BATHURST WINS IN NORTH SHORE BONSPIEL

Close Games Mark Sixth Annual Bonspiel for North Shore Trophy—Campbellton and Bathurst Have Each Two Wins.

The sixth annual North Shore Bonspiel held at Chatham on Thursday and Friday was easily the most successful yet held, both from the point of interest shown and the number of spectators in attendance.

On Thursday evening the usual supper and smoker was held in the large dining hall of the Exhibition Building, the sixty-four visiting curlers and their friends being the guests of the local club. Over one hundred enjoyed the ample repast prepared by the Red Cross ladies, and at the close of the supper, the large cake donated to the local club by Le Bert Pallen and won by Skip Danville, was cut and each one in attendance received a piece.

A most enjoyable two hour programme of toasts, speeches and music was then rendered, which was greatly enjoyed.

The four splendid sheets of ice were provided in the main building, on which thirty-two curlers were almost continuously at play from 9 a.m. until 10:30 p.m., the artistic decorations, and the large number of interested spectators that thronged both upstairs and ground floor promenades, presented a pleasing appearance.

The bonspiel opened at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning and continued all day Thursday and Friday—40 games being played each day. Each club had four rinks competing which played four games against each of the other clubs, the aggregate number of points to decide the winner. All the games were played in the exhibition building except two which had to be played at the local curling rink Friday afternoon on account of the sun affecting the two ice sheets on the southern side of the building.

The standing of the different clubs at the end of the first day's play was as follows:

|-------------|------------|
| Bathurst | 106 points |
| Campbellton | 102 " |
| Chatham | 94 " |
| Newcastle | 92 " |
| Dalhousie | 80 " |

At the conclusion of the bonspiel Friday night Chatham had changed places with Campbellton, the others remaining the same. During the evening there was much excitement among the spectators watching the contests, as at one time the totals showed the three leaders within five points of each.

The final figures were as follows:

|------------------|--|
| Bathurst—202. | |
| Chatham—191. | |
| Campbellton—188. | |
| Newcastle—170. | |
| Dalhousie—153. | |

As a result of the sixth bonspiel Bathurst again takes possession of the North Shore trophy. Both Campbellton and Bathurst have now won the cup twice and unless some other club lifts the trophy next year it becomes the permanent property of either of the successful leaders.

The score (the number of points made by each skip) was as follows:

MONEY PACKAGE LOST IN WRECK

Four Thousand Two Hundred Dollars Missing—Reward for Recovery Offered.

A money package containing $4200, which was being forwarded from Rimouski to Luceville, Quebec, by registered mail was lost in the wreck at Flatlands. The money belonged to the Bank National.

In the wreck much of the mail matter was badly broken up and was handled by a number of people. Some of it was placed in the Flatlands station office, but it is not known whether this valuable package was among the lot or not.

A reward of $250.00 is offered for its return or information which will lead to its discovery.

The bank has the serial number of the large bills so it will be exceedingly hard to pass these without detection. Persons are suspected of knowing something about this money and a close watch is being kept on all such.

YOUNG LAD SENT TO REFORMATORY

Given Two Years at St. John Institution for Trying to Wreck Ocean Limited.

On Monday Walter Babin, a twenty year old Athol youth was before the Setting Magistrate charged with tampering with the switches on the main line of the C.N.E. and attempting to derail the Ocean Limited.

Saturday morning, Feb. 16th inst., young Babin broke the lock of a main line switch at a siding facing a steep embankment at Athol. He stole the signal lamp off the switch board, and going further down the track, tried to open another switch which he was prevented from doing on account of the lock being frozen. A man passing by some time later, discovered the open switch, and closed it just in time to save the oncoming train, with its precious load of human lives, from destruction. The train was two and a half hours late, which was the only thing that saved it from complete destruction. Young Babin is incorrigible. He has been in various scrapes and has got beyond the control of his parents. He admitted his guilt and said he wanted to see what kind of a wreck would result. He was sentenced to two years at the Reformatory, St. John.

