Prescription "A"

Cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia in all its Forms.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of the stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

A MYSTERIOUS QUEST.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

AT THE RECEPTION.

(Concluded.)
 'Miss Aspinwall uttered a low cry; no one heard it, not even Jenny, for the impetuous girl was full of her own thoughts, and was saying, passionately:
 'My voice will be a surprise to him. He must turn, and then if he goes away—'

She finished with a gesture. Hilary gave her one look, it was that of encouragement, and next minute Jenny was standing by the piano, and the first liquid tones of the fine instrument had burst forth.

No one notices a piano in such a gathering, and not a head, least of all his, turned at the sound. But when, in an instant later, this trained singer's strangely melodious and exquisitely cultivated voice broke out with a force and fervor it had never displayed even in the old happy and ambitious days with her singing-masters, not a head but responded to the call, and she saw, with a rushing sense of joy which nearly stopped her voice, that he not only saw her, but flushed with an unexpected rapture which made all her future assured. Thinking of him, and only of him, she went on, filling the great room with melody such as they never will again, doing for love what she failed to do for ambition, and waking in more hearts than one the enthusiasm never to be forgotten in the presence of any other singer. Miss Rogers had shown that the Signorina Valdi could sing, but only two persons besides herself ever knew what gave her the impetus, or inspired her with the power to sustain herself to the end before such a multitude of people.

When stillness came, an irresistible cry broke out; but she did not hear it. She was looking for Mr. Degraw to advance. And he did. She saw him burst from every detaining hand and come forward with his heart burning on his lips, when what is it that makes him stop suddenly and as if held back by a force he cannot resist? She cannot see; she sees only that he does not come; that he gives her look which seems to promise something, but he does not come; and at last she perceives him melt away with the crowd and vanish in the direction of the door, which finally opens and shuts upon him, leaving her with her glory and her grief.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

A TURN OF THE WHEEL.

THREE days went by; three slow-footed, miserable days, and another evening was near its waning, and no ring at Miss Rogers' house-bell had as yet announced the artist, nor had the post brought her any message to relieve her anxiety or explain his neglect. The only comfort she had received was that which came with the discovery that the name of Hamilton Degraw had not appeared among the list of cabin passengers sailing in the Etruria. But this comfort had a sting in it as well as balm; for if he had recognized her avowal sufficiently to delay his departure, how could he reconcile it with his expressed ardor, to remain away from her at a time so critical? Was he ill? She did not believe it. The manner in which he had cut short his approach after her song did not argue illness, but suddenly conceived determination. He did not wish to acknowledge her devotedness. He felt that it came too late or was prefaced by too much hesitation to be real, and so took this way to express his displeasure and withdraw his claims. It was a crushing experience for her: it was a humiliating one. It robbed her of self-possession and peace, it brought a hectic flush to her cheek, and lent a feverish intensity and delirious inconsequence to all her actions. She would not see Hilary; she would not see any one. She paced her room by day and tossed upon her bed by night. If the bell rang, her heart gave such a leap that she could not recover from the shock for minutes, and if by any chance a letter came, she grew quite ill between the time she saw it in the servant's hands and the moment it reached her own.

A man never knows or realizes the torture he can inflict upon a woman. He does not remember that in such emergencies as these she is helpless; that she must sit in her house alone, watching, waiting, hanging upon each passing moment for that action on his part which will explain his feelings or intentions. A man can force a situation. He can besiege his lady's door and demand the secret of her reticence or coldness. But under the same circumstances she can do nothing, not even send an inquiry as to her lover's health; and so the canker eats into the rose, and when love or remembrance brings him again to her side, he wonders what has destroyed this lady's beauty.

Jenny Rogers had no preparation for this show of cruelty upon the part of this especial lover. Since that first delicious moment when her eyes opened upon his face, from a sleep like death, she had beheld it brimming with admiration and filled with love. She had, as it were, held his heart in her hands, or she had thought, and secure in that belief, had sometimes played the coquette, knowing that she had but to smile again upon him to see him fall in rapture at her feet.

And now the neglect was on his side, and she had to endure it alone, sitting in her desolate home, silent and forsaken, while hundreds for whom she had no regard knocked at her gates and lavished gifts and tokens upon her as if in mockery of his forgetfulness, for whose remembrance she alone cared.

Hilary knew her grief, but Hilary's sympathy was, for that reason, unbearable. Jenny could not endure the mildly encouraging glances of a dear friend, nor the smile that bespoke a heart as nearly broken as her own. No; better the socratic phrases of Mrs. Dutton, the amiable widow, who had so kindly consented to lend her respectable presence to this otherwise too narrow household; better anything than the obtuseness of comfort where there was no comfort, and the display of sympathy against which her woman's pride rebelled.

Had she known that Hilary had sought to save her all this uncertainty and grief by an interview with the artist—that Hilary had even subduced her own pride, which was great, to the point of visiting him in his study—Jenny would have felt more wretched still. For Hilary came forth abashed by a reticence that was new in his experience of him, and rode to her home in a whirl of dissatisfaction and revolt that made her own existence, about this time, almost as wretched as that of her unhappy friend.

And, as I have said, the clock was verging toward nine on a Friday night, and no summons had come to rouse Jenny Rogers from those dreams of bitter resentment into which her secret grief and despair had finally plunged her. No summons, did I say? Then what is this? Though she has forbidden her maid, Clairette, to bring her any card which has not the name of Hamilton Degraw upon it, the girl is standing in the doorway with an inexplicable smile on her lips and a small silver tray in her hand, on which Jenny can faintly see gleaming a white bit of pasteboard. Had he come, then? Is the world going to move on again in its accustomed orbit? She tries to be calm, but she springs toward the girl, seizes the card, gives it one look and becomes in an instant another woman.

There is a peculiar look on Clairette's face, a hesitancy in her manner, but Jenny Rogers observes neither. She waves the girl from the room; then calls her back to say:

'Remember, I receive no other callers to-night; and sends her forth again in haste; for the young heiress is wild to be alone, that she may don her most bewitching garments and hang clusters of flowers on her breast, which otherwise might betray the heaving of her heart too plainly.'

