OR
Lord Somerton's Ally.

CHAPTER VI
"Egad!" he said: "I thought that you were one of those quiet little things without much spirit. I see that I am mistaken, and I like you the better for it. But let me warn you, Miss Elsie Sterne, that I hold your father—his liberty—his life even in the hollow of my hand. I do not wish to exercise the power I hold over him; he himself does not dream of it, but I may be driven by you to the borders of desperation, and then there is no withdrawal. But come, we are within sight of the house, and this is no place to play either comedy or tragedy. If you object to my presence, I will go in alone, but you must meet me later with composure. My purpose remaining here several days."
He bowed and strolled away, leaving Elsie almost stunned by his malevolence and audacity.
Determined to avoid Lord Somerton, she lunched in her own room under the usual plea—a headache, and forbade her maid to permit any one to disturb her.
"Annette," she said, "you have been with me two years, and I believe that you are faithful and true to me."
"Indeed, madam, I am," the girl replied, flushing with honest pleasure. "I believe it, Annette, and soon I may have to put you to the test. I feel that I shall want a friend."
The maid looked at her beautiful mistress in surprise, but said nothing.
"I believe that you have a lover, Annette—one in whom you are willing to give yourself, heart and soul."
"Yes, madam."
"And some day you hope to be married," proceeded Elsie.
Annette acknowledged this with a happy laugh and a blush.
"What is your lover's name, Annette, and his prospects in life? I am not asking this merely out of idle curiosity. I wish to know, so that I may adequately repay you for any special services you render me."
"Thank you, kindly, madam. My sweetheart is named William Stretton, and he is the under-keeper. I thought that you knew it."
"He is employed by my father?"
"Yes, madam; and when he gets to be head keeper, and we can have a cottage of our own, we think it would be time to settle down, at least that is what William says."
"Is that all?" exclaimed Elsie. "Well, Annette, if you are faithful to me, he shall yet be head keeper at Blairwood. The old one can be pensioned off."
"Oh, mistress, that is too delightful!" the maid cried, clapping her hands.
"Now you will not wonder at anything I ask you to do, and my first request is that Stretton keeps an eye upon Zeba's cottage. I was there this morning, and saw a man prowling about. I fear for my old nurse's life, because it is reported that she has a few coins secreted in her wretched hut."
"Yes, madam; I will tell William to-night."
In the afternoon Elsie visited her father, and was surprised to find him reclining in a cushioned chair near one of the windows.
"Come in, my darling," he said. "I was right, and the doctor was wrong. I shall be well enough to travel at the time I stipulated. Denver has been here and formally tendered his resignation." He laughed a little. "We have not quarrelled, but he confesses that I am an enigma past all solution. You have seen Lord Somerton, of course?"

"Yes, I have seen Lord Somerton, papa."
His quick ear noted the catch in her voice, and he looked guiltily away.
"I have seen Lord Somerton, papa," Elsie went on, "and it is my duty to tell you that he has again renewed his hateful attentions."
"Why hateful, my darling? Somerton is a gentleman. If you tell him plainly and unmistakably that you can never care for him, there will be an end of the matter. It is not an unpardonable sin for an honorable man to fall in love with a woman, and to tell her so."
"I rejected his advances months ago, but he has renewed them, and threatened me," she replied, bitterly. "He is not a gentleman; he is not an honorable man. He is nothing better than a despicable coward!"
The saber-scar on the baronet's cheek flamed like a line of fire.
"He has dared to do this!" he said, in tones of concentrated passion. "I will speak to him, my darling, and he shall either apologize or leave Blairwood at once!"
"Oh, papa, I am so glad! You have taken a weight off my mind—a dreadful weight," sobbed his daughter. "I do not wish to interfere with your business affairs, yours and Lord Somerton's; I only desire to feel safe under your father's liberty—his life even in the hollow of my hand. I do not wish to exercise the power I hold over him; he himself does not dream of it, but I may be driven by you to the borders of desperation, and then there is no withdrawal. But come, we are within sight of the house, and this is no place to play either comedy or tragedy. If you object to my presence, I will go in alone, but you must meet me later with composure. YOUNG DAUGHTER MADE WELL

Mother Tells How Her Daughter Suffered and Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Vancouver, B.C.—"My daughter is a young girl who has been having severe pains and weak and dizzy feelings for some time and had lost her appetite. Through an older daughter who had heard of a woman who was taking it for the same trouble, we were told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My daughter has been taking it for several months and is quite all right now. It has done all it was represented to do and we have told a number of friends about it. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, for I myself take it for that weak, tired, worn-out feeling which sometimes comes to us all. I find it is building me up and I strongly recommend it to women who are suffering as I and my daughter have."—Mrs. J. McDONALD, 2947 28th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C.
From the age of twelve a girl needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time. If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her by giving her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is especially adapted for such conditions.

and he looked at her with stony eyes.
"One moment, Elsie," he whispered.
"If Somerton speaks to you again, treat him as well as you can for a time. What was he doing near Zeba's cottage? Dear Heaven! if it should be discovered, after all!"
He wept for a few minutes, almost weakly, then said:
"I must hasten my departure. It is my only hope. Weak fool that I was not to have satiated myself years ago! Weak, vacillating fool! It was a duty I owed to myself no less than to you, my dear, dear child. And now you are to feel the sting of my neglect. Upon you the brunt of the trouble falls, and I am unable to help you!"
His daughter paused irresolute, the shadow of a great loud darkening all the sunshine from her young heart.
"Papa," she said, timidly, "if you could only confide in me, how much better it would be to be rid of this dreadful uncertainty—this dreadful mystery."
"Impossible! impossible! You will know all in good time, and then you will curse my memory!"
She pressed her fingers over his lips.
Chocolate flavored bread pudding is quite delicious. Serve it with whipped cream.

London, Oct. 3. (A.P.)—The death occurred here recently of Alfred Russel Price, and passed almost unheeded, whereas it was worthy of special notice, for he succeeded in accomplishing what thousands of Americans have hoped to do but could not, he gave the boy who later became German emperor, a good, sound thrashing.
It happened years ago when Wilhelm was the Crown Prince and was visiting Infracombe, an English seaside resort, with his tutor, Wilhelm, in a playfully destructive mood, began to throw stones at some bathing machines belonging to Mr. Price's father. He was told to stop, but took exception to this infringement of his regal rights. Young Price took off his coat and began to belabor the royal youth so successfully that he had administered a black eye and several cuts and bruises before the tutor succeeded in calling off hostilities.
Our Weekly Wit
The candidate had spoken to his village audience for an hour or so, but before concluding his address he wished to know if any points were not clear.
"Has anyone a question to put before I go?" he asked.
Silence reigned for a few moments, and then an old lady rose at the back of the hall.
"As thee's lodg'd," on thy 'onse to-night, will thee 'ave thy onions raw or fried, for I'm just goin' to get the supper?" she inquired in a slow voice.
A man nearly eighty years of age walked ten miles from his home to an adjoining town. When he reached his destination he was greeted with some astonishment by an acquaintance.
"You walked all the way!" the latter exclaimed. "How did you get along?"
"Oh, first rate," the old man replied. "That is, I did till I came to a sign—'Slow down to fifteen miles an hour.' That kept me back a bit."
A certain farmer was one day approached by a lad who asked him for work. The farmer was in need of help, and agreed that if the lad could bring along a good character from his previous employer he could start that day.
"The lad, however, did not turn up, but when the farmer met him a few days after, he spoke to him about it."
"Couldn't you get that character, my lad?" he asked.
"Oh, yes," responded the youngster. "But when I went for my character I heard yours. That's why I didn't come!"
Father: "Dorothy is just twenty-two, and I'm going to give her a hundred pounds down for every year of her age."
Dorothy's Sutor: "Splendid! do you happen to have a daughter who is a little older?"
Willy (to neighbour): "Moth' throwing plates at father."
Neighbour: "Is she? Why, it crosses with him."
Willy: "No, but she's worth it."

Giants Win with Casey at the Bat.

Destructive Fire in Quebec Village--Lloyd George says the Unity of the Empire Means the World's Peace--British Steamer Ashore near Vancouver Island.

A $200,000 FIRE. JOLITTE, Que., Oct. 10. Two hundred thousand dollars damage was done last night by a conflagration that devastated the village of St. Felix Devolers, several miles here. Several stores and houses were destroyed.

GIANTS WIN FIRST GAME. YANKEE STADIUM, Oct. 10. The ancient Casey Stengel, with the out in the ninth and the count two to two against him, tore off a homer to the delight of 60,000 fans, and the Giants romped off the first game of the World Series 5 to 4. The National League champions concentrated their attack in the fifth, when they drove Hoyt from the mound, and he who succeeded him, held the bats helpless until Casey's blow. The Yankees outdid their opponents and Ruth got a three-bagger in four to the plate.

STENDEL'S HOME RUN DRIVE DID THE TRICK. NEW YORK, Oct. 10. Bringing his bat in that fabled swing of the diamond, the ninth inning, with the score tied, two out and the count "two and three," Casey Stengel led his way into baseball's hall of fame to-day with a home-run drive that gave the New York Giants the victory over the Yankees five to four. The mighty heroic blow by Stengel, who came back after being relegated to baseball's scrap heap not long ago, was a gripping, pulse-throbbing, and thrilling battle in which the desire hunch and brilliant defence of the Giants triumphed over the courage, brawn and fighting spirit of the Yankees. The Yankees rushed to the front in the first two innings only to be overhauled by a sensational rally, a masterpiece of strategic attack, that gave the world champions four runs and a lead in the third inning. The American League, after being turned back time after time by an amazing defence, finally tied the score in the seventh inning, then went down to defeat at the crack of Stengel's blow was drowned in a thunderous ovation. Stengel's smash broke the heart of Joe Bush who held the Giants in check after seeing his team mate, Walt Hoyt, battered from the mound in the third inning. For the Giants Watson was relieved in the third by Roy Ryan.