$250 Reward!

The above reward will be paid for information leading to the recovery of a Registered mail packet containing $4200.00 lost or stolen from the mail car on train No. 4, wrecked in collision at Flatlands, N. B., early on the morning of January 17th, 1919.

The money was contained in a white cotton bag, 9 1/2 x 13 inches in size, similar to those used by the Government for mailing seed, it was fastened at the top with a lead seal and bearing a linen tag with the senders name printed thereon, "La Banque Nationale." Replies will be treated confidentially.

CITIZENS HONOR PASSING OF CAPT. OLIVER MOWAT

Presbyterian Church Crowded Sunday Evening for Memorial Service to Brave Campbellton Boy Killed in Russia.

The Presbyterian church was crowded late Capt. O. A. Mowat, and I was ed at the service Sunday evening, to mention the impressions made on when the pastor, Rev. Hugh Miller, mo. There was first his solemn prayer, conducted a memorial service to anities, an address, agony, detour, other of Campbellton's brave boys, ation to which he undoubtedly ex- who has made the supreme sacrifice, much of his military success. It was a favorite of the deceased officer, and also one of the songs which Rev. Mr. Miller in his discourse said he always sang. I have known him sing as follows:— "Thou hast been a faithful soldier of Christ, and now art called to leave this world of sin and sorrow, and to go to the land of the living, where thou shalt be with the saints and angels, praising God forever and ever. Tuesday, Feb. 25th, being Frances Willard Memorial Day in the local Union, all members are requested to attend and have the privilege of bringing a friend with them. A special programme is being prepared, and it is hoped that the meeting may prove a most successful social hour.

Frances E. Willard's Influence Upon the Young People of Today.

At the National Convention at Buffalo, in 1896, awards were presented to different members of the Y Branches of several states. One of these young women as she received her award from the hand of Miss Willard, looked into her face with brimming eyes and then turning to the immense audience, in a voice full of emotion said, "To receive this award is much to me and to the young women whom I represent—to receive it from the hand of one who is the ideal woman to the young of her sex all over this land, is joy unexpressed." This remark fairly indicates the place which Frances Willard created and occupies in the minds and hearts of the young women of the United States.

"The ideal woman!" A nature at once spiritual and practical; a combination of tenderness and strength, of depth and simplicity; a mingling of love and fearlessness. Each one of us is looking, consciously or unconsciously, for the ideal man or woman in every person he meets. All humanity is seeking God in the ideal. When we have found God—for it is that and that alone which fully satisfies us in one another—like the shepherds of old, we worship Him, and the timent of clay in which He abides is rendered precious to us. The W.C.T.U. and the young women of that organization, and of this country, loved Frances E. Willard, but the spirit which illumined her sweet, strong face was not of earth. Far above her mighty intellect, which compels our admiration; far above her force of character, which demands our respect; far above the spotless purity of her life, to which we bow in reverence, she shines the light of divine love, which wins and holds our affection forever.

Youth is both critical and exacting. As we grow older, experience in hidden causes, and knowledge of our own weakness help us to be more lenient in our judgments. But youth is imperious in demand, difficult to satisfy, quick to condemn. This love which possessed Frances Willard needs no better illustration of its power than the fact that she drew the young with magnetic and irresistible power. She had the tact, the wisdom, not to preach to them. The quaint saying, the witty speech, the bright smile, the tender word of solace, and, more than all else, the faith in their ability, the inspiration of her trust in them, were the weapons with which she conquered all hearts and made workers for the cause she loved. I seem to see her now, as at that convention in Buffalo, when she replied to the Massachusetts girls, who had named their Social Settlement for her—the "Willard."

"So this is a settlement," she said. "We all want to be settled in life, girls, don't we? Some of us meet the man who settles it for us, and some of us don't; but whatever settling we have, let us settle up. Owe no man anything—in money, love, or ought else, and that's the kind of settlement you have been settling to evidently, from what we have heard tonight. Let us go on, girls, settling up, but let us never settle down!" What girls could forget so apt a speech—made, too, without a moment's notice. Her happy lightness of spirit and limitless fund of humor were combined with a poetical sense, which appealed to the imagination and satisfied the joyousness of youth. No other woman of the century has left upon the world a greater impression for good.

