London, July 28-4 a.m.-Mr. Lyman | believed that only two foreigners were in the interior, both French. J. Gage's statement that there is still hope, but it is constantly diminishing, has the following from Che Foo, dated is held here to define accurately the situation. The Chinese minister in London, Sir Chih Chen Lo Fong Luh, yesterday received a telegram from Sheng, director of railways and telegraphs, to the effect that an imperial decree, in the following terms, was issued on July 24: "It is fortunate that all the foreign representatives except Baron Von Ketteler are found ers has revolted against Prince Tuan, in safety and unharmed. Provisions in the shape of foodstuffs, vegetables and fruits will be supplied to the legations in order to show our courtesy.'

SAYS THEY ARE SAFE. The Morning Post goes so far as to assert that there is now direct communication between the Chinese authorities in Pekin and London, and that the ministers are safe. However this may be, it is quite certain that the attempts of the French, Italian and other consuls to get direct replies from Pekin have utterly failed, and it is pointed out that the ability to supply the legations with fruit and vegetables involves the conclusion that communication is not impeded by the Boxers.

ONLY WAY TO REMOVE DOUBT. Thus, despite the daily alteration of hopes and fears, the reiterated Chinese assertions of the safety of the ministers fail to carry conviction, and the decision of the United States not to delay military measures is approved as the only possible course to pursue.

JOHN SIFTON. John Sifton, brother of the late Jos. Sifton, and uncle of the prisoner Gerald Sifton, was the last witness called be fore adjournment. He heard of his brother's injuries about 9 o'clock. when he was in London. He went immediately to the house, finding there Mr. Sinker, the doctor, Rev. Mr. Cooper, Miss Sifton and Mrs. Gerald Sifton. The first time he saw Gerald after the accident was about noon. Gerald told him his father had gone up to show him how to knock off the boards. Gerald was walking away, to go down to get part of the hay-fork, when he heard his father fall out. Witness had asked Dr. McNeill if he had any objection to another doctor being called in, and the latter said he had not. Witness was coming to London to get another doctor, when he heard of his brother's death. During Gerald's presence in the house, when his father was injured, witness saw him more than once in his father's room, and Gerald appeared to feel natural concern over the affair. Witness did not know of his brother's in-tended marriage until he heard of it in London.

THE OLD WILL.

On the night of the funeral Gerald asked witness to give him an order to get the will, meaning the old will. Witness was an executor by this will, which was made over ten years ago. There was no conversation as to how the property had been divided. Witness later came to town with Gerald and got the will. He had no knowledge of any other will. One day in the fore part of this week Gerald told witness about the will. Gerald said he understood the new will left everything to Mary McFarlane, and in the event of her death or marriage, the estate was brother and Gerald.

On the whole this witness' evidence was favorable to the prisoner Gerald. Mr. Hellmuth's cross-examination failed to bring out anything new, except that Joseph Sifton's shoes on the morning of his injury were perfectly new, and slippery on the bottoms.

Saturday Morning. At 10:30 this morning, the prelimin-

Herbert said Mary McFarlane has accused himself and Gerald of being responsible, and he added it was the old man to death, and hang him ing to be married. When Sifton made a hard thing to be accused of. There Herbert said he was of the opinion that the affair arose out of the fact that the girl was in trouble. Herbert said he didn't think a girl in her right mind would marry a man of that stamp. Witness went to the house of his brother James and stayed all night. Next morning they went to Joseph Sif-ton's, but the house was locked and the body had been taken to Gerald Sifton's house. In the afternoon witness and Edgar Morden went there. They postpone the marriage. He hoped they would not think any more of what he had said previously, as he had thought it over and decided it was too risky. Witness saw Gerald on the following Saturday night. Gerald spoke of "the boys," meaning Edgar and James Mor-den. Gerald said Edgar told him they considered him at fault. Gerald thought they would squeal on him if they were swered, he would not take a solitary tion. starving. Witness said he thought his brother was of the same opinion. If she married or died, her share was to be divided equally between the other two legatees. Witness told Gerald that the witnesses to the will were kicking up the row about it, and Gerald said he would have to buy them off, get the will and destroy it. One one of the witnesses, James said. was Edgar's wife. Witness saw Gerald again on Sunday. July 15, to get $6 wages due him. Gerald said he could not understand Edgar. Gerald did not know whether to probate the will he had in his possession, or have Edgar up for blackmail. The following Wednesday Gerald saw witness in the city, and gave him $5 on wages account Gerald wanted witness to go to the country and see the will, but witness said he could not go for some days. Witness saw Gerald again last Sunday, July 22, and Gerald wanted to know what he had best do. Gerald said he would go to Edgar and talk things over quietly. Gerald said the last time he saw Edgar things got so hot he felt like smashing Edgar. he ever got into a scrap with Edgar, Gerald said, he would brain Edgar with the first things he laid his hands on, as he hadn't the strength to fight Mr. Hellmuth then took the witness

Witness told his story to the crown attorney on the Wednesday before he last saw Gerald Sifton. Edgar Morden told witness to see Sifton, as Sifton might make an offer for the will. Edgar and Martin Morden met at James Morden's on Sunday morning, July 22. In making the suggestion about getting the offer from Gerald, Edgar wanted to see what he could draw out of Gerald in the shape of evidence. Witness made a statement to High Constable McLoud on Wednesday, July 18, and this week made another to Detective Murray in the presence of Edgar Morden and Stenographer Coo. On Sunday, July 22, witness told Edgar and James Morden that he wished they had left him out of it, as he didn't wish to give evidence against one who had been a friend to him as Gerald had. Edgar said that if Gerald would do what he had done, he would do worse. Mr. Hellmuth had considerable trouble with this witness, he being very slow in answering questions. At 1 o'clock Mr. Helimuth announced that he could not get through with the witness under three or four hours, so an adjournment was made till 10 a.m. Monday.

Some Facts About the Defenses of the Chinese City.

Speaking of Pekin a writer in Engineer says that the walls of the Tartar city are of an average height of 50 feet, but portions of the north wall reach the height of 61 feet. The average width is about 40 feet, but they have been built so trregularly that in places a width of 57 feet is found, in others a width of only 22 feet. outer face of the wall is perpendicular, while its inner face slopes in some places considerably. Parapets are erected on both inner and outer faces of the wall, that on the latter being loopholed and crenellated. At intervals of about 50 or 60 yards are large buttresses, every sixth being of much larger size than the others; the smaller ones are about 15 feet to 20 feet square. Part of the inner brick lining Witness refused to have anything to square. Part of the inner brick lining do with it. Gerald said it was too big having fallen away from the north wall an opportunity was afforded of observing its construction. Near the gates the walls are occasionally faced with stone, but in other parts by immense bricks which bear a strong resemblance to stone.

The space between the facings is filled up, first by a solid foundation of concrete of some ten feet in depth, then by a layer of well-rammed earth, another layer of concrete, and another of earth succeed, the latter being paved with large blocks of granite, which form the terre-plein. The earth to fill in the wall was taken from the ditch which surrounds the city. The concrete resisted all the efforts of our sappers to form a trench on the terre-plein during the last war. Each of the gates has a buttress on either side connected with a semi-circular wall, which thus forms an enceinte. That of the central south gate is the only one with three entrances—the central gates being for the use of the emperor or his family alone. The arches of the gateways are

BASE BALL. HAMS TAKE ANOTHER.

The Cockneys were never in the game against the Hams at Tecumseh Park yesterday, the aggregation from the Mountain Town cinching matters in the first two innings. It was two straight for the Hams, and Father Pete didn't at all like the turn that things took. He gave lots of good advice to his statwart nine, but everything seemed to go with the other fellows. The game was anything but a brilliant exhibition, as will be seen by the error column. The London fielders had an off de and made the most of it. Cooper we. The box, but had to retire in the arst. His arm, which he thought had regained its strength, is still far from being in shape. Kostal then wend in, and was hit pretty freely, and was somewhat wild. Bradford, for the Hams, pitched a strong game. Only eight scratch hits were received off his delivery. Bill Reed, in center, made a couple of nice catches of long drives, and his throwing to the plate was of the first order. Hams had a batting streak, and had no trouble in getting hits when they were needed McAndrews, at third, put up a good game for the visitors. He adds much to the strength of the team. In the third inning, Umpire Popkay was floored with a foul tip, which struck him just below the heart. He keeled over, and it was some time before he could resume. The score:

In speaking of this matter, Harris said: "These fighters who are challenging Terry know perfectly well that they can never beat him, but they want to fight him so as to get a big loser's end. I will not make a match with a losing end proviso."

LAWN BOWLING.

CLOSE OF THE TOURNAMENT. The annual tournament of the Western Ontario Lawn Bowling Association was ended last night. It was generally conceded to be the most successful ever held by the association and all the players were well satisfied with their week's sport. Four of the five matches on the programme were finished yesterday. First place in the singles was won by D. A. Forrester, of Clinton. In the doubles, the finals were played between Edmund Weld and J. Mc-Dougall, of London, and Jack Brown and Sal. Taylor, also of this city. The former won. The latter players had done some decidedly good bowling during the competition.

was one of the surprises of the tournament. Last year it was the winner of the trophy; this year it was defeated in the first stage. As an evidence of the strength of the rink, however, it competed in the Consolation, and won first prize.

A. S. Wigmore's rink, the Canadas, of Toronto, duplicated their work of last year by winning second prize in the trophy match.

Corbin Weld's rink, of London, played in hard luck throughout the tournament. It reached the semi-finals in three rink matches, but was defeated in each. Had it been successful in any of the three, it would have won four

This rink was also represented in the doubles, where it was successful until the semi-finals was reached, and was then defeated by Brown and Taylor. There was an exciting finish in the preliminaries of the trophy match. A The Grand Trunk are also building rink comprising J. Stephenson, E. Finchamp, J. S. McDougall and E. Weld (skip), played a tie at the last end with the Stratford rink, J. Steele (skip). Prosperity and Tax Reduction. Just as the Dominion Parliament was about to rise, Hon. Mr. Paterson, Minister of Customs, made a most interesting reference to the very satisfactory results which have followed from the development of Canada under the present Government, and especially to the benefits accruing from the granting of a preferential tariff to British goods sent to Canada, and the island kingdom a large increase of inincidental reduction of taxation.

When Mr. Paterson spoke the full returns for the fiscal year ended the 80th ult., had not been made up. They have since been completed, and they but add strength to the declarations made by the Minister, which will no doubt be carefully pondered by the taxpayers of Canada. The results must be highly gratifying to every well-wisher of Canada, and The Advertiser desires to lay before its readers the striking contrast of today's standing of the Dominion with that of the year prior to the advent of the new era, which began four years

The exports for the year amounted to $175,656,947. The products of Canada, exclusive of coin and bullion, amounted to $152,818,917, an increase of $46,440,165 as compared with the fiscal heading in 1896 showed an increase of | China. Here is a statement of our imports for consumption for the past two $154,051,393

1899-00 183,209,273 This is an increase of about $30,000,-000. In 1898-99 the total trade, less short returns, etc, was $308,388,968. This year the total trade, less these same items, amounted to $358,866,220. The total trade for 1898-99, including the expected items, reached, $321,661,213. This year the expected items will probably amount to between $13,000,000 and $14,000,000, so that the total trade, when the returns are complete, will probably reach upwards of $372,000,000, or an increase over 1898-99, itself the best year on record, of over $50,000,000.

These are most gratifying results, as they show how great has been the development of Canada's industrial interests since 1896, and betoken still better results from intelligent management of the country in the immediate future.

Then the application of the preferential tariff on British goods, the putting of necessities on the free list and other reductions in taxation has relieved the public of a large burden that would have been placed on their shoulders had the old trade restriction policy, with its discrimination against Britain, as laid on by the men defeated in 1896, been continued. In the period from 1878 to 1896, during which the late Government was in power, the average tax rate was 19.10 per cent; the highest (in 1899) 21.65. Now, by the reductions made by the Laurier Administration, the tax rate has been gradually reduced until, in 1900, it is now 15.75, and will be found to be still further lowered as a result of the increased preference given to British goods, which now come in at a rate of duty 331/3 per cent less than that charged on goods from foreign countries. Indeed, this year the tariff is 5.68 per cent lower than last year.

