COMMUNITY PARTY FOR THE BOYS

Pleasant Time Given By Mr. and Mrs. Frank Day for Returned Boys

A very jolly and pleasing event took place Tuesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Frank Day gave a community party in honor of Mrs. Day's brother, Pts. Roy Stevens, one of the few originals of the glorious 26th who survive the great war. All other returned soldiers of the town were also honored guests and a goodly number were able to be present. Practically the whole town were invited to join in the festive occasion. The young, the middle young and the old young were there to about the number of 150. Although this would seem to be some crowd yet in the large and spacious rooms of the hosts there was plenty of room to make a regular old fashioned jamboree of it. The boys showed how glad they were to be at home again and everybody showed how glad they were to have them, and jolly ran high. Many obsolete games such as "Jacob and Rachel," "Cross questions and silly answers" were indulged in and many funny things transpired. There was music, of course, too, both vocal and instrumental, and the omnipresent talking machine did its duty well that night. Cake—such cake! and ice-cream were served and everybody went home happy and thankful that the great war was over and the boys safely at home again.

"Bob" Alton Home

Sgt. R. L. Alton, M. C., son of A. Alton, arrived home from overseas on Wednesday. He went west 10 or 12 years ago and has not been home since. He enlisted in the west about three years ago. He won the Military Cross for valorous deeds on the field of battle. His many friends are ready to welcome him home, as "Bob" was always very popular.

TRAGIC DEATH AT WINDSOR

Windsor and surrounding communities were shocked Tuesday morning when it was learned that Henry Wesson, a returned soldier, had died from the effects of taking carbolic acid. He had been overseas for some time and became unnerved and when he landed in St. John about two months ago he was detained for treatment. About a week ago he returned home, having recovered sufficiently, as the doctors thought to do so, and every encouragement was given that he might become all right again. He was 24 years old and was the son of Havelock Wesson. His family have the sympathy of their many friends in their sad and tragic bereavement.

THE FRENCH CHARACTER.

The Clarity of Their Minds Astonished the World.

It is a commonplace to say that the war has revolutionized all our notions of the French people. Most of us had thought them frivolous, light-minded, unstable. Under the supreme test of war we found them precisely the reverse.

The tactics of Joffre and Foch in contrast to those of the German General Staff, threw an illumination on the French character. Lendinier's just appreciation of a complicated situation, characterized the French strategy. Throughout the war the French had a more nearly accurate view of what they could do and what their opponents could do than the Germans had. The Germans rushed for Paris, then for the channel ports, then for Verdun, finally again for Paris, each time they tried too much. Each time the French threw them back, and on two occasions, at the beginning and end of the war, waiting for the right moment with supreme self-control, turned the repulse into disaster.

Mrs. Edith Wharton discusses French characteristics in the Cosmopolitan. She holds in the nation as a whole the same temper which we have spoken of as revealed in the war. The Frenchman prefers to face all the facts of life in the open. Eccentricities do not appeal to him. He sets up standards and conforms to them. If the French Academy makes its decision in matters literary, he accepts it. He has a just appreciation of scientific and cultural leadership. Mrs. Wharton remarks that the same audience that goes to the movie in Paris will stand in line to get tickets for a classic play.

Philip G. Hammetton has made a somewhat similar observation. The French peasant, he insists, is more alert, more intelligent than the man of similar status in England. The nation has an instinct for taste, for culture, for social intercourse. Matthew Arnold has contrasted it with other nations, remarking that the English-speaking people are rather described in conduct, the German in things of the intelligence (a generation later he would have said in world conquest of trade) and the Italian in the beautiful.

The clarity of the French mind is famous. Indeed, it has proved troublesome to the French nation, for it has led to a disregard of the anchorage of habit which other peoples have found so useful. The French Revolution attempted to root out all illogical habits, and reduce everything, including God, to the decimal system. Such a process is rather severe on the discenter.

