RUSSIANS ADMIT APPALLING LOSS OF OVER 1,000 MEN KILLED

Desperate Attack on Japanese Position in Motien Pass Repulsed After Thirteen Hours of Terrible Fighting
—20,000 Russians Were Pursued.

Tokio, July 18, 2 p. m.—General Kuropatkin reports that two divisions of the Russian army made a desperate assault on Maoi Tein Pass at dawn, July 17, but were repulsed. Casualties were not stated. Gen. Kuropatkin praises the bravery of the Japanese troops.

At 3 o'clock, Sunday morning, a heavy fog veiling their movements, two divisions of Russians, commanded by Lieut.-General Keller, made an assault on the Japanese positions at Mo Tien Pass. General Kuropatkin adds that the Russians assaulted all the Japanese positions at the Mo Tien Pass and in its vicinity desperately. The Japanese resisted stubbornly, repulsed the Russians and pursued them for a considerable distance westward.

RUSSIANS ADMIT DISASTER.

St. Petersburg, July 18.—General Kuropatkin reports that Lieut.-General Keller lost over 1,000 killed or wounded in the attack on Mo Tien Pass, July 17.

London, Tuesday, July 19.—The Morning Post's correspondent at General Kuropatkin's headquarters, telegraphing under date of July 17, says:—“A Russian force, apparently about 20,000 strong, attacked the front, left and right of the Japanese positions on the western slope of the Motien Pass at 2 a. m. today, under cover of a dense fog. The sudden onslaught drove in the Japanese posts, but, as soon as reinforcements arrived, the Japanese gallantly advanced to the attack, and after severe fighting drove off the Russians and occupied the position. The Russians retired, their retreat being well covered. The fighting lasted until 3 p. m., and when I left the scene, desultory firing was still proceeding.”

A SERIOUS FIGHT.

St. Petersburg, Tuesday, July 19, 11:15 a. m.—The Russian and Japanese forces which are lined up expecting a clash grappled in a serious fight Sunday morning, according to a report from General Kuropatkin received here late last night. The report indicates that the Japanese misinterpreted the movement, and that instead of it being an attempt to take Motien Pass, it was a reconnaissance on a large scale. General Kuropatkin's account of the fight does not specially state the number of men engaged, though it shows that the Russian main advance consisted of eighteen battalions, with considerable reserves, three battalions of the latter being called up during the course of the battle, while others were not utilized. An important fact developed by the reconnaissance was the exact location of a powerful Japanese force secreted in the region between Pen-shui and Motien Passes. Its strength is indicated by the fact that 21 battalions were insufficient to permanently force the Japanese positions, though some of them were occupied temporarily. On the other hand, it would appear from the report that the Japanese were either disoriented or unable to follow Lieut.-Gen. Keller, who retired from his former position at the Motien Pass. The seriousness of the day's fighting is shown in Gen. Keller's estimate that the Russian casualties were over 1,000. The battle leaves the general situation unchanged, but shows that a powerful Japanese army is massed, and is consequently waiting General Kuropatkin's signal to advance.

KUROPATKIN'S REPORT.

Following is the despatch from Gen. Kuropatkin, dated July 17:—“After the occupation by Gen. Kuropatkin's army of the passes in the Pen-shui mountain chain, our information concerning his forces and dispositions was in general inadequate. According to some reports, his army had been reinforced, and he had even extended his forces toward Samaitai. Other reports stated that a displacement of his troops had been made in the direction of Ta Pass and Siu-Yen. There were even indications that Kuropatkin had transferred his headquarters from Tshikhkan to Tounpin. On the strength of the information received on the basis of reconnaissance, which had been made, the hypothesis was formed that the principal forces of the enemy were concentrated around Liashankwan, and that their advanced guards had been strengthened in the passes of Siashankwan, Sinkia, Lakho and Papun, as well as at Sybey Pass, two and a half miles north of the north, and half the height of Siashank Pass. “On July 17, in order to determine the strength of the enemy, it was DECIDED TO ADVANCE against his position in the direction of Liashankwan. Lieut.-General Keller had been instructed not to start with the object of capturing the pass, but to act according to the strength of the force that he would find opposed to him. “The left column of this expeditionary force, consisting of three battalions, was despatched towards Sybey Pass. The centre column, commanded by Major-General Kashtalinsky, consisting of 14 battalions, with 12 guns, was destined to attack Siashank Pass, the heights surmounted by the temple, and Wafankwan Pass. The right column, one battalion strong, was occupying points where the roads leading to Sinkia and Lakho Passes cross, in order to cover the right flank of General Kashtalinsky's column. The general reserve was left at Akhauvuen, and a portion of the force occupied a position at that place. “At 10 p. m., July 17th, the head of the column advanced from Ikhuavuen. At 11 o'clock a battalion of the second regiment dislodged a Japanese outpost at the point of the bayonet at the crossing of the Lakho and the Sinkia roads. The details of this engagement have not yet been verified, but its general course, according to telegraphic reports sent in by General Keller, was as follows:—

During the night the Japanese had evacuated Siashank Pass and the heights surmounted by the temple, leaving only outposts there. At dawn General Kashtalinsky's column occupied these heights, driving back the Japanese advance posts. At about 5:30 o'clock on the morning of July 17 the Japanese, in considerable force and with numerous guns, occupied Wafankwan Passes and the mountainous bluffs to the south on the flank of General Kashtalinsky's column. From the position and from the crest of the mountains to the east of the heights surmounted by the temple the enemy directed a heavy ARTILLERY AND RIFLE FIRE. “Gen. Kashtalinsky advanced to occupy the bluffs, sending forward at first one and then three battalions, but the attempt failed, notwithstanding the support given by the horse mountainbattery, as our field guns could not be brought into action on account of the nature of the ground. “At about 8 a. m. General Keller, who was directing the fight around Ikhuavuen, deemed it necessary to lend assistance to General Kashtalinsky's column by bringing up from the general reserve three battalions to the heights surmounted by the temple. In order to maintain the positions we had already occupied it was necessary, owing to the enemy's pressure, to reinforce immediately with other reserves the troops in the fighting line, but these positions, owing to their situation, were untenable. General Keller found the strength of the enemy so great, compared with ours, that he decided

NOT TO CONTINUE THE FIGHT, and not to bring up either the special or the general reserves, especially in view of the fact that in case of his ultimately taking the offensive it would be necessary to attack without support of the field artillery. “In consequence of this, General Keller decided about 10:30 to withdraw his troops to the positions originally occupied in the Yanse Pass. The troops retired slowly, step by step, and in perfect order, covered by the fire of a field battery which had been brought into action. “Towards mid-day an offensive movement by the enemy in the direction of the right flank of the Yanse Pass position developed, and at the same time a Japanese motion in the tery was brought into position in a village of Teouquapute, two and a half miles south of Ikhuavuen. After 34 shots had been fired from the third battery of the third brigade, which held the saddle to the south of Yanse Pass, the Japanese battery was finally reduced to silence. “The fight ceased at 3 p. m. and the troops returned to Ikhuavuen. “The Japanese advance was topped above the valley of the Iantakhe River at a position occupied and maintained by us.

