NOW RAISES 600 CHICKENS

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me."

"I saw the Compound advertised in our paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. Adams, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Adams.

Women everywhere in Mrs. Adams' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

Ruled Destiny!

CHAPTER XIV. A DIABOLICAL PLOT.

With a fast-beating heart she went to her room, and sitting down before the glass scanned her face anxiously.

When Josine came there must be no chink in the mask through which the girl might catch a glimpse of the troubled soul within!

Presently she heard a knock at the door, and in response to her languid "Come in, please!" Josine entered.

With downcast eyes she approached, and held out a bunch of flowers, without a word.

"Put them on the table, please," said Lady Blanche.

Josine obeyed, and stood with folded hands and lowered lids.

"Will they suit your ladyship?" she asked.

Lady Blanche took them up and looked at them carelessly.

"Yes, thanks!" she replied, and raised her eyes to Josine's face; as she did so, Josine raised her eyes, and the two looked at each other in silence for a moment; but Josine's glance was eloquent, and Lady Blanche read and understood all that it meant.

"You have taken a great deal of trouble, Josine," she said, languidly, her voice calm and cold.

"Not at all, my lady," she answered.

"I am very pleased to be of any service to your ladyship."

"Thank you!" said Lady Blanche, reaching for the jewel case as she spoke, and taking out a pearl and ruby ring.

"Will you take this ring, please? I have no doubt it will fit you. You have," glancing at her hands, "slight fingers."

Josine colored with flattered vanity, and her eyes flashed on the ring greedily.

"Oh, your ladyship is too good," she murmured.

"Oh, no!" said Lady Blanche, with a little quiver. "It is a mere trifle, Josine. By the way—carelessly—"

"It would be as well, perhaps, if you did not wear it while you are here! The other servants might be jealous; you understand?"

Josine's black eyes twinkled very intelligently.

"I understand, my lady! No, I will not wear it! I am very grateful! Your ladyship may always rely on me, in everything!" she added, significantly.

"I am sure of that, Josine," said Lady Blanche.

Josine hesitated a moment, as she put the ring in her pocket, then turned to leave the room.

"I hope the flowers will prove suitable, miladi," she said, in a low voice.

"I did not gather them myself, an old man picked them for me."

Lady Blanche flushed for an instant and seemed about to speak, then inclined her head, and with a reverential sweep of the body, Josine took herself off.

Lady Blanche remained in her room nearly all that day; she was "learning her part," a part difficult to play, for the words were of necessity unwritten and would depend upon circumstances; but as the dressing-bell rang she rose from the sofa, on which she had thrown herself for a few minutes' rest, and sleep if possible, prepared to play that part, though its failure, as she had told Oscar Raymond, would mean shame and disgrace to her.

With the sound of the dressing-bell the great place began to echo to the voices of the gentlemen who had been out since luncheon after grouse.

Florin, who was in the pretty little boudoir which she shared with Lady Betty, heard Lord Norman stop outside, and opened to his knock.

He leaned against the door, his gun in his hand, looking supremely handsome in his businesslike shooting rig, and particularly happy and satisfied.

"Well, my darling!" he murmured, putting his arm round her and drawing her to him: "what have you been doing with yourself? We have had splendid sport—wonderful bag for so short a time and so few guns!"

"Is this one loaded, pray?" asked Florin. "I don't know that I care to have it quite so near. Bruce. How heavy it is! Aren't you tired?" with that little upward glance of wonder and admiration which a woman bestows on the man she loves.

He laughed.

"Not a bit. By the way, don't forget that we are going to have a dance this evening; so put on your finery, and prepare for conquest!"

"I wish you'd go, and let Florin get dressed, Bruce!" called out Lady Betty from the inner room.

"All right," he said, laughing. "I'm fearfully hungry! Oh, I didn't tell you how nearly we had an accident this afternoon!"

"An accident!" echoed Florin, turning pale—on his account—and glancing at the gun.

He smiled.

"Yes, and all my fault! I was a little ahead of the others near the plantation, when some birds rose right in front of me. I raised my gun, and without thinking of the possibility of there being any one in the wood, fired. The next instant an old man, with long gray hair, came out from the very spot I had fired at!"

"Oh, Bruce!"

"Don't be alarmed, I hadn't hit him; at least, so I conclude, for the old fellow went off pretty smartly, and disappeared without saying a word; but he shook his fist as he went, which you may consider equivalent to a whole dictionary. He was a curious-looking fellow, dressed in a rough coat. I suppose he was one of the pensioners on the estate, and was gathering firewood, for he had a bundle in his hand. I asked Sir Joseph if he knew him, but he didn't seem to. So that you may give him a sovereign to cure his fright!" said Florin, archly.

"Exactly!" he said, and taking her face in his hand he kissed her, and went off humming:

"The Bride's Welcome."

Florin closed the door and returned to her room.

As she did so she heard Lady Betty's voice raised complainingly, and glancing in at the dressing-room saw Josine standing with the hair brush in her hand a little distance from the table, her face pale and troubled, while Lady Betty was holding her head as if she had been suffering untold agonies.

"What is the matter?" asked Florin, gently.

"That is what I should like to know!" answered Lady Betty. Here has Josine been tearing my hair out by handfuls for the last quarter of an hour! I don't know what has come over her! She used to be so careful; and now—I declare she seems half idiotic! She doesn't hear one-half the words I speak to her!"

Florin glanced at the dark face, and met an appealing, pathetic look from the black eyes.

"Perhaps Josine is not well," she said, gently.

