.—Advertiser.

Rats are becoming a scourge in certain sections of the town and as the cold weather approaches they will enter the houses. There are various ways of fighting rats, poison is effective but dangerous in homes where there are children, traps are good but generally demand handling of the rodent—everything considered nothing will settle the rat question quicker than cats. Cats are harmless creatures and should have a section in the game laws, giving them protection. A dog, whose only qualification is that he kills cats, is no good in a seaport town, he should be put out of the way and a man or boy who wanders and indelicately abuses one of these household pets should be shipped. The midnight curfew is a piece of fence, of a couple of rival tribes in the cat tribe, is far more pleasurable than the average sleep wooper, than the noisy howling of the hungry rodent who will bed in the vicinity of a child's bed. Let the cats alone and they are useful.

Harbor Light Division, Sons of Temperance, came thirty strong on Wednesday evening last from Beaver Harbor and were cordially received and entertained by the members of Red Granite Division in O'Brien & Gillmor's hall. Songs, recitations and the exchanging of felicitations made the passing hour go quickly and ice cream and cake drew the visitors and entertainers into closer social intercourse and the time for parting was greeted with regret.

The town council met on Monday evening in the town hall, Alderman McKenzie, in the absence of the Mayor, was in the chair. A number of small bills were passed, the assessors were ordered paid and the marshal received his monthly salary. The presence of four generations and eleven children, sons and daughters, of Mr. and Mrs. Elizabeth McQue of Pennfield made Tuesday of last week a memorable day at their home. A Real Lung Tonic

There are many preparations that will relieve a cough—few that will cure it. The first class, containing such drugs as Opium and Morphine, simply deaden the irritation and stop the cough, but do little or no permanent good.

"Father Morrissey's No. 10"

does not contain a trace of these dangerous drugs, but is an absolutely safe and scientific preparation of Nature's own remedies—Herbs, Roots and Balsams.

It entirely removes the irritation that caused the cough, by cleaning out the mucus, stopping the inflammation and healing the delicate membrane of throat and lungs.

Moreover, it tones up and strengthens the whole system, particularly the lungs, and protects against future coughs and colds.

Trial size 25c. per bottle. Regular size 50c.

GLENWOOD RANGES

Make Cooking Easy.

What People Have Drunk in all Ages.

Edward R. Emerson, a new York Wine merchant and vine-yardist, has written a very interesting two volume book, entitled "Beverages Past and Present," published by Putnam's, in which he tells how all the civilized and barbarous nations of the world have some form of convivial beverage, more or less intoxicating.

Wine, he shows, is the oldest known beverage of man, dating according to Biblical tradition to Noah, but in reality going back to a much earlier period among Oriental people than Old Testament days. Indeed the antiquity of nearly all artificial drinks is truly astonishing.

Even soda water, which we are accustomed to regard as a distinctly modern American beverage, Mr. Emerson shows, is derived from or patterned after the old Oriental sherbet.

"Its chief ingredient, the water, which has to undergo a costly preparation, deprives it of the social qualities so intimately connected with sherbet, and in consequence the preparing of soda water is confined to people who make it a business.

"The use of water containing carbon dioxide gas is a matter of early history. In the beginning these waters were only to be had from natural sources, but as education increased, the art of making this peculiar gas was involved. At first this substance was called by the rather lengthy title of carbonic acid gas, but owing to the fact that sodium bicarbonate in conjunction with an acid was used to produce this change the name was soon shortened to soda water.

"The desire to render the water more palatable was owing to the dislike of many people for pungency and the use of syrups naturally followed; unfortunately neither history nor legend tells us when this history began, but there are signs to show that this taste is being curbed and that the less harmful wine drinking is coming more into vogue, together with the still lighter temperance beverages. The taste for wine is apparently being fostered by the improved quality of the wine that is now being made in this country, both in the eastern States and in California.

The pure food law compelling wines to be made pure or to name on the label the adulterants used, the writer believes to be of the great benefit to the people at large as well as to develop a wine-making industry worthy to rank with that of Europe.

