BOILER TUBE BURST. FIREMAN WAS SCALDED

Narrow Escape From Fatal Accident on North Shore Line
Saturday

(Moncton Transcript.)
An accident which might easily have been attended with fatal results
occurred on the North Shore division of the I.C.R., on Saturday last, in the bursting of a boiler tube of engine
No. 42 which was, at the time, hauling
a train down the line from Campbellton to Moncton.

Fireman Ashford
was blowing down before the fire box door at the time and was quite painfully scalded by the flying steam and will probably be laid up by his injuries
for some time.

The train was running along at the ordinary speed, when the fireman got down to put in a fire. Just as he reached for the fire-box door, one of the tubes exploded, the flying hot steam coming out the furnace door
which was blown open and scalding
him so that he ran to the gangway
and jumped off the moving locomotive.

Fortunately there was deep snow
beside the track and he sustained no additional injuries in his fall. The train was stopped and when the fireman was picked up, his injuries were found to be not serious although very painful. Mr. Ashford belongs in Newcastle, but Engineer Frank Cain, of Moncton, was in charge of the 42 at the time of the accident.

Experienced engineers say that the fireman was lucky to escape with his life.

It is also stated that the engine had been reported on both ends of the road for bad tubes, but that the supply of locomotives is so limited, that the engine was required to handle traffic and was not sent in for repairs.

The incident is being freely quoted as only one example of the wretched condition of some of the I.C.R. motive power, particularly the freight engines, which are in service on the I.
C.R.

This is not the fault of the mechanical department but of the short sighted policy which endeavors to roll up a surplus by curtailing the purchase of motive power while building $30,- 000 private cars.

On other roads engines visit the shops regularly at certain intervals
for general overhauling. On the I. C.
R. they go in only when they can no longer be made to turn a wheel.

Who would have been to blame if the whole boiler burst instead of only a single tube? Had one or both engine-men been killed?

Impatience often causes loss to the investor. Often a man studies an investment, buys it and holds it, only to grow impatient and sell it out before the improvements which he has foreseen actually take place.

SERIOUS CHARGE NOW WITHDRAWN

Complaint Made Against Well-Known New Richmond Man
Unfounded

The serious complaint made some time ago against Mr. Jas. W. Robertson of New Richmond for criminal assault on the minor daughter of Mr.
John H. West has been withdrawn.
We are informed that the charge was absolutely without foundation and fact in every particular. Mr. Robertson, who is one of the most respected citizens in the county has had the congratulations of a large circle of friends in the final dropping of this false and trumped up charge.

DESERVED COMPLIMENT

NOT WITHHELD
A gentleman from Scotland who had occasion to use the Canadian Government line—Intercolonial Railway—between Halifax and Montreal, writes
the Superintendent of the Dining Car Service as follows:—"I was so pleased with the courtesy and attention of the Superintendent of the car by which I travelled here, that I think it only fair to mention it. The whole
"tone" of his car and staff does him credit. Unmerited compliments you doubtless often receive. A deserved compliment should not be withheld."

On motion report was received and adopted.

Coun. Alexander presented a verbal report regarding his work as councillor at the recent County Council session. After discharging his duties in connection with the same, he returned to the assessment on the town of Campbellton, the Council adjourned.

BURNS CELEBRATION HELD ON FRIDAY

Caledonian Society Have an Enjoyable Informal Gathering
in Masonic Hall

The Caledonian Society of Restigouche held their Burns celebration last Friday evening in the Masonic Hall, when over a hundred members and guests spent a most enjoyable time.
The President, Mr. A. D. MacKendrick
welcomed the friends in a few words and an impromptu program was gone through, after which refreshments were served and dancing indulged in till shortly after one o'clock. Throug-out the evening the entertainment was most informal and the social intercourse enjoyed by the members made the evening quite a success. The excutive desire to thank those who by their assistance made the concert part successful and the members feel under great obligation to them. The program was as follows:

Pipe Music—Piper McLennan.
Song—"Within a Mile" Miss Gilker.
Violin Duet—Mrs. W. H. Sharpe,
Miss Ruth Cameron.
Song—"Mary O'Argyle", Miss
McLean.
Reading—"Tam O'Shanter" Mr. M.
A. Kelly.
Song—"Gin a Body" Miss Gilker.
Violin Solo—Miss Ray Fraser.
Pipe Music—Piper McLennan.
Song—"Annie Laurie" Miss McLean.
Violin Duet—Mrs. W. H. Sharpe,
Miss Ruth Cameron.

