The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER II.

He glanced at her dress as they sauntered along the colonnade to the conservatory, mentally declaring it to be most charming and simple, deciding it to be most probably the work of her own hands, and would have been thunderstruck had any one informed him that the innocent-looking garment had cost nearly fifty pounds.

Vane Charteris saw her cousin's admiration, and her heart thrilled. Once more she would taste the joy of power, she would no longer be neglected. A vision of future triumph filled her mind at that instant. She would wake from her indifference. The world should see her again as queen, reigning this time by charm and fascination as well as by her beauty. The color mounted to her cheeks, the light flashed in her eyes at the thought and she turned with animation and interest to converse with the man beside her.

"You have a splendid home, Stuart," she observed, after they had walked through the heavily scented conservatory to the drawing-room. "I am glad I have come."

"And I am heartily glad to welcome you, I have heard so much of my Cousin Vane, such stories of triumphs and wonders, that I began to despair of ever receiving her here."

"You forget," said Vane, softly, waving her great feather fan to and fro, "there is an attraction here now that at other times was wanting."

She spoke lightly, almost laughingly, but her words pleased the man's vanity.

"Can it be that I am that attraction?" he asked, quickly. Then he added: "Cousin Vane, I am indeed honored."

"You jump to hasty conclusions," she retorted, "but I will pardon your excessive vanity, if you will give me a spray of Stephanotis for my dress."

"Is it your favorite flower?" he asked, leading the way back to the conservatory.

"I love all flowers," Vane answered, "that is," she added, carelessly, "all household flowers."

"You shall be well supplied in future."

"Thanks."

She drew off her gloves and plinned the spray of wax-like flowers amid her laces. Her hands were white and delicate, yet Stuart's mind unconsciously flew to two little brown ones he had seen that afternoon grasping a plainly bound book. There was even more beauty in them than in his cousin's, he thought.

"I shall look to you, Cousin Stuart," Miss Charteris observed, as she fastened her gloves again, "to initiate me into the mysteries of country life. I intend to dabble in farming, milk the cow, toss the hay, picnic in the fields, and get quite burned and brown."

Stuart laughed a little constrainedly. He was thinking of his picnic for next Wednesday, and wondering whether he could induce his cousin to be kind to Margery. His mother, for some unaccountable reason, did not appear to like Margery.

"We must get a native of Hurstley to act as chaperone," he responded, breaking off a leaf from sheer wantonness. "I have been away so long. I have almost forgotten my home."

"What are you going to do, now you are back?"

"Nothing—that is, nothing definite. You see, my father is very shaky, and I must relieve him of some of his duties. My mother has a strong wish that I should stand for Chestorham."

"A parliamentary career?" questioned Vane. "How would you like that?"

"Not at all," Stuart answered, frankly. "Legislation is not my forte. I am, if anything, a sportsman."

"English to the backbone! Cousin

Stuart, I am disposed to like you."

"Is that true?" Stuart asked, gravely.

Vane turned and met his gaze, then laughed softly.

"True? Of course it is; are we not cousins? The liking, however, must not be altogether on my side."

"Have no fear," the young man began, but at that instant the dinner-gong sounded, and his sentence remained unfinished.

Vane was led in by her cousin, and they were even yet more amicable during the meal, to Mrs. Crosbie's intense satisfaction. She made no effort to interrupt the merry conversation of the young people, and contented herself with now and then joining in the flow of reminiscences in which her husband and Lady Charteris were indulging.

Squire Crosbie was a tall, thin man with a worn, almost haggard face. His prevailing expression was kindly but weak, and he turned instinctively to his wife for moral support and assistance. Stuart dearly loved his father. The gentle student disposition certainly was not in harmony with his own nature; but he had never received aught but tenderness and love from his father, and grew to think of him as a feeble plant that required warmth and affection to nourish it. His feeling for his mother was entirely different. He inherited his strong spirit from her, the blood of an old sporting family flowed in her veins. She was a powerful, domineering woman, and Stuart had been taught to give her obedience rather than love. Had he been permitted to remain always with his mother, his nature, although in the abstract as strong as hers, might by force of habit have become weakened and altered, but as soon as he had attained his majority, he had expressed a determination to travel, and in this was seconded for once most doggedly by his father. Those two years abroad did him an infinite amount of good; but to Mrs. Crosbie they did not bring unalloyed delight. Her son had gone from her a child obedient to her will, he returned a man and submissive only to his own.

Lady Charteris resembled her brother, the squire; but the intellectual light that gleamed in his eyes was altogether wanting in hers. Her mind was evidently fixed on her child, for even in the thick of a conversation her gaze would wander to Vane and rest on her. She was heartily pleased now at her daughter's brightness, and whispered many hopes to Mrs. Crosbie that this visit might benefit her delicate nerves and health.

Mrs. Crosbie nodded absently to these remarks. She was occupied with her own thoughts. Stuart must marry; and whom could he find better, search where he might, than Vane Charteris for his wife? Beautiful, proud, a woman who had reigned as a social queen—in every way she was fitted to become the mistress of Crosbie Castle. She watched her son eagerly, she saw the interest and admiration in his face, and her heart grew glad. Of all things, Mrs. Crosbie had dreaded during those two years' absence, the fear of an attraction or entanglement had been most frequent, and not until she saw him so wrapped up in his cousin Vane did she realize indeed that her fears had been groundless.

CHAPTER V.

"Get on your bonnet, child, and trot away! I shall be content till you come back."

"Mother, I don't like to leave you to-day, you seem so weak. Miss Lawson will not mind—let me stay with you."

Mrs. Morris put out her weak hand and caressed the soft silky hair.

"No, no, child," she persisted, gently. "You must go to yer lessons. Reuben will be 'ome directly; he'll make me a cup of tea; don't you worry yourself. It's yer day of German, too, and I want you to be well on by the time her ladyship comes home."

Margery rose slowly from her knees.

"Well, I will go," she said, regretfully; "but let me make you comfortable. There is your book—why, you are getting on quite fast, mother!—and here are the grapes Mr. Stuart sent, close to your hand."

