

MOST IMPORTANT BUDGET IN MANY YEARS IS DELIVERED IN THE HOUSE

Minister of Finance Brings Down Matter Which Affects Canadian Industry

No Upheaval, No Drastic Changes--Optimistic Speech of Hon. W. White.

OTTAWA, April 7.—Assistance to the iron and steel industry in Canada, a cut in one class of agricultural implements, and slight increases in duties on building stone, caustic soda and brass were important features of the tariff changes announced by Hon. W. T. White in his budget speech yesterday.

There will be no "free wheat," no bounties on iron, and after January 1 next, the bringing into Canada of cigarettes, osprey plumes and feathers will be prohibited. The changes made in the tariff are exceedingly important, as they affect two of the chief Canadian industries. The aid to the steel industry takes a variety of forms. There is, first of all, authority given for an increase of duties on heavy structural steel.

Wire rods, now on the free list, will in future be dutiable.

Farmer Protected.

The farmer is being protected since manufacturers importing steel rods of certain gauges used in the manufacture of wire fences, will be entitled to a drawback on the duty. In addition there is to be an increase in the duty on steel tubing up to ten inches in diameter, up to 20, 30 and 35 per cent. On imported tubing used for the transmission of natural gas there is a drawback of 55 per cent.

Additional aids to the same industry are provided by an increase in the existing drawback on imported pig iron used in the manufacture of articles for export and by placing charcoal for pig iron production upon the free list the same as coke is at present. Bituminous coal, when imported for the purpose of manufacturing coke for smelting and foundry use, will be allowed a drawback of duty of 99 per cent.

Agricultural Implements. There was perhaps no item on the list awaited with greater interest than that of agricultural implements. The finance minister dealt with this question at considerable length. He said a most careful inquiry had been made for over a year into the cost of production of agricultural implements on both sides of the line and as a result of the investigation it had been decided to make a cut in the duty on harvesters, reapers, binders, and mowers from 17-1/2 per cent, to 12-1/2 per cent.

Hon. Mr. White pointed out that this reduction in duty was a two and a half per cent. greater cut than had been proposed by the famous reciprocity pact and that with the drawback enjoyed on the iron and steel used in the production of this class of implements would be placed upon practically a 10 per cent. basis.

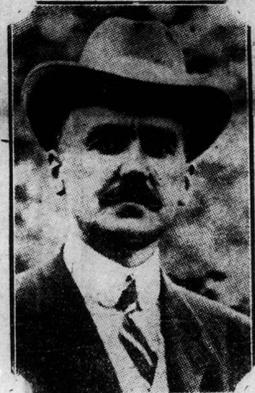

A change in duty in the interests of the stone cutters of Canada is made by increasing the duties upon building stone when sawn on four sides or when planed, turned or otherwise improved. Brass rods, sheets and bars, which have been on the free list since 1908 will have the old duty of 10 per cent restored. It has also been decided to place a duty upon caustic soda and hypo chloride of lime, two products connected with the salt industry. This is being done in the interests of the Canada Salt Company, of Windsor.

The minister announced that there would be no bounty granted to the iron formation there being insufficient information before the Government upon which to base legislative action. To meet this condition the mines department would make a thorough inquiry this year. A similar investigation will be made into the flux industry before a bounty is decided upon.

A considerable number of minor adjustments of the tariff were also covered by a series of resolutions brought down by the Minister of Finance. On desiccated cocoa the British preference is increased from two to three cents. Amyl alcohol, used in metal varnishes, will henceforth be on the free list. Loose inserts of fashion plates for trade journals, can in future be imported duty free. The list of commodities on which a drawback of 99 per cent, is allowed when manufactured into the finished product is enlarged so far as to include

Mr. White Says the Clouds Are Gone

HON. W. T. WHITE

"What is our present outlook? Bankers and business men unite in the opinion that while it is a time for prudence and caution, it is also a time for confidence and courage."

"Commercial prospects for the immediate future seem to be encouraging. Conditions will, I think, gradually improve with easier money. By reason of the returning confidence and autumn conditions of last year, which permitted soil preparation on an unusual scale in all parts of the Dominion, the outlook for agricultural production this year is most favorable, and we may look forward to increased production in those other great departments, our forests, fisheries and mines."

"So far as the financial stringencies are concerned, we may consider that the worst is over. From this time forward, until the culmination of the next economic cycle, we are, on the economic experience of the past, justified in looking for much more normal monetary conditions."

"In any event, I think I may say with confidence that the revenue of the coming year will provide fully for consolidated fund expenditure and in large measure for all capital and special outlays."—From Finance Minister's budget delivered to the House yesterday.

RACE CRY IS USED IN MONTREAL'S ELECTION

"Teach Ontario a Lesson," Was Slogan of Mederic Martin--Traditional Understanding Upset by Voting Results

[By Special Wire to The Courier] MONTREAL, April 7.—The gloom that settled upon the English speaking people in this city at the first published results of the municipal elections yesterday which showed that in the success of Mederic Martin, M.P., as mayoralty candidate, and Joseph Ainey, Thomas Cote, E. N. Hebert and A. V. Roy, as controller, the English minority in the city had been deprived of a representative in these two important city departments, was relieved this morning when it was announced that as a result of an error in counting the votes, Duncan McDonald had been deprived of one thousand votes. These votes placed Mr. McDonald in the fourth place on the board of control, displacing Mr. Roy.

As far as the mayoralty was concerned, the most potent cry used was that made upon behalf of Mederic Martin, whose supporters asked the French people to teach Ontario a lesson by turning down the English speaking candidate, even though the traditional understanding that gave the majority to a Protestant once every 4 years had to be violated. Apart from the weight lent by his nationality, Martin had little to help him in the campaign, but a forceful personality and unquenchable optimism. He got no support from the newspapers, either French or English, and had little or no organization. However, having won, Mr. Martin has promised in an interview, that the English speaking people should receive full justice from him, though he has emphasized the fact that his

West Gains Are More Under The New Tariff Than Ever Before

[By Special Wire to The Courier] WINNIPEG, April 7.—Dealing with the budget speech as announced, the Telegram editorially says the West has gained not as much as it would like, but neither party to a compromise ever gains all it demands. The West, at all events, has gained more than it ever won from any other Government, and there is practical assurance that further reductions may follow. The thin edge of the wedge has entered, and there is reasonable ground for hope that experience with a lower tariff will be found to justify the ultimate acceptance of the views of the West." Speaking of the agitation for free wheat, the Telegram says: "There will be disappointment that the Finance Minister was unable to see his way clear to taking such steps as would open wider markets."

The Free Press does not discuss the budget.

Tariff Changes Will Not Disturb the Brantford Industrial Conditions

That the tariff changes as introduced in the House of Commons last evening by the Minister of Finance, are generally satisfactory to Brantford, was the opinion expressed by leading Brantford manufacturers to-day. Some changes have been effected, but they are not of far reaching effect. The following are some interviews on the matter: Mr. John Muir—"With reference to our industry, there is to say little change."

"Matters are satisfactory as far as your firm is concerned."

"Yes."

Mr. H. Cockshutt, of the Cockshutt Plc Co.—"I think the tariff had better have been left alone."

Mr. C. H. Waterous, of the Waterous Engine Works: "I haven't had time yet to go into the details very much. I don't think the changes affect our concern materially. The Canadian tariff is not now very high on most things, and it is my opinion it is a good thing to leave well enough alone."

Mr. F. Grobb, manager of the Massey-Harris Company is out of the city. Mr. Tench, Assistant Manager, said: "As far as I can see we get no relief in the mat-

Debate in Commons on Second Reading Was Sensational.

Both Parties Said to Have Clenched Teeth--Little Hope of Settlement.

[By Special Wire to The Courier] NEW YORK, April 7.—The London correspondent of The New York Tribune cables:

After a debate that did not bring the contending parties any nearer to a settlement, the Home Rule Bill was for the third time given a second reading in the House of Commons last night by a vote of 356 to 276. This majority of 80 is smaller than the government obtained at the two previous second reading divisions, the majority in 1912 going to 101 and last year 98.

In the division last night, two Liberals voted against the Government and another abstained from voting. The official Nationalist party, 73 voted for the bill. Mr. Roche, was away. All the O'Brienites, eight in number, took no part in the division. Two Liberals, Robert Balfour and Joseph Martin, who arrived at Liverpool on the Lusitania, during the afternoon, reached London in time to record their votes.

Many ministers avoided taking part in the debate. The strangest thing of all, was the absence of Sir Edward Grey. He has gone north for a day or two, leaving Lord Morley in charge of the foreign office.

John E. Redmond reverted to the full speed ahead policy as regards the existing bill. Sir John Simon, on behalf of the government, announced: "We have no alternative, but to go on with the bill as it stands, and that is our intention." But Sir John Simon contradicting the Nationalist leader, said that the six year exclusion of the Ulster counties was not dead and stood fully as it did the other day, but he definitely refused to go an inch further than that offer.

The obstacles in the way of settlement appears very small to all but party politicians. This is the position of the government. "An offer of exclusion to the Ulster counties for six years, at the end of which time they will come into the bill automatically, unless the imperial parliament otherwise decides. Sir Edward Carson will advise Ulster to accept the exclusion of six years, provided at the end of that time she is still left out till she enters of her own free will. Yesterday this small point constitutes an insuperable bar to the settlement."

The Nationalists, supported by the government won't contenance any possibility of the permanent exclusion of Ulster while the Carsonites cannot face the prospect that exclusion will not be permanent. John E. Redmond made a long speech, much of it in a conciliatory tone. For instance, he said:

"Sir Edward Carson and I are both Irishmen, we both love our country, we both hate all the old sectarian animosities, the old wrongs, all the memories that kept Ireland apart. Let us come together and see what we can do for the welfare of our country."

There was much more like that in Mr. Redmond's speech yet when he came to the end he declared: "All that remains is for the House to proceed with the bill as it stands."

Sir Edward Carson said Mr. Redmond had made absolutely no offer. "There had been a great deal of talk about solution," Home Minister Asquith said on Saturday that the bill must be peace with honor for both sides. "I am sure there is only one policy possible and that is to leave Ulster out until you have won her consent to come in."

The Unionists cheered, and Sir Edward passionately implored the government not to attempt to force the bill. It would be the making of bitter history, he warned them solemnly.

Sir John Simon declared the Federal scheme must not mean the postponement of the Home Rule Bill or impede the division of Ireland into two parts.

L. S. Amory made a new suggestion that the federal system of government should be considered at a national convention to which representatives would come as citizens and not as party politicians.

STRONG DEFENCE IN KRAFCHENKO'S TRIAL

Counsel for Defence Addressed Jury This Morning For Several Hours--Makes Strong Declaration.

MORDEN, Man., April 7.—A most extraordinary story so full of manifold impossibilities and so surrounded by lies that it is wholly discredited, this was the description to the jury in whose hands rests the fate of Jack Krafczenko, by J. D. Suffield, counsel for the defence, who, at the opening of the court this morning, began his last appeal for liberty for his client. Mr. Suffield, who spoke for several hours, pointed out various alleged discrepancies in Dyck's story as told on different occasions and emphasized its alleged impossibilities and absurdities. He spoke of the "stupid yarn" of Dyck, to the effect that Krafczenko met him in a dark lane the night before the robbery and insisted upon him making an automobile trip next day. "Dyck," he said "never was held up as he says. It was just part of a huge plot to try and fasten upon the accused a crime which he never committed. He says he knew Krafczenko by his voice, yet he did not know him the next day when he told him to drive on."

Mr. Suffield drew attention to the fact that at four o'clock on December 3, when, according to Dyck, he was just letting Krafczenko out of his car two miles west of Osborne, David Davis, according to the latter's evidence, was being interviewed by Krafczenko in Winnipeg in reference to a room.

Drawing attention to Dyck's extraordinary delay in making the return trip after making his trip from Plum Coulee, Mr. Suffield asked: "Was it during this interval that the money or part of it which is still missing, was disposed of? Was it then that the coat was planted? Referring to other overcoats, alleged to have been loaned to Krafczenko, which was found in the bushes."

STONE CUTTERS PLEASED TORONTO, April 7.—George Oakley, cut stone contractor, is elated over the tariff changes. The effect of the increase on building stone will be beneficial, he says. "It will mean that the work of cutting stone will in future be done in Canada. For years he knew Krafczenko by his voice, yet he did not know him the next day when he told him to drive on."

