

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

Going to School in Cellars

The children of France are going to school in champagne cellars these days, where the sunshine never pierces through, ventilation is largely imaginary, and the noise of the guns booms down to punctuate the spelling of o-h-a-t, cat. But that is the war zone, and war is the best reason in the world for leaving big modern schools buildings to descend to cellars and dugouts in the ground; for even little children must endure bad air and artificial light when bombs and shells are alternative.

Orions a Disinfectant

Much has been said about the virtues of the onion, but few know of its use as a disinfectant. An onion cut in half and set in a room will attract to itself all manner of germs, leaving the air sweet and pure; it is therefore most valuable in cases of sickness. Care, however, must be taken to burn the onion afterward. No part of an onion should ever be used for domestic purposes after having been allowed to lie about overnight. The eating of raw onions is a great personal protective in time of epidemic, and if taken with cucumbers the breath is left innocent of any objectionable odor.

How Viennese View Life

IT neither begins too early nor ends too late. The good-natured Viennese is not exacting toward it, as is the Berliner, nor is he altogether the slave of it, as a Bolo would disdainfully say of here. It moves so pleasantly and smoothly and ordered for him, it is dealt out in such generous comforting measure that he might well be tempted to demand, like the Queen of the May, an early call to greet it and an extra indulgence after normal bedtime to enjoy its remaining sweets. But there is, in Vienna, a very real deterrent to late hours which exists in no other capital city, the house janitor and his inevitable "door fee." The big portals of the flats may not be opened at will by the tenants privileged, as in Berlin, with a key, nor by the mere pulling of a bell which, in Paris, is popularly supposed to be attached to the drowsy concierge's anatomy. No, the bell must be rung, that the waiting janitor may throw open the door in person, and the money tribute paid in kreuzers by each one of the belated arrivals.

The early morning streets are almost certain to be in the throes of their matutinal cleaning as one steps into them. Vienna does not design its abutions upon exactly modern lines. As likely as not a man will be vigorously swinging the nozzle of a hose attached to the rear of a water cart and sprinkling the cobblestones, while a row of men armed with brooms essays to keep pace with him. Slovak women in topboots and white headcloths climb up the ladders of scaffolding carrying hods of bricks. The shops appear to be still yawning, but the cafe has already begun the Vienna day. Its tables and chairs, spread over the pavement, form an admirable vantage ground from which to observe the half-awakened life. Here the real Viennese takes his breakfast, and he has no sooner taken his seat than the geni of the morning papers, the "Zeitungskellner," slide up to him with a sheaf of the dailies attached to convenient cane frames with handles.

Somewhere about noon is the hour for the advent of that feature of Vienna, the two-horse fiacre driver. It is of no avail to protest that one has "done" or knows Vienna without having made the fiacre's acquaintance. One might as well say that one had seen Vienna and not clapped eyes upon the "poppe" or gondola. So it comes that one may have gazed upon the famous old stump, the "Stockim-Eisen" studded with the nails driven in by the journeymen of medieval Vienna; have "done" the museums, the palaces, the statues and monuments, the Prater, and the Opera; have climbed the Kahlenberg or the Leopoldsborg and drunk in the impressive view of mountains, city, and the Danube; have fed the bears at Schonbrun, and walked the favorite paths of emperors and empresses in the gardens; have enjoyed the lovely pleasure grounds of the ravine of Bruchl; have witnessed an impressive "washing-of-the-feet" ceremony by the Emperor at the palace, or the procession of Corpus Christi trailing its slow way through the Graben, and yet have missed the one feature for which Vienna lives and moves and has her being—the fiacre! He refuses to change, no matter what changes. No one can whistle like him, nor drive just like him, nor look so "fresh," nor be so witty, nor have such a smart two-horse turn-out, nor talk the soft Vienna dialect as he does. His horses seem to "shoot" like a bullet out of a gun, to stop within a hair's breadth at his command, and to dart forward again with a reckless daring that holds the spectator breathless with admiration.

