explanation offered by those in inti-mate relation with the court. At the

The King's Condition.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, July 31. -Today's bulletin on the condition of King Edward follows: "His Majesty has made rapid progress since Monday last. His general condition continues all that could be desired. The wound is closing satisfactorily. "The King is now able to walk the entire length of the pavilion deck easily, without assistance. "Treves, Laking, Barnhart."

King Edward's progress continues to be in every way satisfactory. During the day he slowly paced the deck of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert without any assistance, and the exercise is reported to have done him good. The Earl of Denbigh, one of the King's lords-in-waiting, speaking of a public meeting today, said he saw no reason why the King should not be strong enough to undergo the fatigue incident to the coronation on Aug. 9. THE NAVAL REVIEW.

The Times says the fleet has been ordered to assemble at Spithead on Aug. 7 instead of Aug. 11. The fleet will salute King Edward as he crosses from Cowes to Portsmouth on Aug. 8. The royal yacht will leave Cowes on Aug. 18 for Sandown Bay, to enable His Majesty to view the fleet dispers-

FACTORY LASSIE'S SAD FATE

Lived for a Time Like a Princess-Finding She Would Lose Her Lover She Took Poison.

New Haven, July 31. - The funeral of Etta May Cook, the factory girl, who committed suicide and died in the arms of her sweetheart, Alfred Austeil, a wealthy Yale student, was held on Tuesday and the body of the young woman was laid at rest beside that of her mother in Evergreen Cemetery. Hundreds of friends of the dead girl gathered in the cemetery. There were also many wealthy young men present, friends of young Austell. The casket, a costly one, covered with silver-gray velvet and tipped with old silver knobs and ornamentation, was furnished by the rich young student, and twenty carriages, which he supplied, conveyed the relatives and friends of the dead girl to the grave. A handsome tombstone will be raised above the grave. Costly flowers were laid upon the suicide's coffin by her work-mates in the Winchester Repeating Arms factory, and by the friends of the young student. Austell sent a beautiful wreath of lilles and roses, and there was a handsome pillow of carnations and lilies from the girl's brother and sister.

HER LOVER OVERCOME. Young Austell attended the funeral at the home of the dead girl's brother and sister, No. 89 Newhall street, but was overcome at the cemetery gates and ordered the driver of his carriage to turn back. Over the gates was the inscription, "Blessed Are the Dead Which Die in the Lord." It was apparent that this sentiment had a pro ound effect upon the young Yale student. Miss Lucy Cook, sister of the dead girl, swooned at the grave when the Rev. Mr. F. J. Shackelton, pastor of the Summerfield Methodist Church,

"My poor dead sister," sobbed the young woman, as she fell back in her brother's arms. He carried her aside, though it was apparent that he was almost as much overcome as she. Few stories in the history of Yale and this city have aroused such widespread interest as that of Etta Cook and Alfred Austell. Hers will not be the only tombstone in Evergreen Grove Street Cemeteries to tell

The poor factory girl fell in love PRESIDENT MITCHELL'S STATEwith the rich collegian and left her home just at the time her mother died. He lavished money upon her and for a time caused her to forget that she was only a little factory girl She was one of the best dressed girls in New Haven. Young Austell is very rich. His father established the first National Bank of Atlanta, Ga., and owned thousands of acres of land around that locality before the city began to flourish. A princely fortune fell to his children by reason of Atlanta's growth. One of the sons married a daughter of Judge O. A. Lochrane, chief justice of Georgia. The family is intimately connected with the Swanns, and James Swann, formerly of the firm of Inman, Swann & Co., of New York, has always taken a deep interest in young Austell. The family did not know the pace Austell had been setting at Yale. He was bright, and all reports from schools and colleges he had attended gave him a fine showing. He is a handsome man, tall and thin, with clear, classic feafect young man by society in larger cities of the South, where he was widely known. "Alfred is all right," said young Frank Cook, brother of the dead girl, after the funeral. "He is a perfect gentleman. We have forgiven him, and I am going to meet him tomorrow for a last farewell. He was here at the house and saw Etta before they took her to the cemetery. He loved her and she loved him, that's all." Austell was popular at Yale. About a year ago he met the factory girl, and they were seen often in the streets riding in his automobile. After the last commencement Austell remained in New Haven. He lived at No. 117 Wall street, near the university buildings, and kept two negro valets whom he had brought from the South. THEIR LAST MEETING. The two were at the Double Beach Hotel on the Sound on the night of July 25. Austin told the girl that he must leave her forever. He was about to return to his home in Atlanta, he said, and was going to make a long distance record in his automobile. The girl could not bear the idea of being deserted by him and drank carbolic acid. She died in Austell's arms.

MENT. Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 31 .- President Mitchell issued the following statement today: "While I am not informed of the causes of the regrettable occurrences at Shenandoah, and consequently not in a position to say whether the miners or the deputies are responsible for it, I am nevertheless much grieved to learn that there has been a serious violation of the law. I have repeatedly warned the miners that the person who violated the law was the worst enemy the strikers could have, and I have directed our local officers and committee to be constantly on the alert for any breach of the peace. Our efforts in this direction will be redoubled, and I trust that judgment will be withheld until the responsibility of the trouble at Shenandoah has been properly located. Dallas, Texas, July 31.—The only ray of hope which penetrates the gloom of the flood situation comes from the weather reports, which predict fair skies, and the fact that the Brazos River at Waco is falling again.

Railways are tied up worse than ever before in the history of the State. The only railroad which has so far repaired its damage is the International and Great Northern. General Passenger Agent Price, of that road, says the actual damage to the International roadbed will reach $100,000, and that STRUCK BY TRAIN. Binghampton, N. Y., July 81.-The wagon containing the Ilion State League ball team, on its way to the ball grounds, was struck by an Erie passenger train at a crossing in Lestershire yesterday about 1:30 o'clock. The driver, a colored man, was instantly killed, and Pitcher Hess, of the Ilion team, was injured, but the other players jumped in time to save themselves. L. W. Hess, of Nanticoke, father of Pitcher Hess, was internally injured, and is not expected to live. Manager Howard Earle, of the Ilion team, was in ernally injured as was also Pitcher Hess. Both are seriously hurt. The criver was Thomas Lewis (colored), of this city. Signor, who was riding on the driver's seat, had one leg broken. The passenger train was traveling at a rate estimated at 59 miles an hour. The station near the crossing shut off a view of the train and the driver apparently did not hear it in time to stop his horses. A boy standing on the tracks gave warning in time to allow a majority of the players to jump, as the wagon approached the tracks. Those injured were in the front of the wagon and were unable to jump in time to save themselves.