LOYD GEORGE'S EMPIRE MESSAGE. TORONTO, Oct. 10. In a message of Empire delivered to-day by David Lloyd George during his visit here, expressing thanks for the aid given in the war by Toronto and Canada, he made a plea for unity within the Empire and among all its parts that Great Britain might be strong in these critical days. Conditions in Europe, he said, were such that he feared, unless something intervened there might be another catastrophe. That's why I want to see the British Empire strong and mighty so that when the cry of war goes up the British Empire will say halt, and then the cry of war will stop. A return of the throat affection which troubled him several days ago made the former premier's programme to-day somewhat uncertain. When he spoke to-day it was with difficulty he was heard.

FOUR RUNNING IN NORTH WINNIPEG. WINNIPEG, Oct. 10. Two Labor representatives and one Independent will oppose E. J. McMurray, M.P., Solicitor General, in the North Winnipeg bye-election, Oct. 24, it was disclosed when nomination closed this afternoon.

ANOTHER STEAMER ASHORE. SEATTLE, Oct. 10. The British steamer El Lobo went ashore to-day on Roberts Bank, near Vancouver, according to report.

THE LATE MR. FIRPO. The Bull of the Pampas goes back to his Pamp, a slagger defeated who ought to be champ; for never had man such a "wonderful fight" and he is the terror that walketh by night. Oh, he's an assassin, a murderous lad! Alas for the training that got him in bad. They wired him instructions from Argentine's strand, they told him by mail how to use either hand; by registered letters they guided his feet, and told him by wireless what things he should eat. They sent him blue prints and an engineer's maps, and volumes by Euclid and other old chaps. And, Firpo had Dempsey so plucky near out that Jack only needed an opportune clout; a buff on the bezer, a swat on the chin, and Firpo, the bull of the pampas, would win! But while he was striving the rules to recall, the cables, grams, letters, and postcards and all, and groping around in the back of his head for pointers and counsel that somebody said, Jack Dempsey revived from his ladylike swoon, and pricked all his hopes as you prick a balloon. The bull will come back when he's rested a spell, all ready to scrap at the sound of the bell, and if he is trained in a sensible way, I'll say to Jack Dempsey, "Good night," and "Good day!"

SPEAKING OF PROFITEERS. "Do you have to charge that to get clear on your investment?" Evidently a memory of his own previous remarks on profiteers echoed through his mind for he answered hastily: "You bet I do. The fellows that are building new apartments can't help charging these big rents when they have to pay plasterers $15 a day and all that outrageous kind of thing. It's the people who built their apartments years ago when it didn't cost so much to build, that are doing the profiteering when they charge these high rents. They haven't got to charge them. They are just trying to get all they can."

He Wanted $3,000 Profit. The mutual friend had a twinkle in his eye as he listened to that. "By the way," he went on, "I bet you are going to sell your house. I suppose you'll want five or six thousand." "Five or six thousand," exploded the builder to be, "what do you mean? Houses like that are bringing eight and nine. I shan't sell for a cent less than eighty-five."

He Had Against Profiteers. At a time when he had been contemplating renting an apartment himself, I heard this man rave against the profiteers who charged such outrageous prices for a tiny apartment, and so I was interested when I heard a mutual friend say to him:

FIRE Prevention Week! Oct. 7th to Oct. 13th, inclusive. You can help to save life and property from needless destruction. Clean your Premises, remove rubbish. Correct defective chimneys, stoves and other hazards. START TO-DAY and baffled. "Seems to me that's kind of different?"

What is a Profiteer? "Is it?" pursued the mutual friend. "Well, maybe, though it doesn't seem so to me. But suppose you were going to rent that house and go to live somewhere else. Would you rent it for a fair return on your original investment, or for what you could get now with rents as they are?"

Popular Singers in Farewell Numbers. LAST TWO DAYS OF MARION ARMSTRONG AND LOUISE LORING. Marion Armstrong and Louise Loring, the talented soloists who have been filling and engaging at the Nickel Theatre of this city, conclude their stay with to-morrow night's performance. Many will doubtless regret that these ladies are leaving so soon, but as they have some very important contracts to fill, immediate engagements make it necessary for them to leave St. John's on Saturday. Miss Armstrong and Miss Loring have made numerous friends since arriving here and they carry with them the best wishes of all. To-night Miss Loring will sing "Good-bye" and "When You Come Home." Miss Armstrong renders "Old Fashioned House" and "My Laddie." The duet numbers are "O Dry Those Tears" and "Mellow Moon." Hear this beautiful musical program to-night as it may be quite a long while before such a similar musical treat can be heard.

Matadors Sword Kills Spectator. Pierces Man's Heart When Bull Knocks It From Fighter's Hand. Paris, Oct. 1.—The popularity of bull fighting in France, where it has won a remarkable amount of favor during recent months, is likely to receive a check as a result of a fatal accident which occurred during a display at Bayonne recently. According to reports received here, the well known matador, Antonio Marques, was in the act of giving to a bull the third stab in the form of a difficult stroke known as the decaballo, the object of which is to pierce the spinal cord of the animal. At the exact moment when the matador made his effort the bull suddenly tossed up his head, sending the sword flying out of his adversary's hand. The weapon fell point downwards on the breast of a spectator sitting in the front row of the public galleries, piercing him to the heart and causing his death. The victim was a wealthy young Cuban, named Carlos Aguirre, twenty-one years of age, who had come over the frontier from San Sebastian for the express purpose of attending the corrida at Bayonne. By order of the Mayor of Bayonne the matador Marques was immediately arrested on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Reperte. Mrs. Ginger was always quarrelling with her next-door neighbour. Unfortunately, the two ladies could never confine themselves to really witty remarks for many minutes together, and they always descended to personalities. Wednesday morning, their washing over for the week, they forgot their respective back gardens for their usual "friendly" chat. "I hear you've been talking about me to Mrs. Jinks," said the neighbour spitefully. "Mrs. Ginger's face assumed a hue that was not far from her name. "Oh, indeed!" she retorted. "Faults I may have, but at least I am not two-faced."

WONDERFUL NEWSITEMS AND OLD STAGERS WHO SHARE THE BATTING HONORS THIS SEASON.

This season will go down to cricket posterity as a "vintage year" such as 1890.

In that memorable season the newcomers to first-class county cricket included the amateurs, F. S. Jackson, A. C. McLaren, that prince of wicket-keepers, the late George McGregor, R. N. Douglas, E. C. Streatfield, and A. Lorimer, who made a century on his first appearance for Leicestershire, as McLaren for Lancashire.

This "wonderful year" also saw Hearne (J.T.), who had been showing Scotland that his bowling is still to be reckoned with, deliver his first over for Middlesex.

At the same time, it is generally agreed that in C. H. Taylor this summer has witnessed the coming of a batting star of the first magnitude. In the Varsity match, the Oxonian set up a new record. Dark and Light Blue making their first appearance in the historic encounter, have made a century in their second innings. Conversely, three figures have been attained in their first innings by batsmen not new to the match.

But Claude Hilary Taylor, Mr. Donald J. Knight's pupil, is the first to signalise his first appearance in the battle of the Blues by a first innings century.

"Ranji" Junior.

And it was not so much his 100 runs as the way he made them that stamped him as a future England batsman of the highest class. Lucky Leicestershire to be able to claim the services of Claude Hilary Taylor!

Among the schoolboys, K. S. Dileepan has made a big impression. In "eye" skill, and in the agility, the Cheltenham College Captain bids fair to rival his famous relative, the Tan of Nawasagar, still "Ranji" to an ever faithful and adoring public.

The West Indies in general, "Bimshire," as Barbadoes is known, in particular, have reason to be very proud of Mr. George Challenger, who at the moment of writing, stands third on the first-class batting table with an average of, roughly, fifty-nine for 1473 runs. The West Indian "Jassop," J. Constantine, has also captured the public fancy.

Again, as one writes, the averages are headed by Philip Mead, of Hampshire and England. Or his clubmate Kennedy, it is impossible to write without mentioning the "Swing," for he has already brought off the "double event" of over 1,000 and over one hundred wickets.

Major the Hon. L. H. Tennyson has shown himself, as ever, the man for an emergency, and an expectant murmurs round the crowd when the Hampshire and England skipper goes to the wicket.

Three Records in One Innings. In the averages, Mead has a mere fractional advantage over "Get-on-or-get-out" Patsy Hendren. As for that matter, in actual runs scored, both he and Mead are headed, though narrowly, by Macepate of Lancashire, who, like Hendren, is also a footballer of renown.

With a magnificent 270 for Kent vs. Middlesex, Frank Woolley made three records. His innings was, and still is, the highest for the season. It is the highest individual score ever made for Kent, and Woolley's own "best ever," in this country. In 1911, he has made 305 net out playing for the M.C.C. Team against Tasmania at Hobart.

Untily eclipsed by Woolley, Dipper had made the highest score for the season—262 net out for Gloucester vs. Glamorganshire. In the beginning, Dipper got his chance through the county being a man short, while Woolley used to go in sixth or tenth man.

"Hamlet" without the "Prince" would be a complete show as compared with any batting article that did not mention Jack Hobbs. Unequally unequal at times, he may have been, but he remains a magnet of magnets, and, of course, early in the season he completed one hundred centuries.

Promising "Youngsters." Apart from a bumper benefit, the other famous Surreyite, "Aged" Duck has had a very good season, and is not without hope of 2,000 runs, while he and Hibbs have watched their captain, Mr. P. G. H. Fender, exceed the 1,000 runs and one hundred wickets mark.

In June, Yorkshire famous opening pair, Holmes and Sutcliffe, made history by completing twenty-three first-wicket partnerships of a hundred or more.

Fayton (E). Hoares (J.W.), Wryall, Gunn (G.) all have maintained their reputations, but let one end as one began with the rising amateur generation.