Did Frances Willard strive for the position of supremacy she occupied? She strove only for the upbuilding of righteousness. She gave herself unreservedly to God and let Him use her at His will. She had crucified herself absolutely, and this was the secret of her power, and it is the lesson which we young women are to learn from her life. It is the inward preparation, the harmony of soul, which will help us to attain that place of usefulness for which we are fitted. When we come to look back upon life, we shall wish we had not been more happy here but more useful. In our services to others, if in no other way, can we follow our great chief, Frances Willard. She was a star of magnitude, we may be but tiny satellites, but let us shine on in our appointed places "content if we can guide some wandering bark or be a beacon to some home-sick soul." It is ours to fill in the ranks of the older soldiers in our temperance army. The alcohol juggernaut, pushed and pulled by a short-sighted multitude, still rolls on in its remorseless way, wrecking the bodies and the souls of mistaken humanity, leaving woe and desolation in its wake, through the thoughtlessness, indifference, or apathy of a Christian government.

Young women! Frances Willard has been promoted to a higher office; her work on earth is done, but that shadowy self which we call influence can never be destroyed. Who shall limit the regenerative influence of this woman of holy and heroic spirit? The greatest tribute we can pay her memory is to acknowledge that this influence abides among us today. Let us take up the standard of purity as she laid it down, and rallying round these older women who have waged so nobly their bloodless war against injustice and wrong, prove that this influence lives in us to stimulate and strengthen weak humanity. Let us prove that, like Frances Willard, we have a faith in God which is as boundless as His love for us. Let us expect, as did she, the ultimate triumph of righteousness, not because God is on our side but because we are on His side; He at the head, directing, guiding on to victory complete and final.

BORDEN AS BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO UNITED STATES?

London, Feb. 12.—The Daily Express says that Sir Robert Borden, prime minister of Canada, has been offered the post of British ambassador to the United States.

London, Feb. 12.—(Canadian Associated Press)—Inquiring at 10 Downing street today regarding the Daily Express report that Sir Robert Borden had been offered the American ambassadorship, a representative of the Canadian Associated Press was told:

"We know nothing whatever about it. It does not sound very probable, but we should not like definitely to deny it. We have heard absolutely nothing."

The correspondent adds that while the report may seem surprising there is not the least doubt that several prominent statesmen are firmly convinced and have privately expressed the conviction that Canada is bound to bear a pre-dominant influence in promoting the Anglo-Saxon Entente. Sir George Perley, Canadian high commissioner, also said that he had no information, nor have the officials of the colonial office.

THIRD DIVISION ALL IN ENGLAND THIS WEEK

London, Feb. 12.—The third Canadian division will be completely in England this week, and the first units will embark for Canada at the beginning of March. Bransholt Camp will be cleared of other troops, which will be moved to Ripon, in Yorkshire.

All the men of the third division arriving in England will receive eight days' leave. Witley Camp is being reserved for other divisions from France.

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The policy to be carried out in the demobilization of the medical services of the Canadian expeditionary forces overseas is outlined in a cable transmitted yesterday by the department of militia to the director of public information here. It states that medical units will accompany the divisions of the C.E.F., to which they are attached, in conformity with the general policy of demobilization. In addition to the regular divisional medical unit each division will be accompanied by one general hospital, one stationary hospital and one casualty clearing station.

It takes a joint of beef to make a bottle of Bovril

Bovril contains the goodness of the beef.

THE vital elements that give beef its special place and value as a food are concentrated and stored in Bovril.

Just as the equivalent light of 32 candles is concentrated in one electric lamp, so the vital elements of beef—of many pounds of beef—are concentrated in a single bottle of Bovril.