DOMINION ALLIANCE

Annual Meeting of the Council Opened by the President.

Mr. Buchanan Takes Exception to Mr. Dougall's Remarks-The Officers.

Toronto, July 30 .- The council of the Dominion Alliance for the suppression of the liquor traffic, began its annual meeting this morning. In his address President John R. Dougall, of Montreal, said the past year afforded another illustration of the illusiveness of hopes based on the good intentions of politicians. He alluded at length to the situation in Ontario and Manitoba, and expressed gratification that there was the prospect of a good fight for prohibition in Ontario, that whether resulting in victory or not would reflect credit on the temperance cause. In Manitoba, when the recent vote took place, there had been dissension in the temperance ranks, and many had stayed away from the polls. His own view was that a good fight in every ditch was a good rule in a war of this sort. The president, in closing, paid a tribute to the Scott Act as the best piece of legislation for the promotion of the temperance cause that had yet been secured, and said a great mistake had been made in letting it drop where it had been abandoned. He urged, and the executive joined in this suggestion, that amendments be sought at the forthcoming session of parliament for the better enforcement of the Canada Temperance Act.

Mr. W. W. Buchanan, of Winnipeg. took exception to the reflections in Mr. Dougali's address on the action of the prehibitionists of Manitoba. They were no less astute than those of Ontario and Quebec, and they knew the conditions surrounding the vote as people in the east did not.

At the afternoon session of the alli-ance it was decided to seek amend-

TERRIFIC COMBAT. Paris witnessed one of the most terrific combats of wild beasts that occurred outside of the jungle during a recent celebration of the Fall of the Bastile.

A lion tamer, Adrien Pezon, for the 14th of July, installed his menagerie at the place of the Temple, in Paris. A tamer, Valtoi, was showing off several tamed lions in the central cage. A little farther in another cage were three lionesses and the lion Menelik. a superb beast that has never been tamed. These animals were very much agitated. In the adjoining cage was a panther alone.

The lionesses succeeded in opening with their claws the wall separating the cages, and suddenly, amid the most fearful roars, Menelik and the three lionesses threw themselves on the panther. Pezon tried in vain to separare the furious animals. At length, by pricking them through the bars, the tamer, with the assistance of the whole personnel of the menagerie, succeeded in driving the infuriated beasts back into their cage, but not before the panther was almost torn to pieces

Will John Bull Help Us?

We publish with pleasure a letter from Mr. Robert Paterson on prefertrade. Mr. Paterson is traveling representative of a Scotch mercantile house, and his business takes him to every portion of the globe. Knowing Greater Britain, he is almost of necessity an Imperialist. the Colonies would be strengthened by advantage given to Canadian food products in the British market would make Canada the granary of the Empire. Great Britain, he says, "should bear with this small tax in order to help Canada." The economists say that enlightened self-interest is the rule which has governed all material progress, and on that principle Canada would not object if the British people chose to tax themselves to help this country. It is just possible, however, that John Bull may get the notion that his own interests would not be served by any such procedure. He is an opinionated old chap, and it is hard to drive an idea out of his head when It has once lodged there. He has held to free trade for half a century, while the other nations have laughed at him, and judging by the recent bye-elections, his prejudice is still strong.

Mr. Paterson says, and the sentiearnest thought is for the poorly-paid British workman, whose lunch consists of bread and tea. How to convince this poorly-pald individual that ing his staple article of diet is one of the practical difficulties with which Empire is apt to be a mere abstraction, or if he can comprehend it he why not hemlock? may imagine that the beef-eating colonist should lend him a helping hand instead of extending it for ada would increase the market here for British manufactured goods, thereartisans. Canadian manufacturers, on the other hand, want no increase of British goods in the Canadian market -they prefer to supply it themselves. The British workman and the Canthorns on the rose of Imperial preferential trade.

The spirit of Mr. Paterson's letter is be made to feel as he does, the problem would be solved. There is nothing insular in his outlook; he realizes that Canada must play a great part in shaping the destinies of the Empire.

The British Education Bill.

The British Government suffered a marked slump in its majority yesterday, on the passing of a section of the Education Bill, which Mr. Balfour is piloting through the house. This measure, which has been dragging along for several sessions, has created a storm in the country, the Liberal party making it the chief issue, next to the corn tax. The provisions of the bill are highly complicated, but roughly speaking, it is claimed they will place the control of the machinery of primary education largely in the hands of the Church of England, as the school managers will be appointed by the county, borough and parish councils, in which churchmen predominate This is the meaning of Sir William Harcourt's remark yesterday that the bill was a negation of popular control. The Nonconformists are up in arms. They have sent deputation after deputation to lay vehement protests before the government, and have kept up a vigorous public agitation. Arrayed against the bill is also the large class which has no denominational ties and believes that public education should be non-sectarian. The most militant advocates of the measure are the high churchmen, but several distinguished low churchmen have Jaken the platform against it on the ground that it does an injustice to the Nonconformists. Like every question which touches the religious feelings, it has aroused strong passions, but the government is evidently determined to jee it through and take the risks.

Politics and Picnics.

A good deal is said about Tammany methods in this country, but they cannot approach the real thing. The latest illustration was given yesterday by ex-Chief of Police Devery, who is booming his candidature for the Democratic leadership of the ninth assembly district of New York city. Between 15,000 and 20,000 women and children were taken on a water picnic. requiring two large steamers and four barges for their conveyance. Ten physicians, a corps of trained nurses, lifepavers, an opera company, a vaudewille troupe and four bands were taken along, and refreshments were served in unlimited quantities. The commisearies included 1,000 pounds of roast tubs of butter, 20 barrels of potatoes, 20 crates tinned tomatoes, 10 crates of raw tomatoes, 500 heads of cabbage, 250 pounds of coffee, 2,500 large loaves of bread, clam chowder for 30,000 persons, 1,500 pounds of fancy cakes, 5,000 gallons of ice cream, 8,000 quarts of milk, 250 boxes of soft drinks, barrels of birch beer, 1,-THE LONDON ADVERTISER COMbags of popcorn and candy. The Gargantuan scale of this entertainment dwarfs anything of the kind in the annals of Canadian politics. We have heard a great deal about a refection in a certain attic in this city, but we are willing now to admit it was a beggarly affair. The pigs' feet and beer episode a few years before was not worth mentioning. If the Devery style of campaigning becomes popular in this country a good many men will be driven out of politics, but the women and children will cultivate a deeper interest in it.

