It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and J. W. McDonald, of Auburn, spent the week-end in Goderich. His stock is complete in every department, and those waiting for a good suit of clothes will be well served. The cheapest house under the sun.

The liquor at Clinton must be bad. The Reform committee wished to invite ladies to the grand banquet on Thursday, and decided that it would be best to drink in cold water, the latter liquor being deemed preferable. Perhaps, if the truth was known, the Clinton water is superior to the whiskey, but at Goderich you get the best liquor of all kinds at W. L. Horton's.

Dr. G. W. McDonald, of Auburn, spent last week in Goderich. His stock is complete in every department, and those waiting for a good suit of clothes will be well served. The cheapest house under the sun.

Mrs. McBride, of the Albion, spent Easter in Forest.

We would like those interested in the various churches, and other institutions or societies, to inform us of any special occurrences in their circle which may be of interest to the general public. It is impossible for us to report them otherwise.

Rev. Mr. Cosford will occupy the pulpit in the North-st. Methodist church on Sunday next. The Rev. gentleman was the preacher who was mainly instrumental in the erection of the church. He is now in town visiting his friends of the "sweet long ago."

We are glad to see Rev. J. Wakelind in town again, after a stay of several weeks in a more southern portion of the Province, but we regret to learn that he has lost his voice. We trust, however, that he will soon have his vocal powers restored, and that he has many useful years in the pulpit before him.

SENT DOWN.—A man named James Campbell, of Lower Wingham, was arrested on Monday week by County Constable Bullard and Chief Pettypiece, on the information of his father, whom he had threatened with personal violence. The case was heard before Thos. Holmes, Esq., J. P., and in default of securities to keep the peace he was sent to Goderich.

On Friday last (Good Friday) there was another blockade on the Stratford and Goderich branch of the G. T. R., in consequence of which travellers from Toronto who left that city at 7 a. m. did not arrive in Goderich until 8 o'clock in the evening. The winter of 1882-3 will be long remembered in this section as the season of railway snow-blockades.

CHORAL UNION CONCERT.—The time for holding the first concert of the Choral Union has been fixed for Tuesday, the 17th April, when a musical treat may be expected. This society deserves a big house, and we hope to hear of Victoria Hall being crowded on the night of the concert. The managers request a full attendance of members at the next practice, on Monday night.

Many persons in this neighborhood will remember a wager made prior to the last general election, by W. J. McCutcheon and Chas. Howson, the former staking $1,000 against $100 that the government would not have 60 of a majority in the House. Although the government has this majority, their first division only showed 53, and the wager was settled by McCutcheon paying $100.

Among the names of vocalists who took part in the second concert of the Oratorio Society of Winnipeg, held on Friday March 16th, we observe that of Mr. F. S. Hick, formerly of Goderich. The Sun in its report of the concert, says: "Mr. Hick sang 'Do Not Know That Fair Land' in a creditable manner. Mrs. Hick has a deep voice of large scope." The Times says: "Mrs. Hick sang 'Canaan tu le pays,' from Mignon, exquisitely."

The following which we take from the legal columns of a recent issue of the Toronto Mail may be interesting to any of our readers who are at present unacquainted with the law regarding this matter: "A servant who refuses to obey the lawful orders of his master or employer, or the orders of an agent appointed by the employer to direct the servant, may be lawfully discharged, and he therefore forfeits any claim to be paid wages for the balance of the time for which he was engaged."

On Good Friday eve, after the stations of the Cross had been made, during which time the Choir sang the Stabat Mater, an excellent sermon was delivered by the Rev. Father MacKea on the Passion of our Lord. He dwelt particularly on the millions of souls that are drawn to Christ on that day to pay tribute to the agony he suffered for them on the Cross, the intensity of which was so great, even to him, the Son of God, that he cried out "Father if Thou wilt, remove this chalice from me, nevertheless, not my will but Thine be done."

Methodist S. S. Anniversary.
The anniversary of the North-st. Methodist Church Sunday School was held on Sunday and Monday last. At the morning services, a number of Easter hymns were sung in a spirited manner by the choir and congregation, among the latter being the children of the school occupying the front seats. Rev. Mr. Cosford, one of the early pastors of the church in Goderich, preached at both morning and evening services. It was during the pastorate of Mr. Cosford that the North-st. church was built, the pastor assisting greatly in the progress of the work of erection. Many changes have occurred in the church and the town since that time, over 22 years ago, although many of the old acquaintances of the preacher were present to press his hand on Sunday last.