California is pre-eminently the wine-making and vine-growing State of the Union. It was the protusion of the wild vines that led the Franciscan Friars to plant cuttings of the old Spanish vines which they brought with them from Lower California. These cuttings it is believed, belonged to the malaga family.

In recent years all the finer varieties of European and Asiatic grapes have been introduced into California. The result of the planting or the fine-grade vines has been the producing of much better wines than had before been made and creating a decided change in the public mind in favor of California wines and the acquiring of markets that even the most sanguine Californians had not dared to hope for.

Besides the account of beverages, ancient and modern, and their nature which Mr. Emerson gives he also relates graphically the drinking customs of the Greeks in their synopsia, so famous in history, the banquets of the Romans the feasts of the Druids and Picts of Britain, and the potations of the savage tribes of Africa and America. All of these things tend to throw light on the social life, the manner and the morals of many times and diverse peoples.

Why Some Children Learn With Difficulty

A small coterie of French doctors is at present studying school children and has at the moment under its special observation that infantile phenomenon known as the dunce. The existence of the dunce frequently to be attributed, they declare, to faulty hygienic environment, unsuitable food or tactless treatment. Incidentally, they assert that a disposition for mathematical studies is no criterion of a capacity for original or vigorous thought and the ability to deal with numbers is often observable in the very weak of mind.

The dunce, they say is anything but a dunce. The poor child may suffer from weakness or sight, or incontinent deafness, and his teachers fail to note the fact. Morbid shyness and self-consciousness, often characteristic in children, are as frequently as not the explanation of the so-called dullard's inability to learn. All children do not progress with the same alertness. The phenomenon of grown-ups who are ten years behind their age, in regard to mentality has been noted by all physicians. Corvisart, Napoleon's doctor, declaring that these minds often prove the finest when they reach their maturity, and that the fact of their backwardness is invariably a sign that a ripe old age will be reached.

The personal character of children say these French doctors, requires to be trained in respect to pluck initiative and interest, before the purely mental attributes can expect to come into play.

Children who evince a dislike to play should be taught that success in play and kindred matters is the surest guarantee of success in the great game of life later on. Particular care must be taken in the selection of schools and school surroundings for children who are unusually fat or overgrown, or who show a tendency to be what is known as "old-fashioned."

When children are likely to become the butts of their companions, parents can not be too careful in deciding as to how they shall be trained.

It's a pity when sick ones drag the stomach or stimulate the heart and kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak stomach means weak stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the heart, and kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. That's explains why Dr. Sloop's Restorative is promptly helping Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailments. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments--the falling "inside nerves". Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all Dealers.

Keeping Milk by Chilling It

One method of keeping milk consists in sterilization by heating to 250 deg. F., but this process changes the flavor of the milk, renders it indigestible and alters its chemical composition. Pasteurization at 176 deg. F. and simple boiling at 212 deg. F. are less objectionable, but although the germs of disease are destroyed by these methods other microbes are not destroyed, and the milk, consequently, does not keep very long. Freezing is seldom effective because of the difference in the freezing points of the various constituents of the milk, so that when the milk is melted it does not possess its original uniform and homogeneous character. Cooling to a temperature slightly above the freezing point has the advantage of leaving undisturbed the homogeneity, flavor, digestibility and nutritive value of the milk, and when the cooled milk is again warmed to the temperature of the air it is found to have undergone no alteration that can be detected by the microscope or chemical or biological tests. Besides, the cooling checks the multiplication of bacteria. The milk should be cooled immediately after it is drawn, or after pasteurization or boiling if these processes are adopted. When the milk is cooled to 35-1-2 F. it may be kept several days at any temperature lower than 55 deg. F.

The loftiest chimney in the world was recently put into service at the large works at Grand Falls, Mont., where it will serve to carry off the gases from the greater part of the plant. The chimney, which is built of brick, is 506 feet in height above the ground. It is 50 feet in diameter at the top and increases gradually in diameter to the base. The flue includes a dust chamber in which vertically hung wires serve to take out the dust from the smoke. The dust is removed from the wires by shaking mechanism and falls in hoppers in the floor from which it is loaded into carts to be taken away.