Save for Gentlemen vs. Players, and the M.C.C. A. P. E. Chapman's cricket has been confined to Berkshire; but with him, G. T. Stevens, T. C. Lowry, the Brysons, C. T. Ashton, Captain G. F. Eadie, J. C. W. Mac Bryan, R. L. Wright, M. S. Lyon, and many others, we can safely claim that we have plenty of young amateur batsmen to follow.

Awarded Full Claim

In the Supreme Court to-day Mr. Thomas Walsh, Water Street was awarded the full value of his claims against two Fire Insurance Companies, the Canadian and the North-west. It appears the property was insured for $4,500 and following a recent fire the damage was assessed at $2,310. As the building was in the fire zone and to be rebuilt of inflammable material, the plaintiff claimed that the structure after the fire was worth only $500 as it had to be torn down. Howley, K.C. appeared for the plaintiff, C. E. Hunt for defendant. The trial was before the following special jury: Patrick J. Warren, Ronald McDonald, Nicholas Wadden, Joseph Bussell, John Connors, Patrick Dobbin, Sam Fitzgerald, James Spratt, Thomas Davis.

The verdict was in favour of plaintiff against the Canada fire for $3,558.48 and the Northwest for $1,111.45 which was less the $200 allowed by the plaintiff for the building.

A Colonization Scheme

Two naval officers, Capt. Campbell and Neville, who have been here for some time past in connection with a colonization scheme which is at present engaging the attention of the Colonial Office, left by express to-day for points on the West Coast. It is understood that the scheme has for its object the settlement of retired officers on crown lands in the colonies. The two officers went to Day, Islands and Bay St. George last week and viewed many tracts suitable to their purpose, and it is learned their destination to-day is Spruce Brook. The Minister of Agriculture, Mr. J. Downey, as well as the Crown Lands officials, are giving all the assistance possible. Mr. Downey also left for the West Coast by to-day's express.

Tips to Travellers in France

For the benefit of the annual trans-Atlantic tourist invasion—one of the larger agencies here compiled a little booklet of advice. Here are some of the sentiments:

A fat tip never makes a kind word unnecessary.

Be polite even with people whom you are paying.

When you visit the devastated regions don't go as a curiosity seeker but as a benefactor. It is up to you to find some way of concealing your curiosity.

Drink as much as you can, but not as much as you want; intoxication is not elegant in Paris.

Don't think Montmartre is the rendezvous of Parisians; when they go there it is to see the foreigners.

Settling the Coal Strike

Through the offices of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania the anthracite coal operators of that state have bought tranquility, but the consuming public will pay the bill. The miners benefit to the extent of a ten per cent. addition to their war peak scale of wages, which before the new advance was 180 per cent. above the wage scale of 1913. Between the advance in the wage scale on the one hand, and the adoption of the eight-hour system for all employees on the other there will be a material increase in the price of coal to the consumer. From no standpoint was this wage advance justified, and in the long run it would perhaps have been better had Pennsylvania's Governor kept his fingers out of the pie, and allowed the issue to have been fought out to a finish.

From a broad standpoint, the Pinchot compromise is an economic blunder which in time will react upon the miners themselves. With anthracite coal costing the Canadian consumer some $16.50 or $17.00 per ton there is bound to be a falling off in the demand, and for the same reason consumption in the United States will also decrease. With fuel at such prices the ordinary consumer is going out after substitutes, and once lost this hard coal trade will be extremely difficult to regain.

Soft coal of superior grade, that is to say coal of the smokeless variety, is already crowding out anthracite in many homes and no doubt as time goes on other substitutes such as coke, oil, etc., will find their places. Indeed the process of turning our attention to other fuels has already gone a long way, which perhaps is at it should be for we have too long been dependent upon United States hard coal.

The Real Sunflower

Flowers may remain the same, but their names alter. Take the sunflower, for example. Had you lived in the eighteenth century and been told to pick a sunflower, you would have gone straight to what we now call the "marigold." Marigolds are the real sunflowers. The sunflower of to-day, towering to a great height, was called "sunflower" and quite correctly the "solisacee," meaning the sunflower.

Then there is the daisy. In its case the years have spoiled the original bet-

STARTLING FACTS ABOUT CANCER INCREASE—TUBERCULOSIS STEADILY ON THE DECLINE.

Of all the diseases that afflict mankind the one least understood, the most insidious—cancer—slowly but surely increases its ravages in this country every year. This disturbing fact is emphasized in the annual report of the Chief Medical Officer of the Ministry of Health, Sir George Newman. Statistics of the "great" "killing diseases" are carefully analyzed. In order of the death-rate per thousand of the population of England and Wales these are:—

- Respiratory diseases (all forms) 161
- Diseases of heart and circulation 157
- Diseases of nervous system and sense organs 101
- Cancer (malignant diseases) 98
- Tuberculosis (all forms) 83
- Diseases of alimentary canal 53

While cancer occupies only the fourth place on the list, it is the only "killing disease," states Sir George, which is definitely and uniformly increasing. Tuberculosis is declining steadily. No fewer than 46,933 deaths, of those from all causes reported during the year, are attributed to the ravages of cancer. The deaths per million increased from 173 in 1838-42 to 1,216 in 1921, and, allowing for more accurate modern diagnosis, the data "confirm the popular impression that the recorded increase of mortality from cancer is

NOT A STATISTICAL FICTION but an established fact." But though the facts set out make melancholy reading, adds the report, it should be recollected that 70 years ago the prospect of conquering typhus or even typhoid seemed even to experienced experts, a "chimerical mirage. Yet typhus is gone and typhoid controlled. Smallpox was equally baffling. The conquest of these diseases, which we now enjoy as our rightful inheritance, was achieved by means simple enough when known. So doubtless it will be with cancer. Other facts brought out in the report are that:—

Expectation of life at birth is now 11 years greater for boys and 13 years for girls than 80 years ago.

376,000 years per annum were lost to employment among insured workers.

Attention is drawn to the smallpox figures, showing a total of 1,234 cases in the first six months of 1923, against 973 in the whole of 1922, 386 in 1921, 280 in 1920 and 311 in 1919. Vaccination of infants has decreased to 38 per cent.—a grave situation—and Sir George declares he would be falling in his duty if he did not call attention to it. "It is obvious," adds the report, "that the vaccination laws are in need of amendment. But the protection which vaccination and re-vaccination may afford cannot be disputed by anyone who has had actual experience in dealing with this disease. It is stated that the reason why England escaped an epidemic is largely due to the protection of the male population in the Army during the war period.

CAUSE OF DISEASE.

Preserved Foods Under Suspicion.

Are preserved foods a cause of cancer? Sir Frederick Treves, the famous physician, in a letter to "The Times," hints that they may be, and calls for an inquiry. "I would venture to point out," he writes, "in connection with the question of cancer and diet, that the increase in cancer in recent years has been exactly coincident with the introduction of preserved food (cold storage supplies, tinned foods, concentrated foods, extracts, foods treated with preservatives, etc.). The coincidence may be accidental, but it is assuredly the most conspicuous feature in relation to the present subject. The statistics of cancer among seamen—who are probably the largest consumers of preserved foods—may be of avail if it be allowed that a large proportion give up the sea before they reach the period at which CANCER ATTAINS ITS MAXIMUM among men." Earlier in his letter, Sir Frederick Treves, alluding to the "Dead Man's Bay," the high seas breaking over the Chesil Bank during a storm is a sight such as probably can be equalled in wild beauty nowhere else around our coast.

Two visits in connection with the reef completely over the beach, whilst totally submerged, the railway between Portland and Weymouth.

LIKE A GREAT WALL, SEVENTEEN MILES LONG AND NEARLY FORTY FEET HIGH, THE CHESIL BEACH DEFIES THE STORMS THAT MADE IT.

To all who have seen it, the greatest wonder of the British coast is the Chesil Beach. Indeed, there is probably nothing else quite like it in the world. The Chesil Beach is a long and, in some ways, dreary reach of pebbles and stones of every shape and size, extending in a terrace formation from the Isle of Portland to Bridport, a total distance of seventeen miles. The largest of these pebbles are generally found towards the Portland end of this curious pebbly beach, where they are often the size of the biggest potatoes. As the beach stretches west from Portland the size of the stones, generally speaking, gradually lessens, and at Abbotsbury they are little bigger than beans, and by the time they have reached Burton's Cliff they are little more than fair-sized grains of sand. Many of them are beautifully marked, and nearly all are more or less of oval shape.

The great wonder about the Chesil Beach is, of course, not its pebbly composition, nor even its wonderful length, but its great height and width. It stands nearly forty feet above the lower beach, like an immense wall of rock, utterly impenetrable. In many places it is three or four yards wide on the top, though the width varies in different parts.

Where Danger Lurks.

All kinds of stone and rock seem to come from far and near, carried by the currents, to make up this wonderful beach. Fine granite and red stones from Devonshire; quartz rock from the Isle of Wight; Wolf rock from the Cornish coast; banded rhyolite, and many others appear among the amazing mass of pebbles.

The beach itself seems to be formed in three terraces, the lowest being of course the widest. The descent from one terrace to another is often very steep, and sometimes a trifle risky for a person who is not sure-footed. It is the terrace formation which makes the beach strong enough to resist the fiercest gales.

Several theories are put forward by scientists to account for the formation of this marvellous beach. The most probable of these is that it was originally due to gales from the southwest and strong ocean currents, carrying the largest pebbles eastwards, and gradually dropping them according to their size and weight. But even this theory, reasonable as it sounds, does not appear to solve the problem satisfactorily.

Naturally, the sea all round the Chesil Beach is very dangerous to shipping when certain kinds of gales spring up. It should be mentioned, too, that attempting to bathe on this beach is to seek a terrible fate. The sudden dip of the stones below the beach and the terrific underflow current often render quite vain the best efforts of a clever swimmer.

So many lives have been lost in shipwrecks and bathing in the bay to the west of the beach that this water has been given the name of "Dead Man's Bay." The high seas breaking over the Chesil Bank during a storm is a sight such as probably can be equalled in wild beauty nowhere else around our coast.