RUSSIAN LOSSES OVER 1,000. “In consequence of a sleepless night and the heat of day our troops were greatly fatigued, having been over 15 hours on foot and fighting. Our losses have not yet been exactly ascertained, but General Keller reports that they exceed one thousand. “The gallant 24th regiment suffered most. General Keller especially mentions the activity, courage and coolness shown by its commanding officers. Col. Schmitz was severely wounded in the leg, but remained in the ranks until the end of the action. “General Kuropatkin precedes his report with a lengthy statement of skirmishes by patrols, which brings events up to July 16. He does not mention any important engagement, with the possible exception of the occupation of the heights north of Yalintzha by Cossacks, before a detachment of which the Japanese fell back. “JAP LOSSES TRIFLING.

London, July 19.—The correspondent of the Times at General Kuropatkin's headquarters says the Japanese losses during the fighting at Motien Pass on July 17 were trifling.

The uses of adversity are something most people have no use for. Women who apply pet names to a man delight in selecting the most inappropriate for that use.

BATTLE ROYAL

It is Waging Right Now on the Belle Isle Baseball Grounds—The Mayor's Message.

Maple City Aldermen are this afternoon tearing things loose on Belle Isle baseball grounds. They went down on the Victoria Ave. Methodist Excursion this morning to play a game with the Detroit aldermen.

Alderman John Edmondson, the star batter of the local team, didn't go. “No sir! I wouldn't play a game of baseball a day like this for a $10 William,” quoth the genial and about little Alderman this morning. “Not for mine. I haven't got over the effects of last Thursday's game yet. I can imagine I see those fellows just more than sweltering in that boiling sun. Well they can have the glory. I don't need anything but a little fresh air.”

Mayor McKeough couldn't go either. He sent the following telegram:—MAYOR W. C. MAYBURY, Detroit, Mich.

Chatham's Aldermanic baseball team left for Belle Isle. Regret inability to accompany them. Trust your council's team will make strenuous efforts to re-capture historical trophy, which was taken by British, in 1812, at Fort Detroit. May all our future contests be peaceful.

W. E. McKEOUGH, Mayor.

CABINET CHANCES

Montreal, July 18.—The rumor is current in local political circles that important changes will shortly take place in the Dominion Cabinet. According to the rumor, Mr. Fitzpatrick, the Minister of Justice, will retire from the Ministry in order to accept the chief solicitorship of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company. In the event of Mr. Fitzpatrick's resignation, his place will, it is expected, be filled by an Ontario man. Rumor has it, also, that Mr. Scott, the Secretary of State, will not be long a member of the Ministry. The Cabinet, according to prominent local Liberals, will be thoroughly re-organized before the Government appeals to the country.

BAND EXCURSION

The Citizens' Band held a very successful band concert at Erieau last evening. The train bearing the excursionists left Chatham at 7:30 and arrived at the Eau in good time, leaving for Chatham at eleven o'clock.

This was the first band concert of the season and it was well attended. Everyone who went enjoyed the music, the dancing and the cool breezes of the Eau to the very fullest extent and it is a matter of regret that these concerts will not be given regularly during the summer at this popular resort.

The Eau did not present as attractive an appearance as in former years owing to the fact that the railroad people have not had time to properly fix the tracks and buildings. The dancing however, was good and cool refreshments were served in the pavilion by members of the band. It is to be hoped that they will repeat this concert in the near future.

The following is a program of the music capably rendered by the band—Two Step, “The Golf Girl,” Fulton. Waltzes, “Doll Varden,” Clarke. Two Step, “Glenwood,” Hall.

Waltz, “Hearts Courageous,” Blanche. Two Step, “The Newsboy,” Sutton. Waltz, “San Salvador,” Fulton. Intermezzo, “Under the Palm Tree,” Hook.

Waltz, “Gladious,” Fulton. Two Step, “Ethelbert,” Fulton. God Save the King.

MUSIC IN SCHOOLS

A citizen who takes a deep interest in the Educational progress of the Maple City, gives in an interview with The Planet, some very good suggestions, which are well enough worthy of the careful consideration of the Public School Board. In speaking along modern educational lines this morning, he said:—

“Writers of political economy often make use of the well established axiom ‘The pursuit of happiness is the greatest aim in life.’ If this is really true, and we believe it is, what one thing conduces to happiness, to anything so great an extent as the knowledge the production and the enjoyment of music. There have been a great many curriculum changes made in the advancement of public school education but in my opinion and the opinion of a great many this important subject of music has been repeatedly overlooked.

“Why not teach music in the public school? It is done in Germany and is found to be very profitable and interesting. At all events if it were started in the primary forms and carried through the school systematically it would be just as easy to teach children to read and understand music as it is to teach them to read and understand English. Then we would have no difficulty in forming bands, orchestras, Philharmonic societies, etc., etc., and what more desirable conditions could be imagined. It would act as the expansive force of a new power and the teaching of music in our public schools would prove a higher force coming in to expel that which is lower and grosser.”

BAD BOYS

County Constable James McGregor is investigating the case whereby $50 or $60 worth of damage was done to property of Cornhill's Brick yards and damages to Tom Gillis' place. The latter's house was ransacked and considerably roughed up. Jim has the names of several young fellows who are thought to be the culprits. While looking up the case he caught a half dozen boys in swimming in a nude condition and took their names.

A BAD FALL

John McKie, Lansdowne Ave., painter for the Blonde Lumber and Manufacturing Co., met with a very painful accident last night, which miraculously did not have very serious results. He was engaged on James Wright's house, Murray Street, when in some way fell a distance of about 15 feet lighting on his back across a post. It was a wonder his back was not broken. As it is Mr. McKie will be laid up for a few days at least.

WHY NOT OWN UP?

Says the Hamilton Herald, Independent Liberal:

Early in the course of the Dundonald discussion the Toronto Globe intimated that Lord Dundonald had, in his official report which Sir Frederick Borden suppressed, "advised an expenditure on armaments and armories that aggregated a sum which was variously estimated at from $35,000,000 to $45,000,000. As we understand it," the Globe added, "Canada was to assume a most aggressive attitude. Great fortresses were to be built along our borders." For this startling information the Globe's authority was, it explained, "a debate which took place in parliament last year." From this debate "it was quite apparent that several members of the opposition had been favored with intimations of what the report contained. From these sources it has leaked out," etc.

The Toronto Mail and the Ottawa Journal have repeatedly begged the Globe to mention the date of the important debate in which knowledge of Dundonald's supposed recommendations was revealed, also the pages in Hansard where the record of the debate can be found.

For several days the Globe did not deign to reply. Then it did reply. But it did not give the information asked for. Its reply to the Mail was that the Mail had wilfully and maliciously misquoted its remarks. The Mail, it complained, had quoted it as having said that "it leaked out that Lord Dundonald advised," etc., whereas what it really did say was, "it has leaked out that Lord Dundonald advised," etc. Its reply to the Ottawa Journal was a severe criticism of that paper's carelessness in stating that Lord Dundonald had said that he had recommended an expenditure of a certain sum in "several years," whereas what he really did say was "that he had recommended the expenditure in 'two or three years.'"