MEETING OF LIQUOR LICENSE COMMISSIONERS

Some Dissatisfaction Expressed
Over Granting of Wholesale Licenses

The Liquor License Commissioners
held a meeting, on Monday afternoon in the Police court, which was adjourned till next Monday. No statement was given to the press for publication
but it is understood that there are a number, who desire wholesale licenses
in Ward III, and it is said that there is nothing in the act to prohibit any wholesale license being granted. The situation seems to the average onlooker to be rather queer, and the commissioners seem to have a big job on hand satisfying all parties. It has been stated that the commissioners have no power to grant retail licenses at all, for no provision has ever been made for taking a census of Ward III,
how therefore can they base their calculation on one license for so many of a population when the total of that population is not known.

CALL TO REXTON CHURCH FOR REV. A. LEE

Has Been Supplying the Pulpit
With Great Acceptance Since
Death of Rev. C. A. Hardy

At a meeting held in St. Andrew's church, Rexton, last week, presided over by Rev. J. M. McLean, moderator of the Miramichi Presbytery, it was decided to extend an unanimous call to Rev. Archibald Lee, who, during the illness and since the death of Rev.
C. A. Hardy, has been supplying in the pulpits at Rexton and Richibucto. Although in the early sixties and an active and energetic man, Mr. Lee had thought it necessary to give up the active ministry on account of deafness.
During the few months of his stay at the manse, however, he has endeared himself to many of the people, and those who listen to his sermons feel that they would not be likely to secure his equal. In cases where deafness would be a handicap, he will have the assistance of Mrs. Lee or Mrs.
Hardy, his daughter.

Rev. Mr. Lee is the father-in-law of the late Rev. Mr. Hardy, and it is understood he will accept the call.

Do you know that more real danger lurks in a common cold than in any other of the minor ailments?
The safe way is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a thoroughly reliable preparation, and rid yourself
of the cold as quickly as possible.
This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

There is no better medicine made for colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, opens the secretory passages, and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by all dealers.

CAMPBELLTON VICS LOSE IN HARD GAME

Chatham Win Out in League
Match by the Odd Goal After Overtime Play

(Moncton Times)
Chatham, N. B., Feb. 3.—Chatham defeated Campbellton tonight in the greatest game seen on local ice in years by a score of 4 to 3, overtime
being necessary to put the Miramichi team in first place in the N.B. League.

Over a thousand people viewed the match, which throughout was very close and interesting. Chatham had the faster though lighter team and succeeded in breaking up Campbellton's combination work time after time, while they kept boring in persistently. Frank Brown of Moncton referred with the greatest satisfaction.

The line-up:

| CAMPBELLTON | CHATHAM  |
|-------------|----------|
| McLean      | Gael     |
| Watling     | Point    |
| McLachey    | C. Point |
| Fraser      | Rover    |
| Fowler      | Centre   |
| Delaney     | L. Wing  |
| Mathews     | R. Wing  |
|             | Duncaa   |

In the first period no score was made for eighteen minutes, then Duncaa slashed in the first tally for Chatham
from a face-off near Campbellton's goal.

In the second period Chatham scored again, and Fowler for Campbellton made it 2-1.

In the third period Chatham again started the scoring, Jones tallying in six minutes, and with the score 3 to 1 Campbellton put on steam, with the result that they tied the score, and for seven minutes both teams battled without breaking the tie.

At the end of time the teams changed and continued the struggle.
Cole having replaced Campbellton's
star, Fowler, who was in collision.
Within two minutes Jones scored for Chatham and the game ended 4 to 3.

For Campbellton Fowler and Mathews were the stars on the forward line, while McLean showed up splendently in goal. Chatham's defence was nearly impregnable, Rogers being at his best and Chisholm playing a splendid defensive and offensive game. All four forwards played consistent hook-ey and contributed to the victory.
Chatham now leads in the league with one defeat and two victories.

The crowd of fans who left here on Tuesday to cheer on the purple were disappointed that the Vics did not chuck the league pennant with this game. Chatham although leading in points have only played three games to Campbellton's five, and there is still time, and there is the ability in our team to win out yet. Campbellton's last game in the league will be played with Fredericton next Wednesday night and as this meeting has a direct bearing on the championship it will be a game worth going a long way to see.