The best object lesson in regard to tariff reduction that can be given is to show how the duties collected on imports would have been increased if the old men, the old methods and the old tariff had remained. If the average duties collected in the period of eighteen years prior to 1896 had been imposed in the last four years, the customs duties would have been added to by a total of $12,984,303, which sum has been saved to the taxpayers by the reductions made in the tariff general rate and the establishment of the Empire-cementing preferential tariff in favor of goods from the Motherland. It is well to bear these facts in mind when one comes across the campaigning literature of the Opposition, which, most unwarrantably, assumes, as a repult of false premises that the present tariff is the same as the restrictionist gests its food," "washing its face." tas rate, and that in any case the reduction has been infinitesimal. Instead of that being the case, the saving by the changes made has amounted to the large sum we have named. It has grown steadily larger, too, as the amount saved to the taxpayer by the present tariff this year, compared with that which would have been collected if the tariff in force prior to 1896 had been maintained, was $6,125,985.

The exhibit is one of which the Government and the country may well be proud. Mr. Paterson's felicitations and explanations we will deal with again.

Another View of Japan's Position.

It has been generally recognized that the present crisis in China must bring Japan to the front, and give to the fluence. This is, as a rule, welcomed by English and Americans, who regard Japan as thoroughly progressive and friendly to themselves.

That another view is possible is shown by a letter to the London Times by A. B. Freeman Mitford. While admitting and admiring the energy and adaptability of the Japanese, he ventures to doubt whether the leopard has changed his spots so quickly. A quarter of a century ago Japan was murdering foreigners barbarously, and the veneer of western civilization perhaps does not go as deep as some people think. This gentleman does not see that Japan should play the leading part in the march on Pekin, and would certainly object to one of her generals taking command.

"If we want peace in the future it is to Russia, not Japan, that we should year, 1895-1896. The returns under this look for the civilization of North $40,688,618 as compared with 1878. Thus, let Pekin be a Russian city-never in the past four years, the increase has again a Chinese capital. So far as we been considerably greater than in the are concerned, we have no territorial previous eighteen years. We give be- interests in China; our interests there are purely commercial, and commercially Russia has never been an aggressive power. No one can pretend er security to life, and property at St. Petersburg or Odessa than it is in China or Japan. But even if Russia were aggressive, our business is with the south, and with the region of the Yang Tse. Why entertain a jealousy of Russia in the north?"

On this view western nations need to have almost as much fear of Japan as of China. It is not the common view, but as held by one who has traveled and speaks with some authority, it is worth considering. It is forcibly expressed in the following statement:

"To drive the hated white man out of Asia is the dream of every Asiatic Comparing Canadian exports of by herself nor Japan by herself is forour agricultural exports have increas- two? Once give Japan a foothold on the continent of Asia; place her in command of the countless hordes of Tartars and Chinese (the best of fighting material), drilled and licked into shape by her marvelous power of organization, and her military instinct, and you will have given shape and substance to that yellow terror which was the phantom of the German emperor's too prophetic nightmare. You will have conjured into existence a disturbing force that may alter the map of Asia, if not of the world. If it be indeed necessary to let the Japanese anmy lead the way in the relief of Pekin, let us at least see to it that the cost is well counted."

Nature and Education.

Mrs. Barnett, in the Nineteenth Century, tells of an interesting experi-"to stimulate an interest in nature in the minds of a few of the 32,000 children who were sent by the Children's Country Holiday Fund into the country for a fortnight's holiday." The experiment was an attempt to teach the children something about natural life, and then to find out in a few cases what the results had been. The promoters said: "Our hope is not so much that the children should learn certain facts about nature, so that they can pass an examination, but that they should learn to observe, for we believe that in so doing they may find pleasure and profit, and that by degrees observation will develop both reverence and care."

ment will enable anyone to realize how far away from natural life the London town child lives. "My subject is the joy of town children when on their country holidays, and it is good to know that the habit of taking country holidays-real horidays, and not day-treats-is on the increase. Thousands of children are sent by holiday committees from the great cities to stay for a fortnight or three weeks, with cottage hosts; more go by their own arrangements, often to the same person, whose friendship they had made on previous visits. The unconventional examination paper that was set afterwards showed that the children were wide-awake, and had carefully observed aspects of country life and the habits of animals. Of some of the answers it is said that they show that the children have in one way been taught too much, their minds have been filled with scraps, while their understandings have not been strength-

To read an account of this experi-

Here are some curious answers: A baby horse is a pony; a baby fox is an ox-a thorn; a baby deer is a reindeer -an oxen; a baby frog is a tertpol-a fresher-a toad; a blaby sheep is a bar lamb; a baby rabbit is a mammal.

The rabbit "wobbling its nose," is variously explained as follows: "To make holes in the ground," "to account for the formation of its head," "it does it when it does, what a cow does, di-"What makes the moon give light?"

perhaps was a little outside the range of childish observation. It is treated thus: "Electricity causes the moon to shine." "The moon revolving round the sun which gives light by unknown Employes' Half Holiday planets." "It is the darkness which shows it up." "The moon is the shadow of the earth on the clouds." "The eclipse of the sun." "The clouds," and these answers were in the fifth and sixth standards.

So far as natural objects on the earth are concerned our teachers who are always in the country or near it have a great advantage, they can make the country lane or field a "kindergarten," and they can help the very young in the important work of rightly linking together names and things. Let us, however, remember that the town child, though stupid in some of these things, has his own kind of cleverness.

Messieurs Two-Face.

The Toronto World and the Hamilton Spectator proclaim La Presse as a traitorous sheet. All three work together in love and harmony for the success of Sir Charles Tupper and the Conservative party.—Montreal Herald

Yes, with one story for Quebec and another for Ontario. But these expedients avail little with the intelligent electorate. It has not done so in the past, as is evident by the results in the bye-elections, in which out of 46 contests, the present Government has been victorious in 43, and the Opposition, led by Sir Charles Tupper, in but three. The Government, too, has won a dozen seats from Sir Charles Tupper's party, and have not lost one.

Praise From England.

The British Empire Review contains a very able review of Hon. David Mills recently published book on "The English in Africa." It begins as follows

"'This I have written,' observes Mr. Mills, 'to enlist the opinion of my countrymen on the side of the parent state, which is the side of justice and enlightened progress.' We hasten to congratulate the distinguished and scholarly lawyer, who represents Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government in the Senate as Minister of Justice, upon the success with which he has carried out his patriotic purpose, and we do not doubt that the volume before us will become a recognized text book in Canada on the subject of the imperial posi-tion in Africa."

Further on the reviewer says:

"Approaching the subject as he does, as a democratic colonial statesman, as an accomplished lawyer, and a student well versed in political theory, he handles it with a verve and a freshness, as well as with a freedom from prepossession, which stimulates the interest of his readers.'

This is a view of Mr. Mills' new book which will be cordially indorsed by all who read it. It is a straightforward, fair, comprehensive state ment of the position of Great Britain with regard to the "Dark Continent,"

In the next Parliament-

The gerrymander must go. The British preferential tariff must be maintained. Raw materials, now duty free, must not be taxed. The trade restrictionists must not be allowed to get on the top. The "nest of traitors"-according to Sir Mackenzie Bowell-must not be trusted with power. A united and progressive Government must be maintained. Short speeches, and to the point, must be the rule. The Parliamentary boor must be suppressed.

Two of a Kind.

[Bobcaygeon Independent.] This journal can see nothing more objectionable in Mr. Tarte saying "I am a Frenchman and I love France, than in another person "I am a Scotchman and I love Auld Scotia." Mr. Tarte, this great journal "looks towards you," your health, sir, bong voyage, tray behang, viola, allong, marshong, when you come back to Canada from La Belle France this journal will give you the friendly and hearty welcome due to an esteemed and respected fellow citizen.

The Combine Was Downed. [Hamilton Times.]

The London Advertiser very aptly remarks that if the old cordage combine still had the ear of the government and the protective tariff, the price of binder twine would be at least 20 cents a pound. Not a doubt of The prices it charged for twine when the raw material was cheap, fully 1891 justify that conclusion. The relief the Canadian farmers have obtained is far more than the mere tariff impost: it is relief from the rapacity of a grasping combine—a combine supported by a section of the press of the Tory party for the sums it sweat out to help in their elections.

POPE LEO'S FAVORITE RESORT. [Detroit Free Press.]

The gardens of the Vatican are not many acres in extent, but seem to be larger than they really are. Walks and drives are laid off with care and bordered by high box hedges. A mixture of primroses and wildness greets the eye. At the entrance are some acres, of flower beds laid out in the stiffest style of Italian gardening, but a winding walk leads into a forest which shuts off the views completely. Old fountains, arches, statues, everything mossgrown and old, with ferns close-growing, form the surroundings. On the sunny side of the hill is a small vineyard, a small orchard, poultry yard, deer park and ostrich pen. Several pavilions or summer houses are also to be found.

NEARLY ALL INFANTS are more or less subject to diarrhea and such complaints while teething, and as this period of their lives is the most critical, mothers should not be without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. This medicine is a specific for such complaints, and is highly spoken of by those who have used it. The proprietors daim it will cure any case of cholera or summer complaint.

HOW THE PRESIDENT WORKS. [National Magazine.]

warm June evening in Washington is not just the time for work-but it is a busy time at the White House. Upstairs nearly all the clerks and stenographers have gone, and the doorkeeper who has charge of the door of the president's office at night, sits reading. The stillness and quietude grows deeper and more pronounced each hour; the croaking frogs and chirping crickets in the Mail retard the tempo in the nocturnal chorus. In the cabinet room President McKinley and Secretary Cortelyou concentrate their attention for hours upca the great mass of accumulated paring for a glass of water is the call that has summoned the messenge during four hours of night work. Ev-that the least possible delay is avoided in the dispatch of public business. In these quiet, still hours of night the important work of the chief executive is done, and it is very long past midnight when he passes out, through the double doors to the residential portion of the White House, to obtain rest preparatory to the influx of visitors that begins as early as 9:30 or even 9

THE MARKETS

Local Market.

London, Saturday, July 28. Although this is an exceedingly busy time for the farmers, the market was well patronized. In every department the offerings were large, and as purchasers attended in large numbers there was consequent activity in trade. The day was an ideal one for market-ing, and it was little wonder that so many housekeepers went to the square in search of the staples they required to tide them over Sunday. As soon as the harvest is finally over, there will most likely be a large influx of country folk to the weekly markets, and with larger supplies it is expected that lower prices will come. Contrary to the usual custom the majority of the farmers did not talk shop this morn-The general theme of conversation was the sensational developments in the Sifton case. The pros and cons of the situation were discussed with Large quantities of vegetables were offered today, and, as is usual, a good trade was carried on. If the average number of purchasers is any evidence, the market offering of home-grown vegetables is the most popular department on the square. Day after day buyers are seen at the vegetable stands, even when the trade in other staples is stagnant. The prices of leading varieties did not change materially. Onions, beets and carrots sold for 20 cents per dozen; cabbages, 25c to 30c; green corn, 10c per dozen; tomatoes, 90c per basket, and potatoes from 40c to 60c per bushel.

In proportion to the size of the market the offerings of butter did not vary from those of Thursday, nor did the change. Good pound rolls brought from 21c to 23c, and crock butter sold from 19c and 20c. Eggs, in store lots, remain at 11c and 111/2c per

An average quantity of fruit was of fered today. The demand was not as keen as was expected, and prices were a little asier. Red raspberries sold for 6c and 7c; and black ones also brought that price. Black currants still sold for $1 and $1 10 per basket, and red currants were slow at 40c and 50c.

Meats were offered abundantly. The only change noted was in the price of lamb, which sold for 11c and 12c per

IN OLD LONDON

Brings About a Condition of Disintegration

In Political as Well as Social Circles.

Liberals and Radicals Fail to Pull To gether-The Coming West-Churchill Wedding a Prolific Source of Gossip.