"Why doesn't she say so, then?" retorted Lady Betty. "If she isn't well why doesn't she go and lie down! But, she says she is quite well; that there is nothing the matter with her! I have asked her a dozen times in the course of to-day!"

Josine glanced at Florin, lowered her eyes and heaved a deep sigh.

"There!" exclaimed Lady Betty, "that is how she goes on! If she were not far too wise, and too old—the latter with a little vixenish flash at Josine—"I should say she was in love."

"Oh, miladi!" murmured the girl, but looking at Florin all the time.

"Well, then, if you are not ill and are not in love, what is the matter with you?" demanded Lady Betty, not unreasonably.

"I am truly sorry, miladi—"

"Sorry! So am I, and sore, too!" snapped Lady Betty, plaintively.

"There, try again, and for goodness' sake pay some attention to your work, or I shan't have any hair left!"

Florin stood for a moment looking at the girl.

She seemed to have something on her mind, to judge by her pale face and the anxious look in her eyes.

"Perhaps she is afraid that Lord Norman will tell Lady Betty about the letter, and her having made her way into the conservatory," she thought; so, as she turned to leave the room, she said, to reassure her:

"Oh, Josine, Lord Norman found the letter and gave it to Lady Seymour. Is that what you are uneasy about?"

Josine crimsoned, then her face went pale again.

"Thank you, miss," she said.

"What letter was that?" demanded Lady Betty.

"A letter one of the servants asked me to give to Lady Seymour, miladi," said Josine, glibly.

"Hem!" snapped Lady Betty. "Yes,

Florin stood for a moment looking

She seemed to have something on her mind, to judge by her pale face and the anxious look in her eyes.

"Perhaps she is afraid that Lord Norman will tell Lady Betty about the letter, and her having made her way into the conservatory," she thought; so, as she turned to leave the room, she said, to reassure her:

"Oh, Josine, Lord Norman found the letter and gave it to Lady Seymour. Is that what you are uneasy about?"

Josine crimsoned, then her face went pale again.

"Thank you, miss," she said.

"What letter was that?" demanded Lady Betty.

"A letter one of the servants asked me to give to Lady Seymour, miladi," said Josine, glibly.

"Hem!" snapped Lady Betty. "Yes, that is the sort of work you are best fitted for, I should apply for the next postman's situation that may be vacant."

Florin wanted to ask if that was the letter Josine had lost, or if there was another for Lady Betty, but thought that she would reserve the inquiry for a more fitting time, and went to her room and began to dress herself.

As there was to be a dance that evening, she selected one of her prettiest dresses, and before she had got it on, Josine came softly in to help her.

Florin had accepted her assistance once or twice lately, and though she had never quite liked or believed in the girl, had, from pure good nature, grown to tolerate her.

But this evening Josine's manner attracted her attention very much and puzzled her.

Every now and then the girl drew a long breath and sighed; and once or twice Florin happening to glance up at the glass, caught the black eyes fixed upon her with an expression that was almost one of absolute pity.

"Josine," she said at last, "I am sure that you are ill. Why do you not tell your mistress and ask her to let you go to bed? I will tell her if you do not like to. Go and lie down this evening and rest."

"Thank you, miss; thank you," Josine murmured. "You are always good and kind—"

"Oh, nonsense," said Florin, with a little smile.

"Ah, yes, miss, but it is always that you are good and kind to me, while I—"

She stopped and turned away, taking up a neat dress and carrying it to the wardrobe.

"While you, what?" asked Florin.

"No matter, miss. It is not I who should speak," said Josine, shutting her lips tightly. "No, it is not I; a servant has no business with a heart! Ah, no, she must use her hands and her eyes, but her heart—ah, it is not fitting that she have one."

"I don't understand you in the least," Florin said, half puzzled and half amused. "If you are in any trouble, why not confide in Lady Pendleton? I am sure she will help you."

"I! No, it is not I; and miladi cannot help. No one can help!" said Josine, almost tragically, but with an air of quiet dignity that impressed Florin, though she tried to think lightly of the matter, putting the whole thing down to French sentiment.

"Well, I am sorry if you are in trouble, Josine," she said, "either on your own account or on any one else's; but you must not make yourself ill."

"Thank you, miss!" responded Josine, gratefully, and she knelt down and arranged the folds of Florin's dress with a careful, one would almost have said, seeing her, a loving attention.

Florin took up her fan and went downstairs with Lady Betty, and Josine stole on tiptoe to the door, and watched them as they passed below her.

"So! I am too old to be in love, miladi, am I?" she muttered, between her white teeth. "Perhaps, oh, yes, perhaps! But I am not too old to spoil the love-making of your sweet Miss Florin! I am wise enough for that! Wait, miladi! Wait, and you shall see!"

Then she stole back to the room, and taking the ring Lady Blanche had given her, held it to the candle light.

"Oh, you beauty!" she murmured, rapturously. "You beauty! And there are more coming to keep you company! More and more! And money, too! Bah! what fools these grand ladies are! And all for love! I wonder now," she murmured, musingly, "whether Miss Florin got an inkling of my meaning? The English are so dull! A French woman would have known in a moment that I had something to tell her. But she! Oh, no! It was, 'Josine, you must be ill! I shall have to speak plainly, after all. Bah! It is as our friend in the wig says, 'a pretty little comedy!'"

Another German Offensive Expected.

Next Few Days Will Be Eventful. All Quiet Along the Piave. Ex-czar of Russia Assassinated by Bolsheviki. American Troops for Italy.

WAR SUMMARY.