Mr. Suffield drew attention to the fact that at four o'clock on December 3, when, according to Dyck, he was

ALD. ENGLISH URGES BUYING MOTOR BUSES

Ald. J. W. English, at the City Council last night, called attention to what is regarded as an important problem in the motor bus business which has been flourishing for some time. He understood another company was about to be formed, and if it were so, that the city proposed to place restrictions on the bus business after acquiring the street railway, he thought the bus owners should be warned of such intentions. It was a legitimate business, and drastic action by the city would not be a fair procedure. Ald. English thought the city should take over the present motor bus business, and believed that it would be a paying adjunct in connection with the street railway. The Mayor and Ald. Hollinrake both said there would be an announcement in a few days as to what action would be recommended.

ALD. BRAGG FINDS AN IMPORTANT CLUE

Ald. Bragg is some detective. The representative of Ward Four laid bare to the Council last night his sleuth-like qualities in a way that was convincing. Just before the close of the proceeding, Ald. Bragg called attention to the manner of a theft committed in his constituency. A man called at a lady's house and said he came to examine the gas meter in the cellar. He was admitted, and while he was in the cellar he deftly opened one of the windows. A day or two later during absence of the occupants at church, a robbery took place, and the marauder made his entrance and exit by means of the cellar window, previously opened. This ingenious burglarizing, declared Ald. Bragg, should be stopped, and he wanted to know if a by-law could not be passed making all meter inspectors wear badge or uniform as a protection to the public. The Mayor was not sure on the point, and the city solicitor will be consulted.

WOULD BAR SYNAGOGUE FROM STREET

Lively Time in Council Last Night Over a By-Law Relating to William Street.

As reported in the Courier two weeks ago, a petition to make William St. a residential thoroughfare and thus prevent the erection of a Jewish synagogue on that street was in course of circulation. Last night it came before the City Council with 93 names subscribed to it and Ald. Pitcher introduced a by-law in which the wishes of the residents would be fulfilled.

Ald. Pitcher said very frankly that the object of the by-law was to prevent the erection of the proposed synagogue, and mentioned the fact that Mr. Lazarus, a member of the Jewish fraternity had signed the petition on the ground that a synagogue next to his place would be objectionable. "We want to prevent William street from becoming a Jewish settlement," said Ald. Pitcher. "The Canadian and American Jews are as good citizens as are found anywhere, but the Russian and other foreign Jews bone and rag collectors, which will congregate for the most part in the synagogue for a week at a time on certain occasions are objectionable, and are a detriment to the peace, prosperity and happiness of the neighborhood."

The introduction of the by-law brought forth a storm of protest from Ald. Sutch and Ald. Ward. The Council had nicely got to work on the by-law in committee of the whole and the storm broke loose. The by-law was finally withdrawn by Ald. Pitcher after wordy warfare with Ald. Ward, on the understanding that it would be introduced again at the next council meeting.

Ald. Ward Objects. At the very outset, Ald. Ward put up a vigorous fight for committee rights. He claimed that the matter had been referred to the board of works at the last meeting. Moreover, Ald. Pitcher should explain the reason for the by-law.

The City Clerk explained that one petition went to the board and a larger petition came in later and went to Ald. Pitcher's committee.

Non-Jury Court Opens

The half yearly sittings of the County Court, without jury was opened at the Court House yesterday when His Honor Judge Bird presided. There were five cases down for decision, three of the eight which had been on the list being withdrawn for a special hearing. These cases which are to be decided at a special hearing are perhaps the most important of the county court business as they involve Mayor Spence, W. A. Holmrake and Mr. McIntyre. The cases withdrawn are: Brantford Auto cycle v. Spence, Brantford Auto cycle v. Holmrake, Brantford Auto cycle v. McIntyre. Each of the defendants the plaintiff company alleges agreed to purchase stock in the company, but failed to do so and the Auto cycle Co. sues for damage. They claim that purchases were made on conditions which were not carried out.

The first case to come up for judgment was that of the Brantford Metal Company v. Sukernek. In this case Mrs. T. Lipovitch of this city, trading as the Brantford Metal Company, sued Louis Sukernek, a scrap metal dealer of Buffalo for the sum of $54, the amount of shortage and difference of metal which was not shipped to plaintiff by defendant as per contract. Mr. W. M. Charlton represented the plaintiff and Mr. A. L. Baird appeared on behalf of the defendant.

JUDICIAL AND BENEFICIAL

OTTAWA, April 7.—William H. Rowley, president of the E. B. Eddy Co., ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association thinks the revision of the tariff was a splendid stroke on the part of the government. "The general principle of it strikes me, after a superficial glance at it as being both judicious and beneficial," said Mr. Rowley.

"In the first place, I think it would have been a serious mistake to have declared for free wheat. Not because I have anything against the farmer, but I believe Canada would have suffered greatly by its crops being shipped across the border.

MILLINERS SATISFIED

Unfinished Business Disposed of—Two By-Laws Were Passed.

The unfinished business of the Township Council was concluded yesterday when the body resumed after attending the funeral of the late T. A. Cox.

By-laws Passed. Two new by-laws were passed, one for the purpose of opening a new street, known as Lee Avenue, and the other for the appointment of municipal officers, such as pathmasters, fence inspectors and poundkeepers.

The tender of Geo. Thompson for the building of the McIntyre bridge was accepted. The price was $884, as against: $890, Geo. Flic, Brantford; $1129, H. V. Vanderlip, Cainsville; and $1174, G. W. McFarlane, Paris.

The account of Devereux Bros. for painting a carriage was submitted to the township solicitor for a report. The complaint of John Wishart with regard to the bad state of the approach and crossing of the L. E. & N. on Curtis Avenue, Paris, was dealt with, and it was decided that the L. E. & N.'s attention be drawn to the bad state of affairs, and that they be instructed to repair the approach and make it presentable. The communication of T. McEachern re. debentures for sale, was received and led. The Trades and Labor Council will be notified with regard to their letter, that a regulating by-law concerning the width of township streets, is already in existence, and their attention will be directed to same.

There being no further business to deal with, the council adjourned until 10 o'clock on Monday, May 4th, why see a by-law.

On Wednesday night a reception was held at the Hartford Golf Club where the visiting delegates were entertained. Diversions on Thursday included a trip to the state library and supreme court building and a visit to the state capital, where the delegates were photographed. Friday afternoon there was a banquet in the assembly hall in the Lorm office building and a night at a banquet at the Hartford Club. Brantford sessions were held between these social engagements.

Lodge Notes

Eagle A. O. U. W.

A regular session of the Eagle Lodge, No. 166 of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, was held last night in the Temple building, when a crack team of degree men from the older lodge, attended, to conduct the initiation services, and among them were Bro. J. Graham, Master Workman Waterston and Bro. Farrer. Eleven applications were received and eight new members put through the initiation. A very impressive service was given to the memory of the late Bro. W. H. Jones. Messrs. T. A. Morris, Waterston and Graham spoke in high terms of their late fellow comrade and gave a brief story of his past life for twenty years. A vote of sympathy was passed to the widow and children, who are left in very straitened circumstances. A collection on their behalf realized a fair sum, and there was further promises which will bring the total to a good amount.

A very pleasant euchre party was then held and brought the evening's proceedings to a close.

C. P. R. SITUATION IS PROMISING

(From the Financial Post of Canada)

"I consider that the treatment accorded Canadian securities abroad last year as the best indication of how high Canadian credit stands in Europe. At a time when the financial condition of the whole world was at its lowest ebb, London and the Continent gave us all the funds we required for legitimate enterprises. This speaks for itself and is conclusive evidence of the high place in the world's credit in which Canada stands today." Such was the opinion expressed by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy in a special interview with the Post this week.

"The Canadian Pacific Railway will have no need to borrow further money for some time to come. A great deal of money will be spent this year on construction purposes, but we have a good deal of money in our treasury for this purpose. The Canadian Pacific Railway has been spending more money on its lines than it has borrowed; but it always has the debenture stock to fall back upon; that there are plenty of people who will buy this up." So said Sir Thomas Shaughnessy to THE Post.

Sir Thomas was not in a hurry to express himself as to the stock market outlook. "I would rather not say anything about whether the present is or is not a good time to buy securities," Sir Thomas said; "I am concerned more with the operation of this railway than with the movements of the stock market."

Regarding American railway securities, though I am of the opinion that these are bound to go up in price. The 5 per cent increase in the freight rates will place their earnings in a more satisfactory position. After the American Currency Bill gets properly operating, there should be plenty of money in the States for the purchase of securities.

"I look for business to rapidly pick up from now on," is the opinion of Sir Thomas. "Stocks of goods throughout the West are pretty well depleted, and must early be replaced. This in itself will mean a very substantial volume of business.

"We do not expect so many immigrants this year, as in 1912. But the difference in numbers will be made up by the importation of fewer ordinary laborers and workmen. During the past few years there has been very heavy demand for laborers for work in construction camps and various kinds of railroad workers. A

IMPORTANT BUDGET.

A considerable list of jute cloths, yarns used for the manufacture of socks and stockings, etc.

Wheat and Flour.
Taking up the question of the duty upon wheat and flour, Mr. White said: "A matter which engaged during the year the careful attention of the Government has been the so-called question of free wheat, which has been so much under discussion in the West and throughout Canada. The Underwood tariff of the United States, which came into effect on October 3, 1913, provides by items 644 that wheat, wheat flour, and semolina and other wheat products shall be entered free of duty from countries which do not impose a duty on wheat of wheat flour or semolina imported from the United States; otherwise the duty upon the wheat is fixed at 10 cents per bushel and upon wheat to ten per cent ad valorem. It is clear therefore that if Canada should place wheat, wheat flour and semolina on the free list our wheat and wheat products would be again free entry to the markets of the United States."

The Different Views
The minister then proceeded to set forth the views of those favorable and those opposed to Canada accepting the United States offer. It was claimed that "free wheat" would mean higher prices and better shipping facilities for Western farmers. The milling interests had opposed free wheat and placed the reasons before the government and the country. Speaking generally, said Mr. White it was not advisable that a nation's tariff should be so arranged as to fit into the particular features of that of other nations. In addition, Canada was engaged in great railroad enterprises to facilitate marketing her products. Under these circumstances it was felt that so great a change should not be made until the country was more certain as to the outcome of its railway development and the result to Western grain growers of the opening of the competitive routes afforded by the Hudson Bay Railway and Panama Canal.

"It is surely the part of wisdom," said Mr. White, "to await the outcome of these developments rather than to take a step now which might involve the risk of grave and irreparable injury to our milling, and by consequence to our live stock industry and to our transportation systems through the diversion of traffic to routes other than Canada. In the meantime, realizing the economic conditions surrounding grain production in the West and the supreme and vital necessity that the net price of his grain to the farmer should be as high as circumstances will permit the government will continue to devote itself to the solution of the question of freight rates, of elevator companies and other agencies whose aggregate of charges take under political considerations such a formidable toll from the price at which the product of the Western grain fields sells on the world market at Liverpool."

Increase Duties.
The Government had therefore decided to take authority by order-in-council to increase the duty on all mill products up to 120 pounds per lineal yard to the $4.25, $6 and $7.00 rates per ton.

The minister then announced that the Government had acquiesced on representations made by the steel companies that wire rods, which were now on the free list, should receive a moderate amount of protection. There were, he said, large mills at Hamilton and Sydney, which were only in partial operation. The proposal to increase duty on wire rods had been proposed by nail makers, other than these two big companies. On nails the existing duty was 60 cents per keg, an average of about 30 per cent. The Government proposed to place a duty on wire rods of $2.25 British preference, and $3.50 intermediate and general, per ton. Mr. White assured the house that if the manufacturers to whom this favor was being granted took advantage of the benefit to oppress the consumers the duty would be lowered. There would be, in connection with this change, he said, provision for a drawback of duty on wire of the gauge of 9, 12 and 13, which are used for farm fences.

The minister announced an increase in the existing drawback on imported pig iron which is used in the manufacture of articles for export. There was a technical provision which would be clarified by a resolution to be presented to the House later. With the drawback as it stands now, manufacturers who manufacture for export have a special inducement to buy pig iron abroad because only one-third of the duty paid on raw material in the existing drawback on imported pig iron was refunded. Under the proposed change, when the imported ore has been smelted down with Canadian ore. Under the new regulation a drawback of the entire duty would be provided.

Charcoal.
The minister also announced that charcoal for pig iron production would be put on the free list, the same as coke is at present, but it was further proposed that bituminous coal when imported for the purpose of manufacturing coke for smelting and foundry use, should be allowed a drawback of 99 per cent of the duty.