[Special Cable Letter.] London, July 28.—The continuation of terrific heat, the greater part of the week, brought about a condition of general disintegration to an unparalleled pitch. Almost as remarkable as the break-down of long-established social customs before the tropical wave is the break-up of the Liberal party. Were a general election far distant the condition of the Liberal party would be serious, but in view of the fact that the country is face to face with dissolution, the situation of the opposition seems hopeless. The FORMATION OF A THIRD PARTY is generally considered almost inevitable as the result of the internal dissensions now raging in the Liberal ranks. The imperialists have thrown off the mask and demanded control of the party, maintaining that both by numbers and influence they are entitled to dictate its policy. In this they are opposed by the "Forwards," or "Anti-Imperialist-Liberals," with a vigor and bitterness that can only be compared to the ascerbity with which the Gladstonians assailed the Liberal-Unionists when home rule brought the parting of the ways. The climax of the strife that has been simmering since the commencement of the Boer war came Wednesday, when one-third of the Liberal party voted to condemn Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and all his works.

One-third voted with the government to sustain him, while the smaller section, including the nominal leader, abstained from voting at all.

A LIBERAL WHIP DESERTS. It is scarcely surprising that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman should be anxious to throw up his thankless task, ture of this grave situation. One of the Liberal whips, Mr. William Alexander McArthur, member for Leicester, has openly thrown off allegiance by voting with the government-an almost unprecedented action on the part of one holding such a position. Mr. Herbert Gladstone, the chief whip, is on the point of resigning to show disgust with what he believes to be the disloyalty of Sir Edward Grey and others who follo whim.

LOOKING FOR A LEADER. Meanwhile the Imperialist section has demanded that Sir Edward Grey aspaper correspondent telegraphs that a sume the leadership, which would be London, July 27.—Here and at Liver- Russian banker who left Pekin on July only another way of bringing Lord Rosebery back into active political life. THE NAVAL COAL SUPPLY. The government is considering the appointment of a royal commission on the question of the future of the naval coal supply. This action is greatly due to the increasing production and cheapness of American coal and the diminishing supply of Welsh steam coal, with day afternoon. which warships are furnished.

WEST-CHURCHILL. Anticipations of the West-Churchill wedding have formed one of the chief topics in society this week. Quite a burning question is whether Lady court she may retain her present name, but when presented to the Queen it must be as plain Mrs. West. By her re-marriage she forfeits none of the portion as Lady Randolph pleases. Winston Churchill will soon be seen in the United States, having made a contract with Major Pond to lecture on the war in South Africa, his compensation to be £10,000.

AMUSEMENTS.

J. S. Taylor, the open golf champion of England, will sail for America Aug. 4. He expects to remain in the United States about three months, playing matches with Harry Vardon and leading American golfers.

With the closing of the Lyceum, Haymarket, Garrick, Comedy and Gaiety theaters tonight, the theatrical season, which had been dragging out an existence during the tropical weather, will practically end. The Santa Fe Railroad Co. has filed mortgages at Santa Fe to secure the payment of $96,990,500 worth of 100year 4 per cent bonds om several large railway lines.

Following are the official returns of braffic on the Grand Trunk railway for the week ended July 21, 1900, as compared with the corresponding period last year:-1900, $425,540; 1899, $420,138; increase, $5,403. In this return the Chicago and Grand Trunk earnings are

The Grand Trunk railway authorities have decided to improve the facilities at Point Levis for the medical examination of immigrants destined for the United States. The United States com-missioners hitherto have been compelled to put up with most crowded and inconvenient quarters, and have had the utmost difficulty in doing their work properly. The building will be Parge enough to comfortably house all the immigrants for the United States, so that the United States Commissioners will be able to conduct the regulation examination in their own building without being hampered by the presence of immigrants with whom they have nothing to do.

DAMAGING ADMISSION

Made by Trainmen in Connection With the Madoe Junction Disaster.

[Special to The Advertiser per G.N.W.] Belleville, Ont., July 28.-An inquest into the railway disaster which occurred near Madoc Junction, on Thursday, was opened last night before Coroner

Dr. Yeomans. After taking the evidence of several railway and some medical men, an adjournment was made until Monday

Conductor Kerr and Engineer Maybee admitted that they had left Belleville 35 minutes late and had lost the reckoning of the Peterboro train. They should have stopped at Foxboro, as the other train had the right of way. The Peterboro train, its conductor said, was five minutes late, and there was no order to detain it at the junc-

the evening after a hard day's work. So it's the most natural thing in the world for them to go to the Riverside Park, where they are boosted out of the slough of monotony. To aid in the boosting process the Street Railway Company will offer an unexcelled series of war views. The effect will be instantaneous. The old axiom says that "Change is as good as a rest," and from scenes of excitement and action. the onlooker will come, refreshed and buoyant. The views will be shown by calcium lights, and by a new arrangement they will be seen clearly and mfortably. An added enjoyment will be the singing of a quartet out on the river. Old songs, of the kind that touch the heart, and are always popular, will be heard. Among them will be, "My Home Is on the Sea." "Sally in Our Alley." "On the Banks of the Thames." "The Minstrel Boy." and the old "Kerry Dance." Moving pictures are always popular, and good music is never monotonous. A lady on a Springbang car was overheard to say recently: "It's almost like stealing pleasure, to get all thi sfor ten cents." It doesn't strike most people that way, but there is something in the thought just the same. A person certainly gets the worth of his money when he pays ten cents for the trip to the park for the music and the moving pictures.

HARDWARE CLERKS AT IT. A jolly crowd watched a team from John Bowman & Co.'s wholesale hardtry conclusions with a picked from Westman's and Reid's hardwares last evening at Springbank. The game was snappy, and the spectators alternately cheered the same team on to defeat or victory. Among variety of brilliant plays the slide of Russ Elliott to second base deserves special mention. Umpire H. Clucas gave general satisfaction, though at times he certainly had troubles of his wn, when many players and spectators assumed defiant attitudes on account of difference of opinion. lowing is the score: R. Webster's International Dictionary. The most important book for stuscholars and the home, is a reliable dictionary. The best one in use at present is Webster's International Dictionary. This is the most practical working dictionary on the market, being easy to consult, and always accurate. Favorable comments from the most prominent scholars and professional men on the continent have been received by the publishers. This book is now an important work, being re-vised and completed up to date. It is printed in a superior manner, and is bound in sheep. No other dictionary has the prominence that Webster's International Dictionary enjoys. From the earliest necessity of the scholar for a dictionary, "Webster's" has been called into use. It is certainly the best work of its kind issued.

Legations Were Destroyed Previous to July 6,

Saysan Influential Banker From Pekin -All the Foreigners Gone.

London, July 28 .- The full text of the Daily Mail's telegram is as follows: "Shanghai, July 28. - Newspapers here publish a statement by an influential banker, residing in Pekin, near Shanghai, July 25, having left Pekin July 7. He states that the legations had then been destroyed. All the for-eigners had disappeared, but he could not say positively whether or not they had been murdered, as he was too frightened to inquire."

The Mail's correspondent proceeds:
"Investigations prove this information is reliable. The banker in question has gone to Ning Pe. His friends will not disclose his name, fearing that to do so would count his to be his here.

would cause him to lose his head.
"The manager of the Russian Bank of Shanghai has received a letter from the bank's New Chwang branch, stating that one of their Chinese represen-tatives from Pekin who had just arrived confirmed the report of the Pekin massacre. Torture failed to shake the man's statement. He declared that all foreign ministers were murdered. 'Seeing death was inevitable, as the Chinese swarmed into the legations the ministers killed their families at

The Attractions At Springbank

As the weeks follow one after the other, the question that is heard most generally in this city is "What's going on at Springbank this week?" The Street Railway Company has educated the people to expect something good, and, having once created the demand, it is anxious—and, indeed, determined, to satisfy it. During the week that the "Passion Play" was presented, the fact was forced upon the company that such pictures are among the best attractions it is possible to procure. The immense crowds that went to the park proved this; so that it was not through chance but because of keen business acumen, that the management has arranged for the presentation of a splendid series of war pictures next week. Nothing could be more appropriate or more desirable. The pictures will appeal directly to the people's patriotism, that passion that is now so much in evidence, that has been aptly described as the most noble and unselfish of human traits. The company is not willing to trust to the worth of the pictures themselves, because no matter how excellent they may be, the desired result, that of satisfying the public, and thus promoting patronage, is not attained if they are not shown so that the best view possible may be given. By a new arrangement the pictures will be exhibited with the best effect and the most comfort to the public. For 10 cents, the price of the ride down and back, such an entertainment would seem to be a surfeit. More is offered, however. on the river, where sweet sounds are ever most melodious, a quartet will ever most melodious, a quartet will sing the old songs that are always popular. "The Old Oaken Bucket," "The Soldier's Farewell," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," will be sung, and "The Old Folks at Home," and that deepest of all old recognitions. that dearest of all old songs, "Annie Laurie." Classical music doesn't count for much with the multitude; it is such songs as these that are sought after always.

MASQUERADING IN MALE ATTIRE

Sarnia Treated to a Mild Sensation by a Young Woman.

Sarnia, Ont., July 28 .- A mild sensation was caused here yesterday upon a report being circulated that a woman, attired in male clothing was a passenger on the steamer Monarch from Windsor.

It seems that the young probably 30 years of age, had left New York some days ago to join her husband in Duluth. In order to elude the vigilance of her parents, who were opposed to her leaving them, she had put on male attire and reached Windluth at Windsor, and on arriving at Sarnia it was intimated that her masquerade was illegal, and she therefore donned her own clothing. She stated that she was recovering from an attack of typhoid fever, and would give no information with reference to her reason for assuming costume she did, who she was, where she came from, or where she intended going. She was traveling second class, and the officers of the Monarch made her as comfortable as possible in the steerage of the vessel in the trip to Duluth, which she undertook this afternoon. She gave the name of Mr. Card, and though she appeared to be a little nervous and constrained, when questioned, there was nothing to indicate that anything serious was the matter. Provincial Detective Warrel interviewed her, thinking perhaps she might be an escaped lunatic or a fugitive from justice, but did not consider it necessary

Fought Against a Crowd of Desperate Deeds of a New Orleans Negro-Killed or Fatally Wounded Eight Persons.

New Orleans, La., July 27. - After a desperate battle, lasting for several hours, in which he succeeded in killting Sergt. Gabriel Porteous, Andy Van Kuren, keeper of the police jail, and Alfred J. Bloomfield, a young boy, fatally wounding Corporal John boy, fatally wounding Corporal John F. Lally, John Banoille, ex-Policeman Frank H. Evans, A. S. Loclare, one of the leading confectioners of the city, and more or less seriously shooting several citizens, the negro desperado, Robert Charles, who killed Captain Day and Patrolman Lamb and badly wounded Officer Mora, was smoked out of his hiding-place in the theart of the residence section of the city, and litterally city, and litterally

SHOT TO PIECES. The tragedy was one of the most remarkable in the history of the city, and 20,000 people, soldiers, policemen and citizens were gathered around the square where Charles was finally put to death. Tremendous evolutional to death. Tremendous excitement reigned in New Orleans as the battle went on between the police and citizens and the negro with his Winchester. After the tragedy was over statements were made that the man killed was not really the desperado who had killed Day and Lamb, but papers found on his person, and the lact that he fought so desperately for his life, and shot so accurately, seem to leave little doubt that the right man was put to death. THE CHASE BEGUN.

Sergt. Gabriel Porteous, one of the best known officers on the force, and Sergt. John F. Lally, who has a fine record for bravery, were informed during the day by a negro that Charles was in hiding in a house on Clio street.

Determined to take him alive if possible, the officers summoned a number of patrolmen to their assistance, and went to the house where Charles was supposed to be in concealment. The negro informant of the policemen accompanied the officers. They entered the side alley of the house, and were surprised in practically the same way as were Day and Lamb. Before the officers were aware of their danger, Charles who were bidden behind. Charles, who was hidden behind a screen on the second story of the building, raised his Winchester and started a furious but accurate fire. TWO VICTIMS.

