Admiration For the Japs

Pronounced the Best Part of the Allied Force

In the Recent Operations at Tien Tsin and Pekin-They Combined the Good Qualities of All the Other Contingents-The Russian Scheme of Settlement-Counter Proposal From Germany-Britain's Attitude.

London at 6 o'clock this morning the correspondent of the Tribune says of the aspect of the Chinese situation at that hour: Actual news from China is again very meager this morning, and there is not much fresh information to be gleaned with regard to the proposed withdrawal of the allied troops from Pekin. Military men here continue to be impressed by the reports which arrive of the conduct of the Japanese in the recent operations The general testimony of competent witnesses who saw them at Tien Tsin is, that they were

BEST OF ALL THE CONTINGENTS which formed the allied force there, and telegraphic accounts of their proceedings on the march to Pekin confirms the opinion as to their admirable qualities. They marched as well as the Russians; they were as doggedly persistent under fire as the American and British infantry; they had the dash of the Indian cavalry, and nothing to learn from the Germans in matters of organization and equipment. The Americans, and most of the European troops suffered severely from the fatigues of the rapid march in ter-R LEYS' OFFICE WHIL BE AT THE London Hat, Cap and Mantle Manufacturing Company, 365 and 367 Clarence street, for the present. ing work throughout was also described as excellent.

ANOTHER GREAT MILITARY POWER.

Lord Wolseley and Sir Evelyn Wood, the adjutant-general of the British army, and Sir John Ardah, chief of the intelligence department, have been paying close attention to the accounts of the Japanese proceedings in the recent little campaign. No doubt their opinion would not greatly differ from that expressed from a distinguished officer, once famous in Indian warfare, who said: "The world has got to reckon with another great military power; Japan has a larger population than France, as much disciplined intelligence as Germany, and at least as great a natural aptitude for soldiering among her people as any European nation. In science and knowledge her general staff is second to none, and in courage, patriotism and contempt for death the rank and file of her army would certainly compare favorably with the conscript troops of the continent. Russia might overwhelm her by sheer weight of numbers, but in every other respect I look upon the Mikado potential military force as superior to that of the DEARTH OF PEKIN NEWS. The continued absence of news from Pekin, the latest dispatches from the Chinese capital being now ten days old, is arousing some anxiety; but, as the country between Pekin and the coast is known to be swarming with armed bands of Boxers, it is not surprising that couriers are not able to reach Tien Tsin. Shanghai reports are to the effect that heavy French reinforcements are landing at Taku. Li Hung Chang, it is stated, has told a diplomatist that Russia, considering the mission to Pekin accomplished, has agreed to request the powers to follow her example and withdraw their ministers and troops. The French consul declares that such a request to France is entirely improbable.

GERMANY'S COUNTER PROPOSAL. A special dispatch from Berlin says it is reported that Germany has rejected the Russian proposal for the withdrawal of troops and has made a counter proposal that Russia shall retire. leaving the other powers to follow their own course. According to a news agency's reports, there is not much doubt in London official circles as to the attitude of Britain. ATTITUDE OF BRITAIN.

It is pointed out that the withdrawal from Pekin at the present moment. without a definite understanding with the Chinese Government, would be simply courting a recurrence of recent eve ts. No understanding by Li Hung Chang would compensate for the di-

New York, Sept. 2 .- Cabling from | fficulties of further negotiations, from coast. Until the powers receive a direct assurance from the Chinese government Britain is not prepared to withdraw troops. It is announced the embassy has forwarded to the foreign office a circular containing the proposal for the withdrawal of the allies from PRINCE CHING FOR REGENT. St. Petersburg, Sept. 2.-The Official Messenger publishes the following dispatch dated Peki,n Aug. 20, from the Russian minister, M. RUPTURE OF THE EUROPEAN CONCERT. London, Sept. 3-4 a.m.-The publication of the text of the Russian proposals has intensified rather diminished the suspicions entertained by England of Russia's proceedings. The rupture of the European concert considered an accomplished fact. Opinions differ, however, as to the way in which the powers will now group themselves. Sympathizers think that Great Britain, Japan and the Triple Alliance will stand together in refusing to leave Pekin.

There were recorded from the beginning of the year to Aug. 13, 3,148 cases, of which 568 resulted fatally. This is a considerable increase over the records of previous years. Paris is never free from this disease, but until 1898 the number of cases for the corresponding period did not exceed 700. Moreover, the figures for the last few weeks of the present year show a perceptible increase over those of the earlier period. The preva-lence and spread of typhoid are due entirely to bad wath. One of the sources from which Paris is furnished with water is known to be infected with typhoid bacillus, though the water from all the others is perfectly pure. The authorities, however, declare that they are compelled to utilize the contaminated source because the others are inadequate. The publication of these alarming statistics may, however, spur the responsible authorities into seeking fresh sources. Meanwhile Parisians are recommended to boil the

the minister of agriculture, Dr. Ignatius De Daranyi, of the world's crops shows that the Hungarian crops have improved since the statement of July The quality of wheat has improved, owing to favorable weather while the grain was ripening and during its harvest. I beg to assure you that I have never relaxed my efforts when a suitable opportunity offered to urge that your release ought to be granted. I feel strongly, as I have felt from the first, that you ought never to have been convicted, and this opinion I very clearly expressed to Mr. Asquith, but I am very sorry to say, hitherto without effect. Rest assured that I shall renew my representations to the irloming home secretary, whoever he may be, as soon as the gov-ernment is formed, and the secretary is in a position to deal with such matters. "ARM-CHAIR" GUIDES.

In the midst of all the turmoil, not heeding the hysterics afflicting most of the arm-chair guides of Great Britain, the responsible head of affairs, Lord Balisbury, rests calm, confident and wary in the German mountain village, Behlucht (a health resort in the Vosges), ten miles from the nearest rail- dread of the emperor's wrath." way station, but at the end of a wire to Downing street (British foreign of-Ice). It is explained that one of Lord Salisbury's reasons for going into perfect solitude was to be able to work this trying period, from cabinet ministers and others whose rank made it simply impossible for the prime minister to always tactily escape them. Lord Salisbury's long interview with the French minister of the colonies, M. Decrais, and the announcement that the French minister of foreign affairs, M. Delcasse, will shortly visit the British premier is taken to mean that the latter is improving the relations between France and Great Britain which, judging from the newspapers, certainly needs improving, for dark rumors of possible war between France and Great Britain are curiously persistent.

A Benlin correspondent cables as follows: The German press is full of undoubted as his intellectual capacity. articles commenting on the latest turn of the Chinese question, which is generally construed as marking the beginning of serious lack of harmony between the powers, whose Chinese interests are colliding at too many points to enable them to maintain a united front lengthily. Russia's proposal to withdraw the troops from Pekin coincides with the feeling entertained in Paris in favor of a conciliatory policy. ADVERSE TO THE SCHEME.