Two visits in connection with the reef completely over the beach, whilst totally submerged, the railway between Portland and Weymouth.

In September, 1883, the sea broke over the beach, during a great gale, and a gown of sero mousseline is embroidered all over in spangles, and girdled with black satin.

The Menace of the Wheat Thug

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—"Plus" thieves, who rob railway grain cars as they pass at night in midships, are the latest menace to the western farmer, according to information obtained from the railway offices. Past quantities of wheat, the total amount of which is estimated, are lost every year through the operations of these "wheat bootleggers" is reported. Holes bored in the car floor allow half a bushel of wheat to trickle into a sack. The holes are plugged with corn cobs for the purpose and the loss is avoided. Many such holes recently have been discovered when the cars were lifted in automatic dumping devices at Port Arthur, it was learned. Now inspectors are watching the floors for signs of further leakage.

Any complaints? No, we use CENTRAL BAKERY Bread. If you want it ring 2093.—Oct. 14, 1923.

The Need of New Markets for Our Fish

Much is written about the congestion which takes place in our fish markets soon after our cargoes arrive in European waters and the consequent reduction of prices. Many suggestions have also been made as to the best method of overcoming the difficulty, but a solution has still to be found.

If we were the sole suppliers, or if our fish were superior in every particular to that of our competitors in the trade—and it is our fault that the quality is not always the best—the problem would solve itself, but year by year, while competition has become keener and competitors more numerous, we have been satisfied to continue a policy of laissez faire and to lament over our losses.

This is not a policy which makes for success. There is a remedy for most diseases, but they have not been discovered by fatalists. Stagnation is as much a disease as the common ailments of the body, and although we recognize all the symptoms of our apathy and are aware of the chief causes, we make no determined effort to get at the root of the trouble.

We lived in a fool's Paradise during the war period when high prices ruled owing to the absence of competition. When the war ended, and the seas were opened and our competitors were enabled to resume operations, down came the prices. Not only were our markets invaded, but the general dislocation of trade seriously affected the purchasing power of our customers. Other countries were similarly situated. Great Britain to-day is supporting an army of unemployed because her markets, particularly those in Europe are demoralized, and because others have been invaded by manufacturing countries which were less affected by the war.

In consequence of these conditions new markets have to be discovered if these countries are to continue to exist. To meet the keen competition which they find in their old markets, they are examining their goods in order to ascertain how they can make them more attractive or better suited to the requirements of their customers. What are we doing along these lines? Nothing.

Nova Scotia has recently "discovered" the Panama Canal which has led them to new fields to conquer along the Pacific Coast. Is it not possible that we too can find in the countries which fringe the Eastern Pacific from Mexico to Patagonia new markets for our fish? In that part of the world are living people who are of the same stock to a great extent, and who follow the same creeds and customs as the races of Southern Europe. The waters along their shores are as deficient in food fish as are the seas of the Mediterranean. The route through the Panama Canal and the climate offer no greater difficulties than are met with in the shipment of our fish to Brazil, and yet no effort is made to discover the possibilities of supplying this New World. One or two enterprising salesmen fully conversant with the fish business, and possessing a thorough knowledge of commercial problems, could easily carry out a thorough investigation. The chances of research in this direction appear so promising, and the results, if the investigation were successful, would be so beneficial to the country that every effort should be made to ascertain if the suggestion is feasible.

Many new ideas which before the war would have been rejected as impossible have since been carried into effect. Many countries which previously depended upon other manufacturing centres are to-day supplying their own requirements. Much of the wheat of the western Provinces is finding an outlet to their markets through the Pacific ports, and we might well profit by the example of others who have decided that if they wish to prosper they must bet themselves.

Father Matthew Celebration

Last night the members of the T. A. & B. Society terminated the Father Matthew Anniversary, Oct. 10th, by holding a ball in the theatre flat of their hall. The affair was attended by about 190 couples. The success of the affair was a great measure due to the Ladies' Auxiliary. Supper was served in the dining hall, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. During the interval an impromptu concert was held. Mr. Tom Doherty's "Taking of the Census," and Mr. T. J. Rolls in a recitation, being features of the programme. Messrs. Redmond, Foley and others also contributed numbers. Bennett's Orchestra supplied a very pleasing programme of music, and when the affair concluded at 2 a.m., all voted it a great success.

Mr. Don Whitway, the driver of the car which figured in the death of the lad Griffiths, was represented by W. J. Higgins, K.C.

Musical Entertainment at S. A. Citadel

The musical entertainment given by Commandant and Mrs. Urquart at the S. A. No. 2 Citadel last night was well attended and all present were apparently greatly pleased with the programme. Commandant Urquart not only plays sweetly on the violin, guitar, banjo, mouth organ and other instruments, but he can extract the most entrancing strains from sleigh bells and even from the tin can and ordinary hand saw. Mrs. Urquart rendered valuable assistance throughout the meeting and her singing and playing on the harp was greatly enjoyed. The meeting lasted for over two hours and during that time there was not a dull moment, the musical and vocal numbers being interspersed with pointed and witty sayings by the Commandant that kept the audience in good humor, and undoubtedly left an impression for good upon all present. At the close Adjutant Stickland the commanding officer of the No. 1 Corps, thanked the Commandant and his wife for the splendid entertainment given after which the meeting closed with the benediction.

New Headquarters for Girl Guides Opened

There was a large and representative gathering at the opening of the new Girl Guide Headquarters, in Duckworth Street, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Bright an English Commissioner, gave an inspiring address on the aims and objects of the movement, telling in a delightful and amusing manner of her experiences as a Commissioner and Guide. All who heard her felt that the girls who entered wholeheartedly into the work and play of this sisterhood should be strengthened in all that will help them in their homes and as citizens. It is hoped that a report of her address may be given in full at an early date.

The Headquarters were formally opened by the Island Commissioner, Lady Allardice, who thanked the Association and Guides for their cooperation and the enthusiastic way in which they have helped the movement. Special gratitude was expressed to Mrs. Hutcheon and Mrs. Mitchell for their untiring services in connection with Headquarters, and to Mrs. Gosling, their President, whose temporary absence from the Island will be sincerely regretted. In declaring the Headquarters open the Island Commissioner hoped that it might prove helpful to girls of all sections of St. John's and a centre for wholesome, useful and chivalrous activities. After the opening an interesting ceremony was witnessed, when the following new commissioners were invested: Mrs. John Campbell, for Bay of Islands; Mrs. Hugh LeMessurier and Mrs. Higgit for Harbour Grace District.

Then followed tea and afterwards inspection of the Headquarters on which the Association were warmly congratulated. The premises comprise a large lecture room, smaller lecture room with gas stove for cooking classes, a delightful Guiders clubroom and a small cloak-room. Miss Bright will hold the following training course for Commissioners and Guides, to which all who wish to take an active part in guiding are cordially invited.

A truckman charged with a breach of the traffic regulations, pleaded not guilty. The traffic officer's complaint was that he allowed his horse to proceed without his holding or guiding the animal. ## TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

BRITISH GOVERNMENTS OFFER OF ASSISTANCE IN SCHEMES OF DEVELOPMENT. PREMIER WARREN'S REMARK CAUSES A DIVERSION. LONDON, Oct. 11. (Special cable to Canadian Press by Geo. Hamilton, Staff Correspondent.)

The British Government submitted further proposals to Economic Conference yesterday. On Tuesday they offered the Dominions increased tariff preference on certain articles, yesterday the offer was one of fiscal co-operation in development schemes. The offer comes under two headings, the first applying particularly to Growth Colonies. 1st, a guarantee of interest and capital invested in development schemes; 2nd, an advance of part of the interest over a period in respect to anticipated schemes put in hand before the normal time. The proposals are in reality an extension to the Dominions and Crown Colonies of assistance which the British Government has been giving local authorities and publicly companies at home. To the offer conditions are attached. These are mainly that enterprises assisted must be for the general development of public utilities, similar to those assisted in local Britain; that orders will be placed in Great Britain; that there would be some kind of joint responsibility with the overseas Government. Sir Philip Lloyd Gray, President of the Board of Trade said, "it is not philanthropy but business. It means that settlers will get the chance and Great Britain will get an immediate order. We want to speed up." Dominion representatives received the proposal favourably. Sir Lomer Gouin observed that Canada was becoming an industrial as well as an agricultural country. Canada was getting well provided for, at present with such public utilities as harbors, railways and electric light. It would be a little difficult to promise unconditionally that orders for equipment would go to British manufacturers, as Canadian manufacturers would naturally want a chance. However, the Canadian representative recognized the spirit in which the offer was made and would consider it carefully. Premier Warren of Newfoundland approved the principle of the proposal and amused the Conference with the remark that he hoped the time would arrive when London would use wood blocks from Newfoundland trees.

DAYLIGHT ROBBERIES AND DEATHS IN THE STREETS OF NEW YORK, OCT. 11.

Two daring daylight robberies yesterday netted the bandits sixty-two thousand dollars and cost two lives, one a bank messenger and the other a robber, on Columbus Avenue during the busy part of the day. The gang sent a wrapped brick through the window of a pawnshop and rushed away with fifty thousand dollars in gems, while the police and others bombarded them with revolver bullets. Later in the day on West Thirteenth Street in front of Rotherburg's Department Store, two messengers bound for the bank with twelve thousand five hundred dollars deposit were held up by four highwaymen, who immediately became the target of three bandits and fell dead fighting steadily in all directions. The bandits retreated to an automobile in which they escaped with the money.

DR. HANTING THE DISCOVERER OF SOMETHING MORE MARVELLOUS THAN INSULIN.

HAMILTON, Oct. 11. Dr. F. G. Banting's discovery is of even greater importance than a diabetic cure. The Minister of Health for Ontario announced last night he is a diabetic of medical men. He said he was not at liberty to divulge anything further on the matter. Dr. Banting is a real genius, he said and now has something better than insulin to offer to the world. It is a marvellous thing and an announcement will be made very soon.