The general French standard of judgment, which has little tolerance for curious medical suits and other departures from normal, is attributed by W. G. Brownell—whose book, "French Traits," is probably the best piece of national criticism extant—to a thorough-going respect for public opinion. When the signers of the Declaration of Independence set forth "a decent respect for the opinions of mankind" as motivating them to issue the declaration, they were taking a typically French attitude. When Richard Lovelace wrote the famous lines:

"I could not love thee, dear, so much Loved I not honor more,"

he was speaking the natural sentiment of a Frenchman. Carlyle somewhere tells of the Scottish Covenanters appealing to what shall he say? And the Frenchman interrupts with, "To posterity." In other words, the Frenchman cannot think of any better appeal than to the future enlightened judgment of mankind.

That standard is not the Anglo-Saxon standard. But it has its advantages. Certainly the events of the war have shown that a nation with a passion for common sense has a wonderful endowment with which to meet the stresses of life.

From St. O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—hot flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. Godden, 318 Melbourne St., Fremont, Mich.

Such annoying symptoms as hot flashes, nervousness, headache, irritability and "the blues," may be speedily overcome and the system restored to normal condition by the famous root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

be present in any particular case. They are merely a warning that the blood is out of order, and that it is thin and watery, and if you note any of these symptoms in your own case, you should lose no time in taking the proper steps to enrich and purify the blood. Anæmia—poverty of the blood—is an insidious disease and if allowed to run will end in a complete breakdown of the system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are, beyond doubt, the greatest blood-making tonic offered the public today. For more than a quarter of a century they have been the stand-by of hundreds of thousands of people in all parts of the world. No other medicine has ever achieved such world-wide popularity, and the reason is that this medicine does what is claimed for it, enriches and purifies the blood, thus bringing new strength to every organ and every nerve in the body. In this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills bring new health to weak, despondent people. Among the many who speak highly of this medicine is Mrs. Louis D. Larsh, Windsor, Ont., who says:—"It would be impossible for me to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly. Some years ago I was very thin and pale; I suffered many of the symptoms of anæmia, and always felt tired, depressed and weak. I had tried several medicines, but they did not seem to help me. Then acting on the advice of a friend, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I had used half a dozen boxes I was actually feeling like a new person and had gained nine pounds in weight. I continued taking the pills until I had taken a dozen boxes, and enjoyed the best of health. I freely write you this letter in the hope that some woman in need as I was, will see it and be benefited as I have been."

Most of the troubles that affect mankind are due to impoverished blood, and will promptly disappear if the blood is built up and renewed. If you are ailing, give this greatest of tonic medicines a fair trial and it will not disappoint you. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be procured through any dealer in medicines, or will be sent by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Poser.

A little child of five years of age was not willing to start off to school. After trying to coax the little one to go by sweets and promises of a pony, the mother turned to her husband, and said:

"Here, dad, see if you can get this child off to school."

The father commenced in this way: "Now, Jessie, run away to school. I always went to school without any trouble when I was a little boy."

Little Jessie looked quite surprised, and said, "You did, daddy?"

"Yes," said her father, "I did. Now run away."

"When you was a little boy, daddy?" said the child.

"Yes, yes. Now run away," said her daddy.

But the child was not satisfied, and looking up at her father said:

"Who was my daddy, then, when you was a little boy?"

Death of Metal Thimbles.

The war is responsible for a dearth of metal thimbles. France, Italy, Spain and Portugal are absolutely without supplies. Before the war, Lille, Nuremberg and Vienna manufactured thimbles for all those countries, and there are only four manufacturers in England—three at Birmingham and one at Redditch—but the metal shortage has brought their business almost to a standstill. The trade does not consume a great weight of metal, but the number of thimbles on order looks formidable enough. France alone is in want of 450,000 gross.

Not Impressed.

A pompous gentleman happened to stray on to the grounds of Lord Bantyre one day, and was ordered off by the Scotch gamekeeper in language more forcible than polite.