"Heaven bless him for a kind, true-hearted gentleman! Ah, there are few like him, Margery, my lass!"

Poultry Association

A special meeting of the Newfoundland Poultry Association was held on Monday evening in the Board of Trade rooms to formulate plans for the new year. The Vice-President, W. D. McCarter, along with Mr. G. Tucker and T. McGillivray were appointed as a committee to arrange a series of lantern lectures and a publicity campaign for the spring. Essays on poultry topics have been arranged and will be read at the monthly meetings and published after for the benefit of the public. The past President and Treasurer G. R. Williams and W. R. Butler, were appointed to bring in a set of rules for the satisfactory distribution of hatching eggs to the general public under the seal of the Association.

Mr. Leonard Earle reported to the meeting the wonderful improvement in egg yield from his flock by the use of electric lighting recently installed in his poultry houses, the lights being automatically turned on 2 or 3 hours before daylight. This makes the short winter days nearer to the length of summer and gives the birds a great length of time in which to consume feed thereby increasing production. An enthusiastic campaign for increased membership is being inaugurated and a successful year for poultry culture is looked forward to. The unclaimed poultry coop and pen of birds was auctioned off at the close of the meeting. There were two claimants but neither could produce the winning ticket.

M.C.L.I. to Meet in Guards' Rooms

The Executive of the Methodist College Literary Institute met last night to consider their position following the fire which destroyed their rooms in the College building on Monday night. An offer of accommodation was received from the Methodist Guards Comrades Association, placing their rooms at the disposal of the Institute. This offer was very gratefully accepted. Consequently no break will occur in the schedule for the season. The regular debate will therefore take place as usual to-morrow evening at the Guards rooms on Queen Street. Announcement of subject and speakers will appear in to-morrow's papers.

The Star Ladies will welcome all their old friends, and would like to see a big crowd of new friends Monday night, Jan. 26th. Great Preparations for a good time.—Jan 21, 23, 24

Trouting Out of Season

According to statements made by a well known resident of the west end who travelled over the ponds in the vicinity of Petty Harbor early last Thursday, Jan. 15th, people had been trouting there before the opening date. He says he found many holes cut in the ice and observed many indications that fishing had been done there some time previous. The matter deserves investigation.

Why Women
Look 60 at 40

With dark circles under their eyes, sallow complexion, drawn expressions, drooping shoulders, a lagging step, many women of forty have the appearance of women of sixty. In many cases this condition is caused by overwork or neglect of such warning symptoms as headaches, backache, nervousness, displacements, and irregularities which indicate ailments peculiar to women. If all women so afflicted would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound it would restore them to a normal healthy condition, and the premature signs of age will soon disappear.

Notes on Votes

One of the most significant features of the recent election in Great Britain was the way, and the confidence with which the woman voter handled her vote. There have been, of course, in the last 50 years always certain women who realized the need of, and the power of, a vote; they fought for the franchise, won it, and proceeded to use the influence they had so hardily gained. But there was an immense majority of women who either did not want a vote or simply ignored the franchise question altogether. When citizenship, in the positive sense, was forced upon them they inclined either to abstain altogether from the poll or else to vote more or less by the inspiration of their men-folk. On the whole, "they didn't want none of this politics business!"

This silliness or indifference was widespread in 1918. But already there was a quickening of political interest among the women in 1922. By 1923 one scarcely heard any more the familiar slogan of inertia, "I can't be bothered with voting!" They had begun to realize that in their hands was a weapon both for aggression and defence; that they had power, and the profit and responsibility of power. Since 1918 candidates have realized that the "Woman's Vote" is not only significant but very often decisive.

At first the woman voter looked askance at the weapon thrust into her hand, and showed little inclination to make use of it. In 1922 she fumbled with it, but she was beginning to realize its possibilities. By last autumn she saw that with this weapon she could defend her home against unjust legislation and fight for reforms to benefit her household; for lower prices, more and better houses, educational opportunities for her children, and various forms of insurance (against unemployment, widowhood and old age.)

The Post Office Scandals.

The discovery some weeks ago of discrepancies in the accounts of certain outport post offices and the additional cases reported in the Evening Telegram yesterday have resulted from the investigations begun by the Government shortly after they assumed office, in compliance with the clearly expressed demands of the electorate. As to the amount of these shortages or to what extent the Postal Service is affected it is impossible to say at present, as the investigation is not yet complete, but in the cases referred to it has been found that the irregularities cover a period of years.

What is of far greater importance than the discovery of the actual amount of these shortages is to ascertain how it was possible for them to go on undetected for so long, and to this question the investigators are giving their closest attention. In justice to those upon whom suspicion rests at present, and in order to check the evil once and for all at its source, no stone must be left unturned or no avenue left unexplored in tracing the guilt, if guilty there be, to the responsible parties.

If there is one Department more than another in which the officials must be above reproach and the system thorough it is in the Postal Service. It is the means used for the transmission of huge sums of money belonging to private individuals during the course of a year in addition to their correspondence, and it is essential that there should be no feeling of doubt as to the efficiency of the service or the integrity of the officials. The disclosures have considerably shaken public confidence in both respects, and it will require a thorough probing and possibly a vigorous shaking up and a reorganization before it is restored. In the meantime the loss both in revenue and reputation is to the country.

The existing state of affairs is not the growth of a year but of years. The whole public service has been used by politicians as a haven of rest for those who have "toiled" in their interest, with the result that its efficiency has been seriously impaired. No Department has suffered more in this respect than the Postal Service, and to make matters worse, they have not hesitated to use its facilities to serve their ends. As a result of such juggling it is not surprising that the whole service is open to criticism.

So far as those who have been primarily responsible for the supervision of the postal system throughout the Island are concerned, their chief laxity seems to have been in the matter of supervising and equipping the outport post offices. It would be incorrect to say that there has been no supervision, and it would perhaps be wrong to say that the requests for help from outlying settlements have been altogether disregarded, but this much we do say, that we have seen correspondence addressed to a former Minister of Posts, in which the postmaster implored that help might be sent him, and that the means be allowed him whereby he could carry on and save himself from landing in difficulties. So far as the writer was concerned the communication might have been addressed to the Sphinx. And he landed in the hole, right up to his neck!

