Constipation

Demand prompt treatment. The results of neglect may be serious. Avoid all harsh and drastic purgatives, the tendency of which is to weaken the bowels. The best remedy is Ayer's Pills. Being purely vegetable, their action is prompt and their effect always beneficial. They are an admirable Liver and After-dinner pill, and everywhere endorsed by the profession.

"Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."—Dr. L. E. Fowler, Bridgeport, Conn.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a cathartic for myself and family."—J. T. Hess, Leithville, Pa.

"For several years Ayer's Pills have been used in my family. We find them an Effective Remedy

for constipation and indigestion, and are never without them in the house."—Moses Grenier, Lowell, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for liver troubles and indigestion, during many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action."—L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y.

"I suffered from constipation which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills effected a complete cure."—D. Burke, Saco, Me.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years and consider them an invaluable family medicine. I know of no better remedy for liver troubles, and have always found them a prompt cure for dyspepsia."—James Quinn, Middlesex, Hartford, Conn.

"Having been troubled with constipation, which seems inevitable with persons of sedentary habits, I have tried Ayer's Pills, hoping to find one that would give me better results than any other medicine. I arrive at this conclusion only after a faithful trial of their merits."—Samuel T. Jones, Oak St., Boston, Mass.

Selected Literature.

THE SOLDIER'S PRAYER.

It was the fall of 1860—during those troubled times that tried men's souls and broke women's hearts, that a slip of a girl of about nine years stood on the pavement at the depot in one of the suburban towns of Cleveland and watched the waiting train with its cloud of soldiers on their way to the front. The pale face of the wee woman was so full of admiration, and sad with a pathetic longing in it as well, that more than one boy in blue remarked it. Finally one, with laughing impudence, called out:
"Hello, little maid, is your sweetheart off to the war?" "You are all my sweethearts," answered the child. "Come in and say good-by to us."

The child ran forward, and, clambering up the steps, went into the car. The soldier who had accented the little maid was the counterpart of hundreds who went out to battle in those days, and who slept the long sleep under the northern stars; full of vigor and life, a little "fast," perhaps, but sweet and honorable at the core. As he talked with the child, watching the color come and go, and caught the glance of the big grey eyes darkened so early with the shadow of a great sacrifice, he became unusually interested.

She was a hopelessly plain little thing, with a few wisps of hair, and a big, luminous eye and long, glossy braids of soft, brown hair. The soldier's hand was toyed half unconsciously with one of the plaits when he asked what she would be willing to give a soldier who was going out perhaps never to return. There was a red sincerity in the reply: "Anything." Some spirit of mischievous mirth had entered the girl, for, lifting the hand that lay shining over his wrist, he asked: "Will you give me this?" The answer came very quickly:
"Yes." Taking from his pocket one of those "housewives" furnished the boys by loving friends, he took out the scissors and clipped off the braid close to her head, while the men standing around them exclaimed at his wantonness and shamed him in no light manner. When the hair lay coiled on his knee and the child was looking smilingly up into his face, he reached into his haversack, brought out a bottle, and, taking off the metal cap that answered for a cup as well, he poured out some of the liquor, and raising it, cried out, gayly: "Here's to my little sweetheart!" Quick as a flash the slender fingers clasped his wrist, and the shame and wonder that child's face expressed will never be forgotten by those around. "Oh! soldier," and the sweet voice rang with passion of entreaty, "please, please don't do that!"

There was perfect silence over the group in a moment. Something in the slap of that little hand on his, and the wistful pleading in the startled gleam of the grey eyes lifted so earnestly, touched the soldier, and a strange expression grew slowly in the handsome, soldierly face while the eager voice of the wee maiden sounded clearly through the car.

"I give you just what you asked for," he said, "and now you don't want it. O, won't you do something for me?" A moment's hesitation, then he answered:
"Yes, little woman, I will." I have wondered many a time and oft in the years that lie between then and now if any of those gathered there felt that a point was reached in that man's life when he should choose at the bidding of a little child, which path he would tread.

"Then will you sign the pledge with me?" A shout went up from the boys in blue. "She has got you, Charlie; sign it, sign it," came from all around. "Will you write me, girly?" said Charlie, taking out a blank book with portable ink-stand and pen in the side. Carefully, in big round letters, the child wrote the little pledge that occurred to her.

