BRIDGETOWN, NOVEMBER 23, 1876. A SPLENDID LECTURE.

Our columns last week were so crowded with a fully detailed report of the business done at the recent Court of Sessions that we had not sufficient space for such a notice as was desirable of a discourse delivered in the Baptist Church on Sunday evening (10th inst.) by the Rev. Thomas Gales on the Liqueur Traffic. This gentleman is the secretary of the Canadian Temperance Alliance—the object of which is the agitation of the teetotal question, with the ultimate view of obtaining the enactment of a Prohibitory Liqueur Law. The lecture was based on the following text: "But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it hath been testified by his owner, and hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed his man or a woman; the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death."—Exodus XXI.—29.

In this Town, for many years, there has been no lack of temperance advocates, who have occupied the platform or the pulpit. Some of them have been frothy enough. Others of them have been sound, and have made a good moral impression upon the minds of those who listened. Occasionally adventurous itinerants have visited our community, more intent upon pecuniary results than upon upholding the temperance cause. They have succeeded in making audiences laugh at ludicrous pictures of the drunkard, and at stale jokes, which elicited applause, while no solemn impression was made respecting the matter discussed. But in the lecture by Mr. Gales there was an earnestness and moral potency which deeply affected his hearers. He made them feel that he was uttering intensely important truths, and that he was dealing with the temperance question in a masterly and comprehensive manner.

The doctrines deduced from the text was personal responsibility for sins of omission. He pointed out a passive attitude in reference to temperance reforms in effect little better than open hostility. Abstention from intoxicants, so far as it goes, is commendable; but if not followed by action in reference to others and the well-being of communities it amounts to little. Such mere personal temperance is a farthing candle burning under a bushel. Drunkenness is now a wide spread and gigantic evil which seriously affects the morals and interests of the civilized world. The spirit of christianity, as well as patriotism and philanthropy, claims the co-operative energies of all right-minded people in efforts to subvert a most pestilent vice, that is fearfully ruinous to domestic, social and national prosperity. Its deleterious influence ramifies in all ranks and conditions of men in the very heart of christiandom and civilization.

Mr. Gales took a broad view of the moral evil in question and of the traffic which is perpetuating and extending it. We have often heard these matters eloquently and ably discussed; but never before so lucidly and impressively as by him. Of course it is not our purpose (nor have we room) to follow the lecturer in these remarks through the various phrases in which he exhibited dexterity, and in the means that were propounded for its ultimate suppression. He insisted strongly upon the culture of such a moral public sentiment as would form an oasis for successful and effective legislation in the restraining and eventual extinction of the liquor traffic. The whole lecture was replete with interest; and if right impressions were not made, and good resolves were not formed, it was not the fault of the lecturer.

A few remarks in reference to Mr. Gales himself may not be out of place. He is a man in the prime of life—perhaps between thirty and forty years of age—of a robust physique, and with a countenance which is expressive of ready perception and intellectual vigor. An observant stranger, seeing him in a crowd, would at once recognize him as no ordinary man. In his voice there is compass as well as clearness; and there is nothing monotonous in his tones. In his arguments there is admirable lucidity and logical strength. As far as language is concerned, he is faultlessly plain, perspicuous, and at times pleasingly elegant. While he is not barren in appropriate illustration, he is never florid, or betrayed into an attempt to render his utterances more attractive by artistic word painting. In all the characteristics of a public speaker he is the very opposite of some, to whom we have listened with little pleasure and no profit, and who are more intent to show off themselves than to elucidate the subject under discussion. This class of speakers endeavor by frothy declamation to convey sterility of intellect with a profusion of high-sounding words. No language, however glittering, can be satisfactorily substituted for momentous thoughts or valuable ideas. A redundancy of flashy polysyllables darkens, rather than brightens, what is uttered by a speaker. In these respects, Mr. Gales leaves nothing for the legitimate animadversion of those most fastidious critics. His purity, precision and happy choice of appropriate language give force to his utterances, scholarly attainments and thorough mental culture, irrespective of all other considerations, the lecture was a rich intellectual treat.

THE UNITED STATES.

The political storm which has been raging in the neighboring Republic culminated fifteen days ago in the election of a new President. The party elements late in fearful agitation, are now comparatively calm. The great struggle for party ascendancy is now over, and the language of violent vituperation is hushed. While one party is exultant, the other is chop-fallen. But we presume party acrimony will gradually subside, and the normal state of national quietude will again prevail. The quadrennial contests for the Presidential chair, must evermore preclude the possibility of political stagnation, and save the republic from that popular indifference to public affairs, which is more to be dreaded than the turbulence of party strife. When Washington occupied the Chair of State, there was not a man in one of the States that would have preferred to see another in his place, although so early in the Republic's history, conflicting views, respecting its government and policy were strongly entertained, and parties were formed in accordance with the expressed opinion of the Federalists in North and the Democrats in the South. The parties then formed—the former headed by old John Adams of Massachusetts, and the latter by Thomas Jefferson, of Virginia, who penned the Declaration of Independence.