To these evasions and subterfuges and puerilities is the chief organ of the Liberal party reduced! How much more manly and honest it would be to admit candidly that it had no authority for the statements which it made for the purpose of discrediting Lord Dundonald in the eyes of the Canadian people!

EXPLAIN! EXPLAIN!

We regret to find that the Toronto Globe is dissatisfied with the Dundonald reception, and especially with the speech of the guest of the evening. The General, it seems, was guilty of very bad taste. He had the temerity to reply to attacks that have been made upon him, and in a manner that is so conclusive that no answer can be given. This he should not have done, says the organ. He ought, we suppose, to have confined himself to a few remarks about the weather, or to a review of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Anything would have been in order except the main question.

It is too bad that the General should have violated good taste. But the thing need not be allowed to pass without some remedy. Massey Hall is disengaged for some nights this week, and Sydney Fisher can have it for the purpose of making reply. No doubt a large audience would greet Sydney, more particularly if Jim Stratton presents the address of welcome and Bourassa is invited to the chair. By the way, there is a matter that might be cleared up, either at that meeting or through the Globe before the meeting is held. The organ will remember that it has attributed to Lord Dundonald a scheme of "militarism," and that it announced that the facts were revealed in a debate in Parliament last year. There were to be vast fortresses along the border. The cost was to be from $35,000,000 to $45,000,000, and the frontier was to be bristled with guns, just as the boundary of France did in the reign of Louis XVI. Some 6,000 miles of "Gibraltar" were to be put up. The thing was to be a sort of date to the United States, and war would no doubt follow — all because of Lord Dundonald. The organ has given very circumstantial accounts of this alleged fortress proposition of Lord Dundonald as revealed by a debate in Parliament.

We have asked the Globe to point to the debate; but it has declined to do so. Now we have Lord Dundonald's speech. The General says there that his advice to the Government was along the line of a citizen soldiery, that he is opposed to militarism and that no Gibraltars were mentioned by him. The only reference he made to fortifications in his support is in the form of a suggestion that there should be for two of our ports — one on the Atlantic and the other on the Pacific — defence against torpedo boats and cruisers. It will be observed first that the Toronto Globe, which attributed this fortification proposition to Lord Dundonald on the authority of a debate in Parliament has failed to produce the debate, and secondly, that Dundonald distinctly denies the story.

Now, we think an explanation is due from the Globe. Why did the organ attribute to the Scottish General a policy that he had never dreamed of — a policy that is ridiculous? Why did it cite a debate that does not exist as authority for a report that was never made, and as proof of a policy that was never propounded? These matters require explanation. The Globe ought to explain its unfairness to the man of whom Scotchmen have reason to be proud. It ought to say whether this is in accordance with its practice in public discussions. It ought to state who asked it to misinform the public as to the relations of the General to the Government of the day. — Mail and Empire.

THE CRUX OF THE CONTROVERSY.
London Daily Mail.
It is a fine thing to have plenty of lieutenant-colonels, no doubt; but at a time when, as Lord Dundonald says, "the most elementary requirements of the militia were neglected for want of money," such plenitude of commanding talent might have been spared if the salary list would have provided a gun or two or a few more pack-saddles. It is true that lieutenant-colonels have votes and electoral influence, while guns and pack-saddles have not, but Canadians will surely need to have it explained that they cannot disperse an enemy at your gates by a heavy poll. In the seven lieutenant-colonels we seem to have the crux of the whole controversy between Lord Dundonald and his late superiors. The commander endeavored to have the militia made an efficient fighting machine. The ministry preferred, unless their acts do them much injustice, to make it excel as a political auxiliary. "Constitutional usage" should prevent outsiders, perhaps, from hinting which of the two policies is the more patriotic. But "constitutional usage" may reach a point, we imagine, at which the sense and spirit of an intelligent colony will insist upon parting company.

LINCOLN ON CIRCUIT.

He Presented a Quaint Appearance as He Followed the Court.

Following the court about on the circuit was no doubt the joy of Lincoln's life. He was so fond of it that he declined a flattering offer to enter a lucrative law partnership in Chicago, because, as he contended, it would necessitate more or less confinement in the office and therefore keep him off the circuit. Seated in a one horse buggy, behind a sorry looking animal, he would set out from Springfield, to be gone for weeks at a stretch. The lawyers, as he drove into each successive place, eagerly anticipating a new stock of stories, gave him a cordial welcome, and the landlords hailed his coming with delight, for he was one of the most patient and uncomplaining of guests. "If every other fellow," relates one of his colleagues, "grumbled at the indifferent accommodations and scant fare which greeted us at many of the dingy taverns we struck, Lincoln said nothing." His forbearance in this regard well warrants the observation he is said on one occasion to have made—that he never so completely felt his "own unworthiness as when he stood face to face with a real, live hotel clerk."

How he appeared on the circuit may be gleaned from this sketch of him drawn by Henry C. Whitney, one of his colleagues in central Illinois: "His hat was brown, faded and the nap usually worn or rubbed off. He wore a short cloak and sometimes a shawl.
His coat and vest hung loosely on his gaunt frame. His trousers were invariably too short. In one hand he carried a faded green umbrella, with 'A.
Lincoln' in large white cotton or muslin letters sewed on the inside. The knob was gone from the handle, and a piece of cord was usually tied round the middle of the umbrella to keep it from flying open. In the other hand he carried a carpetbag, in which were stored the few papers to be used in court and underclothing enough to last till his return to Springfield."—Century.

QUEER ILLUSIONS.

Morbid Minds That Associate Names
and Numbers With Colors.

"Numerals have no colors to you and to me," said a psychologist. "Three, for instance, doesn't seem to us to be pink, and eight doesn't seem to us to be brown, but there are certain slightly diseased minds to which almost every word in the language appears to have color."

"The odd part of this matter is that when you study the minds that attribute colors to figures you find them almost unanimous in attributing to each figure a particular hue. Thus, they will say that one is black, two is cream, three is pale brown, four is red brown,
five is blue, six is tan, seven is green, and so on. Finding among the morbid so uniform a belief in the blackness of one, the blueness of five and the greenness of seven, you almost persuade yourself that these figures actually have colors."

"Some morbid minds hold that names have colors. A New Orleans glyptologist says that to him John is blue, Atlanta is steel gray, Peter is brown, and so on."

"Mankind harbors an incredible number of illusions. Each one of us, perhaps, has an illusion of some sort.
Mine is that if I count on getting a thing I desire I will be surely disappointed. My wife's is that her brother appears to her in dreams."

"I know a nervous, pallid woman who attributes certain perfumes to certain sounds. A soprano voice to her is like lilies of the valley. A tenor voice is like roses. A contralto voice is like heliotrope. A bass voice is like violets."

Animal Oils in Medicine.

The number of animal oils and fats used in medicine are extremely numerous. Large quantities of oil are obtained in Tasmania from the mutton bird and used as a liniment for rheumatism, while the fat of the frigate bird is said to be an excellent specific for sciatica. Cod liver oil is too well known to bear more than mention, and the oil got from the dugong, an aquatic monster related to the whale tribe, has a high reputation as a substitute for that obtained from the smaller fry of the cod. From six to fourteen gallons of this medicinal oil can be taken out of a single animal.