"I will never drink anything that will make me drunk as long as I live." Seemingly to think that the latter clause was very strong the soldier took out a pen, and, in a firm, scholarly hand, wrote "Charles D." underneath the child's lightly written name of the little girl.

While all this was transpiring, a tall fine looking soldier, bearing the rank of colonel, had paced back and forth several times, and now passing before the open window, called out, "What's going on there boys?" "Come in and see, colonel. Charlie has signed a temperance pledge. While the colonel walked through the car he heard the story from half a dozen different voices. His hand lay carelessly on the head of the little girl, and a strange expression of almost affection shone in his face as he read his pledge. Taking the pen he wrote "in witness," and beneath a name that he wrote in the history of this nation—a named loved and revered as the one of our martyred presidents, James A. Garfield.

Taking the hand of the child in his own, he said: "Boys, this is the daughter of Chaplain W.—, of the Seventh.
He is summoned to the front to-morrow, and was anxiously looking for little Mary a moment ago. Charlie, I know some one in Pennsylvania who will be glad to hear of this. Every soldier touched his cap as they walked through the car, and the escort delivered little Mary to her father and told the story of the missing braid, while the chaplain held her close in his arms and his lips pressed her forehead more than once during the recital. Col. Garfield closed his story by saying: "He is a young man with a bright future, his only fault being this habit, and, as he is honorable to a nicety, he will never break his word.

You have sown good seed, chaplain."

With the remaining braid in his breast pocket, Chaplain W.— had been many weary months at the front, and the conflict still grew hotter and more bitter.
During one of those painfully depressing times it was evident a traitor had placed in our councils, for every important move was made known to the enemy.
Gen. Rosecrans issued the order that spies were to be tried and shot without delay. Excitement ran high and a spy had small chance for his life. Chaplain W.— was summoned one morning to visit the guard house, at the request of a prisoner who had been brought in during the night and condemned as a spy at early morning roll call. He had been discovered skulking around camp, and when taken had asked to be reported as headquarters immediately. Upon learning that Gen. Rosecrans was twenty miles away he seemed disturbed and disquieted, but only insisted on reaching him by some way or means. And finally begged for the chaplain's presence.

Chaplain W.— went as requested, and found the prisoner, a man of splendid physique, with a face bearing unmistakable marks of thought and cultivation.
Being questioned, the prisoner said: "I am a Union soldier. I am scouting, but not for the rebels. I have information that must go to Gen. Geary immediately. I thought I had struck headquarters; that's how I came to be caught. If those fools shoot me to-day, promise to see Gen. Geary and repeat these words, will you, chaplain?" Refusing to talk about subjects that would naturally interest a man condemned, the prisoner earnestly implored the chaplain to carry his message. After promising to take the long ride to headquarters and to see Geary within three hours, the prisoner repeated over softly a few words that sounded to the listening chaplain like an unmeaning jumble of words.

Then pausing a moment, the soldier bowed his head, and his voice trembled as he repeated a message for his mother, to be delivered to this address, slipping his hand inside the old grey blouse and bringing out a package wrapped in worn paper. As he fumbled for a paper and sighed. If those fools shoot me to-day, promise to see Gen. Geary and repeat these words, will you, chaplain?" Refusing to talk about subjects that would naturally interest a man condemned, the
prisoner earnestly implored the chaplain
to carry his message. After promising to take the long ride to headquarters and to see Geary within three hours, the prisoner repeated over softly a few words
like an unmeaning jumble of words.

White as death grew the chaplain's face, and with a queer choking in his throat he stammered out: "Where in heaven's name did you get this?" carefully the clinging tears, the moisture dimming the grey eyes so like the ones that had shone upon the prisoner on a sunny September day in Ohio.

"That's my name, chaplain; and this, touching with a tender motion the braided hair, "belonged to the wee maid whose name is written there. She gave it to me on my way to the front two years ago. I guess you may know the other name."

The proud head of the chaplain bowed low and a tremor passed over the stern face and his voice quivered as he half whispered, "My little Mary, my precious little daughter, and with uncertain fingers drew out from his inside pocket the mate to the prisoner's treasured bracelet.
Speaking rapidly, after the story had been told in a few words, the soldier said: "I have always kept it, chaplain.
Many a time when it was bitter cold and the canteen passed round I could just see that earnest little face and the child's hand writing so carefully her name. I never forgot it, sir. If they shoot me today, send it to my mother, will you?"