But Bovril is not merely a precious food in itself; it possesses the peculiar power of enabling you to extract more nourishment from other foods. This gives Bovril its wonderful body-building power, proved by independent experiment to be from 10 to 20 times the amount taken. Bovril, therefore, in the true sense of the word, is a Great Food Saver.

Always keep Bovril in the house.

Bovril stands alone.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.
Throughout Canada regret is expressed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has passed from his labors. During the years which he has served his country he has made a multitude of friends and admirers. Many people regarded him as the greatest Canadian, and there are none who do not pay tribute to his eminent ability as a statesman, his peerless eloquence, his rare personal charm, his high integrity of character, his love of Canada, and the noble purity of his life.

THE BOBBIES' STRIKE.

Police of London Get Their Grievances Remedied.

London, at the end of August of last year, experienced a two-days' strike of the Metropolitan Police, the famous "Bobbies" known and admired throughout the world. Their demands were for increased wages, recognition of their union, and the reinstatement of a discharged man who had been active in union affairs.

Their organization was the "National Union of Police and Prison Officers," formed in 1913, affiliated with the Trades Council and other labor bodies, who supported the police in their demands, and in the strike.

The Metropolitan Force is under the direction of the Home Office, but the strike was dealt with, not only by Sir G. Cave, the Home Secretary, but by Gen. Smuts, acting for the War Cabinet, and by the Prime Minister himself.

As a result of the strike the men obtained an increase in pay, increased pensions, and a new feature, pensions for widows. As to the recognition of the union there was difference of opinion on the result, but, at any rate, the men were not dismissed for belonging to it. The police claimed that when the Prime Minister received the executive of the union he gave the union recognition. The Home Secretary placed a different interpretation on this phase of the settlement.

With regard to the Police Union, he said, "both my predecessor and I had been asked to recognize the union and had declined. All the Secretaries of State for the Home Office have declined to recognize it, not because they have been opposed to unions in general—quite the contrary—but their view was that the police are a disciplined force responsible for the order of the country, and there was a risk that the Police Union might lead to divided allegiance and possibly to police strikes. It is true that the existing union provided by its constitution that in no circumstances should a strike be called, but when this arose, that particular clause was abrogated."

The Prime Minister said to the deputations of police that he could not, in war time, sanction recognition of a police union. He pointed out that the trouble in Russia had to a great extent arisen from the existence of a union or a committee among the soldiers. He thought the police were a semi-military force, and that to a great extent the same conditions applied to them, and he would not have a repetition in the country of what had happened in Russia. He added that he thought there should be some machinery under which the members of the police force could bring before the police authorities any grievances. Subject to this, they should have no kind of power to interfere with the discipline of the force.

During the strike there were remarkably few criminal outbreaks, in spite of the depleted police protection. "The strike of the London police in 1918," said the Times, "probably have a lasting place in the social annals of the country for the reason that it afforded proof of the people's ingrained respect for law and order." There was some thing in the ground and in the habits of the people's ingrained respect for law and order. There was some thing in the ground and in the habits of the people's ingrained respect for law and order.

The absence of regulation for traffic was an inconvenience, but on the whole the Londoners showed that under the long training of the "bobby" he had contracted the habit of orderliness to such an extent that he could survive almost automatically. The visit of the police to Lloyd George was one of the most spectacular features of the strike. Downing street, a short blind thoroughfare, is one of the places the police keep clear of any congestion, but on this occasion they themselves packed every inch of the roadway, and overawed into Whitehall.

While they waited they fraternized with companies of the Grenadier Guards, who had been called out in the emergency. They also entertained themselves and the soldiers with music, supplied by the "police minstrels." A policeman, whose hobby was the bagpipes, led the procession on its march through the streets of Westminster.

CLOSING MEETING OF S. C. ASSOCIATION

The Soldiers Comforts Association met Thursday evening, Feb. 13th, at the home of the President Mrs. H. R. Smith for the purpose of disorganization.

