An Irish Scene.

LONDON, July 30.—A sad story of dis- ess from poverty and the harsh enforcement of law comes from the Irish coast. The fishing season has been bad, and many of the dwellers on Blasket Island, off the Kerry coast, were unable to pay their rent at the appointed day. A gunboat thereupon landed the sheriff, 30 bailiffs and 100 police on the island, and the posse seized the boats of the unfortunate fishermen. As the gunboat departed with the only means of livelihood of the half-starved population. The scene was a heartrending one. The despairing fathers and husbands gazed gloomily after the receding vessel, while the children and women folk wailed and cried aloud in their anguish. An eye-witness says that the people are absolutely destitute, and many must perish unless relief is sent.

Portugal's Payments to England.

LISBON, July 30.—In the Chamber of Deputies last night Senor Nevarro interpolated the Government regarding the payment by Portugal to England of £28,000 on account of the seizures of the Delagoa Bay Railway. He denounced the Government for paying over the money and declared that England's action in demanding the payment was an imposition. Senor Ribero, Minister of Foreign Affairs, explained that in rescinding the contract with the railway company Portugal had placed the company in financial difficulties. At the suggestion of Glyn Petros, the British Minister of Lisbon, who said England would consider it an act of good will, Portugal had voluntarily advanced the amount to England, not to the British company, which, he said, Portugal did not recognize. Nevarro was not satisfied with the Foreign Minister's explanation, and he will renew his interpolation.

Depew Talks.

LONDON, July 30.—In an interview last night Chauncey M. Depew said: "Since I have been in London I have taken great pains to obtain the views of prominent English political leaders on the Behring Sea question. I have talked with representative men of all shades of opinion, and find them all disposed to regard the Behring Sea question as not worthy of the importance and fuss made over it by newspapers. All look with ridicule upon the idea that any such petty difficulty could lead to serious misunderstanding between the two great nations."

Speaking of the English Opposition, he said they not only feel confident of success in the next election, but count on the overthrowing of Lord Salisbury's Government before that time, not this session but the next. Aside from Lord Salisbury himself and, perhaps, Mr. Balfour, the Ministry is painfully weak and quite lacking in ability to cope with such leaders as Mr. Gladstone and Sir William Harcourt. As for W. H. Smith, he seems to me to be quite unequal to the position he holds.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY

Nominate a Full Ticket for Nebraska—Specimen Planks of the Platform.

NEBRASKA, July 30.—The People's Independent State Convention of Nebraska has nominated a full State ticket. Members of the Farmers' Alliance predominated, with a good following of the Grange, the balance being Knights of Labor and union labor adherents. The platform declares that our financial system should be reformed by the restoration of silver to its old time place in the currency and its coinage on equality with gold. That land monopoly should be abolished and alien ownership be prohibited. That the railway system, as at present managed, is a system of spoilation and robbery. That the general Government should own and operate the railway and telegraph, and furnish transportation at cost. We demand that our State and national system of taxation, including the tariff, shall be so adjusted that capital will bear its just burdens instead of our farmers, laborers, merchants and mechanics being compelled to pay, as at present, by far the largest portion of public expense. We demand adoption of Australian ballot system. That eight hours will constitute a legal day's work, except for agricultural laborers.

The change will cost the company at least $10,000 a year. The strikers were very quiet.

W. F. Abrams, of the Detroit Carpenters' Union, says the demand for eight hours will go on all over the country in all places where it is not accepted, and the chief work of the Chicago convention, which will sit in a few days, will be to provide a fund for the purpose. Most of the foreign carpenters who came in during the strike have left the city. On an average wages of carpenters are 25 cents a day more than before the strike.

As indicative of how property has advanced within that period, Mr. Livingstone states that the lot on which the St. Louis Hotel stands, facing Superior street, the main thoroughfare of the city, was worth but $800 when the place was a village, and couldn't be bought now for $50,000. A lot on the main street, opposite the Board of Trade building, occupied by two cheap frame buildings, recently brought $1,350 a foot. MONEY AT ITS ROOT.

How London Congregationalists Fell Out.

The Troublous Times that Preceded the Starting of the Second Church.

The ADVERTISER has been requested by the leaders in the new Congregational Church movement in this city to publish the following remarkable statement of the reasons for coming out as a separate organization:

A number of Congregationalists have recently branched off from the First Congregational Church, London, and with others have started a new church. By continued misrepresentation they stand largely, in the eyes of the public, in a false position. Hitherto they have refrained from making a public statement of their position; but such has been the persistency of some that it has assumed almost a necessity in order to counteract the evil it may do this new cause. They have been called commonly cranks, grumblers, factionists, disturbers of the peace, etc., spoken of as things to be shunned and glad to get rid of. But those thus spoken of already embrace five ex-deacons, who resigned their positions in the old church because of their objection to the management of that church, as well as other influential Congregationalists. The real cause of the trouble in the First Congregational Church started seven years ago in regard to finances. On the evening before the annual meeting in January, 1883, the Finance Committee, composed of seven representative men of the church and congregation, held their meeting. When through and retiring, the senior deacon, as if forgetting something, remarked that many were talking about a rise in the minister's salary. The family, he said, could not live on $1,200 a year; they were obliged to be without a servant, etc. One of the committee replied he had heard only one speak of it, and besides the state of finances would not allow it. Another member of the committee had heard only the same person mention it, and indorsed the statement of the previous one as to the funds. There the subject dropped as far as the Finance Committee were concerned. Next evening it was sprung upon the annual meeting by the same deacon and urged with the same reasons. This action was opposed by members of the Finance Board, on the ground that the state of the finances would not permit it, and the whole question should first be dealt with by the Finance Board, and an amendment was put to that effect. Ignoring the Finance Committee, the usual and only safe one to deal with such a question, Deacon Mathewson passed his motion for an increase of $300 a year, and with Rev. H. D. Hunter, especially the latter, so pressed the matter, that many, not the best financiers, yielded to the pressure. The minister's salary was raised from $1,200 to $1,500 per year. An immediate effect was the estrangement of many and the falling off of the revenue. Results soon proved the correctness of the statement of the Finance Board when money had to be borrowed to pay the minister's salary. Were those cranks who opposed this procedure? The minister said still he could not live on his salary. Financial reports were prepared that were thought misleading. The Finance Board unanimously petitioned the church for an examination through the customary channel of the Board of Deacons. The deacons stayed the petition with themselves and refused to bring it before the church, thus assuming authority even over the church, a fundamental principle of which is that the ultimate and supreme authority is in the church and recognizes no other authority but the Supreme himself. Would you call those cranks and grumblers who determinately opposed action of this kind?