The chaplain was stirred, and visiting the officers interested, he argued with them, telling them the story of the pledge and the twin bracts, petitioning that the man might be kept well guarded until Gen. Geary could be communicated with. The strange, pathetic story, closely told, won the day. As soon as Gen. Geary could be reached the prisoner's discharge was ordered immediately, as he proved to be one of the most valued men in the secret service, and was then in possession of news of the greatest importance to our leaders.

Years drifted past, the war was over and Gen. Geary was governor of Pennsylvania. Invitations had been sent out through the quaint old Dutch city, calling those of the governor's immediate circle to meet a valued friend before his departure to take a position as American consul in a foreign land. One of the guests, a slender young thing, remarkably one side of a wonderful grey eyes, had just been introduced to the grave, fine looking gentleman who stood near the governor's wife, when supper was announced. It was such an informal evening that the guests were grouped with regard to congeniality and social affinity rather than strict adherence to rank, so a kindly face placed the last on one side of the honored guest. Noticing that the gentleman turned down his glass the girl studied his face a moment, then flashing a glance up at him she questioned him softly in the pause of conversation: "Did he not drink wine?" He answered in the negative, noticing also her empty glass. "May I ask you why?" A look of painful surprise at the impertinence passed over his face, but without waiting for his reply this strange little lady followed her former rudeness by the astonishing remark that the last time she had seen him he was preparing to drink from a bottle to her health.

Without making any further revelations she called out in agitated tones:
"O, Mr.—, don't you remember cutting off my hair and signing the pledge for me; don't you remember me?" Her eyes were all aglow and the mobile mouth quivered. Turning, the American minister grasped both her hands in his and answered, visibly shaken by the emotion, "Little Mary, the chaplain's little maid; God bless you, my child; I have the brand of her hair and the pledge yet."

The governor and his wife forgave the emotion when they heard the story.
Do any of you remember how a few years since an American minister withdrew the protection of the Stars and Stripes from any American who persisted in selling intoxicating liquor after the king had forbidden its sale by his subjects? If you do, then you know the name of James A. Garfield as witness, and whose life was saved by the brand of hair he had taken from the head of the chaplain's little Mary.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Correspondence.

OTTAWA LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

OTTAWA, June 21.

If the Premier is not exactly "in the soup" he will soon be in it. He is now sitting to Mr. Henry Sandham of Montreal who has been commissioned by Senator Ogilvie to paint Sir John's portrait, from which an engraving is to be struck off and sold by subscription. Sir John is seated in a chair showing a three-quarter view and wearing one of his best expressions. The picture will when finished be hung in the Senate.

Sir John Macdonald will go down to River du Loup at the end of the month.

RAILWAY MATTERS.

A fight is going on before the Railway Committee of the Privy Council between Toronto and C. P. R. The company have been commissioned by Senator Ogilvie to paint Sir John's portrait, from which an engraving is to be struck off and sold by subscription. Sir John is seated in a chair showing a three-quarter view and wearing one of his best expressions. The picture will when finished be hung in the Senate.

THE ATLANTIC LINE.

Messrs. Andersons of London, Eng., have come to such an agreement with the government as to make the signing of a contract for a fast steamship service between Canada and England, calling at France, only a matter of time. The Andersons will now return to England and raise the capital required to float the new fleet.

In this matter the government have the general approval of the men of business of the country who know the great advantage in these days of speedy communication with the centers of commerce.

ANOTHER JUDICIAL VACANCY.

The offer of the position of Principal of the new Ontario Law School at Toronto to Mr.
Justice Strong of the Supreme Court of Canada will have another high appointment in the hands of the Dominion Government, as Judge Strong will accept the offer which carries with it a salary of $4,000. This together with a retiring allowance of $4,000 will give a thousand a year more than he is getting on the bench. He formerly lived in Toronto where he was a member of the Court of Appeal until 1875 when Mr. Mackenzie established the Supreme Court and named Judge Henry to it.
He is now 64. His successor may be Mr.
Justice Osler of Toronto. He must any way be an Ontario man.

REVIVING THE LISTS.

Another circular has been issued to the Reviving Barriers with reference to the revision of the Dominion Voters lists now going on.
Attention is drawn to an unfortunate error by which some of the printed lists sent out were set up from the preliminary instead of the revised lists of 1886 and officers are to make any necessary corrections. Only the last completed and revised assessment rolls furnish legal proof of qualification, but this year's rolls may be used for reference.