John Bright's Speeches.

John Bright had a curious method of guarding against any failure of memory or language in his public speeches.
When he had to deliver a speech of importance he wrote a sort of essay on the subject and tore it up. He then wrote another and treated it in the same way, and finally a third. In this way he considered that he had not only exhausted his own thoughts upon the matter in hand, but had gained such a command over the language in which it could be expressed that he could never be at a loss for the right word.

The Escapes He Wanted.

"Is there danger from fire here?"
"Oh, no," replied the hotel clerk.
"We are well provided with fire escapes."

"I don't care a hang about that. How are you fixed for man escapes?"

Not in Practice.

"That man has studied political economy."

"Maybe so," said Senator Sorghum,
"but the injudicious way he spends his money at an election looks to me like political extravagance."

Judging from what they have to show for it, some people's time must be counterfeit money.

the remodelling of the heating system.
The present system has not been satisfactory. The remodelling will cost in the neighborhood of $800 or $900.

A BOILING BUNDOO

"Just as near being killed as I want to be," Water Commissioner W.
D. Sheldon was the spokesman and W. D. looked the part his speech indicated. "I was waylaid on Centre street last night," he continued as the crowd began to gather, "and got what you see." The little banner reporter immediately got excitedly interested and the Water Commissioner couldn't help but laugh. "No, that's only a big boil I got on the back of my neck there," and he cruelly laughed again.

"One result of this boiling hot weather," commented one of the crowd.

A HORSE CASE

An interesting case was tried before Judge Dowlin in the Division Court to-day. Alex. Eaddy bought a horse from Ed. Robinson, Raleigh, for $100 and paid down $1.00 to bind the bargain. The terms were modified from time to time and before delivering the horse to Eaddy, Robinson sold it to another party for more money. Eaddy demanded back his $14 that he had already paid, but this Robinson would not do. Eaddy sued for $25 for breach of contract and also for the $14.

Several witnesses were examined.
Judgment was given for the plaintiff, for $14 and costs. Geo. G. Martin for plaintiffs and W. G. Richards for defendant.

James Neilson, C. A., commercial specialist of the Windsor Collegiate Institute, is spending a few days in the Maple City.

Architect A. M. Piper has awarded to W. M. Drader the contract for the new entrance to the Public General Hospital.

Will Robinson, of Romney, a brother of ex-Warden T. Robinson, left this morning via C. P. R. for Calgary, where he will spend some time.

One of the old gas light posts was removed from the corner of Victoria Ave. and Dover St., this morning. The post has been there about 20 years.

Sunday was the warmest day in record in three years, the thermometer registering 96 degrees. Yesterday, however, was still warmer the mercury going up to 97.5 degrees.

W. W. Turner reports that at two o'clock this afternoon it was 93 degrees in the shade. Also that the temperature at same time yesterday was three degrees lower.

Workmen have commenced the alterations and improvements to Christ Church. It is the intention of the managers to remodel the church and make it up-to-date in every particular.

HOT ENOUGH?

Something About the Thermometre Records in the Maple City—This Scorching Spell.

"Is it hot enough for you?"

This, the question that is on everyone's lips these days, and strange to say, it seems a very irritating question to judge from the unprintable remarks which follow the question. People go about fanning themselves, dogs and horses go around with their tongues hanging out, and everyone is getting a taste of what it is like down in sunny Africa. The cool drink places are doing an immense business, and the ice-man's job is looked upon with envy.

W. W. Turner, who keeps accurate tab on the fluctuations of the mercury, gives the following records for the past four days:

Friday—highest 89, lowest 68.
Saturday—highest 93, lowest 55.
Sunday—highest 96, lowest 66.
Monday—highest 97.5, lowest 68.

To-day the mercury woke up at sunrise and got busy again. Up, up, up it climbed, until by noon it was 93 in the shade. Mr. Turner's records show that this beats the heat record for the past three years. About three years ago the mercury kept about 93 above for two days. This hot spell, however, bids fair to exceed all records for some time back, as its duration has been so long, and the chances are that it will not let up soon.

It is hard to understand why the thermometre records should not be much higher, but this is accounted for by reason of the great humidity in the air, and also by the chilly spring and fore part of this summer, which makes humanity feel the heat more.

However, we are not the only sufferers. The heat extends over nearly all the eastern part of the continent. Chicago, St. Louis, and nearly all eastern American cities have been sizzling and seething for some days, and great suffering has ensued.

"If you want to get cool," remarked a citizen this morning, "just go round to a corner store where a lot of old residents sit around and tell how they remember 'way back in '61, etc., etc. You will think this hot wave a cinch. My advice for hot weather is, always side-step a thermometre and think about the hard winter we have just had, also how you are going to pay your coal bill this coming winter."

BOY VISITOR AT CITY HOTEL

Little Lad Strolled into Hotel Merrill and made himself Quite at Home.

Had Come in from Harwich and got Lost in the Maple City.

There was a bright little guest at the Merrill House last evening whose arrival was announced before hand, and whose name does not appear on the register. His arrival was announced because no one knew he was coming—himself in particular—and if his name had appeared on the register some one else would have had to write it, for the guest was only three years old and, in fact, could not make anyone understand what his name really was.

He toddled into the waiting room of the hotel yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. He looked around in a curious and interested manner and immediately climbed up on one of the big chairs and appeared perfectly at home. Mr. Merrill noticed the boy and walking over asked his name. The little fellow could not speak very distinctly but Mr. Merrill understood his name as Frankie Rankin. It was afterwards found out that his name was Frankie Martin.

None of his relatives seemed to be around and Mr. Merrill at once concluded that the little fellow had strayed from home. He took him up stairs and the little fellow was given a bath, allowed to play around and enjoy himself with Mr. Merrill's little boy of about the same age and he was then put to bed.

This morning he woke up bright and happy, and was having his breakfast when Alex. Martin, of Harwich, arrived at the hotel and anxiously enquired for his little son, and found him at the table enjoying his breakfast and having a happy time. Mr. Martin was much relieved when he found his son, and could not find words to express his gratitude to Mr. Merrill.

It appears that Miss Martin came into town yesterday morning and the little fellow unnoticed climbed into the back of the buggy box and rode into town, too. When Miss Martin arrived in town she tied up her horse and still did not notice the little fellow in the back of the buggy. She started out to do some shopping, and it was then that little Frankie took it into his head to walk around and see the sights, and soon wandered into the Merrill House, where he was well cared for until his father arrived and took him home again.

His parents at first thought that he had wandered into the fields and been overcome by the heat. All of the neighbors were out scouring the country for the lost child, until he was found at the Merrill.

GOOD SHOOTING

Neil Smith, of Stewart, is winning considerable fame and incidentally a little cash too, in Bisle, where he is shooting at the matches. In the Daily Telegraph match he was easily first among the Canadians and in the Stock Exchange match won £2. He was second in the Alexandra and took second place in the Prince of Wales match.