The responsible officials of the Postal Service during the time that it was allowed to fall into disrepute have much to answer for, but what we are unable to understand is why the Auditor General's Department did not discover these shortages long ago. The Department is maintained at considerable cost by the community for no other purpose than to detect irregularities of this kind. Section 43 of the Audit Act states that "The deputy heads of the several departments, or the officers, clerks or other persons charged with the expenditure of public moneys, shall respectively audit the details of the accounts of the several services in the first instance, and be responsible for the correctness of such audit." If this Section means that no responsibility rests with the Auditor General it would seem that there is no purpose served in maintaining such a department, but we are unable to read such a meaning into the Act. While we agree that the audit in itself is unable to prevent dishonesty we submit that its chief purpose is to detect it.

Reorganization of Work at Methodist College

This morning the pupils of the Methodist College met their teachers at the Governor Street Sunday School and accounted for their school books which were lost or saved from the conflagration on Monday night. It was found that three out of every four books had gone up in the flames. Principal Harrington addressed the pupils, regretting the loss and expressing the hope that the whole school would be able to resume study by Friday. Notice of when the schools are to assemble will be given in the papers. Out of the ruins of the Principal's room have been recovered the account-books which were in the Principal's room have been recovered. The boys gym is intact as is also Miss Leslie's room. The desks in this department will be available for use elsewhere. Yesterday the College Board were offered in addition to the Presbyterian Hall, the Congregational Lecture Room, and the Guards Rooms, the Synod Hall, through Rev. Canon Bolt; the Star of the Sea Hall, through Mr. F. C. Elliott; and the Grenfell Hall, through Hon. R. Watson, Chairman and the Canon Wood Hall, through Rev. J. R. Elliott. Whilst it is not yet definitely decided which of the many offers received will be accepted, it is probable that the Kindergarten will go to the Presbyterian Hall and classes one and two to Victoria Hall. Arrangements have been made for accommodation of 400 pupils of the upper classes at the Normal School and it is probable they will assemble tomorrow afternoon so that as little delay as possible in their studies for the C.H.E. will be made.

Supreme Court

(Before Full Bench.)
 The Attorney General vs. Strong & Mursell.

Mr. R. Cramm for the Attorney General asked that the claim be struck off the docket as a settlement (a claim for $1700 B.P. Tax) had been settled between the parties. It was ordered accordingly.

In the matter of the Companies Act and in the matter of Samuel Harris, Ltd. in Liquidation.
 Howley, K.C., for Liquidator; Wood, K.C. for the Government; L. E. Emerson for the Bank of Nova Scotia; C. E. Hunt for the Imperial Tobacco Co., Ltd., and other unsecured creditors.

Mr. Howley, K.C., for the Liquidator moves for an order sanctioning the sale of the land, buildings, stock in trade, furniture, fishing gear and other chattels of the above named company at Grand Bank, Lamaline and Garnish, and of the interest of the above named company in the book debts, and in some eight vessels.
 Wood, K.C., for the Government does not object.
 Mr. Hunt for certain unsecured creditors consents.
 Mr. L. E. Emerson for the Bank of Nova Scotia consents, subject to amended form of order, C.A.V.

During the hearing of the above matter affidavits were read to the effect that $8,000 was a fair valuation for the book debts. And that no tenders had been received for the lands, buildings and stock in trade. Tenders totalling $23,000 were received by the Liquidator for seven of the vessels and another by the Bank of Nova Scotia, valued at $4,000. An offer of $60,000 was made for the premises including the vessel. Of this amount $35,000 would go to the Bank of Nova Scotia.

In the matter of the Churchill Engineering Works, vs. Horwood Lumber Co.
 This case was heard yesterday and judgment was entered for defendant. The above matter is a claim for $1632.53 due from the defendants to the plaintiff for work done and materials provided by the plaintiff at the defendants request.
 C. E. Hunt appeared for the plaintiff; L. E. Emerson for defendant.

Complete Protection for Lobster

According to a newspaper despatch a proclamation was published by the government of Newfoundland on December 2 decreasing a close season on lobster fishing for three years. A drastic step, we should consider, but no doubt the authorities there have weighed the importance of perpetuating the fishery against the economic dislocation resulting from closing the industry completely. Basing opinion upon conditions in Canada we doubt the wisdom of such a sweeping policy. Rather would we urge a principle of compromising the urgency of the fishery with the necessities of fishermen. However, that is none of our affair. We simply make the observation in view of the diminishing catches of lobster on our own east coast and the possibility that we will be able to export a considerable quantity of our own lobster to right the situation.

The close season in Newfoundland is bound to react to the immediate economic advantage of our lobster industry. There may be a tendency to stimulate production to take advantage of the market formerly catered to by Newfoundland. This immediate prosperity would not be objectionable were it not for the knowledge that four years hence Newfoundland will again be in the running with increased resources. We may have overhauled during the period of Newfoundland recuperation. It may be that Newfoundland will have ultimately gained at the expense of our own fishery.

It is reasonable to assume that having re-established her industry by abnegation Newfoundland will not later allow fishing on a scale that will nullify the recuperation. It is in the period when the Newfoundland fishery is closed that we are liable to be avaricious and harmful. Precautionary measures to see that the taking of lobster does not over-reach a judiciously-fixed maximum, would seem to be especially urgent just now. This has been the case in the past but the new urge to catch lobster may furnish the proverbial last straw.—Canadian Fisherman.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Jan. 20th.—Up betimes and abroad the weather still cold, yet not so cold as yesterday, for which God be thanked. On my way to Water Street, to look about the longer than shorter building, and is, indeed, a pitiable sight, being naught left but the shell of what was once a fine building. Meeting Povey he tells me how he learns that the House will meet about the 2nd or 3rd of February, which do show that the Cabal will keep its promise to have an early session. Little news to be had of such legislation that may come before the House, but I do learn how there is like to be a Bill about the curing of fish, which do seem, if true, to be very necessary. My wife this day being dressed in a silly dress of some flowery stuff, and very short, she is, indeed, the kindest almost, makes me so mad that I did forbid her to venture abroad in it, and did threaten even to lock her in her room about the curing of fish, which with much protestation, she changes her dress, and methinks I have the right method of handling the wretch, and better than she deserves. This night, alone to the Masons' dance, having a mind to enjoy myself and so do leave my wife behind. Indeed, a mighty fine disobeys me, and despite my years I feel that I could dance through the night, nor do my rheumatics trouble me at all, which I am thankful for.