Isaac N. Ford cables the New York Tribune as follows: "The feeling in this country continues adverse to the Russian scheme. The Observer says of troops from the Chinese capital be of troops from the Chinese capital be carried out, it does not envy the fate of the unfortunate Europeans who are compelled to remain there. Li Hung Chang's cable message to the New York Tribune was reproduced by all of yesterday's evening papers, without fretting interruption during certainly confirmed the growing imand attracted general attention. It has pression that Earl Li is a person to be trusted and that he has both the intention and ability to act fairly by foreigners as well as by his own government. Li has been regarded with suspicion here from a belief that he has long been hostile to British interests, but no one can give any intelligent reason why the old viceroy, who is unquestionably a good Chinese patriot, should not do his best to restore peace to his government. Wu Ting Fang's statement that Li will act up to his professions is borne out by the viceroy's previous record and the success with which he stamped out the Tai Ping and Tien Tsin insurrections. China needs a vigorous administrator to restore order, and, if not enfeebled

He is now denounced by his censors for being too favorable to foreigners, and an imperial commissioner has been ordered to consider whether he should be dismissed

The fact that the court should not hesitate to attack so influential a personage at the present crisis shows that it does not regard itself as powerless, nor does it seem that Liu Kun Yi is able to resist the edict, and, until protected by the foreign consuls, he might be sacrificed by the reactionaries. It is, however, believed that the British consul at Shanghai has given Liu Kun Yi STRONG ASSURANCES OF SUP-

OVER THE LINE

Scarcely a City Satisfied With the Rigures.

Though Nearly All the Big Cities Show a Marked Increase - Unjust Criticism.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2 .- Special to the Detroit Free Press .- The population of something like 50 cities of tne country, according to the returns from the twelfth census, has now been computed and made public.

In almost if not quite every city whose population has been made public, a general complaint has gone up at once after the figures were announced, to the effect that the enumerators had made mistakes and omitted a large number of people, and therefore the total was much smaller than the real facts, if correctly ascertained, would make it. These and many more are the complaints made by most of the ciies, all of which have fallen short of Elk- the population originally claimed from 25,000 to 100,000. While Detroit's grand 3. Neither is it possible that any right-minded citizens will feel like complaining; and yet, there are no doubt some who will shortly insist that the population is largely in excess of the same size is great, because of the expectation that the next census would land them in a higher relative position than they were before, and so the disposition to question the accuracy of the count is not an unusual Those who know most of the complete system under which the pres-Park between the London team and the ent census has been taken and is be-Ing tabulated, do not, however, see the most exciting and closest fought how it could have been possible for match of the season. Although the any considerable number of people in Alerts have the championship, the any given city to have been skipped by the enumerators, or how it would have been possible for any names that have been taken by the enumerators to fail to be counted by the punchers and tabulators. Omaha shows an actual decrease of something like 50,000, or a loss of 26.98 per cent. It is a well-known fact, however, that Omaha has not decreased any in population, but that the city has actually increased several thousand, and that many new houses have been built and are all occupied. The only explanation that can be made of this discrepancy is what has long been an undisputed fact, that in the taking of the census of 1890 the population was absolutely padded so extensively as to show a total far beyond all sense of reason.

> Toledo leads with the largest percentage of increase, and shows a gain of 61.9, while another Ohio city, Cincinnati, shows the smallest gain, only 9.77, so that she thus falls below Cleveland in total population, and so loses long-cherished title of "Queen City of Ohio."

It so happens that the census was taken in a way that allows a very prompt disposal of any charge of a failure to count the entire population, and Director Meriam has made a prompt investigation of every complaint that has come to his knowledge. Not only has he investigated these complaints, but he has invited anyone who is dissatisfied with the returns of his city or community to lay before from Fence... him some specific complaint. There is no way for him to reply to the man who complains that this or that city is given 10,000 too small a population, but he has so far been able to show every specific complaint to have been unfounded. Jacksonville, Florida, lately complained that a census taken by local authorities, showed a greater population than that of the census bureau, but investigation showed that the local census was taken when a Democratic convention was in session, and the hotels all packed with guests. "Crammed hotels' is said to have been one of the ways by which Omaha swelled her figures ten years ago. The names of 50 people who claimed that they had not been counted were recently sent to the bureau, but investigation showed that each of was recorded in the returns. The possibility of verifying the figures beyond all question of a mistake rests in the fact that maps were made showing every house and its number on every street in every city, and a record was made of the inhabitants of each house, or if the house was vacant that fact was noted. If the fam-Total......12 ily were away for the time being, that fact was also noted, and hundreds of dollars worth of postage stamps were G. McGreevy. 0 W. not want to skip any names. All criticism of the accuracy of the count in the various cities is, therefore, unreasonable and unjust, and the failure to show large increases must be attributed to some other source, which in all cases has a local explana-tion. It indicates the generally improved status of Labor that this, Labor Day, the first Monday in September, is by act of Parliament, erected into an annual statutory holiday.

British Policy as to China.

The British Government is reproachd by some critics, not necessarily hostile, that it has no policy for the Far East, and some of these said critics kindly offer one that is ready-made. The events of recent days have been Iried policy to waste paper, and break your cast-iron policy to pieces. When great convulsions come, and the influence of external events is strong, diplomacy and statecraft sometimes takes 1 course that it did not wish to take. and in fact sought to avoid. If we can trust the statements made on behalf of the leading powers of the world, there is not one of them that wishes to inter upon a policy of conquest and adventure in the Far East. Therefore China will not be partitioned. There sources of the Empire in this Chinese muddle any more than is absolutely necessary.

Some foreign critics will no doubt put this down as a piece of diplomatic hypocrisy too thin to deceive such slever people as they count themselves to be, but we know that it is true. There are real reasons for it. First, the British people feel that they have now, to put it mildly, a fair share of "the white man's burden," and they to not wish to have the Chinese Empire, or a large slice of it, on their hands. To develop the resources of our wast empire, and to train the subject races committed to our care, is even now a gigantic task. Second, the South | see that they have now an ever better African business is still a big thing. chance for a free, noble life. It ties up a large part of the military force of the empire, and even when armed resistance ceases to be formidable, it will require care and skill as well as force for many years to come. Third, the temper that foreigners have of late shown towards Britain is at least a proof that she must be prepared to defend herself at any minute or at any point. These are simply a few of the substantial reasons that make it imperative for British statesmen to handle the Chinese question carefully. But we trust it will not lead the other powers Into thinking that Britain is a quantity that can be neglected in the final account. Britain has interests in China, and especially in the Yang Tsze Valley, and these must be safeguarded. Then her influence, along with that of keep open that vast country to the trade of the world. If partition does furn out to be the inevitable. Britain will be forced to take some share in the government of that enormous popu-

Still It is evident that British policy as to China cannot be called a jingo solicy. If the Chinese were not so foolish or incompetent they would see that the English speaking people wish to protect their country from invasion, while opening it to colonization. Unlortunately, the Chinese are so enampred of their own stagnant civilization that they think any other the worst kind of invasion. However, Britain, that played such a great part in opening the door of China to commerce. will, in the interests of the world, as well as her own, try to keep it open.