Generals Botha, Dewet and Delarey have sailed for England and will be-He believes the Mother Country and come the social lions of London. The genius of these men has cost Great preferential trade, and that a small Britain blood and treasure, but the British people are magnanimous.

It points out that in 1900 the Canadian crop was 44,000,000, and ten years before that 32,000,000 bushels. "a growth admirable, and if every Briton could which gives but little justification for the large anticipations we have noted above," it adds. It is quite certain that the Herald hasn't heard of Canada's growing time.

The Hamilton Herald says: "In the matter of rivalry between the vertical and Spencerian styles of penmanship, The London Advertiser is of the same opinion as the Herald, that it matters little which system is taught in the schools, so long as the pupils are required to write neatly and legibly. What country could fail to be proud of a daughter nation like this with its prairies and its forests, its fleets and harbors, and great lakes and rivers, and such historic towns as Montreal and Quebec Canada itself is in a mood of justifiable elation. Have not her sons in the past two years added another notable page to a military history already splendid. No wonder that Dominion Day has been celebrated in the metropolis with unusual fervor. Spectators who were fortunate enough to be in Parliament street yesterday when the North American soldiers as-sembled at the Canadian Arch to cheer their country and their premier, witnessed a scene of unparalleled interest. The like of it has not been known yet in London, though we may hope that some such demonstration will become an annual event in the future.

Where Snobbery Rules.

[Montreal Witness.] "The statement of the Associated Press telegrams that but for his own retiring disposition Mr. Chamberlain would certainly have been recommended to the King by Lord Salisbury as his successor is of a piece with the diligence with which through the same channel Lord Curzon of Kedleston, and the Duke of Marlborough, were recentcanvassed for seats in the new abinet, the impression being left that these great men were left out because of their exceeding greatness. If a British statesman wants to be followed through life with a sympathetic in-terest by the big nation across the sea there is only one thing for him to do, and that is to marry an Endicott or a Leiter or a Vanderbilt. Trusts and corners may be very popular in the United States, but even a daughter of wealth becomes a godess when she passes over to the Avalon of the race, Great Britain. It is to be regretted that Mr. Balfour has not yet added to his other virtues an American wife Young Britishers with a future should take note and not blast that future by marrying east of Chicago."

Liquor and Pianos.

[New York World.] In the year specially covered by the census of 1900 the United States produced 1,325,358,094 gallons of whisky, wine and malt liquors, valued at $340, 615,466. In the same year the musical instrument factories of the country turned out only $44,514,463 in products. When one remembers the apparent age of the average concert hall piano and the number of seasons of plain and mixed drinks which it survives, this wide difference in the value of fresh outputs is neither startling nor dis-

Rock Bass Not Hybrids.

The theory recently advanced that between the black base and the sun-fish seems to be disproved by the rock bass that abound in Lake Kenka, in Western New York, says the New

From "In Memoriam."

Derives it not from what we have The likest God within the soul?

Are God and nature then at strife, That Nature lends such evil dreams So careful of the type she seems, So careless of the single life;

That I, considering everywhere Her secret meaning in her deeds, And finding that of fifty seeds She often brings but one to bear, I falter where I firmly trod,
And falling with my weight of cares

That slope thro' darkness up to God,

I stretch lame hands of faith, and grope And gather dust and chaff, and call To what I feel is Lord of all, And faintly trust the larger hope.

abundant in its waters. The black bass is an alien resident of the lake, having been placed there within recent years, The rock bass is one of the gamest fishes for its size that swim, and, with its big, staring red eyes, its enor-mous head and capaciou mouth, is one of the most ferocious looking. While in Lake Kenka, where it seldom attains a greater weight than half a pound, it is regarded as a pest by black bass fishermen, because of its persistence in steaking balt, its excellent qualities as a food fish commend tionalities have borne their part in and small lakes. In the Pennsylvania South Africa), or of those who were with General Brock in the glorious campaign of 1812—glorious at least, for is welcomed by anglers as a provider Canada, whatever it may have been of most enjoyable sport with the rod. The rock bass takes the fly readily, and makes a pretty fight on light trout tackle.

A Germ-Proof House.

A germ-proof house is the latest addition to the hygienic terrors of life, says the London Chronicle. It is not yet actually in existence, but medical congresses are busily and even hopefully paving the way for its advent. When it arrives, and we are all thoroughly scientific and uncomfortable our homes will be single-storied, withour nomes will be single-storied, with out stairs, built on a gravel soil, des-titute of cellars, with concrete and blocks of earthenware "pierced for ventilation" placed under the floor, and the ordinary bricks "will be su-perseded by glazed and tightly fitting hygienic blocks." The roof will be tiled, not slated, and the windows will reach from top to bottom of the walls. The dining-table will be of polished mahogany, the chairs cushionless or stuffed with medicated wool. The walls ought to be made of cement that takes a high polish, can be stained to any color and washed frequently. Curtains and draperies of all kinds will be abolished; pictures will be permit-ted only when let into the cement wall; for artistic touches we shall be depending on "plants of the india rubber and eucalyptus type." In no room will there be corners to harbor dust and bac-teria, and the skirting will always curve into the hardwood parquet floors in-stead of striking them at right angles.

A Great August Magazine.

A galaxy of famous writers contribute to the August Scribner, which is a special midsummer fiction number. Rudyard Kipling's new story Will stir the interests of readers to enthusiasm as one of the boldest and most brilliant expressions of Mr. Kipling's genius. The title, "Wireless," gives a hint as to the modern developments in electric phenomena that suggested the story to Mr. Kipling, but it contains in it no intimation of the amazing originality and skill with which he has worked it out. And yet no other title could describe so exactly the extraordinary psychological situation that forms the main incident of the story. It is fully illustrated by F. C. Yohn: James M. Barrie's new serial also begins in the August number-a tender, fanciful, poetic story, with a novelty of conception and a range of humor and pathos for which even Mr. Barrie has not pepared his readers. The title is "The Little White Bird, or Adventures in Kensington Gardens." The scene is laid in London, the leading figures are a newlymarried couple and a whimsical Charles-Lamb-like, elderly person who narrates the story. It is a most original production that will completely captivate readers. Harding Davis, A. T. Quiller-Couch, F. Hopkinson Smith, Edith Wharton, and others are also represented. The illustrations are of the finest.

DOMINION FRUIT INSPECTOR HERE

Enforcing Provisions of New Fruit Marks Act.