With the return of almost normal conditions on the Italian front and with no indications that it is the intention of the Austrians to launch another stroke against General Diaz's armies, the eyes of the world are being centred once more in expectancy on the battle area in France and Flanders as the possible theatre of early encounters on a large scale. This expectancy is heightened rather by the utterance of Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons on Monday, when he said another enemy attack may be looked for in a few hours and certainly within the next few days, a blow on which the issue of the campaign might depend, than by any outward signs of great preparations by the enemy to loose their armies for an attempt at the capture of Paris or the Channel ports. Although the infantry operations, except by the Americans in the Belleau Wood, have not arisen in importance, scarcely above patrol encounters recently, nevertheless the Germans are trying out with their artillery the stability of the British and French positions on various sectors fromlanders to the region of the Marne. Southwest of Arras, the British and French lines are between Ghinchy and Robecq the British lines have been heavily shelled with guns of all calibres and with large numbers of gas projectiles. The French have been receiving similar visitations between the Oise and the Aisne Rivers, especially in the region north of Villers Cotterets, where the recent German offensives reached its greatest depth in the attempted dash on Paris. When or where the next drive is to be launched cannot be foretold, but it is expected it will be started and carried out in an ambitious manner, for it is seemingly realized that the German armies in the west, and haste is necessary. This fact apparently is being deeply rooted in the mind of the German high command, especially as it is daily witnessing the arrival of the American Army on the front and is coming to the highest merit. For the moment the Germans seem to be resigned to their loss to the Americans of the Belleau Wood, and no counter attacks have been made in an attempt to regain the lost ground. The latest account of the American victory shows that the troops from overseas, in addition to killing or wounding many of the enemy, took 311 prisoners, eleven machine guns and an automatic rifle, a large quantity of ammunition and other war stores. All is quiet along the Piave front, the Italian theatre, where the Italians are securing their positions from which they drove the Austrians from the west bank of the river. In the mountain region there has been considerable fighting, in which the Italians seem to have had the upper hand. Announcement has been made by Secretary of War Baker that a regiment of American troops from the expeditionary forces of General Pershing has been ordered to the Italian front. On their arrival, which is expected shortly, the Austrians will have facing them men from Italy, Great Britain, France and the United States.

THE PARIS AIR RAID.

PARIS, June 27. (Via Havas Agency.)—A few bombs were dropped on Paris last night, according to the Petit Parisien report of the attempt at an air bombardment. It appears, says the Matin, that there were two groups of the Gotha, the greater part of them had to change the direction of their flight because of the vigorous barrage fire, and in the effort to regain their bearings only one of them was able to drop a bomb. It is pointed out that whereas the Germans had made six attacks on Paris by the air route early in June, they had made no attempt since the night of June 15th and 16th.

BRITISH PRESS ON KERENSKY.

LONDON, June 27. These morning newspapers devote space in their news to Kerensky's appearance in London, but only two of them comment editorially upon the event. One of these, the Daily Express, describes the former Russian Premier as a man of words not of action. The Graphic, on the other hand, sees in Kerensky's appearance in London a welcome sign of possible fresh developments in Russia. It urges Allied action in Russia through Siberia.

NO PROMOTION.

LONDON, June 27. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Replying to Hon. Jos. Martin, East St. Pancras, in the House of Commons to-day, James Ian Macpherson, Under-Secretary for War, said, "It is not the Government's intention to appoint General Gough to some important position in connection with the Canadian forces."

THE GERMAN MARK.

GENEVA, June 27. The German mark is now worth less than the French franc on the Swiss exchanges for the first time in fifteen months. On the Geneva Bourse Allied exchanges continue to increase, whereas those of the Central Powers are decreasing despite the efforts by Berlin and Vienna to raise the value of their exchange. The decrease is explained by the Central Powers began when the news of the Austrian defeat on the Piave reached Switzerland.

(By the Associated Press.)—The Ukraine Bureau at Lusanne announced to-day it had received confirmation of the report that the Bolshevik authorities at Yokaterburg condemned Nicholas Romanoff, the former Russian Emperor, to death, after a short trial, and then shot him. Details of the reported execution are lacking.

MINING HORROR.

VIRGINIA, Minn., June 27. At least twenty persons are dead, as the result of an explosion of dynamite set off by a bolt of lightning during a heavy thunder storm at the silver mine of the M. Hazena Company to-day. Thousands of tons of ore fell in as a result of the explosion and the bodies of many were buried. Several were injured seriously.

EX-CZAR'S SON REPORTED DEAD.

LONDON, June 27. Rumors are current in Petrograd that Alexis Romanoff, son of the former Emperor Nicholas, died a few days ago, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen to-day.

MERCHANT TONNAGE LOSSES.

LONDON, June 27. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The public last Thursday of the Admiralty report announcing the merchant tonnage losses for the month, due to enemy action, shows that the marine risk totaled British 224,735, Allied and neutral 130,959 tons, as compared with an adjusted aggregate for April of 311,456 tons and 620,326 tons in May of last year. The losses from marine risk is stated to have been unduly heavy last month. The Shipping Ministry announces that steamships of an exceeding 500 gross tons entering and clearing in United Kingdom ports, exclusive of coastal and channel traffic, totalled 7,777,948 tons last month.

THE INGENIOUS HUN.

PITTSBURG, June 27. A high-power air-gun and mechanical arson device, designed to destroy buildings without leaving a trace, was found by Department of Justice agents to-day in the effects of Fernando Roberto Edouardo Ludwick, a German alien enemy, arrested last night on charges of failing to register. Ludwick, who speaks five languages, told officials he was born in Germany and was formerly a German army officer. He was unable to explain how the gun and arson machine happened to be in his possession, and was placed in the county jail until his record was investigated by the Federal agents.