The Ringstrasse is the favorite haunt of the fiacre. And what an unrivaled panorama it is that swiftly passes before the eyes of his "fare." Here Vienna has crowded all its eggs into one basket, and here at carnival time, or "Fasching," the very quintessence of Viennese life collects. No wonder Vienna has won the name of the beautiful, the magnificent city. It has reared its monumental buildings where they have the most artistic value, in the traditional style of Vienna baroque, with its open-air embellishment in relief and color, and its sense of lightness and gaiety. Palace, museum, church, and administrative building alternate, heedless of the shabbiness and the out-of-date not a stone's throw away. Here Vienna has arrayed herself in her best, has shown her gracious smile, and has transcribed something of the music which sings within the heart of her lightsome, genial people. The Volksgarten, hard by the palace and the city's magnificent playhouse, seems to typify all that makes up the essence of this airy, spacious Vienna life. The "garden of the people" contains none of the tragedy but all the comedy of it. The statue of Grillparzer, the favorite playwright, shares with the former bandstand of Strauss the devotion of the people. As the smart fiacre draws up by the gates, there come to one's ears the dreamy lilt, the catchy sycophancy of those waltzes which ever since the earlier times, or tried regard

One sat in the early Scandinavian days, have typified the heart of the inimitable, unduplicated "Wiener." Here Vienna is the city of music for music's sake, for the enjoyment of it and the dropping of the burden. The morrow may have its cares, but the present day has always its joys. That is Vienna, and the precious gift of the lightsome, quasi superficial Viennese. —Christian Science Monitor.

White House Expenses.

The total amount the Government provides the President of the United States for clerk hire and White House expenses, including his salary, $25,000 traveling expenses and $160,000 for the other expenses. OLDEST DYNASTY IN WORLD

Distinction Undoubtedly Belongs to the Reigning House of Japan—Eagan With Emperor Jimmu.

The present Japanese dynasty is by far the oldest in the world, for Yoshitomo claims to be the one hundred twenty-second monarch of an unbroken line, dating from the seventh century before the Christian era, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The early history of Shinto, as recorded in the holy book, Shinto, begins with the dynasties of the gods and is wholly mythical in nature. The dawn of real history begins with the reign of Jimmu Tenno, whose memory is revered today by all the sons of Nippon. Jimmu the Great forced the savage tribes to accept civil institutions and extended his beneficent sway over the entire country. He established his capital at Kioto. He formulated a code of laws, established courts, encouraged industry, and laid the foundation for that marvelous advance made by the Japanese during the nineteenth century.

The title of mikado, which means "honorable gate," was derived from Jimmu. From the days of this ruler Japanese power in the Orient increased. The successors of Jimmu like the great emperor himself, were worshipped as gods upon earth. Women were not excluded from the succession to the throne, and there are many famous empresses in the history of Japan.

JUST WHAT BECAME OF POND

Foolish Questioner, It is to Be Supposed, Was Satisfied With Explanation Offered Him.

Speaking at a dinner, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois referred to the propensity of some people for asking foolish questions, and told the following story:

One day a city man happened in a country community, and while rambling around he ran across a depression in the earth covering several acres. Some perplexed, he questioned a native close by, and was told that it was the bed of a lost lake. "You don't really mean it?" returned the city man. "Whatever became of all the water?" "It was this way," readily explained the native. "There was a picnic out here last August, and when night came on they had nearly a barrel of pretzels left, which they didn't want to cart back home, so they threw them in the lake." "Yes, I see," interjected the other as the native paused, "but what had that to do with it?" "Everything," answered the native. "The fish ate them, and the salty diet made them so thirsty that they drank all the water."

DUST CAUSES ASTHMA.—Even a little speck too small to see will lead to agonies which no words can describe. The walls of the breathing tubes contract and it seems as if the very life must pass. From this condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy brings the user to perfect rest and health. It relieves the passages and normal breathing is firmly established again. Hundreds of testimonials received annually prove its effectiveness.

A detachable wire prevents a new square paper drinking cup collapsing. On the shank of a new fish hook are prongs to hold live bait with a minimum of injury.

The Utah inventor of a steering wheel for vehicles with which horses can be guided and controlled claims it will handle animals satisfactorily under all conditions.

Argentine naturalists are trying to decide whether the wild horses of that country are descendants of horses imported by Spanish conquerors or of prehistoric origin.

It is said that moth balls put in the runs made by moles will drive them away.

All glass bottles in the house should be saved to hold preservers or dried foods.

THEY CLEANSE WHILE THEY CURE.—The vegetable compounds of which Parneelee's Vegetable Pills are composed mainly dandelion and mandrake, clear the stomach and intestines of deleterious matter and restore the deranged organs to health action. Hence they are the best remedy for indigestion available today. A trail of them will establish the truth of this assertion and do more to convince the sifting than anything that they grow more popular daily.

ARRANGING THAT NEW COLLAR

Piece Regarded as One of the Prettiest Decorations of the Present Season.

Those new collars that are really long bias strips of fabric, made double, are perhaps one of the prettiest bits of neck accessory that we have had this season. They are really new, and they possess therefore the charm that always attaches itself to novelty. Moreover, they are in themselves attractive. They lend themselves to all sorts of graceful arrangement, and they give a soft and becoming line at the neck, no matter how they are arranged.