Let it be again urged that every reader look to himself that he gets properly on the list as a bye election may happen at any time even if the general elections are far off.

RESULTS OF GOOD GOVERNMENT.

Owing to the patriotic and self-reliant policy of the government Canada is attracting more attention from the rest of the world than ever before. The immigration this season is unprecedented. Distinguished travellers have been sent to Canada to see the country so admirably advertised by its government and possessing the giant railway of the continent. A distinguished Japanese is here to-day studying public and commercial affairs and official Chinese have been sent here to do the same. Writers from leading magazines have been deputed to write up the country so much talked of, and for the first time in the history of the new Quarterly Review a native Canadian writer obtains entrance to its columns in the person of Dr. Bourinot, Chief of the House of Commons, the subject being Canada. The first Lieutenant of the Berlin Dragon Guards, Lieut. Hofacker has just been in Ottawa, bringing letters of introduction to Lord Stanley and Sir John Macdonald. He will of course visit our great Northwest.

The C. P. R. are offering exceptionally low terms to English physicians who wish to visit the Dominion Medical Convention at Banff, N. W. T., this summer, and this will serve to draw attention to our National Park and the great health resorts of the Rocky Mountains.

A WEDDING IN THE CABINET.

I have good authority for saying that Hon.
Geo. E. Foster will shortly be married. He recently bought a house on Legu street and allowed Mr. Jenkins, his private secretary, to live in it. He has now given Mr. Jenkins notice that he will shortly require the house for himself. The bride whom the Minister of Finance is to bring to Ottawa is Mrs. Addie Chisholm, ex-President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Ontario, a highly esteemed lady, whose position has excited general sympathy, her husband having absconded from Hamilton and deserted her some years ago. Mrs. Chisholm is now in Chicago engaged in procuring a divorce from Mr. Chisholm.
This will be the first wedding from the Cabinet in many years.

POST OFFICE PROTECTION.

The design of the framers of the Post Office Act was undoubtedly that the government should have a monopoly of carrying letters.
Since the rate on drop or local letters in the cities has been increased from one to two cents the great North West Tel. Co., in Hamilton have been handling these drop letters under some system, and now the government has given instructions to enter an action against the company for $20,000 damages.

EXPORTS OF THE DOMINION.

At the end of this month the fiscal year expires and another year's trade will indicate the condition of the country. The goods exported last month were $650,000 in excess of May 1888, as follows:—Produce of the mine, $857,375; the fisheries $527,679; the forest $2,380,000; animals $1,627,000; agricultural $913,821; manufactures $563,902; which with

Dominion Day Celebration.

Never before in the history of the shire of Northumberland was such a large number of people seen on Dominion Day. It seemed as if the country must have been almost entirely deserted, all coming to town to witness the day's proceedings. Three steamers plying between Chatham and Newcastle brought large crowds to add their number to those already in town. About nine o'clock N. B. company of Infantry, of the Northumberland Militia, commanded by First Lieut. McKenzie, with Second Lieut. Snowball, and the Chatham Band, arrived at the Public Square, where they formed in marching order, and with the band playing music to the vicinity of the base ball field where the Grand Parade was to start from. Just as they passed on their way to the Moncton Brass Band, which arrived early in the morning, took position on the dancing platform on the Square and played several pieces in good style attracting a large concourse of people. The day was very fine, with a strong breeze blowing which raised the dust in clouds making it unpleasant, but the crowd seemed to be quite willing to put up with slight discomforts and kept in good humor throughout.

Shortly before eleven o'clock the started, and as soon as they were seen turning the corner at the Battery Armory, every one sought to obtain the best position possible. The following was the order of Procession taken from a point a short distance above the Masonic Hall, where the school children were on hand to join the procession.

The lead was taken by the Grand Marshal, Lieut. Col. Call. Group of 8 Cowboys. Chatham Brass Band. No. 2 Company Northumberland County Militia. The company made a good appearance and added greatly to the appearance of the procession.

School Children, escorted by pages on horseback, the girls leading, wearing blue sashes with the number of the grade thereon in white letters. Next came the boys wearing white sashes with number of grade in red letters. They were all neatly dressed, most of the girls being dressed in white, and made a pretty sight.