Mr. White said that under the present tariff wrought or seamless iron or steel tubing over four inches in diameter, was subject to a duty of 10 per cent. British preference, 12 1/2 per cent, intermediate and 15 per cent general. Tubing four inches or less in diameter was subject to rates of 20, 30 and 35 per cent, respectively. He proposed to increase the duty of these latter figures on all tubing up to 10 inches in diameter. The 99 per cent, granted in drawback on imported tubing has been changed to 55 per cent.

The question of duty on agricultural implements, to which great interest is attached, come next. Mr. White said that all governments in Canada had recognized the importance of fixing duties on agricultural implements as reasonable as possible having regard to the fiscal policy. It was important that the implements of the farmers should cost them as little as possible. The average rate of duty to-day on agricultural implements was 17 1/2 and 20 per cent.

Referring to the resolution previously moved by Mr. Knowlton of Moosejaw, for free agricultural implements, Mr. White asked what would be the position of the manufacturer of agricultural implements if the duty was entirely abolished. He pointed out that he paid duty on the material which went into his factories at rates ranging from 20 to 30 per cent. Were they prepared to take a further step and abolish the duties upon all products entering into the manufacture of such implements. Only by doing this would they accomplish the end in view for only then could the Canadian manufacturer hold his own with the implement makers of the United States.

Must Have Assistance.
The cost of production in Canada was necessarily higher than in the republic because the total amount of machinery manufactured was a great deal less. The freight rates also were much lower from Chicago to Winnipeg than from Hamilton to Winnipeg. The Canadian manufacturer was at a disadvantage to his American competitor. If they swept away all duties the result would be that they would transfer the implement business of Canada to the United States and depopulate some of the Dominion's most thriving towns, only that the American trust might gain the Canadian market and dictate prices at its own sweet will.

There were 77 establishments in Canada with an invested capital of $45,000,000, employing some 9,560 men and paying out annual salaries of $5,000,000. The value of the finished product was $20,700,000 per year. There were no less than 54 manufacturing plants in Ontario in 43 places and distributed in 35 electoral districts. The adoption of a policy of free agricultural implements as advocated by the Liberals, would undoubtedly destroy the industry. The government had approached the subject in a rational way, had made investigations for over a year into factory cost and output and had examined the balance sheets of manufacturers to see what were their profits.

Mr. White then announced that as a result of the inquiry made he had decided that the duties could be changed on only one class of agricultural implements without disturbing the industry. This class included harvesters, reapers, binders and mowers, and were manufactured by four Ontario firms: The Massey-Harris Co., Toronto; the International Harvester Co. of Hamilton; Frost and Wood of Smith's Falls; and the Noxon Co. of Ingersoll. There were a couple of points of differentiation whereby the manufacturers of those agricultural implements have an advantage over the makers of other implements.

Highly Developed.
In the first place they are among the most highly developed industries in the world and are not only able to hold their own but in some cases to best their competitors in the markets of the world. In the second place the makers of this line of implements enjoy a drawback on iron and steel used in their production, which is equivalent to about two and a half per cent. on all harvesters and mowers made in Canada. Having regard therefore to the highly developed nature of this industry and that it enjoyed this drawback, the Government after careful consideration had come to the conclusion that the duty on harvesters, reapers, binders and mowers could stand a reduction from the present tariff of 17 1/2 to 12 1/2 per cent. (Conservative cheers.)

"This reduction, Mr. White pointed out was just double what was proposed in the celebrated reciprocity agreement, and, with the drawback on iron and steel, would practically put this class of implements on a 10 per cent basis. He added that having regard to the greater output and the lower freight rates enjoyed by American manufacturers the proposed reductions were as much as it was advisable to make if these industries were to be retained in Canada.

TARIFF CHANGES.

Hon. Mr. White, in a very lucid speech, explained certain tariff changes. The demand to have wheat put on the free list was very properly ignored. This clamor has arisen nearly altogether in the West, whose residents are all the time wanting something at the expense of others. The agitators under them seem to forget that under protection Canadian wheat is kept for the domestic market and has led to the expenditure of millions of dollars in the flour mills, with a beneficial output of mill feed for live stock. In addition to jeopardize the grain haul on Canadian railways would have a tendency to increase prices in other transportation directions. In any event, it is much better for Canada to keep her wheat and flour reputation rather than having them entangled with our neighbors.

$200,000 for a fund to provide a decent living for the blackmailers of the Montreal Press. "I have paid no attention to the insinuations of certain blackmailing papers whose editors have made improper suggestions to me, and being discouraged, have used the columns at their disposal for the conveyance of abuse. I had hoped during a recent conspiracy trial to have been questioned by a lawyer as to this insinuated ownership of Tramway stock, but the lawyer evaded it."

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Winter is still a lap ahead of Spring.

The Toronto Globe is very much disgusted with the revised tariff. In fact its rage is tariffic, as it always is with reference to anything done by a Conservative Government.

A Russian millionaire left $100,000 in his will to have his coffin conveyed to the graveside in an aeroplane. A young airman did the trick and nearly lost his own life in making a landing. The deceased evidently took an airy view of things after death.

What's that? Sir Hugh Graham of the Montreal Star in a light and airy way offering to wager one million simoleons. He evidently has a tendency to run into columns not only in his own newspaper, but also with regard to the figures in his bank account.

With the City Police

John Malcolm Grant, a vagrant, promised to shake the dust of Brantford from off his feet at the police court this morning, and upon this condition he was allowed to go, but dire consequences will result if he does not keep his word.

Two brothers, by name of Thos. and William Cheavers were charged with the theft of tools from the Simpson Carriage works on Friday night last. A workman had put his tools on the bench at 6 o'clock at night, and next morning he found that they had disappeared. He reported the matter, and subsequently the brothers were arrested upon the charge. This morning they pleaded not guilty and were remanded for a week in order that the police might make further investigations, as they think they are on the track of a gang which has operated with some success in Brantford of recent weeks. Both of defendants are young men, one being about 29 and the other 25 years of age.

MONTREAL CIVIC ELECTIONS

It seems to be impossible in Montreal to prevent the triumph of the reactionary elements in municipal affairs.

This year Major Washington Stephens, a man of large means and high reputation for his work on the Harbor Board, and in other directions, was prevailed upon to run, as it was the turn for an English-speaking mayor. Until a week ago the French-Canadian candidate, Mederic Martin, M.P., was not supposed to have a chance of a show, but the race cry was brought into play, and he was the victor by thousands.

The main issue of the fray was the "Tramway interests." The company want a forty-year extension of their exceedingly valuable franchise, and there is said to have been a big campaign fund in that regard. As the outcome, they not only have a mayor who is favorable, but also a majority on the Board of Control. The heat of the fight is well exemplified by a statement of Sir Hugh Graham in his paper, the Montreal Star, of Friday last, as follows:

Montreal, 2nd April, 1914.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star: Sir—At one of the city clubs the other evening there was a general discussion of the civic elections among a group of members. All agreed that St. George was the man for controller. During the discussion a member ventured the question: Can you believe it true that Sir Hugh Graham is the owner of ten thousand shares of Tramway stock, as has been insinuated? It can easily be seen that the reiteration of insinuations in certain papers might lead to the creation of such an impression. I think it would be well, if you are in a position to do so, to make some statement on this subject.

Yours,

A READER. (This letter was shown to Sir Hugh Graham, who said: "The question may have been asked in perfect good faith, as the result of repeated insinuations. You may publish the letter, and give my statement as follows: Not only do I not own ten thousand shares of Tramway stock, but, as it happens, I do not own one share, and have no option, promise or expectation of shares. I remember some years ago my secretary having bought in the open market for my brother a small lot of Street Railway shares. That is the nearest I ever came to owning Tramway stock. This statement is made subject to investigation, which I am willing to facilitate in every way in my power. If found incorrect I will send a cheque to the new Mayor of Montreal for a million dollars, to be divided as follows: $100,000 to the General Hospital, $100,000 to the Notre Dame Hospital,

Miss Gould's Work Clever

At the Colborne St. Methodist church last night, Miss Cora Gould made a profound impression with her clever rendering of two selected recitations. Miss Gould's work is above all things essentially artistic. She has a deep intellectual grasp of the subtle shades of language, and possesses the happy faculty of so completely forgetting herself in the character presented that her audience likewise forgets her. It was not Miss Gould, but the character herself who was speaking to the audience. In both act and speech she was free from the stereotyped manner, common to many readers and reciters. An encore was demanded.

Representatives of several municipalities will wait on the Legislative assembly at Toronto, on Wednesday asking for the support of a scheme for the care of the feeble-minded. Mr. W. S. Brewster, M.P.P., will represent the city at the conference.

Market Clerk McAuley found a number of loads of coal which he weighed during March to be overweight. There will be no prosecutions.

Bread Inspector Glover reported that weight regulations were being well observed in the city.

A Jordan made an application for the position of garbage collector.

Turner & Co., of Peterboro, offered to decorate the city in honor of the coming visit of the Duke of Connaught.

City Engineer Jones had a very lengthy list of local improvements which he recommended this year.

Mayor Spence was informed by Ald. Ward that paving Park avenue was a legal question. The Westminster Company held a contract given to it three years ago but the city did not want their pavement. If a contract were let to another company and pavement constructed the matter would, probably have to be fought out in the courts.

The quorum present was as follows: Mayor Spence, Ald. Ward, Bragg, Ryerson, Woolams, Sutch, Broadbent, Pitcher, Sigman, Wood, English, Quinlan, Robinson, Hollinrake, Calbeck.

Geo. A. Kett Rawdon street, complained against the practice of people riding bicycles and auto-cycles on the sidewalk. Ald. Bragg pointed out that the street was the most disgraced of any in the entire city. The matter went to the Board of Works.

Ald. Hollinrake, chairman of the Finance committee wanted Relief Officer Eddy to submit vouchers for the various disbursements each month. A resolution was passed asking for a detailed bill each month from the Relief Officer which will include a list of people to whom charity had been dispensed. Ald. Ryerson thought the Relief Officer should be on the same basis as all others. Ald. Calbeck said he heard of a case only Monday where a party asked for assistance and the case was a deserving one and the Relief Officer refused to grant assistance.

In regard to the report on the General Hospital, Mayor Spence thought that Relief Officer Eddy should investigate each indigent case. Other cities were sticking Brantford for Brantford patients in their hospitals and it was time Brantford retaliated. The Mayor believed a careful inquiry would result in a considerable saving. The Mayor said he had not signed an order for a patient to go to the hospital since he had been mayor. Apparently the doctors loaded up the hospital. Last year the Brantford hospital did not have a bill against any other hospital. The claim had to be made within 14 days against any other city, and it had to pay unless it was disputed.

Ald. Ryerson said Bell Telephone company should be made to put up decent poles. Some of the poles recently were knotty and they should not be allowed to put them up.

Messrs. Stedman Brothers want a hydrant at their factory on George street.

The Hydro-Electric time list amounting to $1524 was passed.

Ald. Ward was wondering if the finance committee was ungalant enough to shelve the petition of the Equal Franchise Club. Ald. Hollinrake replied that the matter was still under prayerful consideration. At the last meeting of the committee only three members were present and it was felt that a question of such magnitude should be considered by the full committee.

The Mayor and finance committee and chairman of standing committees were authorized to make all necessary arrangements for the welcome to the Duke of Connaught. Commanding officers of the military will be consulted.

Ald. Pitcher, Ryerson, Mayor Spence and Dr. Pearson will confer with the county authorities in regard to the location of a smallpox hospital.

Tarzan of The Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey Company.

Three miles were covered before Tarzan overtook them, and then Terkoz, seeing that further flight was futile, dropped to the ground in a small open glade that he might turn and fight for his prize or be free to escape unhampered if he saw that the pursuer was more than a match for him.

He still grasped Jane Porter in one great arm as Tarzan bounded like a leopard into the arena which nature had provided for this primeval-like battle.

When Terkoz saw that it was Tarzan who pursued him he jumped to the conclusion that this was Tarzan's woman since they were of the same kind—white and hairless—and so he rejoiced at this opportunity for double revenge upon his hated enemy.

To Jane Porter the apparition of this godlike man was as wine to sick nerves. From the description which Clayton and her father and Mr. Philander had given her she knew that it must be the same wonderful creature who had saved them, and she saw in him only a protector and a friend.

But as Terkoz pushed her roughly aside to meet Tarzan's charge and she saw the great proportions of the ape and the mighty muscles and the fierce fangs her heart quailed. How could any animal vanquish such a mighty antagonist?

Like two charging bulls they came together and like two wolves sought each other's throat. Against the long blades of the ape was pitted the thin blade of the man's knife.

Jane Porter—her little form flattened against the trunk of a great tree, her hands tight pressed against her rising and falling bosom and her eyes wide with mingled horror, fascination, fear and admiration—watched the primordial ape battle with the primeval man for possession of a woman—for her.