To begin with, they are made in the form of a double bias strip, from six to eight inches wide, and perhaps a yard or a yard and a quarter long. They are the simplest things in the world to make, for the double width of fabric is just sewed up, like an envelope, then turned right side out, the end left open is blind stitched shut, and the whole thing is pressed.

But in spite of the fact that these new collars are so easy to make, they are well worth buying ready made, for they are sold in the shops reasonably in the most attractive fabrics.

These new collars may be worn in many ways. Of course the most usual way is to bring it around the neck, rolled over softly and tie it in a four-in-hand or loose knot at the end of the V-shaped line of the blouse in front. In this way these collars are worn on frocks of serge and foulard. Sometimes, too, the ends are tied like a Windsor tie in a bow, with two loops and two ends.

Sometimes a little bias fold of net is stitched along one side of the center of the collar, and by means of this net the collar is basted into position. Otherwise it is best to pin it securely at the back with a little silver cuff pin.

These collars are made in satin, organdie, georgette crepe, crepe de chine and chiffon. They are made in every color imaginable, as well as in white; and they are even made in little checks. Some of them in foulard show all sorts of designs, although the best found ones are dotted. Then there are others of black and white checks, in a rather big design, but one that is very effective, nevertheless, either with a white or black or navy blue frock.

GAY BAYADERE SASH IS WORN

Wide Ribbon Decoration Comes in Rich Color Combinations; Nice With Eton Suit.

With her new Eton Jacket the summer girl is wearing a dashing bayadere Roman sash, which gives color and gaiety to her whole costume. These bayadere sashes are of very wide ribbon of faille weave and substantial weight and the sash is long enough to go twice around the waist and fall in fringed ends just below the hip at one side. These gay sashes come all ready to put on, with fringe sewed to the ends, in the neckwear and accessory departments.

If you are quite slim and willowy you can knot the sash ends over one hip. If you are rather plump and have a substantial sort of waist measure, draw the sash ends through a large buckle and do away with the knot which, of course, takes up extra ribbon.

The Roman stripes in the bayadere sashes come in various rich color combinations and almost all of the combinations look well with an Eton suit of blue serge or of shepherd check serge or chevot.

WING TRIMMED, ROLLED BRIM

This stunning wing-trimmed hat has a charm which is irresistible. The narrow rolled brim is in two-toned effect. The arrangement of the wings is rather daring, but very smart, and the flowing veil, which is a popular fashion this spring, softens the effect of the whole.

A Knitting Help.

White bone knitting needles slip through the wool much quicker if they are first filed on a plain kitchen knife as you would a lead pencil into a blunt smooth point.

WARLIKE BABOONS.

South African Monkeys Resent Presence of Human Beings.

If we are to credit the testimony on the subject offered by naturalists, man is not the only animal who carries on his warfare by means of organized bands, and calls in the forces of nature to assist him. There have been witnessed in Africa fights that were conducted in an orderly manner as if the warriors had been really men, instead of only somewhat like them in form, i.e., baboons.

One naturalist was stoned out of a pass in a very few minutes by these creatures, who sprang upon ledges and stones, looked down for a few moments on the valley, growling, snarling and screaming, and then began to roll down stones with so much vigor and adroitness that the intruders took to flight. The baboons evidently knew the value of co-operation, for the naturalist saw two of them combine their efforts in order to set a particularly heavy stone rolling. One monkey, bent on making the most of his missile, was seen to carry a stone up a tree, that he might hurl it with greater force.

Once, while some baboons were crossing a valley, they were attacked by dogs, and, as is usual during a march, the females and young were in the centre, the males heading the column and bringing up the rear. As the dogs rushed upon them the males turned and faced their enemies, growling, beating the ground with their hands and opening their mouths wide, so as to show their glittering teeth. They looked so fierce and malignant that the dogs—Arab greyhounds, accustomed to fight successfully with hyenas and other beasts of prey—shrank back. By the time they had been encouraged to renew the attack, the whole herd had made their way, covered by rear guards, to the rocks, one six-months-old monkey excepted.

This little monkey sat on a rock surrounded by the dogs; but he was not long left in his perilous position. An old baboon stepped from the cliff near by, advanced toward the dogs, keeping them in check by threatening gestures and sounds, picked up the baby monkey, and carried it to a place of safety on the cliff, while the whole crowd of baboons watched the act of heroism and shouted their battle cry.

How Foy Met Hitchcock.

Shortly after Raymond Hitchcock made his first big hit in New York, Eddie Foy, who was also playing in town, happened to be passing Daly's Theatre, and paused to look at the pictures of Hitchcock and his company that adorned the entrance.