Although the principles enunciated by these respective parties, during the vicissitudes of three fourths of a century, have advocated and upheld by political combinations under different names; yet the conflicting views, severally propounded by Adams and Jefferson, through all the intervening struggles and changes, partially modified perhaps, have been recognized, and are to-day as distinct and adverse to each other as they were at the opening of this century. There have been times when interests connected with trade and manufactures have been affected—when the question of slavery has been agitated—or when State rights were being matters of serious sectional controversy, there have been alienations from one party and attachment to the others by influential politicians; but the old lines of party demarcation still exist. The personnel of one party of late years has been a good deal augmented by a strong tide of immigration from Europe, especially from Ireland and Germany. Still the party struggle, which was tested by the ballot a fortnight ago, was based upon the time-venerated principles that were in conflict in the palmy days of Adams and Jefferson, who half a century ago, died on the same day—and that the anniversary day of the declared Independence of the nation. Their principles, however, survive, and will probably for many long years—it may be for centuries—be the chief matter to be considered and acted upon when a President is to be elected.

28th ANNIVERSARY.

The members of "Olive Branch," Division (No. 44), Sons of Temperance celebrated the 28th anniversary of the establishment of that Division, on Monday evening last. Having been present ourselves we feel called upon to pronounce this the grandest one ever got up by our Sisters. In former years the entertainments were good; but on this occasion no obstacle seemed too formidable to be surmounted. Geese, turkeys, pies, tea and coffee, were provided in abundance, and from the happiness depicted on the countenances of both old and young, we could not but feel that the endeavors of our Sisters in setting before us such a luxurious banquet, were duly appreciated. After the substantial had been disposed of, speeches were delivered by the Rev. Messrs. Murray and Clarke, Brothers T. W. Chesley, Thomas Shaw, William Miller and others. Brother Edward Craig and wife entertained the audience with appropriate music, vocal and instrumental. The evening was far advanced when those present thought of retiring, all thoroughly satisfied with the enjoyment participated in.

WHEAT FROM BRITISH INDIA.

The Fall Mail Gazette in an article recently on silver, calls attention to the fact that the imports of wheat from British India during the first eight months of the current year have been larger than those from either Chili, Egypt, Canada, or Turkey and Roumania. The amount is, in fact, more than ten times as great as it was in the same time in 1875, and to this is attributed, in a great measure, derangement in the price of silver. The course of affairs as the Gazette points out is something like this:—The merchant sending his cargo of cotton to India finds at Calcutta that the silver he receives in payment will buy less gold than it would have brought a few years ago. He can get as many rupees for his cloth, but the rupees will buy fewer pounds sterling at London. If he were to continue trade at this rate he would suffer a loss on every cargo he shipped. But on looking about him he finds that his rupees will buy as many hundred-weights of wheat as ever. Instead, therefore, of buying exchange on London, he buys wheat, and on that he can make up his profit.

This, it is stated, is the immediate cause of the decline in the price of silver as compared with that of gold in the Indian markets.

We are happy to be able to correct a false report which in some papers gained currency in Annapolis a few days ago with reference to the death of Dr. Sumnerville. We are also very sorry that several copies of our first issue helped to spread the wrong impression, which we discovered in time to correct before the final copies were sent forth.—Annapolis Journal.

EUROPE.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—England is evidently preparing for contingencies. Great activity prevails in Woolwich arsenal, where an order was received yesterday to increase the production of rifle ball cartridges to two millions per week.

The authorities at Devonport dockyard are ordered to prepare the iron-clad turret ships Cyclops and Hydra for immediate active service.

Soldiers on furlough in Ireland are ordered to join their regiment, all furloughs having been temporarily suspended.

For the purpose of suppressing any attempt at insurrection in Poland, the Polish contingent of the Russian army is ordered for service in the field. The enrolment of reserves took place on the 14th and 15th inst., and was characterized by great rigor. At Warsaw men were taken from their beds at night and escorted to the trains.

It is still said the Porte will consent to the conference, but immediate war.

LONDON, Nov. 17, p. m.—The Board of Admiralty has ordered five twenty-eight-ton guns to be immediately shipped to Malta.

The feeling on the Stock Exchange over the situation in the East is very gloomy, and the market is depressed.

The Times says it is rumored that Lord Derby has withdrawn from the negotiation on the Eastern question, and that the Cabinet has ordered occupation of Constantinople by British forces, so that there will be no conference but immediate war.

The Times says:—"We can state, not officially but very confidently, the course the British Cabinet has resolved upon if Russia invades Turkey. In such a case a British army corps will immediately occupy Constantinople and defend it against all attack. It is calculated that no more than 25,000 troops will be needed, and British engineer officers are already making surveys for a prolonged defence of the Turkish Capital." The Times adds:—"England's object is not to participate in the war between Turkey and Russia, who may fight out their quarrel whether in Asia or Europe, but to protect Constantinople and the Dardanelles from capture by Russia."

The Pope is seriously ill.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—A Constantinople despatch says the Port, decides to-day for or against the Conference.