As the great muscles of the man's back and shoulders knotted beneath the tension of his efforts and the huge biceps and forearm held at bay those mighty tusks the yell of centuries of civilization and culture was swept from the blurred vision of the Baltimore girl. When the thin knife drank deep a dozen times of Terkoz's heart's blood and the great carcass rolled lifeless upon the ground it was a primeval woman who sprang forward with outstretched arms toward the primeval man who had fought for her and won her.

And Tarzan? He did what no red blooded man needs lessons in doing. He took his woman in his arms and smothered her with kisses.

For a moment Jane Porter lay there with half closed eyes. But as suddenly as she had been withdrawn it dropped again, and an outraged conscience suffused her face with its scarlet mantle, and a mortified woman thrust Tarzan of the apes from her and buried her face in her hands.

Tarzan had been surprised when he had found the girl he had learned to love after a vague and abstract manner a willing prisoner in his arms. Now he was surprised that she repulsed him.

He came close to her once more and took hold of her arm. She turned upon him like a tigress, striking his great breast with her tiny hands.

Tarzan could not understand it. A moment ago and it had been his intention to hasten Jane Porter back to her people, but that moment was lost. Since then Tarzan of the apes had felt the warm form close pressed to his. The hot, sweet breath against his cheek and mouth had fanned a new flame to life within his breast.

Again he laid his hand upon her arm. Again she repulsed him. And then Tarzan of the apes did just what his first ancestor would have done.

He took his woman in his arms and carried her into the jungle.

Early the following morning the four within the little cabin by the beach were awakened by the booming of a cannon. Clayton was the first to rush out, and there, beyond the harbor's mouth, he saw two vessels lying at anchor.

One was the Arrow and the other a small French cruiser. The sides of the latter were crowded with men gazing shoreward, and it was evident to Clayton, as to the others, who had now joined him, that the gun which they had heard had been fired to attract their attention if they still remained at the cabin.

By means of a bonfire the attention of the cruiser was gained, and a boat was lowered and dispatched toward the beach.

As it was drawn up a young officer stepped out. He was met by Clayton. "M. Clayton, I presume," he asked.

"Thank heaven, you have come!" was Clayton's reply. "And it may be that it is not too late even now."

"What do you mean, monsieur?" asked the officer.

Clayton told of the abduction of Jane Porter and the need of armed men to aid in the search for her.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the officer. Among the officers in the last boats to put off from the cruiser was the commander of the vessel, and when he had heard the story of Jane Porter's abduction he generously called for volunteers to accompany Professor Porter and Clayton in their search.

BOOK of the HOUR

MEXICO AND THE UNITED STATES

A Thrilling Story

Of Revolution, Intervention and War

By FREDERICK STARR, of the University of Chicago

Tells not only what is known of the earliest inhabitants of the country, but it also gives a careful, most absorbing account of the course of government and the conditions and modes of life of the people since the invasion and conquest of the Spaniards. It traces the development of railroads, commerce and progress, and the vital part which foreign capitalists and adventurers have played. It portrays the cruel rule of the Spanish viceroys, the terrors of slavery and peonage, and the oppression of the working people. It describes the winning of freedom in Mexico, the Texan revolution, the war with the United States, the French invasion, the empire of Maximilian, the rise of Diaz and the development of the peculiar, complicated conditions that have resulted in the present situation.

A Country Exploited for Benefit of the Few

It is in the revelation of Mexico's intolerable political and economic conditions that the book possesses one of its chief values. The story of the evils which exist in Mexico has never been adequately told. All previous attempts have been suppressed by powerful influences. Now, however, in this volume is given a complete description of the conditions which exist—a description which will arouse a nation and compel reformation.

The Eyes of the Civilized World are upon Mexico.

All nations are to-day watching unhappy Mexico, where bullets are more potent than ballots, and where the force of arms has replaced the consent of the people in maintaining a form of government. The struggle which is being carried on for the establishment of justice and civil rights is, of greater moment than merely its effect upon Mexicans.

To be fully informed on this very vital question one must read this book. Over 400 large octavo pages. $3.50. Fine super paper. Over 100 great photographs, maps and portraits. Artistically bound in fine book cloth.

The plans were drawn by Mr. Whitstein, manager of Stedman Bros. Limited, who has shown great taste in his work. One represents an old timer running for Brantford for the week and the inscription on it is "Brantford Old Home Week, August 10th to 15th."

Another one with an Indian head, bears the same inscription; while the crest of the third is that of two "old boys" meeting here that week. All the pennants are exceptionally well drawn and the executive will have a difficult job selecting one as the official pennant.

The colors which have been adopted will work in perfect harmony with any of the diagrams and will no doubt be made into a handsome pennant. OUTSIDE SERVICE

Township Residents on the Boundary Line Can Secure Civic Water. Whether residents of the Township living on the outside of the city boundary streets should be given water service from the mains which are already constructed along these streets was a fine point which came up yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Water Commission and was at night introduced into the council by Mayor Spence. Commissioner Fair is in favor of such an extension of the service while Commissioner Montgomery is opposed to the same. The Mayor wanted the opinion of the council. It was pointed out that if a water service was given to the suburban residents an inducement to get their district incorporated into the city when the time came for annexation would be removed. At the same time there was a capital investment and it was desirable to get as big a return as possible. Mayor Spence said that the township residents would have to pay the entire cost of connection and also double water rates. The Mayor said that the city reserved the right to cut off the supply at any time. After a general discussion it was found that the council favored the granting of the service, which means merely that connections can be made with mains already laid, but that no mains will be extended outside the city.

COLBORNE STREET ANNIVERSARY SUPPER

An Enjoyable Event Held Last Night Was Largely Attended. The twenty-sixth anniversary of the birth of the Colborne Street Methodist church was fittingly celebrated last night when a social evening was held. It was a great success from every standpoint. The attendance was good, the speakers were good, and the artists who entertained were good, and indications point to the fact that the results will be good. The genial pastor, the Rev. T. E. Holling, presided and he made an excellent chairman. During his opening remarks he said he was sorry that he had not been present at the Sunday services and it was somewhat appropriate that he should preside at this social. He congratulated the members of the church upon the splendid results of their work. He was pleased to see it in such a position, and thanked God for their measure of success. Two new churches had been established and he wished them every success. Colborne street Methodist church had worked hand in hand with the other churches of the city and the speaker held that by this means only God's work could be done. Churches must not work only in their own selfish interest but for the good of the church as a whole. Colborne street church was one of the foremost of the Methodist churches of the city, as was proved by their moral contributions. Pastor and people must work together to achieve results and he was pleased to note the splendid co-operation of the church. Nothing that God bid us do, is there that we cannot do, he said. He wished to say that the congregation had a splendid example in the pastor, who was greatly beloved by the people of the church. With every wish for the success of the church he concluded.

Mr. S. M. Fry, the treasurer, read a report which showed a very satisfactory state of financial affairs. The Rev. A. E. Lavell, who was described as the Methodist chief of Brantford, gave an excellent address extolling the good work accomplished at the church and conveyed the thanks of the Methodist conference, as chairman of that body, to the members of the church. The church would, he said, in time become so strong that the power of the devil would be useless. The reverend gentleman then assumed the character of an entertainer and no better raconteur could be found. His versatility was great and he had to respond to an encore after giving some clever character studies, with their accompanying dialects. As an elocutionist, Miss Cora Gould probably has no equal west of Toronto. With a pleasing platform presence a clear enunciation, and a sympathetic rendering she has already established for herself a name of great merit. Her selection last night "By Courier," showed a keen and appreciative insight of human nature and was so well received that an encore was demanded, and responded to by Miss Gould who recited cleverly "He Was Scotch and So Was She" by Jean Biewett. Mr. J. B. Hills rendered a first-class solo and took part in the church quartette who rendered harmoniously several airs to the gratification of the audience. They had not yet decided upon a name for the quartette. A charming and pleasant way of serving up refreshments, which were heartily enjoyed ended the evening and concluded last night's part of a most successful anniversary celebration.

NO STREET PAVING Erie Ave. Work Will Not be Proceeded With This Year. Although the Board of Works and City Council are in favor of the construction of a pavement on Erie Ave. in Eagle Place, prospects are that the work will not be done this year, according to Ald. Geo. Ward, who made this statement this morning. The reason given is that the street railway tracks will have to be torn up and relaid, and this work cannot be started till late in the summer. The board of works understands thoroughly the great need of a pavement on this street and they will do all in their power to rush the work along. The storm sewer and curb will be put in this year anyway and the road put into condition for the work to commence a year from this Spring. Ald. Ward said that by the time the city acquires the street railway and the work of repairing the tracks in this locality, is commenced, the summer will be too far advanced to allow work on the pavement to begin. However, Eagle Place residents will have a new road one year from now.

Music and Drama Brant Theatre. Manager Ernie Moule of the Brant Theatre presents to the Brantford theatregoers for the first half of this week an exceptionally good bill, of vaudeville and moving pictures. Two packed houses greeted the two performances yesterday, and with the high order of the bill, should be greeted by capacity houses for the remainder of the engagement. Crouse and Radcliff present a high class comedy sketch of singing, talking and eccentric dancing, which is very clever. New jokes and new songs are their specialty, the male member of the team putting on some very clever dancing steps. McEwen and Grant present an exceptionally high class comedy acrobatic stunt which is very good. Art Comus in his Marionette Novelty featuring his Italian street song and a clever line of talk receives well merited applause for his act. Ames and Corbett present a clever and witty singing, talking and dancing act which takes well. With a good line of jokes, they complete their act with a clever drum dance which is exceptionally good. The feature act is presented by Cline, Joy and Cline, in the singing and pianologue. This act is exceptionally clever. They introduce a clever line of comedy with some splendid harmonious song and a clever pianologue. This act is right off Shea's circuit and Manager Moule is to be complimented on his selection. The feature picture is the Vitagraph, Wild Beasts at large, and is very good. With two other reels of high class films, the Brant this week presents a very clever bill, and one, no doubt, which will be patronized for the remainder of the engagement. At the Colonial. Before a big crowd last night at the Colonial Theatre, Manager Symons presented for Brantford theatre goers approval one of the classic acts that has been seen here for some time featuring Young and Burton and the Caine Sisters in a clever musical comedy skit entitled "A Day in a Department Store." To say the least it is clever. Artie Young in the part of Meyer Cohen, son of Abe Cohen; Sydney Burton is exceedingly clever. Both these men impersonate the part of Jews to perfection and their jokes and witticisms provoke well merited applause. The three Caine Sisters each playing a leading part are very clever. Agnes Caine as C. O. D.; Jane who ran a gambling game was extra cute, and the way she won $500 from the Jews was good. Ada Caine and Dolly Caine in the parts of the Pompon Sisters are both splendid; Martha Garman, as Tiny Foot of the Shoe Department; Rose Green as Minnie Blouse of the Waist Fluffy Ruffles of the Underwear Department; Sylvia Stern as Kitty Mitt of the Glove Department, and May Keith as Bonnie Whale of the Corset

The feature picture is the Vitagraph, Wild Beasts at large, and is very good. With two other reels of high class films, the Brant this week presents a very clever bill, and one, no doubt, which will be patronized for the remainder of the engagement. At the Colonial. Before a big crowd last night at the Colonial Theatre, Manager Symons presented for Brantford theatre goers approval one of the classic acts that has been seen here for some time featuring Young and Burton and the Caine Sisters in a clever musical comedy skit entitled "A Day in a Department Store." To say the least it is clever. Artie Young in the part of Meyer Cohen, son of Abe Cohen; Sydney Burton is exceedingly clever. Both these men impersonate the part of Jews to perfection and their jokes and witticisms provoke well merited applause. The three Caine Sisters each playing a leading part are very clever. Agnes Caine as C. O. D.; Jane who ran a gambling game was extra cute, and the way she won $500 from the Jews was good. Ada Caine and Dolly Caine in the parts of the Pompon Sisters are both splendid; Martha Garman, as Tiny Foot of the Shoe Department; Rose Green as Minnie Blouse of the Waist Fluffy Ruffles of the Underwear Department; Sylvia Stern as Kitty Mitt of the Glove Department, and May Keith as Bonnie Whale of the Corset