Carriage containing 3 of the Square committee, and the Warden of the Municipality, D. Morrison.

Carriage containing His Honor Judge Wilkinson, L. J. Tweedie, M. P. P., the Sheriff, John Sullivan, and Saml. Thompson, Sec. Treasurer of the Municipality.

Newcastle Steam Fire Engine, drawn by two horses. It looked well, its brass and plated surfaces brightly polished and trimmed with flags and bowers.

Hose Cart, decorated with flags. Darkey lady and gent on horseback. Page.

George Stables' Grocery wagon displayed a large number of articles for household use.

The Juvenile Month Organ and Drum Band, led by a darkey band.

Fairly the Furniture display was very neatly got up. It exhibited a very handsome bed room set with chairs, and set off with lace curtains and handsome trimmings.

Darkey woman and child, a comical affair. An odd fashion two wheeled vehicle drawn by two small horses, tandem, a darkey in the lead hauling on the rope by which the leading horse was led.

The harness was tied up with rope. Darkey walked the vehicle as occupied by a handsome pair of darkeys, one of the male of the female persuasion, both being grotesquely attired and elicited considerable mirth from the spectators, especially when the male sought to embrace his partner.

Next came George Stothard's ash and door factory with several men at work at their various occupations.

Hand Engine and Hose Cart, decorated with flags.

The Log Cabin was an excellent get up, there being quite a family party on board occupied in the various occupations of a household. The rear of the wagon contained a representation of a log hut while the space in front was occupied by the family, one churning, one spinning, while another dandled a baby on her lap, wood chopping, etc., while the younger seemed to be occupied in taking care of the pig and domestic fowls. Occasionally one of the youngsters would take up the pig and exhibit it not as the gentleman who pays the rent, for no rent is to be paid in such domiciles, to which the pig objected with ear piercing squeals. This laughable affair was got up by Mr. George Hildebrand.

A moving machine came next, drawn by a steady yoke of oxen. This was the exhibit of Mr. E. Holahan.

Then came an excellent exhibit of French Pottery wares. Men were at work dressing stone and a portable force was used by the blacksmith and his assistant in sharpening tools, etc. This exhibit was followed by a number of the employees bearing the tools used.

A wagon with large plaques followed, bearing the sign "All kinds of Castings," and "Old Ploughs made up at Edman's Foundry."

Then came the exhibit of J. H. Phinney, showing tinmiths at work making cake cutters and other small tinware which were thrown among the spectators as the procession passed along.

George A. Cutler's Musical exhibit, showing a darkey band of two violinists, tambourines and with organ accompaniment.

A Tip-pedlar's wagon decorated with flags and tinware and bearing the business placard of J. H. Phinney.

The Newcastle Driving Park Association was represented by a chaise drawn by two horses tandem, and bearing the names of two well known trotters, but which were a burlesque on the horses named as were the occupants of the chaise a burlesque on the officers of the N. D. P.

A wagon with samples of shingles, box shooks, etc., from Mr. Chas. Sargant's establishment at Chatham Head.

Then came the most fun creating representation in the parade, the Darkey Fire Brigade, the captain, J. H. Lawton leading the way in a unique vehicle, having an immense tin helmet on his head, and having his commands, in negro vernacular, to his men, who followed with the engine and hose. The engine was a small affair, such as is used in mills, and the hose was coiled around it.

Then came a wagon with a fine display of Groceries, etc., bearing the sign of John Robinson, Jr.

Next came the Carquet Fishermen, a darkey looking crew, dressed in oilskins. The "Dorothy" mounted on a truck and rigged with masts and jibs was the queer looking craft they occupied, which contained, besides the crew, a quantity of seaweed and some green salted cod fish. Wm. Wright, the helmsman, as well as other hands kept up the character of French fishermen by their broken English conversation and commands.

The barber, J. G. Kethro, had a shop on wheels, and the colored man who scraped his face with a huge tin razor as he gazed at a bright sheet of ice which did duty as a looking glass was an amusing feature of the parade.

The representation of M. Russell & Son's Spool Factory came next, workmen being engaged in some of the various operations of the factory. The wagon looked like a cage containing a "happy family" with its bars of spools stretching from floor to roof. Several darkeys followed.

Alrx. Robbison's Chatham Carriage and Sleigh Works, in which wood and iron workers were engaged in their usual avocations. Several carriages followed.