An attempt was made to bring the matter directly before the church, but the minister, as autocrat of a new autocracy which he had established in a democratic institution, undertook by his own dictum to decide there was no need for an examination, and in the same breath dismissed the subject and the people by pronouncing the benediction, leaving no chance of a reply. The evident intention of all this and much more was to sustain the increase of salary as long as possible by misleading reports. Would you call those factionists and disturbers of the peace who opposed such proceedings? The time arrived when it could be done no longer. Then the minister tried to relieve them of the increase. How? By proposing to retain his salary of $1,500 and increasing his subscription to the church fund to $300 a year. Exemplary morality! Those who are now called factionists smiled an indignant smile. It was too late, however. Warning was not taken in time, for the people could not now raise him $1,200. Those few officials managed to raise the debt from below $8,000 to near $11,000, and made Congregationalism worse than it was 25 years ago. Then the minister thought of leaving. Fitly his love for the kingdom of Christ had not led him to take the advice of a friend in April, 1887, and leave before he had well nigh ruined the church. His removal would have been the occasion of a reconciliation, so it was felt, had not the temper of these few officials prevented.

At the last church meeting before leaving, led by the minister, it was proposed to suspend a large number of members for absenting themselves six months from the ordinances, although many had attended the church regularly. One of these deacons has told the public it was for good cause. A regulation of the church makes a member liable to suspension who absents himself from the ordinance six months, but it is seldom strictly inforced, and Congregational usage, common sense justice demands due notice or official visit if possible. Most of them had no intimation whatever until they received notice of suspension. At the meeting when this business took place no notice from the pulpit even had been given of the nature of the business contemplated by these officious officials. When the nature of this action became fully known the members rallied in disgust, and by a large majority cancelled the act of suspension. Thus the last act of a very injudicious man was to rob the church of the golden opportunity of again uniting. This kind of regime it was attempted to perpetuate. The church appointed a supply committee. The deacons, mainly two, ignored the action of the church and secretly proceeded to make arrangements of their own. The church decided 10 to 1, and arranged with the Rev. Mr. Hall to come for four weeks. The deacons, by offensive treatment of Mr. Hall, succeeded in cutting it down to two weeks, for they had been quietly communicating with the present occupant of the pulpit. Who were the disturbers of the peace in this case? Of course the deacons were told of their faults in church meeting, but replied with provoking speech without measure. At the close of one of these meetings Deacon Crossin was met in the hallway by one of the opposition, who remarked to the Deacon, "You are a fine man to be a deacon," whereupon Deacon Crossin, with an unsanctified temper, tried to seize the brother by the throat. Another brother, standing near, who dared to show his dislike to such action, stepped in between them to prevent a collision, as peacemaker, not as a disturber of the peace. The irate deacon struck him on the mouth. Shall we be surprised when an indignant church gave notice of motion expressing want of confidence in the deacons? This want of confidence motion was thwarted, and how? The action of the church in regard to supplies had been set aside by the deacons; and, unknown to the church, they had communicated with Mr. Neil, had engaged him to come for three months on trial, and, if found acceptable, then permanently. Mr. Neil came along for two weeks, it was represented by the deacons, but Mr. Neil announced for a longer period. It was stated to Deacon Crossin that Mr. Neil was recommended by the Rev. Mr. Hunter. The Deacon replied that Mr. Hunter had no knowledge of Mr. Neil, but to the great confusion of that deacon, Mr. Neil, when pressed by another deacon at one of their meetings, for he had to be pressed repeatedly, stated to the deacons that Mr. Hunter had recommended him, had sent a friend to him ten miles to tell him, and gave him the address, and he had in consequence communicated with Deacon Crossin and had made the arrangement mentioned above. These two deacons in particular, however, assume injured sanctity, while those who denounce such reckless wilfulness are called cranks, etc.

Now for the finale. At the meeting when the want of confidence notice of motion was to come up, Mr. Neil stepped in to assist the irrepressible deacons, having previously prepared for the issue by visitation. In a church to which he was a stranger, and as far as known to them without credentials, he presumes to occupy the chair at the request of the deacons, though against the expressed wish of the church at a previous meeting. He presumes also to make a resolution to the church, encouraged the idea that the deacons regretted the errors they had made, and made a motion containing a general confession of all to acknowledge their faults, forget the past and start afresh from July 1, 1890, as if the faults were merely personal. Though they often became such, they were in reality grave offenses against the Church of Christ, the spirit of the Gospel, against Congregationalism, and could not be so summarily disposed of. Was there any guarantee for a better future? Was it sincere? In innocent confidence, many were influenced to vote for it who immediately changed their judgment when they saw the true character of this motion. It passed, and in its bald state has been paraded before the public. Mr. Neil's representations, nor the resolution itself, which was only verbal, and did not tally with the deacons'. Deacon Matthewson expressed himself, and uttered a eulogium on himself and his conduct; not a hint of any error or confession of wrong, for he had done nothing to confess. Deacon Crossin made a statement that he had always acted according to his ideas of Congregational principles. If he had done wrong he would like to know it, but he was not conscious of any particular wrong, not even the striking of a brother was remembered. The first form of the resolution even contained a clause virtually ignoring the action of the church in canceling the suspension business. No sooner had this farce ended than Deacon Crossin and his family immediately berated with unbridled tongues a young man whom they encountered at the door when retiring from the meeting because of what he said at some previous meeting, though they had just palmed upon the church a resolution to forget the past, on account of which conduct that young brother has since resigned the superintendency of the Sabbath school, and is now among those so-called cranks. It was expected Mr. Neil's composure would have been disturbed, because of the part he had taken in this farce. We do not envy his success, although he seems to value the success more than the means of obtaining it.

It was now clearly seen by the incoming of Mr. Neil a fresh lease of strife, perhaps for years, was given. A large number shrank from the responsibility. A few officials, with a new leader, seemingly recklessly bent upon a purpose of their own which we would not now describe, and attached as this large number was to Congregational methods of church government and to the principles of the Gospel as commonly understood and taught by the Congregational body, they felt impelled to adopt other ways in another vineyard. The Congregational Church of London has for the last 30 years supplied recruits to other churches sufficient to form two prosperous churches. We have no hope for Congregationalism in London until another church is started. An earnest zeal for the elevation and salvation of mankind has been too much secondary in the past. A culpable neglect of the true means of carrying out the purposes of a Christian church has too long existed. The difficulties of doing a good and true work were increasing in the old church. The difficulties of starting a new church were reduced to a minimum. They consulted together, inquired about a meeting place, and for the first time found the Rev. G. Trotter Carr was inquiring about the same place and for the same purpose. Something had led Mr. Carr to London and put it into his heart to start another Congregational Church. Hitherto the intentions and actions of each were entirely unknown to the other. They were thus brought together; their spirits blended. Mr. Carr, in their estimation, was the man for the task they were setting themselves, and whom they unanimously desire to have for their leader. Thus the path of duty seemed comparatively easy. We thought we saw the hand of God clearly in the matter. We have followed the leadings of Providence. Our confidence is in the Almighty. We have begun. The prospects are most encouraging. We feel sure of success. May the Lord direct us.

"IT IS A LIE," HE SAID.

Sensation in a Long Island Church on Sunday.

NEW YORK, July 29.—A sensation took place in the First Congregational Church at Patchogue, L. I., Sunday. It was generally understood that the Rev. Jonathan Edward Bell would tender his resignation, in compliance with a quiet hint from the committee which has been investigating some stories concerning Dr. Bell's early life. After delivering an eloquent sermon, Dr. Bell tendered his resignation. He was greatly agitated and after referring to a paragraph which had appeared in a Brooklyn newspaper, which stated that he had been requested by a majority of his congregation to resign, he said:

"The person who wrote that is sitting in this church now, and I know him. He wrote that out of the maliciousness of his heart. It is a lie. Has any one here in this building requested me to step down and out?"