She has an exquisite robe of purple and rose; she puts it on, and you who have not seen this wonderful woman in her jubilant mood, should see her now. She fairly irradiates the room; she walks like a goddess, she smiles like a child; she sings, yes, sings out a snatch of heart-searching melody as she ties her last ribbon and affixes her last flower. She is happy, but she does not mean that she shall be happy too. No, she will give him coldness for coldness; suspicion for suspicion; and pride for pride. But she will look so beautiful and hide her joy under such an airy veil, that he will never go away again, nor leave her as before to eat out her heart in pride and desolation.

But this mood, which lasted till she reached the parlor door, vanished as she crossed the threshold. At sight of a tall figure emerging from behind the curtain of a window, she stopped downcast, a crowd of blushes flitting over her white cheeks. He came forward, first quickly, then more slowly, as if overcome by her beauty and evident feeling, then as he did not speak, she gave a quick look up and—

She did not fall nor faint, she only stared a little with a pitiful smile, that gradually and by pure force of will deepened into a show of greeting that made him forget that she did not reach forth her hand.

It was her benefactor from Cleveland, and not her artist lover, Hamilton Degraw.

His manner was almost as agitated as hers. He took her hand and bowed over it with an air such as she had never seen in him before, and when she had composed herself sufficiently to awaken to the duties of a hostess and offer him a seat, he took it with a lingering look at her youthful loveliness, that set her heart beating with new fears and possibly new hopes, for her faith in her recent lover was broken and a violent resentment had taken its place.

'This is kind of you,' she now murmured in her anxiety to break the silence. 'I have often wished that I might have the opportunity again to thank you for the great benefits heaped upon me by your hand. And I did not like to intrude myself, nor should I be here now, Miss Rogers, if circumstances of a most unexpected nature had not changed my position in regard to you to such an extent that it has become my joyful duty to follow the impulses of my heart; if, in short, I were at liberty now to offer you my hand without any such conditions as those I felt compelled to make upon a former occasion.'

'Mr. Degraw!'

She had started to her feet. Her astonishment had overmastered her. She sank back again, but it was with palpating heart and benumbed brain. 'No conditions,' the word rang sweetly in her ears. It was like a haven of rest. 'No conditions.'

'I do not wonder at your surprise,' said he. 'You ask, and rightly, what could have occurred to make such an action as this on my part pardonable. I will tell you in a word. After my return to Cleveland, the lawyer friend under whose invitation I visited Mr. Delancy's death-bed, came to see me, and asked if I had determined upon the woman who was to inherit that gentleman's fortune. I told him that I had, whereupon he put some very plain questions, which elicited answers that undoubtedly betrayed my interest in you, for he smiled as he said:

'Then it will not be a trial to you to fulfil Mr. Delancy's last request?'

'And what is that? I asked.

'That you should marry the girl you thought worthy to enjoy his fortune.'

'Miss Rogers, I have never expressed my feelings to you either in their depth or persistency, but you can imagine how I was affected, if you remember the stand I took at the critical moment before the signing of the deed. I risked that which it was my happiness to possess, and all for an instinct of honor which these words proved to have been founded upon a mistake. I would have vented my despair upon the lawyer, but he answered me that Mr. Delancy had breathed this wish in private, and requested that it should not be made known to me till I had made my decision.'

'It is very strange,' uttered Jenny. 'But this must have occurred three months since.'

The sarcasm, if it was meant as such, was clothed in tones so gentle as to be almost pathetic. She was thinking how full of hope those three months had been, and how little they had brought her.

Mr. Degraw smiled and looked at her with tender indecision.

'I waited,' he said with effort, 'because I had been led to think, to fear, I should not find you heart quick free to consider any proposal of mine. Though I have never been far from you, I resisted my impulses to the extent of not showing myself in your presence till time and inquiry have assured me that my conclusions were groundless and that your hand is quite free.'

She looked up in fine scorn and her

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eric, Pa. — 'I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold.' — Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it is free and always helpful.

eyes blazed with more than her old fire.

'Quite free,' she echoed, and with the word she seemed to cast something away from her that was very precious.

He saw the gesture and seemed to comprehend it. A softer look crept into his face and he took a place nearer her side.

'No heart is without its burden,' said he. 'I love you none the less that your cheek is not quite as round, nor your eyes quite as brilliant as of old. Will you let that love be your comfort? It is fervent, Miss Rogers, and it is very deep and sincere. It has never been frittered away on another and it will know no change. I love those now whom I loved in infancy, and never lose an affection which I have once formed.'

Shark Almost Got the Sail

British Sea-Dog Just Escaped Man-Eater.
 New York, Jan. 12.—George Steward of the British steamer Ramsay, upon his arrival at the port of Ponce, reported the story of falling overboard a shark was coaling at Santa Cruz in the West Indies. A strong current swept him some little way from the steamer, but he was leisurely hauled back when those aboard sighted the fin of a man-eater.
 They shouted a warning, but the shark was so near the ship that the crew could do nothing, while Capt. Mallen set a lifeboat over the side. As they lowered the boat, the shark was nearing Kirstall, a young officer, with a his hand, dived under the net and using his knife ripped the net, thus saving Kirstall's life. The shark was weak from fright and was finally gotten on board.

British Sea-Dog Just Escaped Jaws of Man-Eater.

New York, Jan. 12.—George Kirstell, steward of the British steamship Ramsay, upon its arrival at the docks, told of falling overboard while the steamer was coaling at Santa Lucia, in the West Indies. A strong tide had swept him some little way from the steamer, but he was leisurely swimming back when those aboard the vessel sighted the fin of a man-eating shark.

Comical Incident at Dinner Table

Earl Winterton, M.P., who has gone on a voyage to South Africa for the benefit of his health, has a lively sense of humor, and has told a good story against himself.