NO MORE BIG APPLES ON TOP

Government's Efforts to Protect Consumer and Advance Canada's Fruit Interests.

Mr. P. J. Carey, one of the Dominion fruit inspectors appointed last year, under the new fruit marks act, has been in this city and its vicinity for several days. The fruit marks act, which seeks to protect both the home and foreign consumer against sharp practices and careless packing on the part of the packer, provides for the designating of the grade of all fruit packed in closed packages. The act pays special attention to the packer who puts the big fruit on the top of the barrel, in the following section:

"No person shall sell, or offer, expose or have in his possession for sale, any fruit packed in any package in which the face or shown surface gives a false representation of the contents of such package; and it shall be considered a false representation when more than 15 per cent of such fruit is substantially smaller in size than, or inferior in grade to, or different in variety frem, the faced or shown surface of such package.' The inspectors are empowered to enter all places where fruit is on sale or in storage and examine the fruit. On discovery of violations of the act, inspectors enter a prosecution and the offending packer or merchant is liable to a fine of 25 cents to $1 for each fraudulent package.

CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 30.—Unsettled by the closing options in July corners, all the grain markets today were ragged, yet withal rather dull. Despite the fact that a marginal price of 450 was put on July new oats yesterday, the bulls in this deal were very stubborn, and sold at almost nothing, indicating the probability that the July oats corner will have to be settled in the open pit tomorrow. In other options of this and other grains, bears had the whip hand early, and pressed prices down. Covering for short accounts, advancing speculative and export demand, and estimated curtailed shipments to this center, however, checked declines in the Mr. Carey reports that he finds a general disposition among buyers and packers to observe the conditions of the act. His visit to this city is for the purpose of setting the local deal-ers to co-operate with the Dominion officers, and he says that he has been very successful. Mr. Carey has also spent several weeks among the growers and packers of Western Ontario, and they seem to recognize that observance of the act will result beneficially to

Mr Carey believes that there is a center, however, checked declines in the new crop deliveries, and put fresh vigor into the July deals. At the close July wheat was 1½c higher, September ½c up, July corn 2½c higher September corn ½c down, September oats ½c up, and July oats 3c higher. Provisions closed 10c to great market for Ontario fruit opening up in Manitoba and the Northwest, in spite of the high freight rates which must be paid to get the fruit to the consumer. The Ontario packer cats 3c nigher. Provisions closed 10c to 22½c up. KITCHENER AND MEYER MEET HARCOURT'S VIGOROUS SPEECH

Redmond - Bisley Prizes Distributed

Pekin, July 31. — Dr. Cartwright, an American missionary, has telegraphed Minister Conger that the missionaries in Sze Chuen have made repeated demands upon the Chinese authorities, for protection, without result; that massacres of native Christians and destruction of their property continue daily, and that the missionaries themselves are in imminent danger The foreign office, however, repeated the assurances it gave Minister Conger a month ago that the government had the situation well in hand.

KITCHENER AND MEYER. London, July 31 .- Alfred Rothschild gave a dinner Tuesday evening, at which many persons prominent in lit-erature, art and the drama were present. The lions of the occasion, how-ever, were Lord Kitchener and Gen. Lucas Meyer, formerly of the Orange Free State army. When the generals met all eyes were upon them. They shook hands most cordially and conversed several minutes.

Gens. Botha, Dewet and Delarey sailed for England on Wednesday from Cape Town. The boys of the Dutch schools dragged the carriages carrying the generals to the steamship dock, through cheering crowds.

PREMIERS BANQUETED. John Redmond, leader of the Irish party in the House of Commons, entertained Sir Wilfrid Laurier, prime minister of Canada, and E. Barten, minister of Canada, and E. Barten, prime minister of the Australian Commonwealth, at dinner last night, in the House of Commons. The 22 guests included John Merley, Sir James Charles Mathew, lord justice of appeal; Father Cronin, of Buffalo; D'Arcy Scott, of Ottawa, and W. T.

TO STOP CLAMOR. An Associated Press report says: The statement by the Canadian com-missioners to the effect that report concerning arrangements for the es-tablishment of a steamship service between Canada and England were unauthorized, and in some cases incorrect, is generally regarded as an attempt to lessen the pressure being brought to bear on their governments as a result of the publication of the Canadian Pacific's subsidy offer, and he attitude of the Canadian and imperial governments.
Canadian Pacific officials say they are not in the least disconcerted by the statement. One of them said: "Since the publication of the Canadian Pacific Railway's offer the ministers undoubtedly have been be-sleged by inquiries and rival proposi-tions. I see nothing in this statement except a desire to shut off public clamor in order to give better epportunity to reach an official decision.

do while the negotiations are pending. It has not accepted the Canadian Pacific Railway's proposal, although there is good reason to expect that it will accept.' In the mass of matter which has been published following the outline of the Canadian Pacific Railway's offers there probably have been some incorrect statements. It is claimed, however, that the situation is still in accordance with the facts given by the Associated Press. CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVE AT WASHINGTON.

It is stated that among the re quests made upon the British Gov-ernment by Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the part of Ganada shall be attached to the British embassy at Washington, if not as ambassador, at least as charge d'affairs. He takes the position that inasmuch as the greater part of the questions which have to be dealt with by the ambas-sador at Washington relate to the daily intercourse of the Dominion and the United States, it is but right that they should be dealt with by one thoroughly acquainted with the views and one possessed of sympathy with that Canadian point of view which can only come from citizenship in the Dominion.

LORD DUNDONALD IN CANADA. A correspondent writes to the London Globe warning people against indulgence in extravagant expectations from the career of Lord Dundonald in Canada. Those interested in Canada's military service, says the writer, need not be too sanguine of the results of Dundonald's accession to office. If the new general officer commanding lects what his distinguished predecescors failed to carry out, Lord Dundon aid will deserve well of the mother country and the Dominion.

A SPLENDID OUTLOOK

Canadian Northern Issues Another Favorable Crop Report.

Winnipeg, Man., July 31 .- The Canadian Northern Railway has issued the following crop report from points along its lines in Manitoba:

"From every station the report most hopeful, and everything points to a heavier crop than last year. Weather conditions have been most favorable for some time past, and the estimated yield will run from 18 to 30 bushels per acre for wheat, and as high as 60 bushels to the acre for oats.

"The harvest will probably average one week later than last year, but the whole outlook is reported as never better.

GOOD-SIZED CUT IN TORY MAJORITY

Passage in the House.