PLEASANT TRIP

Alex. VonGuten has returned from a very pleasant and enjoyable fishing trip in northern Michigan. Mr. VonGuten has been away for a week and during that time has been having a splendid and healthy outing. He was accompanied by Dr. Johnson, of St. Clair; Dr. Dirk, of Marysville, and Dr. Walker, of Barretton, Mich., and the four of them have certainly enjoyed the trout fishing in the numerous brooks and rivers of Northern Michigan, 300 miles north of Saginaw in the pine regions. The climbing over the rocks and through the woods was very tiresome some times, but the excellent fishing was worth the work.

Uncle Terry

By CHARLES CLARK MUNN

Copyright, 1900, by LEE & SHEPARD

That afternoon when Alice was alone with her brother he said, "Well, sis, how do you like my friend?"

"Oh, he means to be nice," she replied, "but he is a little thoughtless, and it would do him good to have to work for his living a year or two."

The two days intervening before Sunday passed all too quickly for the three young people. When Sunday morning came they of course attended church, and Frank found himself shyly stared at by all the people of Sandgate. He did not pay much attention to the sermon, but a good deal to a certain sweet soprano voice in the choir, and when after service Alice joined them he boldly walked away with her and left Albert chatting with a neighbor.

"O way home she, of course, asked the usual question as to how he liked the ser."

"I don't know," he heard ten words of it," he replied. "I was kept busy counting how many I caught looking at me, and whenever the choir sang I forgot to count. Why was it they stared at me so much? Is a stranger here a walking curiosity?"

"In a way, yes," answered Alice. "They don't mean to be rude, but a new face at church is a curiosity. I'll wager that nine out of ten who were there this morning are at this moment discussing your looks and wondering who and what you are."

A realization of her cool indifference tinged his feelings that evening just at dusk, where he had been left alone beside the freshly started parlor fire, and when the object of his thought happened in he sat staring moodily at the flames. She drew a chair opposite and, seating herself, said pleasantly:

"Why so pensive, Mr. Nason? Has going to church made you feel repentant?"

"I don't feel the need of repentance except in one way," he answered, "and that you would not be interested in. To be candid, Miss Page, I'm growing ashamed of the useless life I lead, and it's that I feel to repent of. A few things your brother said to me three months ago were the beginning, and a remark you made the day we first went sleighing has served to increase that feeling. Ever since I left college I have led an aimless life, bored to death by ennui and conscious that no one was made any happier by my existence. What Bert said to me and your remark have only served to make me realize it more fully."

"I am very sorry, Mr. Nason," she said pleasantly, "if any words of mine hurt you even a little. I have forgotten what they were and wish you would. The visit which Bert and you are making me is a most delightful break in the monotony of my life, and I shall be very glad to see you again."

And then, rising, she added, "If I hurt you, please say you forgive me, for I must go out and see to getting tea."

The last evening was passed much like the first, except that now the elusive Alice seemed to be transformed into a far more gracious hostess, and all her smiles and interest seemed to be lavished upon Frank instead of her brother. It was as if this occult little lady had come to feel a new and surprising curiosity in all that concerned the life and amusements of her visitor. With true feminine skill, she plied him with all manner of questions and affected the deepest interest in all he had to say. What were his sister's amusements? Did they entertain much, play tennis, golf or ride? Where did they usually go summers, and did he generally go with them? His own comings and goings and where he had been and what he saw there were also made a part of the gist he was encouraged to grind. She even professed a keen interest in his yacht and listened patiently to a most elaborate description of that craft, although as a rowboat was the largest vessel she had ever set foot on it is likely she did not gain a very clear idea of the Gypsy.

"Your yacht has a very suggestive name," she said. "It makes one think of green woods and campfires. I should dearly love to take a sail in her. I have read so much about yachts and yachting that the idea of sailing along the shores in one's own floating house, as it were, has a fascination for me."

This expression of taste was so much in line with Frank's, and the idea of having this charming girl for a yachting companion so tempting that his face glowed.

"Nothing would give me greater pleasure," he responded, "than to have you for a guest on my boat, Miss Page. I think it could be managed if I could only coax my mother and sisters to go, and you and your brother would join us. We would visit the Maine coast resorts and have no end of a good time."

"It's a delightful outing you suggest," she answered, "and I thank you very much, but I wouldn't think of coming if your family had to be coaxed to go, and then it's not likely that Bert could find the time."

"Oh, I didn't mean it that way," he said, looking serious, "only mother and the girls are afraid of the water, that is all."

When conversation lagged Frank begged that she would sing for him and suggested selections from Moody and Sankey, and despite her brother's sarcastic remark that it wasn't a revival meeting they were holding she not only played and sang all those time worn melodies, but a lot of others from older collections. When retiring time came Frank asked that she conclude with "Ben Bolt."

"I shall not need to recall that song to remind me of you," he said in a low voice as he spread it on the music rack in front of her, "but I shall always feel its mood when I think of you."

"Does that mean that you will think of me as sleeping in a corner obscure and alone, in some churchyard?" she responded archly.

"By no means," he said, "only I may perhaps have a little of the same mood at times that Ben Bolt had when he heard of the fate of his sweet Alice."

It was a pretty speech, and Frank imagined she threw a little more than usual pathos into the song after it, but then no doubt his imagination was biased by his feelings.

When they stood on the platform the next morning awaiting the train he said quietly:

"May I send you a few books and some new songs when I get home, Miss Page? I want to show you how much I have enjoyed this visit."

"It is very nice of you to say so," she replied, "and I shall be glad to be remembered and hope you will visit us again."

When the train came in he rather hurriedly offered his hand and with a "Permit me to thank you again" as he raised his hat turned away to gather up the satchels so as not to be witness to her leave taking from her brother.

CHAPTER XIII.

IN summer Southport island, as yet unvisited by the tide of outgoing travel, was a spot to inspire dreams, poetry and canvases covered with ocean lore. Its many coves and inlets where the tides ebbed and flowed among the weed covered rocks, its bold cliffs, sea washed, and above which the white gulls and fishhawk cried; the deep thickets of spruce through which the ocean winds murmured and where great beds of ferns and clusters of red bunch berries grew were one and all left undisturbed week in, week out.

At the Cape, where Uncle Terry, Aunt Lissy and Telly lived their simple home life, and Bascom, the storekeeper and postmaster, talked unceasingly when he could find a listener, and Deacon Oaks wondered why "the grace o' God" hadn't freed the land from stuns," no one ever came to disturb its quietude. Every morning Uncle Terry, often accompanied by Telly in a calico dress and sunbonnet, rowed out to pull his lobster traps, and after dinner harnessed and drove to the head of the island to meet the mail boat; then at eventide, after lighting his pipe and the lighthouse lamp at about the same time, generally strolled over to Bascom's to have a chat, while Telly made a call on the "Widder Leach," a misanthropic but pious protégée of hers, and Aunt Lissy read the paper.