"The Merry Cobbler"

AT HOLY CROSS TEXT WEEK.
 After weeks of careful rehearsing under the able coaching of Percie Jardine, everything is now in readiness for the staging of "The Merry Cobbler" by the Holy Cross Dramatic Troupe on Tuesday and Wednesday nights of last week.

Some of the dramatic critics who were present at the rehearsals are confident that the "Merry Cobbler" will not only eclipse the former successes of the Holy Cross players, but it will also establish a new standard of merit in local theatricals generally. The play, which is a Comedy Drama, is written with a refreshing originality, and provides something of a departure from the usually accepted style of stage drama. The story is woven around the fortunes of a young emigrant, and with the many moments of tense interest, there is a feast of songs and dances which cannot fail to charm, while a runaway horse is only one of the many thrills which the play furnishes.

The title role will be in the hands of Mr. Jardine, who is particularly adapted for the part by his fine musical ability, and the leading feminine roles will be sustained by Misses Molly Horan and Winona McDonald of the "Heart" fame. The rest of the cast is particularly well balanced, so that the production will lose nothing in the interpretation. The tickets are selling very quickly, and, pointing to a record entertainment.

Light the Alarm Boxes

The difficulty of locating an alarm box in the night time, again exemplified in the case of the Methodist College Hall fire, suggests the advisability of having guide lights, preferably a red globe, placed on all the boxes. This suggestion has been made before in columns of the Evening Telegram and we again urge that it be acted upon.

Sailing Delayed

The S.S. Sable I, which was to sail this morning delays leaving port owing to the weather forecast which predicts a storm. The ship will call at Rose au Rue to take on board a quantity of whale oil, and it was thought advisable not to risk making there during a storm.

Firemen Called Out

A still alarm at 5.35 last evening brought the Central Fire apparatus to the store of James Phillips, Water Street, but their services were not needed as the blaze was quenched before their arrival by the prompt action of Mr. Phillips. The fire was caused by a blow torch which was being used to melt away some water pipes. Mr. Phillips threw a coat over the fire which was smothered before it gained any headway.

CANADIAN SYNDICATE SUBMITS PROPOSALS FOR FRESH FISH TRADE WITH BRITAIN.
 OTTAWA, Jan. 21.
 A scheme to utilize ten ships of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine for the carriage of perishable food products from Canada to Great Britain, is being submitted to the Government by Major Hugh Green, head of a Canadian Syndicate, interested in the fishing industry. In view of the depletion by the ravages of naval warfare of the historic fishing grounds off the Dogger Bank, British fishermen have been compelled to go further and further afield in search of the sea food for which there has always been a tremendous market in Britain. The proposal of the Green Syndicate apparently is that it guarantees a profit on the operation of Government Merchant Marine ships to the number of ten as a start, provided the Government equips the boats with up-to-date refrigeration adequate for the carriage of chilled food products. The Syndicate is satisfied that such products marketed in Britain unfrozen, can be sold at a profit sufficient to guarantee a profit to the Syndicate, and a cargo rate sufficient to remunerate the Government Merchant Marine for the operation of vessels.

NEW YORK TRAFFIC DISLOCATED BY SNOWSTORM.
 NEW YORK, Jan. 21.
 A violent snow and sleet storm which for New York City was the second big one of the season, to-day tossed a mantle over the north eastern section of the United States, and the normal seaward. One man, blinded by the blizzard, walked into a trolley in Brooklyn and was killed. Eighteen persons or more were injured in a collision of open air elevated trains in Uptown Manhattan. There was no reported loss of life out of town and little property damage, but the storm was sufficient to threaten cities with a paralysis of transit facilities, to isolate inland communities, throw trains off their schedule, delay the arrival of ocean steamships, and set an army of snow shovellers busy. A few women fainting in subway traffic jams here. Some citizens of Buffalo were compelled to walk instead of trolley to business and the Commissioner of Public Works asked for $76,000 for snow removal. A rum runner's speed boat was tossed high and dry and empty upon the Jersey Coast.

LEAGUE TO SUPERVISE GERMAN ARMAMENTS.
 GENEVA, Jan. 21.
 The supervision of German Naval Armament now has passed to the League of Nations, in consequence of a communication received to-day from the Conference of Allied Ambassadors, stating that the "Inter-Allied Commission for naval control of Germany" was officially dissolved September 30, 1924. The communication explains this dissolution was conditional upon the understanding that the inspection of war materials used both by the German Navy and Army will be carried on by the Inter-Allied Military Commission in conformity with the Versailles Treaty. The communique adds that the notification is in co-relation with Article 213 of the Treaty, which declares that as long as the instrument remains in force Germany will permit any investigation of armaments which the Council of the League of Nations may judge necessary.

LENINE'S DEATH ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.
 MOSCOW, Jan. 21.
 All Soviet Russia was in mourning to-day, the first anniversary of the death of Nikolai Lenine, whose memory among the communists is venerated as a founder of the Soviet regime. Official Soviet buildings at home and abroad were ordered draped with red flags fringed with black, and all stores, theatres and restaurants were directed closed. The sale of liquor was forbidden.