Before succeeding to the earldom he was known as Lord Turnover, under which name he figured in some noisy scenes in the House. A few months after his father's death he was thus addressed at dinner by a fellow-guest: "I ought to know you, but I can't recall your name."

"Oh, I am Earl Winterton," was the reply.

"Of course, of course," said his neighbor at the table. "Why, I have been confounding you all the evening with that ass Turnover."

Lord Winterton is twenty-eight, and owns about 5,800 acres.

The most remarkable gold beetles in the world are found in Central America. The head and wing-cases are brilliantly polished with a lustre as of gold itself. To sight and touch they have all the appearance of metal. The soft silver beetles are worth £5 to £10 apiece.

A new device designed to save air-men from being dashed to the ground should their aeroplanes fall them in mid-air takes the form of a special parachute, which it is intended shall be carried on the flying-machine in such a way that it will be released instantly in the case of an accident.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Are there any words in the English language which you love? No wonder you don't smile or sniff at that. I think there ought to be.

It seems to me that we practical, utilitarian folks, who are inclined to look upon language merely as a colorless medium of expressing meaning, don't appreciate the beauty, color, and music of words half enough.

There are certain words in the English language for which I have a positive affection. I am going to tell you some of them, and then I want you to send me a list of your favourites, and some day we'll have a symposium on that subject.

If I were obliged to select my chief favorite of all the words in the language, I think it would be "serene." To me there is a world of meaning and music in those two syllables. Just to repeat it, when I am restless and fretful, helps to soothe and restore me to myself. What a grace and charm it gives the line "Serenely I fold my hands and wait." Replace it by some other word, as for instance "Calmly I fold my hands and wait," and see how much the line loses.

"Tranquil" and its noun "tranquility" are two more words that I love. "Rose" and "saffron" are color words which to me possess a richness and poetic charm which their synonyms entirely lack. The dictionary says that saffron means "a deep orange-yellow." Surely even the most prosaic person will admit that "saffron" is a far more beautiful way to express that color than "deep orange-yellow." "Rose," of course, is the equivalent of "pink," but replace it by pink in "And all the western sky was streaked with rose," and see how much beauty you lose.

"Peace" is a word which I love almost as well as "serene." I suppose in this case it must be wholly the associations, since the word is too short and sibilant to be intrinsically musical, but whatever the reason, it seems to me as if there were a benediction for troubled spirits in the word itself. I like to read that verse in John XIV aloud whenever I come upon it— "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." And I confess I have often gone to church largely for the pleasure of bowing my head under the comforting music of that wonderful phrase "The peace that passeth all understanding."

What words do you love? Surely in the light of this talk you have already discovered some. Send me some of your favourites and some day we will compare them in these columns and see what English words have won a special place in the hearts of the American people.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures. If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. A handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

$100,000 Damage by Fire

To Revere House, Boston, Early This Morning—Many Thrilling Rescues Through Flames and Smoke.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 16.—The Revere House, one of the oldest and most famous hostleries in New England, was partially destroyed by fire early to-day. Quick work by the employees and the firemen saved all the guests, although there were many narrow escapes. The loss is estimated at $100,000. A systematic search was made of the ruins at daylight, but no bodies were found.

The hotel, which fronts on Bowdoin Square, and which has sheltered such notable guests as the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, Daniel Webster, Jenny Lind, Emperor Pedro, of Brazil, and Admiral Pasha, of the Turkish Navy, was a five storey structure of stone and brick. Starting in the rear of the grotto, a decorated safe in the lower part of the hotel, the fire gained rapid headway and in a few minutes the flames had leaped up the stairways and elevator shafts to the upper stories in the Bullfinch Street Annex.

There were many thrilling rescues through the flames and smoke filled hall and over the ladders. Dozens of women were escorted down the stairs to places of safety, and several men and women escaped by climbing on the roofs of adjoining buildings. The fire escapes were lined with men and women, and heavily raised ladders were the means of rescue for more than a score. Two women were let down from a window by their ankles, and the firemen below, on ladders, brought them to the street. Clad only in their night clothes a majority of the guests received shelter in nearby hotels. Several, who lost all their effects, walked about on the freezing slush without covering and scant attire. For some time it was believed that several lives had been lost in the upper rooms, but a search did not result in finding any bodies.

According to an American Consular Report, a great quantity of the false hair used by American ladies in consequence of prevailing fashions comes from China. Last year 445,733 pounds of human hair was sent from Hong Kong to the United States, where the hair is treated in various ways so as to match any colour or texture required.

Tribute to a Good Man.

The following panegyric taken from the Western Chronicle, Kentville, N.S., is a glowing, sincere and well deserved tribute to the memory of a good man, Dr. John E. Mulloney, who passed away on Wednesday, January 3rd. Deceased was father of Dr. R. B. Mulloney, of Halifax, who is married to Miss May Herder, of this city, and niece of Mr. W. J. Herder, Proprietor of the Evening Telegram.

FUNERAL OF DOCTOR JOHN E. MULLONEY.

The funeral of our highly respected townman Dr. John E. Mulloney, was held at his residence Wednesday, Jan. 3rd, at 2 o'clock p.m. The officiating clergyman was his old and intimate friend Dr. Arthur Wentworth Eaton, of New York. The funeral was attended by the great majority of men of standing in the community, for Dr. Mulloney was held universally in the highest esteem. The services comprised the regular service of the Anglican Prayer book, including the solemn Committal Service, and three hymns sung by a picked choir from the town. These hymns were "Nearer my God to Thee," "Lead Me, O Light," and "Peace, perfect peace." A long procession followed the remains to the beautiful burial spot under the pine trees near St. Joseph's church on Chapel Hill. Dr. Mulloney's address, delivered with much feeling, was a tribute to Dr. Mulloney that only a man who knew him intimately could have framed for everyone. It was felt to characterize the deceased so fittingly, that we have obtained permission to publish it.

The Address.