On Monday evening there was a large turnout of S. S. scholars, teachers and parents in the church, at the annual entertainment. Mr. George Cox occupied the chair, the superintendent read an interesting report, from which we glean the following: Number on roll: scholars 223, teachers 30, officers 8; total 261. Average attendance of scholars 159, teachers 24, officers 7; total average 190; Receipts for 1882, $160.67; expenditure $167.21. The library contains over 500 volumes free to all the school and also to parents of the scholars. A number of children (whose names we have been unable to get from the managers) gave some interesting recitations and dialogues, and an address was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Cosford.

Home, Sweet Home.
The remains of John Howard Payne have been brought from Tunis to the United States, and the body of the home less man, who wrote "Home, Sweet Home," will hereafter rest in his native land. Payne was not a great poet, and the sentiment and melody did more to make his song popular than the words. As originally written, the poem certainly was a crude piece of composition, but it has become one of the most popular of our country's songs.

FIRE AND SWORD:

A STORY OF THE MASSACRE OF GLENCOE.

CHAPTER XI.

THE WARNINGS OF TREACHERY.

The Government "Proclamation" was at length a published fact, and on its terms being made known to the men of the Glen, great excitement was generally manifested, and all ordinary topics were subordinated to its daily, and in fact, almost hourly discussion.

The Jacobite party viewed it with mingled feelings of distrust and regret—distrust of the ambitious and grasping policy of the Whig Government which dictated it, and regret for the humiliating submission it imperatively enforced, and to which the misfortune of circumstances forced them to conform.

The utter ruin of King James' affairs in Ireland precluded all hopes on the part of the Jacobites of bringing the war in the Highlands to a successful issue. It was therefore desirable, if not imperative, that the armistice which was to expire, in terms of the "Proclamation," on the last day of December, should be ended in a peaceful compromise between the Government and the rebellious adherents of the dethroned King James.

The proclamation alluded to had an attendant, that those who had not submitted within the prescribed time would be subjected to the extremities of "fire and sword."

It was framed by the Lords of the Privy Council, under the influence of Sir John Dalrymple (Master of Stair), who held the place of Lord Advocate, and who had been risen to the influential and important post of Secretary of State in 1690.

Subsequent to the original conference meeting of the Chiefs at Glenorchy, the leaders of the Jacobite party had arranged a private conference, at which it had been finally agreed to submit themselves to the Government as required. Against this extremity of misfortune—subversive of high honor and pure unstained loyalty—several of the Chiefs openly rebelled, and heroic old M'Ian withdrew to the fastness of his mist-enshrouded Glen, foaming with high indignation, and mentally resolved to resist and dare the Government vengeance to the last. In this fatal, though heroic cause, he was encouraged to persevere by the taunting insolence of his hereditary enemy Bredalbane, who foresaw in Glencoe's obstinacy a means of gratifying his privately cherished scheme of revenge.

Premising this much, we return to the course of our story. It was on the evening of the Saturday following the incidents recorded in the preceding chapter, that a company of clansmen were gathered together in the village Inn of Auchanachan.

Malcolm was there—presiding over them by acquired privilege—and so also were Allister Macdonald, the Glencoe tacksman, and his younger brother Ronald, a high-spirited young clansman who roared at such rude agricultural work as the fields required.

Old Ivan Dhu, a trusted domestic in the Chief's house at Invercoe, and one of M'Ian's "pipers," was also seated before the board, enjoying a share of such simple hospitality as the homely walls of the old Inn had to offer.

"Gie me a pair o' pipes, Malcolm," he said when the generous ale began to warm his blood, "bring me a pair o' pipes, and when the crack lags I'll keep the company's heart in proper tune. Let ye! there's John and Allister (the Chief's sons) gun piping down the Glen. Iken the skirt o' their bonnie pipes."

They all straight away listened, and clear and shrill the sound of pipes was heard waiving and winding through the intricacies of the Glen.

Presently old Ivan had the wished-for pipes laid against his right shoulder, and the small room wherein they sat soon rang with the varied and inspiring music of the district. The music of no people touches the plebeian heart more effectively than does the music of the pipes when heard by a Highland audience. Its picturesque notes appeal to their ears as the heather blossom does to their eyes—heart and home are irreversibly enshrined in them. The little group of clansmen, therefore who sat round old Ivan Dhu on the evening in question were a picture to look at while his performance on the endearing pipes lasted. The kindling of the eyes, the snapping of the fingers, and the enthusiastic exclamations of delight and approval which accompanied it were all in graphic and fitting keeping with the picturesque performance.

"Good evening, and welcome Duncan," shouted half-a-dozen voices simultaneously, as the door was pushed up, disclosing to view the honest weather-beaten face and burly form of Duncan Dhu, the Breemar letter-carrier.