OFFICIALS IMPLICATED IN INDIAN MERCHANTS' DEATH.
 LONDON, Jan. 21.
 Seven officials have been arrested at Indore, British India, including the Aide De Camp of the Maharajah of Indore in connection with an affair in Bombay a week ago which resulted in the death of a wealthy merchant Abdul Kadir Baula, says an agency despatch from Bombay.

YANCKTON ASHORE IN BOSTON HARBOUR.
 BOSTON, Jan. 21.
 The steamer Yanckton went ashore early to-day on Dix's Lane Ledge, a sandy bar in the narrows of Boston Harbour. The navy yard was notified by radio from the coast guard cutter Tampa, and the owners of the vessel were asked to send a tug to her assistance. Three tugs were standing by at eight o'clock. The Yanckton was said to be in no danger. The Yanckton, which has had a long and varied career as a steam yacht, naval vessel and passenger boat, is lying between Boston, Halifax and St. John's, Nfld.

Canada and the Birthrate
 Toronto Mail and Empire: Dr. Headlam's remarks on the disparity between the birth-rate of French-speaking Canada and the birth-rate of English-speaking Canada may be the means of rousing interest in the question and promoting efforts for the redressing of the balance. French-speaking Canada is to be praised, not blamed, for its high birth-rate. English-speaking Canada is not to be praised for its low birth-rate. The best element in the growth of the country's population is the native element. On good native-born Canadian is of more use to the country than are two immigrants.

IN FOND AND LOVING MEMORY
 of my dear father, James Barrett, who lost his life on the ill-fated "Beverley" 7 years ago.
 We sit and think of you dear father, While tear drops dim our eyes; You could not say good-bye to us Before you closed your eyes. May heavenly winds blow softly, In that wild and lonely spot; Though the sea divides your grave from us, You will never be forgot.
 Inserted by his daughter, Laura.

IN LOVING MEMORY
 of our dear son James DeLacey, who died at the General Hospital, January 21st, 1921.
 May the sacred heart of Jesus have mercy on his soul.

IN FOND AND LOVING MEMORY
 of our dear daughter, Lilian King, who died January 21st, 1923.
 To-day brings back sad memories, Of that sad and bitter blow; That was cast upon our homestead, Just two years ago.
 Days of sadness will come over us, Tears in silence often flow; For memory keeps you ever near us, Though you died two years ago. Time may pass and years roll on, Whatever be our lot; As long as life and memory last You'll never be forgot.

ings of Chile. Obviously, the idea that a copper company which can make satisfactory earnings in a period of low copper prices will do correspondingly better in a period of higher metal prices is subject to qualification. The possibility of Magna are infinitely greater than those of Chile. Another company with a large per share producing capacity is Kennecott, producing at the rate of 112 pounds per share annually.

THE GULF ICE

Editor Evening Telegram. Sir—In a recent issue of a local paper a writer, commenting on the report of the captain of the S. S. Sable I. that he had met a body of ice which was coming out of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, stated that this ice had entered the Gulf by the way of the Straits of Belle Isle. Such a statement is most inaccurate. The ice the Sable I. met was formed in the Gulf. The north side of the Gulf from the River St. Lawrence to the Cormorant Rocks has been ice bound since the 14th and 15th December. When the coastal boat was navigating the Straits of Belle Isle all the Canadian coast inside of the island of Anticosti was iceed up. The idea that the Arctic current flows through the Straits of Belle Isle is a fallacy. If you will glance at the map you will see that Belle Isle is situated just at the northeast entrance to the Straits and catches the ice floe when it does come down. The trend of the Straits is S.W. and N.E., so that a gale of wind from the eastward is required to drive ice into the Straits. The Arctic current does not enter the Straits; if you look at the Hydrographic Map of the United States you will see that the Arctic current trends to the S.E. from Dominco, and passes outside of Belle Isle.

The Will

There comes a time in the life of every man when he must leave his worldly possessions to the care of another. In anticipation of this, therefore, the first obligation resting on an individual who is possessed of property is the making of a will, and this should be done before the capacities become impaired by time or the ravages of disease.

Night School Re-Opens at Star-Hall

The night school for boys which has been conducted each winter season for some years past, will re-open to-night at 7.30 in the room at the Star Hall given for that purpose by the Star of the Sea Association. The school will be in operation from 7.30 to 9.30 each night, except Saturday, during the winter season. This year the management of the school has been fortunate enough to secure the services of W. J. Power, a teacher of twenty-seven years' experience, who will act as Principal. He will be assisted by voluntary helpers, according to the number of pupils who will present themselves. The object of the school is to provide the elements of education for boys, who, through one cause or another have not been able to remain at school or who have never attended school. Any boy of any religious denomination who is not attending day school is eligible for admission to the night school, and any who desire to help themselves in learning the three R's will be heartily welcomed. The management hopes that full advantage will be taken of the opportunities for education given, and that parents who have not been able to attend day school will send them along.

Popular Favourite at the Nickel Thursday

BEVERLY BAYNE RETURNS IN "THE TENTH WOMAN." One of the most brilliant casts ever assembled will be seen at the Nickel Theatre in the screen version of the popular novel by Harriet T. Comstock, "The Tenth Woman." June Marlowe, the youngest and most beautiful screen star discovered in recent years, and Beverly Bayne, who is starting in her second production since her return to the screen, are taking the leading female roles. John Roche who recently appeared in "The Marriage Vow" and "Cornered" takes the leading male role. Others in the cast are Raymond McKee, Charles "Buddy" Post, Gilbert Holmes, Alex Francis and Edith Yorke. Willa Brooks is saved from oblivion by Barry Compton who takes her to his ranch where she remains as his housekeeper. On a trip East, Barry meets an old sweetheart, Rose Anne Brainerd, a married flapper. Because of Rose Anne's mad cap ways, she and her husband quarrel continually. Peevish because he will not go where ever she wishes, she goes off on parties with Barry without him. Finally Rose Anne, in a spirit of revolt, leaves her husband and goes to Barry's ranch to await his coming. Willa thinks Rose Anne is Barry's sweetheart, and when he returns, she decides to go away. Barry learns that Rose Anne is his repentant, and finds out at the same time that Willa has gone away. The story comes to a very delightful conclusion that will please even the most critical spectators.