No one replied, and Dr. Bell then pronounced the benediction and dismissed the congregation.

The charges against Dr. Bell grew out of certain alleged improprieties committed by him while pastor of a church in New London, Conn., in 1867. The story of his early errors has followed him from place to place for over twenty years, and he has thereby been compelled to leave numerous pulpits.

UNDER THE SEMAPHORE.

Eleven Miles in Nine Minutes—Outlay for Snow Sheds—Double-Tracking the M. C. R.

The general offices of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad Company have been removed from Milwaukee to Chicago.

New C. P. R. timetables next month. Additional trains will be put on this division, and it's high time.—[Chatham Planet.

Dr. Hickey, M.P., and his fellow railway projectors are said to be likely to come to an agreement with the rival company who control the American end of the St. Lawrence bridge charter.

The Chicago and Grand Trunk has refused to adopt the new uniform bill of lading which some Eastern roads have been trying hard to put in vogue. The action of the Grand Trunk may kill the scheme.

The fact that Supt. Stiff, of the Grand Trunk, took a trip over the Lake Erie, Essex and Detroit River road on Thursday has created the impression that the latter road is about to pass into the hands of the Grand Trunk.

It is stated that the train dispatcher's sheet shows that a special train on the Wabash last week ran eleven miles in nine minutes. General Manager Hayes and Supt. Magee were aboard the special. At another point nineteen miles were covered in eighteen minutes.

The construction of new snowsheds on the mountain division of the Southern Pacific and the extensive repairs of those damaged last winter is estimated to cost $400,000. Two snow plows are now being built for the company in the East, and every precaution will be taken to prevent a repetition of last winter's "visitation."

Sixty miles of the Michigan Central Railway is now being double tracked, which will be completed in October, making 107 miles of the 210 miles of this division which will be double-tracked. It is intended to have the whole road from Detroit to the Niagara River double-tracked before the commencement of the World's Fair in Chicago, as a large share of the passenger traffic is expected to be obtained by the Michigan Central.

The Work of a Fiend.

NEW YORK, July 30.—A diabolical attempt was made yesterday to destroy the five-story tenement house No. 114 Millett street by fire. The fire was started in the apartments of a peddlar named Warschauer. He has disappeared but his wife is under arrest.

Ghastly Discovery.

PORTLAND, Me., July 30.—Chas. Thompson, his wife and son's wife, of Great Chebeague Island, report that yesterday while berrying on Goose Island, near Chebeague, they came across the remains of two children. On a rock were four hands and four feet recently cut off. A large fire had been built near by, and in the charred wood were bones as if the childrens' bodies had been burned.

Mrs. Thomas B. Lett, jun., living near Eganville, went out to do some work in a garden the other day, leaving her 1-year-old baby in the house. Fires have occurred in Sarnia so frequently of late, many of which are believed to be the work of an incendiary, that the Mayor issued a proclamation on Monday offering a reward of $500 for information that will lead to the apprehension of the guilty parties. The immediate causes for issuing the proclamation were two incendiary fires which broke out on Sunday night. The first originated in a lumber pile in Robert McKenzie's lumber yard at 1 o'clock, and was extinguished by Mr. James King and Mr. Robert Turner. One of the boards was found to be saturated with coal oil. The incendiary, evidently determined not to be baulked, next ignited a wood pile in the rear of the Presbyterian Church. This time the fire alarm was given, and the firemen put out the flames before any damage was done.

Y. M. C. A. CAMP.

PORT STANLEY, July 29, 1890.

We have just had a somewhat new experience. Some persons who are not entitled to the name of gentlemen called around about 2 o'clock this morning and attempted the contemptible trick of taking off the guy-ropes of the marquee, in order to let the canvas fall on those sleeping. Happily the attempt was frustrated by some of the boys awakening and the miscreants made off. Four of the older campers took it in turn to guard for the rest of the night armed with clubs, but the marauders failed to return. There is talk of getting a bull dog and a battery of artillery for the defense of the camp in the future. Stragglers, beware!—We had a donation of new potatoes yesterday which added greatly to the bill of fare for to-day's dinner. Small favors thankfully received and large ones in proportion.—The following are some of the books read by the boys on lazy afternoons: Zenophon's "Anabasis Cicero," Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," E. P. Roe's "Barriers Burned Away," Ballantyne's "Norseman in the West," and Bellamy's "Looking Backward."—The Bible reading every morning at 9:30 o'clock is much enjoyed by the boys, and cannot fail to promote the spiritual growth of all.—In the interval between sunset and moonrise the boys light a camp fire, and it is as pretty a sight as anyone would want to see the circle of happy faces gather round and talk over the doings of the day. To anyone coming towards the camp the picture would be about as follows: In front of him, a small open space with the fire in the center, and behind that the dark shadows of the wood; on the left two white tents, and on his right the camp stove with its various accompaniments.—Bread disappears at the rate of about six loaves per day and milk and butter in proportion. These are our staples.—The campers from Galt struck their tent yesterday and left for home, but before departing very kindly sent us over a large basket of potatoes, beans, carrots, flour, saimon, etc., for which we return our hearty thanks.—This place is getting civilized, as a book agent from Fingal called to see us to-day. No sales.—Joe Adams returned yesterday for another week's sojourn, and will take charge of the camp to-morrow in the absence of W. H. Sallmon.

MRS. O'BRIEN.

Mr. William O'Brien, like Stanley, has contracted a romantic marriage, his wife being a Russian heiress. Mdlle. Raffalovitch is the daughter of a well-known family of Russian litterateurs and journalists, whose contributions are familiar to all students of the Russian and French press. Madame Raffalovitch, who originally belonged to Odessa, possesses the Greek beauty noticeable among her compatriots in the Black Sea littoral, came to Paris when her daughter was 6 years old, and the family has since then lived in the West. Mdlle. Raffalovitch is an expert linguist. She has written a great deal about Ireland in the French press. She translated Mr. Morley's "Cobden" into French, and is now engaged in translating her husband's "When We Were Boys" into the same language. She is already as Irish as her future husband. I look forward to her playing an important social part in the near future, when her husband, as one of the Ministers of the Crown, occupies a front seat on the Government benches in the Parliament on College Green.—[Review of Reviews.

PORT HURON FAIR.

The Port Huron Fair, Exposition and races premium list foots up over $5,000, which is indeed a most liberal offering, and as a very large percentage of the premiums are for live stock, grains, fruits, etc., the farmers of Eastern Michigan and especially of this county should make a representative showing. The Port Huron Exhibition attracts thousands of people from other parts, and a more effectual advertisement of this favored region cannot be devised. The management of the Port Huron Fair have adopted the single judge system, selecting for such duty men of State and national reputation in their particular department. This is an expensive method, the association paying $5 to $10 per day and expenses to these gentlemen, but any stock raiser will readily appreciate the benefit of this expert judgment. Some exhibitors appreciate this more than their cash premiums.

