Currie, Stevens Point, representing the Dominion Government in the State of Wisconsin, is in the city visiting Mr. Hugh McRae and others. Mr. McRae is endeavoring to work up an interest in the great Northwest Territory, especially Alberta, which is being rapidly settled. This is the most fertile portion of Canada. Mr. McRae thinks of settling there himself. Alongside of one of Mr. Mc-Rae's farms, he has neighbors who think nothing of raising from 40 to 55 bushels of beautiful No. 1 hard wheat to the acre. Stock raising to no end, hardly any winter, the stock graze on the prairie the year round. In this section in 1895 and 1896, by government statistics, there were wintered in that country 600,000 head of cattle, 500,000 sheep, 250,000 horses, without any shelter but what nature gave them. The loss was scarcely 47 of 1 per cent. Commissioner Currie halls from the same part of Canada the editor of the Leader operated in. The major (W. K. Fort Erie, Ont., April 7.-Edward eonard, representing the Canadian Specialty Company, also the Internacional Novelty Company, was arrested yesterday by Officer Griffin, of the Ontario police force, for using the mails for fraudulent purposes. Both companies are a myth as far as can be seen. He has been carrying on this business at different postoffices for some time. He is also a candidate for matrimony, having advertised in the newspapers for a wife, and received many endearing letters from the fair sex, which were found on him when arrested. Leonard is an Englishman by birth, about 45 or 50 years of age, and rather pleasing appearance. The police promise sensational developments.

Washington, D. C., April 7.-In the is perfectly quiet. house this afternoon Gen. Grosvenor (Ohio), replying to Mr. Lentz (Ohio), said a message from Gen. Lee was received on Tuesday, and another was received yesterday which was very urgent. He said the second was an appeal for time. Speaking of the note of the powers, Mr. Grosvenor said that the president's reply put an end without qualification to every delay or interference from the powers.

Mr. McMillan asked Mr. Gosvenor what the latest information was as to the president's policy. In reply Mr. Grosvenor asked Mr. McMillan what the latest information was as to the president's policy.

In concluding Mr. Grosvenor said he was delighted that this assault had been made upon the president because it disclosed the plans of the opposition. It was now apparent that the Democrats proposed to take political advantage of every situation. It was infamous, he said, that the cable should carry to Madrid tonight the news that the president's motives had been impugned and his integrity assailed. "I have no more doubt that we shall go to war," Mr. Grosvernor said, "than that I will live until next week. The Imparcial also applauds the decision of the Government, and the Globe says the government will do its utmost to "maintain peace without impairing the national honor." Lee will leave Havana on Saturday, as a result of explicit instructions from the state department, and a reply from him stating that he would sail on the day named.

The arrangements for the protection of American citizens from violation include Cuba and Porto Rico. While the majority of Americans in Cuba are at Havana, there is also a comparatively large number congregated at Matanzas, Sagua la Grande and other Cuban ports. Consul-General Lee has been clothed with ample authority to take any steps he may deem necessary for the safety of these people. SPAIN IS BOILING. Madrid, April 7-5 p.m.-An extraordinary cabinet council has been summoned to meet immediately. The session has created most pessimistic impressions. The ministers refuse to furnish any explanation. The excitement in Spain has reached the boiling point; but there are no demonstrations recorded anywhere yet. All the steamship firms of Valencia have offered all their vessels as privateers, and a number of ship captains have called upon the naval commander at Barcelona asking for letters of marque. Similar requests have been received from abroad, especially from France. The offers of money from the conduct in replying to Gen. Woodford, "whose proceedings are considered ex-traordinarily brusque and blameable." The Heraldo's information points to the fact that war is inevitable; but it still attaches great importance to the action of the ministers of the powers at Washington.

Washington, April 7.—Representative Robbins, of Pennsylvania, has introduced a resolution calling attention to the cablegram from Gen. Lee as to imperilment of the lives of American citizens if the message should be submitted to congress before Monday, and recognizing Cuban independence. It declares that a state of war has existed between the two nations since the destruction of the Maine, and directs the president to order at once the North Atlantic squadron from Key West to Havana, to demand the safeconduct of all Americans from the island who desire to leave, and for the squadron to bombard Morro Castle and close the port of Havana if the Spanish refuse to comply. The general said he would remain here until directed to apply for his passports or until they are handed to him. He added that when he leaves the British flag will be hoisted over the United States legation. In spite of the alarming situation and the general belief that the end is about reached, several of the diplomats still hope for peace. The city, thus far,

WAR INEVITABLE. Washington, April 7.-There is no onger any doubt as to the purposes of the United States Government with respect to the situation in Cuba. War, in the opinion of the administration, is inevitable, except in the unlooked-for event of a surrender on the part of Spain. The president's message, which he had intended to present to congress yesterday, has not been changed in any particular, and embodies the unanimous views of the cabinet, without the slightest variation. Any movement now to avert war must come from Madrid, and must concede America's demands, including an end to Spain's the developments of today. At noon the six great powers of Europe, through their representatives here, called at the White House and presented to President McKinley a joint note expressing urgent hope for a peaceful adjustment between the United States and Spain, to which the president replied with unmistakable plainness as to the duty and unselfish endeavors of the United States Government to terminate the insufferable conditions in Cuba. ing, and adds: "The government has was the statement that Consul-General This step, it is known, will be regarded by Spain as akin to an overt act preceding war, as it will terminte the medium of official intercourse between the United States and the island. Third, and almost equally important. Third, ominous tone of press advices from Madrid, where the war fever seemed to have dominated instead of concessions, the opening of prison doors and the other manifestations of peace and Washington, April 7.—Consul-General good-will which Holy Thursday was expected to bring forth, and the more definite announcement that would bring peace to Cuba. The heavy guard about Minister Woodford's house, the imperative character of his last note, the war utterance of Minister Corrieo, and the turbulence at the Spanish capital, left little hope that peace counsels would prevail. No negotiations are proceeding at Madrid on the part of the American Government, but the powers of Europe, it is understood, are doing their utmost to persuade the Spanish Government to yield and avoid war. On the highest authority it can be stated that no instructions have been given yet to Minister Woodford contemplating his withdrawal, the only step in that direction being the determination that Gen. Lee shall leave Havana on Saturday. The note of the European powers presented to the president has not, in the opinion of members of the administration, changed the situation in the slightest degree. The note is not regarded in any sense as a protest against the course the United States Government has pursued thus far, or is likely to adopt to secure a stable government in Cuba. Some of the governments represented in the note are known to be in full accord with the American Government in its purpose with regard to the Cuban question. An ambassador from one of the great

At this season of the year, when the weather is so variable, anyone, no matter how robust and strong, cannot be too careful if they wish to avoid the many forms of illness that are at present so prevalent. authority stated, a movement historical in character, and one fitting to occur in the advent of the twentieth century. The president's answer was looked upon to some extent as a counter-appeal to the great powers for their co-operation in the cause of humanity against the intolerable condition of affairs in

At the capitol, the situation was ardently discussed among individuals and came up in public debate in both houses. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, said he was ready to vote for a declaration of war, in discussing an amendment to the sundry civil service appropriation bill. In the house a significant declaration was that of Gen. Grosvenor, who declared he believed war was inevitable. The importance of Gen. Lee's telegrams was declared by members not to have been overestimated and the impression that the president was amply justified in withholding his measure became a cer-