If Campbellton wins this game it will mean virtually that they are the champions, for they can scarcely be headed off. The team is out to win, and with proper support on that evening will do the trick.

Why Do Women Suffer

When They Could Be Well?

It is so easy to be well and strong and able to enjoy life, that it is surprising how many women drag themselves through the day suffering tortures from lame back due to kidney trouble. Mrs. Wilcox found the way to cure herself and gladly writes about it so that others may be induced to use the same remedy.

"During the last winter, I was bothered very much with a Weak Back. I was advised by a friend to try GIN PILLS and I did. The first box I found helped me very much and I found when I had taken the second, I was completely cured."

Mrs. F. WILCOX.

GIN PILLS do not do all that we say they will—but we know, and we will cheerfully refund your money. Send for a free sample and see for yourself that they will do you good. Then buy the regular boxes at your dealer's—50¢ for $2.50.

GASCONS

A sad accident occurred at Gascons on Thursday, January 29th, when Orlin the fourteen year old son of Philip Chedore, lost his life. The little fellow had gone to the woods with his two uncles, who were cutting fire-wood. In some way he did not succeed in moving away quickly enough when warned by his uncle, and was caught by a falling tree. He was conveyed to his grandfather's as soon as possible, and the doctor was summoned immediately, but the poor boy passed away before help came. On Friday an inquest was held, and the body was prepared for burial, which took place on Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, Rev. A. T. Love officiating. The four all-beavers were Percy, Hubert, and Leslie Acton, and Howard Chedore. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing parents and the family, the youngest of whom was but eight years old. He was a bright boy, and a general favorite with his companions, as testified by the large number who came to attend his funeral.

NASHES CREEK

The many friends of Mrs. Albert Gaulds of Black Point were grieved to learn of her death which occurred at 1.30, Wednesday the 28th of January, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. James LaPointe, after a few months illness. (The deceased was 27 years old, and is survived by a husband and three children, the youngest, six weeks old. The funeral service was held in Nashes Creek church, the Rev. Father Lambert officiating, after which the remains were removed to Jacques River for interment. The large procession which followed the remains to Jacques River gave proof of the esteem in which she was held. Mrs. Paula was the second oldest daughter of James Cameron of Beckettville. The sorrowing relatives have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

WHAT A GREAT MAN SAID TO THE GREAT CANADIAN PEOPLE

Parisian Sage is a discovery of a celebrated scientist, who spent the best years of his life perfecting this great hair tonic.

In giving his recipe to the Canadian people he said: "Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. It cures dandruff by killing the germs that infest the roots of the hair. It stops falling hair, it gives vigor and strength to the hair roots. Thoa. Wran sells Parisian Sage in a large fifty cent bottle—and guarantees it to do all that is claimed for it, or your money is refunded. It stops falling hair, dandruff, itching scalp and restores life and beauty to dull faded hair in two weeks."

BETTER PAY FOR L.C.R. TRAINMEN

Agreement Reported Reached Which Will Mean Substantial Increase to Many

Moncton, N. B., Jan. 31.—The negotiations between L.C.R. trainmen and board of management regarding a new schedule and rates of pay have been concluded and nothing now remains to be done except signing the contract which it is said will be done when Mr. Godelin returns to the city.

The agreement is said to be a compromise. Instead of a 155-mile run for the passenger men a compromise was effected on about a 239-mile basis.

The new passenger rates will not add much, if anything to the pay of the men on through passenger trains, but will bring up the pay of the men on short run passenger trains considerably.

The "Chicago Yard Agreement" has been adopted for men in the switching service, and will mean a very large increase for men on shunters.

Men on way freight and pick-up trains will get a large increase, and the men on through freight a considerable increase.

In some cases the increases to passenger conductors and brakemen will run from $15 to $30 a month, and in the case of yardmen increases will be in the vicinity of from $1 to $1.25 a day.

In the case of way freight conductors and brakemen it will mean an increase of from 40 to 60 cents a day, and in the case of through freight men, 30 to 40 cents a day more. The feature is the increase to yardmen.