SOLID FACTS FOR SMOKERS.

Reasons Why S. Davis & Sons Maintain the Quality of Their Brands.

It has taken the best part of a lifetime to establish them.

They have spent thousands upon thousands of dollars to introduce them.

Having obtained the confidence of the public they wish to merit a continuance of the same.

A deterioration of quality in their brands would not alone destroy the structure upon which they have spent their time, money and labor, but would result in a loss of that confidence the public have favored them with that money again spent in advertising to introduce new brands could not purchase.

Therefore, is it to be supposed that any sane business man would be so foolish as to destroy in a short time what it has taken so long to establish?

Their brands, "Cable," "Mungo," "El Padre" and "Madre e Hijo" are undoubtedly the best value, the safest and most reliable smoke, and cost no more to the consumer than cigars of much inferior quality.

Why smoke other brands or permit dealers (for the sake of additional gain) to sell you those that you are in most cases unfamiliar with? 87-tf-xtz

THE ANGLO-FRENCH COMMERCIAL TREATY.

Great Britain and France do not stand more nearly related to each other than Canada and the United States. They are for the most part peopled by distinct races which were for centuries the antipodes of each other, having little intercourse with each other of any kind, and ready upon any provocation to fly at one another's throats. In this respect there is no parallelism between those two nations and the peoples of Canada and the United States, for in our case there have been no serious jealousies or rivalries; only once did they come into collision with armed hosts, and then the quarrel was not their own; and at the present day the personal relationships between Ontario and Michigan, or Quebec and Massachusetts, are as intimate as those between New York and Ohio. The two peoples are practically one, and were it not for tariff laws they would trade with each other with as much freedom as that which marks the every-day intercourse between the farmers of Middlesex and the citizens of London.

There were many in England and France who bitterly opposed the commercial treaty negotiated by Cobden and Napoleon, and in France in particular it required all the diplomacy and influence of Napoleon to make it at all acceptable to the nation. The French duties up to that time were prohibitive on English manufactures, and had it been proposed to establish free trade between the two countries the treaty would no doubt have been defeated. But the arrangement was brought into operation tentatively. First there was to be a reduction of the duty on English coal and coke; then of bar and pig iron and steel; next on tools and machinery; after another interval on yarns and goods in flax and hemp; and at the end of fifteen months a taking away of the prohibitions on articles of a certain list and fixing a maximum customs rate of 30 per cent., to be in three years reduced to 25 per cent. Britain on her part engaged to abolish immediately and totally all duties upon all manufactured goods, and to reduce the duty on brandy by nearly one-half. These were the principal stipulations, and they will no doubt strike many on this continent at the present day as very peculiar. They would hardly be proposed or thought of in any negotiations between Canada and the United States, and they would assuredly not be agreed to on either side. But the former trade relations between Great Britain and France were so straitened by tariff policies that the treaty was regarded as a great concession to free trade even by the free traders of England, but, as Mr. Gladstone put it, the stipulations were dealt with "as being on both sides only benefit throughout." In speaking of the treaty in Parliament in his budget speech of 1860 Mr. Gladstone said, referring to the relative positions of England and France:

> It is perfectly true that France is a foreign country separated from you absolutely by a narrower channel than that which divides you from Ireland; and while nature, or Providence, rather, has placed you in closest proximity, the same wise agency has also given to these two great countries such diversities of soil, climate, products and character that I do not believe you can find on the face of the world two other countries which are so admirably constituted for carrying on a beneficial and extended commerce with one another. I believe, indeed, that the prohibitory system subsisting between England and France is but little less unnatural as to every commercial—I think I may add as to every moral and political—result, than if you were to revive those prohibitory systems which formerly separated England from Scotland, and Great Britain from Ireland.

Every statement in this extract is more applicable to Canada and the United States than to Great Britain and France, and we know that in two very important respects the Anglo-French commercial treaty was productive of most valuable results—in promoting personal intercourse and trade.

For a number of years preceding the treaty the number of letters sent from Great Britain to France continued to increase at the rate of 4 per cent., but in the first year of the treaty's operation the increase was 20 per cent. This is evidence of the bringing together of the two nations under conditions of greater freedom of commercial intercourse, and many personal friendships must have been formed and cultivated as a further consequence, thus cementing the bonds of peace.

The effect of the treaty upon trade is seen when comparison is made between periods before and after its ratification. Thus, in 1859, the value of Great Britain's imports from France was £6,870,000, while the value of her exports to that country was £9,561,000. In 1863, the third year under the treaty, Great Britain exported to France goods to the value of £22,963,000, and imported from that country goods to the value of $24,024,000.

These results are very significant of the social, political and commercial effects of unrestricted trade between countries lying near each other, and it may safely be said that in the years during which the Anglo-French treaty continued more was done to promote peace and good will between Britons and Frenchmen than all the international measures of the preceding two centuries, not to mention the influence of the treaty upon trade and manufactures. The lesson of that treaty may at the present day be studied on this continent with great advantage and profit.

HARUSPICY RUN WILD.

Our own Professor Stone Wiggins has recently been asserting that he has solved the cause of tornadoes, waterspouts and periodical droughts on this continent. He attributes the whole trouble to the existence of telegraph and telephone wires and wire fencing! His theory is that while a sheaf of telegraph and telephone wires stretching over the roof of a building will certainly protect it from any thunderbolt, the network of wires in cities suddenly exhausts the electricity from thunderbolts, and, as a result, causes tornadoes and waterspouts over and in the vicinity of cities. He asserts that when "an electric cloud is suddenly burst by running upon conductors, its collapse produces a cyclone, and these almost invariably occur over or in the vicinity of cities, and spread desolation and death in their trail. Ohio, Pennsylvania and the Mississippi States were strangers to these messengers of death until the iron web was woven over their territory, and now they are the home of drought and cyclones, and the same wire which brought the destroyer out of the brain of Jupiter tells us of his carnival of death in demolishing buildings and scattering debris and human beings through the air." And he warns Canadians to be up and doing to prevent the further increase of telegraph wires and wire fencing if they would prevent grave irregularities in the weather, cloud bursts and tornadoes, and prolonged drought.

This is all very alarming, if true, but it is nothing to what is promised other portions of the North American continent, as well as the old world, in the near future by a Boston professor, who appears to have entered into an international competition with the Canadian prognosticator of approaching evil. Professor Rodes Buchanan, indeed, does not give the people an alternative of escape from the terrible things to come, but tells his readers in the Arena for August that the financial, political, social and physical calamities are coming on the world whether they will or not. Bro. Buchanan does not reveal his plan of divination, though he admits that he employs the hypothesis of periodicity in the occurrence of certain maleficent events. In this tack, indeed, he follows the example set by his Canadian competitor for notoriety. There never was a time when Wiggins could not squirm out of responsibility for the failure to come to pass of such events as he had prophesied.