Colonial Premiers Dine With sohn Patrick McHugh, M. P., Sent to Prison for Three Months for Contempt of Court.

> London, July 31.-After being subjected to vigorous attacks from the Liberal leaders, one of the most important sections of the Government's Educational Bill was passed in the House of Commons last night by 230 votes to 189. This small government majority was greeted with prolonged cheers from the opposition.
> Previous to the vote Sir William Vernon Harcourt (Liberal) made a speech, which was characterized by all his old-time vigor. He declared the present house did not reflect the opinion of the country, and that if the government did not know this it would soon learn it. The speaker said Mr. Balfour, the premier, demanded unconditional surrender, but that he would never get it; that the Educational Bill was the negation of every principle of sound finance, whether imperial or local. Sir William declared the country did not love clericalism, and that the new clericalism imposed by the Educa-tion Bill was leved by the country least of all. He said the Liberals would fight the issue to the bitter end. A reference to the by-election for a member of the house to repre-sent North Leeds, which resulted in a Liberal victory, elicited enthusiastic applause from the Liberals. M. P. TAKEN TO PRISON.

Patrick McHugh, Nationalist member of parliament for the North Divi-sion of Leitrim, left the House of commons last night, accompanied by the governor of the Sligo fail, in which place Mr. McHugh is to serve a sentence of three months' imprisonment. A select parliamentary committee decided to take no action in the case.

Mr. McHugh was arrested in June on a bench warrant issued by the special court assembled at Sligo under the Crimes' Act, charging him with contempt of court. In the course of his trial in April, 1901, when he was accused of publishing seditious and refused to apologize, saying to the magistrates: "I never express regrets to sweeps of your kind."

A GREAT FRIE AT LOURDES. A dispatch to the Paris Temps from Tarbes, gives news of a terrible fire at Lourdes, the town famous for its Shrine to Our Lady, to which many pilgrimages are made. The fire brigade was unable to check the flames, and when the dispatch was sent an entire block of houses had been destroyed and a number of persons had been victims of the fire. MR. CHAMMERLAIN'S SON AD-VANCED.

The government has made no authorized statement, and is not likely to Chamberlain, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, son of the Colonial Secretary, will, it is announced, succeed Mr. Gerald Balfour as president of the Board of Trade.

The office of president of the Board of Trade carries with it a salary of $10,000, and in recent ministries a seat in the cabinet. Mr. Gerald Balfour. who resigns the post in consequence of the change of premiership, is the brother of Mr. Arthur Balfour, the new Prime Minister. He was Chief Secretary for Ireland in Lord Salisbury's 1895-1900 administration, and has lately suffered from poor health.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain, who is 39 years of age, is the son of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, to whom he bears a remarkable likeness. He entered parliament in 1892 as member for East Worcestershire and was Civil Lord of the Admiralty from 1895 to 1900, both of which offices entait much acquaintance with the inside practice of parliamentary business. As head of the Board of Trade, the president is responsible in the House Commons for passing great bills of do mestic commercial importance, such as the proposed water supply and dock unification board for London bills.

Soldiers From Cestrian.

and Gives His Reason

Acting Mayor Winnett has failed to arrange any suitable welcome to the soldier boys who arrive home Saturday night.

He said today that the men who came on the Cestrian have not seen active service. For this reason he did not take steps to accord them any formal civic welcome. His failure to do this will be regretted by citizens who feel that after the display of patriotic spirit that these London boys have given, fighting or no fighting, their home-coming should not lack a warm and hearty welcome.

Tonight a band concert is to be given at Queen's Park. It would not have required the expenditure of much energy on the part of the acting mayor to have switched this concert on to Saturday night and thereby let the nome-coming of the soldiers be celebrated in hearty fashion.

New York, July 30.—The funeral of the late Chief Rabbi Jacoby, head of the Orthodox Hebrews of the United States, held here today, was the oc-casion of one of the most remarkable demonstrations ever witnessed in this city, and led to a collision between the Jewish mourners and the police.

The streets were packed with thousands of Hebrews, the stores were generally closed, and every point of vantage along the route taken by the funeral procession to the different Destroyed Or Injured.

Los Alamos, Calif., July 31.-The most severe earthquake in the history of this place occurred at 1:30 this morning. It is not possible yet to estimate the damage, but it is very heavy. No lives are known to have been lost, though there were many narrow escapes. Every brick building in the town was destroyed or badly wrecked. In nearly every house windows were broken. The Presbyterian Church, a large and handsome brick structure, was razed to the ground and a similar fate befell the general store of W. S. Wickenben, also a brick building. The shock seems to have had a spiral motion. Goods were hurled from shelves of stores and piled in the middle of the rooms. Even such heavy articles as desks were thrown about. Not a chimney is left standing in the town. All brick walls are badly damaged, but frame structures generally, escaped serious injury. The whole town was aroused and people fled from their homes to the streets in panic. There have been several light shocks since July 27, when the first heavy shock occurred, but that of this morning exceded in violence any yet experienced. It lasted 30 seconds, and threw people from their beds. Los Alamos is a town of about 600

The World's Best Age.

Most people have no doubt asked themselves at some time or another what part of the world history would a favorite topic, on which the super-lative degree is often exercised. Mr. Justin McCarthy, the eminent Irish historian, has been heard to vote for the period of Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Theale. Years ago, when Mr. Gladstone was alive, the Grand Old Man and a group of friends were discussing this same question at Hawarden Castle. Mr. Gladstone, without any hesitation, deciding from the intellectual point of view, and expressed the opin-ion that he would describe as the greatest day in the world's history a day in ancient Greece, when Athens was at the summit of its glory. Another member of the group chose the day of Pentecost. The effect on Mr. Gladstone is still remembered vividly by those who were present. The intellectual gave way at once to the spiritual, and the aged statesman. ing rather ashamed of himself," acding to one who was present, asked leave to withdraw his former choice and say, "A day with the Lord."

A Cold Bath on a Hot Day.

A cold bath on a hot day is refreshing. Every pore of your body is more open in hot weather and requires more frequent cleansing than in cold weather. The pores in hot weather absorb more freely than in cold weather; it is therefore most undesirable, after taking a morning bath, to cover the body with underclothing that has been washed with adulterated common soap. For comfort, cleanliness, and freedom from skin disease, the clothing worn next the skin should be washed with a pure and well-made soap. If Sunlight Soap be used in the laundry your pores absorb purity.

Bella subscribed willingly to this encomium; but still she resolved to urgo her scheme of retrenchment once more.