It is rather contrary to custom in these days to say many words of our own as we stand beside the caskets where the bodies of our friends lie. We prefer simply to read over the strong, tender words of scripture which are so comforting and to offer feelingly the simple old prayers, sanctified by tender association and consecrated by long use at such sacred times as this. We do not say our last farewells to him, our friends, for we know that their lives can be read by the world. And yet, in a group of mourning neighbors and such as met here to-day, I cannot forbear saying a few well earned words in loving remembrance of our friend who has just been taken from us, and concerning the loss his going from us so suddenly means to us all. He has lived almost his whole life here among us and we know him and his character well. Some of us have had very intimate association with him for years, and do not speak too strongly when I say that our regard for him has never been lessened or our affection marred by finding in him one unworthy trait.

He has gone into the unseen, we are neighbors or unkindly act. This, however, is only negative praise, and we have strong positive things to say of him. He was a true and best citizen. He did not live in show, but advance his own interests. He had always at heart the highest welfare of the community of which he was a member, and in whose responsibilities he had an important share. Modest, almost to a fault, never asking for himself conspicuous place, he still felt his responsibility in the community always ready to discharge his public duties faithfully and well. He was a high type of citizen. He stood for civic righteousness. He was always anxious to see the land he lived in develop in the noblest ways. Such men we need profoundly among us, and when they go from us we feel deeply and declare their loss. He was a man of integrity, strong conviction of duty, wide charity for others, and the earnest wish to be helpful to all, were things in the character of our friend that should be remembered. If we do not remember in him as we stand here to-day.

And what a good neighbor he was! One of your number said to me feelingly last night, "I have lived close beside him here for thirty years and well I know Dr. Mulloney's worth." There are many others who will say the same thing. I do not know how the town, some of them far away. I do not believe there is a man here or anywhere else who has ever been in relationship with our friend who will not ever hold him in memory in the highest regard. Of the strength of his friendship I cannot speak too strongly or say too many words. Dr. Mulloney was one of the truest friends to his friends. I have never known. Where others had had a hard time of it, he had only pity. Where others had only condemnation, he had charity. Where others took narrow views, he took wide views. Where others forgot their friends, he remembered his friends. He was a man who knew where to find him. His attachments were unvarying, his warmth of heart never cooled. Some of us have had streaks in our natures. Dr. Mulloney had no hard streaks. I do not know how generally the rare qualities of his mind were appreciated. I have known him intimately for many years and we have talked together often on abstract things. For the best literature he had been an appreciation. For the deepest and truest there is in religion, he had a high regard. If he differed from others in respect to creeds and forms of worship, it was because he felt that creeds and forms of worship were being made to do duty for the true reverence of the heart. He had insights that are not given to all men. He had a logical sense that all do not exercise. He felt that the simple religion of Jesus had been overlaid in the Christian world, with things that hinder, not help, the soul in the upward and onward march of faith. He wanted to see truth flourish. He wanted to see Christ's charity prevail. He disented from organized religious faiths, it was because he believed that the church of Christ ought to be considered as embracing all the good or of no formal creed, "do justly and love mercy" and stand in reverent awe before the unseen. St. Paul describes religion as the exercise of love, of charity, of kindness, faith, hope, charity, these three but the greatest of these is charity. Charity suffereth long and is kind, charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed

The Reliability of a Gas Cooker.

Now one must admit that the reliability of a gas cooker is especially useful when one has no servant to take charge of daily dishes. Boiling water can be obtained in the shortest time imaginable, and this fact alone is of great importance both in sickness and in health. Every thing keeps so beautifully hot on a gas cooker, and there is no fear of anything being spoiled through delay in the serving of a meal; and the drip-pans, having been filled with boiling water, makes a splendid impromptu bath mat.

Again, one of the greatest merits of gas, is that the arrangements of the household need not be hurried so as to expected visitors arrive; a fresh brew of tea can be made in an incredibly short space of time, and the preparation of more substantial viands can soon be put in training. The old-fashioned range has a way of going out at times, but a gas cooker is always ready to give a warm welcome to any comer he be never so late. One wonders how many doctors' bills have been saved by that hot soup, coffee, hot milk, or some other refreshment that can be prepared immediately when a member of the community arrives cold and wet, after perhaps some hours' exposure to inclement weather. In case of sickness, no one can speak too highly of the invaluable help that the handy cooker gives; the nourishing little dainty meals can be served in the most appetizing way, cooked to a perfection, and kept piping hot, even though delay may occur in the serving of the Dropped The Haggis.

An Incident at the Montreal Banquet to the Scottish Curlers.

At the banquet to the Scottish curlers, at the Windsor Hotel, recently arrangements had been made for the triumphant entry of the haggis borne aloft by four burly Scots from the ranks of the Royal Scots regiment. The haggis bearers got along fine, escorted by a line of ten pipers, until it came to the triumphant entry into the dining room. Narrow swing doors and braid Scots shoulders do not at all times mix well, and this was one of those times. As a consequence the haggis fell to the floor and was only rescued by a remarkably smart flank movement on the part of the bearers.

While the haggis was being rescued from a carpeted grave, the pipers entered and skirled cheerfully around the room, to the accompaniment of loud cheers and much laughter. When the haggis appeared it was on plates, in the hands of safe though not novel waiters, while the Big Highlanders carried around the room to the tune of the pipes a flaming punch bowl.

Why Not be Well and Strong

When weak and run down DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will help you back to health.

This letter tells of two women who have proven this.

Mrs. D. Stott, Cobourg, Ont., writes: "After recovering from typhoid fever I was left in a very low state of health. I was weak, nervous and not fit to do any work. A friend of mine, Mrs. G. M. Brown, had used DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD and told me that it benefited her wonderfully. I took courage and began the use of the medicine. After taking the first box I began to feel an improvement in health and now after using four boxes I am completely cured. I now feel as myself once more and believe that I can attribute the cure to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Life is so short to spend weeks or months dragging out a miserable existence of weakness and suffering. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures by forming new rich blood and building up the system. McManigal is Now at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Jan. 8.—Ortie McManigal, to be principal witness in the Federal Grand Jury investigation of the alleged dynamiting plot, ended his secret journey from Los Angeles to-day. Under heavy guard he was brought into this city before daylight and lodged in a cell room in the Government building.