Mrs. Smith, who has filled the office of President with so much satisfaction since the Society was formed, briefly outlined its beginning and purpose. Organized at the home of Mrs. M. M. Mowat in Sept. 1915, for the purpose of supplying socks and other comforts to the boys in the trenches, the Society had steadily grown from a membership of seventeen to its present enrollment of sixty-five. Four branch circles had been formed, namely Athol, Oak Bay Mills, Upper Charlo, New Mills. These had done very efficient work, and the President thanked them for their co-operation and assistance.

Mrs. Smith also referred to the unity existing between the different members of the Society, and their willingness to assist in any work they were called upon to do. The Treasurer's Report showed the advancement the Society has made since its formation both financially and in the size of the shipments of socks to St. John.

After the business of the meeting had been finished Mrs. S. Harrison read the following address:—

Dear Mrs. Smith:—
At this last meeting of our Society, we wish to express to you our appreciation of your ability in so admirably filling the office of President during those critical years of our empire's history.

We realize that the qualities you have shown could not be wholly attained during this time, but have sired, would have procured his honorable discharge. Several positions were offered to him, all of which he declined to accept as he was anxious to return to the fighting line. When hostilities ceased, he volunteered for further service in Russia, counting not on his own comfort and welfare, but the cause of his King and Country.

These facts are true indications of what first occupied his mind and the sacrifice he was prepared to make. He did not seek adventure. Had he, he would have been satisfied with less. War for him had unspeakable horrors. Not war but peace led him on.

To many his death means little but the falling of another soldier for his country. To many others, it is the loss of a comrade, a friend tried and found true. To others it is the loss of a loved one whose place cannot be filled.

Such a death, as his brings to challenge to us. It is this. If he died for peace, shall we not live for it? Is it not a searching thought for each of us that the fruit of his sacrifice may be spoiled by our manner of living.

"If we break faith with us who die In Flanders fields."

These words are as pointed now as when they were written. The spirit of the dead appeals to us to weigh well their sacrifice and keep the peace for which they died. This is a great work, as great as any that can come to us, and can only be done when we are true to the example and teaching of the Prince of Peace.

My task is not done until I speak of those left behind. From the one household, four enlisted and two, if God spares them, will return. With pride they watched them go. The only message we have for them and all others in their position is the old message, the message we all must fall back upon the message of God's love in which the sparrow has a place; that being so, much more the fallen soldier and those who gave him.

"Oh think ye, that your prayers were lost And say ye, that your faith were vain; Nay, comfort ye amid your grief, Though low he lies among the slain. You would have had the battle cease. You would have had your soldier come."

In knightly honour and in peace, Back to his country and his home. Hath God not heard, remote from war The drum's long roll, the trumpet's blast.

In what fair land of perfect peace, The tired warrior rests at last. There safe at home forevermore— Beyond earth's lonely "little while," Your love shall find him once again. And clasp his hand and see his smile."

At the close of the service the organ played forth the dead March in F-sharp.

FERTILIZER

OUR first advertisement calling the attention of the farmers and dealers to the necessity of ordering their fertilizer early, and having it shipped early appeared in this paper four weeks ago. Since that time we have had a large number of our old customers ask for their fertilizer to be shipped at once, and we have had many enquiries and orders from new customers. The time when fertilizer will be used is approaching and the indications now point to an early spring. There will undoubtedly be a heavy call for fertilizer, and it will not do to put off too long.

Notwithstanding the shortage of fertilizer for the past several years, particularly the spring of a year ago, we had a good supply and were in a position to take care not only of our own trade but of many customers who were disappointed in not being able to get their fertilizer. This condition may repeat itself this year and it will surely do so if you do not make your arrangements early for the spring supply. It is certain that unless orders are placed the manufacturers will not take the risk of carrying over to next year materials bought on the present market when the prices are at the highest, and the tendency on the contrary will be not to carry even the slightest surplus with the possibility of having it on hand at the end of the season.

and think if we could afford to make promises we could not or did not intend to fulfill. After we had induced as many as possible to come here for Curtain Scrim, Curtains, Door Panels, Bungalow Nets, Colored Madras, Chintz, and Repps for over Draperies, Tapestries and Cretonnes for upholstery, and had disappointed them, our business would be at an end. THIS is an important hour for Canada. The nation is entering on a new era. It is passing from war to peace. Let us start this new era right. There are thousands of soldiers returning from overseas. The Government is doing all in its power to get these men back to civil life.