"But there's no harm in saving, pape, surely, just now. I have been going through all these books over and over again till I know them by heart. There's tne grocer's bill is extravagantly high, and the butcher charges a penny a pound more for his mutton than he did six months ago; and—"

The alderman interrupted her vehemently. This was more than flesh and blood could stand. To have lost thousands in Philadelphia by the shortcomings of Slopes; to have tens of thousands in jeopardy at Sydney by the incapacity of Newman & Hope, and then to be told that his butcher overcharged him a penny a pound! The alderman exploded: "Zounds! child, don't bother me about such nonsense! Pay the butcher and the rest of them as you used to do. Things must have come to a pretty pass indeed when Jones & Co. tax their bills for roast mutton, and can't afford to give a dinner party!"

"Silence, Bella!" roared the alderman, very angry now, as well he might be, struck by the truth-tipped shaft. "Silence, and do as I bid you. There's Mrs. Latimer coming in at the garden gate now. She'li help you to write the invitations after luncheon; and don't let me hear anything of this kind again."

So the alderman bounced out of the room and drove off straight to his counting-house, where he was very ill at ease the whole afternoon that he had spoken so sharply to his darling, and where the accounts in which he immersed himself did not tend, I fear, to restore the goodhumor he had lost.

It was a relief to Bella to have Mrs. Latimer's gentle face smiling upon her humor he had lost.

It was a relief to Bella to have Mrs.
Latimer's gentle face smiling upon her after this uncomfortable scene. Ada looked today more lovely than usual. An inward glow seemed to brighten her whole countenance, and the blue eyes shone with a soft light that could only be kindled at the heart.

She was, in good truth, very happy—stolishly, exultingly, and certainly without adequate cause. When she asked herself wh, she could not but acknowledge that her relative position was precisely the same as it had been a week ago. She was still Mrs. Latimer, giving music lessons at the rate of so much per lour. Mr. Orme was none the less engaged to marry Lady Gertrude; that his love of harmony had led him to attend a love of harmony had led him to attend a love of harmony had led him to attend a public concert in the dog-days; nor were the end of the season, and his consequent departure, postponed an hour by their meeting of yesterday. And yet something within seemed to tell her that she was at last rewarded for all her suf-fering, and she was willing enough to

I have heard it stated that one of the symptoms of incipient insanity is a tendency to view the same subject at different periods under a totally different aspect; to make light of the difficulty which an hour ago seemed insurmountable, or to shudder today at the chasm which appeared yesterday an exciting and pleasing possibility. If this be the case, a vast number of embryo lunatics must still be at large; and a few of us have experienced at one time or another this premonitory inconsistency of "reasen tottering on her throne."

So stupid, so awkward, so distressing! Yet how to break it? If it lasts thirty seconds longer she will jump up and run after Bella!

The parrot made a diversion just at the critical moment. Despising the artificial darkness in which he was enveloped, he gave vent to a startling whoop and an ear-piercing whistle, embarking forthwith in demoniacal tones on "Beautiful Venice, the bride of the—" Gilbert and Ada burst out laughing simultaneously. It was reassuring to hear their own voices, and the gentleman felt a considbelieve it.

work backward. It looks a little like music. Yes; I think I had better leave Mr. Solomons to you."

Ada smiled and proceeded in a very business-like manner to trace an invitation to Sterling Brothers in her delicate lady-like handwriting. It was not often such a missive reached the gloomy habitation of those merchant princes—the dusky firmament in which they sat enthroned, twin deitles of commerce—the lucida sidera of the money-making world. Bella chattered, or busying herself the while with paper and envelopes, and admiring her friend's industry and composure.

Here Bella stopped, looking wonder-Here Bella stopped, looking wonderfully mysterious and full of fun, causing her friend to suspend her employment and inquire, not without curiosity, what it was she "sometimes thought?"
"Well, of course, I don't know," answered Bella, now laughing outright, 'and I've no business to say so; but he asked me last year if I shouldn't feel very dull to that dings old house of his in Red. in that dingy old house of his in Bedford Square; and twice since then he has said such stupid things and behaved so oddly, that I think—I think I might be "And don't you like?" asked Ada, looking up with the eager interest which

"You should see the man," replied the young scoffer. "My dear, he's as old as papa—and his boots creak, and he wears a wig and takes snuff. Besides, I believe he's very cross at home, though he's always a good tempered here. No! a wig and takes snuff. Besides, I be-lieve he's very cross at home, though he's always so good tempered here. No! mine, when I have one, shall be younger and better looking and nicer than old Plumber. Goodness! that just reminds me, papa said I was to ask Mr. Orme the next time we had anybody here."

Ada was bending studiously over the note to Stirling Brothers. At this juncture it seemed to require the closest attention, so that only a delicate little ear and a portion of her neck were visible under her soft hair. Probably it was the stooping posture that tinged the skin with so very deep a red. Bella looked a little surprised to receive no answer, and pro-

Deer Mrs. Latimer. couldn't you do it for ms? He'd never know the difference of hand, and you might write as if it came from pany. might write as if it came from papa."

She was obliged to lock up now, but the color had faded away and left her wery pale. She couldn't write to him: that was quite impossible; also it was quite impossible to tell Bella why; neither could she meet the black eyes of the latter, opened wide at her obvious con-fusion. It was an immense relief to hear fusion. It was an immense relief to hear a peal jingling at the door-bell. It was not quite such a relief when the footman threw open the drawing-room door and announced "Mr. Orme."

There are many circumstances in life

There are many circumstances in life which draw largely on the composure and self-control of the human subject. If requires courage to stand up and be shot at by the riflemen of an enemy's corps, the while you are yourself bound to maintain, for the encouragement of your followers, such an outward demeanor of carelessness as though you were but the object of a pleasant joke-practical, perhaps, but humorous, and perfectly harmless. It demand no small perfectly harmless. It demand no small assurance to address a public assemblage, two-thirds of whom are prepared to cavil at your arguments and the whole disposed to criticise your language, appearance and general demeanor, with anything but a favorable eye. It must shake the nerve of any but a professional to appear for the first time on the beards in the character of Hamlet. Coriolanus or Macbeth—but none of these—sharp-shooter's target, unpepular orator, or shooter's target, unpepular orator, or amateur tragedian-requires half such self-possession to carry him through his ordeal as he who is unexpectedly usher-ed into the presence of his ladylove to find her not alone.