Lally fell with a bullet in the right side of the abdomen. Porteous was shot through the head, and dropped dead across the body of Lally. The other officers and the negro fled from the scene. The reports of Charles' Winchester and the fact that two offi-cers lay bleeding in the yard, raised tremendous excitement. In a little while there was an immense armed crowd encircling the square in which

Charles was located. A PLUCKY PRIEST.

In the meantime Father Fitzgerald, of St. John's Church, was summoned to administer extreme unction to the police officers who were lying in the alley. The priest responded promptly, and he was annointing the body of Portrey with Alfred I. Pleomfeld. Porteous, with Alfred J. Bloomfield. young boy, standing at his side, when Charles appeared at the window. The lad saw him at once, and begged the desperado not to shoot him. Charles immediately fired his Winchester, and Bloomfield fell dead. The priest, unhurt, left the scene after pluckily per-forming the last offices for the dead At this time the ambulance arrived, and two citizens volunteered to go into the alley-way and bring out the body of Lally. They entered, and while they were attempting to take the body of the dead officer from that of colleage, Charles fired again. The citizens nevertheless got Lally's body out of the alley, and afterwards succeeded in taking Porteous' body out also. TRIED TO BURN HIM OUT. It was then seen that Charles did propose to be captured without selling his life dearly. Time after time he came to the window, and as citizens, one by one, entered the alley, he blazed away at them. Ultimately it was concluded by those who were handling the situation that the only way to get Charles was to burn the building in which he was entrenched. Someone went to a neighboring grocery, purchased a can of oil, and, pouring it over the rear steps of the building, applied a match and soon had the place in flames. Special police squadrons and members of the militia stationed themselves about the building in order to pick off the desperado as he attempted to leave the house. Soon Charles ran out of the house across the yard and entered the second room. THE FINALE.

A young soldier named Anderson, armed with a Winchester rifle, shot the negro in the breast, and he fell and died soon afterward. As soon as the negro fell numbers of people armed with Winchesters and revolvers rushed in and fired into the body. Charles was literally shot to pieces. After it was certain that he was dead a mob entered the yard and dragged the body into the street. The police and the mob emptied their revolvers into it, while a son of one of the murdered men rushed up and stamped the face beyond recognition.

QUEER PLACES OF THE WORLD

Five Spots That Enjoy a Unique Distinction Over Their Neighbors.

Doubtless the most unique spot in Europe is the little village of Altenberg, where on its border four countries meet. It is ruled by no monarch, has no soldiers, no police and no taxes. Its inhabitants speak a curious jargon of French and German combined, and spend their days in farming the land or working in the valuable calamine mine of which it boasts.

The little town of Stanley, in the Falkland islands, possesses the most unique school service ever known. Two traveling schoolmasters are provided by the government, who visit the different families where there are children, and give instruction. The length of their visit depends on the astuteness of the children, and they may spend days and weeks, as the case may be, at one house alone.

A town boasting of a railway station which cost $20,000 to erect, and a duly appointed station master, and yet having no train service, is unique beyond dispute. Lundee, in New Jersey, is in this predicament, the inhabitants hav-ing actually no trains, although their fine station is available for any amount of traffic, and the reason given for this strange fact is that so long as the trains run through the inhabitants ought to be satisfied. There is a place in the middle of the Pacific Ocean well known to mariners, where there is never any Christmas Day. This is owing to its being in the 180th degree of longitude, and directly opposite to Greenwich, and, therefore, twelve hours ahead of Greenwich time. In a journey around the globe, the other twelve hours would have to be marked out of the mariner's calendar, and if this point crossing the antipodes is touched Christmas Eve, then there can be no Christmas

Day. In one of the West Indies group there is a colony of some 800 whites and blacks where there are neither towns nor villages, nor fresh water supplies. In fact, there is such a scarcity of everything that the government has to send food and employment to the inhabitants to keep them from starving. Salt fish and sweet potatoes are the staple foods of the Anguillas, and the only water obtainable is brackish and tainted by the sea .- London Answers.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

CEMENT SIDEWALK .- On a recentiy-laid walk the numerous small children residing on the street play during fine weather, with mud, sand, stones, and other litter, besides their own little persons, sprawling over it, so that it is like walking through a backyard of rubbish and filth in many places. Is there any legal way of stopping this nuisance, other than the absurd one of having the children arrested or being arrested yourself for forcibly removing them? Ans.-It is the duty of the police to take notice of and put a stop to such nuisances. Call the attention of the chief to the locality and the matter will be attended to. Secure the names of the children, so that their parents can be prosecuted. The father or mother of a child committing such a nuisance is liable to be fined $50 or less. It is the duty of parents to control their children so as not to be a nuisance to other people. Larger children not under such control are liable personally.

It was designed by Sir Robert Smirke, completed by his brother, Sidney Smirke, and was commenced very early in the 10th century. About 50,000 volumes are added annually. Modern publications in Britain are added free of expense by receiving gratis a copy of every book entered at Stationer's Hall. La Bibliotheque Nationale, the great French Library, is the largest in the world. It has been called successively La Bibliotheque du Roi, Royale, Nationale and Imperque. The Bibliotheque du Roi was originally in the Palais de la Cite, consisting of the library of King John. He bequeathed it to Charles V., who removed it and col-lected a library of 910 volumes in the Louvre. This was sold to the Duke of Bediford. Louis XI. partly repaired this loss and added the first results of the new invention of printing. Louis XII. established it at Blois, incorporat-ing it with the Orleans Library. The Gruthuyse collection was next to it. Francis I. transferred the li-brary to Fontainebleau, and placed it in charge of John Budie. Henry II. made obligatory the deposit of one copy of every book published in the kingdom. Henry IV. brought it back to Paris, where it changed in location frequently before resting in its present quarters in the Palais Mazarin, Rue Richelieu. Napoleon I. increased the government grant, and under his care the library was much enlarged. contains about three million volumes and about a hundred thousand MSS., besides collections of prints and me-dals. The Royal Library of Berlin founded by the Great Elector, Frederick William, and opened in 1661. The University of Berlin, it is not too much to say, is the leading university in the world. It is attended annually by about 6,000 students, and has a faculty of about 500 professors and teachers. It has a magnificent library. The two Mbraries combined contain about 1,200,-000 volumes and nearly 50,000 MSS. The Library of Congress, as the National Library of the United States is called, was founded in 1800, and is supported by the National Government. It ontains upwards of a million volumes (250,000 pamphlets). Liberal provisions are made for the yearly addition of volumes through purchase, and in addition the copyright law requires that every new publication shall be deposited in the library without charge. though the Library of Congress is not as rich in MSS, and rare old books as its great European rivals, on account of its more recent beginning, it is nevertheless richly stocked with the books that can be obtained by purchase in these later days, and its purchasing committee are always alert to pick up treasures from such private collections as are from time to time thrown on the market.

EXTRAORDINARY POWERS OF VISION.

The extraordinary powers of vision which birds are known to exercise beyond any other class of animals are in no genus more conspicuous than in fal-cons. Elevating themselves as they occasionally do into the higher regions of the air, and the power then required to see objects on the near surface of the earth, renders acuteness of vision on the part of these birds of prey a necessity. While themselves so high in the air as to be invisible to human vision they are able to see any ani-mal on which they prey, and can swoop straight down upon them with unerring accuracy. A kestrel can in this way see a mouse on the earth when it is itself at such a height in the air as to

SALISBURY'S SHARP REPLY. In the House of Lords today the Earl of Wemyss asked whether the premier, Lord Salisbury, had received informa-tion "confirming the view of one of our military attaches to the effect that it was all important that England should be entirely unassailable by November next, and whether he had satisfied himself that our means of defense were such as to render all attempts at invasion futile?" Lord. Salisbury demanded the name

The secretary of war had made innumerable statements in the house and developed schemes of national defense, but the commanderof in-chief had never pressed support of the schemes. The matter was grave, as parliament would shortly adjourn.

"SPARE NOBODY." Berlin, July 27.-The Lokal Anzieger says the emperor, when addressing the troops at Bremerhaven, before they sailed for China, referred first to the responsibilities which had sprung up for the German empire abroad during the last decade. Germany's troops, he said, must now show in the face of the enemy whether their tendencies—the tendencies which German military methods had followed-were right. Their comrades of the marines had already proved that the training and principles upon which that arm of the forces had been built up were right ones; and now it was for the troops to do the same.

"Every German had been filled with continued his majesty, "to learn that the highest praise bestowed upon German warriors had come from the mouths of foreign leaders. The task before you is a great one. That a people like the Chinese should cast to the winds international rights a thousand years old, and treat with scorn the sanctity of the ambassador and the rights of hospitality in a manner so horrible, is unprecedented in the history of the world. Every civilization not founded on Christian-1ty is sure to be brought to naught.

"So I send you out. May you all prove your German efficiency, devotion and bravery, bear joyfully all discomfort and uphold the honor and glory of our arms. You must set an example of discipline, self-domination and self-control. "If you close with the enemy, remember this: 'Spare nobody. Make no prisoners. Use your weapons so that for a thousand years hence no Chinaman will dare look askance at any German. Open the way for civil-Ization once for all."

The former crossed Oliphant's (Olifant's) River and from the high ground on the east bank he could see Middleburg and the in the 25 miles from Bland to Espanenemy retiring in great disorder. The main road north was blocked for several miles with horsemen and wagons. The enemy's rear was then seven miles north. The mounted forces were still west of the river. Night was closing in; the rain was falling in torrents, and so it was impossible to follow. The night was terrible. In addition to the rain a strong east wind made the bivouack most uncom fortable. One officer, I regret to say, died of exposure, and the mortality among the mules and oxen was great. The men made light of hardships and were in famous spirits when I saw them.

Hunter has occupied Fourierburg, and so far as I know did not suffer loss. He found Mrs. Steyn, wife of the ex-president, and several of our men whom Dewet had captured at different places, and whom he was unable to send to Machadodorp.

PROUD RECORD

Of the Smith Dorien Brigade-The General's Tribute to His Soldiers.

The London Daily Express of July 18 has the following: Pretoria, July 16 .-Gen. Smith-Dorrien has just issued the following order: 'The 19th Brigade has achieved a record of which any infantry might be proud. Since the date it was formed, namely, Feb. 12, it has marched 620 miles, often on half rations, and seldom on full. It has taken part in the capture of ten towns, fought in ter general actions, and on 27 other days. On one period of 30 days it fought on 21 of them, and marched 327 miles. The casualties have been between 400 and 500, and defeats

The 19th Brigade consists of the Shropshires, Light Infantry, Gordon Highlanders, Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry and the Royal Canadians. Today a new brigade, consisting of the Border Regiment, the King's Own Scottish Borderers, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and the Berkshires, under Col. Cunningham, late of the Derbyshire Regiment, together with Col. Hickman's force of 1,800 mounted infantry, various details, an Elswick battery and a Canadian battery, attached to Cunningham's force, the whole under Gen. Ian Hamilton, was detached by Lord Roberts to force the Boers back from the kopies to the Scientists Discover Ruin Containing 1,500 Rooms-Many Valuable Relics Uncovered.

Santa Fe, N. M., July 28.-Important discoveries from which the Northwest-ern University at Evanston, III., will benefit have been made by a party of scientists which reached this city to-

A building of 1,200 to 1,500 rooms, only one of which was excavated, was found in Pajarsto Canon. The structure is 560x450 feet, and constructed entirely of carefully dressed stone. It is situated between Bland and Espanola and is only one of a large number of similar ruins. The structure was two or three stories high originally, but now only walls six to ten feet high remain standing. The upper story evidently was open to the sky, and upon this the dwellers of the building probably spent both night and day.

INTERESTING CONFIENTS OF THE ROOM.