The summer holidays are now for a great many people over. The trains and boats are bringing their heavy loads back to city and town, from seaside and lake shore. Teachers and scholars must now settle down to their tasks, and men must get back to the regular routine. It is fashionable now to take regular summer holidays, and it is no doubt, on the whole a good thing. But the practice which is now growing of making some of the finest natural scenes a center of noisy revelry and "pleasure," is very questionable in its character. It is evident that many young people who go off have no appreciation of quiet, and therefore some other power, will be exerted to must attempt to carry to Muskoka or elsewhere the idea that a summer holi- and when she comes it is surmised day means the diversions and dissipations of three months crammed into two weeks. Mrs. White, "Proprietress" of the Seventh Day Adventists Is Likely to be Surprised.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 2 .- The announcement that Mrs. Ellen G. White, the prophetess of the Seventh Day Adventists, has left Australia, and was now on the ocean bound for Battie Creek, has caused great interest among the Adventists, and some consternation. The denomination was founded by Mrs. White's husband, Elder James White, who was a born organizer and leader. Mrs. White has always claimed to have communication with the spirit of God while in trances and in that condition has given to the church her "visions" or "testimonies," as the church calls them, which are next to the Bible in authority. For about fifteen years Mrs. White has been in Australia in a sort of seclusion, from which she has sent weekly letters to the denomination as "Sister" White, there will be a great stirring up, as the Adventists have changed wonderfully since Mrs. White's departure. Some of the present leaders are provfrom the original purpose of the church, and it is well known that some of the doings in recent years have not ple ,very plain in dress, when she departed, she will find her church members as worldly dressed as other folks, which will be a surprise to Mrs. White. Tewspaper Man's Revenge For Insults From a Candidate.

A good story and one with a moral is related by a well known southern writer. "No great statesman with good hard horse sense ever went out of his way to offend a newspaper man," he says.

"Some years ago there was a very hot rampaign in Georgia for a big office. "In a distant city lived a candidate who was confident of election. He was roud and haughty and thought only of "A young newspaper man was detailed by the managing editor to accompany the statesman and report his speeches.

'Now comes the funny part of the story. The statesman ignored his companion-left him to take care of himselfintroduced him to nobody-treated him without any consideration.

"Once when they were riding in a buggy through the country they stopped at a spring. The statesman cooled a bottle of wine in the spring and drank it all, without offering the journalist a drop. "Then he helped himself to a cigar from his valise and resumed his seat in the buggy. "'Drive on!' he said.

"The newspaper man hated and despised the cold blooded politician, but he had his work to do. "He reported the speeches and campaign incidents, but in a quiet way he knifed the statesman. The big man read the reports and was conscious that something was lacking, but he could not tell exactly what. "The newspaper man simply stuck to facts and damned the candidate with faint praise. He left out the element of enthusiasm. He was dull and deliberate-

Uncle Sam's Constant Search for Illicit Whisky.

It Takes More Men to Watch the Metropolitan Moonshiners Than Are Detailed in Half of all the Rest of the Country.

"When a man speaks of illicit distilling, everybody immediately has an idea that he is referring to the moonshiners of Tenaessee, North Carolina and other parts of the south," said an old revenue officer the other day. "The average person would probably be surprised to learn that the person who gives the government the most anxiety in evading the tax on whisky is not the picturesque mountaineer of the southern states, but apparently the well to do citizen of New York, Jersey City, Philadelphia and Chicago. It takes more men to watch these metropolitan moonshiners than are detailed in half the rest of the country, and I venture to say that more corn juice escapes paying its quota into the treasury of Uncle Sam in Chicago alone than in North and South Carolina and Georgia put together. "There is nothing romantic about your city distiller. He does not have the forests and the caves in which to hide his calling. He seldom fights when the officers of the law interfere with his occupation. Just now I can recall but one raid in Chicago which resulted in any one's getting hurt. Your mountaineer looks on a revenue officer as his natural enemy and considers the breaking up of 'wild cat' distilling as an interference with his ed. "I've been to sea for nearly 40 years | vested rights. His Chicago compeer takes the matter more sensibly. He knows that he is violating the law, and when he is caught he merely figures that he is out of luck and that he might as well pay the penalty without adding any more offenses to the charges already against him.

"The most frequent location of an illicit still in the city is in or near a saloon. The distiller thus has a market for his stuff, and he can carry on the business with less chance of detection. The odor of old beer kegs and the other refuse "Why, I spend half my time looking steaming sour mash. Many of these steaming sour mash. Many of these stills have a capacity of from 30 to 40 gallons a day. When you figure the tax thus eluded, you can see whether the oc-

"The moonshiners of the south show no more ingenuity in hiding the stills than those of Chicago. I remember one still which bothered the boys for years. They had spotted the locality, but could not "How much a skipper gets out of a and the place exactly. There was a saloon which was doing a flourishing business and to our certain knowledge they had not bought a barrel of whisky for years. When they caught on to the fact

> "We had searched the place time and on to a thing that would help us out, and if we had not been so cocksure that we were right we would have given up in

"At last our man gave us the tip that he had landed, and we sweeped down on the saloon. We put the proprietors of the saloon under arrest and went down into the cellar, where we found a trapdoor that was hidden with wonderful cunning. This enemed into an underground passage, which led for a hundred feet or more until we got directly beneath a Jewish synagogue. Here we found barrel upon barrel of fine whisky that had been stored there for years. There was also a complete distilling apparatus, although it had not been used for some time.

"Another still that gave us a good deal of trouble was in one of the biggest office buildings in Chicage, down in the basement. The janitor was an old distiller, and he had gathered some of his friends to carry on the graft. I doubt whether we would ever have caught these people if the snap had not been given away by one of the partners, who was dissatisfied with a division of the spoils. We arrested the men without any difficulty, and they served their terms without grumbling. The reason for this was that the janitor and one of his partners had banked over $5,000 apiece as a result of three years' work at their still.