McManigal came by way of Kansas City and Chicago in custody of authorities of Los Angeles County and Deputy Marshals. It was pre-arranged that his arrival here, and transfer from the train to the Federal Building should be hidden. The seclusion surrounding the witness whose confession is believed to have brought about the pleas of guilty of the McManigal brothers, was increased in Indianapolis, because it was here that McManigal, according to his confession started on many of his dynamiting expeditions directed by John J. McManigal, Secretary-Treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

While it is not stated by District Attorney Miller how long McManigal will be kept, or when he will first be taken before the jurors, it is known that the Government will make no haste. His written confession covering more than 200 typewritten pages is to be supplemented in detail by his own testimony, so his presence here will be required for several weeks, James L. McManigal of Tiffin, Ohio, the aged father of the confessed dynamiter, who arrived to testify concerning stores of dynamite which were found in a barn near his home last April, hopes to be permitted to visit his son.

Death of Mr. John Sheridan.

An Old Fisherman-Farmer Passed Away.

By the death of Mr. John Sheridan of the Riverhead, Harbor Grace, the doyen of the fisherman-farmer class of that thriving settlement has been removed from amongst us. John Sheridan was born in the Riverhead, Harbor Grace, 83 years ago, his parents being amongst the pioneers of that portion of the settlement. When a very small boy, John Sheridan accompanied his parents to the Labrador. When he grew up, probably to sixteen or seventeen years of age, he went to the seal-fishery, and owing to his splendid physique, daring agility and competency, he had no difficulty in procuring a berth with such famous vikings as Capt. John Ryan in the Sloop, the Wilcoxes of Brigus, and many others. In course of time he struck out for himself and became a planter, carrying on the fishing at his father's station in Snug Harbor, which he followed up until comparatively a short time ago. But he never neglected the land, in which he was always assisted by his industrious and hospitable wife, and the prints of their industry are to be seen to-day in the large well-cultivated fields and gardens—the cattle, pigs and poultry, etc., by which their comfortable homestead is surrounded. In his comfortable and hospitable home the true characteristics of this worthy old Newfoundland fisherman were to be found. There was an atmosphere of hospitality about the surroundings that compelled the visitors to feel entirely at home. He was an exemplary and consistent Catholic, a thorough Newfoundland fisherman, an honest man. To the venerable widow, son, two daughters and hosts of relatives and friends the Telegram extends its sincere sympathy in their bereavement.

Pretorian Fire.

A letter received yesterday by Mr. Geo. M. Barr from one of the passengers who was on the Pretorian when the fire broke out, gives further details. The passengers were awakened at 4 in the morning by the ringing of the alarm bells. They did not know at first what the trouble was, but nearly all hastened out of their rooms in their night-clothes. As soon as they opened the door they smelled the smoke and realized that the ship was on fire. The stewards came round to the rooms and advised the passengers to keep cool, that there was no danger. The fire was in the smoking room of the saloon and was caused by the fusing of electric wires. The room had been closed since 12 o'clock the previous night and it is believed that the fire was in progress there all night up to 4 in the morning, when discovered. The smoke got down the alleyway to the saloon and awoke one of the passengers at that hour. The passengers were all conducted to the second class smoking room, which was very anxious for a while, ordered the Marconi operator to send out a call for assistance. He tried the wires for an hour but got no response. It is believed that the call was not powerful enough to go any further than 150 miles. To make conditions worse the normal supply of water for the fire engines gave out and getting water over the side of the ship was a tedious task. After a two hours night the fire got under control.

Inquiring About the "Dart."

Yesterday Mr. W. A. Munn had a message from some of the largest insurance companies of New York asking if he could furnish them with any information of the S. S. "Dart" which a week ago the C. P. R. Liner "Mount Temple" had in tow. When the Dartigo arrived Mr. Munn made enquiries of Capt. Chambers, but he had seen nothing of the vessel and the companies lumbering horses in that market. Since then, many of the lumber companies have sent to Toronto for all their horses.

Horses From Toronto.

The Newfoundland Pine and Pulp Co., Ltd. have just imported another large shipment of horses for their Badger operation, which we hear are of a very superior class. The horses were purchased in Toronto by Mr. Harry J. Crowe, who was the first to venture on the run. She met the sloop 40 miles west of Cape Race.

GOLDSTONE-LEVITZ.

The wedding of Mr. Samuel Levitz and Miss Minnie Goldstone, both of St. John's, Nfld., took place Sunday evening last, January 21st, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. Cossman, Pleasant Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Sokato, of Sydney, C.B., and was largely attended by friends from Sydney and Sydney Mines. After the ceremony a reception was held at Mrs. Cossman's residence and the health of the bride and groom duly and heartily honored. Both received many handsome presents from their friends in the city and the Sydney. All their friends wish the happy couple health, wealth and prosperity, and in this the Telegram sincerely joins.

DEMOSTHENESES.

Demostheneses was a Grecian citizen with great powers of endurance and a record for plain and fancy oratory that has never been lowered on any track. It is said of Demostheneses that he could start flat-footed with a cold wing and orate until the janitor went home without hoarsing up. His father was afflicted with a stutter which made it impossible for him to answer the telephone without having to pay for overtime, and Demostheneses inherited this infirmity, together with a pair of lungs which annoyed him considerably by collapsing at the psychological moment. Demostheneses overcame these defects by going out behind the barn and chinning himself on a horizontal bar, also by throwing parts of speech into the teeth of a head wind. This gave him a very durable and penetrating speaking voice, which enabled him to precipitate his vocabulary several miles in advance of his thought, a system which has since come into general use. No other equipment being required, he became a successful criminal lawyer, showing his fairness and impartiality by taking a retainer from both the plaintiff and the defendant. He made a speciality of personal injury cases and had his passes called in by the railroads, but did not murmur or repine. Demostheneses is said to be the only lawyer on record who could fill the mind of a petit jury with anything but currents of air. Between terms of court Demostheneses picked up a little loose change by gyrating around the Chautauqua circuit and acting as guardian ad litem for people of feeble intellect. His death was very sudden, being the result of low spirits and a half pint of wood alcohol, which his relatives claimed was inhaled by mistake.