SOME PRICE.

WASHINGTON, June 27. Flour from which Russian black bread is made, is selling for $150 a barrel in Moscow. The Russian Government to-day reported the price of wheat in training in France and will be replaced there by one from this side.

AMERICAN TROOPS FOR ITALY.

AERIAL OPERATIONS.

LONDON, June 27. An official statement on aerial operations says: Seven German machines were brought down by our air force on June 26th and two were driven down out of control. Two of ours are missing. With the improvement of the weather more photographic and observation work was accomplished than had been possible for some time. Our bombing machines dropped 144 tons of explosives and 16 tons of bombs on the Bruges docks. On the night of June 26-27 bombing operations continued and a number of bombs were dropped by our night flying machines on various targets without loss.

CASUALTIES INFLICTED.

LONDON, June 27. The war office statement to-night says: Casualties were inflicted on the enemy during the night of June 26-27 by our night flying machines on various targets without loss.

SPEECH INSPIRED.

LONDON, June 27. The Westminster Gazette says: The notion that Von Kuehlmann is a clumsy speaker, who has blundered into saying things he did not mean or were not authorized by his superiors, may be altogether dismissed. No Foreign Secretary in Germany would dream of making a statement in public about military operations without the approval of his superiors, and obtaining their endorsement down to the last letter. If Von Kuehlmann spoke as he did it was because the military authorities desired him so to speak and because they thought it necessary to break to the German people the news that the speedy and the victory which in a few weeks ago they themselves promised, is not within their grasp. The Chancellor's explanation, and still more the circulation of his speech in neutral countries of Herr Mannan's speech, which followed Von Kuehlmann's, confirms this explanation. The German people, loud boasts and confident promises, which followed the first stages of the Western offensive, and to be suddenly told the war may be greatly prolonged and that the great German Staff doesn't see its way to victory, is a stupendous shock to the hopes that have been encouraged.

WILL MEET KERENSKY.

LONDON, June 27. An important gathering of Russian diplomats will meet Kerensky in Paris. A. P. N. S. Wolsky, the former Russian Foreign Minister and now head of the League of the Russian faithful to their cause and her Allies, which has been organized in Paris, and the Ambassadors of the Kerensky

HECKLED KUEHLMANN.

WASHINGTON, June 27. German Socialists heard of the United States Secretary of War Baker's announcement on June 10th that more than 700,000 American soldiers had been sent to France, in time to use the information in heckling Foreign Minister Kuehlmann during his recent speech in the Reichstag, advises reaching France through a neutral country and received here by cable to-day, is blaming Austria and denouncing the policy of the German Government and ridiculing the failure of the submarines to keep American soldiers out of France.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, - - Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, - - - - Editor

FRIDAY, June 28, 1918.

Newfoundland's Gold Cannon.

The people of Newfoundland have completed the raising of a six million dollar gun with which to help defeat the enemy, in the shape of an over-subscription to the Victory Loan. Every person who has purchased the minimum amount of stock in this Loan has contributed toward winning the war. Germany, which has been anxiously watching for the result of our people's response, can now accept this decision of the triumphant faith in her fighting men, and Terra Nova's inflexible determination to see the struggle through to ultimate victory, no matter what the cost. We have reason to be proud of the response to the call for subscriptions to our first loan. When it was FIRST MENTIONED IN THE TELEGRAM there were many who were doubtful of the issue; many who thought that, as a people, we would not take kindly to investing in Government stock; many who considered that there were insurmountable difficulties in the way of its success. Cold water was thrown upon it in plentiful doses, but within nine days of the Bonds being placed on the market the triumphant announcement has been made that the loan has been more than taken up and "gone over the top." And what is greatly to our credit, but very few people outside the city had an opportunity to show their confidence by purchase. For this reason, the authorities, acting upon advice, have made known their intention of enlarging on the two million dollars asked for locally, which added to the four millions bought in Canada complete the sum named by the Act of the Legislature, in order that the outposts may share in this investment. That this expressed intention will meet with popular approval goes without saying. It would not be cricket to shut the door on the outposts by closing the lists now, and their participation in the purchase of the extra bond issue which will run into another two million dollars will be another answer to German "psychology," which thinks to frighten us into submission by midnight air raids, slaughter of hospital nurses and destruction of non-combatants, the whole hideous doctrine of terrorism which the Hun has practised since the war started. To have failed in subscribing this loan would have shown a weakness on our part and perhaps might have encouraged the Prussian in the belief that we were not in this war heart and soul. But we have swung back, or as our American allies would say, we have "come across" with the six millions and a substantial surplus, and now we must not fall down. Another two million dollar gun is needed for the six million dollar gun. In preparing that, we are making ready a missile that will break down the enemy's fortifications. Let us get to it.

Keep Out the Fly.

With the coming of the warm weather, (we speak advisedly) our chief enemy the housefly, will be putting in an appearance and will descend upon the city like the Assyrian. Some gentle minded folk are under the impression that it is a sin to "swat Mr. Fly." To those we offer this advice: "Keep him out" by using screen doors and wire screens to windows. The common house fly is a greater menace than the German. Both should be swatted at sight. There is danger in the presence of one, and how many times is that danger multiplied when the fly begins to invade the house. Therefore keep him out by using screens, and should any succeed in getting "inside the lines" swat them good and hard and make sure of the job.

By Proclamation.

Monday next, July 1st, has been proclaimed a general holiday, instead of Wednesday, 3rd, as set down in the Importers' Association schedule. Consequently on Monday all Government stores and mercantile establishments will be closed, and the newspapers will not publish.