WAR MUST COME. The opinion in the Senate and house is that war must come. Both foreign committees were in session during the day extending their inquiries as to oa. Mr. Quesada, of the Cuban Junta, gave the house committee the reasons why the recognition of independence was desired by the Cubans. The military branches of the government steadily continue the work of preparations for possible emergencies, this work, however, being now principally confined to completing matters heretofore begun. No new schemes have as yet been entered upon. The most important action taken by the navy department today was the selection of commanding officers for the vessels recently purchased from the Morgan line. These are the Magnificent, El Sud, El Rio, El Norte and El Sol, and the officers to whom they have been assigned are Commander Willard H. Bronson, now abroad engaged in the purchase of ships and supplies; Commander Charles H. Davis, Commander C. J. Train and Commander Wm. H. Emery. Orders to these officers will be issued tomorrow. No new ships were purchased today, but the department has directed the board to select two vessels for distilling ships and one collier. MISS BARTON TO LEAVE CURA. New York, Sept. 7.-Stephen Barton, chairman of the central Cuban relief committee, said today that he had received a cablegram from Miss Clara Barton, president of the National Red Cross Society which is at present in Cuba, saying she had been advised by Consul-General Lee to leave the island at once, as it would be unwise for her or any other American to stay

Berlin, April 7.-The Madrid correspondent of the Cologne Gazette says: "The papers of the American consulate have already been intrusted to the care of the British consulate. At midnight the pope made fresh confidential representations to the Spanish Government, and a second cabinet council was then held. But the reply was to the effect that the pope's intervention had come too late, as a decision had already been arrived at." SPAIN WILL NOT YIELD. London, April 7.-A special dispatch from Madrid says that the ambassadors of France, Germany, Russia and Italy waited together this evening upon Senor Gullon, the foreign minister, and presented a joint note in the interests of peace. Senor Gullon, replying, declared, according to the dispatch, that the members of the Spanish Cabinet were unanimous in considering that Spain had reached "the limit of thernational policy in the direction of conceding the demands and allowing pretensions of the United States." WAR PREDICTED IN LONDON. London, April 8.—The morning papa ers' editorials on the Cuban situation are all pessimistic at the most, only hoping that the delay until Monday will enable some peaceful influence to work. The Times cannot see how a conflict can be averted. The Daily News points out that in both America and Spain it is the people, and not the rulers, who desire war.

THE DYING CARDINAL Quebec, April 7.-The latest news from the cardinal's palace this afternoon was to the effect that his eminence was sinking rapidly. All hope of his recovery has now been given up. A DINNER PILL.-Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. Cromwell; vice-president, H. Gurney; manager, A. Elison; treasurer, G. L. Gray; secretary, A. E. Gough. The meeting was largely attended. A first-class team will be placed in the field, and will be ready for all comers as soon as the weather permits. The boys intend giving a concert at an early date for the benefit of the club.

SPALDING'S GREAT GUIDE. That popular manual of the national game, "Spalding's Official Baseball Guide," has just been issued as the March number of Spalding's Athletic Library, and consists of everything relating to the national game. That it most complete work of the kind published goes without saying, as it was edited by the veteran writer, Henry Chadwick, the "Father of Baseball," than whom a no more competent authority exists.

A resume of the campaign of 1897 in the National League gives very full particulars of what each club did as season progressed. The records of all the league players who took part in fifteen games or more are appended. A feature of the guide which has attracted much favorable comment is the handsome half-tone pictures of the leading teams of the country, embracing, all told, nearly 500 portraits of individual players.

A very good portrait of Anson, with an interesting article on his long and honorable career, is a feature. The most important feature of the guide, however, is the rules, which were subjected to a great deal of revision at the recent league meeting. The amend-ments, as usual, are printed in italics, and can be noted at a glance. The guide is for sale by all newsdealers, or will be sent postpaid in the TORONTO'S FINE TEAM. The Toronto Globe says: If anything at any stage of a season ago. Perhaps there is a weakness behind the bat, but that can easily be remedied. Besides Casey and Reid, Manager Irwin has two other catchers on his string, and though he intends to give Reid a thorough trial, if he does not come up to the mark he will get his walking papers in quick order. As far as pitchers are concerned no club in the league is as well provided. No fewer than eight twirlers are under contract, as follows: Williams, Gaston, Lipp, Riesling, Mc-Farland, Sutthoff, Baker and Johnson. Carney, on first, according to report, is every bit as good as McGann, and if records count for anything he is a better fielder. The old reliable Taylor will hold down second, while either Cockman or Fox will play short. Gatkins at third is expected to be the crackerjack of the league in that position. As for the outfield, Gray, the star fielder of Buffalo last year, will play either left or center, and he will have for his side partners Sheehan and Freeman, two of the heaviest hitters in the business. The Torontos will be strong all the way around, and if they don't win the championship they will be close up.

According to the rules heretofore, substitutes for principal teachers, were allowed $1 per day, while the principals were allowed to retain score at cricket in playing with a local the balance of their salaries. This Dr. Teasdall considered an injustice. He thought that where a teacher was qualined to take a place worth $3 per day, he should receive at least $2 of the same. The flag day question was put through in short order, and the secretary ordered to write Mrs. Fessenden, Hamilton, and Hon. George W. Ross, expressing the board's sympathy with the movement. In all likelihood, if the idea is approved of throughout the province, the minister of education will be asked to fix a day. Inspector Carson suggested May 24 or Dominion

ST. JAMES PRESBYTERIANCONCER

A Gratifying Success From Every Standpoint - A Fine Programme and Large Audience.

The concert held at St. James' Presbyterian Church last night proved a decided success. The edifice was well filled, and judging from the enthusiastic reception of the various numbers the programme was a popular one. It was contributed to by many representatives of the best local talent. Mr. Charles March opened the programme with an instrumental, and fully sustained his reputation as master of the instrument. A quartet by the Misses and Messrs. Webster was one of the most enjoyable vocal numbers of the Solos by Mr. Stockwell and H. R. McDonald were loudly encored and responded to. Mrs. Harvey then sang "Across the Far Elue Hills, Marie," and was also recalled. Miss Marion Hutchinson then sang a solo (serenade) with rare purity and sweet- accept. ness of tone, and was very deservedly encored. A recitation entitled and Me," by Ruthven McDonald, took the audience by storm. A duet was given by Mr. McDonald and Mrs. Harvey, in splendid voice, and they were most heartily recalled. Miss Hutchinson and Mrs. Harvey then favored the audience with a duet, "Come to Me." Messrs. Corbin brothers and Williamson, London Musical Trio, gave musical selections at intervals during the evening, and received much well-merited applause. Taking it on the whole, the concert was a most gratifying success. and those who looked after the affair are to be congratulated on the result

The Bishop Unable to Liberate Him self Until the Horses Were Stopped-The Street Car System Tied Up in Consequence-A Prayer of Gratitude.

The Bishop of Huron had an unpleasant experience last evening just before 8 o'clock. He was being driven to St. Paul's opposite the Catholic Record office the driver turned from the west to the east side of Richmond street. He did not clear the tracks in time, and the carriage was struck by a trolley car going north. Both the hind wheels of the cab were knocked off and the driver was hurled to the pavement. The situation was very serious for the bishop, as he was practically imprisoned in the closed carriage. horses started on a gallop southward. Ald. Cooper Makes a Charge but Takes It Back.