"Sir," said the pompous one, "do you know who I am? I am the Fauld of Aedgeriff."

"I dinna care if ye are the Fauld of Niagara," said the gamekeeper, "ye're gone out of this."

CHILDHOOD
CONSTIPATION

Constipated children can find prompt relief through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the bowels and stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion; colds and simple fevers. Concerning them Mrs. Gaspard Daigle, Demain, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have been of great benefit to my little boy, who was suffering from constipation and indigestion. They quickly relieved him and now he is in the best of health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Wm. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Death of Theodore Smith

On Sunday, May 11, Theodore Marshall Smith passed away at the home of his brother, Theodore, in Wicklow. Deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. David Smith of Greenfield and was 37 years old. He was ill several months with tuberculosis. Besides his parents he leaves five brothers: Russel of Wicklow, Wilnot, Murray and Dennis of Greenfield, and Hollis of the overseas military force. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Greenfield Presbyterian church. Services were conducted by Rev. M. H. Manuel. Burial took place at Summerfield.

Children Must be Protected

The children must be safeguarded, for if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption. Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Limes and Turpentine is admirable as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to the taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

SECRET IS OUT.

Teheran in Fie Persia Invented High Cost of Living.

Teheran, Persia, claims the distinction of having invented the High Cost of Living.

It is alleged that was prices for food prevailed in this old town before Cain delivered the first smashing blow in his surprise attack upon that noted neutral, Abel. It must be true, for there is no other way of explaining the butter. Butter that must have been hoarded away in somebody's cellar back in those days of the beginning of things, is selling at Teheran now for $1.25 per pound. Flour, "Made in Persia," is selling for $55 a barrel, yet some stores, by means of mystic figuring, manage to sell Persian bread for 20 cents a pound. Coal sells for $19 a ton, though it is a local product, being transported from mines only fifty or seventy-five miles away. Donkeys furnish the transport.

Sugar brings $1 per pound, so taffy-pulling parties are not much indulged in. Fairly good coffee may be bought for $1.50 a pound, and tea for $1.65. Flour from Europe, from which real bread may be made, is held at $100 a barrel, and soap, which is classed as an inexcusable luxury anyway, brings anything the merchant can get, many sales at $1 and more per cake being made to foreigners who imagine they have to have soap. A fairly good pair of shoes may be had for $25.

It still is possible to exist pretty cheaply if one has no objection to a constant diet of chicken and eggs. Chickens are produced locally in great quantities, and almost every city dweller has his own feathered flock, so chickens may be had in the market for 20 cents each and eggs for 50 cents a dozen. Sheep, too, are plentiful and dry broke, so mutton may be bought for 25 cents a pound. The sheep-producing rural folk find that it would take their whole flock to buy shoes for the family, so they go sockless and feast on mutton from sun to sun. The butter is too much revered for its age and power to be eaten by the profane.

Everything is carried long distances on donkeys or by camels. An automobile in the streets of Teheran attracts as much attention as would a camel train operating on a Toronto or Montreal thoroughfare.

Old Trees on Chinese Wall.

Trees and shrubbery planted in the wall that has been accumulating for hundreds of years on the great wall of China are in striking condition, some of them having grown to a height of 12 to 18 feet. This method of beautifying the great wall was an outgrowth of the movement for the reforestation of the country started some time ago with Government sanction under the direction of foreign experts. The driveway on the great wall is considered very much improved with the addition of trees.

Mesopotamia.

The inhabitants of Mesopotamia are not Arabs, but descendants of the old Babylonians and Assyrians. Before they were conquered by the Arabs the natives of the Tigris and Euphrates valleys spoke Syriac, a dialect of the Assyrian language.

About Even.

"Got goldbricked, hey?"

"Well, it's a question as to who got goldbricked," said old Farmer Whitfreew. "I took that brick in exchange for summer board."