Majestic Patrons Charmed With Artists

Shirley Mason in "Love Letters." A High Class Feature. Jacobson and Evans last night exceeded their initial appearance and won new favors from the Majestic Patrons, who were delighted beyond measure, with the concert programme. Both the musical and singing acts were indeed an attraction well worth the admission fee. The two reel Fox comedy and the News Reel, were features in themselves that made the show one that the most critical could not fault. The main feature, "Love Letters," with Shirley Mason in the lead, was a feature play that merited the popular verdict of all present. Shirley Mason's standing in the picture world is sufficient in itself to guarantee success of this production. To-night the same bill will be repeated, while this afternoon a special matinee for ladies and children is in progress. To-morrow night, and for the last half of the week, there will be a complete change of programme, particulars of which will be found in to-morrow's paper. Watch out for advertisements of the big pictures which are now on the way.

Little Jack Rabbit

By DAVID CORY.

"Hello, Mother, is that you?"
"I hope you are not feeling blue."
The little Jack Rabbit over the telephone in the Big Brown Bear's Toy Cave House.
"Why?" asked Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, with a smile at Cousin Cottontail, who had come over with her sewing to spend the night at the little bungalow in the dear Old Bramble Patch.
"Because, Mother dear," answered the little bunny boy, "I've just been listening to a song by the Yellow Dog Tramp over the radio, and I thought maybe you were lonely for me."
"Here, give me the telephone," said the Big Brown Bear, coming over to where the little rabbit was talking. "Let me say a word to your mother. Is this you, Lady Love? Well, I guess your bunny boy is sleepy and homesick. I'll put on my coat and bring him over. He's too polite to tell me so, but I know how children feel when it grows dark. No place like Mother's arms when bedtime comes. I'll be right over," and hanging up the receiver, he pulled on his cap and overcoat. Then picking up the bunny boy, who already had slipped on his fur jacket and cap, the kind old bear locked his front door and hurried down the winding path in and out among the snow clad rocks and bushes, under the tall, leafless trees that sang a sleepy lullaby as Mr. North Wind, now less boisterous, blew down the valley from the mountain tops. It was so warm and comfortable in the arms of the Big Brown Bear that when he reached the kitchen door of the little white house in the dear Old Bramble Patch the little bunny boy was fast asleep. Giving a gentle lap, the Big Brown Bear softly wiped his feet on the little rag mat and waited.
"S-s-sch!" he whispered as Lady Love opened the door. "He's dreaming of Clover Candy and Lollypops. Better tuck him in bed, little sleepy head."

With a happy smile, the pretty bunny mother held out her arms and carried her little rabbit boy upstairs while the kind old bear sat down in the big rocker and talked to Mrs. Cottontail about cabbages and lettuce leaves and a new pink bonnet with a yellow ribbon on it, which that good lady bunny had seen that very day at the Three-in-One Cent Store in Rabbitville.
"You are very kind and very good," said Lady Love, coming back in a few minutes. My little boy is very fond of you. He is always talking about you."
"Is he?" answered the Big Brown Bear, happiness shining all over his face like a burst of sunlight through a cloud. "Whenever I hear him pattering up to my cave my old heart goes bumpety bump like a hickory stick on an old tree stump." Gracious me, boys and girls, there goes the Big Brown Bear into poetry. Guess when we're very happy we all talk in rhyme. They always did in Mother Goose Land when I was a boy, I remember. And now that the little rabbit is safe at home, and the Big Brown Bear is saying good-night to Lady Love and Mrs. Cottontail, your Uncle Dave will close this story, but will tell you another to-morrow night just about candle light time.

Does the average man who comes in to work around the yard trim the long grass carefully around the trees, edge up the flower beds, and sweep the paths without being told?
Not in Our Town.
Does the average laundress wipe out the tubs, oil the washing machines, sweep up the laundry floor and hang up the clothespin bag without being reminded that you consider that a part of her work?
Take Margaret, for instance, practicing her piano lessons. Does she go over and over that difficult passage to get it just right so that it will melt into the rest of the melody with no change of tempo? Ask any mother. You'll find about one child out of ten doing that sort of thing and I'm doubtful if you'll find any at all who do it without frequent prodding. Out of a dozen girls aged 16 picked at random from any high school group, I'd be willing to wager that you'll find ten out of the 12 have taken music lessons at some earlier age, may even have "studied" three or four years, and yet if you ask them to play for you, you'll find the most pretentious effort will be a whanging away at some popular song his, producing a brilliant approximation with the right hand and hitting every other note wrong with the left.

CURRENT RADIO

This department is conducted by special arrangement between The Evening Telegram and the American Radio Relay League, Inc., the national organization of radio operators and experimenters.

Untuned Link Circuit Increases Selectivity.

Interference problems continue to occupy the most prominent position in radio technical articles to-day. The universal cry seems to be "How can I make my set tune sharply?"
It is gratifying, in connection with this subject, to note that manufacturers are paying increased attention to this matter, and the latest products of the more important companies embody constructional features which make for selective tuning. Articles on radio construction treat the problem with more respect than formerly, and it is probable that the greater part of new sets will have comparatively little difficulty with tuning problems.
There remain many sets now in use, however, which are not selective, and the demand is for devices, attachments and additions that will convert hitherto broad-tuning sets into sharp-tuning receivers.
A receiver employing a tuned intermediate circuit, or "fourth circuit" as described in these columns a short time ago, but to-day we show a more easily constructed type of intermediate, or link circuit. This is the untuned type, and can easily be applied to most ready-built receivers. The circuit is shown in the illustration. Coil "S" may be your present secondary, with "SC" the tuning condenser and "T" the tickler. Coil "C-2" is the primary, and if your receiver is the type employing the so-called untuned primary, "C-2" may be that coil. If it should happen that you do not have a separate primary, "C-2" may be 10 turns of No. 22 d.c.c. wire wound right over the secondary winding.
The next apparatus comprises a tapped antenna coil, "P," another "link" coil "C-1" and an antenna series condenser "P-C." "P" is wound on a four-inch cardboard tube, and consists of 70 turns of No. 22 d.c.c. wire, tapped every tenth turn after the 20th turn. "P-C" may be either a .0025 mfd. or .0005 mfd. variable condenser.
The coil "C-1" is wound on a three-inch rotor fitting in the "low" end of the primary coil "P," and consists of 15 turns of No. 22 d.c.c. wire.
In mounting the apparatus, keep "P" well away from "S," and place it at right angles to "S."
With close coupling between "C-1" and "P" the selectivity will not be so great, but when interference is encountered, the coupling between "C-1" and "P" may be loosened, resulting in great selectivity—probably greater than you will want. Some signal strength will be lost in this process, but this condition is unavoidable.