"There is no doubt that there would be money in illicit distilling if it were possible to dispose of the product. That is where the men get caught most of the time, as it is not possible for us to find every plant merely by the scent of the fermenting mash. A great many tricks are planzed, and some of them work for awhie, but they don't last. I have seen men walking along the street with an innocent looking joint of stovepipe in their hands. Now, there is nothing suspicious about a joint of stovepipe even if it is not more than three feet long. But it does not weigh much, and when a man carries it as though he were lugging a bag of shot a man in my business begins to wonder what is inside of it. We don't bother the fellow until we are pretty certain, and it is about even chances that we find a long, slim demijohn inside the pipe.

Saloon keepers are pretty shy of handling moonshine, and they won't enter into negotiations unless they are certain of the men with whom they are dealing. The surest graft that has ever been worked was one that had a long run in Chicago about five years ago. The driver of a brewery wagon was the man who attended to the distribution. He called at the saloon where the whisky was distilled and carried the moonshine out in beer kegs and loaded them on his wagon as if he were only taking away empty casks. He would take them around to the place and leave them. The saloon keepers who were handling the stuff always put beer in the kegs after they had emptied out the whisky and in this way deadened the fumes of the stronger liquor. One of our men who was inspector at the brewery had a pretty keen nose, and he suspected that something was wrong. He started a little investigation himself, and his inquiries resulted in our nailing all of the men who had been mixed up in the deal. "I do not pretend to say that the revenue officers can stop the manufacture or sale of whisky on which the government tax has not been paid. As long as men will take chances on making money fast and easily without heeding the provisions of the law I suppose there is little hope of suppressing the illicit distilling in Chicago and the big cities. It would astound you if I would tell you the number of revenue agents we have to keep in

The Story of One of Munkacsy's Fa mous Paintings.

Many an incident in the career of Michael Schroeder-created Baron Munkaczy in the Hungarian nobility-was a pitiless illustration of the truth of Dryden's line that great wits are sure to madness near allied and thin partitions mark the bounds of separation.

His marvelous and fantastical career both as man and as artist was marked by a hundred episodes that might have been construed as evidence of an unbaianced mind, but it was not until his reason became hopelessly clouded that the world realized in how tremulous a balance had hung the intellect which had given it three pictures which won for their painter fame, riches, decorations, titles and a devoted regard such as is bestowed upon very few men in any walk

His weird methods of conceiving and working out his pictures never had a more startling illustration than in the case of his most famous canvas, "Christ Before Pilate." This picture, which is 20 feet long and 12 feet high, contains more than 40 figures. All the figures save one were sketched in with a rapidity almost maniacal between dawn and twilight of one day. The one space remaining empty was that reserved for the figure of Jesus, and it remained so many days while Munkaczy worked on the other figures. As he approached the onsis of white canvas left untouched by his blazing colors the artistic and devotional fervor grew upon him, and he shut himself away from the sight of man that he might in perfect solitude and silence realize his conception of the Man of Sorrows. When the picture was finished and had brought him worldwide fame, he always insisted that while he was sitting alone and lost in a profound reverte a white vision floated before his eyes and passed into the unpainted space on the canvas. The painter, shaking with excitement, sprang forward and with trembling hands painted in the figure which had come to him like the phantasmagoria of a dream. However the inspiration for that dead white figure, set amid resplendent crimsons and purples, came to him, we all know what its effect upon the world was It is estimated that 2,000,000 people saw It in the course of its triumphant tour among nations. Courts. embassies. clergy, pagans, Jews, Mohammedans, Christians, the very humble and the very great, crowded to see it. Some were moved to tears; others sank upon their knees and prayed.

No Caucus Necessary.

A prominent Kansas politician who has been happily married for over a year sent the following unique proposal to the object of his adoration: "My Dear Miss -: I hereby announce myself as a candidate for your hand, and I shall use all fair and honorable means to secure the nomination. I know there are many candidates in the field, and I hesitated long before entering the race, but now I'm in it to stay. My views on love and matrimony have often been ex-pressed in your hearing in an emphatic the honor I speak of, please fix a date for a caucus with your mother. I have no objection to her acting as temporary of this strange tenant for some time, of this strange tenant for some time, way. I never believed in campaigns, so if you decide to honor me I will ask you to make the convention date as early as possible. De-

'A Peculiarity of Ants.

All ants that are not from the same nest seem to be deadly enemies, for, while an ant will do what he can to put to death a stranger, he does not seem to take a corresponding delight in aiding his friends, as is shown by the following experiment:

A scientist, in order to test the affection of ants belonging to the same nest, took six of them and imprisoned them in a small bottle, covering it with a piece of coarse mesh muslin. Their fellows naid no particular attention to the prisoners, but when the experiment was repeated, substituting, however, six ants of a rival tribe, their enemies swarmed around the bottle and after something like a week through persistent effort they succeeded in eating their way through the muslin. Two ants were found dead, evidently proving that they had been put to death, while the others probably escaped.

The Onion He Wanted. A member of congress received a letter from a constituent one day which seemed much like others he had receivfolding room and ask for Smith's enion "No such report here, sir," the clerk responded. "The only onion report I know of is the one issued by the deed. Accordingly he rushed over to the partment of agriculture." "Well, you must be mistaken," replied the member. "This applicant is not a farmer, he's a clergyman. Here, look at the letter!" "Oh," said the clerk after a moment's perusal of the letter "he doesn't want Smith's onion report; he wants a Smithsonian report. I'll take a cigar."-

The Value of Names, Hicks-Wonder how Mortar is getting on nowadays?

Wicks-Getting along finely. It was only two years ago he started out as an apothecary. He is already a druggist, and if his luck holds out he will be a pharmacist before the end of another twelvemonth.

Hicks-But what difference will that Wicks-A big difference. An apothecary oftentimes has to sell things at only 50 cents above cost, and a druggist never takes less than 100 per cent, but to a pharmacist there is no limit.

Eccentrics Who Live Under Ground.

An instance of the preference of the people for living underground was brought to light a short time ago near Southport, in Lancashire. A large house standing a little way out of the town had always elicited the curiosity of those residing in the neighborhood because it was supposed to be tenanted, and yet the windows remained boarded up and the building fell into premature decay for want of repair. Some people, however, vouched for the fact that an old lady lived there, for she was seen to leave the house occasionally and go into town to pur-chase the necessaries for her existence, covered nothing until they reached the cellars, although their suspicions had previously been aroused by finding coal and other things generally kept derground in a large room upstairs. Further search proved the cellars to be most axuriously furnished and in one of the antique carved armchairs sat the old lady, dead. She must have lived by herself deep underground for nearly ten years, shunning the light of day except when it was absolutely necessary for her to go out.