Duncan sat down before the board, and entered with quiet relief into the hospitality of the hour.

"And what's the news frae Breemar side, Duncan?" asked Allister, the tacksman. "How's the Bredalbane following the 'Proclamation?'—rejoicing o'er't, I suppose?"

"Indeed, yes, Allister; they're a' for the Earl's policy a' pacification. He's their unrequested law and their gospel in a' that affects their temporal concerns." A murmur of hatred, directed against the Earl's name and scheme, went audibly round the circle.

"M'Ian's health!" cried Ronald Macdonald, youngest brother of Allister, the tacksman.

"And confusion to Bredalbane," echoed Malcolm.

An emptying of quawks and tumblers succeeded, and the toast and counter-tost were enthusiastically pledged.

"What about Red Hughie, then?" Has he gone back to Glenlyon, his maternal district?" asked the tacksman.

"You would hear that he had been revengfully stabbed by a Glencoe man on the hills, and that Captain Glenlyon, of Argyll's Regiment, now quartered at Fort William, had advised him for personal safety to retire to the Glenlyon district?"

Malcolm visibly started. He had heard nothing of either the Serpent or his spy, the Red Hughie, since the night on which they had thought to trap him on the hills.

"He is not in the Glenlyon district," said the letter-carrier. "Of that I am sure."

"Who said he had gone thither?" asked Malcolm.

"Sergeant Barber said so," answered the tacksman. "He told old Peter, the Ballachulish ferryman, so, who spread the report through the Glen."

"And what then was the cause of quarrel between Red Hughie and the Glencoe man?" questioned Malcolm, anxious to prove to himself, and the company in turn, the deep seated malice of the Sergeant named.

"It is said that some of the Glencoe men have a lurking suspicion of him as being a half Bredalbane by birth, and a whole one at heart, and judging that the best way to settle the doubt was to dirk him, an unknown hand had treacherously attempted to do the fatal and coward deed. That's the story, Duncan, isn't that the tone of it?"

"That's, indeed, what's said of it in Glenlyon," answered the letter-carrier. "And the Sergeant is also responsible for the current version of the affair?" further queried Malcolm.

"No other party," replied the tacksman. "The rumor is that the poor, half-witted wretch was defenceless and that the deed, by whomsoever done, was a cowardly and malicious one."

"And the author of the murderous attempt remains undiscovered, I suppose?" put in Malcolm.

"Glenroy of the Glenheid is blamed for it," answered the tacksman. "He is said to have had a private grudge against the Red Hughie, but he denies the deed, and says that if he had done it the wretch would never have been allowed the chance of crawling home."

"Good for Glenroy!" shouted Ronald, the tacksman's brother. "It's the price of the treacherous wretch—a quick stab and a toss over a cliff."

A fierce, quick kindling of the eyes, and a sudden disclosure of white, gleaming teeth all round the circle, attested the intensity of the Clansmen's feelings on the subject.

"Glenroy is innocent of the charge preferred against him," put in Malcolm, with quick assertive force. "It was I who drove the dirk into the Red Hughie's shoulder."

"You?" simultaneously echoed half-a-dozen voices.

"Yes, I wrenched from his craven hand the weapon which was uplifted to strike me and struck it into his body," and without further proface Malcolm briefly related the incident of the Sergeant's treacherous plot just as they had occurred.

Great was the indignation of the Clansmen on hearing Malcolm's version of the story.

"I warned ye weel o' the Red Hughie the last time I forgathered wi' ye," said the honest letter-carrier, addressing his words to Malcolm. "I tell'd ye his color suggested blood."

"And he's not in Glenlyon, then?" questioned Malcolm.

"I am sure of as much," replied the letter-carrier.

"Then I believe he is in North Ballachulish with Sergeant Barber, and we may hope to hear of him yet. But he's a poor creature, and only worth being pushed out of a man's way," and Malcolm relapsed into silence.

"Connin' is whiles more than a match for courage; he's no mean enough to be beneath the forethought o' watching," put in the honest letter-carrier.

"He can only share in a possible revenge on the men of the Glen," resumed Malcolm. "If circumstances should give the Government party an excuse for sending the soldierly upon us; and the issue seems probable, as M'Ian will never sign the Oath of Allegiance."

"In which case we can fight," exclaimed young Ronald, brother of the tacksman.

"And the Clans will rush to our rescue," added a voice.