said, "It ain't worth fussing a lot just to fix that. You can stick a rag in there."
More and more I am coming to appreciate the wisdom of our great grandmothers with their daily stat that had not only to be done, but done perfectly or ripped out and done over again.
Sometimes when the pipes freeze because the plumber never mended that leak properly, or the button on my new coat falls off the first time I wear it, or the new shoes that were fitted so carefully yesterday prove not to be mates when delivered next day just an hour before I want to wear them, I think of those days of work done painstakingly with pride in the workmanship and along with grandmother.

Wesley Y.M.L.C. Debate

A large gathering of members were present at the Wesley Young Men's Literary Class last night when the following subject was debated: Resolved: "That a policy of highways instead of railways would economically assist the standing of Newfoundland." The set speakers for the affirmative were Messrs. M. H. Roberts and B. Snow, and for the Negative Messrs. William Crane and Don Campbell.
The affirmative contended that a policy of highways could be operated in this country at a much lower expenditure and probably result in a financial failure and the public has to bear the burden. A policy of Highways would be the means of opening up the country and would encourage agricultural development, and whereas we have the expense of roads and railways now, by having both one good policy of highways we could do without the railways altogether and thereby would economically assist the standing of Newfoundland. The affirmative also brought out some very interesting information about the part that the motor cars and motor trucks are playing in the conveyance of passengers and freight in other lands.
The Negative contended that a policy of highways would be more than our railways do. The freight and passengers carried in motor cars would be a slow means of conveyance and very uncomfortable in cold and wet weather and, absolutely a failure in winter time. The fact that our railways did not pay was not an argument that it was no good. The people have derived a great benefit by the introduction of railways in this country and they have taken advantage of all the comforts and privileges that it offers. The cost of keeping a suitable highway in repair would be tremendous and the congestion of traffic and slow speed would result in general dissatisfaction. The debate was very interesting and ably handled by the set speakers. On a vote being taken the Negative won by a majority of 4 votes. Mr. Jim Rooney conducted the debate. The class extends a hearty welcome to all visitors.

WHAT NO ONE WANTS TO TAKE.

"Thinking," says the cynic, "is the one thing people hate to do."
I can add a second to his "one" and say that taking pains is another thing people hate to do.
Does the average man who comes in to work around the yard trim the long grass carefully around the trees, edge up the flower beds, and sweep the paths without being told?
Not in Our Town.
Does the average laundress wipe out the tubs, oil the washing machines, sweep up the laundry floor and hang up the clothespin bag without being reminded that you consider that a part of her work?
Take Margaret, for instance, practicing her piano lessons. Does she go over and over that difficult passage to get it just right so that it will melt into the rest of the melody with no change of tempo? Ask any mother. You'll find about one child out of ten doing that sort of thing and I'm doubtful if you'll find any at all who do it without frequent prodding. Out of a dozen girls aged 16 picked at random from any high school group, I'd be willing to wager that you'll find ten out of the 12 have taken music lessons at some earlier age, may even have "studied" three or four years, and yet if you ask them to play for you, you'll find the most pretentious effort will be a whanging away at some popular song his, producing a brilliant approximation with the right hand and hitting every other note wrong with the left.

Veteran Railroader Receives Presentation

Mr. James McDonald, a veteran railroader, and for the past five years Foreman of the Round House at the railway yards, was presented with a splendid walking stick beautifully engraved by the employees on Monday last. The presentation was made by Foreman Blamsmith, T. Hill and an address read by Outside Foreman J. Pender, paying a high tribute to the ability of the recipient and expressing the wish that the cordial relations existing between him and those under his direction may long continue. Mr. McDonald made a suitable reply expressing thanks for the altogether unexpected gift and appreciation of the kind thought which prompted it. Mr. McDonald has been in the service of the railway for the past forty-four years.

Ask Grandma - She knows. Spoons in Stomach. RATTLED AS HE TURNED OVER IN BED. Two dessert spoons, each about 9 inches long, swallowed two years ago by Cecil P. Baines, aged 28, were removed from his stomach recently at the David Lewis Northern Hospital, Liverpool.

Historical Records CARBONEAR. (E. F. SHORTIS.) Article XXI. In giving these records of old firms, many of them long since forgotten, except by a few of those families most intimately acquainted with them, it is very pleasing to trace back some of the firms still doing business to-day on the old stands. There is no firm in the country that can show a more honorable record than that of the well known firm of John Rorke & Sons. The name of John Rorke has already been mentioned more than once as Chairman of important meetings held during the cholera scare, etc. The Hon. John Rorke got his title for life from H.M. Queen Victoria for his long and honorable career as Member of the House of Assembly for the district of Carbonear. He was better and more familiarly known as "Honest" John Rorke, and remained actively connected with business affairs till he was well over 90 years of age. He was born in Athlone, County Cavan, Ireland, in 1807. He came to Newfoundland in 1824, as clerk to Bennett & Ridley, who at that time carried on business at Adam's Cove, in Bay de Verde. Thomas Ridley and John Rorke were cousins, and nephews of William Bennett. Thomas Ridley had started business on his own account in Harbor Grace. John Rorke managed a branch business for him at Adam's Cove, but in these old records that I have, there is an announcement (Dec. 11th, 1832) that this partnership carried on between Thomas Ridley & Co. and John Rorke of Adam's Cove, under the name of John Rorke & Co. is dissolved, and this firm will be carried on in future wholly by John Rorke. In the year 1833, John Rorke started business in Carbonear on the site of Slade Elson & Co., which previous to that was George and James Kemp, dating back to 1790, but even prior to that date, was Pike & Green, in 1750. Both of these firms were closely connected with Fozzie, England, and both firms, in their day, were the wealthiest in the Island. The business stand of Messrs. John Rorke & Sons is one of the oldest and most important in Newfoundland, and the two progressive young men, John and James Rorke now in charge of the business, are upholding the traditions of always being strictly straight and fair, carrying out the rule of their well known grandfather, Honest John Rorke.