The Community Nurse.

Miss Rodgers, the nurse who has been engaged for three months to organize community nursing in the city, arrived by train yesterday. The plan upon which she will work has not yet been fully decided. An office or centre will be provided to which mothers can bring their children for advice at certain hours, particulars of which will be announced later. Miss Rodgers will be working under the direction of the Medical Health Officer, Dr. Frazer.

The Kaiser's day is done - if you Buy Victory Bonds.

At yesterday's meeting of the W.P.A. arrangements were made for taking part in the Commemoration Parade on July 1st and details finalized for assisting at the entertainment to be given through the kindness of His Excellency the Governor and Miss Harris to the brothers and sisters and children of the fighting men at Government House grounds in the afternoon. As suggested by Rev. (Capt.) Clayton a committee, with Mrs. Patterson as convener was formed to provide magazines, etc., and otherwise forward the work at the Recreation Hut, which has just been completed for the soldiers.

We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of a copy of the Commemoration Souvenir Number, a little work chiefly gotten up and published as a literary souvenir of the ceremonies of March 16th last, when the W.P.A. White was consecrated Bishop of the Diocese of Newfoundland. As a record of the ceremonies on this auspicious occasion, this number will be of lasting interest to Anglicans in the Dominion-Diocese. The full and complete description of the Consecration itself, together with those of the ceremonies used at the Enthronement, installation and induction of His Lordship Bishop White, should enhance its value to Church people. The illustrations, some of which are unique, make the issue very attractive and altogether, this Souvenir is one which every Churchman should possess.

Registration of Births in city of St. John's

Whereas the Government of this Dominion and the Municipal Council of the City of St. John's have arranged for the engagement of a Community Nurse for service in the said city during the next three months, especially with reference to the saving of infant life;

And whereas it is necessary that such Nurse should get at once into touch with all newly born infants and their mothers; on recommendation of the Acting Medical Health Officer, it is ordered that in respect of the City of St. John's the provisions of Section 8, Cap. 28, Consolidated Statutes, as amended by Section 4, Cap. 9, 1899, will be enforced. This Act provides that when any birth takes place information of the same shall be furnished or posted within forty-eight hours thereafter to the proper officer appointed to receive the same, under a fine not exceeding $10 for every neglect to do so.

The obligation to furnish such information rests in the first instance upon the father of the child; or, in the case of his death or absence, upon the mother; or, in the case of the inability of both parents, then successively upon any person standing in their place, the nurse in attendance, or the occupier of the house within which the birth occurs.

As the Office of the Registrar General is situated in St. John's, it is ordered that the notification of all births in the City of St. John's from 1st July next shall be furnished or posted within forty-eight hours thereafter to the Registrar General of Births, Marriages and Deaths, 283, Duckworth Street, upon cards which may be procured from any Post Office or Postal Telegraph Office in the City. Such cards when filled in and signed may be mailed free of charge.

It is not intended that the notification of births as set forth above shall interfere with the reporting of births for registration at present carried out by the Clergymen, who will still continue such registration, transmitting a correct copy of the same to the Registrar General as usual.

FATHERS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

What rare things fathers are! Fathers that are fathers, and not just parents, I mean.

Fathers that inspire respect but not fear.

Fathers that the children feel will take a real interest in their small problems and ambitions.

Fathers that are just and self-controlled in their discipline.

Fathers that are just as real and, barring the fact of their daily absence, just as important in the lives of their children as mothers.

How many such fathers do you know?

A Real Father.

I can only think of one. He is a man who does not like me, and I am inclined to reciprocate. And yet, I take off my hat to him. For, he is a real father. He works mighty hard, and yet, when he comes home at night, he does not slump down in a chair and read the evening paper till dinner is ready. He goes upstairs and tells the children a story, or romps with them. Every Sunday he walks in the woods with them and teaches them all about flowers and birds. On holidays he frequently takes his brood on a picnic, and on one occasion he took care of the whole family for a week. His children adore him. They look to his coming home at night, they trust him, they confide in him.

He Has a Genius for Fatherhood.

That man has a genius for fatherhood. He is not an ordinary man. I do not suppose all men could be like him, any more than all men could be great singers or artists. But, though ordinary men may not be able to make their homescoming the event of the day they can at least prevent its being dreaded.

In one of the popular magazines, there was recently held a contest, for the best letter on "What I think of my parents." About a dozen letters were published and more than half of them spoke disparagingly or resentfully of the fathers. The children (some of them) appreciated their father's contributions towards their care, but they resented such things as complete lack of sympathy, uncontrolled temper, unjust and hasty punishments, a kill-joy attitude, etc.

Less Time, But Less Strain Also.
 A father, to be sure, hasn't as much time to devote to the business of being a parent, as a mother. It is her vocation, his avocation.

Quite true. But, on the other hand, he hasn't the strain of constant, exacting, monotonous care of small folks to excuse impatience and lack of sympathy.

Your Boys and Girls.

Keep an open house as much as possible, and let your boys and girls feel that they may ask whom they want as often as they want. This encourages them to love their home and remain in it. Fun and plenty of it should abound, and the more parents enter into it, the more intimate they become with their children, the greater pleasure they will be to each other. In the city it is harder to plan novelties, but try doing over your girls room, and I am sure her pleasure will repay you. The cost of papering is small, and there are numberless fascinating chintzes in the shops for slip-covers and hangings. Given due thought the room may be transformed into something new, fresh, and charming at comparatively slight expense. Another thing haven't you some little used room or attic in your house which you could clear out, and turn over to the boys and girls for a study, den, sitting-room, work-room or whatever they may choose to call it?