Near the pictures was a billboard covered with laudatory extracts from newspaper critics of the show.

When Foy had moodily read to the bottom of the list he turned to an unobtrusive young man who had been watching him out of the corner of his eye.

"Say, have you seen this show?" he asked.

"Sure," replied the young man.

"Any good? How's this guy Hitchcock, anyhow?"

"Any good?" repeated the young man, pityingly. "Why, say, he's the best in the business. He's got all these other would-be side-ticklers lashed to the mast. He's a scream. Never laughed so much at any one in all my life."

"Is he as good as Foy?" ventured Foy, hopefully.

"As good as Foy!" The young man's scorn was superb. "Why, this Hitchcock has got that Foy person looking like gloom. They're not in the same class. Hitchcock's funny. A man with feelings can't compare them. I'm sorry you asked me. I feel so strongly about it."

Eddie looked at him very sternly, and then, in the hollow tones of a tragedian, he said:

"I am Foy."

"I know you are," said the young man, cheerfully. "I'm Hitchcock!"

Whale Oil In Butter.

The Norwegian Government has recently arranged to import about 16 tons of butter per week from Denmark at a price of $1 per pound. This is to be mixed with margarine made from whale oil and will be distributed by the Government.

The kerosene and gasoline situation is acute in Norway. There is no oil for lighting private houses, and the signal lights for railroads and ships are much curtailed; even some of the lighthouses are being discontinued. A large number of thrashing machines and motor ploughs are expected to arrive from the United States this spring, but they can not be used unless some new supplies of petroleum and benzine can be obtained.

NOTE AND COMMENT

When home rule really does come, what are the Irish going to do for a paramount issue?—Detroit News.

Washington Star:—The Turks accused of sacking hospitals may accept the Iron Cross without embarrassment. It has no Christian significance.

Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education, refuses to draw any stipend as rector of St. Paul's while being paid for his services as Minister of the crown. That's the right spirit.—Guelph Herald.

French and Italian engineers have solved the mystery of the German long-range gun and are said to have built one like it. That is likely to mean that German cities will soon get a taste of their own medicine.

Canada will have her revenge for the sinking of the Llandoverly Castle. Every fresh crime committed by the Germans serves to increase the Canadian determination to "carry on" until the Hun is driven to his knees.

A commentary on the brevity of human life in general and public life in particular is Sir John Gibson's assertion that he is the only survivor among the members of the Ontario Government of twenty-five years ago and that only twelve out of eighty private members at that time are still living.

On the recommendation of the Minister of Interior, an order-in-council has been passed making new regulations governing the sale of public lands in western Canada. They provide that in future there shall be no sale to one person of an area of land in excess of one section, and land must not be sold until a valuation has been placed upon it by a competent officer of the department after a personal inspection. All land will be sold at an upset price, determining on the basis of valuation. At least 30 days notice must be given of all public sales.

Why Young Men Are Needed

We have noticed several protests of late from correspondents writing to different newspapers against the calling of young men to the colours in preference to older men. The young man, it is argued has life yet before him. If he goes to war and is killed he loses his right to the experiences of life. The older men have already had some of the experience, and should therefore be more satisfied to take their chances of dying. Besides, the man who has a wife and family has more reason for fighting than the young man who has neither. The trouble with such arguments is that they ignore the fact that war has a logic of its own. The responsibilities of war conditions fall heavily on young men because they are best able to bear them. It has always been so, it must be so. Health, vigor and capacity for endurance are with the young, and these are the qualification that are demanded in fighting men. It may seem unjust and cruel that the young should be rushed to the slaughter just when they are beginning to learn what it means to live, but war is a cruel business and imposes its own necessities. It is not merely a question of who ought to fight; it is a question of who can fight and fight best. The average age of the men who won the American Civil War was under nineteen years. It is noticeable, however, that very little comment comes from the young men themselves. Millions of them in this great conflict have accepted the responsibility without a murmur, great numbers of them with eagerness. They did not think of the sacrifice; they saw only the opportunity for glorious and honourable service. They did not count it loss to die in such a cause. They had their prospects of life the same as others, and the same right to live, but they were willing to give up their chance of life for the privilege of serving mankind. Many of those who are among the most eager to face the enemy have no love for the war for its own sake. They are not professional soldiers. They fight all the more courageously and determinedly because they hate war, and they accept hardship and suffering and death in hope and belief that by their sacrifices they are helping to remove forever the curse of war from the world.—The Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

May Cut Out Exams

Hon. Dr. Cody, the newly appointed Minister of Education, bids fair to win exceeding popularity with boys and girls. It is said he is not in favor of "exams" and may order their abandonment. He holds that the "nightmare of examinations" which perennially casts a gloom over the school child should be done away with and that examinations should be modified. A truer result of the child's ability can be formed, he thinks by taking the average work of the term during which minor tests will of course be set, than by imposing of examinations which frighten many of the children and whose examiners aim rather to find out what the child does not know than what he does.