Monroe Doctrine Challenged

WHAT is the Monroe Doctrine? What relation has it to the doctrine of Instant Damnation, or the Knife Cure, or other doctrines that have forced themselves upon the consideration of humanity? Why was it called a doctrine? The answer to the last question is easiest and comes first. When Dr. Johnson compiled his famous dictionary, defining the meaning of the word "stifle" as applied to a part of a horse, made a grotesque mistake, perhaps under the impression that a stifle had something to do with the horse's breathing apparatus, he was taken to account by "hellish" and "evil" who happened to have seen a stifle in real life. "How did you come to make such a mistake, doctor?" she enquired whimsically. "Ignorance, madame; sheer ignorance," said Johnson; and of all the brilliant things that he said or that have been credited to him, this honest answer is the best in the opinion of the present writer. The same answer must be applied to the third and object question as to why it is called a doctrine.

Canadians have heard of the Monroe Doctrine as frequently as their American cousins. Americans accept it as they accept the proposition that men are born free and equal, and as they accept every other proposition of the Declaration of Independence. Canadians may entertain their private doubts that men are born free and equal, but they do not dispute the Monroe Doctrine. They have acquiesced in it, now the Monroe Doctrine has to stand up and prove its right to existence, under a difficult thing for a doctrine that was laid down almost a hundred years ago. However, the Monroe Doctrine has survived this test and the American people are determined that Monroe shall not suffer by comparison. The question has been raised by the proceedings of the professors in Paris, who, in the opinion of many Americans, trying to make over the world, have had ruthless hands upon some treasures that they will not readily exchange for any benefits or gold bricks that the con- trol can hold out. If the United States "let" a "government" that it is to govern the whole world, availing in the process of old and secret treaties, she must herself be ready to see her own particular and private principles sacrificed in the interests of the world, because the world is greater than any part.

(Special Editor.)

The United States, for instance, has hardly professed that the Western Hemisphere, North and South America alike, is her particular province, and insists that in the other hemisphere, she shall exercise an influence, too. What stands in the way, especially, is the Monroe Doctrine, and this gives point to the question, "What is the Monroe Doctrine?" Here it is in the only text available:

"In the way of the European powers in matters relating to themselves we have never taken any part, nor do we intend to do so. It is only when our rights are invaded or seriously menaced that we resent injuries or make preparation for our defence. With the movements in this hemisphere we are of necessity more immediately connected, and by causes which must be obvious to all enlightened and impartial observers, the political system of the allied powers is essentially different in this respect from that of America.

"We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the Governments who have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destinies by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States. It is impossible that the allied powers should extend their political system to any portion of either continent without endangering our peace and safety; nor can any one believe that our southern brethren are less interested in the preservation of their own liberty. It is equally impossible, therefore, that we should behold such interposition in any form with indifference.

"The statement was never recognized by Congress or supported by legislation, and yet it has become one of the pillars of American policy. The fact that the state declaration had been suggested by Great Britain, because she had grabbed everything that was loose on the continent, as her enemies say, stands out in the United States in the position of defending British interests in America, has not weakened American adherence to it. The doctrine was invoked by President Cleveland in 1895 when Great Britain had a dispute over the Venezuelan boundary. The President's stand seemed to bring the two countries to the verge of war, and has made Cleveland's name famous in this country. President Roosevelt somewhat extended the scope of the doctrine when he accepted the Drago Doctrine, to the effect that European powers could not invade American soil for the purpose of collecting their debts, an action which had the effect of making the United States to some extent responsible for the debts, although not quite to the extent of making the United States settle the debts.

"Is this the genuine Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"Yes, madam, we do not offer substitutes, nor do we believe there is anything to take the place of this great nerve restorative."

WELL, it has been so strongly recommended to me that I do not want to make any mistake in getting the right medicine.

"You are not making any mistake in this, for we think too much of our reputation to try to talk you into taking something else."

"Do you sell much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"It is one of our largest sellers, and gives such universal satisfaction that it is a pleasure to recommend it to our customers."