Another peculiar case comes from Dorsetshire, and will be within the recollection of many of the inhabitants of the county. A gentleman of means, wishing to build a house, selected a site he thought would suit his purpose, for it was on the summit of the downs overlooking the sea. His reason for choosing such a strange spot was be-cause he wished to be where he could continually hear the roar of the waves against the cliffs below. Some architects were instructed to erect the building, but they said that unless it was of extraordinary strength It would, in all probability, come down upon the occupant's head in consequence of the terrific power of the gales that visit that part of the coast during the winter. But the gentleman determined not to be outdone, so he actually furnished one of the old smuggler's caves, numbers of which are to be found in the chalk cliffs near Lyme Regis. In this strange and lonely dwelling place he lived for seven years, and only abandoned it to enter the bonds of matrimony.

Speaking of caves reminds us that Britain numbers among its population some people who live entirely in underground caves. They are the fishermen who inhabit the far north coast of Scotland, and the caves occupied have either been carved out of some prehistoric time by the action of the waves or owe their origin to the smugglers of other days. This lifelong ex-istence underground affects the cave dwellers in a rather peculiar manner, for it has been noticed that practically without exception they are of small stature and might very favorably be compared to the inhabitants of Lap-But men of note have frequently found a fascination in living beneath the earth. Saurier, whose novels are so popular throughout France, was one of these, and many of his finest works were written underground, or rather under water. He was a very eccentric man and had in his garden a large lake. One day, worried by the noise around him, he conceived the idea of having a study erected under the lake with a roof of plate glass to it. was done at enormous cost, and in that room Saurier lived throughout the day. When not busy he had only to look through the glass and watch the fish as they passed to and fro.

The late Duke of Portland, it will be remembered, passed the later years of his life in the underground cellars of Welbeck abbey, and lived there until his death, entirely cut off from the outer world, where the sun could not reach him. Elizabeth Browning, too, wrote many of her finest poems in the cellars of her house, where she was compelled to live after her sight had given way.—Tit-Bits.

A MONOCOMO CONTROLO CONTROLO DO CONTROLO D Ingenious Tibolink. A most ingenious and laughable plan was that evolved by inmates at the Oneida county home to outwit the superintendent. When they have hard colds, they are given a bottle of cough sirup, which is made at the home in large quantities, containing rum and molasses. One of the inmates devised a scheme whereby he could extract the rum from the molasses, so that he could get the rum out without contaminating his stomach with the molasses. He placed the bottle on the window sill in the sun and discovered that the molasses came to the top, leaving the rum at the bottom. Procuring a straw at the barn, he inserted it in the bottle below the molasses and proceeded to drink the rum from the bottom of the bottle.

Joke on Dean Swift.

It is characteristic of those who are severe on others that they cannot bear severity. Dean Swift, the severest satirist of his day, was one day dining with a company of gentlemen, one of whom he had made the butt of his ridicule, with repeated sallies. At last the dean poured upon a piece of duck some gravy intended to be eaten with a roasted goose. The unfortunate gentleman, seeing this, immediately said: "My good dean, you surprise me. You eat a duck like a

The company roared, and the poor dean was so confused and mortified that he flew into a rage and left the table.

Turf Losses.

A London magazine gives an estimate of the money lost on the turf throughout the world during each year. The amount is placed at $250,000,000, of which $50,000,000 is lost on English race courses and, strange to say, about $100,-000,000 on Australian courses. The remainder is chiefly distributed between France, the United States and British colonies.

BEAN INDUSTRY.

Kingsville Reporter: The bean industry of Kent is of vastly larger pro-portions than most people have any There are in Ridgetown no less than six or seven firms who make various places to wood up, and where bean buying a business, and each have I had the opportunity I went among warehouses for storing and sorting the crop. Each warehouse employs between 25 and 30 people, mostly women and girls, who are employed nearly all in nearly every tent upon the shore winter sorting beans, at which they are able to make $3 to $5 per week. SHE WAS "EASY"

Young Lady Flimflammed by Smiling Stranger.

Detroit Free Press: "I wish to make a report simply as a good citizen," said a tall, bright-looking woman as she walked into the detective bureau

"The clerks were busy, so I was assisting them," said the young lady. "A LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 1.—Eight factories boarded 1,330 boxes today. Of real, gentlemanly sort of a man dressed in a blue suit and straw hat came in and asked for a can of sardines. They were 15 cents and he gave me a $10 gold piece in payment. I gave him back $9 85.

"Then he ordered half a pound of coffee, the 28-cent kind. He then asked me if the $10 piece was dated '1885,' and I told him that it was. He remarked that it was a pocked piece, and when he reached over and smiled at me, I gave it back to him. He then paid me 14 cents for the coffee and 30 cents for some olives. "I was busy, and he bothered me so I was getting impatient. So when he asked me about the price of catsup, I just told him to wait until the regular clerk came back. He then seemed insulted and walked towards the door, and you may laugh, but I was glad to see him going out, for he had paid me 59 cents for all the purchases.

"But imagine how angry I was when I remembered, half an hour later, that he had paid me out of the change I gave him and that he also had his own $10 gold piece. So our firm is just out $9 41."

When she boarded her wneel in front of the police headquarters she carefully scanned the vicinity. She was afraid the police or a stray reporter would find out her name or the store -here she is employed.

IN ALASKA

Natives Dying all Along the Shore Line. Washington, Sept. 2.-Gov. Brady, of Alaska, in a letter to Secretary Hitchcock, dated at St. Michael, Alaska Aug. 3, describes the distress in Alaska which the government is now taking steps to alleviate. Gov. Brady says: "I left Sitka 11 a.m., July 21, and arrived here last evening. While coming down the Yukon we stopped at the natives to make observations. At a place called Greyling, some 500 miles from here, I saw the natives were sick line and were in a very deplorable condition; some were lying groaning on the ground. I saw one man sitting with his whole body naked and coughing and groaning; the pity of it was that nothing was being done for their re-lief. Even the sub-trader at the place was sick in bed.

"This morning the Bear arrived from Siberia and different points along the Alaskan coast and St. Lawrence Island, and reports a terrible state of affairs among all the natives. In some places the natives report than more than one-half of them have died, and where the revenue officers have been able to investigate, about one-fourth have died in places. The epidemic seems to come in the form of la grippe attended by pneumonia or measles or both. The natives seem to become stupefied and utterly helpless and lie down to die. I find that the officers of the treasury department have taken this matter up in behalf and in the name of the government, to give the

The latter train stopped at Hatfield, and in less than two minutes the special excursion train, running at the rate of 35 miles an hour, crashed into the rear of the milk train. The locomotive ploughed through the two passenger coaches and crushed them as if they were egg shells.

Fortunately there were very few persons on this train. The excursion train was a picture of INDESCRIBABLE HORROR. The locomotive was a mass of bent and broken iron and firmly held the bodies of its engineer and fireman between its great weight. Behind the engine, six of the ten cars were also a mass of plenty of mounted men, and unlike wreckage. The first car was broken in twain, and the other five cars were thrown on their sides and completely demolished. Nine persons were killed in the first two cars and the others in these coaches were badly maimed.