But it is the finds in the room 9 by 12 that was exclavated that are the most suggestive of the civilization of the ancient people. An old furnace or smelter was found, near which was a large fron bar deeply incrusted with also pieces of rich copper ore, as well as gold ornaments and a piece of beautiful turquois. Twenty-five pieces of pottery of great beauty and brilliancy of colors were in the room. They were heavy, fully one-quarter of an inch thick, and decorated inside and out with unique designs showing some degree of uniformity. One of the de-signs represented the picture of three be of great value to farmers in saving communal building had a different set of designs for their pottery. Some woven cloth was found. It was woven in spirals almost like a huge spider's

Around the fireplace in the room which was excavated stood a dozen large pots, each with buffalo bones in them, showing that the inhabitants Boers Take Flight in Great abandoned the room while preparing a meal. Near some of the smelter slag was found scorched corn, together with the bones of birds and other animals. Several baskets in the room were more beautiful than those woven by the Navajos of today, but they crumbled to dust when touched. Iron knives, stone battle axes, polished stone reflectors, awls, several musical instruments, including fifes, were in evidence and well preserved. Many human bones were found in the regulation burial mounds.

The scientists who made the discoveries are: Dr. George I. Cole and Fay C. Cole, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Prof. R. W. Buller, of Greeley, Col., and Rev. G. S. Madden, of Bland. They an-nounce that the relics found will be sent to the Northwestern University.

MANY SIMILAR RUINS. There are hundreds of similar ruins ola, showing that in that district at one time lived more people than are in New Mexico today. The region has not yet been touched by scientists and ex-Rev. Mr. Maldder's theory is that about five or six hundred years ago the dwellers of that region who left their records in numerous hieroglyphic inscriptions had been out either by an earthquake or by the invasion of a stronger race.

Propose to Get Themselves Sent Back to China.

El Paso, Texas, July 28.-The immigration situation here grows worse daily. Notwithstanding the fact that the force of guards has been materially increased along the river, daily occurrences demonstrate that the number is not sufficient to prevent pauper and contract immigrants collecting in Juarez from crossing the border and scattering into the interior. Customs inspectors captured 14 Italian emigrants who had crossed the border and boarded a north-bound Santa Fe train which was about to depart. These emigrants were sent back to Juarez, Mexico. The statement comes from Durango and Chihuahua, Mexico, where there are several thousand Chinese, that hundreds contemplate returning to China, and are drifting this way to take ad-vantage of the exclusion act and get free transportation.

McKeesport, Pa., July 28.—Jacob-Bestwick, aged 6, is the envy of all the youngsters in the city. He can whistle with his stomach, and while other boys think this is a great feat. Jacob does not like it. Several days was making noises with a round tin whistle, in a moment of ab-straction he accidentally swallowed the toy, and it is now lodged in his stomach

Several doctors have failed to relieve the little fellow, who ocasionally feels pains, during which he coughs. With every cough comes a shrill whistle from his stomach. The doctors purpose to wait until Sunday. If the boy still has the whistle in his stomach then they will attempt an operation to

A NEW TRICK.

New York, July 28.—Charles Mc-Donald, alias "Dutch George," was held in the Jefferson Market police court on a charge of robbing conductors on the Eighth avenue cars of $5 each by a new trick. The trick was to get a conductor to change a fivedollar bill, then to pick his pocket of the bill. Two men worked it. McDonald was identified by two conductors.

THIS DOG STEALS FOR THE BLIND.

Norfolk, Va., July 28.-A dog entered the jewelry store of R. W. Woodley, last evening, and stole two dozen silver spoons worth $30. The spoons, rolled in a flexible case, were taken from the jeweler's safe. The dog, accompanied by two blind mendicants, a man and a woman, who had with them another dog, which piloted them about. He led the blind people by a chain into the stores, while the loose dog, evidently trained to steal, roamed about in search of booty, which, once secured, he fled with and secreted. The dog was detected stealing the spoons and a salesman and a crowd pursued him, but the two dogs and the beggars escaped.

TRENCH DUG BY LIGHTNING. During a thunderstorm near Consett, in the North Durham district, the lightning struck a pasture field and dug a trench varying from 3 feet to 3 feet 6 inches deep, and 6 inches or 7 frame buildings with a smokestack inches wide, across the field for a dis-and smoke ourling out of it. Each tance of a dozen feet. The solid clay was scattered in all directions, portions thereof being found lying over 20 yards away, while the turf had been cut up as clean as if the work had been done by a sharp instrument. One grass sod, measuring about 6 feet long and 9 inches in width, was laid on the opposite side of the fence in another field.

THE EARTH'S

Dr. Talmage Describes the Great Physician's Labors.

No Case Was Ever Lost by Him-Disease Vanished Under His Gentle Touch.

. In his sermon Dr. Talmage (who is now traveling in Europe) puts in an unusual light the mission of Christ, and shows how Divine power will yet make the Illnesses of the world fall back. Text, Matt. xi.:5: "The blind receive their sight and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear."

"Doctor," I said to a distinguished surgeon, "do you not get worn out with constantly seeing so many wounds and broken bones and distortions of the human body?" "Oh, no," he answered, "all that is overcome by my joy in curing them." A sublimer and more merciful art never came down from heaven than that of surgery. Catastrophe and disease entered the earth so early that one of the first wants of the world was a doctor. What a grand thing if all clergymen were also doctors, all D. D.'s were M. D.'s, for there are so many cases where body and soul need treatment at the same time, consolation and medicine, theology and therapeuties. As the first surgeons of the world were also ministers of religion, may those two professions always be in full sympathy!

MIGHTY PROGRESS IN MEDICINE. What mighty progress in the baffling of disease since the crippled and sick of ancient cities were laid along the streets, that people who had ever been hurt or disordered in the same way might suggest what had better be done for the patients; and the priests of olden time, who were constantly suffering from colds received in walking barefoot over the temple pavements, had to prescribe for themselves, and fractures were considered so far beyond all human cure that instead of calling in the surgeon the people only invoked the gods!

But notwithstanding all the surgical and medical skill of the world, with what tenacity the old diseases hang on to the human race, and most of them are thousands of years old, and in our Bible we read of them; the carbuncles of Job and Hezekiah; the palpitation of the heart spoken of in l my; the sun-stroke of a child carried from the fields of Shunem, crying, "My head!" King Asa's disease of the feet, which was nothing but gout; defection of teeth, that called for dental surgery; the ophthalmia caused by the juice of the newly ripe fig, leaving the people blind by the roadside; epilepsy as in the case of the young man often falling into the fire, and oft into the water, and hypochondria, as of Nebuchadnezzar, who imagined himself an ox, and going out to the fields to pasture.

THE ONE PERFECT PHYSICIAN. But the world wanted a surgery without pain. Drs. Parre and Hickman and Simpson and Warner and Jackson, with their amazing genius, came forward, and with their anaesthetics benumbed the patient with narcotics and ethers as the ancients did hasheesh and mandrake, and quieted him for a while, but at the return of consciousness distress returned. The world has never seen but one surgeon who could straighten the crooked limb, cure the blind eye or reconstruct the drum of a soundless ear or reduce a dropsy without any pain at the time or any pain after, and that surgeon was Jesus Christ, the mightlest, grandest, gentlest and most sympathetic surgeon the world ever saw or ever will see. But Christ the Surgeon seemed to prefer inveterate cases. One was a stopped it. Another was a curvature of eighteen years, and he straightened Another was a cripple of thirtyeight years, and he walked out well. The eighteen-year patient was a woman bent almost double. Yet this divine surgeon put both his hands on her, and from that doubled-up posture she began to rise, and the empurpled face began to take on a healthier hue, and the muscles began to relax from their rigidity, and the spinal column began to adjust itself, and the cords of the neck began to be more supple, and the eyes that could see only the ground before now looked into the face of Christ with gratitude and up toward heaven in transport. Straight! After eighteen weary, exhausting years, straight! The poise, the gracefulness, the beauty of healthy womanhood reinstated. The thirty-eightyear case was a man who lay on a mattress near the mineral baths at

A LIFE-LONG DISEASE CURED. Why, thirty-eight years is more than the everage of human life! Nothing but the grave will cure you. But Christ the Surgeon said: "Wilt thou be made whole?" The question asked, not because the surgeon did not under- dry bent into pruning hooks; while in stand the protractedness, the desperateness of the case, but to evoke the man's pathetic narrative. "Wilt thou be made whole?" Bending over the man on the mattress, and in a voice tender with all sympathy, but strong with all omnipotence, he says, "Rise!" And the invalid instantly scrambles to his knees, and then puts out his right foot, and then stood upright as though he had never been prostrated.

Here is a surgeon able to give immortal health. "Oh," you say, "I am so completely overthrown and trampled down of sin that I cannot rise." Are you flatter down than this patient at the mineral baths? No. Then rise. In the name of Jesus of Nazareth, the surgeon who offers you his right hand of help, I bid thee rise. Not cases of acute sin, but chronic sin-those who have not prayed for thirty-eight years, those who have not been to church for thirty-eight years, those who have been gamblers, or libertines, or been gamblers, thieves, or outlaws, or blasphemers, or infidels, or atheists, or all these together, for thirty-eight years. A Christ for a dead-lift! A surgeon who never loses a case!

CHRIST THE GREAT OCULIST. In speaking of Christ as a surgeon, must consider him as an oculist, or eye doctor, or an aurist, or ear doc-Was there ever such another oculist? That he was particularly sorry for the blind folks I take from the fact that the most of his works were with the diseased optic nerves. I have not time to count up the number of blind people mentioned who got his

In the lands where this divine surgeon operated the cases of blindness were multiplied beyond anything by the particles of sand floating in the air and the night dews falling on the eyelids of those who slept on the top of their houses; and in some of these lands it is estimated that twenty out of a hundred people are totally blind. Amid all that crowd of visionless people, what work for an oculist! And I do not believe that more than one out of a hundred of that surgeon's cures were reported.

That is the oculist we all need. Till he touches our eyes we are blind. Yea, we were born blind. By nature, we see things wrong, if we see them at all. Our best eternal interests are put before us and we cannot see them. The glories of a loving and pardoning Christ are projected, and we do not behold them. Or we have a defective sight which makes the things of this world larger than the things of the fu-ture; time bigger than eternity.

HUMAN HEARING RESTORED. But this surgeon was just as wonderful as an aurist. Very few people have two good ears. Nine out of ten people are particular to get on this or that side of you when they sit or walk or ride with you, because they have one disabled ear. Many have both ears damaged, and what with the constant racket of our great cities, and the catarrhal troubles that sweep through the land it is remarkable that there are any good ears at all. We are told of only two cases he operated on as an ear surgeon. His friend Peter, naturally high-tempered, saw Christ insulted by a man by the name of Malchus, and Peter let his sword fly, aiming at the man's head, but the sword slipped and hewed off the outside ear, and our surgeon touched the laceration and another ear bloomed in the place of the one that had been slashed away. But it is not the outside ear that hears. On the beach of Lake Galilee out surgeon found a man deaf and dumb. The patient dwelt in perpetual silence and was speechless. He could not hear a note of music or a clap of thunder. He could not call father or mother or wife or children by name. The surgeon put his fingers in the deaf ears and agitated them, and kept on agitating them, until the vibration gave vital energy to all the dead parts, and they responded, and when our surgeon withdrew his fingers from the ears, the two tunnels of sound were clear for all sweet voices of music and friendship. GRAND LABORS WITHOUT PRICE.

But what were the surgeon's fees for all these cures of eyes and ears and tongues and withered hands and crooked backs? The skill and the painlessness of the operations were worth hemorrhage of twelve years, and he hundreds and thousands of dollars. Do not think that the cases he took were all moneyless. Did he not treat the nobleman's son? Did he not doctor the ruler's daughter? Did he not effect a cure in the house of a centurion of great wealth, who had out of his own pocket built a synagogue? They would have paid him large fees.

This greatest surgeon of all the centuries gave all his services then, and offers all his services now, free of all "Without money and without charge. price" you may spiritually have your blind eyes opened, and your deaf ears unbarred, and your dumb tongues loosened, and your wounds healed and your soul saved.

What a grand thing for our poor human race when this surgeon shall have ompleted the treatment of the world's wounds! ICE CREAM AS

It Was First Sold in New York in 1786 -Iced Liquors Introduced in 1680.