"The coming cataclysm" is what the oracle of evil terms the train of events which he foresees. It will begin with civil war in the United States, involving the "plutocracy" and the laborers and farmers, and the old political parties will be powerless to stem the revolution. These troubles will be preceded by an even more alarming war in Europe, in which monarchy will go down. Before then, however, Queen Victoria will die—two years from now—and the Prince of Wales will get a taste of the glory of being a king and emperor, but not for long. It will be all over before 1909. The sensations and troubles will not end with these changes. Cold summers and bad harvests will afflict the people, the "capitalist power" will bleed them, the Mississippi will overflow its banks, scepticism will increase, and even the sacred ties of marriage will be successfully assailed.

Terrible though these "coming events" may appear, worse yet is the contemporaneous effects of the earthquake outbreak. In South America great havoc will be wrought by the earth upheaval, and the whole seaboard of the adjoining republic will be convulsed with shakings and swept by tidal waves. "Galveston, New Orleans, Mobile, St. Augustine, Savannah and Charleston are doomed. Richmond, Baltimore, Washington Philadelphia, Newark, Jersey City and New York will suffer in various degrees in proportion as they approximate the sea level." We observe that with a consideration which does him credit Prof. Buchanan starts the whole of the dreadful troubles south of the borders of Canada, and no doubt because he has his habitation there he exempts Boston from the effects of the cataclysm. It is such little courtesies as these that make us think that the Boston seer is not wholly given over to pessimistic omination. Life even in the dog-days is rendered tolerably enjoyable when viewed in the light of the times that are to be encountered by our neighbors in the near future—if the Boston Wiggins has his way.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

—A very large proportion of New England woolen spinning machinery is idle at the present time, and increased failures amongst manufacturers and jobbers is a matter of common notoriety. No wonder that manufacturers are calling upon Congress to give them cheaper raw material by taking the duty off wool.

—Prof. Huxley affects to believe that he has discovered the original documents of Bible history in Babylonian inscriptions. Similar claims have been made for the priority of New Testament teaching in the philosophies of India, but it has been demonstrated in the latter case that early Christian missionaries had told the story of the Gospel in India centuries before the Indian philosophers, whose writings are quoted, were born. The Bible will be a fresh and living fountain ages after even Prof. Huxley is forgotten.

—The management of the World's Fair in Chicago proposes to divide the show, and place the art and mechanical departments on the lake front close to the city, shoving the agricultural display away off to Jackson Park. If the show is divided the managers will make a big mistake. The Philadelphia Exhibition would not have been the success it was if it had been cut in two. Indeed, no good show can be made popular if divided. If any one has any doubts on this subject let him ask Barnum. He never places one tent in one part of a city and another a mile off.

—Large supplies of natural gas have been tapped in the vicinity of Port Colborne, in the county of Welland, but the gas is for the most part of no value for lack of a market, and so the wells are sealed up awaiting for the customers that never come. With such water power as the Welland Canal affords there ought to be a long succession of mills and factories along the line of the canal, in which case the natural gas supply would no doubt find an ample market. But isolated and hampered by trade policies as we are in Canada, there is little use for mills or factories or natural gas either.

—A motion was recently introduced into the Woodstock Town Council, having for its object the renting of the park as a cow pasture. The idea was to have the cows trim the grass, which the Council has failed to do. It is a domestic matter that the Woodstock people should settle themselves; but to our mind if a citizen resort of this description is kept up at all it should be maintained in a scrupulously neat condition. Let city and town councils lead in the promotion of schemes for the beautifying of civic property—not necessarily expensive—and the characteristic will speedily be developed among individuals in the body corporate and the entire community will be benefited and ennobled.

Rheumatism,

BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectually cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H.

A MAN'S LIFE SAVED

I WOULD not be doing justice to the afflicted if I withheld a statement of my experience with Jaundice, and how I was completely cured by using Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. No one can tell what I suffered for nine weeks, one-third of which I was confined to my bed, with the best medical skill I could obtain in the city trying to remove my affliction, but without even giving me temporary relief. My body was so sore that it was painful for me to walk. I could not bear my clothes tight around me, my bowels only operated when taking purgative medicines, my appetite was gone, nothing would remain on my stomach, and my eyes and body were as yellow as a guinea. When I ventured on the street I was stared at or turned from with a repulsive feeling by the passer-by. The doctors said there was no cure for me. I made up my mind to die, AS LIFE HAD LOST ALL ITS CHARMS. One day a friend called to see me and advised me to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I thought if the doctors could not cure me, what is the use of trying the Discovery, but after deliberating for a time I concluded to give it a trial, so I procured a bottle and commenced taking it three times a day. JUDGE OF MY SURPRISE at the expiration of the third day to find my appetite returning. Despair gave place to Hope, and I persevered in following the directions and taking Hot Baths two or three times a week until I had used the fifth bottle. I then had no further need for the medicine that had SAVED MY LIFE—that had restored me to health—as I was radically cured. The natural color had replaced the dingy yellow, I could eat three meals a day, in fact the trouble was to get enough to eat. When I commenced taking the Discovery my weight was only 132½ lbs, when I finished the fifth bottle it was 172½ lbs., or an increase of about half a pound per day, and I never felt better in my life. No one can tell how thankful I am for what this wonderful medicine has done for me. It has rooted out of my system every vestige of the worst type of Jaundice, and I don't believe there is a case of Jaundice, Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia that it will not cure.

MANUFACTURER OF

ABOUT HAIR

Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Sir,—I have, as you know, for some time advertised in Canada and the States a preparation for the hair called "Dr. Dorenwend's Hair Magic." I have received some thousands of flattering testimonials from those who have used it as to its merits as a restorative of gray or faded hair; also as a promoter of the growth and a certain cure for dandruff.

A great many of my correspondents ask the questions: "Why is my hair turning gray so early? Why is my hair falling out?" As it is impossible for me to answer every one, I take the liberty of encroaching on your valuable space to make a general reply. A great many persons do not seem to be aware that excessive washing and rubbing is injurious to the growth of the hair; such is the case, however. Constant washing and rubbing the scalp and hair causes over irritation and removes the oily substance which gives strength to the hair; undue heat caused by the wearing of heavy headgear is also injurious. Anything that will tend to dry up the sap or life of the hair will cause dandruff, falling out of the hair, gray or faded hair and finally baldness. Of course there are other causes as diseases, hereditary tendencies, etc., but the first mentioned are the main and most common.

Dr. Dorenwend, an eminent German physician, has given to the world after years of toil and experiment his now famous "Hair Magic." The object of this preparation is to assist nature in the production of this oily substance absolutely necessary to the growth of the hair. It is now sold by all reliable druggists at $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5, or will be sent on receipt of price to any address. See that each wrapper bears the seal and signature of the manufacturer.

CRICKET.

The Harriston Club are contemplating a short tour in August. If convenient they will meet a team from this city on Aug. 21.

A meeting was held at Ottawa Tuesday afternoon to consider the question of an inter-Provincial cricket match between teams from Ontario and Quebec. The match will take place probably at Toronto and next year either at Ottawa or Montreal.

A meeting of cricketers will be held at Messrs. Blackburn & Cox's office Thursday afternoon to make arrangements for the tour of 1890. The matches proposed were Windsor and Detroit, Aug 16 and 18; Cleveland and Buffalo, Aug. 19 and 20; Toronto and Hamilton, Aug. 22 and 23.