Even Thrill is Final Clinch in "Fast Mail"

Featured Players End Melodrama With Fadeout Kiss, Seated on Limb of Tree.

Charles Jones and Ellen Percy in "The East Mail" at the Majestic Theatre this week, and the picture by kissing out on the limb of a tree, thereby arousing the astonishment of the spectator, even though he knows a picture must wind up in a kiss, preferably in some unusual position. For earlier in the course of this Wm. Fox adaptation of Lincoln J. Carter's old melodrama they have gone through so many perils, especially in the case of Jones, that one would imagine that they would choose some other place for osculation instead of going high up in a tree.

Jones, in chasing the plot all over the map, rides a horse which leaps over a railroad gate just in time to avoid being pushed over by the express; jumps lightly from the fast mail to a speeding automobile, and from the Mississippi steamboat to another, swings out over a telegraph wire with the heroine clinging to his legs to escape a realistic fire, and altogether has as busy a day as a man can have and still remain fairly intact.

Never mind the details of the story, which begin with a stepphous and ends with an exciting hotel conflagration, which, however, doesn't stop the villain inside from trying his usual dirty work. Suffice to say that Jones does all these stunts—or appears to do them, for the picture moves at such a breathless pace one can't tell whether he uses a double, thereby saving one from worrying over such a detail. The hero continually shows wonderful wearing qualities, for in addition to these little problems the director occasionally stacks him up against slashing fights.

Miss Gullivan sings with to-day's programme, (a) "Carolina Mammy," (b) "Because." These are her most popular songs and she sings them in a style all her own.

American Physician Will Take Drug and Become a Savage

DR. SCHNEIDER TO GIVE THE STORY OF HIS SENSATIONS.

(By Canadian Press)
Berkeley, Calif.—The reaction of a drug known as "kappa," reputed to unchain fierce impulses of the subconscious mind and transform its user into a raging savage, bereft of timidity, fear or the veneer of civilization, upon a university professor, is to be tested by Dr. Albert Schneider, lecturer at the University of California, according to an announcement made here by Dr. Schneider.

The new drug is said to have been obtained from savage tribes inhabiting the jungles at the headwaters of the Amazon and to have been brought to this country by Dr. H. H. Russell, a dean of the New York College of Pharmacy.

Dr. Schneider declared he intended to take some of the serum soon after his return to his home in Portland and later give to the whole world the story of his sensations while under the influence of the drug. He is dean of the North Pacific College of Portland and prominent as a psychiatrist.

Fads and Fashions.

The fur neckpiece is larger this season.

Steel spangles embroider a draped frock of red satin.

The Jaquette-over blouse is a feature of the Fall openings.

The coat for general wear is apt to be three-quarter length.

A few of the more daring models feature the bellless silhouette.

Even some of the evening wraps are only three-quarter length.

Black and white is a good combination in frocks and costumes.

Embroidery in rhinestones on velvet is a favorite of the moment.

The long slim coat generally will bring its slight fullness to the front.

The Western Farmer's Problems

Thanks of the Wheat Pool—Thrashing Costs are High—Workers Quit After Ten Hours.

Written for The Financial Post by F. W. CRANDALL.

CALGARY.—From the Herald one would be led to assume the pool idea was a winning one. From any standpoint, and from discussion with many of the best farmers in Alberta, it never will function—or rather if it does it will be only to fail. The fact is, there is too much left out in the booming reports. This does not fool very many, as this is an age when men think and do not gobble up all that appears in the press, especially when there seems to be an ulterior motive in some of the papers to capitalize politically on this move. I want to like to see a pool. I am a believer in co-operation in marketing any product. But I am not fooled into the belief that, with the world as a producer, we of two or three provinces can dominate the world's markets. The fact is, many more are withdrawing than you would be led to believe from Secretary Jackman's reports.

The fact that John I. McFarland will have nothing to do with this pool goes a long way with those who know this gentleman. He is one of the most level-headed men in all the west. The pool committee tried to use his name to get signers, and when he found he was being exploited for the benefit of the drive committee, he made a plain statement, and he stands on that to-day. As far as I can now understand, all this talk about the committee being able to finance is bunk. True, if they proceed in a proper way, there will be no trouble as to getting advances in the usual way on grain, but there is a sticker. There seems to be little in the statements now being made, as it all depends on proper arrangements being made as to manager, and the usual safeguards, all of which cannot be made till there is quite a different situation than at present exists.

The season for shipping and selling is on now, and will be at its best in a few weeks, and still there is not an elevator, nor any other place where farmers may deliver wheat to the pool, nor are there any arrangements where farmers may deliver to the pool and get them sold. This is making the thing to fall flat. Mind you, I am only voicing what I have learned from men who were a few days ago for the pool, and who to-day are not by any means with it.

Now as to yields. This is about as mixed a matter as I ever had to do with. In some instances the yields are abnormal, while crops nearby, which should ordinarily be just as good, are very disappointing. It is the big yields that are reported in the press. The writers never pay any attention to the averages. I want to say, when the season is over, you will find that on the whole, there are many failures and the totals will not be up to 1915 by any means. I have thrashed quite an amount so far, and I thought I had a very good idea as to what I should get from some of the tracts I have already finished. I was doomed to disappointment. The straw is so heavy, it looks as though we should get much larger yields than is being reported by the machines. I took this matter up with a number of others, as I wanted to find if I was the only one who met this condition, and so far I have not had the same experience, where much thrashing has been done. The grades of wheat are good—most No. 1, as we have not had any rust, or weather to affect it in a bad way. Oats will be very heavy in most instances as they were not too far along when the rains came in June.

In some localities there is a deadlock between the growers and the thrashers. The latter have found the straw so heavy that it takes so much longer to thresh than it ordinarily should, and they, with the high costs, are finding they cannot break even and thresh at the rates agreed on. Wheat is being threshed at 13 cents, every thing furnished by the thrasher, and oats at 8 cents, same conditions. Many are now holding for 15 cents as the least they can thresh for, and I believe it will come to this in many cases.

Help is high and inefficient, fuel high, and repairs out of the question. Everything that enters into the matter of handling a large thrashing outfit is such that it is impossible to go on unless at a fair price. This is hard to arrange, as wheat and oats are so low, and the costs have been so great for the farmer to produce them that he feels that he cannot meet any higher prices for thrashing. Should the season remain dry, and thrashing continue regularly, things may remain about as they are now, with some heavy crops taking a higher rate. I do not do any thrashing but our own, and as we have a large machine, I know exactly what it costs to operate with the conditions as favorable, or much more so than when one is moving from place to place with all the incident charges added. Generally farmers are hauling direct to the station or elevators, and selling as fast as delivered.

I have never seen a more unsatisfactory labor situation than now exists. Men simply do not want to work, but they want the pay all the same. I have never seen a year when thrashing was done on a ten-hour basis till now, and this adds greatly to the costs. Men will simply not work longer than ten hours, and when one takes into consideration the shortness of the season, and the great cost of a large thrashing outfit, and the depreciation from year to year, is it any wonder that so many outfits go broke? I only wonder that more of them do not. As soon as all the stocking is done in all parts, and men are released, I am of the opinion that there will be a better class available for the thrashing, and this is surely needed. We are paying from $4.00 to $7.00 a day and board for men, and when you have a crew of some 15 men to run a thrashing outfit, it runs into money. There must be a large number of bushels even at 15 cents to meet the daily costs.

There is much speculation as to what will be done with the many who have come here from the old country for harvest, and when the harvest is over what they will do. I do not think many of them will have made enough to get back home, and I do not know what work can be had to keep them busy this winter. This is a question that is being carefully considered now, and will be a very hard one to solve. Alberta has only too little winter work, and again too many farmers, who otherwise might hire a man or two for the winter, are not in a position financially to do so at this time. Calgary positively will not feed a bunch this winter. Men are not so careful as to saving their money, and all this means there will be a difficult situation arise. British Columbia may use some men in the timber, but this will take but a small portion of the number available.

Business at this time is not at all bad. Merchants are quite hopeful, but feel that this trade will not be extended into the winter very far as to the farmers, as they will need all they have to pay up. I never saw such a mob of collectors as are trailing the country for banks and trust companies and implement houses, and all sorts of institutions. All are persistent in collecting every dollar possible. The farmer is in the main making plans to meet as far as possible all he can, and the danger is that many of them will be so pressed that they will not reserve sufficient to carry them over the winter and to crop in the spring. I believe this is going too far. However, each one feels that now is the time to realize, and he takes no note of how it leaves his debtor. If pressed too far, many will simply quit the country, and leave the farms to grow up to weeds.

Already this is beginning to dawn on the minds of some and a more moderate policy is being taken, but the trouble is that while one may adopt this, along comes another who will insist on his full pound of flesh, and he takes all that the other fellow left. Then the other fellow when he knows this, thinks he has been a fool for not being the first to get his dues.

Prehistoric Oysters

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—Oysters on the half shell was apparently no unusual item on the stone age menu in Manitoba, whether our caveman ancestors had a fondness for the succulent bivalve; it not easily determined, but certain it is that they could without much trouble, gather a few dozen for the preface of a meal of roast dinosaur. Pioneering along the top of a hill at Pope, Manitoba, A. G. Shearer recently unearthed what is believed by scientists to be a relic of the pre-glacial age—a fossilized, "all probability, he struck a rock carried by the ice of the glacial age and belonging to a period millions of years earlier than the ice age," was the comment of Dr. B. C. Wallace, professor of geology at the University of Manitoba. Dr. Wallace stated that the limestones and clays of this province were full of fossils of millions of years ago. At one time, he said, this whole country was the bed of an Peanut stuffing is excellent for a roast goose. Serve with grapefruit sauce.

A dainty garnish for a chafing dish platter could be dried toast points. Very young chickens can be fried in deep fat. Dip them first in a thin batter.

A little orange or lemon flavoring should be added to any prune dessert. Stains caused by oleomargarine can be removed with denatured alcohol.

A basin of water placed in the bottom of the oven will cool it if it is too hot.