Commiss oner,

Who Refutes the Accusation - The of Business Before the Board of

A memorable meeting of the board of works was held last night-memorable for its uproarious termination, an account of which is given in another column. Outside of the fisticuffs between Ald. Cooper and Ald. Douglass, the chief feature was an accusation hurled by Ald. Cooper at Acting Street Commissioner Ironside. There was a general feeling of relief, however, when a satisfactory explanation was given and Ald. Cooper "took it all back." The "surprise" came when a letter was read from Mr. Ironside (who has been acting as street commissioner since the death of the late Commissioner Owen), asking that his appointment be confirmed.

Ald. Carothers moved that the posied, and that Mr. Ironside and Mr. Kirkpatrick be appointed assistant eng neers, at their present salary. He said that at certain times of the year Mr. Ironside's work as street commissioner was light, and at such times he gave assistance in the office. Ald. Greenlees thought it only a difference in name, anyway. The duties would be the same, whether the officer was called street commissioner or assistant engineer. Then Ald. Cooper had something to say. He claimed to have found a discrepancy between the pay roll made out by the street commissioner and the pay sheet he submitted to the commit-

Mr.Stewart appeared before the committee to request that a sewer be laid along Oxford street, from Wellington to Richmond street, thence south on Richmond, to connect with the new sewer at the corner of George and Mill streets. The sewer was recommended by the board of health. The city engineer said a petition of one-half or two-thirds of the ratepayers would be necessary to prevent its construction. The matter was referred to the chairman and the city engineer to advertise the work to be done under the local improvement bylaw if necessary. Mr. Judd was again present to press the claims of the Front street residents for a breakwater. Reference was made to the report submitted at the last meeting, and Mr. Judd said the report did not amount to much. The engineer had made it without giving the matter careful consideration. His estimate as to the cost was greatly out of the way, Mr. Judd thought. Mr. Crouse had offered to build a suitable breakwater for $250 or $300. Duart, April 7 .- The village is considerably worked up over the mysterious disappearance of Alfred E. Beach, a young Englishman who has been in the employment of Mr. Angus Thomson for the past year. On Friday evening, March 25, Beach left his employer's farm and came to the village with instructions to make several purchases. After ordering bread at the bakery, for which he stated he would call later on, he was seen proceeding in the direction of Muirkirk, and beyond this no trace of him can be found. The fact that he told several that he liked his place, and that there is over $50 due him, makes his disappearance strange. Beach's time is out on the 7th of this month, and had he intended leaving, by waiting two weeks he could have left honorably. Mr. Thomson, who is unable to attend to

London Adbertiser. (ESTABLISHED 1863.)

MANAGER, John Cameron.

London, Friday, April 8, 1898.

Spain Must Go. Though the declaration of the president's views on the Cuban situation has been postponed till Monday, it is hard to see how any developments can take place that will bring a peaceful solution to the questions at issue unless Spain backs down at every point. President McKinley is striving hard to avoid war. The business interests, and especially the owners of stocks, are urging him to refrain from hostilities at all hazards. They fear that war; short time, would bring great losses to investors. They are backed by holders of bonds representing the colossal indebtedness of Spain. But against this view, there is an overpowering public sentiment in favor of war, and speedy war, unless Spain consents to give up Cuba. "Spain must get off this continent bag and baggage," is the ultimatum, and its promulgation is joined in by the great mass of the people. Even the preachers urge it, peaceably, if possible; if not, by force. A sample of the sentiment prevailing was given in the New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church on Wednesday. There an indictment was found against Spain, which declared that "the memorable conviction of the enlightened conscience of the American people has decreed that tranquility can never be restored to this land while Spain maintains at our doors a system of government which is the belated relic of barbarism and an attempt to crowd the God of justice and mercy out of human history.

With such teaching almost universal, it will be difficult, if not impossible, for President McKinley and Congress to accept from Spain anything less than a quittance of the Island of Cuba at the earliest possible moment

Will Spain consent to that humiliating submission without force? The near future will tell.

Do the Square Thing by News' paper Makers.

The newspaper managers of Canada, with very few exceptions, would indorse the Postmaster-General's propositions regarding a modified postage on their products were he to set to work to remedy the unfair competition that under the new order of things would exist through the carriage of United States papers free of charge through our mails. No doubt there are international difficulties in the way, but to get rid of them is what legislators are for, and we shall expect Hon. Mr. Mulock to set to work to devise means to secure fair play for the large and important industry of newspaper mak-

How Canadian interests are injured by present arrangements is ably set forth by Mr. Wm. Thompson, editor of the Canada Farmer's Advocate, through the following letter, which has been addressed to us:

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Your leading editorial of Saturday, discussing the proposed changes in Canadian postal arrangements, as outlined by the Postmaster-General, calls attention to the United States Sunday whether United States papers generalshould come into Canada postage free as under present international reciprocal arrangements. Part of the Postmaster-General's business is to guard Canadian interests, and it would be doing so with a vengeance to tax the Canadian publisher, and give his Yankee competitors the free run of the country. A short time ago the Canadian Parliament suspended its rules of order, and with hardly a dissenting voice, put through at a sitting a bill, (incidentally strongly protective in a fiscal sense), which prohibits the importation of United States nursery stock, and next day the Governor-General hurried down to give royal assent measure, lest any twig affected with the scale might slip country, further spreading that troublesome insect pest. Members of Parliament were not slow, however, to throw overboard the fatherly Charlton bill to protect the higher interests of Canadians from the Sunday newspaper. described as "the journalistic monstrosity of the age." DANGEROUS. [Canada Baptist.] As we write these lines it is generally accepted as a foregone conclusion that the government bill for the construction of what is known as the Yukon railway will be thrown out by the Senate. The question is too large to be discussed with any fullness in a The fact is, however, very important from two distinct points of view. In the first place, however strong may be the theoretic objections to the surrender of so immense a tract of territory to any private company, the Senate, though not directly accountable to the people, will assume a weighty moral responsibility in cutting off the only means, so far as appears, of securing railway connection with the Yukon gold fields during the coming season. It is difficult to see how the system of responsible government can be worked out so long as the irresponsible branch of the Legislature has power to block any government measure instance, that hundreds of people in the gold region should perish from starvation next winter, because of the impossibility of getting in supplies, whose will be the chief responsibility? Each Governit seems, certain to appoint its own friends-or men of its own way of thinking. When, as is now the case, the majority of Senators belong to, or have been trained in, the school which is politically opposed to the Government of the day, it is not easy to see how a possible deadlock is to be prevented. ### Ghosts Far Under Water

Strange Things Seen by Divers in the Great Lakes.

Wrecks at the Bottom That Look Spectral and Weird.

An Encounter With a Dead Man-Pecuent Dangers - Fascination of the Calling.