Music and Drama Brant Theatre. Manager Ernie Moule of the Brant Theatre presents to the Brantford theatregoers for the first half of this week an exceptionally good bill, of vaudeville and moving pictures. Two packed houses greeted the two performances yesterday, and with the high order of the bill, should be greeted by capacity houses for the remainder of the engagement. Crouse and Radcliff present a high class comedy sketch of singing, talking and eccentric dancing, which is very clever. New jokes and new songs are their specialty, the male member of the team putting on some very clever dancing steps. McEwen and Grant present an exceptionally high class comedy acrobatic stunt which is very good. Art Comus in his Marionette Novelty featuring his Italian street song and a clever line of talk receives well merited applause for his act. Ames and Corbett present a clever and witty singing, talking and dancing act which takes well. With a good line of jokes, they complete their act with a clever drum dance which is exceptionally good. The feature act is presented by Cline, Joy and Cline, in the singing and pianologue. This act is exceptionally clever. They introduce a clever line of comedy with some splendid harmonious song and a clever pianologue. This act is right off Shea's circuit and Manager Moule is to be complimented on his selection. FADING AT THIRTY When Women Should be in the Prime of Charm and Beauty. At thirty to thirty-five a woman should be in the prime of charm and beauty, and yet many women begin to fade before then. Wrinkles appear and the complexion grows sallow. Dark rings around the eyes, and headaches follow, with backache and low spirits. The cause of this is simply need of blood nourishment. Good, pure blood is the life of a woman's beauty and health. It is good blood that brings the glow of health to the cheek, brightness to the eye, and elasticity to the step, and the general happiness of good health. When woman feels jaded and worn out, her blood supply needs attention, and the one unrivalled and sure remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which supply the rich, red blood that repairs the waste, dispels disease and restores the brightness and charm of womanly health. Mrs. H. G. Hart, Winnipeg, Man., is one of the thousands of sufferers who owe her present health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says, "I had suffered for a long time, not knowing what the trouble was, I had doctored with several doctors, but only seemed to be growing worse. The last doctor I had told me the trouble was anaemia, that my blood was turned to water and that my condition was serious. But his treatment, like the rest, did me no good. I got so bad that if I excited myself, or went up stairs, I was completely out of breath and felt as if I was going to suffocate. My heart would palpitate violently, and at times I would suffer with terrible pains from it. I had a yellow complexion, my lips had lost their color, and I had no appetite and could not eat. I grew so weak I could hardly drag myself along, and my feet seemed to have weights on them. I was so completely run down that I thought I was going into consumption. At this time a friend urged me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes I found my health improving, and after taking the Pills for a couple of months I was entirely well, and have since enjoyed the best of health, and I feel that I can never say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or sent by mail at $2.50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOME RULE FAR FROM SETTLED

Andrew Bonar Law made the following definite offer to the government: "I will submit the bill with your proposals to a general election. If the country approves the Lords will pass the bill without delay and without depriving the government of the advantage of the Parliament act."

Augustine Birrell, who would open a debate for the government said he did not believe in the possibility of civil war.

A crowd of Irishmen gathered outside the house during the evening and gave vent to their enthusiasm over the division by cheering and waving green flags at Mr. Redmond, who was quickly recognized as he left the house and was given an ovation.

Nearer Civil War

Montreal, April 7.—A day nearer civil war is how The London Daily Graphic summarizes the political situation as a result of the vote on the Irish Home Rule Bill in the House of Commons last night, according to a cable to The Montreal Daily Mail.

"The division on the second reading of the bill," says The Graphic editorially, "was taken with a settlement a long way distant. Everybody was crying 'peace,' but sharpening the knife at the same time."

The Daily Mail correspondent adds: "Little talk is heard in the parliamentary lobbies of a compromise. The Unionists, in analyzing the division lists, make a great point of the reduction of the government majority."

Clenched Teeth Now. MONTREAL, April 7.—The London correspondent of The Gazette quotes The London Standard (Unionist) as saying that while there were radiant possibilities of a settlement when the debate on the second reading of the Home Rule Bill first opened, they disappeared in an hour yesterday, with both sides showing clenched teeth.

On the other hand The Daily News (government) is quoted as saying that the omens are peaceful, "but that is the only development. All the various plans for conciliation have been canvassed once more, yet no bargain has been struck and a settlement is referred to the silent interval which must elapse before the third reading."

WOULD BAR SYNAGOGUE

Ald. Ward wanted to know what the by-law meant. What was a residential district legally?

The Mayor—"I am not the legal light sitting here on the bench, and cannot go into legal definitions."

Ald. Ward—Could a church be built there?

The Mayor—"It's a house of worship; it might be, I'm not prepared to say."

After considerable more catch and catch can wrestling, Ald. Ward demanded to know what motive there was behind the by-law.

Ald. Pitcher remarked that if Ald. Ward would only wait a second, he would find out. He was so used to getting up and blowing off at half cock, that while the council was thoroughly used to it, and never disappointed in what to expect from Ald. Ward, still it grew tiresome.

Ald. Pitcher then stated pretty plainly what the object of the by-law was. It was to prevent the erection of a Jewish synagogue on Wellington street, and he did not care who knew it. The petition was signed by 93 residents. Ald. Pitcher said he did not circulate the petition. The erection of a synagogue, Ald. Pitcher declared, would doubtless be a detriment to the street. The Jews of all kinds of extraction would gather there in numbers and it would attract foreigners. "We don't want William street to be a Jewish settlement."

Another for Brant Avenue At this stage some one asked as to what became of the petition regarding Brant Avenue. It had mysteriously gone out of sight.

Ald. Ryerson said he had circulated the petition for Brant Avenue and was withholding it for a time. He didn't want it mixed up with William street, as he did not think the latter would pass.

This aroused Ald. Pitcher's ire, who exclaimed to Ald. Ryerson that he had no right to take a whack at William street.

Ald. Ryerson replied that he was not taking a whack at William St., but was stating his belief. His petition to make Brant Avenue a residential district had regard for the future. It would not prevent the Government from building the new army, because the government had rights in this respect which could not be over-ruled by a by-law. As far as he was personally concerned, he was not opposed to an army building at the corner because something worse and less pretensions might be put there. It was desirable, said Ald. Ryerson, from the viewpoint of general civic interest, that Brant Avenue, an important approach from the west, should be kept as a residential thoroughfare only.

Strong Protests. Herguson Ald. Ward launched on a vigorous protest against the William street by-law. "The Jews of this city," said he, "are just as good morally, physically and intellectually as William street residents, and they were among the best citizens of Brantford. They were heavy taxpayers, and he could not understand why such a by-law should be rushed through without giving the Jews a chance to be heard."

Ald. Sutch was particularly vigorous. He was informed that it was true that the Jews had already bought property on the street. If William street people object to places of worship, where were the Jews going to build? No objection would be raised to any other denomination. "If a church of worship is a nuisance, it gets me. It is the most unheard of thing ever attempted in this council," declared Ald. Sutch in impassioned tones.

Ald. Pitcher said it was a funny thing that Mr. Lazarus, a Jew himself, would sign the petition. "I showed pretty plainly that a synagogue was not desirable as a next door neighbor, and that all kinds of foreigners would be attracted to the neighborhood."

Ald. Ward—"It's not right." Ald. Pitcher—"What's not right?" Ald. Ward—"Those statements." Ald. Pitcher—"Are you a Jew?"

Thereupon Chairman Hollinrake called Ald. Ward down for interrupting the speaker.

Ald. Pitcher also came back. Ald. Ward, he said, could shoot his hot air all he wanted to, and no one else could say a word. It came out so easily and regularly that it couldn't be stopped with a galling gun. Ald. Pitcher said he was not trying to railroad the by-law through, and he was willing to hold it over until the next meeting and give everybody a chance to be heard. This was done, and the matter temporarily closed.

INVESTIGATED PENNY BANKS

Messrs. Kilmer and Rowe Visited City of Toronto Yesterday.

School Inspector E. E. C. Pilmer and Principal J. S. Rowe of Dufferin school yesterday visited the Penny Bank and a number of schools in Toronto with a view of recommending the establishing of a penny bank system in this city.

In their visit both gentlemen learned much about the methods of running the bank, and the results it has in Toronto. Next Thursday night it has the meeting of the School Board, Mr. Kilmer will submit a report to the members recommending the system given a trial in this city.

In part, and also that the bank be in Toronto. One of the greatest benefits the bank has is to teach the children to save their money. In many cities instances have been cited where the system is in vogue of children when they leave school having a neat little bank account to start life on.

WATER COMMISSION

Will Not Extend Mains Into the Township Decision Reached.

At the meeting of the Water Commissioners held yesterday afternoon in the City Hall, the specifications for the new pumping apparatus, were accepted by the board and the chief engineer was given instructions to advertise for tenders.

An important matter which came before the board was that of extending the water and sewer mains into the county beyond the city limits. Considerable discussion took place over this matter but the board was unanimous in its decision that if those people who asked for the sewer and water mains want them they must move into the city.

The commission has enough expense laying mains in the city without going into the country. Another reason for their decision was that if they go in one direction they would have to go in every direction, and the expense would be too great.

No other business was done by the commissioners. There were present: Chairman John Fair Mayor George A. G. Montgomery and F. Frank.

Sporting Comment

Wednesday night seems to be organization night. At 7.15 in the Y. M. C. A. the Clerk's soft ball team will organize and at 8.15 the lacrosse club will organize in the same place.

"I'm going to beat London the first three games we play there," said Deneau, and we think he will. "And I won't apologize either," concluded the Rube.

With baseball, softball, football, lacrosse and cricket besides lawn tennis and bowling Brantford is going to thrive in sport this year. We will soon need more parks to put them in.

The ladies who are behind the scheme of establishing a supervised play ground are to be complimented on their enterprise. Go ahead ladies, the public will stand behind you.

Deneau is full of confidence. That's a good thing. He likes his pitching staff. We hope the fans will.

One of the suggestions the Rube made regarding the park was that the "ploughs" be kept off the diamond.

The 25th Dragoons Football club meets on Wednesday night when suggestions will be in order for a new name for the club. Now the question is, what kind of a name do they want. Is it a high sounding, pompous thing which will sound magnificent and cause all opponents to quake in their shoes, or is it a demure, quiet unostentatious name that they seek. Or again is it a name that would appeal to the average Canuck that they want, a local name, or a name which has been rendered famous by reason of the illustrious teams who have risen to prominence bearing such a cognomen, sometimes styled a nickname?

Nick-Names of Famous Teams.
Dealing with the last named class there are many which immediately suggest themselves and perhaps the most well known is that of the Aston Villa, the Vikings. What soccer combination in England does not envy that title? It revives memories of many a glorious battle.

The Magpies Organization.
No less famous, because of their meteoric rise is that of Newcastle United who rejoice in the name "Magpies," given to them because of their famous mascot, which one day flew across St. James' Park when the team was two goals down, ten minutes from the end of the game. Seeing the black bird had a magic effect up in the Geordies who won by a last quarter spurt by three to two. Another title, Geordies, rests with Newcastle, because of the pitmen who support the team. Then there is that of the Rovers of Blackburn, who have roved this season to such good effect.

The Wanderers signifying Bolton, is another nickname which has borne a high standard in the past. The Invincibles of the team of All Talents, Sunderland is suggestive. They have never, unlike most teams tasted the bitterness of relegation. West Bromwich are known as the "Thistles" and Everton as the "Toffees."

The Proud Prestonians have earned fame in the past as the Deepdaleites, whilst the Middlesbro team has the glorious old name of "The Ironsides." Londoners would perhaps prefer a title such as the Spurs, Pensioners, or the Gunners, all of which titles indicate the pick of the great city's teams.

The Cutlers of Sheffield.
The Blades of Sheffield United as so called because of the cutlery industry of the town, whilst the Owls of Sheffield play at Owlerton, hence their name. Derby County are known as the Rams, because of the pasture site of their citadel. The Latics are the Athletics of Oldham. Manchester City are known as the Citizens and the United of the same city are styled The Boys of Old Trafford.

Trade Names.
Notts County are known as the lacemen, and Grimsby as the Fishermen. Reading as the Biscuitmen, because of the principal industries of the cities of the teams.

Hull City, because of their tenacious playing are dubbed the Tigers, and Bradford, the Bantams for their gameness. The Orientals, signify Clapton Orient, Swinon and Crewe are The Railwaymen, Blackpool and Sunderland because of their town situations are often named Seasideers. Norwich City are termed the Canaries because of the breeding centre of these birds, and Coventry, the Motorists. The Hibs are almost world famous, and the Hearts are equally so.

Good Selection.

From such a selection of Old Country names there will no doubt be plenty of scope for the adoption of one as the cognomen of the local team of the 25th Dragoons. Besides these there are many local names which have been applied to baseball, but the effort should be to have a name signifying a collection of the best and one which has in the past been always victoriously borne. An original name for the team would perhaps not have the sway that one of the older or sounder titles would, but still there is something to be said in favor of originality. The committee of the 25th will no doubt select a wholly suitable and appropriate name for their organization.