Garnish tomato bouillon with whipped cream and serve with crisp crackers.

Sherbert glasses are attractive and quite correct for serving fruit cocktails.

Meertrique should never be put on fire while it is hot, as it will shrink and fall.

To devil almonds add a little cayenne and curry the salt used in salting them.

Garnish a fruit cocktail with a sliced strawberry, or cherry, or a sprig of mint.

Add a sprig of parsley, a slice of onion and a little chopped pepper to tomato sauce.

Rain Stops Riots

(By T. C. Bridges.)
Rain has other effects than making rivers to run and crops to grow. Thunder arn is a fertiliser. Each quart of rain that falls in a thunderstorm contains about one-eighth of a grain of ammonia. When 300 tons of rain falls upon each acre, as happened in the great thunderstorm of last July, the amount of fertiliser carried down into the ground is very considerable.

A wet year is a healthy year, and always means a lowered death rate. Yet a big rain coming on top of a dry spell usually causes a temporary yet marked increase in infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever and diphtheria.

Rain in reasonable amount is welcomed by the angler. It improves the colour of the water, makes fish bite, and brings worms to the surface of the ground where they can be easily dug.

Yet at times rain destroys worms wholesale. This generally happens in spring after a long spell of east wind. If heavy cold rain then sets in worms are caught in waterlogged soil. They try to escape, but are drowned in myriads while crossing roads on their way to drier ground.

Rain is destroying that world-famous monument, the Egyptian Sphinx. Formerly Egypt was practically rainless. Now, owing to irrigation and consequent increase of vegetation, there are about eighteen days' heavy rain yearly in the Nile delta.

These days of rain are usually followed by the "Khamasin" the gate from the desert, which, carrying quantities of sand, cuts into the sodden limestone of which the Sphinx is composed and literally whittles away the surface.

A timely shower of rain has often quenched a riot, but a big rain may make or mar the peace of wide districts. In June two years ago matters in India were in a very critical state, and the authorities expected uprisings such as culminated in that very serious upset in the Punjab two years previously.

What made things so particularly critical was the fact that the weather remained dry and burning hot. Then, in the very nick of time, the monsoon burst with its usual thunderstorms and torrents of heavy rain. Within the space of a few hours all danger was at an end, and the fear of riots that might have cost thousands of lives was ended.

We Are Not Doing so Badly

Canada's business record for the first five months of the current fiscal year is certainly such as should hearten those who have been preaching that "whisper of death" stuff. There was an increase of about $160,000,000 in the period mentioned in Canada's total trade, as compared with the same time a year ago. The total for the five months, ending with August was $786,000,000, as compared with $626,000,000 during the same period a year ago. Exports of Canadian produce rose from $316,000,000 to $386,000,000; while the imports for the same period were $293,000,000, as compared with $309,000,000 a year ago. We should have liked to have seen our exports exceed our imports, but as these imports were largely raw materials, iron, steel, coal, etc., a large proportion of which went into the manufacture of articles that were in turn exported the exhibit is as a matter of fact much better than it looks at first glance.

The immense strides which Canada has made in the world's trade within the past decade can only be realized when statistics governing former years are studied. For instance in no year back of 1912 were the imports and exports for a twelve months' period greater than for the five months quoted above. In other words we are now doing considerably over one hundred per cent more business than we were eleven years ago. In 1911 our total import and export trade amounted to $742,000,000; in 1912 this trade was represented by the figures $830,000,000, and it was not until 1913 that we crossed the billion dollar mark. I would humbly recommend a course on Canada's trade statistics for our calamity howlers.

Imperial Oil Co. Abandon Borings in Far North

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 8.—When the deep-toned whistle of the big steamship "Distributor" blew a sonorous blast on August 28, last, 53 miles below Fort Norman post on the Mackenzie River, the million dollar three-year northern adventure of the Imperial Oil, Ltd., came to an end. Aboard the steamship there were a score or more of men—drillers, tool dressers, firemen and mechanics, dog teams, half breed helpers, everybody right down to the camp cats and all outward bound.

To-day the formerly busy oil camps at the edge of the Arctic Circle stand deserted.

The men, under the leadership of Dr. W. A. Richardson, of Vancouver, who was in charge of the medical work and health supervision at the camps, reached Calgary from Edmonton on Sat. 15, and dispersed to various destinations throughout Canada and the United States.

No one, not even the local officials of the Imperial Oil, Ltd., know the future plans of the big company with regard to its far north search for oil. But this is the first year since the northern drive started in 1920 that the camps have been entirely abandoned in the winter. Whether the drilling will ever be resumed is a matter that probably has not even been decided by the eastern directors themselves. At any rate, no oil has been struck except in the original "Discovery" well on the right bank of the Mackenzie River, about 53 miles north of Fort Norman, and just about 100 miles from the Arctic Circle.

Two other deep wells were drilled and came in "dry." They were located on Bear Island, just opposite the "Discovery" well and at "C" camp on the opposite or left hand bank of the big river.

"Yes," said one of the drillers, "last winter seemed a long time up there, but we had signed on for the season, so we just stuck it out for the drilling during the summer months. Are you glad to get back? I'll say we are. Believe me, that's going to be a lonesome country up there this winter. There's not even a dog. And the white population of Fort Norman will be just one man this winter, I believe. Last year there were seven counting the Royal Canadian Mounted Police contingent, but I believe they are due to come "outside" this winter also.

The drillers, of course, loyal to their company, would say nothing concerning the depth of the wells drilled or their state, but it was learned positively that the Bear Island well and the "C" camp well are "dry" holes. The original discovery well, rated by the company as a 100-barrel per day well, is still as good as ever, but there is no demand along the river for the oil to make it worth while operating.

In 1921, the company sent in a small but very modern and complete distillation plant to distill gasoline from the crude oil of the "Discovery" well. Gasoline manufactured from the crude oil of this well was used successfully by the Imperial Oil, Ltd., all-metal airplanes in their northern flights during the early spring and summer of 1921. Various "crashes" resulted in the abandonment of the aerial enterprise and the gasoline produced was then used in the motor boats. But the still was not operated at all during the present summer as it was found that the cost of producing the gasoline there was such it could not compete with gasoline brought in around the Alaskan coast to Herschel Island and to the mouth of the Mackenzie River by whaling vessels. This gasoline costs from $1 to $1.25 per gallon along the lower Mackenzie River, which gives some idea of the production cost of gasoline from crude oil in the far north when it cannot be sold in competition.

"How did we spend the winter months," said one of the drillers, "well, we were kept pretty busy cutting wood for fuel right through November and December up until January and then we just put in the time till the days began to get longer. We did not have many storms up there and the cold was endurable, but there isn't much daylight in the middle of the winter. Besides, in the winter months, it seems to snow just a little every day and the skies are gray and overcast most of the short time that the sun is above the horizon.

"The first snow comes to stay about the 18th of October, as it did last fall and the big river freezes over solid about the first of November. It is running with slush ice for three weeks before that. I crossed it on good solid ice on November 10 last year.

"But the spring weather is fine. Right through the first of May, we had almost continual daylight. Even in April the long days begin and in the latter part of that month we found it necessary to use artificial light only about two hours of the 24 when we were running day and night shifts. Both last summer and this summer were fine, very hot weather through the summer and practically no rain."

The closing of the camps and particularly the departure of Dr. Richardson, will be a great loss to the far north. Dr. Richardson, stationed at Fort Norman, some 900 miles north along the river from Fort Smith, the northern boundary of Alberta, was the only doctor in that vast stretch of territory reaching on beyond there for another 500 miles to Herschel Island in the Arctic. All the medical and surgical cases up and down the river from Fort Norman outside of the company employees were brought to him for attention and he had a great deal of work to do which kept him busy.

"We were a happy family at the camp," said another of the drillers. "Not the slightest bit of trouble among the men all this year, and quite a few of them have got so used to the north that they won't feel at home outside."

Submarine Sleds

NEPTUNE'S TREASURE CHEST MAY SOON BE RIFLED BY MEANS OF THIS NEW INVENTION.

At the bottom of the ocean lies a vast store of treasure, ready to be picked up by the man who can discover how to get at it.

The ordinary diving suit is only useful when the man inside it knows the exact position of the object he wants to retrieve, and can arrange to be let down within a yard or so of it. For this apparatus, useful though it has been, is not suitable for walking in under the water. In order to stand on the bed of the ocean in a diving-suit, the diver must be heavily weighted, and this prevents him from stirring far from the spot to which he is lowered. If, on the other hand, he is not sufficiently weighted, he is liable to find himself floating about at the mercy of every current.

A number of Continental experts have been at work on this problem, however, and have produced a contrivance known as the submarine sled. It has up to now been demonstrated only in rivers, but there is every reason to hope that it will come through with flying colours when put to the full test in deep water.

Sliding Under the Sea.
It is claimed that, with the aid of this sled, divers will be able to travel along at the bottom of the sea at depths of twenty fathoms and more. The sled is driven by electricity, and carries its own plant for making the current. Powerful electric lamps show the diver where he is going, and there is another powerful lamp provided in order that wrecks may be inspected more thoroughly.

Its driver sits at a wheel, in much the same way as a man driving a motor car, and can make the sled rise or descend at will by means of wings controlled by levers. An electric drill can also be attached to the sled, and this should prove invaluable for making tunnels under the sea, or in the construction of bridges and other work where foundations have to be laid under the water.

If the new invention comes up to expectations, it may hasten the construction of the long-discussed Channel Tunnel.

(From an Exchange.)
Malcolm McGregor tells how cuffs on trousers were invented. A Scotchman turned up his trousers in crossing a muddy road. When he returned a sump was missing. He hunted all through the mud without success. The next day he found the sump in the cuff of his trousers. So he had cuffs made on all his trousers, and the fashion started.