THE REASON

The Ocean Limited is row off the timetable of the I. C. R., much to the disappointment of the people in this district and the Maritime Provinces generally. The reason given out for the discontinuance of the train was that the train did not pay, and if this statement is genuine there are no business reasons for objecting. But is the statement truthful? It is a matter of record that for many months the Ocean Limited had been "silly behind time, running on many occasions as much as four hours late, and it was the exception not the rule for her to be on time passing through Campbellton.

It was openly stated by railway men and press, that the heavy traffic on the train, which originally intended for seven cars and as often running ten, eleven and twelve, was responsible for the late time. To the man in the street therefore, this does not look as if the train was not a paying one, and as the famous Halifax to St. John reduced rates are not in operation at our end of the line, there are very few who would not confidently state that the train did pay. What is the real reason for the change? Many think and a goodly number of railway employees will tell you that the I. C. R. is now only an adjunct of the C. P. R., and to make a rough guess that the Ocean Limited was interfering with the C. P. R. trains would not be far off the mark, and now instead of the People's railway being run for the benefit of the people is now merely used for political expediency. Meantime we have lost the train and it will be many weary months before it ever goes on again and even then it will only be by grace of the C. P. R.

LICENSING.

On another page we give a short report of a meeting of the Liquor License Commissioners which was held last Monday and adjourned till next Monday. We would respectfully point out to the Commissioners that from what we can gather that they are going beyond their powers, and that it would be better to make sure of their position before proceeding further. When the Commissioners met Tuesday, Jan. 27th and granted the licenses they finished their work and there was no thought of having an adjourned meeting. The work was finished and the meeting they held Monday was NOT an adjourned meeting, but in reality a new court and if any other licenses are now granted the work of the Com.

SAY THAT THE BISHOP WAS HOODWINKED

Accuse Him of Being an Ally
of the Government to Hide
Methods in Jail

London, Jan. 31.—The militant suffragettes are very angry with the Bishop of London, the Right Rev. Arthur Feleyn Winnington Ingram, over his report that there was no truth in the allegations of excommunicating torture being inflicted on their comrades who are subjected to forcible feeding in Holloway jail. They accuse the prelate of being an ally of the government, and Mrs. Dacre-Fox, one of the leaders of the Women's Social and Political Union, wrote to him to-day as follows:

"A whitewash brush has been placed in your hand, my lord bishop, by the authorities, in order that the public shall remain ignorant of the diabolical methods used by the government in its desire to terrorize the militant women."

The writer adds: "The whole truth of the matter is you have allowed the government and the prison officials to hoodwink you. We hold letters from Miss Peace, now an inmate of Holloway jail, describing the torture she has undergone. She has on two occasions to our knowledge broken down under the supreme suffering involved."

Aroused by the Bishop of London's letter, declaring that "there is no truth in the allegations that the suffragettes in Holloway jail are subjected to torture while being forcibly fed," suffragettes today repeatedly interrupted the consecration services conducted by him at St. Michael's church. The women sat up a chant, in which reference was made to forcible feeding, and they called upon the Bishop to put a stop to "the torture of women in English prisons."

The disturbances were quickly removed. An attempt made by the women to reach the Bishop as he left the church was frustrated by the police who were present in force in anticipation of trouble.

DOLLARS FROM MILK

The Cow as a Bread-winner Helps its Owner to Coin Money

In 1909 the representative of one of the largest condensed milk companies in the United States, interviewed the Town Council of Tillsonburg, Ontario, with a view to securing their co-operation in the establishment of a milk factory in that town. It did not take the live merchants of Tillsonburg long to realize that the five or six thousand dollars, which the company proposed to distribute to the milk producers around Tillsonburg each month, would soon go into circulation over the counters of their stores. As one merchant put it—"the increase in the price of milk would enable a farmer to buy at least one hat per year more for his wife in addition to many other equally necessary things."

On the first of October, 1909, the factory opened its doors and 21,000 pounds of milk went into the condensers. After four years operation it is interesting to note the effect of this industry in the neighborhood. Prior to the establishment of the factory farmers had been getting from 80c to $1 per cwt. for milk. In 1910 the price had risen to $1.48 1-3 per cwt. The price is now $1.45 per cwt., with prospects of going higher next year. From receipts of only 21,000 pounds from a few patrons the factory has increased its capacity until it now takes care of 312 patrons and 181,000 pounds of milk in one day.