Cilbert Orme doubtless had plenty of time to prepare himself for the interview. His arrival at this critical moment was the result of much forethough and the nicest calculation. He had allowed so much for the time of the music lesson, so much for the necessary conversation of any two ladies at any given hour of the twenty-four, so much for the difference of clocks, and the result should have been his entrance at the gate of the Villa precisely when Mrs. Latimer was quitting it. He knew nothing however, of the dinner party and the invitations-nothing of the note that was to be written to himself; consequently, he came ten minutes too soon.

Of course, he scarcely said a word to Mrs. Latimer; of course, he made himself remarkably agreeable to Bella, though he would have been puzzled to repeat a single word of any sentence he addressed to her five minutes afterward; and, of course, the latter young lady, none the less observant that she herself knew the nature of such an innocent predilection found out the two guilty ones none the less observant that she herself knew the nature of such an innocent predilection, found out the two guilty ones in about five minutes, and took her measures accordingly, thereby insuring their devotion and gratitude for life. "Don't go, Mrs. Latimer," said she, preparing to leave the room. "I must see the housekeeper before I can settle how many to ask; and I want you to heip me with the invitations afterward. If you and Mr. Orme can amuse yourselves for a quarter of an hour, I will promise not to be a moment longer with Mrs. Garnish."

So she vanished, and Ada held her

So she vanished and Ada held her breath, while Gilbert, feeling sumewhat as he used when he hardened his heart for a race, made up his mind for the plunge.

Two little girls, with netted hair, are waiting meanwhile in a back drawing-room at Bayswater, and wondering whether their music lesson is to take place whether their music lesson is to take place whether their gentle mistress, who whether their music lesson is to take place today. That kind, gentle mistress, who never scolds them, and so often brings them sugar-plums, has been hitherto punctuality itself. Wet or dry, she has never been five minutes late before; and now they watch the hands of the clock with increasing speculation, and broach the most improbably theories to account for her delay.

the most improbably theories to account for her delay.

Julia, the fickle, says to Charlotte, the steady one, that she thinks Mrs. Latimer has been upset in a cab, and perhaps killed; in which case mamma will be very angry, and they will have no more lessons till a fresh teacher can be got—a holiday of at least a week.

Charlotte, as in duty bound, appears much shocked at so summary a disposal of their instructress, but suggests a milder fate, inclining to believe in bodily illness as the cause of her detention, or the death of a relative, or sudden accession to untold wealth. Both, however, concur in deciding that, under any circumstances, "mamma will be very angry." So they make up the minds, without much difficulty, to wait a little longer. Ada, meanwhile, still busying herself over the note to Stirling Brothers, feels as if she was suffocated, and as if her heart was beating so loud that Mr. Orme cannot but hear it. He is stoning on the hearthrug, drawing lines on its sur-face with the point of his umbrella. How loud the clock ticks!—this silence seems so stupid, so awkward, so distressing! Yet how to break it? She rose as if to depart, and with another formal inclination turned to leave the room, but her heart smote her for this gratuitous unkindness, and she put

As he took possession of it, he bent till his forehead almost touched her glove; then raising his reproachful eyes to hers, he said very gently:

"Are you angry with me? What have I done to offend you? Will you not forgive me before I go away?"

There was something in his tone that filled Ada's eyes with tears; she did not dare look up lest he should see them; but she left her hand in his voluntarily, and kept her regards fixed firmly on one but she left her hand in his voluntarily, and kept her regards fixed firmly on one particular square of carpet.

"Forgive you!" she said, in a very unsteady voice; "indeed. I have nothing to complain of. Ever since I have known you, Mr. Orme, you have been most kind and considerate. Indeed, I wish you every happiness in your marriage, and congratulate you with all my heart."

One large tear that had been slowly gathering here fell with a splash—how provoking that she could not keep it back! How angry she was with herself! What must he think? What he thought I cannot tell—what he did was to imprison the hand he had never reto imprison the hand he had never re-linguished in both his own.
"My marriage!" he exclaimed; "I am not going to be married!—unless, unless -Mrs. Latimer, there is but one woman in the world to me—Ada!—may I not call you Ada!—are you blind? My own! my own! Have you not seen it a long-".
Then out it came, the old, old story. jection to hear it all over again. That Gilbert's question was one of those which requires a definite answer seems sufficiently obvious, yet did it elicit no sort of reply. That he was himself satisfied with that eloquent silence which proverbially gives consent appears probable, for the umbrella lay neglected on the floor, and they both sat down again at no great distance apart; indeed, a tolerably vigorous arm interposed between Ada and the back of her chair, while, despite the vociferous interruptions of the parrot, the soft whisper went flowing, flowing on; the music of which thousands of years, and hundreds of languages, have never lost the cadence and the tune; the music that ravishes alike the sovereign on the floor.

God help the forlorn one, for whom the strain is mute, that spell broken forever.

By his own account, nobody had ever gone through so much to be alive. He spared her none of the particulars of their first introduction or their subsequent meetings, or the break-off in their intimacy, or his own misgivings and anxieties, and final despair. The words came fast enough now with that beloved form so close, and the dainty head bent down till his lips almost touched its delicate ear, and never a sign given of accurace are a conversed ages a scarre paldown till his lips almost touched its delicate ear, and never a sign given of acquiescence or approval save a scarce palpable pressure of the hand he clasped. There are many ways of telling the old story, but their drift is pretty much the same, as there are many paths through the forest of Cyprus that lead alke to the temple on the sacred hill. Gilbert's was a straightforward account of all he had thought, done, and suffered. He confessed freely to having been charmed by others, but not subjugated; to having often admired, but never worshiped; nobody but Ada had ever made him unhappy before. And she was cruel enough to be gratified by this admission. Also, with all his regard for Gertrude, who was like a sister (here there was another faint pressure of the hand and a negative little shake of the averted head), he had no more dreamt of marrying her than the queen of Sheba. No; there was but one chance of happiness for him in this world; if that was to be his, there was no mortal he would envy his, there was no mortal he would envy upon earth. If not, the sooner he was utterly lost and done for the better. Life was not worth having without it, for in good truth he was very very, etc., etc. She had not spoken yet; indeed, she had never lifted her burning face to meet his regard. Now she looked up quickly for an instant.
"Who was that lady I saw with you at the opera?" she said; and Gilbert knew by the tone in which she asked the question that she loved him. So their eyes