Once in about three weeks, according to weather, the monotony of the village was disturbed by the arrival of a small schooner owned jointly by Uncle Terry, Oaks and Bascom, and which plied between the Cape and Boston. Once in two weeks services were held, as usual, in the little brown church, and as often the lighthouse tender called and left coal and oil for Uncle Terry. Regularly on Thursday evenings the few piously inclined, led by Deacon Oaks, gathered in the church to sing hymns they repeated fifty-two times each year, listen to a prayer by Oaks that seldom varied in a single sentence, and heard Auntie Leach thank the Lord for his "many mercies," though what they were in her case it would be hard to tell, unless being permitted to live alone and work hard to live at all was a mercy. The scattered islanders and the handful whose dwellings comprised the Cape worked hard, lived frugally and were unconscious that all around them was a rocky shore whose cliffs and inlets and beaches were so many poems of picturesque and charming scenery.

This was Southport in summer, but in winter, when the little harbor at the Cape was icebound, the winding road to the head of the island buried beneath drifts and the people often for weeks at a time absolutely cut off from communication with the rest of the world, it was a place cheerless in its desolation. Like so many wood-chucks then the residents kept within doors or only stirred out to cut wood, fodder the stock and shovel paths so that the children could go to school. The days were short and the evenings long, and to get together and spend hours in labored conversation the only pastime. It was one of those long evenings and when Aunt Lissy and Telly were at a neighbor's and Uncle Terry, left to himself, was reading every line, including the advertisements, in the last Journal, that the following met his eye:

WANTED.—Information that will lead to the discovery of the heir of one Eric Peterson, a landowner and shipbuilder of Stockholm, Sweden, whose son, with his wife, child and crew, was known to have been wrecked on the coast of Maine in March, 1877. Nothing has ever been heard of said Peterson or his wife, but the child may have been saved. Any one having information that will lead to the discovery of this child will be amply rewarded by communicating with NICHOLAS FRYE, Attorney at Law, — Pemberton Square, Boston.

"Waal, I'll be everlastin'ly gol darned!" Uncle Terry exclaimed after he had read it for the third time. "If this don't beat all natur I'm a goat." It was fortunate he was alone, for it gave him time to think the matter over, and after half an hour of astonishment he decided to say nothing to his wife or Telly.

"I'll jist breathe the easy an' sag up," he said to himself, "same as though I was crossin' thin ice, an' if nothin' comes out nobody 'll be the worse for worryin'."

Then he cut the slip out and hid it in his black leather wallet, and then cut out the entire page and burned it.

"Wimmin are sich curls creeters they'd be sure to want to know what I'd cut out o' that page," he said to himself, "an' never rest till I told 'em."

When Aunt Lissy and Telly came home Uncle Terry was as composed as a rock and sat quietly puffing his pipe, with his feet on top of a chair and pointing toward the fire.

"Were you lonesome, father?" asked Telly, who usually led conversation in the Terry home. "We stopped at Bascom's, and you know he never stops talking."

Man Restored to Vigor

Are you one of the thousands of men, young and old, who lack will, power? Do you want to be robust and vigorous, to have perfect manhood? Thousands know they are weak and impotent, but neglect to take the right steps to regain their vigor and strength. Are you one of them? Thousands suffer in ignorance of their real condition, believing themselves to be strong and well when they are far from it. Perhaps you are one of them. It is worth your time to ascertain your true condition of health, if you have any reason to doubt or suspect that you are not what you once were.

If you belong to either class mentioned above, do not be discouraged. Do not lose hope. Help is within your reach. You can be cured. Vim, vigor and vitality, health and happiness have been given to men who had been reduced to physical wreck.

Be Honest With Yourself.
If you have been a victim to the follies and indiscretions of youth, committed excesses in married life, if you doubt your strength, if it is your duty to those you love and who love you—be honest today, consult an honest, reliable, recognized physician—a specialist who has a record for curing weak men. But do not go astray. Consult no quack. Take no patent "Cure Alls." No two cases are precisely alike. Every individual needs a treatment particularly suited to him. Do what you can get the right treatment for your case.

Cure Yourself at Home.
If there is no successful specialist near you, write at once to Dr. Goldberg, the noted specialist. He is the possessor of 14 diplomas and certificates which he received from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners and he will send you his method free, to use in the privacy of your own home. It does not interfere with traveling, as it can be taken with convenience anywhere.

If you have stricture, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, any complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, etc., write the doctor and he will accept your case for treatment. It is guaranteed to cure you, or he will refund your money.

Pay When You Are Cured.
The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make a cure and another thing to make a man well. So he guarantees a cure and if you are not cured he will refund your money. It is a sure cure. It is a cure that will not hurt you in any way. It is a cure that is in the most perfect form of the art of medicine. It is a cure that is in the most perfect form of the art of medicine.

Dr. A. Goldberg, 205 Woodward Ave. Room 22, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free, in a plain, sealed package.

HIS LAST HOPE REALIZED.

(From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.)

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by all druggists.

Nerves and Piano Tuning.

It was testified in a London police court recently that lunatic asylums contain a larger percentage of piano tuners than of representatives of any other trade. Any one who has been forced to listen to a piano being tuned can understand the nerve racking nature of such a business.

RACKING PAIN IN THE JOINTS.

Also every form of rheumatism, neuralgia and sciatica are best cured by Nerviline, the quickest relief for muscular pain yet discovered. It's because Nerviline strikes in and penetrates right to the core of the pain that it gives such unbounded satisfaction. "I caught cold in my shoulders while driving and suffered great pain," writes G. E. Dempsey, of Berlin. "I used Nerviline freely and was soon quite well. I have found Nerviline an excellent remedy for rheumatism and neuralgia as well as for cold on the chest. I recommend Nerviline highly and wouldn't be without it." Price 25c.

Good Humor.

According to ancient theory, there are four principal humors in the body—blood, phlegm, choler and melancholy. The predominance of any one determined the temper; hence the expression "choleric humor," etc. A nice balance made a good compound called a good humor, and a preponderance of any a bad compound called an ill or bad humor.

SNIFFELING AND SNEEZING COLDS

Can be stopped in a few minutes and permanently cured in one hour by inhaling fragrant, healing Catarrhozone. No remedy compares with Catarrhozone for cold in the head and nasal catarrh. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes, prevents sneezing and coughing, clears away the "stuffed up" feeling in the forehead. If you have not used Catarrhozone get it to-day and try it on your next cold. You'll be surprised at the efficiency of the delightful inhaler treatment which pleases everyone because it cures so quickly. Complete outfit $1.00; trial size 25c.

A Novice at the Business.

"I suppose you had a perfectly lovely time at Wexford's house party?"
"No, it was a fizzle. Mrs. Wexford has so little tact. She was always arranging it so that the men would have to pair off with their own wives." Exchange.

Emotion turning back on itself and not leading on to thought or action is the element of madness.

THE MAN WHO WORKS HARD.

Perseverance and will-power he must have, but whether he has vigor and strength is another consideration. Hard working men usually have irritable nerves and should fortify their systems with a course of Ferrozene, a tonic that rebuilds and revitalizes beyond all telling. It's just wonderful the strength that Ferrozene imparts to broken-down men. It forms new blood, supplies the system with abundant nourishment, and where formerly there was tiredness and lassitude Ferrozene establishes a reserve of energy and vim. Try Ferrozene,—price 50c. per box.

First Marquis.

The title of marquis was first given by Richard II. to Robert de Vere, earl of Oxford, who was made Marquis of Dublin in 1386.