VISIBLE WRITING MACHINES. Creelman Bros., of Georgetown, Ont., make a fine display of the Blickensderfer Typewriters at the Toronto Fair. The Visible-writing Typewriter a few years ago was an unknown quantity. but today it is the one indispensible feature most sought after, the best known, and most nighly appreciated improvement in the modern typewriter. It is now claimed that any other improvement, no matter how valuable, will not make a typewriter up to date. Without visible writing it must ever remain a back number. This appears to be the logical conclusion of a progressive, appreciative and critical public. No better evidence of this is required than the wonderful increase in the sale of the visible-writing machines, and the fact that 55,000 Blickensderfers have been sold within a few years. The Blickensderfer has done much, if not more, than any other machine to educate and popularize up-to-date, visible-writing machine. The visible writing, low price portability, adaptability to general work are the secrets of the success of the Blickensderfer. Do not fail to see this interesting exhibit in the main building, west end, at the same old stand. Price only $40.

Kruger and Steyn Trying to Get Away.

Nineteen Persons Killed and Over General Opinion That the War is Near Its End.

> Roberts Said to Have by Proclamation Annexed the Transvaal to the British Domain.

Pretoria, Sept. 2 .- Mr. Kruger and Mr. Steyn have gone to Barberton. It is believed that they are preparing for flight. The general opinion is that the war is now very near the end, but should the Boers construct strongholds in the bush, on the veldt, or elsewhere, and begin a system of raids, the British would require further large supplies of horses.

BOERS TAKE TO THE MOUNTAINS. Gen. Buller moved fourteen miles northwestward along the Lydenburg road, and crossed Crocodile River to Badfontein. He found the Boers con-Lentrated in the Crocodile Mountains. A force of Boers under Commandant Theron broke through the British lines and captured and burned a supply train at Klip River staton, taking prisoners. Brabant's Horse proceeded

ANNEXATION OF THE TRANS-VAAL. London, Sept. 3 .- It is reported that Lord Roberts has issued a proclama tion formally annexing the Transvaal to the dominions of the British crown.

Gen. Christian Dewet, according to the Daily Mail's Cape Town advices, is reported to have appeared again along the railway near Winburg road. THE CAMPAIGN NEARLY OVER. The London cable letter to the New York Tribune has the following: "The South African campaign has made distinct progress the past week, and there is a general belief that the end is at hand. Some surprise was felt at the comparative weakness of Botha's resistance in the strong position he had selected and fortified. But Roberts, unlike Methuen, on the Modder, had Buller, on the Tugela, he was not bound to attack the enemy from the least favorable side. With the whole of the Natal army available on the south, he had French's cavalry and two infantry divisions from Pretoria available against the northern and eastern flanks of the Boer forces; conas a simultaneous movement from both quarters was developed under pain of being surrounded and having to share the fate of Cronje and Prinsloo. So far he has BOERS LIKELY TO SCATTER. "It remains to be seen whether his army as an organized force will continue to exist. Most of the burghers are said to have retired eastward toward the Barberton Mountains. Here, if they endeavor to make a stand, they should be hemmed in by the British army, which has at least 40,000 troops available, and compelled to surrender, but the probability is that the majority of them will disperse to their own homes, perhaps with the hope of again joining the commandos if they see a fair chance.

"A minority of the fighting burgh-

NEEDED. "Delarey and Grobler are at large in the Western Transvaal, and Dewet has now worked his way back to the center of the Orange Free State. present following is small, but his name and reputation may gather adherents around him. Finally, at Ladybrand, between Bloemfontein and the Basutoland frontier, a burgher force has appeared on the hills and threatens the British garrison of the town. All this seems to show that even if the regular operations of the campaign be soon brought to a close, no considerable number of Lord Roberts' army can yet be allowed to leave South Africa. LOST OVER 40,000 MEN.

"Reinforcements are still going out to Lord Roberts, who has lost over 40,000 men by death, wounds and sickness, and has several thousand more in hospital at the present time. It is significant that the imperial authorities have asked the Canadian government to allow a portion of the colonial contingent, whose period of service expires this month, to remain in South Africa some time longer."

Hamilton Times: Mr. James Toveker, a middle-aged widower, from Wingham, came to the city yesterday to try to find his fiancee, a widow, whose name is Mrs. Martha McKinnon, whose address he didn't know. He said Mrs. McKinnon came here about a month ago from his town, and they had corresponded frequently until a week ago. He had written her several letters in the last week, but had received no reply. He sent them, as usual, to general delivery, but they had not been called for. This caused him much uneasiness, and on advice he went to the two hospitals and made inquiries. He got no trace of ther.

Mr. Toveker consulted the detectives in the evening. While Mr. Toveker was away looking for Mrs. McKinnon, his 18-year-old daughter, Matilda, went to the foot of Simcoe street to take a swim. "I know it," he admitted; "but we had to bring them in here, or be balked in our fun."

Margaret gathered courage from these remarks. She saw that the count did not like to interfere with Perrine's affairs, but she could not believe that he would refuse to aid her if directly appealed to. The young man started back instinc-

There was no mistaking that tone; it Margaret had drawn her figure to its fullest height, and something in her at-titude half awed him, while Count Lorrain had sprung to his feet aston-ished, as that clear voice fell upon his ears. Surely he had heard it before. "You will get yourself into trouble, Perrine; there is something in this you have no right to pry into; you had better let them go," he said, almost

The caution only appeared to irritate the young man. "Bah, 'tis only a grisette! I am not to be cowed by any such trick; it is only the ruse of a waiting-maid, assuming the airs of her mistress. No, no, pretty one," Perrine continued, turning again to Margaret, "I am not to be fooled like this; your voice is voice of a nightingale, your hand like that of a princess, and your manner like that of a queen. I am going to have a look at that charming face of yours, whether you will or no."

Margaret saw that there was no use in resisting further; she was only subjecting herself every moment to added indignity and torture.

There were only these two men in the room; she knew both of them personally. She knew that she could appeal to the honor and protection of Count Lorrain, and he would gladly shield her from further insult if she should but reveal her identity. "Do you comprehend, petite, 'whether you will or no,'?" Perrine repeated, leaning nearer her yet, hesitating to put his threat into execution.

"Very well; stand back, Monsieur Perrine, and you shall have your wish," Margaret retorted.

"Parblieu!" exclaimed the young man, recoiling from her, more startled "Surely I know that voice," cried Count Lorrain, growing pale, and moving a step nearer. Without a word, and with a single sweep of her white hand, Margaret threw aside her veil.