"In spite of the fact that no deepwater lake diver ever goes down without feeling that the chance is by no means remote that he has looked for the last time on the sky and the earth and all he loves," said one who was formerly engaged in that perilous calling, "there is a fascination about the life that few divers, after becoming familiar with it, have ever been able to resist. This seems the more singular because no diver, shut up in armor and held down in the depths by a hundred pounds or more of weights, can ever banish entirely the thought that a little stoppage of the air pump, a leak in his hose, or some slight carelessness on the part of his tender in the boat above, is sufficient to bring down upon him the weight of a mountain and crush the life out of him as in the twinkling of an eye. There is always danger, too, of the diver fouling his lifeline himself by catching it on some projecting splinter, or around a sharpedged timber, and in his haste to release it he may precipitate the catastrophe of which he stands the most in dread. The fouling of a line frequently occurs, and I never had it occur to me -as it did more times than I care to recall-that I did not turn cold in my efforts to release it at the thought of what a slender thing held back the clutch of death down in those moaning

There is no sound down there but the intermittent wail and moan, wail and moan of the swaying waters all around and above, and yet seeming far away. There are no waves in those depths, only a mysterious swelling and swaying of the waters. Foundering vessels on the lakes, especially sailing vessels, frequently sink so squarely that the diver who goes down to work in them finds them resting on the bottom as trim and neat as if they were and startling sight to come suddenly the solemn depths of the lake, standsunlight and freedom of the lake above. It is a sight uncanny and ghostlike. The married three times, and he is the the spectral craft, which is all the more spectral because there is no creak of timber, no sound of straining ropes or grinding keel. The diver might climb the rigging, walk the deck, or go down into the sunken cabin as readily and easily as if he were a sailor and the vessel were sailing along with only the sky above her-but he can't help the intruding thoughts of death. The lake diver would much rather find a sunken vessel a wreck indeed. He naturally expects to find a broken ruin on the bottom of the lake, not the ghost of a perfect ship. He can work and search with better cheer among splintered beams and shattered spars and broken keels, where he has to chop and pry and batter down to uncover the object of his quest, whether it be merchandise, treasure or corpses, than he can on a sunken craft that gives him free and easy access.

"This spooky situation of a foundered vessel standing erect on the bottom is more apt to occur in Lake Huron than in any other of the great lakes. What the scientific explanation of the fact is I don't know, but a diver can work on the bottom of Lake Huron at a depth of at least twenty feet greater than he can in any of the other lakes. In Lake Superior a diver can't see further than ten feet into the water surrounding him, but in Lake Huron he can plainly distinguish objects 50 feet away. At a depth of 100 feet in Lake Superior a diver can work not more than one hour at a time, the feeling of oppression becoming then unbearably painful, but I have worked five hours at a stretch in Lake Huron 115 feet below the surface before the pressure forced me to signal to be hauled up. A man drowned in Lake Superior never appears on the surface. The dead float on the waters of Lake Huron, and yet all the water of that lake comes from Lake Superior. "I have gone down to the lake bottoms many times, engaged purposely to release the bodies of men, women and children who were known to have perished in wrecked vessels, and I early became insensible to any shock, feeling of horror or even uneasiness in searching among sunken wrecks for corpses. But there came a time when I could not go down simply to recover goods or valuables, no one having been carried to the bottom with the vessel, without being constantly haunted by the dread that some dead persons would rise suddenly from some part of the wreck and confront me, or that corpses were floating in the water above or around That feeling came to be a part of my work from an experience I had on a wreck not long after I became a diver. It occurred in Lake Huron. I had gone down to recover a valuable cargo from a vessel that had foundered so suddenly that the captain and cre had barely time to escape by the boats, The wreck lay in 90 feet of water. was badly broken up, and rocked and swayed in the water so that I kept my balance with difficulty as I worked among the timbers. I was prying and chopping my way to the hatches when from some place about the wreck, but m just where I never dead man rose suddenly in front of me. "The corpse was not more than ten feet away, erect in the water, facing me, and seemed to me exactly as if had risen in alarm at my approach. The man had died with both hands tightly chitching his breast. His open mouth. widely staring eyes, and distorted face made such a picture of horror as I hope never to see again. The corpse stood a second facing me, and it seemed to me as if its horror was of me and because of my presence there. I stood as if paralyzed such was my terror. The dead man rose at last toward the surface. and in such a way that it deepened the impression that I had disturbed him in his sepulchre, for it was for all the world as if he were fleeing from me. Several time before the corpse disappeared beyond the line of my vision it a fish swimming by or the air hose flapping against me gave me such painful starts that I had to signal to be hauled to the surface, and it was a long time before I could summon courage to go down again. Never after that could I go down a hatchway into the cabin of a sunken vessel at such times without shuddering over the thought without shuddering over the thought that perhaps some poor victim of the wreck was imprisoned there, and that he would suddenly be released by the lurchings of the hulk and appear to me Changes That Will Be Wrought in all his swollen, wild-eyed horror, notwithstanding that all the time I followed diving after my first startling experience, I never came face to face with an unexpected corpse. The one I encountered on that occasion must have been the corpse of an unfortunate stowaway, for none of the crew knew the dead man nor of his presence on the vessel "Lake divers get big pay for their work, but as there are a good many in the business, and jobs are sometimes far between, they do well if they average more than fair wages, taking the year through. I have made as much as liarities of Lake Huron-Ever Pres $1,000 in a month, but there were a good many months during which I did not make a dollar. Full of peril as the life of a lake diver is, it is safety itself in comparison with the life of a lake sailor. I would rather take my chances, nine times out of ten, in going to the bottom and working there among the ever-present dangers that beset the diver than to sail before the mast on the great lakes. I didn't quit the life of a diver because of its perils or its hardships. I followed the calling ten years, and after escaping with my life by the narrowest chance from threatening and imminent dangers on the uncanny bottom of the lake, fathoms and fathoms down in the subterranean gloom, I was compelled to abandon diving by an accident that happened to me in the full light of day and while breathing the free air of heaven, with no sign of danger nigh. I was preparing to go down to search a wreck off Before I was ready to descend heavy chain fell from the derrick of he wrecking scow I was on, just missing my head and striking me on the right shoulder, crushing every bone in it. The accident crippled me so badly that I was unfitted to resume work as a diver, and I reluctantly abandoned the profession that had so much fascination for me. The diver who went fown in my place on that wreck having been down long beyond the time it was possible for anyone to remain in that water, the men above hauled him up. He was dead, his life-line having been cut by a jagged piece of iron on the hull. I don't know whether that might have happened to me or not if the chain hadn't fallen upon me and prevented my going down. Perhaps it might."

Through Electricity.

Cheap Water Power May Alter the Face of Europe and America

Nature's Generosity Will Put Industry Under New Conditions

[E. H. Mullin, in Cassier's.] Electricity, unlike steam, can be distributed over a wide area from the point of its production, with comparatively little loss; unlike steam, it can be stored up for an indefinite length of time, ready for instant use; unlike steam, it can be economically subdivided into units small enough to run a sewing machine. Thus electricity, as a motive power, permits dispersion of the industrial population where the defects of steam made concentration an absolute economic necessity. Moreover, so far as the waterfalls of the world are to be realized for the production of electricity, they will invite the establishment of industrial works under new conditions and with new surroundings. Lord Kelvin, on the occasion of his recent visit to the United States, spoke of the economical, industrial radius of the electricity produced by the Falls of Niagara as 40 miles. While the limit of the concession of the Cataract Construction Company was 450,000 horse power, Lord Kelvin said he hoped that our children's children would see no falls at all, all the water-equal to 7,000,000 horse power, according to Prof. Unwin-being applied to industrial uses. But a radius of 40 miles is equal to an area 233 times the size of Manhattan Island, for example, on which the city of New York now stands, so that the Magara Falls industrial district is capable of supporting a popula-tion of 58,000,000 before reaching half the density of the population on Manhattan Island. And if the whole 7,000,-000 horse power of the falls be taken, a previous calculation, made by Lord Kelvin, shows that the electricity thus produced could be distributed over a adius of 150 miles at a pressure of 80,-000 volts, with a transmission loss of only 20 per cent. But the area of 150 miles radius is to the area of 40 miles radius in about the proportion of 14 to 1; therefore the larger circle would support, at the rate of half the density of Manhattan Island, the almost incredible population of 812,000,000, or about two-thirds of the population of the entire globe. WHEN COAL IS SCARCE. Were Niagara the only great waterfall in the world, it is quite that these figures, or something like them, might be realized, because long before the world's coal supply is exhausted its price for steam-raising will be prohibitive, while as long as the sun shines the waters which fall into the ocean will be lifted up and carried back to the great American lakes. But between Niagara Falls and tide water there are now under construction works to take 150,000 horse power from the St. Lawrence River at the Long Sault Rapids without perceptible diminution of the river's flow through the main channel. The city of Montreal is now getting light and power from the Lachine Rapids, also on the St. Lawrence River, and it may be that the same particle of water will help first to turn the turbine at Niagara, then the turoine at Massena, near the Long Sault, then the turbine at Lachine, while a pound of coal burned at Niagara is gone forever.