But the Government, however willing, cannot provide the personal touch needed in this work of repatriation. That must be given by the people themselves.

The men who went from these parts to fight in Flanders deserve a real welcome home—the best we can give.

In most towns committees of citizens have already been organized to meet the soldiers and their dependents at the station, to provide hot meals, supply automobiles, afford temporary accommodation when necessary.

In addition, many other towns are organizing social gatherings to give public welcome to returned men after they have been home a few days.

After he has rested, the soldier must be provided with an opportunity for employment. In towns of 10,000 population, Public Employment Offices have been established to help soldiers, as well as war-workers, secure good jobs quickly. Where these exist, citizens should co-operate. Where they do not exist, the citizens themselves should help put the soldier in touch with employment.

The fighting job is done. It has cost many a heart-burning. But it has been well done. The least we can do is to show our appreciation in no uncertain manner.

Don't let the welcome die away with the cheers.

The Repatriation Commission

beria, to discover a new and better route to India. There is Cabot, not knowing vaguely of India as a land of precious spices and silks, sailing westward for that country and discovering Newfoundland. Sir Hugh Willoughby's second in command shipwrecked on the coast of the present day Moscow, where he founded the Russia Company, for carrying a trade with India along an overland route, by way of Persia and Bokhara. And the story does not end here. There is a Frobiisher, a Davis, a Hudson, eddily enough seeking to get to India by the northwest passage.

A Bad Risk.

Pte. Lewis made down his bed in the corner of a building that was just in the edge of what would have been No Man's Land had the armistice not intervened. "I sure didn't think I'd ever sleep here," he said to a comrade. "Why, I was popping away at a sniper from that hole there in the corner just a couple of days ago. Gee, but it seems queer!"

"And what was the sniper doing to you?" some one inquired from the other corner.

"Well," said Lewis, "he was sure to get me. I was a life insurance turned to it in the nineteenth century, the Aramean Arabs who set up their kingdom in Damascus during the fourteenth century B.C., Aretas, King of Arabia, when he occupied Damascus in 84 B.C., and Khalid Ibn Walid when he carried part of the town by storm from its Byzantine garrison in A.D. 634.

The sheriff on horseback, attended by some 1,200 to 1,500 of his kinsfolk and adherents, entered Damascus at full gallop and rode furious through the city to the accompaniment of a crackling feu de joie and shrill screams of victory.

Rootless Ship.—There has been much discussion lately about the feasibility of building electrically welded steamships, and thereby avoiding the time and expense of riveting. In a recent issue of Engineering from England comes word of the completion of a rivetless 275-ton barge, supposedly the first electrically welded ship ever produced. It is 12 feet wide, 12 feet deep, and 12 feet over all, and 16 feet of beam. The hull is rectangular in section, with a flat bottom and a square transverse curved. All water-tight joints are made up by welding, and run as far up as the hatches are continuous with the hull. The hatch covers, which are 12 feet square, are welded to the hull by a half-inch thick plate. The hatch covers are tack-welded on one side. The process permitted an estimated saving of from 25 to 40 per cent in the cost of the hull material. The expense of welding was estimated at $1,500, $890 of which was for the welding material. The item would be less by about 25 per cent. Another experiment was made with a 100-ton barge, with certain bars riveted and

The celebrated Dr. Michenhoff, an authority on early old age, says that it is "caused by poisons generated in the intestine." When your stomach digests food properly it is absorbed without forming poisonous matter. Poisons bring on early old age and premature death. 15 to 30 drops of "Seigel's Syrup" after meals makes your digestion sound. 10