CANNOT BE BEAT .- Mr. D. Steinbach, Zurich, writes: "I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oll in my family for a number of years, and I can safely say that it cannot be beat for the cure of croup, fresh cuts and sprains. My little boy has had attacks of croup several times, and one dose of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was sufficient for a perfect cure. I take great pleasure in recommending it as a family medicine, and I would not be without a bottle in my house.'

A MODERN WEAPON IN THE BATTLE FOR HEALTH.—If disease has taken your citadel of health, the stomach, and is torturing you with indigestion, dyspepsia and nervous prostration. South American Nervine is the weapon to drive the enemy from his stronghold "at the point of the bayonet," trench by trench, but swift and sure, it always wins. Sold by C. McCallum & Co.

THE COUGHING and wheezing of persons troubled with bronchitis or the asthma is excessively harassing to themselves and annoying to others. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil obviates all this entirely, safely and speedily, and is a benign remedy for ameness, sores, injuries, piles, kidney and spinal troubles.

A HUSBAND'S LITTLE PLAN.

It Amuses His Wife, and It Doesn't | A Friendship That Was of Great Us.

Hurt Him at All. "I can't imagine why so many married people quarrel about money," said a man yesterday who was telling his se crets, as men will do, on a trolley car. "My wife and I never have a disagreement over funds, and while the plan we pursue is my invention, it's not copyrighted, so perhaps it may help you.
"This is the way it works: When I receive my salary, I take out about $2 and hand the remainder directly over to my about one-fourth of that to pay our bills. The rest is yours, and I have so much confidence in your judgment and discretion that I know it will be expended

"At first she was a little flustered at this mark of confidence, but now she takes it more calmly.

"About the next day I go to her and say: 'I find I am a little short, Nan. Could you let me have $5? I'll pay it back next week.' "'Of course I can, and you shan't pay it back at all,' she cries indignantly. 'The money's yours. "'Nonsense.' I say, with a stern air of probity. 'I gave it to you; therefore it's yours. If you don't allow me to pay it back I'll never borrow from you again." "'Very well,' she meekly acquiesces, and the matter drops, never to be reopened. During the week I make two or three more 'touches,' until I'm afraid I spend the larger share of the surplus.

"You can't imagine how this method pleases even as intelligent a woman as my wife. Why, just the other day I heard her telling Mrs. Smith that she handled every bit of our money, and when that imaginative lady reported it among our friends that my wife doled out my car fare and lunch money to me every morning and that was all of my salary I was allowed to spend, Nan heard the rumor and came to me with the most contrite little face you ever saw to ask if I was sure I had all the lucre I wanted. It made me feel a good deal like a dog, but the plan's a good one, just the same."

MISSISSIPPI PILOTS.

Instinct Plays a Large Part In Navigating the Old River. grown man can't learn the river, said an old time pilot, chatting over his experiences the other day. "He's got to begin when he's a boy and get it soaked into his brain until all the tricks and turns of the water become as familiar to him as A B C to a schoolmaster. Memorizing a lot of soundings don't do him any good, because the shoals are changing all the time. It's like this: When a man has been married long enough he gets to know the disposition of his wife and learns to steer clear of things that would rile her, taking his bearings by a hundred and one little signs that an outsider would never notice.

"That's the way with river piloting. A pilot gets so well acquainted with the disposition and peculiarities and temper of the old Mississippi that he learns to keep away from shallows, even if he hasn't been over the course for months and all he was gone. They can't tell exactly how they do it themselves, because it has them to be more of an instinct than a trade, and to say that a man car pick up such things from books and charts or any experience short of the experience of a lifetime is all nonsense.

"One queer thing about a shoal is that a ship will run away from it to a certain extent. When it gets near, the water seems to act as a sort of wedge and pushes it away, and a man who knows his business can tell in a moment that he is approaching danger. Another little oddity is that a river pilot takes his steer ing sights aft instead of fo'ward, as landsman would naturally suppose. He gets two shore points on a line and steers by them, and if they 'open up' or widen out he hauls over to one side or the other until they come together again The bar pilot, on the other hand, depends entirely on his compass. Piloting is curious business, and most of the famous men of the old days have passed away A few more years will see the last of

Shakespeare's Names.

The following list is given of the form under which Shakespeare's name has appeared at different times: Chaksper, Shakepere, Shaxpere, Shakspire, Shaxspere, Schaksper, Shakespere, Shakespeare, Schakespeyr, Shaxespeare, Shagspere, Shaxpur, Shaksper. Shaxspeare Shakaspear, Shaxsper, Shakspear, Shaxpeare, Shakespeere, Shaxburd, Shackspeyr, Shakespear, Schakesper, Shackespere, Shakyspere.

Dr. Furnivall admits the existence of only five anquestionably genuine signatures of the poets-two on his Blackfriare conveyance and mortgage and three or his will. Of these the first two are Shakspere; of the three will signatures, two are Shakspere, while about the third is no agreement, Dr. Furnivall making it Shakspere; Stevens and Malone, as well as Sir Francis Madden, deciphering it as Shakspeare.

A Unique Will,

A unique will has been discovered in the Washington (Pa.) county records. It was probated in 1791 and was the last testament of James Innes. Among other desires he asked to be "bury'd in a white oak coffin, jointed but not planed." He requested that "no whiskey or other spirituous liquor be us'd on the occasion nor any of the usual & Customary grimac ings, those ostensabilities external parade of affection hypocrisy and dissimulation of mourning where grief is absent." He further enjoined that no part of his property should "ever come under cognizance Jurisdiction, or disposition of an Or phans' Court, or be in any manner subjected or expos'd to their or their officers rapacious depredations, gleaning & exactions & peculating arts and practices."

A strange parson who had preached in a Staffordshire parish was amazed at the conduct of the warden, who, after the service, proceeded to take from the plate the largest coin thereon and carefully pocket it. "What are you about?" he gasped. The warden only smiled. "I have led the collection in this church for a dozen years with this half crown," he remark ed. "and I am not going to part with it."

TOOMBS AND STEPHENS.

to the Former.

Dr. F. H. Orme told me several good stories about our old time statesmen Among other anecdotes and incidents the doctor gave me some piquant reminis cendes of Toombs and Stephens.

Toombs always tried to impress people with the belief that his genius made him equal to any emergency. Even when he studied hard or availed himself of the labor of others he encouraged the idea that his most splendid efforts were the result of the inspiration of the moment. entirely offhand, without any special prep aration for the occasion.