The industry in question, The Borden Condensed Milk Company, had hitherto operated entirely in the United States, but the tariff, coupled with its growing trade in Canada, were the factors which induced it to locate a branch in Tillsonburg. The Company's scientific methods and its educational efforts to improve cattle raising with a view to better milk production, have been of tremendous value to the country. Cows have gone up in price. Where formerly an ordinary grade Holstein sold at $40 to $50 it now brings from $80 to $100, and there has been a corresponding increase in good milkers and pure breeds.

Some interesting figures are available from some of the patrons. One farmer from eight cows during eight months time received $1,057.16 in cheques from the Borden factory. Certain parts of the Western country are eminently suited for dairying, and there is no doubt that within a few years condensed milk factories will be established at different points in the West, thus creating a profitable home market for milk and cows.

The Sable Lorcha

By Horace Hazelton.

"Not now, Evelyn," I said, quietly, and, at the risk of seeming rudeness, sat still.

"But, why?" And there was a hint of suspicion in the look she gave me. "He is asleep," I told her. And when she had relaxed into the green chair again, I added, temporizingly, "Mr. Bryan will let us know when he wakes."

Her disappointment was undisguised, and in secret I sympathized with her. She was experiencing something of that which had come to me when Bryan had refused me converse with his patient. But it were better to divert than to commiserate, and so I said:

"This is the day I am to hear from Miss Clement."

"Is it?" she asked, differently, the disappointment still rankling. "I didn't know."

"She has promised me important information before three o'clock. If she keeps her word, this whole perplexing mystery may very shortly be cleared up."

"Isn't that what you would call supererogatory?" she asked, smiling. "I should think Uncle Robert could tell all that is needed, now, himself." I was at a loss for a moment how to answer her; and in that moment the telephone broke in, and did away with the necessity of response.

The instrument was on the writing table at my elbow, and with a "shall it" to Evelyn, I took the receiver from the hook and bent to the transmitter.

"Yes," I said, "Miss Grayson is here. Who is it, please?" I thought I recognized Miss Clement's voice, and I was not wrong. But, after all, it was she who wanted. She had called up my rooms and my office, and, unable to get me at either place, had taken the chance that Evelyn might aid her to my discovery.

"You have learned something?" I asked, disingenuous as well as I could my burning interest. If possible, I would keep from Evelyn the least suggestion of how vitally important I regarded the news I hoped for.

"I hardly know how to explain it to you," came Miss Clement's reply. "I was on the verge of what I am sure was a most pregnant revelation. I was to be given names and dates and circumstances. I had been promised these by one in whom I put the greatest reliance. And now I am asked to wait another twenty-four hours. Something has happened, my confidant tells me; something puzzling and utterly unexpected, and those who know most of the matter are now most at sea."

Evelyn must have seen my smile. It was quite evident to me that Miss Clement was in touch with some one well informed, but it was not that which provoked the smile. I smiled because I felt that Cameron in some way had outwitted his captors, and gained his freedom. This was the unexpected happening which had thrown the villainous slant-eyed camp into confusion, and I rejoiced at my friend's intrepidity.

"And so," I said to Miss Clement, "you wish me to wait another day?"

"I think it would be worth while," she answered.

"And I do, too," I told her. "I don't suppose you've seen an afternoon paper, have you?" I went on. "Well, they contain some news of interest. They say that Mr. Cameron came home last night, and for once, at least, they tell what is very nearly the truth."

If sincerity ever carried over a wire it carried then in Miss Clement's congratulations, and there was something almost divine in her forbearance to ask for particulars. She congratulated Evelyn, too, and promised to come to see her, soon; and then once more she assured me that she would yet learn everything we could possibly care to know.

"The Chinese," she added, "are a deliberate race, Mr. Clyde. They refuse to be hurried. But eventually we shall have our answers."

With Evelyn beside me the hours no longer dragged. We talked unceasingly, reviewing everything from the receipt of the first letter; conjecturing on each of the score of little problems making up the one great mystery, and arriving at nothing definite; adding, if changing conditions at all, to our own confusion.

And it, in passing at intervals, where opportunity offered, I spoke tender words and pleaded for a definite, or at least a closer, more intimate understanding between us, who shall say that I was to blame? She was never more lovely, never more appealing than she was that morning; and I begged for an admission of a sentiment above and beyond the mere sisterly regard to which hitherto she had restricted in limiting her expression of affection for me.