The Moncton Band, Lieut. R. A. Lawler, Newcastle Field Battery of four guns, Surgeon Pedolin following in the rear. The officers, men and horses of the Battery looked well and was an important part of the display.

Old time coach and four horses, probably one of those formerly on the post route between Chatham and Shediac, and rather antiquated in appearance. Inside the coach several Chatham boys made the welkin ring with the lugubrious sounds of fog horns.

The rear of the procession being in possession of the fine Government Percheron Stallion "Preferre," leased for the season by Mr. Roger Flanagan of Chatham.

Several other displays expected to be in the parade, were detained at the ferry, only taking their places at the end of the route. Among these we are informed was a wagon with huge rolls of pulp from the Chatham Pulp Factory, as well as samples of a coarse tough paper given out to the spectators, and a compositor and pressman at work, the latter working off a small Extra, and which was distributed to the spectators.

The Infantry Company and the Battery were then drawn up in front of the Post Office, and here a small stage had been erected from which addresses were to be delivered. In the meantime the children had passed into the Square, and as many of those who took part in the parade as could get near halted, the immense number of people filling up all the vacant spaces.

Samuel Thomson, Esq., and L. J. Tweedie, Esq., then addressed those present in patriotic speeches suitable to the occasion, but the space at our disposal would not allow us to give even a brief synopsis of their remarks. These as well as Mr. Phinney's address to the school children after the result of the recent examinations had been announced to them while waiting in the Masonic Hall to take their place in the procession, must be deferred until our next issue.

The closing scene of the Parade was of a most ludicrous character. After the speeches a space was cleared for the cabal lifted from the wagon and set in the parade as could get near halted, the immense number of people filling up all the vacant spaces.

The meeting held in the evening in Centenary church in the interests of the sustentation fund of the Methodist conference was well attended. Rev. Thos. Marshall conducted the devotional exercises. The report of the committee was read by J. T. Carr and addresses were made by Rev. C. W. Hamilton, John E. Irvine and Rev. Dr. Wilson. Mrs. B. McLaughlin read an address from the Women's Sustentation Fund society.

TUESDAY, JUNE 25.

The conference met at 9 o'clock with President Cornforth in the chair. After devotional exercises and the confirmation of the minutes, a communication was read from the W. C. T. U., expressing the desirability of holding temperance services at stated times during the year. This was referred to temperance committee.

The temperance committee, in their report, which was presented by Rev. J. C. Barrie, affirmed the recommendations of former years touching the duty of ministers, members and adherents of the church to press in all places, public and private, at home and in Sunday school, by all legitimate means the principles of abstinence from intoxicating liquors, and that school trustees, county councillors, members of provincial and Dominion parliament, should lift their voices and cast their votes in favor of the cause—the cause of humanity, the state, the church and of God. The committee further recommended that this subject be presented from the pulpit on temperance Sunday, and at least on one other occasion on each year, and that there be no uncertain sound. The committee desired to record their sense of regret that the Canada Temperance act should have been so miserably enforced in many places that it became odious to the eyes of the people, which led to its repeal, and hoped that the church of God would unite in prayer and active co-operation with the W. C. T. U. in promoting a sentiment so strong that none of the wiles and fallacies of party politicians or self-seeking men shall be able to turn the electors from the course of rectitude. This report was adopted.

Rev. Dr. Lathern in an address referred to the fact that there was in Nova Scotia a feeling in favor of a union of the two conferences. In Nova Scotia nothing could be seen that warranted a separation. That conference would like very much that the two eastern conferences should become one.

After tea the Moncton Band occupied the dancing platform and played some choice pieces the music attracting a large number of people. Occasionally the water was turned on and the natural flow of water allowed to exert its force, and which threw its jets of water from eight to ten feet high. It was not thought advisable to keep it going all the time as there is no catch basin to hold the waste water and hence it made the walks too wet in its vicinity, so it was only put on at intervals.

As soon as it became dark the stores and residences of the citizens were lighted up and made a fine appearance, of which we shall give a detailed description next week. Dancing was commenced shortly after 9 o'clock and was kept up to about 12, the Moncton Band providing music. A charge of 10 cents was made for admission to the Square in the evening and was paid by a fine number, those objecting to the fee jumped over the fence. The Refreshment booth was well patronized. Early in the evening the merry go round broke down under the weight of its load and that put an end to that favorite source of amusement. No one was hurt.