OLSON LOSES TO BERRY In Wrestling Match Last Evening.

Surprises seem to be the order of the day in sporting events, for to the majority of those who take an interest in wrestling, the result of last night's match between Berry and Olson, at the C. L. B. Armory, was a complete surprise. During the day there had been a good deal of betting going on in the town, odds of two to one being laid on Olson, but as the event proved it was Berry's backers who could have given the odds.

At about 8.30 Mr. Dowden, of the Herald, appeared on the platform and announced some of the conditions of the match to the large audience which had assembled to witness the bout; he then introduced the wrestlers and the referee, Mr. E. Goodland. The weights were announced as follows:—Berry, 160 lbs., Olson, 154 lbs.

The referee, Mr. Goodland, was compelled during the course of the evening to request more than once that the spectators would stop smoking, as the atmosphere was very trying to the contestants. The timekeepers were Messrs. W. J. Higgins and J. C. Parsons.

THE MATCH.

The men, on time being called, faced one another and sparred very cautiously for an opening, Berry adopting a peculiar crouching attitude which was very puzzling to his opponent and seemed to make it very difficult to get hold of him. The men after a few seconds of this kind of manoeuvring came together in a head lock, and Olson tried repeatedly for leg holds, failing, however, owing to the superior speed of Berry, and when they met at length came to the mat it was with Berry on top and very aggressive.

Olson repeatedly broke holds which Berry endeavored to clamp home, and forced into the standing position again, but he seemed absolutely unable to do any really effective work against his quicker opponent and was compelled to act on the defensive all the time. For about three quarters of an hour the wrestling consisted of repeated attacks by Berry, some of which were nearly successful, whilst Olson contented himself with guarding, then Olson woke up and put in some good work, securing further arm holds, and working side rolls very cleverly several times, but the quickness and longer reach of Berry foiled him every time, in trying for a leg hold Olson was pushed very hard to the ropes. Olson slackened a little and Berry renewed his aggressive tactics and secured a scissors and half nelson, which Olson with great difficulty broke. Berry was now working like a tiger and secured hold after hold in quick success. Olson breaking them, however, by sheer strength, but this old on him and he began to show signs of exhaustion, and when Berry again secured a scissors and half nelson Olson after a splendid resistance and magnificent "bridging" was out down in 1 hour, 58 minutes, 43 3-5 seconds.

SECOND FALL.

After the usual rest the men came together again and the work was as brisk as in the first encounter. Olson seemed more aggressive than before, but Berry still showed superior speed and trickiness. Olson, however, in trying for effective holds gave a lot of openings to his opponent and finally succumbed to a scissors and half nelson in 23 minutes and 9 seconds.

He showed wonderful strength in resisting this hold and bridged splendidly, but the pressure on his body by Berry's legs was too great and he slowly sank down giving Berry the victory in two straight falls, after the very best exhibition of clean and clever wrestling ever seen in St. John's.

Berry now becomes owner of Olson's belt. He also won considerable side bets.

Olson played the game well and clearly took his defeat as a sportsman should.

Berry has improved wonderfully in staying power since his last appearance here, and in this respect Olson did not seem to be quite as good as he was in the past.

Londonderry Replies to Churchill.

Special Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day. Lord Londonderry, ex-Viceroy of Ireland and Unionist, opposing the Home Rule meeting at Belfast, yesterday sent a letter to Mr. Winston Churchill, replying to a communication, addressed to him on Thursday, by the first Lord of the Admiralty. In that letter, Mr. Churchill informed Lord Londonderry, he would advise the Ulster Liberal Association that he would not insist on holding a meeting in Ulster Hall, but that he intended to deliver a speech somewhere in Belfast on February 8th. So far as the Ulster Unionist Council is concerned, says Lord Londonderry, in reply, its main objection, which is in the interest of law and order is removed. You determine to hold the meeting outside districts, which passionately resent your action. At the same time, having regard for the intense state of feeling, created by your proposed action, the Ulster Unionist Council cannot accept any responsibility in reference to your visit to Belfast. They do not desire to give any assurance they might be unable to fulfil.

Exchanged Spies

Special to Evening Telegram. BERLIN, To-day. The Emperor Nicholas and William yesterday made an exchange of spies. The Russian Emperor at the intercession of the German Emperor grants pardon to Capt. Von Stubbenzer, condemned at Warsaw yesterday to three years hard labor. The Emperor William released a Russian Lieutenant condemned for a similar offence.

Seven Killed.

Special to Evening Telegram. LISBON, Jan. 26. Seven were killed and many injured as the result of a general riot yesterday in the Evora District. The rioters entered the town first, and the soldiers, wounding many. The cavalry charged repeatedly and fired several volleys.

Meeting of Hockey League.

Last evening the Hockey League met to make enquiries into the trouble at the Crescent-Victoria match on Wednesday night. The President, Mr. W. J. Higgins announced the reason for the calling of the meeting was to take action in connection with the violation of the rules by certain players. The matter was thoroughly discussed and it was decided that the League strongly disapproved of the conduct of the players who were at fault and that similar conduct in future would entail suspension from the League. The three players in fault acknowledged the violation of the rules and expressed their regret that the incident should have occurred. The President deprecated the action which the League had received and which he thought was unnecessary and hoped all would play clean hockey in future and with the esprit de corps which should attach to combines meeting in friendly rivalry. On behalf of the League he accepted the apologies of the offenders and their assurance that they would not repeat the offence in future. The rival players then stated that they had determined to forget the unfortunate incident and to continue the games in future in a spirit of good fellowship.

An Important Determination.