Effect of Imagination.

A Berlin bridegroom reported that he had swallowed his wedding ring. He suffered intense agony and vowed he was dying until his pockets were searched for money to pay for a telegram, when the ring was found in the lining of his waistcoat. He became well in a few minutes.

HUMOR AT SCHOOL.

Henry J. Barker, M.A., Compiles Some Excellent Examples of British Children's Unconscious and Ready Wit.

The following are examples of schoolboy wit, though whether conscious or unconscious one cannot say:

"Boys," asked a master in a history lesson, "what was the Great Revolution?"

And one young prodigy answered:

"Why, it was when William of Orange turned round, sir!"

An equally smart answer was given by a boy who was observed by his teacher to have sketched a railway engine on his slate:

"Why don't you draw the carriages, too?" inquired the teacher.

"Oh, the engine draws them," responded the boy.

Lessons on elementary science (a favorite subject in many of our schools) often evoke answers of a very unscientific nature. The governor of a school in Brixton had given a lesson on the different parts of a flower, external and internal, viz., the leaves, petals, stamens, pistil, ovary, etc.

A few days later, in continuing the subject, the lady commenced by asking a few questions.

"Mention," she said, "one of the important parts of a plant which you cannot see."

And one girl, who had not been present at the former lesson, replied:

"Why, the inside, teacher, of course!"

The following is another example of the innocent directness with which children look at things:

During a science lesson on birds' eggs and their colors, the teacher asked:

"Why are duck eggs of a bluish tint?"

And the young urchin who happened to be pointed at stammered out:

"Because, sir, the duck is—is bluish inside!"

During the course of an examination in grammar, an inspector came to the somewhat difficult subject of the irregular comparison of adjectives; e.g. little, less, least; much, more, most, etc.

"Yes," continued the gentleman, pointing to a sharp-looking lad, "you boy, compare the adjective 'ill'."

"Comparative, worse, sir."

"Right," said the inspector, "go on."

"Superlative, dead, sir!"

In the course of a Scripture lesson on the temptation of our first parents in Eden, the teacher had explained to the children that Adam's chief occupation was the simple and delightful one of dressing the garden and keeping it in order. Later on in the lesson he asked:

"Why was it, do you think, that the devil decided to tempt the woman and not the man?"

"Because," replied one youngster, "Adam was too busy watering the garden."

The following anecdote illustrates quite erroneously notions of what the teacher intends to convey.

During an examination on the life of Jacob and his sons, the master asked:

"Why was Joseph put into prison?"

And one old-fashioned little urchin answered:

"Why, he loved a Pharaoh's wife, sir; so he locked him up safe so as he couldn't get at her!"

On this same subject of the life of Joseph, a teacher came to that part of the story where the brethren arrive from Canaan to buy corn. He gave the children a graphic account of the reception which Joseph accorded them, and the feasting which accompanied the event. He touched upon the special favor shown to little Benjamin in serving him with a mess of food five times greater than that of the others.

"There," said the teacher, placing his hand on the shoulder of a lad just in front of him.

"Why, I should think he was fair busted!" responded the youngster.

This little story shows the risk which teachers run in giving "show lessons" to visitors:

The vice-chancellor of a country parish brought a couple of ladies to see the working of the village school. Both visitors were members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Whilst in the girls' department, the mistress kindly consented to put some questions to the children upon their knowledge of the uses of animals to man.

The girls answered very intelligently all the questions put to them in connection with the common domestic animals; and the mistress was thus emboldened to proceed to less familiar ground.

"What useful articles do we obtain from the elephant?" she asked.

"Ivory," answered the first girl.

"Right; and what from the whale?"

"Whale-bone," said the second.

"Very good; and what from the seal?"

"Sealing-wax," answered the third.

Many teachers of our East London schools have an excellent custom of giving the scholars an annual outing into the country. The children are allowed to roam about Epping Forest (or other sylvan retreat) at their own sweet will, and are afterwards regaled with a good substantial meal. On the occasion of one of these treats, a lady teacher who was assisting in serving the children at their meal came up to one little lad and said:

"Will you take some bread-and-butter, my child?"

"No," responded the urchin, rudely and decisively.

"No, what?" mildly suggested the lady.

"No jolly fear, while there's curran-cake about!"

A large number of cottagers took in the band concert last evening and report an excellent time.

The Baden-Powell took a large throng of happy cottagers for a delightful sail last evening.

The yachtsmen are beginning to talk race again and 'tis said an excellent sailing regatta is on the tapis.

Mrs. Pringle, of Chatham, gave a charming Erieau party last evening. Many young people were in attendance.

Miss Rose Morrison, who has been summering at Sandy Knowe, left to-day for a two weeks' holiday trip east.

Commodore Chas. E. Beeston of the Outlaw is spending the day at the Eau. Mr. Beeston will also put the 'Awa' into commission for the summer.

E. B. Jones and A. E. Pilkey made another phenomenal catch in the Eau last evening. They landed a big 'lunge' measuring some three feet in length.

They were coming in on an Erieau train this morning. One was a stout inquisitive looking man, while the other looked as if he hadn't slept for a week. "What's ailing you, Bill?"

said the stout, inquisitive man. "Had an awful scrap with a mosquito last evening," said the man with the 'united sleep' eyes. I had a very convivial time with some friends last night, and after winding up with canned salmon and a little lobster a la Newburg on the side, I found my way home and tumbled into bed. Shortly after falling asleep it seemed as if my door opened, and a mosquito as big as an ostrich swaggered into my room. Now, I have often heard of the Jersey mosquitoes whom they say, can eat a New York millionaire for breakfast, but this one had 'em all beat. Well, what do you want? said I. 'About a quart of your blood,' the mosquito answered. 'Not if I see you first,' I exclaimed, at the same time reaching for my loaded cane nearby. Then, a terrific struggle followed, in which we smashed about all the things in the room. At last, however, I won out, until finally I sidestepped, and gave the Eau product a terrific blow on its head. It tumbled over with an agonizing buzz, and there I stood like a Roman gladiator, surveying my opponent. What to do with it I couldn't imagine, and just as I was pondering over whether it would be a good idea to have it stuffed and presented as a gift to a King street drug store—well, I woke up."

WORLD OF SPORT

LAOROSSE

ST. THOMAS STRENGTHENING.

The St. Thomas lacrosse club will play the Tecumsehs here on July 27, when it is expected the hardest fought and best game of the season will be played. Manager Cameron, of the St. Thomas team, it is said, has gone east to hunt up more players. It seems the "Saintly" aggregation has decided to do their utmost to put it over the Chatham aggregation in the next two games.

The Tecumsehs are practicing hard these days and keeping in shape for their big games. The St. Thomas team comes here a week from to-morrow, when an intensely exciting game is looked for. It is understood that St. Thomas has not yet given up hopes of winning out and will come down here considerably strengthened and prepared to put up a stiff fight.

Next Friday the Tecumsehs go to Wallaceburg again. They will go in fogs and the game is called for 5.30 o'clock. The game will be played 10 men to a side. The following will represent Chatham—Robinson, Francis, Pickering, Elliott, Dowling, Haydon, Grace, Angus, MacFarlane, and Stewart. The game was arranged by Manager Babcock this morning.