The first of the two cricket matches between the bachelors and benedicts, of Chatham, was played Tuesday, resulting, after an exciting finish, in favor of the benedicts by two runs. Laing, 16, and Wells, 21, were the only bachelors to obtain double figures, while Atkinson, 17, and Little 19, were the top scores for the victors.

Secretary Brunnell also gives official notice of the release of Umpire Leach. The disputed Boston-Pittsburg games will be thrown out of the record and the teams will be allowed to play them off on Oct. 6, 7 and 8, after the championship season. The stock of Secretary Fitzgerald, of the Buffalo club, has been transferred to the Brotherhood, and Mr. Fitzgerald will retire.

THE WHEEL.

LAWRASON VS. OWENS.

To the Sporting Editor of the ADVERTISER: Sir,—In reply to Mr. Owens' refusal to accept my challenge as appeared in your paper of the 29th inst., I would say he either does not understand my challenge or he is trying to evade it, as he is well aware that he does not hold the championship of the city of London, for the Irvine medal was presented for the championship of the Forest City Bicycle Club as is engraved on the medal, "Championship F. C. B. C," and was not for an open race. Mr. Owens has been personally informed by myself that I intend leaving London in August, and in fixing his date Sept. 1 or after he knows I cannot possibly be here, but I will extend my time to the day on which he leaves on his holidays, viz., the 9th day of August. S. F. LAWRASON.

London, July 30.

OWENS TO LAWRASON.

To the Sporting Editor of the ADVERTISER: In reply to Mr. Lawrason's letter in this morning's issue I would deny absolutely having any knowledge of his intending going away in August. Mr. Lawrason has been entered in five road races in this city, in all of which I was also entered. Of these he has ridden in four, of which he won one and I won three, and he refused to ride the fifth. In the face of these facts I feel I am not called upon to ride against him any further. However, I am entered for the race for the McColl medal next week, which he is also eligible to enter for. I may also state that I am satisfied with the road championship of the F. C. B. C. (of which Mr. Lawrason is captain), as I have already won the same for this year. This closes all correspondence on my part. Yours truly, W. G. OWENS.

LAMB TO LAWRASON.

To the Sporting Editor of the ADVERTISER: Sir,—I see by this morning's ADVERTISER that Mr. S. F. Lawrason there states that he is challenging Mr. Owens for the championship of the city of London and not for the road championship of the F. C. B. C. If this is correct I would state that he has made a mistake in the party challenged, as I am now the holder of the championship of London, and intend to claim the same until defeated. Yours truly, JAS. LAMB.

THE OAR

Jacob G. Gaudaur, the oarsman, has deposited $225 to row Edward Hanlan at such time as may be mutually agreed upon at Lake Minnetonka for from $1,000 to $5,000 a side, on perfectly smooth water, the winner to take everything. Hanlan, it is said, has been making bluffs at Duluth, but refused to put up money. Gaudaur puts up his forfeit and says he means business, and if Hanlan wants to row now is his chance.

THE TURF.

The trotting mare Eva Wilkes, record 2:26½, has been sold for $2,500.

The managers of Dundee Park, near Paterson, N. J., offer $20,000 for a race between Sunol and Axtell next fall.

LIVELY TROTTERS AT CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, July 29.—Five thousand people attended the grand circuit races which opened here to-day. The weather was perfect and the track in splendid condition. In the first heat of the 2:21 class Veritas cut across the track at the first quarter and tried to take the pole. He collided with Poahantas Prince, running the latter against the fence. Poahantas Prince got away from his driver and run once and a half round the track. The horse was not injured, but the sulky was smashed. Veritas was distanced for foul driving. Poahantas Prince was badly winded and was drawn in the third heat. In the second heat of the race Alleta got beyond control of her driver and ran twice around the track. Summary:

In the district of Sheing Teh, Canton, there are various secret societies of young women banded for celibacy, known for example as the "All Pure Sisterhood" or the "Never-To-Be-Married Sisterhood." A member of one of them was on the verge of being compelled to break the rules of her society by marriage, and in order to prevent it the entire band, the girl included, went and drowned themselves.

For a year a draughtsman named Hazen, aged 42, with his wife and six children, had lived in Paris in great difficulty. Finally they resolved to commit suicide and take the children with them. They sent the latter out to buy charcoal, and with the windows closed Hazen lighted the stove and the whole family lay down on the floor to die, the mother clasping the youngest child in her arms. They were found two days afterward all dead but the mother. Upon her recovery she said that when asphyxiation began the eldest daughter began to cry, but lest she should excite the neighbors her father threw himself over her face, and they were found in that position.

The hog claims even the historically polite France for his own. At a discussion by the Town Council of Havre upon the regulations for city car lines one member complained that in these days men sitting in a car never thought of giving their places to women, even though the latter might have to stand outside on the platforms in the rain. He moved the adoption of a by-law empowering conductors to compel men seated in the interior to surrender their places to women outside. Several other councilors gallantly supported the motion, but the majority concluded that the temper of the age would not permit any such social revolution. The episode has excited considerable attention in Paris, where there is general mourning over the decadence of French manners.

BEAUTY AND BRAIN.

They Do Not Go Together, Says This Authority.

[London Spectator.]

The most beautiful black race in Africa, a tribe in Nyassaland, on whose looks even missionaries grow eloquent, who are really as perfect as bronze statues, are as ignorant as fishes, and, though they have discovered the use of fire, have never risen to the conception of clothes of any kind. The Otaheitan, when discovered, was as uncultured as the Papuan now is, yet the former approached as nearly to positive beauty as the latter does to positive deformity. The keenest race in Asia, and all who know them assert, the strongest in character, the Chinese, is decidedly the ugliest of mankind; while the Hindoo, if sufficiently fed, is, even when ignorant as an animal, almost invariably handsome.

The Circassians, who know nothing, and are rather stupid than exceptionally intelligent, are physically a faultless race, far more so than the Germans, who though the best trained people in the world, display a marked commonness of feature, as if the great sculptor Nature had used good clay, but taken no trouble about the modeling. Some of the very ablest among them belong to the flat-nosed, puffy-cheeked, loose-lipped variety.

The keenest race in the world, and probably the one most susceptible of culture, the Jew, presents few types of beauty, being usually at once hook-nosed and flabby-cheeked, though in physique, as in thought, that race occasionally throws out examples. The tamed Arabs of Egypt, who seem to possess poor brains, and, of course, have no education, are often extraordinarily handsome; while in 1860 the grandest head in Asia, a head which every artist copied as his ideal of Jove, belonged to an Arab horse dealer, who, outside his trade, knew nothing.