A large gathering of Scotsmen and descendants of Scotsmen met at the Presbiterian Hall last night when it was decided to re-establish the St. Andrews Society. As a matter of fact the Society had never disbanded and interest in its affairs will now revive and new life will be infused into what once was a flourishing and useful organization. There was much enthusiasm evident. Mr. A. K. Lumsden conducted the election of officers which resulted as follows:—President, John Browning; V. P., R. C. Smith; Treas., W. Clouston; Secy., A. Wilson. The general committee appointed were Messrs. J. J. McKay, W. Watson, and A. K. Lumsden. Twenty new members were enrolled on the Society's roster and two weeks hence another meeting will be held.

Bay Bulls Road.

Yesterday one of the residents of Bay Bulls drove over the road from the city accompanied by a clergyman, and he says that he never saw the road in such condition before. It is safe and with a deep drift, and is impassable almost. The Government should get it shovelled in the interest of the public.

HOCKEY ENDS IN DRAW.—In the Inter-Collegiate Hockey match at the Prince's Rink this forenoon, the Methodist College boys and Scotsmen met. The outcome of the match was a draw, each scoring 4 goals. The game was keenly contested throughout and a large number of spectators were present. Exceptionally good work was done by the goal keepers of both teams.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAR-GET IN COWS.

At the City Hall.

A letter was received from the Col. Sec. in reference to a fire boat for the harbour in which it was intimated that the Government considered it to be the business and the duty of the City Council to supply this requisite.

Secretary Statters informed the Council that he had, according to instructions, written to the Colonial Secretary saying that the boat should be supplied by the Government.

A complaint that land along Alandale Road is being used as a dumping ground was read. Ordered that the practice be discontinued and the place cleaned up.

A receipt for $27,623.48, half year's interest on Government loan, was tabled, sent by the Deputy Minister of Finance.

Mr. John Cowan's application for the position of arbitrator on city property will be considered.

W. Sinnott was appointed foreman under the East End Road Inspector, in place of Jerry Byrne, resigned.

A discussion followed on the question of clearing snow from sidewalks. Councillor Mullaly had intended to ask for a resolution to amend the Act relating thereto to pay a tax for having the snow cleared off by the Council's men. Before going further he would like to get the views of the Board.

Councillor Martin expressed the opinion that it would be the best plan to allow the sidewalkers to throw their snow into the main street and let the Council remove it with the rest of the snow.

Councillor Channing did not think that Councillor Mullaly's plan would work out well owing to the fact that many workmen would be required immediately after every snow storm. Each store owner would want his own men cleared at the same hour.

Councillor Ryan said that he believed it would be the best plan to put the existing law into force and compel all to remove their snow. Even now some do not pay their taxes and we expect them to pay this new tax should the Council remove the snow for them.

Councillor Coaker was also of the opinion that the Council would not be paid for carting away the snow.

Councillor Myrick said as the snow all irregularly and at different depths in different places there would be great difficulty in making an arbitrary tax of so much per square foot of sidewalk as contemplated by Councillor Mullaly's resolutions. He believed that it would be better to carry out the existing laws and to invite the co-operation and assistance of the police.

Mayor Ellis remarked that as there had been no application from the business people along Water Street—he people principally concerned—to have the law amended, he thought it only fair to get an expression of opinion from them before asking the Legislature to alter the law.

Councillor Mullaly said in reply to the Mayor that as the people on Water Street were not consulted when the original law was passed, he saw no reason why they should be called on now. There was much dissatisfaction under the existing regulation which is the reason that he was moving for an amendment. The taxes of the Water Street holder would not be increased under his proposal. The money that is now of necessity paid to others to have the snow cleaned off would then be paid to the City Council, simply the difference between Tweedle Dum and Tweedle Dee as far as the tax is concerned. The only feature different about it is that the work would be done well and done thoroughly by the Council employees. The proof that the law as it exists was not being carried out is the fact after the recent big snow storm when so many neglected to clear their sidewalks only two were summoned; one was fined $2, and another let off with a warning.

The result of the discussion was that the Inspector was ordered to summon those who failed in future to comply with the existing law re clearing snow on sidewalk, Water Street.

Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

A winning smile a man may wear when seated in his easy chair, his slippers on his feet, while out of doors, o'er vale and hill, the man who runs the weather mill is spreading snow and sleet. It isn't OPTIMISM grinds out joyous strains; and one may chortle loud, gadzooks when paving over recent books produced by Laura Jones. But when the housewife says: "Old sport, methinks you'd better cease to court the muses for awhile, and to the basement now repair, and tinker with the furnace there," you can still wear a smile? I've gone down to those realms below a stranger to all grief and woe, to all that's sad and blue; but when I shook the hanged old grate, and clawed out cinders, stones and state, my smile went up the flue. As I came up the cellar stair it was a treat to hear me swear for those who liked spoiled words; and then the housewife said: "For shame! That is no way to play the game! Sing like the dickie-birds!"

Gen. Montero Shot.
Special Evening Telegram. GUAYQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 26. General Pedro Montero, recently popular here, was yesterday shot by angry populace, dragged into the streets, beheaded and buried. In November he was proclaimed president of the Government forces under General Plaza, and Guayaquil was forced to capitulate. Montero, with other leaders, was captured on Jan. 22. Last evening he was court-martialed and sentenced to 16 years' imprisonment. The crowds shouted violent protests. Excitement increased rapidly. Some rushed into the court room and dragged Montero's body with bullets, and his head, and, starting a fire, cast head and body into the flames.

Big Fire at Fortune's Store

Fire broke out in the dry goods store of Mr. P. J. Fortune, Water Street, West, about five minutes to six o'clock last evening. The firemen from the West End and Central Stations were on the ground in about three minutes after the alarm was sent in. There was a good supply of water and the fire was attacked so well that it was under control in about ten minutes from the time the hoses were coupled up. However, the firemen and police had to work on the building for an hour before they sent in the "all out." The fire was caused by a lighted match thrown on the floor by Mr. Fortune after he had lit the gas upstairs. He was about to pick out some goods to bring forward for to-day's sales and was putting the samples together when the fire sprang up from the spot where he had thrown the lighted match. Mr. Fortune ran to the spot and made a frantic effort to put the fire out. He called out to his young men below to come to his aid, but the fire being in a deep inflammable material and no water being at hand, had by this time got such headway that the task of extinguishing it was hopeless. Most of the stock was damaged either by fire, water or smoke. The stock is covered by $7,000 insurance and the store by $3,000. The adjoining buildings were not injured. Some smoke got into Mr. Worsley's store but the goods there being hams and bacon did not do much injury.