NOR ME.

"Bill," says he, as he smoked his fat. "Can you fancy yourself so wild that to bolster your throne, or the land you own."

You'd slaughter a little child? Suppose you was high in the summer sky.

With a hospital roof below And a bomb in hand; at your chief's command.

Do you think you could let it go? Says I, "Not me, though I may not be. A saint when I'm seen red."

I wouldn't do that for a jeweled hat! "Me neither," he slowly said.

"Bill," says he, in a solemn way, "Suppose you was out at sea. An' you found a boat that was just afloat."

With fellows like you an' me All shiverin' cold, as the ocean rolled, Could you think of your shak' crown, An' answer their yell with a murderous yell."

An' laugh as you watched 'em drown?" "Not me," says I, with a little sigh; "Thank God I can say 'not me!'"

"There's nothin' I'd win by so foul a sin."

"Nor me, old pal," says he.

BEAUTY DANCING.

The popularity of the dance seem not to have lost a mite of its popularity even with the war. The modern dances are real beauty aids because they are fun making dances. Exercise of any sort is almost entirely lacking in benefit if one does not throw oneself into it with heartfelt pleasure. The mind must be pleased and contented or the muscles will move half heartedly as well. Because music and social life are a part of dancing, it is more joyously exhilarating than any other form of exercise.

Like tennis and swimming, dancing is beneficial because it uses all of the muscles. The folk dances, as they are taught in the public schools, give poise and perfect muscular control.

The Grecian classical dances confer an even more perfect grace. If you find that dancing is too energetic and tires heart and lungs, join a class average woman carries tense nerves and graceful ballet steps. Pleasure will be combined with exercise and the relaxation which will follow, is soothing to the nerves. The average woman carries tense nerves into her period of rest and sleep which an hour's dancing would easily dispel.

To gain real benefit from dancing do not eat too heartily before the evening's pleasure begins. Dance in the open air when possible and avoid close, stuffy halls. There is a void for all good things to stop, especially dancing. The excitement of the music and the chatter of friends will drive you on but, if you are dancing for benefit and beauty, you must rest when muscular weariness overtakes you.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Is it considered good form to use the letters R. S. V. P. on an invitation, asked Ida.

The abbreviation is practically obsolete, the favored form at present being "please respond." As a matter of fact favored guests should have courtesy to answer without a reminder," replied her sister.

The Smoke Cloud.

THE IDEA OF USING SMOKE AS A SCREEN IS AS OLD AS WAR. (By Lord Teignmouth.)

The use of smoke-screens in the glorious landing at Zeebrugge, and the parallel that has been drawn between the daring of that exploit and the doings of Sir Francis Drake, make the fact that Drake proposed the use of a smoke-screen as far back as the year 1589 doubly interesting. Drake and Essex—the favourite of Queen Elizabeth—set out the year after the Armada on the fool's errand of seating Dom Antonio upon the vacant throne of Portugal. First, however, it was necessary to turn the Spaniards out of Lisbon, and Essex, being a soldier, was for assaulting it from the land; while Drake, a sailor, was equally keen on attacking the city from the water. To be sure, Drake had first to get his ships into the Tagus, the mouth of which was defended by batteries whose guns, unless silenced, might "play old Harry" with his ships.

His plan, therefore, was "to spoil the aim of the gunners at Fort St. Julian by letting four smoke-ships drift down upon the fort," while he slipped past with the rest, and forced a landing at Lisbon. Essex, however, insisted on having his own way, so the "trick" was never attempted. Some sixty years later, during the war between Charles I. and the Parliament, the smoke-screen—strange to relate—was successfully practised at the identical spot where Drake proposed its use.

That the idea of a smoke-screen as an aid to military operations was still exercising men's minds is evident from an occurrence in 1760. On September 20th of that year George III. reviewed from a tent in Hyde Park Colonel Burgoyne's regiment of Light Dragoons, after of a shell charged with fuming combustibles, "which threw out a great smoke, and is intended to cover a retreat, and on other occasions."

One hundred and thirty years later another experiment similar to the one above described took place under circumstances which, in view of recent events, may be regarded as not entirely devoid of significance.

During the summer of 1890 the Kaiser was in England, and his interest in military invention was being well known, arrangements were made for a private demonstration of a "smoke bomb" invented by Colonel Crease of the Royal Marine Artillery, at Eastney Barracks, near Portsmouth.

In a jealously-guarded field a company of Marines was drawn up in readiness for the performance, each man being provided—in addition to his rifle—with a suitable supply of small bombs, whence the smoke-screen was to be emitted. The men were then ordered to advance in skirmishing formation, and as a means of screening themselves from hostile fire, each skirmisher, before running forward, threw a bomb as far to the front as possible, and then advanced under shelter of the smoke.

His Imperial Majesty being averse to "interviewing"—on the part of newspaper reporters—left the public in ignorance of his opinions on the performance. But the device would be discussed with his military advisers after his return to Germany, and doubtless was the germ of the idea of poisonous gas-clouds with which the Prussian savage heralds his advance over the battlefields of Flanders.—Answers.

THE ONE INTEREST.