Once, when a very important debate was going on in the federal congress Toombs made a magnificent speech which attracted everybody's attention. It was not only an elequent speech, but it was remarkable for its masterly array of facts and figures and its convincing ar-"You must have devoted considerable time to its preparation," said one of the statesmen's admirers. "Well, I gave about two hours to it,"

Toombs replied, with a careless, indiffer ent air. Somebody repeated this to Stephens in the presence of several congressmen.
"Two hours!" he exclaimed, somewhat irritably. "Prepared that speech in two hours, did he? I spent two weeks on it That's all I care to say." Stephens had patiently and laboriously collected the statistics, and Toombs had merely added the flourishes. The two great Georgians attended a na tional Democratic convention shortly be fore the war, and Stephens was confined to his bed just when he could least afford to be laid up.

After an important caucus Toombs visited his friend and sat down by his bed "Aleck," he said, "it was proposed to nominate you for vice president, but I told them that you did not want the office and would decline the nomination, s they took the other man." "Toombs," replied the invalid, "when you told them that you know you were lying!"-Atlanta Constitution.

Difference Between Negro Servers In Northern and Schithern Hotels, If you have traveled, you must certainly have noticed the wide difference between negro waiters of southern and northern hotels. In the north the waiter is stiff, rigid and supercilious. He takes your order condescendingly and briskly betakes him self to the culinary regions with the same. He stands with folded arms and scornful expression at some little dis tance, watching, however, for an oppor tunity to leap forward and pretend to an ticipate your wants.

And when he brings your change you are certain to note that it is laid upon a plate and that one particular quarter is noticeably detached from its fellows. In the south the waiter shuffles back to the kitchen and returns with your meal, to which he has added some little delicacy of his own choosing. He glides about you, leans tenderly over you, his sorts of changes have taken place since | black face filled with anxiety for fear some error of omission or commission may occur.

He hangs about you with fatherly in terest. He places the dishes before you with almost a caressing touch, and when you are ready to depart be tremblingly, hopefully, lingeringly hands you your hat. In the white brown depths of his eyes there is cute appeal, not unmixed with expectation. Who but a case hardened drummer or the traveling representative of a fraterpal organization could resist that appeal? You need not fear to give him a quarter-joy seldom kills outright-but you can be sure that a dime will produce a wide grin and an exaggerated bow. But most people consider it worth a quarter to see that mouth widen into a smile which sets its owner's ears back an inch and causes his eyes to project like those of a crawling crab.

An Apple Eater.

During a visit to the south of England a gentleman was met with who related ; unique and most interesting experience in dietetics. It was that for the last three years he had lived on one meal a day. and that meal was composed chiefly of apples! Further astonishment was evoked by his reply to my question as to what he drank when he stated that the juices of the apples supplied him with all the moisture or drink he needed. This, he claimed, was of the purest kind, being in reality water distilled by nature and flavored with the pleasant aroma of the apple. He partook of his one meal about o'clock in the afternoon, eating what he felt satisfied him, the meal occupying him from 20 minutes to half an hour. He looked the picture of healthful manhood and is engaged daily in literary

The Facial Angle. As a rule, the greatest facial angle belongs to those of a refined and intellectual nature; the average is about 80 degrees In some of the Grecian statues it is as high as 100 degrees, but the Romans rarely represented it over 95 degrees. It was the Dutch connoisseur, Camper, who first used the term facial angle-that angle which is formed when a straight line is drawn from the middle of the forehead to the point of juncture of the nose and lip, where it is met by another imaginary line crossing from the opening of the ear. To form an opinion as to one's intellectual capacity, his profile or facial angle must be studied.

A Clever Bird. Mexico has a clever bird called the melanarpes, which has discovered a new use for the telegraph pole. At the foot of the post this bird makes a large hole. in which it rears its family; somewhat higher up the post it makes an observa-tory, from which bored holes permit it to observe the horizon in every direction; still higher this sagacious bird makes its storehouse, and thus the pole server as its house, fortress and warehouse.

Plows.

In Scotland in very ancient times the eight oxen plow was probably in general use, for the old land measures, as davoch and such like, were founded thereon. In the eighteenth century, in Aberdeenshire. the 10 or 12 oxen plow was, however, more common, but all such plows finally disappeared about the time of Waterloo.

Wherever she was known Mrs. Phillips was highly respected. "Now, my dear friends," said Major McMillan, concluding, "one more of our dear ones has left our earthly ranks to join in the ranks above. narration of his missionary efforts was press upon his hearers the fact that they also might be instruments such as he had been, with which the work of giving the happiness of Christianity to heathen peoples might be advanced. When he began his work on Tana, all the natives were heathen in the fullest sense of the word, savages who warred with each other, who committed crimes of a barbarous nature, whose religious ceremonies taught murder and cannibalism. The work in that South Sea group had already been started by Rev. Drs. Geddes and Inglis, but on the island that Dr. Paton had selected no missionaries had been allowed to work. After months of patient toil he acquired their language, put it in form and translated the Bible into it. During the years that followed the mission work underwent many vissitudes and the workers have gone through great troubles and dangers. That their efforts have been successful is well known, and there are now some 18,000 Christian natives on the islands The line between the Christian and the savage is much more clearly defined there than in old countries with less professed Christianity and more conscientious striving after what is right. In the homes, family worship is conducted evening and morning and a blessing is asked on every meal that is taken. Dr. Paton said that the missionaries were very careful to allow no their best appreciation of the Word of The Bible has been translated into 22 new languages since Dr. Paton entered To illustrate the natives' eager desire for it he told how they had worked for fifteen years planting, tending and shipping arrowroot for which they received no money, as it all went to pay for the first edition of the Bible, which cost $6,000. On his island every person with the exception of two old men belonged to the church. This wonderful change was not brought about without terrible dangers and marvelous escapes from death or injury, and in the story of the work, Dr. Paton tells of many thrilling experiences that bear testimony to his heroism and devotion to duty. It has largely fallen to his lot to provide the means with which to carry on the work in the islands. Whenever the mission needed funds and he was sent out to get them, he has been successful and has always brought back sufficient for the occasion. His present mission was necessitated by the conthe one absorbing passion of his life ditions of affairs that exist now on has been heard by thousands from his the islands. It carred blazing cinders across King stret, over Clarence street, and it wasted sparks far over the backyards in the direction of the corner of Dundas and Wellington streets. The firemen had a hot job as it was, but they were given a hotter time by excited citizens, who harrassed them with reports of newlystarted fires. The sparks seemed to sail along until they reached a nice, burnable building, and there they settled, until there were "doings," and a sweating fireman was tugged thither by a man who paid taxes and wanted it put out. Every roof around the block was patroled by anxious owners. For awhile it was the fashionable thing to carry a bucket, and the latest things out were sparks. One traveled over to the old building that the Chinamen use on Dundas street. It crept in under the shingles. A line was laid from a hydrant a block away, and a hefty stream played upon it. The fire was put out. Had it not been for the willing assistance of a brigade of water carriers, who allowed no small fire to gain much headway, there might have been serious trouble, for all the buildings were dry and the wind was blow-