"The fastness of the Glen are in themselves a source of safety," replied Malcolm, "and given fairplay, if only true to ourselves, we have little to fear even if armed vengeance should confront us; but the craft and Court of that arch-schemer Bredalbane are the misfortune of Glencoe. The terms of the 'Proclamation' leave no doubt as to the intention of its authors, who are undoubtedly Bredalbane and the crafty Master of Stair. It's 'fire and sword' against all who remain outside its pale, and the and the threat is levelled at the men of the Glen. We are hated by Argyle and Bredalbane."

"Where a Glencoe man's interest is concerned, Campbell is not to be trusted," put in a voice.

"There are exceptions to that as to all rules," said the tacksman. "Captain Glenlyon is a Bredalbane man, and he is very friendly with Allister, the Chief's second son. Allister, you know, is married to a niece of Glenlyon's and being in the Glen, he put us with them the night before yestereen."

"He must be the exception surely," sneered Ronald, the tacksman's brother.

"He is not," said Malcolm, with strong correctional emphasis. "It is his policy to appear so. Depend upon it, men, the claws are only hidden for a time under the velvet paw."

"And Allister trusts him, of course?" put in Ronald, the tacksman's brother.

"He does, indeed," said a voice at the door, and a moment after Allister, the Chief's second son, entered the room, and was received with the kindest demonstrations of good feeling on the part of the loyal clansmen.

Allister was a fine young man, in the first flush of early manhood, and like his loved foster-brother Malcolm he looked the perfect impersonation of a stalwart and proud spirited young Highlander.

"I must misjudge matters if Glenlyon's word is honorable, or his professions of friendship sincere," said Malcolm, addressing M'Ian's son.

"Be charitable," said Allister, "he is a good friend of ours. He was with us the other night, and he advised M'Ian to hold out to the last, as Bredalbane is certain to double his share of the pacification money as the price of his adherence to the required oath."

The brows of Malcolm darkened with doubt, and mutterings of suspicion went round the circle.

"But the Chief," added Allister, "has openly expressed his determination of holding out to the last on principle, as an example to his brother Chiefs, and if he is supported by one or more, he will openly refuse the oath and abide the consequences."

"And in what spirit," asked Malcolm, "did Glenlyon receive the declaration of his sentiments?"

"The gallant Captain," answered the unsuspecting Allister, "highly commended his courage and lofty devotion to a romantic cause."

"I fear his sincerity," replied Malcolm, "but let us support our worthy chief whatever happens, and be on our utmost guard against treachery and surprise."

"We have heard that the cause is being daily deserted," remarked the tacksman, addressing the Chief's son.

"A good cause is in itself a tower of strength," answered Allister, "but if Glenlyon speaks true, we are not likely to be pushed to extremities. Bredalbane will cave in at the last moment, and the threatened execution of 'fire and sword' will be stayed."

Malcolm doubted Glenlyon in spite of himself, and that same night, when the circle left the cover of the Inn, he took Allister privately aside, and walking with him the length of the Glen, he warned him against an over-ready faith in Glenlyon's words, or belief in the peaceful and profitable attitude of the Chief, which he believed were baited traps to mislead and ruin a noble, unsuspecting and high-minded man, with the extermination of his people as an appropriate and designed sequel.

"Why, Malcolm, you forget Glenlyon is my wife's uncle!" urged the unsuspecting Allister.

"And your father's enemy!" rejoined Malcolm. "Good-night; and have a care."

And so they parted for the time; and as Allister walked home that night under the light of the silent stars he resolved on watching with a closer ear and eye the speech and movements of a man against whose insincerity and suspected machinations he had thus been duly forewarned.

Victoria Who?

Now, if any one were to ask you Queen Victoria's 'other name' what would you say?

If you could answer correctly you would do better than most people can, according to a writer in an English paper:

"At dinner, the other night, the conversation lapsed, as it sometimes will lapse with the best, into questions hardly distinguishable from conundrums. A celebrated historian was present, and I put a question to him which I know has puzzled a great many people at different times. 'What is the surname of the royal family?'"

"Welph, of course."

"That is the usual answer, and it was the historian's. I ventured to suggest that, although the royal family are Guelphs by descent, her Majesty's marriage with Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, must have had the effect which the marriage of a lady has in all other cases, and that the surname of the present house must be that of the Prince Consort."

But what is the surname of the Prince Consort's family? Simple but staggering. No one knew. All guessed, and all were wrong. I happened to have looked up the subject a few months ago, to elude the names of a few months ago, of course no one had heard it before. Every one smiled at the horrible idea of the Guelphs being reduced to Wettins. The point was referred to Theodore Martin. 'You are quite right,' said the graceful biographer of the Prince Consort; 'Wettin is the family name of the House of Saxony, to whom the late Prince Consort came in the year 1420. The Kings of Saxony are, therefore, all Wettins, or German, Wettiner.'