The Return of the Editorial

The editorial, driven from home by the strike of pressmen, has returned to the New York newspapers. It comes back without flourish of trumpets. It has little to say about its enforced vacation. Except for such occasional references, the man who chanced upon a New York newspaper for the first time in several weeks would see nothing to indicate that the editorial had been temporarily deprived of its opportunity to inform, admonish and encourage the public, to throw the searchlight on dark places and reveal the weaknesses and foibles of the world, and casting aside for the moment its character as guide and mentor, serve purely and solely for purposes of entertainment.

Surveying the topics that were selected for publication by the New York morning newspapers yesterday, upon the return of the wandering editorial, it does not appear that the leisure enjoyed by the editorial writers has changed their outlook on life or caused startling departures from the accepted range of subjects for editorial discussion. There are the usual articles on foreign affairs. Current questions of national importance figure amongst the topics. The local issues of the day receive attention. In only one of the New York papers is there what may, perchance, be taken as indicating that the editorial writer during his unexpected vacation turned his thoughts into new channels. We find the New York Herald asking "What is Civilization?" Ordinarily the newspaper takes civilization for granted, even if sometimes wondering how long it will last. But the article in the Herald implies doubt of editorial infallibility. If we cannot tell what civilization is, how can we understandingly discuss politics, the high cost of living and the golf championship? But the rest of the editorial writers of the metropolis give no evidence that like the man on the Herald their faith in first principles has been impaired. They still take civilization for granted and that being so, the debate on topics of interest may be expected to go on without the confusion that would arise were we forced to guess about first principles.

There is little disposition in evidence to discuss editorially the strike that retired the editorial, but the New York Times, in a dispassionate consideration of the trouble, points out that it was not a fight against organized labor, adding that "labor never shewed itself more disorganised than in the headlines and futile act of the New York pressmen." It is in the Times, also, that the return of the editorial is given editorial notice. After mentioning the "opportunity" for amiable festing over the sacrifice of the editorial page, the Times goes on to show that "the very need of preserving the independence of the editorial page compelled its temporary elimination." As the Times says further, fancy a reader finding a World editorial under a Tribune head or shall we say a Hearst editorial under the title of The New York Times?

The editorial came back at the first opportunity. It has again entered into its own. Its return is to be welcomed. Editorial opinion as expressed in New York sometimes signally fails to reflect opinions held in those regions which some New Yorkers think of as the provinces, even if the word is not used. But the opinions of the New York newspapers are followed with interest and sometimes with profit the country over. Their permanent absence would be cause for widespread regret. Therefore it is proper to extend cordial greeting to the editorial on its return home.—Boston Transcript.

Beaverbrook Buys up English Newspapers

Former Canadian Acquires Powerful London Journals.

(By Canadian Press.) LONDON, Oct. 5.—With reference to the rumors rife in Fleet Street for days past to the effect that the Lord Rothermere interests had acquired the whole of Sir Edward Hulton's newspaper interests in London and Manchester comprising five dailies, three Sunday papers and half a dozen other weeklies and other periodicals, the total about forty publications for a sum variously estimated at 3,500,000 pounds to 5,000,000 pounds, it is now stated that Lord Beaverbrook first acquired the option on the whole string and afterwards sold to Lord Rothermere, the Manchester or headquarters, section of the business. This would mean that Lord Beaverbrook, who is already proprietor of the Daily Express and the Sunday Express reserves for himself out of the Hulton list, the Evening Standard, one of the best of the London evening papers, the Daily Sketch and the Sunday Herald, the latter a picture paper.

Ireland's Eye Notes

Since my last notes the fishery has been on the whole the same as usual, but during the month of September although it was splendid weather for catching cod, nothing worth while could be obtained.

The "Rose Clear," Tom Fowlow, master, of Trinity East, has arrived from the Labrador hailing for 900 qts. He has discharged his fish at British Harbour and Ireland's Eye.

The "Cactus," Eli Torpe, master, has arrived from the north with a full load. They were a long time getting home, meeting with adverse winds all the way. We are glad to see them all looking well after the long and strenuous voyage.

Miss Ruth Kelly was a passenger by the Malakoff on Friday, Sept. 14th, going to Island Cove where she will take up the teaching profession. We wish her a year of prosperity and happiness. Mr. E. H. Toope, who has been in Boston, was a passenger by the S. S. Silvia on Thursday, and arrived home on Friday, Sept. 21st.

Mrs. W. G. Hodder is at present spending a short visit at Port Rexton with her mother.

Miss Jessie Hodder, who has been residing in St. John's for the past three years, was a passenger by the S. S. Prospero to Trinity. She came home the following day, and will spend a short holiday with her people. Miss Monroe was also a passenger by the Prospero and is spending her vacation with Miss Hodder.

The result of the O.H.E. Examination were very good this year. Out of 9 who sat 7 passed. 4 Primaries and 3 Intermediates. The four Primaries who passed were Ethel Toope, Susie Kelly, Walter Hodder and Fred Cooper. The Intermediates were Ruth Kelly, Hazel Kelly and Victoria Cooper. Congratulations, GYP and SCOTT.

Does Your Roof Leak?

If your roof leaks and you know where the water comes in, you can probably make it watertight with Plastic LASTY-GUM. A 5 lb. pail of Plastic LASTY-GUM costs only $1.50. Your carpenter will tell you that Plastic LASTY-GUM won't crack like cement and won't run like tar. Plastic LASTY-GUM is put on with a trowel and is guaranteed to stop leaks.

If your roof needs coating, we recommend LIQUID ELASTO-GUM, which is put on with a brush. Liquid Elastogum will put a new surface on your roof and keep it in good condition. A gallon can costs $1.50, a five gallon can costs $6.00. This is the best coating for rubber roofing.

If your roof needs a new covering, we can sell you Campbell's Patent Roofing complete with fittings for $2.89 per full size roll. A roll weighs about 56 lbs. contains 108 square feet of roofing and will cover 100 square feet of roof surface. Regular price is $4.50. In June this year we purchased 3000 rolls of Campbell's Patent Roofing from the manufacturers, who were selling their stock at auction. When our present supply is sold, new shipments will sell at $4.50 per roll. Now is the time to get a new roof covering at a bargain price.

Roofs covered with Campbell's Patent Roofing pay less for Fire Insurance than roofs covered with ordinary tarred felt. At our present low price of $2.89 per roll with fittings FREE, Campbell's Patent Roofing is cheaper than felt. Don't delay ordering, we are selling hundreds of rolls each month.

(By John Blake.)

THE VALUE OF SPORT.

Children take naturally to sports because competition is natural to the human being. And because life is one long competition it is well that instinct prompts the child to begin it as soon as he is strong enough to run and play.

Athletic exercise of some kind is necessary to good health of the body. But it is more than that. It is necessary to the health of the mind.

The boy who plays football or any of the other games that are played in the schools learns about human nature as he plays. He soon discovers that there are people in the world who will cheat and take undue advantage, and that there are others who are fair-minded and honest.

He learns, too, how to distinguish one from another. He learns to keep his temper when he gets hurt, and not to think that he is defeated for ever if he happens to lose a game.

We must learn to be philosophical in defeat, but not so philosophical that we enjoy defeat. These things can be learnt in sport. And it is better to know them before a youth enters the greater field of competition known as business.

Grown-up life is a series of contracts, pleasant and unpleasant, with other inhabitants of this world. He who expects to find them all upright and fair will be grievously disappointed. He who thinks that all of them are cheats and frauds is mistaken.

The schoolboy at his games soon learns to appraise human nature. He soon discovers, if he is observing, that determination will do more than sheer muscular power.

And gradually he learns that even if he is not fitted for championships, he can play any game well enough to enjoy it if he tries hard enough.

Every boy and every girl should play some vigorous outdoor game that arouses the spirit of competition. It is a necessary preparation for life.

A man in a trap was run down at a level-crossing, and the old signman in charge had to appear in the court. After a grilling cross-examination he was still unshaken. He said he had waved his lantern frantically, but in vain.

The following day the superintendent of the line called him into his office.

"You did wonderfully well yesterday Tom," he said. "I was afraid at first that you might waver."

"No, sir," replied Tom, "but I was afraid that old lawyer was going to ask me whether my lantern was lit!"

Battle in Scotland
BETWEEN THE "WETS" AND THE "DRYS."

LONDON—A keen campaign on the part of both wets and drys is promised in Scotland where returns have shown that at least 250 polls will be necessary as a result of regulations lodged under the Temperance Act. All the large industrial towns are this year included in the present arrangement. In Glasgow, for instance a poll will take place in 4 out of 57 areas. Two of these are already dry and several are under limitation. For a majority of the areas there will be three options, namely, no change limitations, and no license, while for the areas under limitation there will be four options, namely, repeal, continuance, further limitations, no license. In the dry areas the voters will decide simply for repeal of continuance.

In the pockets, fountains and apron effects of evening gowns there is a decidedly circular trend.

Highest Service of Dog to Man Through Knife of Surgeon

President of Humane Society Defends Vivisection in American Magazine—Discovery of Insulin Due to Experiments With "Friend of Man."

In an interesting defense of vivisection—or rather an explanation of vivisection since, according to the writer, who is president of a humane society, the practice needs no defense—Ernest Harold Baynes presents the following argument in a recent number of the Outlook:

The great gunsmith, the great architect, the great sculptor, the great engineer—each has been an experimenter, and each has his "scrap heap" on which may be seen the failure (his own and others) on which he has built his final success. How can it be otherwise in the fields of medicine and surgery? If a man must practice and experiment in order to be a good repairer of watches, we cannot expect another man without experimenting and practicing to become an expert of the human body—the most complicated, the most delicately adjusted piece of mechanism that we know anything about.

And, since he must experiment and practice, since he must in all human probability make his share of failures before he becomes a master craftsman, shall we permit him to use and throw upon his scrap heap the most precious material on earth—his fellow men and women, or shall we insist that he use the least valuable material which will serve the purpose?

There is only one answer for a normal person—for a person who holds the life of a human being at a higher value than the life of a rat, a dog or a monkey. We are sometimes told that the final experiment must always be on man. Quite so, and we are willing that it shall be. The final experiment is the successful experiment, based on the knowledge and skill gained by previous experiments, including the failures.