About 10 o'clock the display of fireworks was made, some of them being very fine.

Considering the immense crowds of people in town good order was kept, and there were but few violations reported. Several fights are spoken of, in one case of the constables, a Chatham man, had one of his legs badly hurt or broken. Some 12 extra constables were on duty during the day and no doubt helped to keep down the roudy element.

The whole day's proceedings, were a great success and the committees having in charge are to be congratulated upon the success attended their efforts.

The committee talk of leaving the dancing platform where it is with a view of having another Garden Party in a short time of which due announcement will be made.

The Children's fund committee submitted a report, which was adopted after some discussion.

Rev. Dr. Pope moved the following resolution:—That the conference should record the sincere gratification with which it has listened to the report of the eastern book committee as supplemented by the verbal testimony of duly authorized representatives, rejoicing in the large prosperity which has marked the history of the book room and that of our church organ, the Wesleyan, and would assure the Rev. S. F. Hoare, the book steward, and the Rev. Dr. Lathern, the editor of the Wesleyan, of our strengthened confidence in their official relation to so important a department of our church's work in this country and our renewed and more devoted co-operation with them in the high service to which they have been providentially called.

This was seconded by Rev. Dr. Stewart and carried.

Rev. J. A. Clark, seconded by Rev. S. Crisp, moved the following resolution:—Whereas, there is sometimes irregularity among the brethren in their use of the membership of parties removing from one circuit to another, this conference calls the attention of the ministry and members to the seriousness of the discipline concerning removals found on p. 89, sub-section 7 of art. 191.

After some discussion the resolution was laid on the table.

ST. JOHN, MONDAY, JUNE 24.

The Methodist Conference met at nine and opened with the usual devotional exercises.

The Sabbath school committee reported that they had found it impracticable to publish the Sabbath school reports as the returns were very incomplete. After some discussion the report was adopted.

The Children's fund committee submitted a report, which was adopted after some discussion.

The president appointed the following lay members on the committee to meet with the committee of the N. S. conference to discuss superannuated matters: J. J. Weddall, M. Trueman, G. R. Sangster, H. A. McKown and Walter Dobson.

Rev. L. S. Johnson submitted the report of the children's fund committee. The apportionment by districts is as follows:

District.	Amount.
St. John.	$1765
Fredericton.	1565
Miramichi.	570
Sackville.	1185
St. Stephen.	650
P. E. Island.	1795
Total.	$7300

The report was adopted without discussion.

It was resolved that conference meet next year in Fredericton on the third Wednesday in June.

The memorial from the Nova Scotia conference was taken up for consideration.

On motion of Rev. E. Evans, Rev. Dr. Stewart and Dr. Burwash were added to the N. B. and P. E. I. conference committee to meet with that of Nova Scotia.

The question of the union of the two conferences was discussed at great length. Rev. Dr. Stewart said the Nova Scotia conference was strongly in favor of union. Rev. Mr. Naraway, Rev. Dr. Pope, H. J. Thorne and Rev. Mr. Daniel spoke strongly in favor of union; Rev. Jas. Crisp, Rev. Dr. Wilson, Rev. Messrs. Shenton and Paisley opposed it. During the debate the action of Centenary (St. John) and Fredericton churches, in ignoring their own conference and seeking men from the Nova Scotia conference to fill their pulpits, was pointed out by Rev. Jas. Crisp, who regarded such action as an evidence that, in the opinion of those churches, the ability and talent of their own conference had been exhausted.

J. E. Irvine and H. J. Thorne rose a point of order, but the president ruled that Rev. Mr. Crisp's references were quite in order following references that had been made by speakers on the other side. Rev. Dr. Wilson's speech, was a powerful argument against union, and Rev. Mr. Paisley also presented forcible reasons against the change. No action was taken in the matter, but it was pointed out that the discussion would be of value to the committee who are to meet the Nova Scotia conference in October to discuss the question.

The minutes of conference were read and signed, a hymn was sung, Rev. Mr. Daniel offered up a fervent prayer, the benediction was pronounced by President Cornforth and the conference stood adjourned sine die.