SHIRLEY MASON IN "Love Letters" advertisement featuring an illustration of a woman and a man.

FAILURE OF THE POTATO CROP. There was no railway or even steamers to depend upon in those days, and when provisions ran short, it was starvation and hardship for all. There was no paternal Government like we have now, to call out to for relief, and the principal merchants were the only resource to depend upon. The following will give a good idea of what had to be done:- CARBONEAR, Nov. 23, 1832. A vessel arrived on Monday evening at Carbonear from New York to Gosse, Pack & Fryer, with 1,000 bags Bread, and 100 hys. Pork. Mr. Pack had rushed the schooner Enterprise off to New York in a hurry when it was found that the Potato Crop was a failure, and the arrival of this vessel in Carbonear, after making a remarkably quick passage, created great rejoicing, as they were approaching the close of navigation for the season, and all were fearing a famine during the winter, but this extra supply was like a god-send, as Mr. Pack promised to dispose of same at cost and charges. When we remember what an exceedingly long and severe winter Newfoundland experienced - the heavy Arctic ice remaining on the coast till the 1st July, there is little wonder that the Potato Crop proved a failure that year. Facts like these show how the Merchants did their utmost to relieve the necessities of the people, and the same was undoubtedly appreciated by all. I have heard my parents and grandparents, who lived in St. John's from 1779 to about 1824, tell of what great work was done by the time-honored firms of Messrs. Baine Johnston & Co., Job Bros. & Co., Bowring Bros., and other great firms in St. John's, and yet, at election time we hear the cry resounding through the country by designing knaves "down with the Merchants." Let our people think-what is to prevent any person or body of persons from becoming merchants provided they have the energy, capability and tact necessary to forge ahead successfully. The records of our country show us that the Merchants were ever foremost in supporting church, state and the people. Of course there may have been exceptions, but Jimmy Macbraire, Baine Johnston & Co., Job Bros., Bowring Bros., John Munn & Co., Ridley & Sons, J. & W. Stewart and many others performed acts of charity and benevolence that should live in history for all time. They were great men, and did not herald their good acts through the columns of the newspapers. TWILLINGATE, Dec. 5, 1832. Here is another confirmation. The total failure of the Potato Crop, and the non-arrival of provisions expected from Poole, has given the inhabitants of Twillingate a melancholy prospect of distress during the following winter, unparalleled even in this frequently distressed district. A hazardous attempt was made to send a schooner to St. John's. CARBONEAR, Aug. 5, 1832. The Sunday Schools at Carbonear and Freshwater, numbering more than 200, assembled here to-day, when an address was delivered by the Rev. Richard Knight on the privileges they enjoyed and the gratitude they owed to the teachers. The children made no reply, but formed into a procession and marched to the farm of Robert Pack. In a brief and appropriate address he expressed his delight in welcoming them, and in honor of the occasion he christened the place "Rural Retreat." The beams of delight which brightened up the faces of the children when the eatables were passed round were good to see. There are none of those children with us to-day, but, no doubt, when they grew older they did away with addresses as not so appropriate for the occasion as Races and Games. CARBONEAR, Nov. 2, 1832. "Mr. Joseph Peters will open his school for reading, writing and arithmetic. Merchants accounts and navigation will be taught at his residence near the Catholic Chapel." He was the father of the late J. E. P. Peters, and grandfather of our own townsman favorably known to-day. I remember him well when he was Magistrate in Harbor Grace, and, previous to that, while teacher, like our old friend, Mr. Frank Doyle, he put out of hand many of our most famous Master Mariners.

The Great Drama in the Far East. Mr. J. L. Garvin gives a dramatic sketch of the outstanding political events in Russia, Japan and China, and utters the warning that "vast forces of the future to escape the control of the United States and Western Europe." "An adequate review of events in Russia would require a page to itself," he says. "After Lenin's death, the old Bolshevik camarilla has been given to the base of dissensions which nothing can conceal. Zinovieff, Kameneff, Stalin, and others have kept the upper hand by exploiting Lenin's name and the rhetoric of world-revolution. With them there is nothing to be done. They are neither to loose nor bind. They cannot hope to receive capitalist assistance for anti-capitalist purposes. "Trotsky, if he had his chance, would probably be the great realist and organizer that Russia needs. Hated and hated by the dominant clique, he may be the man of the future or may not. No one can say. But the existing system cannot be maintained. Soviet Russia, whatever may be its nominal system of Government a few years hence, is bound to become a capitalist State. "But as the dream of world-revolution fades in the West propaganda concentrates on Asia. From Peking to

Orders to Remove St. Paul's Dome. MAKES LONDON LAUGH. LONDON, Jan. 8.-The joke of the week is the serving of notice by the City of London authorities on the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's saying that the dome of the cathedral which weighs 40,000 tons must be "taken down and removed forthwith." The Dean and Chapter would like to do this but the fact is that job would take about twenty years and would cost £2,000,000 at least. The Dean issues an appeal in The Times but London is laughing at the demand of the City authorities. Fashions and Fads. Several shades of the same color are used in one costume. Make a Family Supply of Cough Remedy. Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and gives about 25 times more relief. Satisfying and quickly prepared. If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get so much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes. Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and save easily 25 times pleasure and never spoils. This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and lessens the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded.