"Ladies and gentlemen may be supplied with ice cream every day at the city tavern by their humble servant, John Crowe." This advertisement ap-peared in the New York Post Boy of June 8, 1786.

Pyramids of red and white ice cream with punch and liquors, rose, cinnamon and parfait amour, were served by a Mrs. Johnson, of that city, at a ball given by her on Dec. 12, 1789. But ice cream was at that time a novelty here, although it was becoming the fashion in Europe, it having first appeared as iced butter in Paris in 1774. The first recipe for making ice cream ap-peared in the Modern Cook, which was published in London by a French cook

Mrs. Alexander Hamilton was the first to introduce ice cream in Washington, and it was always afterward a delight to her to tell how President Jackson had no sooner tasted it than he declared that in the future it should form a part of the White House Guests at the next social function at the executive mansion are said to have tasted very gingerly the frozen mystery. Those especially from the rural districts eyed it with especial suspicion and melted each spoonful carefully before swallowing it.

At Mrs. Hamilton's suggestion, a negro by the name of Jackson, who kept a confectionery in Washington, filled quart cans with custard and imbedded them in tubs of ice. These he sold for $1 each. Others followed him, but he retained the reputation of making the best ice cream, and became rich as a result. It came to be hawk-ed about the streets like the present hokey-pokey, but remained an expensive luxury. Saltpetre was first used in Italy to cool drinks in the middle of the sixteenth century. As early as the first of the seventeenth century fruits were frozen in ice by the French, and icecups became common. Iced liquors were introduced by the lemonade sellers of Paris in 1660. About 1774 the Duc de Chartres was surprised to find his coat-of-arms molded in ices.

YEARS OF PAIN

The Experience of Mr. William Smith of Hawkesbury, Who Suffered for Many Years from Kidney Trouble.

[From The Post, Hawkesbury, Ont.] Everybody in Hawkesbury knows Mr. Wm. Smith. He came here when the town was yet in its village days, as one of the lumber company's staff of mechanics. In 1881 Mr. Smith was appointed town constable, and filled that position until very recently. As is well known to many of Mr. Smith's friends, he has suffered much from kidney trouble for quite a number of years past, and at times the pain in his back was so great that he was almost physically incapable of exertion. He doctored a great deal, sometimes getting temporary relief, but the cause of the trouble was not removed, and soon the pains, accompanied alternately by chills and fever, returned. At last he came to look upon his condition as one which no medicine permanently aid. Indeed his condition might still have been one of much suffering had not Mrs. Smith ultimately prevailed upon her husband to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. "It seemed," said Mr. Smith to a reporter of the Post, "that it was a useless experiment, and yet I was willing to do almost anything that would bring relief. I had not used the pills long before was undoubted relief, more in fact than I had obtained from any other medicine. I continued their use, and soon all symptoms of the trouble that had made my life one of much misery for many years was gone. I feel that I am cured, and have no hesitation in saying that the cure is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I never lose an opportunity of recommending the pills to neighbors who may be ailing.

designs to suit any room. Articles of bronze are best cleaned by the use of a paste made of powdered chicory and water. The paste is spread over the bronze and rubbed well over the surface by means of a stiff brush-an old stiff toothbrush will answer-and then allowed to dry on the article. After drying rinse off the powder with running water and dry it in the sun. Wiping off with an oiled rag will improve the appearance of modern bronzes. An easy way to filter water is to take a clean deep flower pot and put a compressed sponge in the bottom. Over this put a layer of pebbles an inch thick, then an inch of coarse sand, a layer of charcoal, and over all another layer of charcoal another layer of charcoa other layer of pebbles. The water will filter pure and clear through the hole at the bottom of the flower pot into another vessel below.

Some people make it a point never to retire without a light burning in the house. A bit of information worth knowing is that a small even light may be obtained from a small piece of candle all night if fine powdered salt is piled around the candle until the black part of the wick is reached.

How Two Men Traveled on a Ticket for a Man and His Wife.

"It was a slick trick, and it worked," said a well-known conductor who runs in here, in telling of an incident of his last trip down to this place. "Just before we left Dallas," said he, "I noticed a young lady and two young men get on the train, and when I same through a little later to collect the tickets, found them sitting together in a double seat. When I stopped at their seat the men sitting next to the aisle handed me two single tickets to Galveston. I took them, thinking nothing of it, but on passing back and forth through the car several times after that I noticed that the man and wife did not seem to be getting along very well together, in fact, their actions toward each other would lead one to believe they were perfect strangers, and during the day their actions became more and more noticeable until my suspicions began to be aroused, but as I knew nothing I held my peace until almost here, when, finding the one who had handed me the tickets in the smoking compartment, I asked him if sor wrong, whereupon he 'fessed up' and frankly told me the whole story.

"He said he and the young man sitting opposite to him when he handed me the tickets were from Kansas City, who, having lost their positions in that city, had started to come south to see if they could find something to do here in Texas, and that down they had gotten as far as Dallas when their money gave out, and having been assured of getting positions in Galveston, wanted to come on here. One of them, by getting in a day and a half's work, had made $3; but as that would not bring them here they were in as bad a plight as before. The next day, however, they happened to drop into a ticket broker's office, but the only thing he had in the way of tickets to Galveston was one for a man and his wife. After consulting with each other they hit upon a plan and decided to take the ticket, paying their $3 for it. They then went to the depot and hung around the ticket window until they saw a young woman buy a ticket for Galveston, and followed, boarding the train with and deliberately sat down beside her, so when I came through the man sitting beside her politely took the ticket from her hand and passed it over to me, thus giving the impression that she was his wife, and in this manner the two adventurers came here." - Galveston

China's Fish Industry

In Annam the number of persons who live mainly upon fish is estimated at 5,000,000. The fishing industry has reached a considerable development in that country. The region most abounding in fish is that of the southern provinces, Binh Thuan and Khanh Hoa, and that of Thanh Hoa in the north. The latter district supplies fish to the Tonkin markets and a part of China. Owing to the numerous bays where fishing may be carried on in all seasons the two former provinces supply the salting establishments which furnish their products to Singapore and the extreme Orient. In other regions of the coast of Annam the supply of fish serves the needs of local consumption, and is ever insufficient for As to river fishing, it is reduced to the needs of the inhabitants of the banks, says the Scientific American. The outfit of a fishing bark of small tonnage is four men and two children, and for the large sailing junks it consists of several adults and three or four children. People engaged in the fishing and kindred industries in Annam have been estimated at 30,000, of whom 6,000 are in Thanh Hoa and 5,000 in Quang Nam. In adding the women and children this number may be carried to 60,000, representing the total number of natives who make their living from

How His Knowledge Served Him.

In a recent conversation with a reporter of the New York Sun, the Hon. Daniel S. Lamont, Secretary of War, remarked that he had learned telegraphy as a boy, and that it had often stood him in good stead. He then told the following story illustraing this usefulness:

Several years ago, after my father's death, I wanted to bring my mother to Washington. I was in McGrawville, my home town in Cortland County, and it was necessary for us to take a number of railroads in order to reach the main line by which we were to go to Washington. It was also neces-sary to change cars a number of times on these local roads, and in one or two instances the trains were late, so that I began to fear we would not make the

At last it became positively known to me that unless we could make a certain connection, my mother would be compelled to remain over Sunday in a small and cheerless town. I knew the president of a railroad, who, if he were informed of my predicament, I believed would help me out. So I telegraphed him, telling him that my trains were late, and asked him if he would not telegraph the superinten-dent to have the train on the main road held until my local train arrived. Before I got to the local station where the main line train was to be met, I had to change cars. It was a dreary little station, and I remember well my anxiety while sitting in the waiting-room with my mother, knowing whether my dispatch been received, till I heard clicking erintendent of the road: "Is Colonel Lamont there?" The operator looked around the room to see only two persons, my mother and myself, and immediately replied:

Just as he sent that word, I stepped up and said:
"My friend, I have unintentionally overheard the inquiry going over your line, as to whether Colonel Lamont is here. That is my name."

The operator quickly corrected his 'no," and informed the superintendent that I was there, and word came back that the main line train would be held for me. This is only a little incident, but it demonstrates not only the value telegraphy, but the possible usefulness of all practical knowledge that a boy can obtain. So I say that every boy who has the opportunity to learn tele-graphy should do so. Once learned you never forget it. It may be of service at any time, and it will always give a good livelihood.

PERSISTENCY WON OUT. In the northwestern part of Chicago

there is a neat little cottage: in it lives a Chicago policeman. When it is known how the policeman secured the bricks for the foundation of his cozy home it will be understood that he has the patience of Job and uncommon perseverance. In the first place the foundation bricks represent no money outlay. All they cost was effort. When the officer made up his mind to build a house for his small family he conceived the idea of picking up stray bricks on the street and taking them home. Every day of his life he kept a lookout for bricks that fell from passing wagons or were lying in corners and alleys. Not a night passed but he took home a sackful of bricks. Sometimes only two or three; occasionally ten or a dozen would represent his labor for a day. Oftentimes when at leisure he visited railroad yards and there always found a rich field and increased the rapidly growing pile. His strange idea became a joke among his associates many months before the house was built. often spoken of today as "the policeman who built a brick house a brick at a time."

Louis felt another shock. This description tallied with the appearance of the man who had come to the office that day and inquired for Mr. Allen, and Louis had not been prepossessed, as we know, in his favor.

'What is his name?" he asked. Mrs. Jones looked blank at this ques-

The man had talked and talked violently, asking questions that had drawn more information from her than he had given, but that had not once occurred to her until now, nor had she once thought to ask his name. "He did not tell me," she admitted, claimed Louis, astonished.

"No, child," answered the woman, recovering herself, "but what harm? There is time enough yet to ask that. He had so much to say about your mother, and wanted to know all about her after she came to live here, that I never thought to ask that, never imagining that it could be anything but Dunbar, which very likely it is, or he would have said so himself. He called his wife his 'dear Annie,'-and We know that was your mother's name -and said she was a sweet, blue-eyed little thing, and described her so well, that I have thought of him ever since as Mr. Dunbar. I tell you, Louis, he's a fine-looking gentleman, and he gave me ten dollars, just to get some trifle for the children,' and said, too, if you proved to be his boy, he would do something handsome for me for what I've done for you; though I told him, as for that matter you'd always been such a good boy that you'd paid your way as you went along."

Louis ate his supper in a very thoughtful mood, after which he returned to the office, attended to his duties there, and then retired to rest with a heavy heart. To the great disappointment of Louis the stranger did not appear next day, but on the second morning, eleven o'clock, the boy's heart gave a great bound as the office door opened and the man whom he had been looking for walked in and requested a private interview with Mr. Allen.

It was of course granted, and the two men were closeted together for three of the longest hours that Louis ever remembered to have passed, and, what was more tantalizing of all, at the end of that time they want out together, and Louis had to curb his impatience still longer.

Mr. Allen did not return until late in the afternoon, and then he appeared both grave and troubled, and sat in a brown study for a long time.

"Louis," he said, as the boy was about starting out for his supper, "get back as soon as you can, for I am go. ing to remain in the office this evening, and want to have a talk with you." the same thrill and shock, such as he

"Have you them here in the office?" 'Yes, sir."

He sprang into his tiny room and returned almost immediately, bringing the box which contained his treasures, which he placed in his friend's hands. The lawyer examined its contents critically, and then compared the date engraven upon the ring with one of the papers which he had been studying when Louis came in. Well, Louis, he said gravely, after a thoughtful silence, "I have a story to tell you now, and a strange one, too.

To come to the point at once, the man who came here this morning, and with whom I went out, claims, or wants to claim, you as his son."