It has already been remarked that the modern industrial city has been dependent for its rapid expansion upon its superior advantages with respect to coal-that is, it must have either a navigable water front, or be a natural railway receiving and distributing center, or be the natural focus of a coal and iron region. All this will changed in the great electrical waterfall cities of the future. The power, as a rule, will be produced in the mountains, while the cities will be scattered far and wide over the foothills. There will be better air, more room, better drainage, more civilized conditions of living than is the case with the present overcrowded industrial beehives, built, for the most part, on the swampy deltas or in the valleys of great rivers. CHANGES THAT MAY COME. Under the pressure of dear coal and with the attraction of cheap water power, the face of Europe will be changed. The Highlands of Scotland will become industrially more important to Great Britain than the comparatively flat Midlands. Switzerland, Norway and Sweden, the Austrian Tyol and Transylvania may become the dustrial centers of Europe, owing to their superiority in water power. For the rest, the course of manufactures will seek the sources of the great rivers or of rivers not great which have a very rapid fall.

Thus, in the United States, Montana, containing, as it does, the stormy beginnings of the Missouri, is already developing as the greatest ore-refining region in the world. Utah and California, in both of which coal is $5 a ton and upward, have now horse power to spare for industrial purposes from the waterfall electric plants which they already have in operation. Portland, the capital of Oregon, now gets its light and power from turbines on the Columbia River. Colorado, a year ago, had seventeen different electric driven by water power, used exclusively for mining purposes. The State of Washington and the whole Dominion of Canada have waterfalls without end and as much nerve in investing it as the greatest men in the financial centers of Europe and America. The cheapness of ocean freights has equalized the price of wheat and beef at every seaport in the world; the invention of automatic, labor-saving machinery has made the Hindu or Japanese, standing at a loom, very nearly the equal of the American or Englishman doing the same work. And as an invention along the older lines of human effort makes progress in machinery from less automatic to more automatic, so will the natives of Hindustan and Africa be able, under Caucasian direction, to utilize all the natural and local sources of power which Providence, through the sun's evaporative agency, has provided for them.

India's Hoarded Wealth

Millions of Gold Bricked Up in Sec et Vaults--What Hindoos Save They Hide.

[Springfield Republican.]

During the first decade of my residence in India I was for some years associated with a wealthy banker named Lalla Muttra Pershaud, the Lahore agent of the great banking house known as "The Seths of Muttra," and from him I learned a great deal about the system of hoarding practiced in all ages by the wealthy classes of India. He died at Brindabun about 1867. It may be explained that the title "Lalla" used by native bankers has no exact equivalent in English. It might with equal propriety be translated master, professor or banker.

Both in ancient and modern times one of the stock objections of European nations against trade with India has been that that country absorbs a large amount of the precious metals, which she never disgorges. It has naturally been asked what becomes of these treasures, for we do not find in India that abundance of either gold or silver which might naturally be expected; and the reply has always been that they are withdrawn from circulation as currency by being hoarded. For years it been a prevalent opinion in all eastern countries that there is a vast amount of treasure hidden in the earth, which, unless found by accident, is lost

When up country last year I heard that Chewringhee Lalla, manager to Lalla Muttra Pershaud, already mentioned, was in Gwalior on some temporary business, and I called on him, as an old friend, at a place in the Lushkar where he was residing. Among other subjects we discussed the action of the government in closing the mints, and asked his opinion about the possibility of a gold standard for India, and mentioned the fact that certain members of the Currency Association conwith a gold currency. The Lalla laughanxious the late Maharajah Scindia was to get back the fortress of Gwalior, but very few know the real cause prompting him. That was a concealed hoard of 60 crores (£60,000,000 sterling) of rupees in certain vaults within the fortress, over which British sentinels had been walking for about 30 years, never suspecting the wealth concealed below their feet. Long before the the British Government gave back the fortress, everyone who knew the entrance into the concealed hoard was dead, except one man, who was extremely old, and although in good health, he might have died any day. If that had happened the treasure might have been lost to the owner forever, and the world for ages, because there was only one entrance to the hoard, which was most cunningly concealed, and, except that entrance, every other part was surrounded by solid rock.

"So the Maharajah was in such a fix that he must either get back his fort-ress or divulge the secret to the government and run the risk of losing the treasure forever. When the fortress was given back to the Maharajah, and efore the British troops had left Gwafrom Benares, sworn to secrecy in the Temple of the Holy Cow, before leaving, and when they reached the Gwalior railway station they were put into carriages, blindfolded, and driven to place where they had to work. There they were kept till they had opened out the entrance into the secret vault, and, when the concealed hoard had been verified, and the hole built up again, they were once more blindlded, put into carriages, and taken back to the railway station and rebooked for Benares under a proper es-Chowringhee Lalla went on to tell me hat for generations before the rise of the British power, his ancestors had neld the post of treasurer in the Gwallor state, and that, after the British had annexed territories around Delhi, one of his great-grand uncles had retired from the post of treasurer of Gwalior with a fortune of 20 crores of rupees (£20,000,000 sterling). By great good fortune, all this money was quietly got into British territory, he declared; and 15 crores of it are at this day bricked up in a secret vault under a Hindu temple dedicated to the goddess of wealth in the holy city of Brindabun. "Now," said the Lalla, "If the treasurer

rectly the government decreed a gold | conversation with the tigress; and the "Five hundred millions of gold would be absorbed and concealed before a gold currency had been twelve months in thanks, the latter, as in the case of the circulation. Europeans, even those who have been in the country for years, have no idea of the hoarding propensities of even well-to-do natives, without counting the more wealthy bankers and or bad. For the former, the cock has, traders. For example, my wife," said perhaps, the most distinct set of sounds, the Lalla, "has more than three lakhs they are quite unlike any other note of rupees hidden for fear of my dying he uses, and are confined to the asserbefore her, because I am much older tion that he has found something good than she is, and we have no son alive to eat. QUADRUPEDS

Do Not Ask Questions, but "Look" Them and Make Statements.

Unlike children, animals do not ask questions. They only "look" them, and though they constantly and anxiously inquire what is to be done, and the exact wishes of their masters, and occasionally even of other animals, the inquiry is made by the eye and attitude. A terrier, for instance, can almost transform his whole body into a note of interrogation.