To Go Home in the Autumn.

The English say that at Ottawa the Princess Louise has herself with scarcely a single person with whom she has two ideas in common, and that the princess and her husband will go home in autumn, on the expiration of his term of government, when Lord Lorne will be called up to the House of Lords. The princess' apartments in Kensington palace are to be re-decorated and put in order during the next few months. [New York Telegram.

Sad Sequel to a Law Suit.

Halifax, March 20.—In the Supreme Court here, last week, Miss Cameron, residing in a country town, sued a Mr McDonald for breach of promise of marriage. The court gave her a verdict of $200 or $300. The young man was not in a position to pay the amount, so he was arrested and placed in jail in Pictou, where he died a few days since.

Who writes all the dead letters? Last year there were nearly six hundred thousand dead letters and post-cards sent to the dead letter office at Ottawa. Some of them were unstamped, others insufficiently stamped, and others improperly addressed. Of the total number no fewer than nine hundred were registered. Many people write what they desire to say on a postal card, and then forget to write the address. What a history these dead letters could relate. No doubt many of the letters were anxiously waited for; perhaps some of them are being anxiously waited for even yet, while the writers are wondering why they were never answered. Only those who have had something to do with postal affairs have had something to do with postal affairs have a proper conception of the amount of carelessness of which many letter-writers are guilty. Thoughtlessness is no doubt the real reason.

The Editor of the Grand River Sentinel says:—"We are usually sparing in our encomiums toward patent medicines, but observation and enquiry has satisfied us that the preparation of Messrs. T. Milburn & Co., styled Burdock Blood Bitters, as a blood purifying tonic is worthy of the high reputation it has established among the people."

An authority upon such subjects says that wedding celebrations are graded from cotton to diamond after this manner:—At the end of the first year, the cotton wedding; at the end of the second year, the paper wedding; at three the leather; at five the wooden; at seven the woolen; at ten the tin; at fifteen, the silk or fine linen, or both; at fifteen, the crystal; at twenty, the china; at twenty five, silver. After this the gifts grow more and more costly. At the end of thirty years the pearl wedding occurs; at fifty anniversary, the golden; and at the seventy-fifth, the diamond.

The snake question must be an important one in the East Indies if some statistics, recently published, are accurate. During the year 1881 snakes are said to have destroyed 18,670 human lives in India, besides killing a much larger number of cattle. Of the snakes 254,967 are alleged to have been killed; but it is almost incredible that they were able to destroy a human life for every thirteen or fourteen of their own number put out of the way. These reptiles must be even more destructive than the kerosene lamps and toy pistols of civilization.

THE HURON SIGNAL
FRIDAY, MARCH 30TH, 1883.

AN UNRELIABLE "SENTINEL."

That bright and shining literary luminary, and Protestant exponent of Toryism, the Orange Sentinel, tried hard in its last issue to hold up its head and impudently brazen out its previously published falsehoods...

Our charge of partizanship against the Sentinel is admitted in toto, and no attempt is made to deny that we had found a true bill in this instance.

On the charge of falsehood, which we preferred against the Sentinel, and proved when we preferred it, the Orange organ, with characteristic cowardice, endeavors to shelter itself behind the opinions of mythical correspondents.

The statement we made in reference to the publication of sectarian "tracts" by the Reformers of West Huron was made upon the authority of residents of the riding and of newspapers in the county; and in the absence of anything but THE SIGNAL'S contradiction of it, we have yet no reason to doubt its correctness.

Isn't that a nice way to let itself down easy on the part of the organ of "loud sounds"? Well, Mr. Sentinel, we have you just where we want you, and you have either to prove yourself, or, by your inability to do so, admit that you have traduced the Reformers of West Huron and borne false witness against THE SIGNAL.

Now, we will make a fair offer to the Sentinel and Orange and Protestant reformers (save the mark), and we hope to see that full-blooded, gore-seeking journal take advantage of it, or ever after hold its peace.

Capt. Carey, who continues the reconnoitering party in Zulu land where the ill-fated Prince Imperial last fell, died last week. We understand the Captain was a relative of Mr. John Carey, of this town.

It is stated that a peerage awaits the Marquis of Lorne upon his return to Great Britain.

The Tory papers have been making a desperate attempt to be merry over the Huron Reform Banquet. They could see nothing attractive in it;—there was no liquor provided.