Louis grew very pale as he listened to this statement; but he made no comment, and Mr. Allen continued: "He says that, seventeen years ago this fall, he was married to a young girl by the name of Annie Burgess. She was an orphan, and working, at that time, at the dressmaker's trade nere in Boston, and hedescribes as a pretty, delicate, blue-eyed girl, who had a fair education, and who was unusually refined and delicate in manner, considering her station in life. Soon after his marriage some of his friends got the California fever, and tried to persuade him to go with them to the land of gold. At first he refused, feeling that he could not leave his young wife, for of course he knew that he could not take her with him. But they urged him so strongly and pictured everything in such glowing colors that at last he yielded. He was a carpenter by trade, and was having steady work and good pay here, but he sold his tools, collected all money due him, which he divided with his wife, who, when she found her efforts unavailing to dissuade him from such a wild, untried life, said she would return to her trade and do what she could toward her own support until he could provide a home and send for her. They parted, promising to be faithful to each other, and to write every week. He received just one letter from her, written some months after he arrived at the mines, and begging him to send her some tidings of himself. This told him that she had not heard from him, though he had sent her his promised letter every week. He grew very anxious as time went on and he heard nothing more, and he became unspeakably wretched, especially as in that one letter his wife had confided to him that she was expecting to become a mo-

"Finally, he could endure his anxiety no longer, and returned to seek some tidings of her. But he could find no trace of her. and a year ago decided to return and settle here in Boston. A few months since he incidentally learned something of your story; became interested, and, after making some inquiries and learning your age, the thought occurred to him that you might, perhaps, be his child. At last he resolved to see the woman with whom you lived, and day before yesterday, he visited and questioned her thoroughly, and is now convinced that the woman who died with her was his wife. He gave the date of his marriage and proved by a certificate which is properly signed, and today I have been with him to examine the city records and find the marriage regularly recorded. It all looks fair and plausible, since you have shown me your mother's wedding-ring, with the date, which is the same as that of the certificate. I must confess I feel impressed that you are the son of this gentleman and the young hero of this strange romance.

"But who is he? you have not told me his name. Does he call himself Dunbar?" demanded Louis, with some excitement, as his friend concluded.
"No; he gives his name as Louis

"But my mother's name was Mrs.

Dunbar.' "I know, and I realized that as an objection to his claim; but he cleared away that doubt by declaring that her maiden name was Annie Dunbar Burgess, and he thinks the reason she adopted her middle name was that after writing to him repeatedly and receiving no reply, she believed herself deserted, and so, as she was about to become a mother, resolved to hide herself from all her former acquaintances.

Louis' head fell upon his breast and he sat lost in thought for some time. At last he looked up into his friend's face, and his own was very pale.

"Mr. Allen, he said, in a suppressed tone, "this man may be my father. I am bound to say his story sounds all right, and the names and dates of the certificate, and ring almost seem to Lut, somehow, I do not feel at all in sympathy with him, and, day before yesterday, when he came here and inquired for you, I was repelled by him—I seemed to shrink from him. It is a hard thing to say, if he is, indeed, my father; but at least I may confess it to you who have been so good a friend to me," the boy concludwith emotion. Mr. Allen regarded him gravely for a moment, then he said:

Perhaps when you become quainted with him this feeling may wear away. He is coming tomorrow morning to have a talk with you, and really, since it all seems so plain, I hope everything will be pleasantly settled, and that you will find a kind friend as well as a parent in this gentleman. May be," his friend concluded, with his genial smile, "you will now have your heart's desire, go to col-lege and become an educated gentleman yourself; for Mr. Murray appears to be a man of means, and will doubtless wish to give his son all the advantages he craves."

He spoke cheerfully, but in his heart he felt the same dislike and suspicion experienced by Louis. There seemed to be something insincere and cunning about Mr. Murray, and he, the lawyer, inwardly rebelled at the thought of giving Louis up to his guardianship. [To be continued.]

During a lecture on "How to make life worth living," Sarah Grand remarked truly that happiness is a condition in ourselves, an attitude of mind. Mme. The mixture will set like tough glue and should be cut into small squares. A few drops of cochineal will color these jujubes a lovely pink.

RULES FOR DYSPEPTICS.

T. Lauder Brunton, in the Clinical Journal, lays down these rules for the treatment of chronic functional dys-pepsia: Eat slowly, chew thoroughly and insalviate completely-three things which are by no means always the same. Take solids and liquids separately, the latter in the shape of hot water on rising in the morning, between 11 and 12 in the forenoon, about or 5 in the afternoon and at night before going to bed. When these rules do not suffice to remove the dyspensia the patient must take his farinaceous and proteid foods at different meals alternately-a farinaceous meal at breakfast time and again at midday and at 8 o'clock.

In some cases it will be found advantageous to supplement the gastric juice with a little acid and pepsin. A little alkali with calumba may be given before meals, or, if there is gastric catarrh, some substance containing tion which will not yield to these measures it may be necessary to wash out the stomach in the morning or at night.

A MALAY WEDDING.

Cape Town is terra incognito to most persons, and one is not likely to think of the Malays as the richest class. Such is the fact, however, as they own a great deal of real estate and have a practical monopoly of the cab and laundry business. A Malay wedding is exceedingly picturesque, and the Europeans often seek an invitation. The bride invariably wears white satin, profusely trimmed with silver tinsel, and the guests appear in gorgeous attire of richest satin and silk. The priest wears wide white trousers and gayly embroidered coat, with a flowing cloak of silk or satin of brilliant hue. The wedding feast is a superb affair, with a cuisine reserved for bridal occasions. As the Malay is permitted to to cemetery is a far cry, but the Malay cemetery is really as interesting in its way. At the head of the newly-made graves are seen the cakes and meats for the spirit of the dead to eat, and for the ghosts that visit him when night falls.

One of the most difficult things to discover in this world is a pleasant traveling companion. People may be perfectly congenial at home, yet hardly ever "hit it off" comfortably on a trip. SUMMER PURIFIERS.

The heat and moisture of the summer months have a tendency to rust metals mildew fabrics and cover all sorts of substances with mould. Fermentation and putrefaction develop rapidly in vegetable and animal substances if they are not carefully watched. Lime and charcoal are two aids toward keeping the house sweet and dry, and the housekeeper should, if possible, provide herself with both these materials. A barrel each of lime and charcoal in the cellar will tend to keep that part of the house dry and sweet. A bowl of lime in a damp close will dry and sweeten it. A dish of charcoal in a closet or refrigerator will do much toward making these places sweet. The power of charcoal to absorb odors is much greater directly after it has been burned than when it has been exposed to the air for a length of time. Charcoal may be purified and used again and again by heating it to a red heat.

AN ACCEPTABLE DISH.

For an acceptable and palatable dish try sweetbreads with asparagus. The materials required are two pairs of sweetbreads (that have been parboiled and plunged into ice water), the tops of a good-sized bunch of cold boiled asparagus, or the same amount canned asparagus will answer; yolks of two hard-boiled eggs, butter the size of a large egg, four tablespoonfuls of rich milk er cream, a coffespoonful of corn starch, salt, white pepper and celery; salt to taste. A linen collar is the ideal neck finish for the summer shirtwaist. However, it is seldom seen-pique stocks, ribbons and even velvet being preferred by the average woman, who claims that the linen collar is uncomfortable.

BOER FARM

Chief Feature of the Transvaal Exhibit at the Exposition.

Paithful to the Original Model Near Pretoria-The Burgher Inmates Are Absent, But Their Rifles and Big Felt Hats Show That They Are Not Far Distant-Gold of the Transvaal.

One of the most interesting features of the Transvaal exhibit is the Boer Farm, a modest structure copled with scrupulous exactitude from the original near Pretoria.

The roof is of turf, the walls of porous stone, the windows are narrow and the doors low. There is no flooring in the interior and the threshing floor is of soft earth, into

BORR PARM AT PARIS EXPOSITION. which the foot of the visitor sinks at every step. There is no ceiling. The slanting roof is supported by the exterior walls, and all the rooms have bare rafters where the ceiling is usually found.

The entrance door opens into the sitting-room, or common hall, furnished with a table covered in gray linen, chairs, stools and a sofa covered with crossed strips of leather, a harmonium, a cuckoo clock and a dresser. On the table is an old Bible, the Bible of the States General brought from Europe at the time of the emigration, bound in calf, with ornaments of brass. Near to the Holy Book is a loaf of black bread. Fastened to the wall, among some chromos, and with a bow of crepe at the corner of the frame is a portrait, cut from a French illustrated paper, of Colonel Villebois-Mareuil, who died in a battle near Boshof while fighting for the Boers. Does his portrait adorn many Boer farmhouses? One may doubt it; but it was a touching and a graceful act to put it in the sitting room of the Boer Farm at the Exposition, above the old harmonium.

Behind the sitting room is the kitchen, where a heap of cold ashes marks the entrance to the door of the furnace. We look for the inhabitants, for the careful housekeeper, for the grandfather who should be seated at the corner of the hearth.

The dwelling does not give us the impression of being deserted. Doubtless the farmers who live here are out for awhile, working in the fields, or they are hunting or at war. But no, they have simply gone into the

At the right are two little rooms where the young people sleep, among a mass of agricultural implements, harness and sacks of grain. At the left is a chamber somewhat better furnished, that of the head of the family. The bed, larger than than of the other rooms, is adorned with cotton print curtains.

Close to the door of the farm house 4s placed, evidently by deliberate design, a lofty pyramid of gilded plaster, which represents the quantity of gold extracted from the mines of the Transvaal from 1884 until the outbreak of the present war with England. At the foot of this pyramid is a little gilded cube, representing the volume of 1,000,000 francs in pure

Passing before the yellow and brilliant pyramid, whose apex is hidden in the branches of the trees, we come to another pavilion of the Transvaal exhibition-that of the gold mines. Here a great noisy wheel is turning all the while, and steam hammers rise and fall, amid the trickling of water and the running of rough sand. In a room at the side we see a rose-colored punperienced in the work. Nine hundred tons of gold ore, coming from 77 mines in the Transveal now being worked, have been brought to Paris for the Exposition. Half of it has been used in covering the floor and the galleries of the subterranean gold mine; the remainder is being worked under the eyes of the public and will yield $6,000 worth

PRINCE TUAN OF CHINA.

Sketch of China's Great Reactionist, Who Heads the Anti-Foreign Mautchoo Nobles and Army.

Prince Tuan, who is said to be at the head of a big army in China, is one of the most conspicuous figures in that much disturbed corner of the earth. Chinese conditions are almost hopelessly complex to an outsider, but there are a few general facts which are easily apparent.

One of these is that Prince Tuan, although closely connected with the imperial government, is at the head and front of the movement which i spoken of as a revolution. Technic ally he may be a rebel, but actually he is in sympathy with the plans of the old empress dowager. It is the anti-foreign sentiment which has united China and which has caused the Mantchoo and Tartar to forget for the time some of their differen-

Prince Tuan is the most notable of the Mantchoos, and the Mantchoos are reactionists to a man. They believe in severing all foreign connections, of revoking all foreign concessions and of shutting every port to the hated "foreign devils." revolt is not against the empress, but against the high imperial officials who have forced her to grant concessions to foreigners.

The great Chinese officers like Li Hung Chang, the only Chinaman in 21/2 centuries who has held the highest post in the empire, believe in Chinese ideals, but deem it possible by learning from the west to give these ideals a new life.

When the Mantchoo emperor, Kwang-Su, in the summer of 1898, adopted these Chinese reform views, he was promptly seized by the great Mantchoo nobles. This was on Sept.

PRINCE TUAN.

22, 1898, and he has ever since been a powerless prisoner. This party had as its leader Prince Tuan, then one of the chamberlains, a post which gave him control of the palace and the emperor's person. An anti-foreign policy was adopted, and six great Chinese officials were executed, while scores were removed. This anti-foreign policy, thanks to the ons of the powers, met with a complete and unexpected success.