CHAPTER XXIV. I am Cockney enough to be very fond of Kensington Gardens. Where will you find pleasanter sweeps of lawn, or more umbrageous glades or statelier trees, than about the hideous old palace? Indeed, were it not for the town itself, that part of the valley of the Thames in which London is situated seems to be naturally a very stronghold of sylvan beauty. There are glimpses of woodland scenery in are glimpses of woodland scenery in Hyde Park, about the Powder Magazine. and near the Serpentine, fair enough to challenge competition with windsor Forest itself; and there are also walks and retreats in my favorite Kensington Gardens wherein you may dream away a summer noon, and fancy yourself hundreds of miles from the smoke of cities and the din of men. Probably you have never been there in your life before 5 p.m.; just as you have never seen the metropolis, with its long perspectives, perfectly free from smoke, and all aglow in the flush of a midsummer's sunrise. Many a time have I perused it thus both Many a time have I perused it thus, both before and after my night's repose; and you may take my word for it, that our capital is no dirty, dingy, ill-favored agglomeration of houses under such an aspect. But nine-tenths of its frequenters never see it save at its worst. Regular hours and conventional habits combine to deprive most men of at least a third of their lives, and they can only picture to themselves Regent street as a noisy thoroughfare alive with splashed omnibuses at three in the afternoon, or a meretricious promenade flaring with lamps and libertinism at eleven at night, just as their ideas of Kensington Gar-dens are limited to the half-dozen smokeblackened chestnuts and the circum-scribed area of trodden sward surround-ing the bands of the Life Guards or the

"Oh, ne!" said Ada, looking up at him with one of her soft, shy smiles, and thinking in her heart there never was anybody like him in the world. She always said "Oh, no!" to his ardent expressions of affection. Was it a sense of its priceless value, or was it indeed some foreboding of evil that thus made her decline and deprecate, as it were, the treasures he lavished at her feet?

LACROSSE.

LONDONS MADE GOOD FIGHT. Brantford, July 31. — Brantford's fast bunch of lacrosse players, acknowledged to be the coming champions of the C. L. A., took an exhibition tion game from the London seniors yesterday afternoon. While the score was 11 goals to 5, the game was a well contested one throughout, and an excellent work-out for both teams. Both teams played good lacrosse, and it is distinctly to London's credit that they succeeded in holding down the local players so well. It is something that the much-lauded Tecumsehs were unable to do. During the progress of the game, O'Brien received a dirty check from Taylor (Brantford), for which the latter was roundly hissed from the grand stand. The team

RICH HAUL AT BRIGHTON. Toronto, July 31.-A rich haul was made yesterday by a number of Canadians on the first race at Brighton Beach. Last week Allie E. Gates, of Toronto, trainer for Geo. W. For a while fencing flourished among the other sports, and several of the members became quite proficient at this fascinating exercise, but of late it has been dropped. The immediate reason for its popularity was the presence in London of a really skillful teacher, who aroused enthusi-

As a Britisher, my earnest thought is for the welfare of our people, and for the brave, though poorly paid British workingman. This can not so hear conducting ish workingman. Things are not so bad yet, but worse times seem to be ahead, and the trouble is, that the workingman does not see his danger.

The British Chambers of Commerce must educate him, and should advocate an emberge or foreign manucate an embargo on foreign manufactured goods and grains, with free admission to all products of the colonies; English would then be self-de-pendent; she would build up her brothers abroad; she would check the advance of that Mammoth across the line which threatens to swamp the world; she would thereby be able to were served in unlimited quantities. pay her workingmen the "living wage" The chief commissary of the expedion a higher scale, so that he would tion had 150 assistants, and the list of live and feed more like a man, and supplies was as follows: One thousand less like a pauper. I advise your ministers when in England to visit some of the large factories at home, and if possible see the wage lists, and compare these and the condition of the people they meet as workers with that of the people here, and I think they will readily admit that the American will readily admit that the American and Canadian has it every time. At

How can a man keep a respectable roof over a wife and family decently on $5 or $6 a week, as thousands have to do? One must of course compare shop for shop, or trade worker with trade worker, to Day, wife of Township Councilor Day, arrive at a fair comparison. There are great difficulties to overcome, but we have lots of money and are ever willing to help you to wisely help yourselves. I have always thought Canada is no sufficiently represented in the old land. The government should keep five or six smart lecturers always on the road, men who know their country from A to Z, supplied with lantern slides and slivery tongues, to teach the make one visit to each group. Toronto, July 30.—Two young men went into Herman Haag's confectionery store and ice cream parlor at 820 Yonge street yesterday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock, and coolly got away with $135.

Two women employes of Mr. Haag were the only other personss in the front part of the establishment at the time. While one of them was serving the young men, the other was at a desk near where they were seated. She was counting out bills, preparatory to taking the money to the bank. Sum-moned to the back by the proprietor, she placed the money in the desk and closed down the lid without looking it. This was all in plain view of the young men. MAKE THE BEST GUNNERS

The Advantages of Ball-Playing to Practical Soldiers.

Well Illustrated in a Ten-Inch Gun Test at Sandy-Hook.

New York, July 31.-Baseball and football training showed to advantage the other day in the test of a ten-inch coast defense gun made under the direction of the special gun carriage board. At Fort Monroe the board tried an eight-inch gun on barbette mount and at Fort Dupone a gun on a Crozier-Buffington disappearing carriage. Today at Sandy Hook a ten-Inch gun on a bargette carriage was fired for rapidity and endurance observations. Everything was made ready for the firing of ten rounds for speed. The big projectiles each weighed 575 pounds. The men were divided into gun crews with a relief after each ten ounds. A series of 30 rounds followed the ten round test, and the last crews to handle the gun comprised entirely baseball and football players of the Forty-eighth Company. The first ten shots were fired in exactly 16 minutes, the shortest interval between being 1 minute 25% seconds.

Then the series of 30 rounds began.

The official time between the firing of the first of the new set and the firing of the tenth was exactly 13 min-utes and 22 seconds.

The next crew consumed nearly 19 minutes in firing ten shots. Capt.

Phillips called upon the baseball and football detachment to man the gun during the firing of the last ten rounds. From the time of the firing of the twentieth shot to the firing of the twenty-first by the new crew, only 1 minute 32% seconds elapsed. With each shot the crew improved, and after firing six shots easily made one in 1 minute 4 seconds. Altogether the last ten rounds of the series were fired in exactly 10 minutes 59% seconds, while the firing of the entire 30 rounds took only 46 minutes.

Strong opposition has developed against the action. The Pest newspaper attributes it chiefly to spite against Miss McCallum on the part of an influential member of the board.