I went last night to see a show, a play I've long adored; but little Eva's tale of woe just left me feeling bored. I saw Eliza cross the bay, but felt no pleasant thrill; for I was thinking of some way to can old Kaiser Bill. And Marks the lawyer hewed his gags, and failed to make me grin; my thoughts were all of battle flags and words and martial din. I went to see the baseball game, with crozier three or four; the pastime's pretty much the same as in the days of yore. But there was little whooping done, although the play was fine, for we were thinking of the Hun, of war across the brine. I knew not which team won or lost, and didn't seem to care; for "everything on earth's a frost save doings 'over there.'" I do not care for printed books, for music or for art; there's nothing now but war, gadzooks! that stir my weary heart. I do not care for politics, for steamship and their spels, for all their foolish bag of tricks. I wouldn't give two wheels. I do not yearn for county fairs, for picnics in the woods; all mortal things are fakes and snares, save war and it's the goods. And it alone is worth our while, until our cause is won, until we cannae think of guile, the autocratic Hun.

Methodist Conference.

YESTERDAY'S SESSIONS.

Conference opened at 8.40 a.m. with the President in the chair. After the devotional and exercises were conducted, the journal of the proceedings of previous session was read and adopted. The Order of the Day was then taken up and Conference passed the following resolution of appreciation of the kindness of His Excellency the Governor in inviting the Conference to a reception at the Government House.

RESOLVED, that the Conference place on record its high appreciation of the kindness of His Excellency Sir Charles Alexander Harris, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.V.O., in inviting its members and lady friends to a reception at the Government House, and extending to them his generous hospitality and delightful entertainment.

A resolution expressing the thanks of the Conference was passed to ex-President Rev. J. R. Saint, D.D., for his faithful service as President of the Conference, who cannot make a vote of thanks was also passed to Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh for his faithful and efficient services as Secretary of the Conference, and the assistant secretaries were also cordially thanked for their faithful work. Further miscellaneous resolutions of the Conference were read by Secretary of Conference and ordered to be sent to their respective committees.

At 10.30 Conference received the Report on the state of the work. An animated discussion followed in which many members of the Conference took part. The report showed a slight decrease in membership, but this should not give rise to undue pessimism since so many have been withdrawn from our church through enlistment in the Regiment and Navy. The speakers, however, emphasized the need of adopting more modern and effective methods in recruiting members for the church. Dr. Saint declared that there is a growing distrust of the type of Christian who cannot make his conduct agree with his profession of faith. This indicates a growing sentiment in favour of the finer ethical types of Christian which is on the increase in our churches to-day. The debate was interesting and exceedingly helpful. On motion the discussion was adjourned until a further date and the Conference rose at 12 o'clock in order that the members might partake of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Session opened at 2.40; the President presiding. Hymn No. 91 was sung and Revs. Elliott and Blount led in prayer.

The first business of the session was to appoint a committee to make arrangements for a memorial service for the soldiers and sailors who have fallen during the year. After discussion the following resolution was unanimously carried:

RESOLVED, that the Conference forthwith take steps to select and appoint an ordained minister from its ranks to assume at the earliest possible moment the duties of the Methodist chaplain to the troops in St. John's.

Report of Conference special committee was read and certain recommendations were referred to Church Property Committee.

Conference arose at 4 to allow certain committees to meet.

EVENING SESSION.

At 6.30 the members of the Conference with their lady friends repaired to the school room of Conference Church where a splendid repast had been provided for the ladies of the Gover Street Church congregation.

Rev. N. M. Guy, who is about to leave us for Bermuda, moved, and thanks to the ladies for their kindness. Judge Penny seconded the motion. The Conference by a hearty clasp of hands signified its appreciation of the kindness of the ladies in providing the banquet.

Dr. Fenwick, Superintendent of Missions, then presented his report.

This was the banner year of the Conference in regard to missions. Last year the objective was placed at $21,000, the total raised was $24,332, an increase of $4,953 on last year, and $3,332 above the objective set. Of this amount St. John's district gave $9,525, an increase of $1,264 or 15 p.c. Colborne Street Church had the largest increase $375, while Red Bay, the smallest mission in the district, had the largest per cent increase. Carbonear district raised $3,401, an increase of $657 or 24 p.c. Lower land Cove had the largest increase, $128, while Western Bay had the largest per cent increase of 73 p.c. Bonaville district raised $2,647, an increase of 57 1/2 p.c. Twillingate district contributed $4,676, an increase of $618 or 43 1/2 p.c. Twillingate had the largest increase, $379. Burn district contributed $3,783, an increase of $222 or 32 p.c. Grand Bank had the greatest

Victory Bond Catechism.

Q. On what and where will the proceeds of this Loan be spent?

A. The proceeds of the Loan will be applied to the conduct of Naval and Military operations in or beyond Newfoundland and to the defence and security of the Colony.

Q. How much do Bonds of the Victory Loan cost?

A. From $50 to $100, whatever their face value calls for. These Bonds are sold at PAR; that is, their face value, 100 cents on the Dollar.

Q. How can I buy Bonds of the Victory Loan?

A. By filling out an application blank and handing it to the Victory Loan agents, namely the Branch Banks throughout the Island as well as the Post Offices named in the Prospectus; and also by sending it to the Department of Finance, St. John's or the Bank of Montreal, St. John's.

Q. When can this application for Bonds be made?

A. At any time from the 17th June, 1918, to the 27th July, 1918, inclusive.

Q. In what form must applications to buy a Victory Bond be made?

A. All applications must be in the form prescribed by the Minister of Finance and Customs, obtainable from any Branch Bank, from the Post Offices named in the Prospectus, or from the Department of Finance, St. John's, and Bank of Montreal, St. John's, Bank of Nova Scotia, St. John's, Royal Bank of Canada, St. John's, and Canadian Bank of Commerce, St. John's.