The next step was the reorganization of the army and the appointment of Mantchoos to all the high places of the empire. At the opening of the current year all was ready for the next step, and Jan. 24, Pu Chun, the son of Prince Tuan, or Tsai Yi, as is his name, was made heir apparent in a dexterously worded proclamation. This met with such a storm of Chinese protest, particularly in the south, that a change was made. But from this point it began to grow uncertain whether the empress was in these her last days the absolute directing and governing ruler she had been in the past or had been swept into a tide of Mantchoo reaction she was unable altogether to control. No one will probably ever know. All this would have probably been nothing but one of those palace intrigues which from time to time deflect without altering the course of oriental affairs in which the east always succumbs to the west but for the Boxers. The Mantchoo reaction in Pekin and Mantchoo appointments all over the empire have raised a strong opposition in the Chinese, whose effect is seen in the desire and determination of the viceroys in central China to separate themselves from the Pekin government through the agreement they have proposed with the powers. But the fanatical organization of the Boxers has swept into its bands hundreds of thousands of peasants all over the four northern provinces, giving a popular Chinese backing to the Mantchoo palace intrigue and the plans of the empress and Prince Tuan for the exclusion of foreigners. For some time the theory of for-eign observers of Chinese affairs has been that the Boxer mob, with sympathizers in the army, has swept aside a weak government of antiforeign views and led to repetition of past "Chinese outrages." But the events of the past few weeks show the Mantchoo reactionary party in full control, using the Tartar and Chinese army to oppose the relief of Pekin and turning the mob loose to massacre the entire foreign population of the capital city. Kwang-Su remains titular emperor, but is powerless in the hands of this Mantchoo revolution, which appears to have the empress and Prince Tuan for its heads.

Miss Baden-Powell's Animals. Miss Baden-Powell, sister of the hero of Mafeking, is devoted to animal pets, and she has a collection of these absolutely unique in London. In the drawing room, at 8 St. George's place, Hyde Park, there is a fine apiary; two large show beshives are stationed in the window, the exit of the bees being toward the park, of course, but glass insects allow their buzzing operations to be perfectly seen by the occupants of the room. Miss Baden-Powell has also a number of birds which fly about the house and are not confined in any way. Young snakes are born with fangs and poison glands in full perfection, and are dangerous even before tasting

SINGLE TAXERS

They Will Start a Utopian Village at Arden, Delaware.

Life Will Be Pleasant There to Æsthetic Souls-Will Cultivate Art as Their Hobby-Men of Creative Genius to Work as the Inspiration Urges Them -Start at Settlement Already Made.

The State of Delaware is to have at Grubb's Corners, which is five miles north of Wilmington, a colony of artistic Single Taxers. Life, to aesthetic souls, will be singularly pleasant there. Among the fields a village of gray and brown houses will arise against a woodland background. Arden will be the name of the place, and it will have a greena village green. It will also have an art museum, a little church, a theatre, but no servants. Servants will not be needed in Arden, where there will be no extravagance, no display.

SUMMER HOUSE IN THE COLONY AT ARDEN. On the first floor of the little houses the villagers will have their living rooms; their workrooms will be on the second floor. In these they will carve wood, paint, work on the precious and semi-precious metals, model, weave rich stuffs-create, in a word, all those charming, costly things which make civilized living graceful.

Living in Arden will be very grace-The artist, who is inevitably poor, will have there the delightful surroundings of wealth, though it will cost him less than half of what he pays to live meanly in a town. Released from the financial bothers and the hundred useless harassings of town life, he will be free in Arden to devote himself to his work, to put into the carving of a chair arm or the curve of a wrought iron chandelier his best self. He toils in a factory now from eight to six, like a machine, and in nothing that he makes does his best self appear.

These words, which seem to be cribbed from the prospectus of a poetic land agent, embody the dream of G. F. Stephens, a sculptor, and W. L. Price, an architect, who are the founders of Arden. Mr. Stephens, on being approached, will say with enthusiasm of the dream:

"We have bought, for $9,000, a tract of 162 acres in the most beautiful and fertile part of Delaware. We will build a village there, and this village will show the world the practicability of the Single Tax theory. Suppose you wish to come and live in the village. We, the founders of it, standing in the position of a Single Tax government towards you, say: 'You need pay nothing for your land. It belongs equally to all of us. You need only pay an annual tax, your proportionate share of the tax which the State of Delaware charges on the entire tract here. This tax is $50 now; when all the improvements are made it will be $100. Your share of it cannot come to more than five or six dollars a year.'

"And thus you can come and build, and your land will cost you nothing, though you will be guaranteed possession of it as long as you pay your tax. If you refuse to come, if you refuse to build on land which you have not actually bought, then you will be leaving out one of the arguments against the Single Tax. But if you do come and build-and there are plenty coming-then you will be proving that the Single Tax is good.

"That is one part of our idea-a proof of the practicability of the Single Tax. The other part is to make it possible for decorative workers to live simple, wise, pleasant lives, and do the best work that is in them.

'Decorative work is on a low level now. Let me give you an idea of the spirit in it. A millionaire completed a kind of palace, and wrote to the head of an interior decorating firm that he had $70,000 to spend on his furnishings. The decorator called on him and said: 'You made no mistake when you sent for sir. Mr. So-and-so had $80,-000 to spend on the interior of his new house the other day. I went to see him with some ideas, and in 48 minutes everything was arranged.'

"The decorations turned out by that fellow couldn't be good, could they? Think of encouraging millionaires to give only 48 minutes to the important matter of decorating their houses

"Another man had several thousand dollars to spend on dining room furniture. He bought a lot of heavy, carved stuff, which was veneered and glued. There wasn't an honestly constructed piece among it. Why? Pieces of honest construction couldn't be found.

"A third man wished to have a Japanese room in his house. He sent his architect to Japan to carry out his ideas, and the architect was directed to an inland village. Here he bought the most exquisite paintings, lacquer-work, stuff and carvings in the world, but he did not buy them at a factory. He went from house to house through the clean and pleasant settlement, and in one found a woodcarver, in another a metalworker, in a third a weaver in a fourth a painter. These men worked at home, as poets work, : hence their product was exquisite. n Arden we will work so. The wo will learn some day that a factory, say a furniture factory, cannot turn out good furniture any more than a verse factory could turn out good poems.

to useful things. The world says ! France excels in painting and sculpture, England in literature, Germany iyn music, America in machines. What good are machines? They are good for making things that must be inevitably alike, in which no individuality could possibly appear. They are good for making pins. Put them on anything higher than pins, and machines are a curse."

It will be seen that Arden is to be built as a harbor, a refuge from modern living and modern thinking and machines. The interior decorators who now work in factories will flock to it. The most skillful of these men make $75 to $100 a week, but the average salary among them is $25. "They have artistic souls, but they have to turn out as much work as possible of a medium grade of merit. That is what they are paid to do, to turn out all they can, and they don't much like it. They would like to work at home, rather than in a factory; when in the humor, rather than during certain hours, and with the idea of making one thing excellent rather than a lot of things mediocre." There will be no communistic cooperative features in the Arden Every man will be indescheme. pendent there, free to do what he chooses. But it stands to reason that the men who come to Arden will not care to do things that would clash with the simple village life. They will be glad to build their houses so as to conform to the founders' ideas of beauty, and they will be glad to keep no servants, might easily dodge. G. F. Stephens has put up a summer house at Arden, and there are already half a dozen little cottages built or nearly built there. Frank Martin, an architect, is erecting an elaborate winter house on a knoll. But the Single Tax village has not really begun yet. The founders say they do not expect to have their

though it is an issue which they plans under way for a year. The settlement is a half-hours' ride from Philadelphia by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The visitor gets off the train at a station called Harvey, and an eight minutes' walk up a country lane, which has no name, brings him to Arden. It is a beautiful prospect, four miles round, of farmland, woodland, glens, brooks, rocks and smooth green sward.

The village gateway will be between two big chestnut trees, and on it will be the inscription: "Arden. Thou art welcome hither." The village green will have for background on three sides dark green walls of forest. The children, dressed in white, will play there; the town meetings will be held there, and the picturesque buildings of the town hall, the art museum, the church and the theatre will stand out like embossed work against this forest wall. The total expense of going to live in Arden will run from $200 to $2,-000, according as one's house is of wood or of stone. The building and furnishing of the house will be the only outlay, the land being guaranteed upon payment of the nominal There will be a public kitchen there, so that bachelors will not feel too great a need of wives, and so that wives will not feel too great a need of servants. A single man could live in his own house there for less than $5 a week; a married man for less than $10. G. F. Stephens, one of Arden's founders, is a son of H. L. Stephens, who in his day was the foremost illustrator of the Leslie and Harper firms. Mr. Stephens studied at the Academy of the Fine Arts, and as a sculptor and interior decorator was known in his early youth. He modeled all the huge figures about the upper parts of the City Hall, and he had charge of the decorating of Broad Street Station and the Reading Terminal. He is one of the most rabid of the Single Taxers, and served a term in iail, along with 20 or 30 of his friends, for speaking in the streets of Dover against the orders of the local aathorities. He is also a vegetarian. A bit of meat, swallowed inadvertently in salad, upsets him, he says, for the day. A slender and active young man, full of enthusiasm and elasticity, he undertakes and succeeds in the most unlikely things.

If he succeds in this, Arden in a year will be the show place of Dela-The little gray and brown buildings dotting the fields and clustered about the green will be pictured in all the magazines in the country. The men gravely working in the home workrooms, bookbinders, silversmiths, goldsmiths, sculptors, painters, designers, all the followers of the decorative arts as they apply to useful things, will have to stop every hour or two so that the newspaper photographers can snap them. As people say now: "This book was bound, this chair was made by William Morris," they will begin to say then: "These things all came from Arden."

GERMANY IN PALESTINE. Great Triumph of Emperor William's Diplomacy-His Brain is Just as Active, but the Tongue Is softer. When Emperor William ascended the German throne in 1888 he gained for himself the reputation of a hothead and mischief-maker. His utterances seemed to lack judgment, and his acts appeared ill-considered and eccentric. The world expected that he would be the harlequin among princes, the clown in the international Punch and Judy show. His dismissal of the headstrong Bismarck and his passion for the capital "I" were set down as the vagaries of a disordered mind. Subsequent events have demonstrated that there was method in the young ruler's madness. The Bismarck episode was used by him to impress upon his people and the world at large that during his reign there should be none greater in Germany than the Emperor. His belleicose speeches, in which he referred to himtelf as the "war lord," were intended to convey to jealous rivals and supercilious diplomatists unmistakable information that the Empire must be left alone. What seemed "deranged mentality" to many was in reality exquisite statesmanship, whose truly marvellous success was marred occasionally by intemperate sentences, such as any youthful person suddenly placed in power might use.

The years have softened the Emperor's tongue, but the great mind behind that unruly member is as active as ever. His most commendable ambition-to make Germany a great manufacturing and trading nationhas already been realized. From a purely agricultural country the German Empire has within the insignificant period of 30 years developed into a commercial power, second only to Great Britain among the nations of Europe. A merchant marine has been built up which, as far as quality of ships is concerned, is without a rival. The German flag, unknown a few decades since, is seen waving from stately vessels in almost every harbor of the world, and the legend "Made in Germany" can be read upon packages of merchandise quite as often in England itself as in the warehouses of the antipodes.

For this development the Empire is indebted to the "clown" who verily has become a sage.

GERMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH FOR JERUSALEM come entangled in the settlement of the Turkish question, Emperor William has declined steadfastly to interiere with the Sultan's Government, wisely contenting himself with extending German commercial influence in Asia Minor, Palestine and Arabia. Without blowing of trumpets he pursued his course. Statesmen wondered when he visited the Sulian a year or so ago and spent money like wa-"make a show," as his critics put it. They know now that in the course of that brilliant visit he seured for German capital a concession o build a railroad from Damascus to Mecca; that he / obtained valuable rights for German merchants in Asiatic Turkey, and that by the seemingly disinterested project of building a Catholic church on Mount Zion in Jerusalem he became the recognized protector of the Christians residing in Palestine, at honor which, from time immemorial, had been claimed by France. And in order to make these diplomatic victories mere complete he resumed friendly relations with Great Britain, embodying his statesmanship in a treaty whose existence had been admitted by Lord Salisbury, but whose terms have never been made public. Certain it is, however, that the Emperer's espeusal of the British cause at the beginning of the Boer war was rewarded by the English Government's sanction of the extension of Cerman influence in Asia Minor and other Turkish provinces. Thus far Emperer William's reign has indeed en a succession of triumnhs.