But do you know of cases in which it has actually cured people of sleeplessness, headaches, irritability and nervousness?"

"Scores of them, madam. Some people never say anything about the medicines they buy, but scarcely a day passes that we do not hear of some case in which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has effected a cure. It is also great for anaemia, and all ailments arising from a thin, watery condition of the blood."

"Well, I am going to try it. How much is it a box?"

"Fifty cents a box, or six boxes for $2.75. Better take the six, for you save a little on the price, and you need that many to give it a fair trial."

"Do you think I will?"

"Oh, yes, the process of building up the nervous system is necessarily slow. You will no doubt feel benefited after the first box or two have been used, but too many make the mistake of neglecting the treatment then instead of keeping on until the nerves are fully restored."

"Do me up the six boxes, then, for I hear of so many people being benefited by using the Nerve Food that I am going to give it a thorough test."

If your dealer does not have Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in stock, write direct to Edmansox, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

COPENHAGEN CHEWING TOBACCO

Copenhagen is used differently from ordinary chewing tobacco.

Take a small pinch, for a start, and put it between the lower lip and gum, in the centre.

Afterwards you can increase the size of the pinch to suit the strength of the chewer you desire.

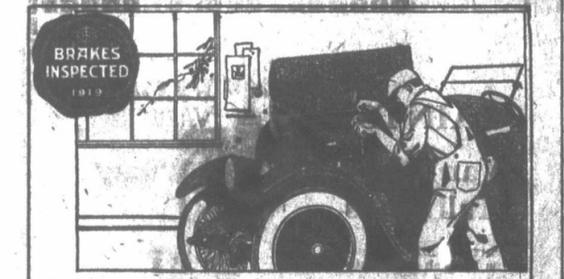

Copenhagens is strong, because the tobacco of which it is made is cut into fine grains, which makes it impart its strength thoroughly and quickly.

Here, a little "pinch" goes a long way, showing that Copenhagen is not only an unusually economical chew, but also one of the finest quality, being made of the best, old, rich, high-flavored tobacco.

Keep Down Your Repair Bill

THE cost of repairs on your car depends on the care you give it. When you have frequent inspections made, small adjustments are all that will be necessary. If you neglect your car until something serious happens, your repair bill is sure to be large. Make it a practice to come in regularly and let us inspect your car. It will save money in the long run.

Seventeen Places Which Should Be Inspected Frequently

- 1 Storage battery inspected. Every two weeks.
- 2 Drive shaft turned up. Every 1000 miles.
- 3 Oil and gasoline connections inspected. Every week.
- 4 Crank case drained and washed out with kerosene. Every 1000 miles.
- 5 Metal universal joints packed with grease. Every 1000 miles.
- 6 Differential and transmission packed with grease or oil. Every 1000 miles.
- 7 Spark plugs cleaned. Every 1000 miles.
- 8 Carbon removed from cylinders. Every 4000 miles.
- 9 Valves ground. Every 5000 miles.
- 10 New piston rings. Every eighteen months.
- 11 See that shoes are in line. Once a week.
- 12 See that water is circulating. Every time car is started.
- 13 Inspect bearings on wheels. Once a week.
- 14 Gasoline pipe and carburetor thoroughly cleaned. Every 1000 miles.
- 15 Ball joints inspected. Every month.
- 16 Inspect steering wheel and steering knuckles. Once a month.
- 17 Tires and cushion valves. Once a month.

Probably only a slight adjustment will be necessary. If any further labor is required, usual Thermostat, in close, compact texture with fine texture and color set for.

AIR AGE HAS ARRIVED

BIRD MEN WILL LINK CITIES OF THE WORLD.

Much has already been accomplished by the British Aviators and Preparations Are Being Made for Trans-Atlantic and Trans-African Flights in Near Future—Round the World Trip to Come.