It has been reported in some of the newspapers that Carey, the Dublin reformer, is a cousin of the hon. Senator O'Donohue. We don't know how much truth there is in the report, but we do know that O'Donohue got his price in June last for endeavoring to betray his countryman politically, and if Carey is a kinsman of the Hon. John, he is only following out the traditions of the family by looking after his own interests in preference to those of his countrymen.

We are pleased to see that the authorities are making a vigorous endeavor to crush out the lottery schemes which have sprung up with mushroom growth since the London lottery. A number of prosecutions have been successfully pressed, and there is a wide-spread feeling of terror among some who have been forwarding these lottery schemes.

During the past month our circulation has experienced a steady and material increase. THE SIGNAL has not only its merits to commend it, but it has also the gratuitous advertising of a half dozen envious contemporaries, whose attempts to damage this paper are laughably futile.

Nobody believes that Sir John A. Macdonald has an honest, and fair scheme for the transfer of the liquor license power. Nobody believes he is sincere in his profession that the local legislatures have no right to take the matter of liquor licenses under their control.

The Toronto Mail says "the number of persons in Canada who favor a return of the reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States, could be covered by an ordinary sized dining room table."

During the recent election contest in Ontario we heard a great deal from the Tories about the partiality of their party to Roman Catholic candidates.

Capt. Carey, who continues the reconnoitering party in Zulu land where the ill-fated Prince Imperial last fell, died last week. We understand the Captain was a relative of Mr. John Carey, of this town.

THAT voracious (?) journal, the Mail, of Toronto, on Tuesday last had an article pointing out the constituencies in Ontario which had been "bought up" by the Reformers.

The Tories are endeavoring to put the blame of the expected defeat of the Orange Bill upon the shoulders of the Ontario Reformers. The Orange order is not an institution peculiar to this Province. Its lodges are to be found in every Province of the Dominion.

THIS (Friday) evening the residents of Brussels and vicinity purpose doing honor to an old resident, by banqueting him. The guest of the evening will be John Leckie, Esq., one of the best known men in Huron, and the event is preparatory to his final departure from the county where the best years of his life have been spent.

Parrell's Proceedings. New York, March 25.—London agents say it is evident from Parrell's proceedings in Paris that he is resolved on a campaign which will be attended with momentous consequences.

The St. John Telegram says in reference to Sir John Macdonald's whereabouts over the license question, and his sneaking into a committee in order to shirk responsibility, that "the action of Sir John Macdonald in asking for the appointment of a committee to which should be referred the paragraph in the speech relating to the proposed legislation upon the liquor question, has been claimed by his admirers as a piece of remarkably clever Parliamentary tactics but it comes to us to be a confession of weakness."

Mr. Blake and his friends were amply justified in refusing to serve upon Sir John Macdonald's license law committee. It was arrant cowardice on the part of the Premier, after boasting what he was going to do with this question, to run behind a committee of the House to escape from the consequences of his brag-gadocio.

The Bystander's strictures on the tariff question show that those who supported the iniquitous N. P. when launched, have come to form a different opinion of now. Prof. Goldwin Smith says: For a month the Dominion Parliament has done nothing but carry on the party battle in Ontario.

Lady Dixie Assailant. London, March 24.—Capt. O'Shea, Home Rule member of Parliament, noticed Harcourt that when the House of Commons assembled after Easter, he will ask whether Lady Dixie formerly boaxed the public by the invention of a letter from King Cetewayo, and whether as result of inquiry into the alleged assault upon her at Windsor, the police clubbed she is an impostor.

A LUNATIC AT LARGE. Rushing naked through the streets of Hamilton.

Hamilton, March 26.—A great deal of excitement was occasioned in the west end this morning by the freaks of James Enright, while suffering from mental aberration. He has been twice in the lunatic asylum. Enright has lately been confined to his house, No. 23, Queen street north.

 THE MILITARY CONCERT. This concert which came off on Wednesday evening last in Cardus's hall was a great success. The entertainment was in aid of No. 3 company, 33rd battalion of volunteers, under the patronage of Lieut.-Col. Coleman and Rosa, and we feel certain they must be well pleased with the result. The hall was crowded, many coming from Goderich and Clinton to attend. In reference to the singing, we would say Mrs. Caldwell is a power in herself. She has a very soft sweet voice and great power in modulating it. She is a rising star and an honor to Canada. Her appearance is also very attractive. She has a very pleasing manner, combined with great personal attractions, in fact some would consider her a perfect beauty. All taken together rendered Mrs. Caldwell the attraction of the evening. Mr. Kelly was frequently engaged and was scarcely less popular during the evening than Mrs. Caldwell. His "grave digger" was an excellent sermon. He has great compass of voice and will never fail to draw an audience in this town. Mr. Kelly brought down the house several times during the evening. Our old friend Mr. Joslin requires no encomiums from us. He would command an audience any time in Searforth or wherever he is known. Of the other performers we will simply say they all did themselves evident justice. Miss Jennie Erins presided at the piano and certainly none in this town would have done better. She is a superior player and Searforth may well feel proud of her. The company sang the National Anthem at the conclusion in a manner which is seldom heard in this county. —Sun.