No modern man of culture would pretend, in mere perfectness of form, to rival the old Greek athletes, who, intellectually, were probably animals, or the Berserkars, who were for the most part only hard-drinking soldiers. The royal caste which has been cultivated for 1,000 years, seldom produces beautiful men, and still seldomer beautiful women; most princesses, though sometimes dignified, having been marked as to features by certain ordinaries often wanting in the poor, and especially the poor of certain districts, like Devon, in England, and Arles and Marseilles, in France. Devon is no better taught than Suffolk, but mark the difference in peasant forms. In the last century the ablest men in Europe were remarkable for a certain superfluity of flesh, of which Gibbons' face is the best known and most absurd example; and in our own time intellect, even hereditary intellect, is constantly found dissipated from good looks, and even from distinction, some of the ablest men being externally heavy and gross, and some of the ablest women marked by an indefiniteness of cheek and chin, as if they had been carved by the fingers in putty. No stranger ever saw Tennyson without turning round, but Browning would have passed unnoticed in any English or Austrian crowd.

The air of physical refinement, which is what continuous culture should give, is precisely the air which is often lacking among the cultivated, as it is also in many aristocratic families. Indeed, though caste must mean more or less hereditary culture, it is doubtful if it secures beauty. It does not in the royal houses, and in any regiment, though an officer or two will probably stand first, the proportion of splendid men will be found greater among the non-commissioned than the commissioned officers. Science can no more make a Circassian than a one-legged race, and the physical attributes, like the grace of God, are independent of thinking. If they were not, we should some day have a race of heroes indeed, stalking among lesser men, as Kingsley depicts his Goths stalking among the far more quick-witted and better-cultivated Alexandrians. An entire race like Alexander the Great, the man in whom, of all mankind, brain power and physique were united in their highest perfectness, would soon be more intolerable than the Venetian aristocracy whom Mr. Disraeli derided, denounced and worshiped.

The Petrolea Oil Market Booming—Closed $1 37.

Latest Financial News by Mail and Telegraph.

LONDON, July 28.—The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: "Improved weather has bettered the prospects of wheat, although the expectations of a crop over the average are good, the outlook being that it will be 5 per cent. less than the usual crop. Barley, oats and beans have suffered less than in 1889. In English wheat patent is at fancy rates; good samples of heavy white are quoted at 38s to 42s and red at 32s to 38s. The sales of English wheat during the week amounted to 27,855 quarters at 35s, against 15,746 quarters at 30s for the corresponding week of last year. The heavy imports of foreign wheat prevented an advance. The spring corn trade was firm. Barley advanced 3d. Oats were in small request; prices were against buyers. Maize was in large supply, yet a good inquiry caused an advance of 1d in northern markets and 3d in southern markets. Pulse is quiet. To-day flour was firm. Oats were held at 3d advance. Barley was firm for good inquiry; flat yellow was 6d dearer and round 3d dearer. To-day the English wheat trade was trivial; demand fair at an advance of 6d. Foreign was firm; South American advanced 6d.

Live Stock Markets.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, July 29.—The offerings were again small at the cow market to-day, only 30 cows, 15 calves and 5 small pigs being an offer. The attendance of buyers was also very small, and as there were only a few good cows on offer business was very slow. Up to a late hour only a few of the best milkers had changed hands. Prices ranged from $35 to $40, but the greater part of the offerings on the market could be had for $25 or less. The calves were bought in by butchers at prices ranging from $1 50 to $4 apiece.

BUFFALO.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 29.—Cattle—About 23 cars of stock left over from yesterday constituted the sale offerings; they were principally old cows and culls, and only a peddling trade was done; calves were slightly higher; very choice veals, $5.

Sheep and lambs—Offerings, 17 cars; mostly stock unsold from yesterday's offerings; market dull; tone weak; prices irregular; a few fresh sheep sold at $5, but bulk of offerings not worth over $4 60; no really good lambs here.

Hogs—Offerings, 12 cars; market more active; mediums, heavy and mixed, $4 05 to $4 10; light to prime Yorkers, $4 10 to $4 20; pigs, $4.

CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Hogs—Estimated receipts, 17,000; official yesterday, 26,327; shipments, 6,196; left over, about 3,000; light mixed, $3 80 to $4 05; mixed packing, $3 75 to $3 95; heavy to $4 05; shipping, $3 75 to $4; rough grades, $3 75 to $3 85. Cattle—Receipts 9,000, including 400 Texans. Market strong.

BRITISH LIVE STOCK TRADE.

EDINBURGH, July 19.—John Swan & Son's weekly report says: The supplies of home-fed fat cattle this week were quite as large in Edinburgh, but considerably shorter in Glasgow. At both places the demand without any increase in value, was steady and a clearance effected at the quotations. In Glasgow, on account of the large supplies of States cattle, which were of good quality, the sale of Canadians was more in favor of buyers. The recent unfavorable weather has had the effect of checking the demand for this class of stock, and on account of late arrivals part had to be left unsold. The English markets on the whole show a slight improvement, and a good many cattle adapted for the South met a fair trade here. Supplies of cattle from the States will be much lighter next week, while Canadians will be about the same. The supplies of fat sheep have been large, and trade throughout quiet at prices on an average is to 2s a head under last week, except for ewes, which as nearly as possible made previous rates. Lambs have been shown in much larger numbers, but the recent bad weather affected the quality of this class of stock, many of those on offer being better adapted for the store market and suffered an average fall of 2s a head. Calves, a large and good show, and nearly maintained previous rates. Pigs were numerous, but no change in values can be quoted. For store cattle the demand was exceedingly quiet, and sales difficult to effect. Store sheep shown in small numbers, and met a trade about the same as last week. Milch cows a very good show, and the better class made very high prices; secondary slow to sell. Top price of the best beef, 8s; secondary, 7s 3d to 7s 6d; top Canadian, 7s 6d to 7s 9d; secondary, 6s 9d to 7s; bulls and cows, 6s 3d to 6s 9d per stone. Best mutton, 8d to 8½d; heavy sheep, 7¾d per pound.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, July 29.—There were 55 loads in the Western cattle market to-day, 400 sheep and lambs, 50 hogs and 75 calves. The general market was easier, the quality of the stuff being rather inferior; very little really good flesh offered. Freights are a little higher and the English demand not so good, so that the export trade is a little easier. Exporters buy up both fat cattle and stockers and mixed in addition, allowing the people on the other side to make the distinction. From all reports there is ample room for both classes of animals in the old country.

For export stuff the general prices paid were $4 50 to 4 75 per cwt. Stockers sell at from $3 25 to $3 85. In butchers' cattle 4c per lb was paid for choice, and 3½c to 3¾c for good. There is a fair demand for back springers at prices from $35 to $50. There were about 25 head in to-day.

The number of sheep and lambs brought in was not up to the demand, and prices were sustained. One leading firm stated that they were quite prepared to pay 5c per lb for good stuff. Lambs sold at $3 50 to $4 25, according to weight and quality. There was a light run of small stuff. One dealer stated that he bought 110 lambs at $3 75, averaging about 80 lbs; 35 at $3 30, averaging about 65 lbs.

The price for calves was anywhere from $4 to $8; a sale reported was 37 head, averaging 65 lbs, at $6 50 each.

Hogs are much the same as on previous days, stores being quoted at $4 50 to $4 75 per cwt., and light fat at $5 to $5 25.

The Dairy Markets.

INGERSOLL.

INGERSOLL, July 29.—Eleven factories boarded 3,670 boxes. Market quiet, buyers standing off until late. Sales, 300 boxes colored at 8¼c; 1,200 boxes colored at 8¼c; 500 boxes white at 8¼c. Cheese boarded, mostly first half, and some factories offered 16th July to 20th.