Banting's Discovery.
The writer recounts the triumph of the much discussed "insulin" treatment for diabetes:

"Last week I was in Washington when a little boy was rushed to one of the big hospitals, dying of diabetes. He was already in coma, which in this disease immediately precedes death."

"My interest was doubled because of an experience with a similar case just two years ago. A little girl in my own New Hampshire village was stricken with the same disease, and, though we walked together through the woods and fields, we both knew that she was doomed—that within six months she would be dead—unless a miracle happened. It didn't happen. She died in less than three months from the date of which I speak."

"Now there had come the little boy in the last stage of the disease. He had been unconscious for many hours; he was doomed—unless a miracle happened."

"A doctor whom I knew injected under the child's skin a newly discovered fluid. It seemed to have no effect. A second and stronger dose was given, and still the boy remained unconscious. And all the while the father stood by, begging against history that the miracle would happen. A third and still stronger dose of the new fluid was injected, and presently the little patient began to move, and then he awoke from his long sleep."

Experimented on Dogs.

"The miracle had happened. The boy had been snatched from the very gates of death; saved from a disease which until little more than a year ago was invariably fatal in the case of children. The new fluid is known to the world as 'insulin,' and it has already been the means of saving many lives."

"The story of insulin is a long one, but here are the outstanding facts. Dr. F. G. Banting, of the University of Toronto, assisted by Dr. C. H. Best and others, by a series of well planned and carefully executed experiments on dogs, recently completed investigations begun on rabbits seventy-odd years ago by Claude Bernard. The latter discovered that an animal could convert the sugar or protein in its food into a form of starch called glycogen, store this in its liver and release it in the form of sugar as the sugars required it."

"Later Von Mering and Minkowski showed that if a dog's pancreas were removed the animal could no longer make use of sugar in the body, that he was stricken with acute diabetes, and usually died within three or four weeks. Langerhans, examining the pancreas under a microscope, saw that it was studded with minute bodies which together resemble somewhat an archipelago. In honor of their discovery, they have been named 'the islands of Langerhans.' He even suspected, and correctly, that these bodies secreted a substance quite different from the pancreatic juice.

"It is now known that this substance has the power to render the sugar in the blood serviceable to the organism, so that it does not accumulate and produce unfavorable symptoms. Banting and his associates solved the difficult problem of isolating this substance without destroying its remarkable properties, and from it they made a specific for diabetes. Because it is made from the islands of Langerhans, it is called 'insulin.' It is now obtained from beavers slaughtered for food. Its discovery brings hope to many thousands of people; it is one of the latest blessings conferred on humanity as the direct result of vivisection."

Miraculous Thyroxin.
"Not long ago, while visiting the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., I met Dr. E. C. Kendall, the discoverer of thyroxin, the active principle of the thyroid gland. This discovery, too, was the culmination of a long series of experiments on animals, conducted by many investigators.

"In the hand of one who understands its use thyroxin is especially the hand of a magician. It is especially potent in cases of cretinism, a disease caused by congenital absence of the thyroid gland. Both the physical and the mental growth of children born with this defect are stunted. Their features show little or no intelligence; not infrequently they are positively brutish. In many cases the tongue protrudes from the mouth and the animal-like noises take the place of speech. To these children thyroxin and the best thyroid preparations—the use of which is the outgrowth of experiments on dogs—have proved a heaven-sent blessing. Nearly all such patients can have their condition improved, and many of them are in a short space of time marvellously transformed into normal children."

"The effect of thyroxin is also startlingly effective in cases of myxedema, a disease which attacks those whose thyroid glands become defective later in life. The face of the most beautiful woman, as a result of myxedema, may become ugly, distended looking, and devoid of intelligence. It is as if some witch had cast an evil spell upon it. But now by the use of thyroxin we seem to witness the final triumph of a good fairy, as the ugly face is quickly changed and restored to its former beauty.

The Help of Anesthetics.
The writer watched a famous throat specialist, Dr. Chevalier Jackson, deftly removing various foreign bodies from the throats of children in his Philadelphia clinic—in most cases without even a local anesthetic. It is the work of a supreme craftsman.

"I had a long talk with the surgeon afterwards," he says, "and he told me that many of those children owed their lives to several dogs on which he had practiced until he had developed the technique which enabled him to do his work as I had seen him do it. He added that during the past year by using two other dogs he had been able to train fifty men to do similar work. The dogs, he said, were always under complete anesthesia."

"In the Civil War if a man was shot through the bowels he died. In those days it was a very dangerous proceeding even to open the abdomen, and, even if this were done, there was no surgeon who knew how to unite the ends of the severed intestines in such a way that the joint would be 'tight.' Of course, the slightest leak meant death.

"Later on there came an experimenter who etherized some thirty dogs, shot them through the bowels, and practiced joining bowel ends until he could make a perfect joint. It is safe to say that in the World War the lives of thousands of men were saved as the result of that one series of experiments."

"Few of us realize that practically every drug we use was first standardized and made safe by experiments on animals; that many of them are never sent from the laboratories until they have been tested in this way."

"Even anesthetics must be tested on animals before it is safe to try them on human beings. Ether itself, which has been called 'the greatest gift of medicine to mankind,' was first tried out by Dr. W. T. G. Morton in a series of experiments upon his own dog. The success of these experiments led to a trial on a patient in the Massachusetts general hospital, October 16, 1846, and the torments of surgery were gone forever."

Dogs Suffer No Pain.
"Several times within the past three years I have visited the physiological laboratories of Chicago University, and each time I have met and played with a little tawny yellow dog named Buster, who was introduced to me as a member of the staff. For ten years Buster has been assisting Professor Carlson and Dr. Luckhart in their study of gastric juice, a knowledge of which is absolutely necessary to a solution of problems connected with indigestion. To obtain pure gastric juice from an animal under observation was a problem in itself. Pavlov, the eminent Russian physiologist, devised a means of doing this. After putting the dog under complete anesthesia, he divided its stomach into two parts, one small and one large, and sewed the two parts up in such a way that they were completely separated by a double layer of mucous membrane. In the large part digestion went on as before, but no food could now enter the small part, which is known among medical men as the Pavlov pouch. But, interestingly enough, when any stimulant causes a flow of gastric juice in the stomach a similar flow is secreted by the Pavlov pouch as well.

"So a small opening is left in the pouch and the edge of this is sewn to the edge of a corresponding opening left in the exterior of the abdomen. The wound heals and causes the dog no further inconvenience. When pure gastric juice is needed a small rubber tube is inserted, and the dog sits quietly for half an hour, perhaps, while the clear liquid oozes into a little jar designed to receive it. Such a dog is Buster, whose life is quite as happy as that of any other dog living in the city, and infinitely more useful."

"And this brings me to the question of the amount of pain suffered by the animals which are experimented on. As president of a humane society and as one whose life is spent chiefly in studying animals and in working for their conservation, it is my business to know something about this, and my lecture tours give me unusual opportunities to do so.

"I have visited physiological laboratories and medical schools in most of the large cities and many of the smaller ones from Boston and San Francisco, and I can testify that I have never seen anything in the nature of cruelty in one of them. It seems almost impertinently unnecessary to say this."

Ontario Rejects U.S. School Book

CRITICISM OF MANNER IN WHICH BRITISH HISTORY RECORDED.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press)—Because of complaints alleging that it was anti-British in its viewpoint, "A History of Europe—Our Own Times," has been struck from the list of high school histories approved by the Ontario Department of Education. The criticism of the volume originated in London, Ont., and assumed such proportions there that Premier Ferguson was moved on Saturday to make an investigation into the matter.

The book was written by J. H. Robinson and Chas. A. Baird, citizens of the United States. One point criticized was that, in giving a brief review of the Indian mutiny, it omitted the incident of the Black Hole of Calcutta, but stated that at one point "the frenzied English showed themselves as cruel as the natives." It was further condemned that in describing the first battle of the Marne it lauded Joffre and the French but made no reference to the English division. In its record of the forces participating in the world war, it was finally charged, it made no separate mention of the Canadians.

The work was not one of the prescribed text books of the Ontario Department of Education, but was merely a book approved for use.

Mussolini's Self-Discipline

Manchester Guardian: It must needs considerable moral strength for a flashing self-made dictator to put himself to school after one or two grave early slips in statesmanship, as Signor Mussolini is apparently doing. Merely to seize by force the position of a Lenin, a Mussolini, or a Marquis de Estella is not in itself any proof of genius. But not to lose one's head afterwards, and to be able to see when one has made a mistake, is decidedly an achievement.

A Farmer's Financial Pool is Suggested

Winnipeg, Oct. 8.—Formation of a financial pool to assist the farmers in bringing about reduction in their debts has been suggested to the provincial government by a Winnipeg banker. The proposed pool would take over all the liabilities of the agrarian and administer his affairs until such time as conditions became more stabilized.

The plan is to have the pool operate for a period of five years and during that time the farmers would be placed in the light of wards of the organization. The pool officials would have charge of the sale of their produce, and would turn over sufficient money to enable the farmer to meet his operating expenses and allow a fair wage for his work. The balance of the money would be turned over for the adjustment of debts. In cases where the farmers had too much land to work successfully, the pool would let it for sale with the Canada Colonization Association.

What Every Woman Knows

The bride's mother was consulting herself on the way every evening. Her dress had been great success, and as for her hair, she had been perfectly successful. "Well, you should have seen my dear daughter's face, really, my dear."

The happy couple had gone to the lake for their honeymoon, and soon as they arrived they took boat out and spent the rest of the evening on the moonlit water.

Next morning the bride's mother received the following postcard: "Arrived safely. Grand rowing party. Well, I never!" muttered the lady. "I knew my Jenny was a bit of a quareling so on."

Never has fur trimming been in evidence on suits, coats and dresses than it is this fall.

Beaver is used for the snug collar of a tan and taupe plaid of imported homespun.