More than once I had read in her eyes—without, unseeing, conceit, I trust I may be permitted this assumption—that I was in her thoughts.

But there seemed to be with her a notion that the occasion was ill-timed to my plan.

"Oh, do give him something," she insisted.

Bryan left us to obey, I saw him stop at a table near the bed, and in the half light I caught the glint of a hypodermic syringe. But, as if scenting his purpose, Cameron's voice hailed abruptly. For a second or two he was quiet, and then, before any one of us I think, suspected his purpose, he turned, suddenly, swiftly, and slipped from beneath the bed clothes to the door where he stood erect, with arms upraised and tensed, shouting in shrill, strident key what seemed to be orders, directed not at one but at a horde.

The great bed separated him from both Bryan and myself, but we skirted it in haste, and came upon him before he had taken more than a single step. As we confronted him, his arms lowered and his clenched fists shot forward threateningly. But a far more startling happening at this juncture was his abandonment of his argon, and his adoption of intelligible English.

"Below!" he yelled, fiercely. "Below, you yellow dogs! Below, I say! Every cur's son of you! Below!" Despite this truculence he was not difficult to master. Together Bryan and I grappled him; in another moment we had him flat on his back on more, and the nurse was pressing some of the plecton of that little shining instrument of glass and silver which had so recently seen him take up the medicine table.

For a moment the patient reeled about, restlessly, muttering, strange, catlike, mingled with suppliant murmurs. And to me this was the most sadly trying part of the incident. I would gladly have retreated, but Evelyn begged me to wait.

"Just until he is quiet," she pleaded; "just until he falls asleep."

At length he lay quite still and we thought from his regular breathing he had succumbed to the narcotic, and so were about to go, when he started up with a little feeble cry, low-voiced, but clearly distinct.

"No, no, for God's sake, not that! I didn't kill them. I swear I didn't kill them. It was an accident. She stove on a rock. I—I didn't say I didn't."

His voice trailed into silence. He dropped back, heavily, upon the pillows. He slept.

It is one thing to have your faith in a friend shaken. That is serious enough in all conscience. But your faith may tremble, and sway and rock, and still there is always the possibility of its being restorated and made firm again by explanation—by extenuation even. It is quite another thing to have your faith toppled headlong, by the snatching away of the last vestige of support, the last shiver of underpinning. That is more than a shock. It is calamitous; it is catastrophic; it is tragic.

Back in the library again, I set to pacing the floor. I think Evelyn resumed her seat in the big leather chair. I am sure. For a time I was not conscious that she was in the room. That it was inconceivable of me, I admit, it was, perhaps, pardonable. And yet it was not wilful. Frankly, I had forgotten her, absolutely. In the stress of the emotional tempest raised by that revelation in the darkened bedchamber.

Back and forth I strode from bookcase to bookcase, over the soft, neutral-tinted Persian rug; and all the while there echoed those repeated words of Cameron's that he had even been in China. "Never nearer than Yokohama," he had said. "Once I ate chop suey in a Chinese restaurant."

I have always been interested in China and the Chinese, but I know only what I have read. And the words of his quondam friend, came back to me now, too, with redoubled emphasis. "He refused to admit what I knew to be the truth."

Nevertheless I had chosen to believe that Cameron, that he, ever true to me, would be able to clarify this turbid stream of circumstance, and prove the fallibility of appearances.

The illusion to which I had clung, however, was now in shreds. Cameron, returning, a body embowed, and brain confused, had spoken in his unguarded delirium. The mask was dropped, the screen thrown down, and hereafter and stark he stood revealed, a real figure in the impartial glare of truth.

At the moment I could see no extenuation. He was a liar and he was a coward; and all the sympathy, all the friendship I ever felt for him died utterly, as I thought how, probably, every untoward incident of the past month, with its chain of ventasions consequent, might have been avoided had he been brave to the point of confession.

It was now plain enough for the keen astute to see that at some time he had committed an act which had aroused certain of the Chinese to retaliation. It was this which I had feared from the first. It was this which he had chosen to hide.

As I paced to and fro, his creases and wrinkles came more and more clearly before me. "God's sake, don't kill them! I swear I didn't kill them! It was an accident!" And I knew that he was lying. The very tone of his disclaimer convinced me of his guilt. He had killed, and he crept before the vengeance.