Of the two remaining forms of speech -statement and request-the animals make very large use, but employ the latter in a far greater degree than the former. They use sounds of request, not only in particular cases in which they desire something to be done for them, but also in a great number of cases in which the request is a form of warning—"Come!" "Be careful!"
"Look out!" "Go ahead!" 'Help!" The speech which indicates danger is sufficiently differentiated. Birds, for instance, have separate notes of warning to indicate whether the danger is in the form of a hawk, cat, or owl is on the move, the birds, especially blacksidered that £50,000,000 sterling of gold birds, always utter a clattering note, India constantly repeated, and chickens have a special sound to indicate the presence ed the idea to scorn, and assured me of a hawk. But when disturbed by that £50,000,000 would not suffice to man the blackbirds have quite a difreplace the silver hoards of even one ferent sound of alarm, and the chick-"You know," he said, "how ens also. Animals on the march are usually silent; but the hamadryad baboons use several words of command, and the cries of cranes and geese when flying in ordered flocks are ossibly signals or orders. Various monkeys, geese, a goat, a ewe with a lamb, elephants, cat very commonly, and dogs innumerable, are credited with "accosting" persons and bringing to their notice by vocal means the objects they desire or the actions they wish done. A most ingeniously constructed request of this kind was made a few years ago by a retriever dog late one night in London. The streets were empty and the dog came up, and, after wagging his tail. began to bark, using not the rowdy bark which dogs employ when jumping at a horse's head or when excited, but the persuasive and confidential kind of bark which is used in requests and reproaches. He was very insistent, especially when a small, dark passage was reached, up which he ran, still barking. As this did not answer, the dog ran back and took the writer's hand, in which he was carrying his in his mouth and gave a gentle pull before the British troops had left Gwadid not meet with attention desired, the dog pulled the glove out of the hand in the direction of the passage. As this and carried it off up the passage, keeping a few yards in front and waving his tail in a friendly way. This natur ally led to pursuit, when the dog, still keeping ahead, dropped the glove in front of a gate leading into a butcher's yard, and began to bark again. As it obviously wanted the gate to be ed, this was done, and it trotted in without further remark. Every one who has kept dogs knows the tone of the bark of request-a low very unlike the staccato bark of anger or vexation, or remonstrance. A bulldog at the Earl's Court dog show made his particular part of the bench almost unendurable by the form of bark, kept up (as we heard) for nearly three hours without a stop, because he was jealous of the attentions paid to the dog next him. This had won the first prize, and consequently received all the admiration; so the other dog barked short, sharp, incessant yelps at him all day long, only stopping when some one patted him believe that lengards are absolutely silent creatures: but many of the felidae have a particular sound of peared beyond the line of my vision it turned in the water and seemed to gaze back at me with that haunting look of horrer, the hands still clutching the breast. After the body had gone out of sight I tried to proceed with my work, but I was so much unstrung that work but I was so much unstrung that work but I was so much unstrung that the development of this water power is visionary; the falls of the Laila, "If the treasurer to be? The falls of the could accumulate so much, what were to be? The treasures of Gwalior form the liver and blood. Ladies, Dr. Chase's Kidney-but accumulations of the state likely but a very small amount compared with the blood pure. This is the secret.

"Now," said the Laila, "If the treasurer could accumulate so much, what were to be? The treasures of Gwalior form the giving of water or milk. There are bankers in Bombay, Parsees at that, who have as much capital brought out and replaced by gold di-

Take the house heard a dog barking this way when a of any well-to-do merchant with an couple of geographical globes were income of, say, 1,000 rupees per month; placed in a window-objects he had at the very outside, 50 to 100 rupees never seen and wished to call attenwould purchase the whole of the fur- tion to. Beyond a few purdahs as that of a dead body, or a dangerously (curtains) and beds, furniture in the wounded man, is sometimes communi-European sense does not exist. Even cated by the dog howling, which marks a different form of speech. I had to ad- really "talkative," namely, the wild species pays the slightest attention to geese, the redshank, and the green plover, pay very little attention to the calls either of their own species or of any one who can imitate them. We never heard of any one who has ever tried to "call" wild geese. Green plover can be called, but very seldom; and though redshanks can sometimes be whistled within shot, this is rarely

The difference between the notes of invitation made by various shore fowl —stints, gray plover, golden plover, ringed plover, knots and sandpipers-is so slight that no one but a fowler would notice them. Yet to these men the difference is as great as that be-tween the sound of French and English. A really first-class gunner will sit in a creek in August and call the birds up, if within hearing and inclined to move, n any order you like to name. Even such closely allied birds as the curlew and the whimbrel have different notes. We once saw a large mixed flock of gray plover, knots and stints flying past on the muds, at a distance of some ninety yards. A gunner noticed that there were two or three golden plover among them. whistled the golden plovers' note, and from the big flock of some sixty birds the pair instantly flew out, wheeled and passed within fifty yards, answering the call in their own language. Perhaps the best instance of the aptness of the gunners in leafning bird languages was recently recorded in the Westminster Gazette. It is credited to a fowler who shot the only specimen of the broadbilled sandpiper ever killed in Norfolk. When down on the muds listening to the notes of the shore birds he distinguished one which he did not know. He imitated it, the bird answered, flew up to him and was shot. which seem almost to talk, and certainly can imitate other birds when engaged in their curious "song," which seems like a conversational variety entertainment, are all the time enjoying a monologue. Starlings, when they have anything to say, as when nesting, or quarreling for places when going to roost, use quite different notes. Of all bird voices the song of the swallow is most like human speech-not our speech, but like the songs which the Lapp or such outlandish races sing. A Lapp woman sings a song just like that of a swallow at dawn.—London Specta-

ENGLISH POSTAL ODDITIES. Puzzles Found in the Mails of That Country and Turned Over to

Experts. Some of the anecdotes of the English postoffice recently related by Framley Steelcroft, are very amusing. The British public, one must infer, is no less apt to perpetrate blunders an mail queerly-addressed epistles than is our own; but the London mail clerks seem to be quite as clever in the interpretation of such puzzles as are the ingenious servants of Uncle Sam in the dead letter office at Washington. Here is one little anecdote which ought to prove encouraging so such of our readers as are beginning the study of French, inasmuch as it proves that a very slight smattering indeed of that elegant tongue may occasionally be of use. Any high school student will perceive why the letter of a certain anxious servant, left in charge of the house while her mistress was visiting at Aix-les-Bains, France, was returned with the postoffice stamp "not known" across its face. The mistress had written home cer- The Noted Actress Expres at Charlestain instructions, using the letter paper of the hotel where she stayed; the maid had replied, having, as she supposed, carefully copied the address from the printed letterhead. Perhaps this incident is fairly offset by another in which it was the postoffice official whose knowledge of lady living in England had lost many newspapers in the mail, and went to sub-postmaster, after her departure, received instructions from his chief to ask her the next time she came for the titles of the papers which had gone astray. He did so, and soon comscribed to three—the Il me manque and Plusieurs and Journaux ("I fail

The reason is made obvious by a straggling indorsement in red ink from the pen of some village friend of the addressee, "Job David is ded and beried." Near it is one of the most curious of recorded addresses: "Mrs. B., Wearing a Large Bear Boa, Violet Flowers in Bonnet, Promenade (mornings), Aberyswith." Madrid, April 7.-Today being Holy Thursday all traffic is suspended. The streets are crowded with ladies in mantillas, many wearing the national colors in their hair, going from one church to another. The spectators are that all have to proceed at the very slowest walk.
While the crowd was thickest, Gen.