President Bowler of the football league says his players did not cut up the diamond at Agricultural Park, and we do not believe we are wrong when we say there is not one football player who would desire to do so. The footballers are too much Brantford to do that, and we hope to cheer some day for a Brantford soccer team winning the Ontario championship.

Doping things out, it looks as if it will remain for Wagner, Deneau and Ivers to bat in the runs this year. If the club has a couple more sluggers like them it will be a good thing.

We sincerely trust that in printing an interview with Rube Deneau, we did not fall into the error of leading anyone to believe that the pennant was won.

Football

The Scots United Football Club play Galt Caledonians on Saturday on the Agricultural Park grounds, where a stiff contest between the 'Scotties' is anticipated.

At Trinity last night the Glee Club held a successful evening of musical numbers. Mrs. Soles, Mr. Preston, Mr. Jess, Mr. Hotston, Mr. Liddell and 'Prof.' Blackburn and chorus rehearsed their parts which are to be staged at the Ladies Bazaar on April 15th.

Executive to Meet.
The President of the Football League requests that all members of the Executive that can possibly do so, will meet him at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday next April 8th at 8 p.m. The Referees' examination will be held at 8.30 a.m. All intending referees are asked to be present.

Clark Griffith is so anxious to trounce the Cincinnati Reds, to train which he once successfully managed, that he has announced that he will use his star pitcher when the Reds and his club meet.

Canadian League News Notes

Will Play at Island
TORONTO, April 7.—It looks very much as if the Canadian League team will be found playing at the Island this year.

Owner McCaffery has been busy for the last two months trying to secure grounds on the city, but last night announced that negotiations for certain property had fallen through and that he would try to arrange matters with the Ferry company to-day for the use of the Island.—Toronto Star.

French-Canadian Signed
The time is coming for Manager Shaughnessy to strike the road in quest of the two twirlers and another shortstop—the three players needed to make the champs rest content. And right now, Shag has a twirler in line who will easily fill the bill for one position, and he also has a pretty fair idea where to go for the shortstop. Shag will leave Ottawa on April 12 for Detroit first and then Fort Wayne, coming back to the Chatham camp on April 20.

The Senators have signed Rose, a French-Canadian outfielder, from Montreal, whom Sammy Lichtenheim thought might develop into a useful player. He will be given a trial at the Chatham camp, and if he shows anything in the way of clotting will be retained.

While Shag already has a shortstop and at least two twirlers ready to sign up this does not mean that should he see any other likely looking material, they will be left behind. The chances are the big manager will arrive back at Chatham with about six budding stars in tow for the champs.

Joe Has Reformed
Joe McMannus is evidently on the water cart to stay and, from the following letter received by Manager Frank Shaughnessy of the Senators, the big twirler isn't likely to come to Ottawa again:—

"Replying to your letter of the 27th, I beg to state that I cannot let you have McMannus for the sum offered, in fact, I do not think that I would care to sell him at all now. He is in excellent condition, keeping himself strictly sober, and I am convinced that he has realized the error that he has made and that his future is bright. After one week's training he went against Jersey City of the International League and held them to two hits in seven innings, and he looks to me better than he was last year. I have been in the game for 23 years and I have never seen any pitcher in the minor league ball that I consider McMannus' equal."

W. G. Bramham, President Durham Baseball Club

Shag Wants Seasoned Pitchers
Only two weeks intervene till the Canadian League champs assemble at Chatham. Practically all the men will reach camp more or less conditioned, which will help considerably, as the week prior to the opening of the season will be devoted almost exclusively to playing exhibition games. Shaughnessy has written all his pitchers to report with their meal tickets in the best of shape, as he will not countenance any sore arms at this period of the year through lack of practice. Joe Lill is at St. Louis University and has been working on the ball diamond for three weeks. Tom Kane is practicing with one of the New England League club teams at Tenafly, N.J., his home Kubat is working indoors at Chicago and by this time has secured a little outdoor work. Sam Hall, the big Cleveland pitcher purchased by Ottawa, has been transferred to Jimmy Sheckard's Cleveland American Association club and is now working his way north with that outfit. He will leave that club and report to Shaughnessy at Fort Wayne next Monday week. Harry Donovan has ignored all communications relative to his intentions this season, and is now under suspension.—Ottawa Free Press.

Shag Needs Twirlers
The recruit twirlers are likely to be in elegant shape. That appears to be the irony of spring training camps.

The youngsters, fired with ambition report in elegant trim, but rarely have the goods to justify being carried. Little Al Bernlohr, the Butler, Pa. boy is sure to be at top speed, but even this year it is an odds on chance he will not be able to catch a place. Shag likes his little Dutch boy on account of his earnestness and desire to get up, and may place him somewhere if he is unable to use him himself.

The Senators still need a couple more flingers, and Shaughnessy hopes to pick up at Indianapolis from Jack Hendrick's A.A. team or at Fort Wayne. Manager Harry Martin of the Central League, has fourteen pitchers in his squad now working in the Indiana city. Shag leaves next Saturday or Sunday.—Ottawa Free Press.

Craven Doesn't Fear Us.
The St. Thomas Baseball Club will be in the midst of the fight for the pennant this coming season, right from the time the first ball is thrown until the last. The team is strong; this year than it has ever been during the previous seasons and if they don't come out as pennant winners they will not be far away when the honors are handed out. The only weak spot now on the line-up is at first sack, and Craven is now angling for a good first sacker, but no particulars are being given out as to who it is. Brundage or Traillik, with little money maybe, is all that is needed, it is thought, to make the trade.

The First Division Team.
Manager Craven and President Stanley while not going around blowing about this year's team, are quietly sizing the prospects up, and think that, all things taken together, St. Thomas has the most likely lot of pennant winners of 1914. Manager Craven stated to the Times Friday that the battle would be a good one, with Toronto, Ottawa and Peterboro close contestants with St. Thomas. The Erie team can hardly be overlooked, as Manager Smith has some influence with several of the big leaguers and London also seems to have a pretty good bunch of ball-players gathered together.

Baker May Sign Any Day
"Wild Bill" Baker, who has been holding out, has now come to terms and a contract was sent him Friday. It is expected he will return it signed in a few days. Ray Clements is also expected to come into the fold any time. With these two in, St. Thomas will have one of the most formidable hurling staffs in the league. If Nevitt turns out as expected the receiving staff will also be very strong, as Dave Inker proved his worth last season.

A Crack Second Baseman
Hubert Hadley, of Rochester, N. Y., is a cracker by all reports, and should certainly make things hum around that old second bag. Then Forgue at short—everyone knows what good work Gill is capable of, and he claims he feels better now than ever before, so look out for him.

Gurney After Old Job
Gurney, last season with the Saints, is again seeking a berth here but the management think that the team will go far better without him and his application is not being entertained at all.

Fred Gadsby, last year with the Saints, is again endeavor to hold down some position on the team. He is under contract and may prove a valuable man.—St. Thomas Times.

An Old Country Fan Hands Pres. Nelson Some Advice

Brantford, April 5th, 1914. Sporting Editor Courier:

Although I am an Englishman and a new arrival in Brantford, I am becoming interested in the game called baseball. From what I have heard Mr. Nelson owner of the Brantford club must have had a very poor team last season and to win the pennant this year he must have players able to burn up the league. If this is correct, all Mr. Nelson needs to do is to write to the leaders of the Suffragette movement in England and they will soon supply him with any number of ladies who will not only burn up the league but will burn up every city in the league, if Mr. Nelson wishes.

I have been reading in The Courier that last year's infielders were so wild they could not hit a barn door with the pill, the pitchers were so weak they couldn't break a pane of glass and that the opposing catchers could always hold the Brantford players from advancing.

All this would be changed if Mr. Nelson would secure a team of Suffragettes. I do not know what hitting a barn door with a pill means, but I do know that any suffragette throwing a bad egg at a policeman and missing him would be so mortified that she would commit suicide; and as for being too weak to break a pane of glass I would bet one week after arriving in Brantford there will not be a whole window in the city. The whole force of Scotland Yard have tried to hold them and failed time after time, so I can not see here any catcher in the Canadian League would stand a show to hold them.

I am told that sometimes players eat themselves out of their profession. There would be no danger of this with a team of suffragettes as any jail official in the Old Country can verify this statement that they will not eat and drink any more than they are forced to.

They probably would not be there with a punch, but as scratch hits are allowed, I will bet after they have been turned loose against another team it will take all the officials of the league to tell who is who and which is which.

There is one thing Mr. Nelson could have to fix, I think they might object to having three of their players called first, second and third base; but I guess it would be but a small matter for Mr. Nelson to have the Baseball Commission change these names to first, second and third soprano.

Thanking you for your space,
JOHN BULL.

BASEBALL NOTES

Frank Chance, manager of the New York Americans, has released six of his young players, among whom is Outfielder James Eschen, to the Jersey City team.

President Stein of the Buffalo International club, expects that his team will be 25 per cent stronger this year than last.

President Barrow predicts that this team will be 25 per cent stronger than last year.

Chief Meyers stole a base in the game against Beaumont this week, which is not what you might call a heluva boost for the Beaumont catcher.

Joe Jackson got two triples in a game against Atlanta on Wednesday and our old Rube Kissingner was the pitcher who was serving the slants.

Manager Ganzel of the Rochester team is in dire straits for a good first sacker and it is not improbable that he will get into the game himself again this season.

Pitcher George McConnell of the Bisons who has been unable to report to his club on account of the sickness of his wife, has wired President Stein that he expects to join the club this week.

A Character Study That Startles PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges. Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new serial by Miss Dalrymple. Her characters will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Questionable Literature.

XI.

"WHAT," said Mary primly, "is not at all a nice sort of book. I'm surprised Peter, that you wanted me to read it."

"I started in some pardonable astonishment. The book was a powerful fiction sermon, a virginal, interesting narrative that I had found most fascinating. Not so Mary. She enumerated the portions which displeased her with an air of offended dignity."

"Dear me, Peter," she said. "Surely you can see for yourself that the author touches upon subjects of which we ought never to speak or read. And in the plainest language, too. Such material should not be printed in any book."

"There is nothing that can't be written about," said I bluntly. "Provided the writer has the right touch and the right feeling behind it."

"Peter," exclaimed Mary, "I don't see how you can speak so. The book is immoral."

"I gasped. I begged, 'Is an immoral book?'"

"One," said Mary lamely, "that is indelicate. Why this is so I can't tell you."

"That," I replied patiently, "is essentially a woman's viewpoint. I could have qualified it and said that it is a woman's viewpoint, but I dislike the terse things men as a rule say to their wives, and so I forebore."

"The book is so silly," said Mary. "Now it has been my experience that Mary hates to face the facts of life squarely. Why this is so I can't tell you. She likes acute sentimentality, provided it be pretty. She loves to weep over a book and dab her eyes with her handkerchief at the end of a chapter. And she'll be dry cleaned. I said as much to the salesman."

"Oh, yes, to be sure, madame," he agreed, "all sewn book better by being tubbed. In fact, madame, I do not think tubbing summer dresses has been very much favored for the past two seasons."

However, their loveliness, as I say, is unequalled. Every shade and every weave which have made the silks and wools and velvets such wondrous stuffs for costumes have been repeated in the cottons, which are the best goods, the best goods, the other threads being silk. The names we have become accustomed to are retained. There is rattice, chestnut of color, the most appealing being in a loosely woven check, decidedly smart for suits. Tan and rose is a good combination."

Then there is duvetyne in plain and novelty weaves. The latter is like the neat velvet. It comes in moss green, heliotrope, yellow, rose, blue, all the lovely new shades. It is wide—almost as wide as it is costly. It is intended, I believe, to be something like corduroy, to be used for coats to be worn over frocks of flowered crepe, the plain material matching the color of the flower. Crepes, either flowered or brocaded, or plain or figured, and in every color and combination of colors are new, desirable and fascinating. The average price of the most alluring goods seemed to hover about the $4 a yard mark. And I saw a dozen or more women having the materials measured off with delightful unconcern, so I suppose it is all right. But we should have to change our ideas of what constitutes the "simple little tub frock."