Diagnot, abhorrence, anger, all were mine in turn.

At length I paused before a window, and remained there, with my back to the room, looking down on the withered garden behind the house, yet seeing nothing but the rot of my own passion.

Money is not greatly different from him and women in that it must work to get the best out of itself.

You simply pass the mop over the floor—all the dust and dirt is collected and held in a hard, durable, lasting polish. A few minutes easy work and the result is always satisfactory.

REMINISCENCES OF A GREAT CANADIAN

Part of Article on Sanford Fleming by Miss Kate Simpson Hayes

A Dalhousie girl who is making a name for herself in the literary world, is Kate Simpson Hayes, daughter of the late Patrick Hayes, formerly merchant in Dalhousie. In the Montreal Daily Mail, dated Saturday, January 10th inst., an article appeared, headed "A Great Canadian, Sanford Fleming—The life that counts must tell and fight."

We give the beginning of the article because it refers to local conditions here, when Sir Sanford Fleming came to Restigouche.

"When I was a little girl I recollect setting out one summer morning for the schoolhouse on the hill, and suddenly coming across a long line of stakes driven into the ground; a tiny flag was floating from each little mast-head, all seemingly having sprung up during the night. I remember how excited I was, for at some distance away a large white tent was set up, and several young men, (practical looking fellows in slouch hats), their trousers tucked into high boots, all carrying themselves with an air of mystery, while one—seemingly "the leading pirate," took pictures" as I informed the class later.

Before the sun was at its zenith that day, I learned that the tiny flags outlined the future route of the Intercolonial Railway; that the men "taking pictures" was using a theodolite, and that sleepy old Dalhousie had suddenly become the scene of a great thing coming to their door and robbing their pruned eyes in amazement. At noon that day I heard my father say "Sanford Fleming is here. He is going to bring in the railway, and sure I believe it will be a great thing for the town."

Her first view of one of Canada's great men. My recollection of the young engineer shows him standing against the green hillsides, his keen eye "sighting" the curve below the Big Hill. Down below the hill ran, bearing upon its breast a far-reaching "boom" of legs fresh from the silent forest, their deeps as yet virginial and free. Beyond lay the old Bay de Chaleur; upon the pebbly "old world"; that time worn "Rock-of-Ages" through its dark shadow against the darker rock behind, and a quiet, motionless, starless, sense of life held all things in thrall. The coming of "Young Fleming" was to change all this. His was the touch to change this primeval drowsiness and languor into pulsing motion. Soon the great work was in full blast; the town, from a quiet little bird's nest of interwoven glass and lead, became an eagle eye on the heights. Business became active, the salmon weirs flashed in the sunlight, the hum of Moffat's mill became a shriek, competition set men's minds in motion, tourists flocked in and dreamy old Dalhousie took its place in the world of commerce; all this through the coming of one man, Sanford Fleming, the young engineer.

Many Dalhousie belles became brides before the railway was completed, and amongst the names of the builders floating back on memory's tide, comes back that of Marcus Smith, Harry (now Colonel) Rutan, Denkin, Alexander Sinclair, Lynch and young Roberts; dashing and debonaire "young bloods" they were, whose coming through open the exclusive doors of society. There were many old families established in that pretty rural district, established in those pretty rural retreats, families in whose veins the blood ran blue; the Montgomeries, the Haddows, the Barbours, the Campbells, the latter of the Bredalbans breed, the Stewarts, off-shoot of a kindly race, and the Hamiltons, pedigreed for hundreds of years back. Of course the "Railway coming in" had the effect of enlarging and grafting new social branches in the Old Family Tree, for once the doors swung wide, the outer world flowed in, and many were the merry makings which awakened the old hill side echoes.

When next I saw Sanford Fleming, the hoar frost of Time had touched his brow. This time it was in the prairie West, when the pioneers with parched hearts awaited the decision of the Federal Government of Canada, "Whether the Prairie West was worth anything?" To Canada, his greatest work, his greatest achievement, was swinging the steel links across that impassable haunt of the Olympic Gods, the Rocky Mountains. To him and to his alone is due the opening up of that Wonder-World of the West; his best work was perhaps the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Canadian Concern With Large Capital Will Have Big Plant in Albert Co.