Brussels.
 PUBLICATION.—Last Monday evening the members of Knox Church congregation assembled at the house of Strachan Bros. and presented Alex. Strachan with a beautiful organ, from the manufactory of D. Bell & Co., Toronto, valued at $250, as a token of the appreciation in which he was held as preacher in the church. Mrs. Cornack and Miss Laidlaw were the prime movers in getting up the present. The following address was read by Miss Laidlaw and the presentation made by J. Wallis.
 DEAR SIR:—As you undertook the office of preacher in Knox Church without the fee on reward, and some of your friends in the church deem it due to you to make some acknowledgment for your valuable services. Two ladies in the congregation volunteered to call upon some friends to ask for a contribution for that end, some of whom have cheerfully responded, and the result is the purchase of an organ, to aid you in training your helpers, the choir, with whom you have been so delightfully labored and that not without success. This organ, which is now present for your acceptance as a token of our appreciation of your services in conducting the service so long among us, by which the interest of the church is being promoted, as well as giving pleasure of your fellow worshippers. Wishing that your life may long be spared to render such services, and also that both you and your choir may be prepared in heart hereafter to join the ever-lasting song in the church above, is the sincere wish of all your friends.
 Mr. Strachan replied in suitable terms expressing his sincere thanks for the handsome gift, and hoped he would always enjoy, what he valued even more highly than the costly present, the good wishes of his friends. —Post.

SCROFULA
 and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.
 To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.
 A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.
 "Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, Miss ANN O'BRIEN.
 18 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.
 All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brien, also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds, of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.
 The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. Ball, of Boston, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882: "Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a most valuable remedy for all blood diseases."
 Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles for $5.

Auburn.

Rev. Messrs. Pritchard and Smith exchanged pulpits on Sabbath last.

The Easter examination of our school was held on the afternoon of Thursday the 22nd inst., and was well attended. Mr. P. Strang, of No. 1 Colborne assisted.

We are sorry to have to record the death of William, second son of John Mills, which took place at his father's residence, com. 2, West Wawanosh, on Sunday, 18th inst., after a short illness of four days. Deceased was sixteen years of age, and was held in the highest esteem by all with whom he came in contact. Mr. Mills and family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. The funeral took place on Tuesday.

A very serious accident happened to a young man named Parrot, living with his uncle, Mr. Thos. Brown, 3rd con., East Wawanosh, on Sunday morning last, 18th inst., and one which serves as another example of the danger of carelessly using fire arms. It appears that as Parrot and another young man, for church, a younger brother of Parrot took up a revolver which was lying in an open trunk, and began handling it, not knowing that it was loaded. He pointed it at his brother and pulled the trigger, when immediately the weapon went off, the ball taking effect just below the breast bone. Medical aid was summoned, and everything possible done for the sufferer, but there is very little hope of his recovery.

LATER.—Parrot, the young man, who was accidentally shot on the 18th inst., is still alive, and hopes are now entertained of his recovery.

Leoburn.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Harry Hurton and T. C. Wright enjoyed their Easter holidays from the seat of learning at G. G. Leoburn school. They had several pleasant excursions in fishing on the ice near the Point Farm. Both look well and hearty.

The Easter examination of S. S. No. 3, Colborne, took place on Thursday, 22nd inst. The exercises were conducted by the teacher Mr. R. E. Brown, assisted by Mr. Harry Hurton, of Goderich High School. The ready answers of the pupils showed much improvement, and reflected credit on the teacher. At the close of the examination Mr. Hetherington was called to the chair, and short addresses were given by Messrs. J. Linklater, Naftel and Harry Hurton, complimentary to Mr. Brown and his scholars. About 25 visitors were present.

The following epistle was received by your reporter from Muskoka, dated Mar. 17th, 1883, from Geo. Hall, an old resident of Commercial street, and an esteemed assistant reporter of the Leoburn items for THE SIGNAL, and now greatly missed.