Woodford, the United States minister, and Miss Woodford walked from the United States legation to their residence. They were recognized by many, but their promenade was not marked by any special incident. United States Minister Woodford today issued the following statement to the Spanish press: "The Madrid newspapers of this morning are filled with statements concerning the American minister which are so inaccurate that

It once looked as if the whole mill and part of the stock might go, but after about ten minutes the firemen got to work, and it could easily be seen the fire would be confined to the one building, and in less than 30 minutes the fire was completely extinguished. UNCLE SAM'S COAL PILE. Washington, April 7 .- From a preliminary statement compiled by E. W. Compared with 1896 this shows an increase in tonnage of 6,270,000 tons, or about 3.3 per cent. The amount of coal produced in 1897 was the largest on record.

Ald. Douglass and Ald. Cooper Come to Blows.

A Rough and Tumble "Scrap" in the City Hall.

The Belligerents Separated by Their Colleagues.

Hot Words Lead to the Row-The Remarks That Led Up to It-A Police Summons Threatened.

The scene at the windup of the boards of works meeting last night was not | get in," exclaimed the salesman. "Cake unlike some of those scenes at the Vienna Reichsrath. No blood was shed, but a rough-and-tumble fight took place between Ald. Douglass, chairman of the board of works, and Ald. Cooper, chairman of the sewer committee. Just how serious the conflict would have been had it not been for the intervention of some of the other city fathers, would be hard to say. The struggle, while it lasted, was a severe one, and in the course of it a chair was brandished overhead by one of the contestants, the big table in the committee room was shifted several feet from the center of the room, and several chairs were overturned. It was a wild time. Both men were dead in earnest. Neither showed a disposition, either, to turn the other cheek, or to run away. Apparently they were in till the finish.

Few words were spoken. When these representatives of the citizens of London believed it was time to act they acted. Ald. Greenlees thought it was a time for action also, and went in search of an officer of the law. Not a policeman could be found. Ald. Greenlees stood at the front of the ar-"While no formal agreement has cade, looking up and down the street, searching in vain for a moment or two. Then his anxiety to know how the conference will be held which will fracas was progressing led him to relater result in the formation of a high turn to the committee room, and he found that an armistice had been ef-

The trouble arose in this way: When the pay sheet was being considered as the last item of business before adjournment, Ald. Cooper objected to an item. He claimed that Mr. Sampey, an employe whose duty it is to knives keep tally of the stone received iness. at the stone crusher, was credited with too many days' pay. He was being paid for 51/2 days, said the fourth warder, and he did not start work until Monday morning.

The street commissioner said Sampey did some work last week. Ald. Cooper said he knew better. All Sampey did, anyway, was to walk around with his hands in his pockets, and bose the other men, said Ald. Cooper, standing up, and sufting action to the words. Mr. Burgess, who ran the crusher, could do all the work that Sampey had to do and his own work, too, continued Ald. Cooper. He had done it before for two years. There was no necessity for two men at the crusher. "And I move," he said, "that the services of Mr. Sampey be dispensed with." Ald. Dreaney did not believe Mr.

Burgess had any right to monopolize this position. "Oh, he's a particular friend of Ald. Cooper," said Ald. Douglass, by way of an explanation. "No, Mr. Chairman," Ald. Cooper re-

The other members jumped up hastily excepting Ald. Cooper, who rose slowly, and in an injured tone, said: "That's the way to break it up just when I'm trying to bring in something that would be a benefit to the citizens The talking was general and simultaneous while the aldermen put on their coats and hats. Ald. Cooper announced his determination "to set-

But the action riled Ald. Douglass still more, and he broke away from those who were trying to quiet him. Rushing at Ald. Cooper he struck him repeatedly, and forced him the length of the room. ### NEW HOUSEHOLD CONTRIVANCES.

Inventions Intended to Lighten the Labors of Servant and Mistress.

It really seems as if the domestic help -the handmaid and the handman of the present day household-had the favored end of the situation. Not only are devices for lessening their labors being constantly introduced, but new inventions for prompting the memory, and so saving the strained relations incident to oversights and omissions, are also found among the furnishings for pantry and kitchen. A self-closing bread-bin, all scarlet paint without and porcelain lining within, is the newest recruit in the list.

"Servants invariably neglect to shut

a bread-box, and if they do shut it they leave an opening sufficient for dust to or any cooked viand they are more careful about, but bread, with a thick crust to it, they appear to leave to its own protection. Various customers have spoken of this from time to time, so an inventor has taken the hint and made this cylindrical bin, that closes the minute the loaves are put into it." A self-acting knife washer is another invention, designed to prevent the over-burdened hired girl from having to remember that the handles of knives ought not to be put into hot water. It is a double-decked affair with places for the big, overgrown knives and places for the small knives. The knifewasher does everything but get its own hot water and wipe the knives after their scrubbing. That much is still left to the domestic. A new egg-breaker has just taken precedence over all previous egg-breakers. It not only cracks the shell, but holds the hot water as well, thus saving Katie's fingers from the least possible burn. This invention looks something like a pair of curved-edged scissors, with sharp little teeth to hold by. There is a new contrivance for shaving ice, and new appliances for rounding it into balls for use about the butcher and other delicate conveniences. The conveniences for peeling and paring vegetables, slicing them, and chopping them up, and for measuring out seasoning and condiments are a revelation to people who have not kept up with the van of improvement. Every year a seeder comes out, and the latest device for this purpose would be interesting to the old-time housewives, who spent hours seeding raisins for a birthday or a wedding cake, armed only with fruitknives and patience that resisted stick-

There have been divers bottle-lockers put on the market from time to time, but 1898 sees a new one, possessed of an actual key, which can be borne away in the pocket of the bottle owner, and so afford tangible evidence of the security of the much-prized vintage. "We have sold no end of these," says the salesman. "They take much better than the self-fasteners, that depended on the cork's swelling as a precaution. There seems to be a feeling among owners of wine cellars that it is perfeetly natural for the butler to give way to temptation in this regard, or for the cook or the child's nurse, on off afternoons and evenings, to take a clandestine swig at any tipple she may prefer. When the choicest wines that the house affords are locked, each in its own bottle, and the separate keys are in their turn locked away in cabinet or desk drawer, the master and mistres enjoy a freedom from responsibility. A contrivance not made especially for servants' use, but that might be adopted by them with convenience, is plied hotly, "but the other man is a an implement for reaching out and get-particular friend of yours. Burgess is ting things without rising from one's ting things without rising from one's chair. It is probable that the designer had the comfort of invalids and helpless folk in mind when he planned it, but able-bodied folk, both above and below stairs, have been quick to see its merits. When shut up it looks like a pair of tweezers or scissors, but it is light and pliant, and at the slightest touch jumps out and lengthens into a half-yard long utensil, tith two little claws at the end for hooking up the desired article. A newspaper or handkerchief, the skirt of a creeping infant, a skein of yarn, or any light thing that one's comfort requires, can be grabbed and brought within range by this contrivance. It is called a "Lazy Tom," The sybarite, either in the kitchen or in the sitting room, when armed with it can go a-fishing among surroundings without moving an inch from the special place he has found-comfortable.

> WHAT OUR NEIGHBORS EAT. [St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

The question of what we are eating and drinking is of serious import. There have come to light in recent years condition of affairs. We eat artificial eggs.