Montreal, Jan. 29.—Following closely upon the announcement of Lord Murray of Ellbank that the British Government had failed in its negotiations to secure South American oil fields, comes the statement the "Oil Processes, Limited," a Canadian concern capitalized at $1,400,000 sterling, approximately $8,000,000, is prepared to supply all the oil needed for British battleships.

"Oil Processes, Limited," has been recently incorporated at Ottawa and has a charter that enables it to enter all sorts of business from the manufacture of oil products to the building of ships and railroads. The head office is to be in Ottawa, and Ottawa men are named as the directors, while an Ottawa firm, perhaps Fraser & MacCormack, are the legal advisers. However, it was said in Montreal last night that the real control is held by English and French capitalists.

The company recently acquired the shale lands of Senator Denville, of Rothesay, N. B., at a cost of $400. These shale lands are situated in Albert County, some eighty miles from St. John, and are said on expert opinion to contain at least 1,000,000,000 tons of shale. From this the company expects to manufacture cement, sulphate of ammonia and oil for various purposes, principally fuel. It is said that when the concern is thoroughly established there will be work for 8,000 men.

These lands are situated on the shale lands owned by the railway magnates.

WITH MANUFACTURERS AT HALIFAX MEETING

The Industrial Development of the Maritime Provinces is Recognized by the C. M. A.

Manufacturers from all parts of Canada paid their respects to the industrial enterprises of the Maritime Provinces by holding their convention in the East at Halifax in September. The enormous development that has taken place in manufacturing in the Eastern Provinces during the past ten years was a source of wonder to the visiting captains of industry. The membership in the C. M. A. in the Maritime Provinces shows a nice growth, and it is interesting to note that the two largest enterprises on the membership list are situated at Sydney and New Glasgow respectively. These are the great smelting and iron and steel smelting and coal production. The necessity of the proper development of these industries was a feature of the discussions at the Convention meetings. Both the retiring President, Mr. R. S. Gordon of Toronto, and the new President, Mr. C. B. Gordon of Montreal, strongly advocated a policy of reasonable encouragement for the iron and steel makers. It is true that these industries are of vast extent, but when one takes into consideration the limited demand in Canada as yet for many lines they produce, the necessity of affording them adequate protection from the highly specialized products of the United States and British mills can be readily understood.

There has been some fear expressed that manufacturers in other parts of Canada are not a unit in their support of the reasonable requests of the Sydney and New Glasgow steel industries. The official statements however, of Messrs. Gordon and Gordon at the recent convention which were endorsed by many other members in the discussion that followed show that the enterprises of the Eastern Provinces can count on practically unanimous support from the industrial leaders of Quebec, Ontario and the Western Provinces.

The people of the Maritime Provinces, particularly in the neighborhood of Sydney and New Glasgow, have all shared in the increased business activity and prosperity that has resulted from the building up of the giant iron and steel plants at these places. If there is any doubt as to the continuation of these industries, or even as to the further expansion of them, the people of the Maritime Provinces can be relied on to support the requests that may be made at Ottawa.

HAS NEW SCHEME TO RAISE THE TITANIC

Denver Architect is Experimenting With Submarines, Magnets and Electric Bells

Denver, Col., Jan. 31.—To raise the Titanic, recover the bodies from its holds and again fit the ship for sea is a scheme which Charles Smith, a Denver architect, hopes to carry out this year.

For several months Smith has been drawing plans of submarine boats, screws and other apparatus to be used in raising the Titanic.

His scheme is to locate the ship. He then intends to lower a submarine, carrying seven persons, by means of a steel cable. The submarine will be attached to a ship on the surface, and communication is to be had by means of a telephone and electric signal bells.

The submarine is to be operated by electricity, furnished through cables from the ship above and is to be especially constructed so as to withstand the terrific pressure, which is estimated to be almost forty tons a square foot. As the submarine is lowered powerful electric magnets will be attached to its prow. Light steel cables are to be attached to the magnets, the other end of which will be wound around steam winches on crows on the surface.

When the Titanic is found the submarine will push the magnets against the side of the wrecked ship and signal to the men above to turn on the electric current, thus adhering the magnets to the sunken vessel. Magnets will be placed all around the ship, and when the last one is in place the submarine will be pulled to the surface and the work of raising the vessel begun.