Mr. Babcock is at present commencing arrangements for a tour for the Tecumsehs. Some time after the St. Thomas game the Tecumsehs will journey to Buffalo, Stratford, Guelph, Seaforth and Toronto. They will be away for 5 days.

BRITISH GREAT SEAL

STRANGE ADVENTURES OF THIS EMBLEM OF SOVEREIGNTY.

Fished From the Bottom of the River Thames, Buried in a Garden, Used as a Frying Pan and Broken to Pieces in the House of Lords.

It seems almost ludicrously impossible that the great seal of England should have ever been made to serve the humble purpose of a frying pan; and yet this is only one of many equally strange episodes in the romantic story of the seal which is the "specific emblem of British sovereignty."

Lord Chancellor Eldon was so fearful that the seal would be lost or stolen while in his custody that he never went to sleep without first satisfying himself that it was safe in his bedroom. One night—it was in the year 1812—he was roused from his slumbers by cries of "Fire!" Jumping out of bed he snatched up the great seal and, rushing into the garden, buried it deep in the middle of a flower bed. His house might be burned to the ground, but at least he would not prove unworthy of the great trust which had been reposed in him.

Next morning, however—so exciting had been the experiences of the night—he had completely forgotten in what part of the garden the emblem of sovereignty had been hidden, and it was only after his entire household had hunted for hours that it was at last run to earth. "You never saw anything so ridiculous," he wrote later, "as seeing the whole family down the walks dibbling with bits of sticks until we found it."

Once at least the great seal has been at the bottom of the Thames and would be there today but for a lucky accident. It was in 1888, when the second James was fleeing from England and in company with Sir Edward Hales. He had intended to take the great seal with him, but as he was being rowed from Lambeth to Vauxhall, where horses were awaiting him, another and better idea occurred to him. He would ding the seal into the river, and that would place it once for all out of reach of his enemy. So overboard the seal went, and for some weeks it lay there until by a curious chance it was picked up in a fisherman's net and restored to the proper custodians.

The ludicrous frying pan adventure befell it when in the custody of Lord Brougham. The chancellor had gone to Scotland for a short holiday—seeing that he could not take the seal on the Rhine trip he longed for without putting it in commission at great cost to himself—and he was a guest of the dowager Duchess of Bedford at Rothiemurcus, where he kept his precious charge in his bedroom. One day the young ladies of the house party took the seal from the bedroom and hid it. Brougham was desperate when he discovered his loss and did not recover his peace of mind until the pretty ladies promised to lead him to it if he would consent to be blindfolded.

With his eyes bandaged he was conducted to the drawing room, and there he discovered the seal hidden in a tea chest. So overjoyed was he at its recovery that he consented to the young ladies' suggestion that they should adjourn to the kitchen and celebrate the joyous event by making pancakes in the seal, and thus, amid much laughter, the greatest emblem of sovereignty in the whole world was actually used as a pan in which to fry pancakes. The seal, it should perhaps be mentioned, consists of two silver disks hinged together, so that when they are closed they form a mold, into which the wax, green, red or yellow, as the case may be, is poured. Thus it would make not at all a bad substitute for the common or kitchen frying pan.

Many a time has the great seal been taken to the house of lords and broken to pieces at the bar by the hammer of a sturdy blacksmith, amid the frantic cheering of onlooking members. This was the fate of the seal which fell into the hands of the parliamentary army on the capitulation of Oxford in 1646. Three years later the old parliamentary seal, which represented Charles, enthroned on one side and riding on horseback on the other, was similarly destroyed to make way for the new seal with its view of the house of commons in place of the deposed sovereign. Richard Cromwell's seal was broken by the hammer in 1659, and in the following year the great seal of the commonwealth itself was destroyed in the same way.

Once the seal was lost, by Charles II. in his flight from the fatal field of Worcester, and once it was stolen by burglars from Lord Thurlow's house in Great Ormond street, but it was replaced by a replica in the wonderfully short time of thirty-six hours. The seal that was in use when George IV. died was divided between Lord Lyndhurst and Lord Brougham, King William IV. presenting one side to each chancellor, mounted in a magnificent silver, and a similar present was made in later years to Lords Chelmsford and Campbell and to Lords Selborne and Cairns. Of the handsome satchels or purses in which the seal is supposed to be kept—exquisite specimens of art needlework in white and gold—so many fell to the lot of Lord Thurlow as perquisites that his good lady was able to make several sumptuous counterpanes and bed hangings from them.

Forced to It.
Dose—I thought you were going to quit all your bad habits? Don't—I did, but nobody recognized me, and I had to begin again so people would know me.

My Stomach "It feels so uncomfortable. Food distresses me. I get blue and despondent. My doctor says it's my stomach." And what did your doctor tell you to take? Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

SATCHEL OF THE SATELLITE

The Chatham cricketers did not lose yesterday. No game.

Me for the Park on Thursday night at the big band concert.

Poor old Brantford!—And she calls that a lacrosse team, too.

They call him "Judge" Gosnell around Harrison Hall now.

I do hope that Principal Plewes' cooking school isn't responsible for this weather.

Just forget those strong words you used about the weather some six weeks or so ago.

I would suggest that most of our alleged cricketers go in for ping pong, but be careful and don't get hurt.

If there's anything in the lacrosse line that Babcock's Braves haven't taken into camp let's hear from it quick.

Lieut. Lewis—Now why didn't I go to Bisley. Just look what that Kent County private is doing without half trying.

How would you like to be sitting on a shady beach in Muskoka dabbling your bare feet in the cool rippling water and a fishing rod in your hand—

Now with our Mayor away and Detroit's Mayor playing those Yankee municipal men May-bury our aldermen in that baseball game to-day, Wouldn't that McKeough rudder.

Just think what an hilarious time Os. Lewis and the rest of those heavy-weight regimental artists are having drilling five hours per in London barracks with the thermometer 200 in the sun. Why I'll bet Adjutant Coltart has lost 30 or 40 pounds of flesh already.

I heard a fellow say the other day that something was going to drop soon and somebody would be in the "Dumps." Now I wonder what he meant?

I move right now that the cricketers arrange a game with Highgate for next month and practice diligently thereafter in the meantime. There's be an even money chance of perhaps a draw then.

Neil Smith at Bisley—It's just a shame to take the money. In fact it's taking all my spare time figuring out these guineas and crowns and things I'm getting. I'm afraid I may have lost a few pounds in the strenuous mathematics.

I'm afraid Ald. Westman and the City Council bunch will be loaded when they hit the town again to night—that is, loaded down with the cannon ball, of course. Now you thought I meant something else, didn't you?

All the aldermen of Archie McColg's champions were round last night investing in white ducks, hats and shoes—that is, all except Ald. Pig-gott; he couldn't get the shoes. I guess they're going in for white-washing that Detroit bunch.

ICE! ICE!

The Separate School Board at heated meeting last night decided to put in a new heating system in their at present well heated school.

THAT'S NUFF.

Some of those war names of places are not hard to pronounce. There's Kai Chou, for instance. That's sneaky name to pronounce.—Hamilton Spectator.