SCORES of modern prophecies dealing with the coming Air Age have been widely circulated in print, from Kipling's "The Night Mail" to the latest interview with an aircraft magnate. So much for words.

Meanwhile airplanes of the Royal Air Force have traced the trail from London to Egypt and India, while minute preparations are being made for trans-Atlantic and trans-Africa flights. For some time postal and passenger aerial services (for military and official use only) have operated between such centres as London and Paris, Salonica and Sofia and Constantinople, Cairo and Damascus, besides almost daily aerial communication between the war capitals of Europe and their respective fronts. Before the aerolite important cities in enemy countries were linked up systematically by air routes (Berlin-Vienna, Berlin-Cologne, Coblenz and Frankfurt, Vienna-Budapest, Vienna-Sofia, Sofia-Constantinople, and even Constantinople-Alexp.)

Moreover, the period of waiting for the inauguration of public air services (as apart from the purely official ones) between London and Paris and Paris and Brussels is only a matter of a month or two. Similar air services are about to be opened up in the United States. So much for deeds.

All this has captured the imagination of the public. Large business firms are investigating the possibilities of aircraft in relation to their own needs; seaside municipalities are planning pleasure flights in the summer; individuals who would like and could afford machines of their own are interested in the cost, outfitting and pricing of private aircraft.

As for the average man, the expert's prophecies seem to have given him the impression that an age of aerial miracles has dawned, that a trans-Atlantic flight may be made any day, and a round-the-world flight any week, and that very soon he may be able to fly in comfort to Rome, New York, Constantinople, Cairo, Delhi and Cape Town.

It is obvious that in years to come the big aircraft companies will have wealth, status and prestige equivalent to those of the present-day big shipping companies. Nobody can pointed out that newspapers might read copy, stereotype, and photographs by air for simultaneous publication in widely distributed centres. It is and other necessary services will come—but by no means within the next few months. Where one airplane has gone, others may follow; and the Air Force is doing splendid pioneer service by opening up the air ways to Egypt, India, and Africa. But the amount of aviation necessary before postal and passenger services over such vast areas can be established is enormous. Air laws must be made, many regular and emergency air-dromes established, adequate supplies of stores and fuel made ready, large depots of machines and pilots prepared, and arrangements made for the daily distribution of up-to-date meteorological charts.

For the rest we must not expect too much too soon, nor believe that aircraft will supersede ships and railways for many years. It should be realized, however, that a satisfactory development of commercial aeronautics must be a great gain to all commerce, and that, therefore, whatever public money is spent in the cause of British aviation will pay big dividends to the country in a few years' time.—The London Chronicle.

THE SARAJEVO MYSTERY.

Who Caused the Death of Archduke Ferdinand?

The assassination in Sarajevo of the Austrian Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Hapsburg throne, and his morganatic wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, was the signal for the unloosing of the passions which plunged Europe into war. This fateful crime still remains a mystery.

It was apparent at the time that no adequate police protection was given the imperial couple. First a bomb was thrown at the heir-apparent. It fell outside his carriage and injured a member of his escort riding in the carriage behind. Later in the day Ferdinand and his wife were shot dead while again driving through the streets. Not even the most ordinary precautions seem to have been taken to insure their safety.

The trial of the assassins ended unsatisfactorily. The trial was held behind closed doors. Light sentences were imposed. Evidently there was a desire to shield somebody. The crime had produced its desired political effect. It offered a pretext for an Austro-Hungarian attack on Serbia. There was a marked disposition to treat it as a closed incident.

The ruling clique at Vienna hated Francis Ferdinand. Francis Joseph despised him. He had married a Czech. He was the proponent of a scheme to reorganize the empire into a triple monarchy, the Slav peoples to acquire an equal status with the Austrians and Hungarians. He was opposed to seeking a quarrel with Germany. He had fallen out with William II. over Germany's policy of military expansion. Many powerful elements in the monarchy were interested in preventing his succession to the aged Francis Joseph. They were prepared to hail his removal