The man I mean was very fat, when he came into the room. He bet somebody that he could ride the trick horse as well as the regular circus riders, and with a great deal of trouble he mounted the horse. You held your breath, expecting him every minute to be dashed to pieces under the horse's hoofs. Of course, you didn't want that to happen to him, but as long as it was going to happen you were glad, with a kind of breathless gladness, that you were going to be there so you could tell your cousin, who had to stay at home with the whooping cough, that you had seen him. To your amazement, the man didn't fall off the horse at all. He slipped and he slithered and he caught at the air wildly—but somehow he always held his balance. Then, all at once, he began, to your perfect horror and amazement, to shed his clothes. First came his coat, then his vest, then his trousers—you tried to look away by this time, but, held by some hideous fascination, you found you could not—then came another coat and another vest and another pair of trousers, and, finally, the fat man stood revealed as the most slender and graceful being you ever saw, all dressed in silk and spangles—and riding like an inspired centaur. The modern woman you are so worried about is a good deal like that fat man in the old-fashioned circus. She's just been fooling you all the time. She's a great deal stronger and deeper-chested and more perfectly balanced nervously than any American woman has ever been. She's just wearing different clothes, that's all, poor deluded man, and fever of them, and that's what is worrying you. The fashionable walk

EAT oranges and apples and bank-rupt the beauty parlor. Eat spinach and onions and cheat the germ jinx. This is the little health and beauty hint which Elaine Hammerstein gives her friends when they marvel at her never lessening vivacity and buoyancy, and cast envious looks at her clear skin and sparkling eyes.

In addition to being healthy and happy, Miss Hammerstein has wisdom. Like-wise she has independence, individuality, originality and personality. She is also musical. She sings—in light not grand opera—and she has dramatic ability. And she has beauty. Not the statuesque type of that commodity, but the beauty of the average young American girl, the beauty of the joy of living.

She has also magnetism and charm. And she owes most of her attractiveness to a good one. What keeps the liver out?

"Orange juice, apples, spinach and onions. They are cleansers and tonics of the system. They contain the salts we should have. Spinach is rich in salt and in iron."

"Why don't we find the medicine we need in food? Why don't we find the way to be beautiful in food? Some of us do. All of us may. I am convinced more suicides are due to disordered livers than to aching hearts."

"Unrequited love will not make any sane person think of life, unless it is irritated and aggravated by an unhappy liver. You know there is an old proverb, 'An apple a day keeps the doctor away.' It is perfectly true. Try it. And add the other things to it."

"As for the haunting odor which survives the onion, chew a leaf of parsley and it will be absorbed. By the way, parsley is another grand medicine."

One raw onion and another apple at night. "Analyze the word 'liver,'" says Miss Hammerstein. "It means just what it sounds like. You can't live without a liver. You can't be well or happy with-ness and healthiness to her belief in these four very simple foodstuffs, she says. Here is the way she incorporates them in her dietary: Juice of six oranges for breakfast. (Incidentally, that's all except dry Graham toast.) Two apples, baked or raw, for lunch. And whatever else she feels like eating, but no sweets. The apples are dessert. Spinach, plain boiled and eaten without vinegar, as the chief vegetable dish at dinner. All she wants of it. Sometimes she dresses it with oil and lemon juice and eats it as a salad. One raw onion and another apple at night.

"Analyze the word 'liver,'" says Miss Hammerstein. "It means just what it sounds like. You can't live without a liver. You can't be well or happy with-

Secrets of Health and Happiness

When Might Is Right Odds Favor "Good Luck"

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B. M. A. M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by I. K. Hirshberg.

HOW does one man rise to the seats among the mighty and another hates him merely for his success? Is there any such thing as a secret formula of strength and power?

"Frankly, there is not. Nor is there such a thing as 'luck.'" "Luck," said Prof. Edward Livingston of Johns Hopkins University not long ago, "is merely the proof of our ignorance which shows itself in the law of probability."

In analogous words, luck is the unexpected action of the unlooked for forces of nature upon something or other, which might be you or me.

Thus, if ten thousand persons were gazing upward with their mouths wide open, and some one was to pitch two deadly torturing bicarbonate tablets up in the air, one of these might be gulped down by Nicholas Nicklewitch and the other might bounce from the head of Skinny Doyle, who was no good to any one.

Those who believe in magic and "good luck" explain such things to their own superstitious satisfaction, but the rest know, with Prof. Livingston, that if all of the possible conditions were known, if the action of the air, gravity, friction, hand-power, the forces above and below, and ventilation million other physical conditions of the mineral and living worlds of thought and matter were available for calculation, that which you call "bad" or "good" luck would turn out to be only a matter of mathematics.

Sooth to say, this fulsome state of knowledge remains to be worked out in the dim and distant future. Might is really to health what luck is to mathematics. If you were perfectly formed from an inheritance of perfection and lived in surroundings that could not reduce your perfect qualities of health, you would be all powerful. The gods are said to exist in the strongest, because nothing succeeds like health. All of the armed prophets conquer and all of the unarmed perish, because to the healthy all things are possible.

For the same reason, the winds and waves are always on the side of the ablest navigators. Right should always overcome might, because right is an immemorial accumulation of inherited and combined "mights." Briefly, right is a compound of might, and hence, when it acts to conquer, it approaches perfect health more nearly than might itself.

What is mere physical health without a double share of healthful thoughts? Thus right is vaster, more widely, less burdensome, more secure, more complete in its health and command than mere muscular health. "The great mind knows the power of geniuses. Only trees force because persuasion fails."

Only trees force because persuasion fails. Only trees force because persuasion fails. Only trees force because persuasion fails.

Sayings of Children

An astute little boy was asked the other day what was meant by "sins of omission," and he responded, without any pause or hesitation, "The sins we have forgotten to commit."

Johnny having arrived at his 8th birthday thought it would be real nice to write a letter to his papa, and this is the way he began: "My dear papa—Whenever I am tempted to do wrong I think of you and say: 'Get thee behind me, Satan.'"

Mamma—Did mamma's little girl keep baby still while I was away? Mamma's little girl—Yes'm; but next time I wish you'd let Susie play wiv me, 'cause it's hard work for jest one to set on him all the afternoon.

Why the 1914 Girl Is Superior

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service.

DR. RICHARD ROOT SMITH says that the woman of 1914 is an imperfect and defective type. She is, says Dr. Smith, slight, thin, chested, nervous and in every way a bad business specimen.

Dr. Smith made this statement at the Race Betterment Conference at its recent session in Battle Creek, Mich.

Why, Dr. Richard Root Smith, whatever are you talking about, and why are you talking?

"The woman of 1914 an imperfect and defective type, indeed! You're fooled, Doctor, the clothes or the lack of them are fooling you."

Don't you remember the man at the circus who used to tickle you almost to death when you were little and thought that spangles dropped down out of the skies and that there was something almost unearthly about the smell of sawdust?

The man I mean was very fat, when he came into the ring. He bet somebody that he could ride the trick horse as well as the regular circus riders, and with a great deal of trouble he mounted the horse. You held your breath, expecting him every minute to be dashed to pieces under the horse's hoofs. Of course, you didn't want that to happen to him, but as long as it was going to happen you were glad, with a kind of breathless gladness, that you were going to be there so you could tell your cousin, who had to stay at home with the whooping cough, that you had seen him. To your amazement, the man didn't fall off the horse at all. He slipped and he slithered and he caught at the air wildly—but somehow he always held his balance. Then, all at once, he began, to your perfect horror and amazement, to shed his clothes. First came his coat, then his vest, then his trousers—you tried to look away by this time, but, held by some hideous fascination, you found you could not—then came another coat and another vest and another pair of trousers, and, finally, the fat man stood revealed as the most slender and graceful being you ever saw, all dressed in silk and spangles—and riding like an inspired centaur. The modern woman you are so worried about is a good deal like that fat man in the old-fashioned circus. She's just been fooling you all the time. She's a great deal stronger and deeper-chested and more perfectly balanced nervously than any American woman has ever been. She's just wearing different clothes, that's all, poor deluded man, and fever of them, and that's what is worrying you. The fashionable walk makes the girls look anaemic, but it doesn't make them so in reality, by any manner of means. No girl can be anaemic and tango 20 miles a day, besides doing a lot of perfectly good walking for the sake of her complexion. Your grandmother and mine, Dr. Smith, "swoned."

Your mother and mine "fainted." My aunt said that when she was a girl there was never a funeral, or a wedding, or a surprise party, or a circus, or a quilting bee, or anything else where people were gathered together, without some one being carried out in a perfectly good faint. Everybody fainted, sometime, during the week. Grandma fainted in church when the preacher talked about the Prodigal Son, and everybody knew that she was thinking of her boy that ran away. Mother fainted when Aunt Sarah said she was going to marry the village cut-up—so there. And Aunt Sarah herself fainted when the village cut-up decided that he didn't want to be married after all. It was the thing to faint; it was the thing to be "delicate" and "frail." Red cheeks were looked upon as vulgar, and nobody who was anybody wore any corsets larger than a number 20. Feet were small, too, or at least the shoes were, and mother and Aunt Sarah had to make their feet fit the shoes. Women were not supposed to eat; they "trifled" with an ice or picked the wing of a chicken. It was rude to be healthy and bad form to be sturdy. Now every girl you know can skate and walk and ride and row and play tennis and swim and play golf and run a motor either in a boat or a car, and she is as strong and "fit" as her brother and, sometimes, and not too seldom by any means, a good deal "fitter."

She isn't spineless and round-shouldered and hollow-chested at all, Doctor; she is just wearing the fashionable clothes and doing the fashionable pose. There isn't much doubt that that pose was assumed in the first place as a kind of protest against the suffragette and all her ways and means. The modern girl may look like a clinging vine, for the season, just to fool you and the rest of the men, Dr. Smith, but she's the sturdiest, most independent little vine you ever saw or heard of. Just try to train her along in some way she doesn't happen to want, to go and observe how quickly she will stop "clinging."

Don't fret about the 1914 girl, Dr. Smith, of Battle Creek, Mich. She can take perfectly good care of herself—and of some of the rest of us, too.

Hands! Some Advice

Being too weak to break a pane of glass I would bet one week after being in Brantford there will not be a whole window in the city. The force of Scotland Yard have to hold them and failed time after time so I can not see here any more in the Canadian League would show to hold them. I am told that sometimes players themselves out of their profession, would be no danger of this with in of suffragettes as any jail-off in the Old Country can verify statement that they will not eat drink any more than they are led to. They probably would not be there a punch, but as scratch hits are red, I will bet after they have turned loose against another it will take all the officials of the to tell who is who and which one is one thing Mr. Nelson could to fix, I think they might object to three of their players called second and third base; but I it would be but a small matter Mr. Nelson to have the Baseball mission change these names to second and third soprano, thank you for your space.

New Cottons Rival Silks

LATEST WORD FROM MAKERS OF FASHION

By Madge Marvel

As women quickly realize, after looking through the dress goods sections of the department stores, that dressing well "on nothing a year" is a difficult matter, even if one sticks to cottons. "That simple little wash frock," about which so much has been said and written for many moons, has passed into oblivion. Buying it this year means spending more than an elaborate costume of silk would cost. Indeed, when I went shopping the other day I was pleased with the prices of the new silks and staggered by those of the cotton goods.

Also the latter are far more wonderful in weave and coloring. But when you ask the price of a piece of dull blue crepe stuff in the cotton goods corner and the salesman says "$5.50 a yard" without a tremor of the eyelid, it makes "never" were the cottons so lovely. Never were they so expensive. I am firmly convinced the dry cleaners and the weavers have formed a compact of some kind, even if it is only mental. "There is no hope of sending the new wash" gown to the tub. It will have to be dry cleaned. I said as much to the salesman.

"Oh, yes, to be sure, madame," he agreed, "all sewn book better by being tubbed. In fact, madame, I do not think tubbing summer dresses has been very much favored for the past two seasons."

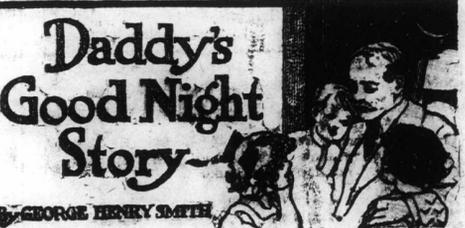

However, their loveliness, as I say, is unequalled. more. The stage coach days were easy ones, and healthy, too, we own, but we had no railroad trains, biplanes and telephone. They could not talk across the ocean with a little box at home with opera stars. They had no moving picture shows, or buildings to the sky; they just in an easy rut 'till it was time to die. Now the Hustler is on deck; at work he always keeps. He's doing some all the time, excepting when he sleeps. This is the day of mighty things, arts and technique—one must be right up on the job to draw pay every week. The stage coach days have passed away, are stricken from the list; the people then lived healthy lives, but think of what they missed!