Miss F. Willard, President of the World's W. C. T. U., was then called upon. On coming forward she was greeted with shouts of applause, the whole audience rising and waving handkerchiefs. Miss Willard said that during the fifteen years she had been engaged in Temperance work she had had many novel experiences but she had never before been so deeply touched by the cordialities extended to her on the present occasion. "Thank God," she exclaimed, "for a cause that can bring us together under such different circumstances." No other but the temperance cause could have done it. No person would have dreamed ten years ago of uniting the female Suffrage and Missionary societies on one platform or of associating clerical and a new political party. A platform that brought together E. King, Dods, of Canada, and the Yankee sister (Miss Willard) must certainly be exceedingly broad. She had stood before the Senate of the United States on behalf of the temperance cause and been opposed by the attorney of a general character, dealing at length with the Third Party. Miss Willard was presented two magnificent bouquets of roses one the gift of Mr. Wm. Goodenham, and the other from Miss Skinner. The meeting was brought to a close by the benediction.

TUESDAY, June 12.—Wednesday's proceedings were largely taken with interesting speeches and papers on important topics. The convention closed with a public meeting in the evening. The papers read were ordered to be printed in the Woman's Journal, the organ of the Dominion W. C. T. U.

POISONED AT A PICNIC.

SUGAR OF LEAD IN LEMONADE DID IT.—FIFTY PERSONS THE VICTIMS OF A FEARFUL MISTAKE BY A DRUGGIST.—FEARFUL AND NOT EXPECTED TO LIVE.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 25.—At a picnic of the farmers near here last Saturday, when 50 persons were poisoned by drinking lemonade which contained sugar of lead, 15 are not expected to live. It was discovered yesterday that the confectioner who furnished the drink, in order to save lemonade, had used in its composition what he believed to be tartaric acid. Fortunately some of the powder which he had purchased from the drug-gist remained, and on examination it was found to be sugar of lead, which he had sold in mistake for the harmless ingredient. The news of this discovery quickly spread all over the town. The rage of the people almost amounted to madness which they determined to vent upon Druggist Alexander, who was a stranger, having been only a short time in the place. A crowd quickly gathered, and marched in a body to his store. The shop was locked. A plank was torn from the sidewalk, and used as a battering-ram. The door was quickly broken in, and the maddened men entered. There was no one in the store, Alexander having seen the angry crowd, had made good escape from a back entrance, and fled to the woods. Baffled at not finding their intended victim, the crowd proceeded to demolish things generally, and quickly wrecked the premises. Many of those poisoned are doing well, but the following cannot recover: Manie Shaw, aged 30; Sadie Barnett, aged 22; Alice Flynn, aged 16; Manie Flynn, 19; Mr. McNaughton, 45; Mrs. McCall, 23 (only married a week); Mrs. Sarah Smith, 35, and her two daughters, Sarah 11, and Manie, 8; Edward Nolan, 19; James Shaw, 23; John McKetchen, 24; Ed. Lewis, 17, and John Shortell.

NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE.

Fire broke out in ill-fated Johnston on Sunday last, destroying twenty-five houses, which contained a large amount of property that had been saved from the flood.

The jury in the case of the five railway employees charged with causing the recent disaster by which 75 persons lost their lives, near Armagh, Ireland, brought in a verdict of manslaughter.

The Johnston councilmen reorganized a few days ago and decided to allow business men to build temporary structures on the two public parks of the place, the buildings to stand 18 months when it is thought the city will be cleared up ready for rebuilding business houses.

Governor Francis of Missouri, has caused consideration among the saloon keepers by signing the Newberry bill, which prohibits music, cards, dice, billiards, pool tables, bowling alleys and boxing gloves. Three thousand saloons are affected.

There has been a sad outbreak of diphtheria in the family of Chancellor Burwash, of Victoria University, Coburg. They lost one boy on Friday morning, two more boys on Sunday, and the only daughter. There are four boys left, and they are away in the country staying with their grandfather. The servant girl is sick in the house with it still.

Rev. R. T. Burns, Deputy Postmaster of Kingston, Ontario, and an Anglican clergyman, has confessed that he is a defaulter to the extent of over three thousand dollars. He manipulated the accounts of illiterate farmers and laborers, and by making false entries in the government returns succeeded in swindling poor people whose farms were allayed by his placing in their savings bank book the full amount they deposited. When confronted with his crime, he broke down and made a clean breast of the affair. He has been tried and sentenced to two years imprisonment.