Soldier's Chances

Figures compiled by Tot. a weekly paper published by the soldiers at Fort Totten, on the soldier's chances of life make an encouraging exhibit. The summary is as follows:
Has 29 of coming home to one chance of being killed.
Has 98 chances of recovering from wounds to two chances of dying.
Has only one chance in 500 of losing a limb.
Will live five years longer because of physical training.
Is freer from disease in the army than in civil life.
Has better medical care at the front than at home.
In other wars from ten to fifteen men died from disease to one from bullets.
This war is less wasteful of life than any other in history, although the contrary opinion prevails.

CHOP STUFF

Women doctors are in great demand in England.
The 46 wooden steamships being built in Canada will be ready by September.
W. J. Burney has been appointed Chief of Police at Forest at $300 a year salary.
The Thamesville people are agitating the sinking of a deep well in the village for the improvement of the water supply.
In Amherstburg it costs $3.00 in taxes to keep one dog and $8.00 if you keep two. Good idea. One dog should be enough for any family.
Strathroy lost an old and well known citizen on June 25, when Andrew Baker passed away at the Strathroy Hospital, at the ripe old age of 76 years.
The nineteen-year-olds are not slackers. Over ninety-eight per cent. of the estimated possible total of this class throughout the Dominion registered.
A "temperance" gathering at Hamilton put grape juice and root beer under the ban. The gathering was suffering from the epidemic—temperance mania.
So great is the demand for castor oil as a lubricant for aircraft machinery that more than 70,000 acres in the United States has been planted to castor beans.
Magistrate Kingsford, of Toronto, imposed a fine of $100 and costs upon a dealer who was found guilty of dumping forty cases of eggs on one of the city dumps after nightfall.

Frank Maginnis, of Anghrim, was badly bitten by a vicious stallion. He was leading the animal home while driving with Horton Draper. It suddenly jumped across the front of the buggy, pinning both men in the seats. It started to bite wildly at the cushions and then turned on Maginnis, lacerating his arm from the shoulder to the wrist badly. Draper in the meantime made his escape and was unhurt.
ONCE AGAIN the mail order man in Toronto, who never paid a cent of taxes in your town in his life, who would see you starve to death for two weeks' credit, who offers you a pig in a poke, who does not give you as big value for your money as the local merchant, and who wouldn't be on hand to adjust matters if an article proved unsatisfactory after using, is making an appeal to you to give him the benefit of dollars, which if spent with him, are gone forever. Read the ads. of the local merchants and buy at home.
If fat from chickens is melted and strained it will be as nice for making cake as butter.

COUNTY OF LAMBTON

Treasurer's Notice as to Lands Liable For Sale For Taxes, A. D. 1918

TAKE NOTICE that the list of lands in the County of Lambton liable for sale for arrears of taxes by the Treasurer of the County of Lambton has been prepared by me and that copies thereof may be had in the office of the County Treasurer. And further take notice, that the list of lands for sale as aforesaid is now being published in the Ontario Gazette in the issues thereof bearing date the 6th, 13th, 20th and 27th days of July, 1918. And further take notice that in default of payment of the taxes in arrears upon the lands specified in said list together with the costs chargeable thereon as set forth in the said list so being published in the Ontario Gazette before the day fixed for sale of such lands, being the 12th day of October, A. D. 1918, the said lands will be sold for taxes pursuant to the terms of the advertisement in the Ontario Gazette. And further take notice that this publication is made pursuant to Assessment Act Revised Statutes of Ontario 1914, Chapter 195, Section 149, sub-sec. 3. Dated at Sarnia this 8th day of July, A. D. 1918. H. INGRAM, Treasurer of County of Lambton. d-ottt

STILL GOING ON.

ALTHOUGH we disposed of an enormous amount of stock last month and have moved our entire stock of Footwear into our own store, we find that it is still too heavy for our store to accommodate. So we are offering Great Reductions during the next few weeks—just to make more room. We make the sacrifice—you get the benefit. Are you ready to receive it? Come in and see.

WHITE FOOTWEAR

Our 1918 stock of White Footwear is most complete with all the various styles and sizes, —and all of one quality—the best. We have a shoe for every foot. Nice, cool, White Shoes for everybody—Dad, Mother, Sis and Buz. You'll enjoy them now and be thankful for them when the hot weather's here.