Q. How may women aid the Victory Loan?

A. First by the purchase of Victory Bonds. Second, by helping to sell Victory Bonds to others.

Q. Can a woman own a Victory Bond as her personal property?

A. A Victory Bond is the personal property of the purchaser or of the person to whom the purchaser may sell it or assign it. If it is a registered bond, the record of its ownership is a matter of governmental record. A Victory Bond is therefore the property of the woman who buys it until she disposes of it.

Q. Why should women buy Victory Bonds?

A. Because Victory Bonds are the method adopted by the Government of Newfoundland to take care of our soldiers and sailors who are fighting our War. The success of our men in this war will benefit women no less than men. Women may not fight; but women aid men in providing the sinews of war for the fighters. To women, even more poignantly than to men, come the words: "Shall we be more tender without dollars than with the lives of our sons?"

tion, a community or of an organization do to promote the Victory Loan?

A. Every organization of women has a fund of some sort which may be used to aid the Victory Loan. The money of this fund may be invested in Victory Bonds. There is no better investment for the funds of an institution, a community or of an organization. Every women's organization in the country should be represented by investment in Victory Bonds.

Q. How does the purchase of Victory Bonds express the patriotism of the people of Newfoundland?

A. Every Newfoundland who buys a Victory Bond registers his approval of our defending ourselves against Germany. Every Newfoundland who buys a Victory Bond testifies to his love of country. Every Newfoundland who buys a Victory Bond contributes towards Victory.

The Solicitor reported in the matter of James Murdoch's application that the Council could not refuse to grant him a permit to build on the north side of the Cockpit Road. The City Engineer is to prepare a plan showing location of water and sewerage pipes in this locality.

The City Engineer reported on a number of hoppers required in various parts of the City which were agreed to, and also on the installation of water and sewerage in houses on Alexander Street.

A full report on those notified was made by Inspector Hood.

A number of applications for sewerage under the Small Homes' Act were granted.

The Health Officer's and Road Inspectors' reports were read. After disposing of some routine business and passing pay rolls, bills, etc., the meeting adjourned.

HAVE YOU THOUGHT OF THIS!

The experience in Canada, the United States and the Mother Country, has shown that ALL WAR LOANS HAVE BEEN OVERSUBSCRIBED. Has it occurred to you that if you do not secure your share of this Victory Loan immediately, you may be too late to obtain the full amount you apply for? Go to it now, while the going is good.

"Forgot to the British Seamen"

(From the Montreal Herald.)
"When Germany first threatened Britain with the submarine blockade, she supposed that a few months would serve to bring the latter country to her knees—but she forgot the British seamen. At the end of three and a half years of warfare—and warfare waged in the most unscrupulous manner,—Britain is still unconquered, famine has not yet gained a place within her shores, and her ships come and go with unfailing regularity. It is estimated that an average of over a hundred merchant ships a day pass through the narrow gateway guarded by the Dover patrol."

The above is the answer given by a famous writer to the question, as to why the German submarine campaign has failed of its object. Germany forgot the British seamen. Mr. Havelock Wilson, the President of the Seamen's Union, recently testified that there had not been the slightest disposition on the part of man or boy to forsake the sea. GEORGE F. KEARNEY.

Alles from defeat, the gallant men have paid a heavy price. Since the beginning of the war no fewer than 15,000 men and boys have lost their lives through German submarine attacks—foully murdered, every one of them, by a treacherous foe who knows no pity, recognises no code of honor, and has not a spark of chivalry in his soul. Quite recently the Congressional Union of Scotland, meeting in Glasgow, adopted the following resolution by a large majority:

(1) That the Government be petitioned to place in every hospital ship and merchant ship at least five interned Germans of high financial standing.

(2) In the event of any such vessel being torpedoed or mined, the Germans be the last to be removed from the vessel.

It is doubtful whether this would have the effect of deterring the submarines, although it would be a satisfaction to know that if German submarines murdered British seamen some Germans, at any rate, would die with them. But, halting Germans around in our merchant ships would be to use up effort and space better employed for other purposes.

Father Vercker.

"The lesser griefs that may be said,
That breathe a thousand tender vows
Are but as servants in a house
Where lies the master newly dead."

For open converse is there none
So much the vital spirits sink,
To see the vacant chair and think,
"How good! How kind! and he is gone."

The words of the poet may truly apply to the late lamented Father Vercker, "How good! How kind! and he is gone." For not only in his own Parish will the Pastor be missed, but the whole Southern Shore mourns the loss of the dear old priest. Scarcely a person in the district but have met and received a kindly word from Father Vercker. To him they went to pour their tale of sorrow into his willing ear and came away consoled and comforted.

He watched and wept, he prayed and felt for all."
And Father Vercker was indeed the friend of the children, never was he so happy as when surrounded by God's little ones; he told them merry stories and listened to their innocent laughter.

Those who had the privilege and pleasure of meeting the Pastor of Ferryland in his own home will ever remember his whole hearted genial hospitality, how quickly and pleasantly the hours sped whilst the good priest told stories of the early days on the mission, as only Father Vercker could tell them.

We are lonely, yet we cannot grieve that God found this a fitting time to call his faithful servant home. Father Vercker is dead, but his memory will live for many years. "Oh! though oft depressed and lonely
All my fears are laid aside,
If I but remember only
Such as these have lived and died."

Renews, June 24th, 1918.

IF YOU GAVE EVERY DOLLAR you possess, or that you ever hope to have, it would be as nothing compared to the sacrifice which a mother makes in sending her boy "Over there." But you are merely asked to LEND your money, and at a substantial rate of interest. Surely you cannot fail in your duty to your country in this critical hour! Of course you won't! You are going right out now to buy those VIC TORY BONDS.