We dust powdered black walnut on our food under the impression that it is pepper. We drink an infusion of molasses and flour which is called coffee. We swallow gypsum and Prussian blue with our tea. We pour caraway seed, salveilic acld and glycerine into our stomachs in the name of beer. We use cotton seed oil on a salad and think it is olive oil. We spread oleomargarine fat on our bread believing that it is butter. We are befooled and befuddled on every hand by the purveyors of food and drink until we are never safe from imposition at the table.

But in the face of that look of anguish, of that inexpressibly mournful cry, straight from the heart, she could not even open her lips. She knew that there was some grief here which no words of comfort could touch. So deeply absorbed was she in the ilent compassion which kept her with lowered eyelids and mute lips, that she was quite startled when Mrs. Dale's voice, speaking in her ordinary tones, struck again upon her ear.

Thousands

Grand Central Palace, New York, Thronged Hour After Hour for Eight Days.

New York, April 5.-The evangelistic meetings led by Dwight L. Moody were continued throughout last week, and "He seems a very nice lad, and very closed on Sunday evening. Mr. Moody's their dead, many people think so much eminently successful seems to have been justified. The services attracted somebody' you mean," answered she. great crowds of people, and the unsaved of the community, as the evangelist wished might be the case, attended in large numbers.

An encouraging feature of the meetings was the large attendance at the morning gatherings for prayer. The hall, which seats several thousands, was filled almost to the doors. It is estimated that some days as many as 4,000 to 5,000 were present. Mr. Moody was especially pleased with these morning services, and he was so in-spired with the earnestness of those present that his own words became more forceful than ever. The requests for prayer poured in day by day, and although hundreds of these requests were received, Mr. Moody arranged them so skillfully that the various classes seeking help were pleaded for in many calls upon the Throne of Grace. One morning, in a short address previous to the offering of prayers, Mr. Moody said that many did not think much was to be accomplished when so many were prayed for at once, but he was of a different opinion. He illustrated the value of such praying by this incident: At one of his meetings in Glasgow several years ago some one asked prayer for the 70,000 young men of the city. then on some one prayed for them every day, and with a heart filled with interest he offered earnest prayer constantly in their behalf. At the end of the meetings, there were more converts among these young men than in any other class. "God knows every heart," Mr. Moody said; "the mother bowed with sorrow, the patient wife, the father, sister, brother or loving friend who sends this message to the Great White Throne." The practical character Moody's religion and his readiness to respond to current claims of need were admirably illustrated in his frequent appeals for the destitute suf-ferers in Cuba. Again and again did he present the case in ringing words. appealed not only for sympathy and prayer, but also for money to help feed the starving. He reminded the audience that 35 cents would buy a bushel of wheat in Cuba. He hoped Senator Proctor's speech on the territhe war than you or I. I don't think again and soon finds himself at the Men get mad, swear and tear, apolothe starving can be saved. If you don't so before. want to give, stay away, for if you preachers who have assisted Mr. Moody in these meetings were all to the point. The one great purpose of the campaign-to reach the lost-was never suffered to drop out of sight. "Grace," "What must I do to be saved," "Salvation," "Sin," "The Prodigal Son" and kindred topics occupied the hours devoted to preaching. Persuasive appeal, thrilling warning, urgent incitement, accompanied by clear illustration and sharp-cut teaching, and every other means of reaching the conscience and heart, were employed to move hearers to accept Christ. The speaker spared no effort to make their labors effective, and their conscious dependence upon the Holy Spirit was very evident. Besides Mr. Moody, the leading preachers heard at these gatherings were Drs. J. W. Chapman, H. M. Wharton and A. C. Dixon S. H. Hadley, Commander Ballington Booth and Booker T. Washington took part in briefer, but hardly less telling, speech. The singing also played an important part in the daily services. The Mount Hermon Quartet and the Yale Quartet rendered very effective service. So also did the soloists, notably, Professor Towner. The Great Day alone will reveal how many hearts were softened and made receptive of the truth by the sweet strains of bright Gosper singing. And not a few were led to Christ as these thrilling songs fell upon their mighty helps in this work of grace. of his remarks on this theme, Mr. Moody said:

If there is any one thing that the to prayer if you are in known sin. "Come until me all ye that are weary and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." That Christ said this is the greatest proof we could have that he was divine. No other man dared say that for four thousand years before he came. If Moses or Abraham or Elijah had said it, it would have been blasphemy. And why? They needed rest themselves."

No priest, no prophet, no king ever offered such words. But he spoke like a God. If what he offered is fiction, why hasn't it been found out in all this time? There are thousands here in front of me who can testify that he told the truth. Isn't that so? I can se ite in your eyes, some of you. There is one way to find rest. You won't find rest in theaters, you won't find it in ball rooms and rum shops. Rum never gave a man peace yet, though lots think it will. You won't go to fashionable people to find it, either, looking for the latest cut of a gown; and you won't find it among the millionaires. The man with millions often doesn't know what rest is. He would give a million for it. But it isn't for sale, like bonds and stocks. Talk about rest away from God. The first time a man looks away from God disquiet comes into his soul.

To prove that man was made for another world as well as this, gives one man this whole earth and he wouldn't be happy. I was once in a beautiful castle in Europe, one of half a dozen that belonged to its owner, and when I asked how long it was since the owner had lived in it, I was told ten years. You poor people say. "If only I were rich I would be happy." Don't and her mother, and can vouch for the te any such mistake. This world is truthfulness of her statements. burdens to Christ. Get to him. If you can't run, walk; if you can't walk, crawl; only come. You don't need Webster's Dictionary to find out what "come" means. You say, "But I am not worthy." He knows that; the knows better than you how mean you are. But he won't slam the door in your face and say: "When I said all, I didn't mean you." Christ is not only the sinbearer, but the burden-bearer. If Christians would only get rid of their burdens they would be worth something. If they are loaded heavily with their burdens they are disqualified from working for God. How is it that so many religious meetings are full of people with gloomy belief that these meetings would be of their troubles that they embalm them. While you are here, you laugh at that, and feel cheerful for a little time, but the moment the benediction is over you'll grab that old mummy of yours and take it home with you. Man! Woman! Leave your burdens Bring your sorrow to Christ. There is nothing too heavy for him to take. Oh, my friends, if you want rest you can have it. God will give it you now. "Come unto me," he says, "all ye that are weary"-all ye. Mothers, fathers, children come!

At The Foot of Lake Linderman-A Weary Journey-Strange Incidents On the Trail.

Another interesting letter has been received from Mr. Frank W. Herring, an old Londoner, who is well known all over Canada, and who is on his way to the Klondike, with a company which left Toronto about three months ago with 50,000 pounds of provisions.

The letter is written from Lake Linderman, about 30 miles beyond the Chilcoot Pass, and dated March 18. When penned, Mr. Herring was in excellent spirits, and seems thoroughly to enjoy the novelty of the trip, notwithstanding the the hardships are beyond description. It is, he says, a poor place for a man who has not a constitution of iron. The letter reads as follows: "We are now over that wonderful Chilcoot Pass-and such a pass! No man can conceive of its terrors unless he has experienced it. Every hill has its name, and is dreaded accordingly. Before reaching the pass and after ble condition of things in Cuba would leaving Dyea, one hill is called the 'Kill go out all over the broad land, and Hill, and another 'Calamity.'