The Robins and Their Message.

Welcome cheerful little robin,
 Perched upon the willow trees;
 Warbling sweet and hopeful music
 Mid the sighing of the breeze;
 Like a message from heaven,
 In the chilling wintry blast,
 Telling of a genial springtime
 When the wintry storms are passed.

Welcome, genial, little robin
 Sitting on the willow trees,
 Hissing not the wildest snowdrift
 Hurling against you by the breeze;
 We are grateful for your message—
 Bringing hope to hearts forlorn,
 May the heavens confirm your mission
 And a brighter day be born.

 "Yes, Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly did me good," Mr. Gauvang says in an interview. Excellent Programme of Varieties Attracts Large Audience.
 Notwithstanding the numerous attractions last night, the Nickel had its full quota, and the large audiences were delighted with the excellence of the programme provided. The Travelling show, which took Nickel goes for a ten minutes' tour through the Province of Kwang-Tung, was a delightful novelty. The Chinese customs, life and daily occurrences were clearly and interestingly shown, while the Oriental music supplied my Messrs. McCarthy and Ross gives the film a very natural atmosphere. This is the class of subject which is now making the Nickel quite an important educational factor. The tri-weekly programme include at least two of these pictorial visits to foreign shores, and they are all worth while seeing.

The Council's Resolutions

Thanking the Messrs. Reid.
 At the meeting of the Municipal Council held yesterday afternoon, Mayor Ellis spoke in a congratulatory manner of the generosity of the Messrs. Reid, and moved the following Resolutions:
 WHEREAS this Council has observed from a correspondence published in the daily newspapers that W. D. Reid, Esq., has offered to erect and equip a sanitarium in St. John's at a cost of $50,000 for the treatment of tuberculosis patients, and that H. D. Reid, Esq., has offered to provide sixteen sanitariums for the outport districts at a similar cost;
 AND WHEREAS this Council recognizes that the ravages of this disease form the greatest menace to the public health both of the city and the outport districts;

BE IT RESOLVED that this Council desires to place upon record its hearty recognition of the princely generosity and commendable kindheartness exhibited by the Messrs. Reid in providing this splendid benefaction for so deserving a purpose, and the Council would express its confident belief that the Reid's sanitariums will be most helpful in the battle against the White Plague, to the extinction of which they are to be devoted.
 BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Council welcomes the recent gift of Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd. of a park to the city, and by the Reid Bros. of sanitarium to St. John's and the outports, as evidence of a new spirit among our men of wealth, which is calculated to be decidedly helpful, not alone in promoting improvements but is likely to promote a greater spirit of brotherhood and mutual understanding among all classes of our people.

The Resolutions were seconded by Councillor Coaker. Councillor Channing said he was, unfortunately, not so well as to be present at the presentation of our men of wealth, which is calculated to be decidedly helpful, not alone in promoting improvements but is likely to promote a greater spirit of brotherhood and mutual understanding among all classes of our people.

IN MEMORIAM.

WILLIE LEO OLIVER.
 At Gull Island, Conception Bay, on Wednesday, December 27th, there passed away Willie Leo, beloved son of Andrew and Julia Oliver. The deceased had been sick only for a very short time and his death came as the most sorrowful surprise to his affectionate parents, brothers and sister. To them the hearts of many go out in sympathy, Willie Leo being the youngest and, therefore, naturally, the favourite of the family, was also a favourite of the whole community. He was but 13 years old, and words fail to portray the nobleness of character which existed in him. No one ever conversed with him without being surprised at the manliness and straightforwardness of his answers, and his kindly and most attractive manner gained for him the admiration, esteem and love of a host of friends.

Head Peet Maltreated.

HAD TO BE ATTENDED BY A DOCTOR.
 At 3.30 p.m. yesterday Head Const. Peet, in passing up Water Street, told a man named Mansfield to move along, as he, with others, were blocking the way. Before the officer was aware of it he was hit in the face and knocked down by the man. When the "Head" regained his feet a brother of his aggressor seized him by the shoulders and butted him repeatedly in the face, cutting him severely. Officers Squibb, Bussey and Stanford were quickly on the scene and both men, after a hard struggle, were handcuffed and driven to the station. Head Const. Peet was covered with blood and his injuries were of such a character that he was compelled to go home. Later he was attended by Dr. Rendell. Only a few days ago one of the men concerned in the assault paid a fine of $21 for beating a woman named Carrigan.

Durango Arrives.

The S. S. Durango, Capt. Chambers, arrived here at 4.30 p.m. yesterday from Liverpool after a run of 13 days. The ship had considerable stormy weather on the voyage out with constant gales mostly from the N. W. which considerably retarded her, and she also made a southern run to port. She met considerable slob ice, but her voyage was uneventful. She brought 493 tons of cargo and 25 bags and 11 hampers of mail matter and one passenger. When she arrived the Kanawha was hauled off from the Durango took the inside berth. The ship will take to Halifax 1,200 casks fish and a large quantity of herring and oil.

The Nickel.

Excellent Programme of Varieties Attracts Large Audience.
 Notwithstanding the numerous attractions last night, the Nickel had its full quota, and the large audiences were delighted with the excellence of the programme provided. The Travelling show, which took Nickel goes for a ten minutes' tour through the Province of Kwang-Tung, was a delightful novelty. The Chinese customs, life and daily occurrences were clearly and interestingly shown, while the Oriental music supplied my Messrs. McCarthy and Ross gives the film a very natural atmosphere. This is the class of subject which is now making the Nickel quite an important educational factor. The tri-weekly programme include at least two of these pictorial visits to foreign shores, and they are all worth while seeing.