DEAR WEBSTER,—I have not heard any tidings from you since I came to Muskoka, only that little yarn about Devil Point which I noticed in your favorite paper THE SIGNAL, and I thought in writing to John that I would just drop a line to you through him. I am much taken up with the country, and I think in many respects it is unequalled in America. The surrounding country presents a very fine picture to the eye. The trees are tall and magnificent, and so high that it takes an ordinary eye to look twice before the summit is reached. The land presents a pleasing feature being nearly level, and undulating slightly from different points. The lakes are also a great advantage to the country, and it would raise your spirits in rowing a young lady over the fresh blue waters more in half an hour, than in getting some of the finest jetties about game roosters, cats, etc. I wish you would come up here and make your fortune, for I know your ability in describing landscapes and water scenes. Your old friend Mr. Arthur Hurton, in whose employment I am at present, is well, and sends his respects to you. I remain, your truly, GEO. HALL.

QUESTIONS.

To worry about any Liver, Kidney or Urinary Trouble, especially Bright's Disease, or Diarrhoea, as Hop Bitters are the only reliable remedy for a true and permanent cure.

Earning His Living.

Mr. C. Hackett, Goderich, Ont., had a most distressing cough for six months, during which he was under medical advice. But still he grew worse and worse and his case was given up. He bought two bottles of Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam and after using them was able to earn his own living. It is the very best cure for all manner of coughs and colds and all forms of disease of the lungs and air passages. It cuts away the phlegm, soothes the inflammation, and tones up the system.

The Mad and Worthless.

are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprang up and began to steal the notice in which the press and the people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started nostrums put up in similar style to H. B. with variously devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies of cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.

CHERRYDALE FARM AUCTION SALE OF VALUABLE PROPERTY TO TAKE PLACE ON THURSDAY, APRIL THE 26th, 1883.

THIS WILL BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION, to the highest bidder, that valuable property known as "Cherrydale Farm," situated in the Township of Colborne, County of Huron, near the Town of Goderich.

The property is well improved, and comprises a tract of land containing about 150 acres, including the Maitland River, with a frontage on Maitland River of over one half mile.

The orchards are extensive, there being over 1000 fruit trees, and as a fruit farm it has a reputation for raising a large quantity of fruit. To a person wishing to engage in the culture of the grape, there is probably no finer site for a vineyard as can be found anywhere. About 5 acres are now ready for setting out with vines.

The water privileges are unsurpassed, there being several living springs over the farm, and notably a masoning spring which runs an overshoot wheel, driving a number case crusher and cider mill.

The buildings are good:
1st.—The dwelling house is a substantial stone building, three stories in height, containing nine rooms, and a large hall. The large barn and stables are ample and large, covering about a quarter of an acre of ground.
2d.—The fruit house is a building 60x30 feet, now used for the storage and bottling of cider. The large spring above mentioned, has a flow of not less than 500 gallons per minute, and is used for running a large water wheel, causing the temperature not to vary any perceptible difference the whole year around. The cider business is a profitable one, and offers a sure business to any person with capital.
3d.—The press house and cane mill is a building 100x20 feet, and is found with all the requirements for running a large business in the manufacture of syrup from the sorghum cane. The machinery comprises a powerful crank shaft evaporator, tanks, &c., and is capable of crushing the produce from 50 acres of cane during the season. The cider press is a massive frame worked by twin water wheels, and is set up in a most solid manner.
4th.—The dairy is a neat little building, having a constant flow of water running through it, and is quite ample for running a large dairy or creamery, as the proprietor is leaving the property for a southern climate.
5th.—There is a comfortable dwelling house for working man as a convenient distance from the barns.

The above property will be put up and sold at per acre, subject to existing encumbrance. The proprietor's only reason for selling is that he has not the capital to carry out his views, and will therefore sell.

Immediately after the above sale, the whole of the Farm stock and implements will be sold for whatever they will fetch. The implements are all new and in good order, and comprise a miscellany of useful articles, such as all well regulated farm, the enumeration of which would be too lengthy for this advertisement. If sufficient time permits, the household furniture will be offered for sale the same day, and if not, the day after. Immediate possession given, as the proprietor is leaving the country for a southern climate.

Tables of a fine independent lot to a person with some means, who is desirous of a fine old homestead, as everything about the place is in perfect order, and the full ploughing is all done, and about 22 acres of fall wheat have been sown, and everything is now ready for the spring work.

For particulars as to title, &c., reference is given to Messrs. Garrow & Proudfoot, Barristers, Goderich, and for the adaptability of the farm for fruit raising, reference is given to Mr. J. A. Elliott, Barrister, and also to Mr. E. G. Correspondent Fruit Growers Association, Goderich.

Intending purchasers will be shown over the premises at any time until day of sale.