The Times leader thus sums up the latest phase of the situation:—"On Turkey's decision to-day regarding the Conference hangs the question of peace or war. There must be a conference, but it must be taken that Turkey's refusal to participate in the Conference would be considered as her acceptance of war."

Russia is raising fresh difficulties in the way with regard to the line of demarcation demanding that it be pushed further back on the Drina.

Telegrams from Berlin report it probable that Germany will mobilize two army corps in Posen and Silesia.

Removal of mobilization of the Austrian army are emphatically contradicted.

Orders were received at Woolwich for 40,000 cartridges, to be ready in eight weeks, and 40,000 ammunition boxes to pack cartridges for transportation.

Not a third of the population survived. The stench from the putrefying bodies is insupportable. A general epidemic of cholera is expected. The cattle were all drowned, boats swept away, and means of communication with other districts destroyed. There is much distress among the survivors, which the Government is relieving.

Detective Power found in the city yesterday, having traced them from Halifax, Thomas Ellis and wife. The man is the defunct partner of the Park National Bank New York, who ran away on the 23rd ult. with $36,000 belonging to the institution.

Mr. Power got Ellis to accompany him to the police office, but the magistrate would not detain Ellis, and Judge Waters, before whom Mr. Power appeared, thought the papers were not sufficient to have the defaulter placed in custody. The bank authorities telegraphed Power to detain Ellis at all hazards, and state that papers will be forwarded. He is also requested to employ counsel. The wife of Ellis has given up $4,000. He is being watched so that he cannot get away without it being known.

A DOG-DETECTIVE OF DULUTH.

In the letter you published from Duluth dated the 27th of July, mention was made of the loss of the steamer "St. Clair," on Lake Superior, and among the passengers lost was a man named Stewart, of Duluth. He had a small English spaniel, which swam ashore. The dog was well known at Duluth and along the Northern Pacific Railroad, and was remarkable for his intelligence and sagacity. His owner was employed by the Northern Pacific Road to measure timber delivered by log-squatters. The dog would stand the end of the tape-line and go to the end of a log, sixty or seventy feet long, and hold it at the end while his master would hold it at the other end to this all day, or until the timber was measured. His master would send him to the post-office, simply saying to him: "Go up—get letters;" the dog would go to the office and go around to one Stewart, a clerk, look at him, wag his tail, and was so well known the clerk would give him the letters, which he would carry back to his master, and in the same way would carry letters which his master had written to the office to be mailed. His scent was very acute. Coming home from the woods one day Stewart was met on the road by a company of log-squatters, who had been at a picnic about half a mile away. One of the young ladies had left her parcel on the ground. Stewart called his dog and pointing to the parcel, said: "Go find and bring here." The dog was gone about fifteen or twenty minutes and returned with the parcel. A pile of lumber put in Stewart's office and around to one Stewart, called his dog and took him to the pile and said: "Watch it and see who takes it." Two or three days afterwards the dog came to him in the morning, and, by a familiar bark to his master, told him to follow him. Stewart took a policeman with him and told the dog to go on, and he led him about a quarter of a mile to a shanty occupied by a Swede, on the bank of a lake. They looked under the shanty and saw a large pile of boards. The Swede was arrested, taken before the Justice, and Stewart told the Justice what the dog had done. The Justice at once convicted the Swede of the larceny. A great many other doings of the dog are known to the people of Duluth and it is a dog which will fall into good hands.—Cor. Philadelphia Times.

THE GULF OF ARTA.

The Gulf of Arta, at the western end of the boundary between Turkey and Greece, was eight fathoms deep in 1847. Earthquakes occurred in its vicinity in that year and 1865. A dense vapor of sulphur also rose from the bottom of the gulf and killed innumerable fishes. It has been recently ascertained that a submarine cone of considerable size has risen to within a few feet of the surface. The sulphurous emanations continue to some extent but the temperature of the water does not seem to be affected. A coating of sulphur will overtop objects which are left in the water of the Gulf a few days.

Being

Poetry.

BY A. D. STEWART, TORONTO.

Dying—so be it. Oh I do not feel One bitter pang at what you say to me...

Back to my childhood's days I wander Still, distinct comes every scene before my eye...

How I remember every shady walk, Each plumed nest along the scented way...

And now I cannot see again that face, For in the green old graveyard it is laid...

I fancy I can hear the merry cry Of village lads at play upon the green...

But more distinct, and dear still than all In this last hour of mine I seem to hear...

When I set out to take my part in life, How I remember all my anxious fears...

Her last words still are ringing in my ear, Tell her I lived until I had to die...

Mother! when I am gone, forgive your child, Give to his thoughts of love you always gave...

One of Chernyavoff's soldiers was charged with cutting off two fingers in order to render himself unfit for service...

China has its big trees as well as California. About 30 miles from Nikko, an ancient city, or cedar tree, begins a village, it reaches the whole distance to the shrine of Lycaon...

The highest tree in California is not in the Yosemite valley. King's River Valley in Fresno County is 6,000 feet above the sea, and its walls, which are about 3,000 feet high, are very precipitous.

The following is given as a poor man's breakfast near Cotton, San Bernardino Valley, California.