Daddy's Good Night Story

THE Big Red Rooster stood looking at Charlie Chick one day just as the sun came over the hills. "What funny feet you have," the big fellow said to Charlie. "They are not as funny as yours," replied Charlie Chick. "What is funny about mine?" asked the Big Red Rooster, poking his head down until he almost upset himself. "Why," began Charlie, "your feet are all full of scratches." "You don't tell me!" exclaimed the Big Red Rooster, taking another squint at his feet. "I may have been in the briar patch, but I didn't know I scratched those beautiful feet of mine." With that the big fellow went off behind the barn where Dobbin was. He hung his head and every little while he looked at his feet and asked himself, "I wonder what is the matter with me, anyway?" "Were you talking to me?" asked Dobbin. "No," replied the Big Red Rooster, "I was talking to myself." "I hope you like it," answered Dobbin. "I don't enjoy talking to myself," said the Rooster, "but it relieves my mind." "Does it help your mind to look at your feet so often?" asked Dobbin. "No," said the Rooster. "The talking relieves my mind and I am looking at my feet because Charlie Chick said they were full of scratches." "Ha! ha!" laughed Dobbin. "That little fellow is very bright if he made you go off by yourself and worry. Your feet are full of scratches." "I'm not going to look at them again," said the Big Red Rooster, "they get larger every time I see them." "Well," answered Dobbin. "You are always scratching for the hens, so your feet are full of scratches!" "Then there are no scratches on my feet?" "No," said Dobbin, "the scratches are on the ground where you scratch." "Oh!" replied the Big Red Rooster, very much relieved.

THE CITY COUNCIL ROUTINE HAD SOME INTERESTING FEATURES

Purchase of New Road Roller is Discussed--Committee Reports--House of Refuge Insured for Only $13,000--Grant Made to Old Home Week--Other Business.

The city council session last night lasted until 10:15, and it consisted of the reading and adoption of four committee reports, consideration of a by-law and a few other minor matters. A grant of $500 will be given to Old Home Week, and there is said to be an understanding that if the amount is not sufficient it will be increased. The grant was recommended by the finance committee, the report from which also called for an investigation into the insurance held on all public buildings in the city. Recently it was discovered that the House of Refuge only carried $13,000 insurance, a mere trifle as compared with the value of the building, and Ald. Hollinrake's committee thought it was time to make an inquiry in regard to all other city buildings.

Mayor Spence has not only shown himself to be somewhat of a fighter but he is a diplomat besides. Last night the council had its first tie vote on the appointment of a garbage collector, but the mayor wouldn't break the tie, and the committee which recommended Albert Churchill for the job will have to go back and fight it out again. Ald. Bragg and Sutch put up a vigorous fight for William Holder, while Ald. Hollinrake had Leslie Anguish in front for a while. It developed into a question of ward rights, and the mayor refused to interfere in what he regarded as a plain administrative duty.

Pathe Starting. It was the opinion of the Mayor and council that it must have been an office boy in the office of the Waterways Engine Works who wrote the council telling them that the old road roller was only worth $50.00. Mayor Spence regarded the letter as insulting to the intelligence of the council. The road roller was used last year, but the mayor had the committee report changed to read that tenders be called for the supply of a new road roller rather than that one be purchased. The firm that gives the city the best deal will get the business.

Finance Committee. The committee on finance reported as follows: That the city clerk write to Mr. W. S. Brewster, M.P.P. to meet and assist in any way he deems advisable the committee from Hamilton in its effort to have an institution established for the care of the feeble-minded and that Ald. Charlton represent this council at the meeting to be held and that the city clerk also advise the city clerk of Hamilton to this effect.

That a grant of $25 be made to the Waterways Union and Radial Railways Union.

That a grant of $500 be made to the Brantford Old Home Week Association.

That Charles Thompson be empowered to investigate the insurance on all the city buildings and all the buildings of the boards and institutions to which this city in any way makes a grant of money or on which this council is represented. And that an advisory committee composed of Messrs K. V. Bunnell, Thomas Hendry and J. S. Dowling be appointed to report along with the said Charles Thompson to this council on the insurance of the said buildings.

That the city auditors be each paid $2500 for extra work in connection with the House of Refuge. That the following letters be filed, Canada Municipal Journal, dated March 10, 1914; Trades and Labor Council, dated February 5, 1914; mayor of Goderich, February 6, 1914; Mr. George Hatley, dated January 16, 1914; Panama Power Exposition dated February 2, 1914; L. E. Weaver dated November 28, 1913. All of which is respectfully submitted.

The committee on buildings and grounds reported as follows, through the chairman, Ald. Pitcher.

That Mr. Albert Churchill be engaged to collect garbage on one of the routes in accordance with the garbage by-law, and that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare the necessary contract.

That your committee be authorized to advertise for tenders for the painting of the exterior of the city hall, all of which is respectfully submitted.

There was a long argument over the garbage collection contract. Ald. Sutch wanted to know why the contractor from Ward Four didn't get it. Ald. Pitcher said he had supported Mr. Anguish.

"I am not opposed to Mr. Anguish," said Ald. Bragg, "but I do not believe in rubbing too much grease on a fat pig's back. He was surprised at Ald. Broadbent being so weak in the back that he couldn't stick up for his own ward. The contract belonged to Ward Four and should not be taken away from it."

Ald. Pitcher said Mr. Glover reported that Mr. Holder's work was not satisfactory.

Ald. Ryerson said Mr. Glover reported no such thing. In fact, Mr. Glover said Mr. Holder was quite satisfactory, and he would like to see him get it.

Ald. Pitcher rose to a point of order and wanted Ald. Ryerson to retract. Mr. Glover distinctly told him that one of the Holder brothers had the contract once and was not satisfactory. Ald. Pitcher believed that his word was as good as that of Ald. Ryerson.

Ald. Ryerson said he had nothing to retract, and repeated his statement.

Ald. Ward, Sutch and Hollinrake all figured in the garbage argument.

Amendment to Amendment. Ald. Bragg and Calbeck moved that the name of Mr. W. Holder be inserted in place of that of Mr. Churchill. It was lost by 7-4.

Ald. Hollinrake and Robinson moved that Mr. Anguish get the contract. This resulted in a tie vote, and the council roared at the discomfiture of the mayor.

The Mayor: "Well, I'm going to refer it back to the committee by declaring the original motion lost. I don't have to vote, and I'm not going to."

Ald. Bragg: "Thanks, Mr. Mayor. That gives me another chance."

As a result there was no appointment made.

Board of Works. The board of works reported as follows: That the application of the Bell Telephone Company for permission to run a line of poles on Victoria St. from Murray to Brock, Victoria St. from Park Ave. to Peel, Grey Street from Rawdon to Stanley Street be granted, on the understanding that these poles are to be removed when requested by the city, and are to be subject to any agreement made between the special committee and the Bell Telephone Company in reference to the future use of the streets by that company.

That Mr. Alex. Ballantyne be granted permission to run a sidewalk from his store to the city walk on Wharf street, on condition that it is brought to the level of the city walk within 1 1/2 feet of that walk, and that it will be removed from the city street at any time desired by the city.

That the city engineer be given authority to have the cross wall dividing the pump chambers from the sewage chamber raised 4 feet at the sewage pumping station.

That the contract for the special castings be awarded to the Hartley Foundry Company and that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare the necessary contract based on the advertisement and specifications of the city engineer, and that the cheques of the unsuccessful bidders be returned.

That your committee be authorized to purchase a road roller, the price of the same to be raised by debenture.

A New Road Roller. Ald. Ward, in speaking to the report said that some held the opinion that the present road roller could be rebuilt. The board he said was sufficiently economical to advise such a course if it were possible. A road roller was essential and the present one had been used for 16 years. It was useless now. A road roller was an urgent need right now. The board had asked the Waterways Engine Works for estimates, and the firm said repairs would cost nearly as much as a new machine. It would cost $2,500 to repair the old machine and would be done on regular shop prices. The Government boiler inspector had reported that the boiler was unsafe for use. The cost of a new machine would be $3,200.

Overseer Howie said the old roller condemned by the inspector could not be used. He strongly advised the purchase of a new roller. Mr. Howie was surprised that the firm would only give $50 on the old roller. The new roller could be used immediately on soft streets and to go over the streets made last year.

Ald. Hollinrake suspected that the firm was playing a David Harum trick in the trade.

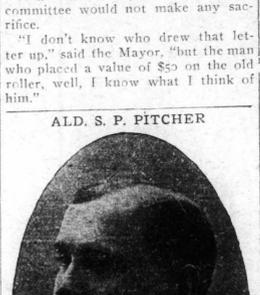

Ald. Calbeck said that if a road roller were to be purchased, now was the time to buy it.

Mayor Spence thought the report on the old road roller was ridiculous. He considered the statement from the firm was an insult. He proposed to advertise for tenders for the sale of the machine. "Frankly, Ald. Ward, I don't like that report from the company; $50 for the old roller; it's absurd."

Ald. Ward assured the council his committee would not make any sacrifice.

"I don't know who drew that letter up," said the Mayor, "but the man who placed a value of $50 on the old roller, well, I know what I think of him."

ALD. S. P. PITCHER

Who was in the thick of the fray at the City Council meeting last night.

The report was amended authorizing the board to call for tenders for a new road roller.

Question of Privilege. Ald. Sutch referred to the Hartley foundry company's protest re. a civic castings contract. What he (Ald Sutch) insisted upon was the insertion of a fair wage clause in the contract. In calling for new tenders, the city had saved $800 on a $3,400 contract, and it was for that reason that the roller was raised. The board of works had simply done a good stroke of business. Ald. Sutch admitted that he had had an eagle eye on that contract in committee, and would continue to keep it on all other contracts.

Ald. Hollinrake believed that in the delivery of castings to the city, there was no proper checking, and the city department did not know what it was getting. The castings should not be ordered in small lots.

Ald. Calbeck said that besides saving money on castings, the city had also saved $175 on a lumber contract. It was worth while to have an eagle eye open sometimes, and the criticism of the letter writers was not deserved.

Ald. Ward said Ald. Hollinrake had no right to criticize City Engineer Jones, because, as a matter of fact, every casting received by his department was most carefully checked up. Officials, like any one else, had to maintain their reputations.

Fire and Light Report. The committee on fire and light reported as follows: That 1000 feet of paragon hose be purchased from the Gutta Percha Rubber Company of Toronto at $1.10 per foot.

That hydrants be placed at the following corners: George and G. v. streets; Murray and Riddolls Avenue; Riddolls Avenue and South street; Clarence and Bruce streets; Walnut and Mt. Pleasant streets; George and Wellington streets; Alfred and Wellington streets.

FATHER GNAM LOSES HIS CASE

Action Against Archbishop McNeil Settled Today.

TORONTO, April 6.—The action of Father Gnam, formerly parish priest of Wyoming, Ontario, with mission at Petrolia and Oil Springs, against Archbishop McNeil, has been dismissed in a judgment given at the goode Hall by Mr. Justice Britton.

Father Gnam, who is now 53 years of age, had certain differences with Bishop Fallon, as a result of being deprived of his living as parish priest. His solicitor, Mr. McMillan opened negotiations with Archbishop McNeil and it was alleged that the latter undertook to be responsible for Father Gnam's maintenance, pending the adjustment of the differences between him and Bishop Fallon to pay the costs of his action, placed at $650 and to use his best efforts to have Father Gnam restored to his parish. The Archbishop denied that he undertook to have Father Gnam restored to what he calls his rights and he asserted that such restoration was quite beyond his power. The action was then brought against the Archbishop for damages for failure to carry out the alleged agreement. Father Gnam claimed to be entitled to an annuity of $800 or $1,000 a year. "In reference to the whole case," says Mr. Justice Britton, "the defendant has done in my view of the evidence, all that he promised to do. The defence has been made out. The defendant has done in my view of the evidence, all that he promised to do. The defence has been made out. The defendant as far as he could, provided the way where the plaintiff could have had a full trial before the tribunal known as the Rota at Rome and he offered to the plaintiff a temporary place of residence where the plaintiff could have been maintained in comparative comfort."

John Weir, aged 74, and Wm. Moore Weir, 46, died of pneumonia within two days of each other.

SCREAMED WITH THE TERRIBLE PAIN

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Distressing Kidney Trouble.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 1st, 1913. "In 1911, I was laid up with Kidney Trouble and not able to get out of my chair. Had tried many kidney remedies without satisfactory results. The pain was excruciating and my screams would be heard on the street. One day a friend from Ottawa came to see me, and when he found me in such poor health, said he would send me a sample of "Fruit-a-tives", which he did and I commenced taking them. The results were so apparent with the first few doses that I continued to take "Fruit-a-tives" and was completely restored to my normal state of health. I would strongly advise anyone suffering with Kidney Trouble to take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure themselves." CHARLES CALVEART, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.