The Rope Did It.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 29.—"Con." O'Brien, who attempted to commit suicide a few days ago by taking laudanum, but who was saved by the doctors, suicided in jail last night by hanging. The deceased was 66 years of age, and leaves a wife and seven children.

Train Attacked by Tramps.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 30.—A Lake Shore freight train was attacked by tramps Monday night near South Bend. Brakeman Chas. Miller was killed, but not until he had slain his assailant. Several trains have been attacked by tramps within the past few weeks, and some of the train men seriously injured.

Three Children Instantly Killed.

PATTERSON, N. J., July 30.—Five children, who had been blackberry picking, started last evening to cross the Erie Railroad bridge over the Passaic River. A train approached on the western track, and they stepped on the eastern track in the way of a fast passenger train. The engineer of the latter blew the whistle, but the children, paralyzed with fear, did not stir. The engineer dared not apply the brakes for fear the train would go through the bridge. In an instant the locomotive struck the little ones and hurled three of them upon the other track dead. Jennie Brewster, aged 13 years; Nellie Warren, aged 10, and Mattie Warren, her sister, aged 8, were killed; Jane Warren, aged 13, and their little brother, Willie, were badly hurt, but will recover. The boy was hurled into the river 50 feet below.

Saved from the Fir.

Crowds of people gather around the store of W. Y. Brunton & Son waiting for the doors to open, and no wonder; for although many of the goods are badly damaged by fire the majority of them are but slightly smoked and are being sold for next door to nothing. b

Accomplishing Their Mission.

It looks as though in a few more days the need for the dog-catchers will have passed away, for although there has been no end of complaint against their mode of procedure they have nevertheless succeeded in capturing a host of vagrant curs that a few weeks ago infested the public streets to the great annoyance and danger of pedestrians. Scores of ownerless canines have been scooped in and destroyed; but with one or two exceptions those put out of the way would baffle an expert to trace their relation to any distinct or desirable class of the canine race. A person can walk around now for hours without seeing a dog unornamented with the regulation muzzle, which denotes that it is somebody's darling.

A Slander Refuted.

In the correspondence of the Dufferin Post a week or so ago an aspersion was cast, no doubt unintentionally, on the character of Mr. Cranston, of Caledon East, by the statement that he was mixed up in a ticket selling fraud at the London Fair some years ago. The misstatement is corrected in a letter from Treasurer Graham, of the Provincial Exhibition, who says: "Mr. Cranston, with five or six others, was engaged by me (who was and am still the Treasurer of the Agricultural and Arts Association) to sell tickets for admission to grounds. These tickets were lifted by the gatekeepers. Some of the gatekeepers, instead of returning the tickets to the Ticket Committe, kept a portion back and sold them to a booth-keeper outside the grounds. I was informed of what was going on, and went the booth-keeper and captured about 100 tickets, and had him arrested and committed for trial. He was afterwards sent six months to jail. Mr. Cranston and my other ticket-sellers were subpœnaed as witnesses at the trial, and it was by their evidence the person was convicted. To say that Mr. Cranston had anything to do with or was in any way mixed up with the fraud would be saying what is not true."

A Landlord's Soliloquy.

[London Echo.]

"Hah! A letter from Jones, the grocer, asking me to renew his lease, on the ground that he has built up a business after great expenditure and years of work, and will be ruined if I don't allow him to remain where he is. Jones is an imperfectly informed person. He imagines I exist for him, whereas Jones, like all his neighbors—those living in the streets which belong to me, and those living in other streets as well, throughout this vast metropolis—all exist and toil and think for me. Ha! ha! ha! Just think of it; I own squares, and streets, and terraces, and draw a splendid and princely income from them. And I not only get my rents regularly paid, and see houses which were built on ground that I fortunately refused to sell and would only let—like my ancestors, wise men—on short leases, gradually falling into my hands, becoming my own, to be let at high and increasing rents, but I see all London toiling to make me richer and consequently more powerful and—happier. What a delightful thought it is!

"Not a merchant, who increases the wealth and trade of this great metropolis; not a workman, who adds to its industrial product; not an author, or writer, or scientific man, that adds to its reputation; not a builder, not a father of an increasing family, but puts gold into my pocket by augmenting the value of my land and houses. I toil not, neither do I spin. Why should I when all the world around is toiling and spinning for me? My gifts even—they are not great, for I invest all I can in real property, so that those who follow me may have even greater wealth and power than myself—can all be made to enhance my own position. If I beautify a street, or give a site upon which a handsome church or chapel can be built, or subscribe to imperial institutes or South Kensington improvements, do I not still benefit myself? Everything works for the best for me in this best of all possible worlds. The brains, sinews, energies, inventions of all mankind are mine in a peculiar sense. I not only profit by them as other people do, but they all tend to one end—the increasing value of my property.

"So that while the toilers and moilers think they are benefiting themselves, I am taking toll of every blow they strike and every work they do. Gradually this enables me to make stronger the golden chain—the strongest and perhaps—well, the cruelest—with which I and my fellow landlords and plutocrats bind society, even down to its lowest stratum; re-enforcing its links, lengthening its extent, increasing its repressive influence. For, after all, who can estimate the power of gold, in politics, in society, in religion, in administration—of gold when it consists of millions, and can be used, if need be, to hold down and fetter? Yes, Jones is an ill-instructed person if he imagines I have any part or lot with him. He may be ruined, but even then he will benefit me. I cannot attend to his petition, for weakness must never be the characteristic of one for whom the world turns round."

DIANA WENTWORTH.

He laughed outright, but persisted in his catechism.

"But tell me seriously; I have a reason for asking, and want very much to have your opinion. What advantage do you think a man gets from being born of a stock which has always stood well in the world."

"Show me first your penny," she answered. "That is, tell me first why you want to know what I think."

"No," he said immovably. "I won't tell you now; but I promise to tell you some time. Will you trust me till I think a fit time has come?"

"Oh, yes," was her carelessly given answer. "Why talk so long about nothing? let's get to our points. I do think a man, and a woman, too, is better for being born of good stock, as you call it. I think it tells. It must help people at difficult points in their lives to remember that if they do wrong they will disgrace not only themselves, but those who went before, and those who come after."

"That's all theory. When you come to plain fact you find that people think only of themselves and the present; not of what, in my part of the country, we call their forefolders, or their descendants at all. Is crime confined to people without ancestry? I suppose you never heard of kings and dukes or any such transcendent beings breaking laws, did you?"

"Yes, plenty of them," reddening under his tone; "but there will be exceptions to every rule, I don't see that they destroy the principle."

"Not now, perhaps," he said more gently; "but I think you will see it when you are older and have seen more of life—I think you will then."

"Why do you think so?" she asked, with some curiosity.

"Because people who think so are narrow and selfish, and incapable of all true greatness, and I don't believe you are like thrt."

She was annoyed to feel that she was coloring under his fixed gaze, and that she could find no reply to make to him.

"So much for birth," he went on; "as for education—some of the most dastardly men I have known had been educated at our great public schools and had been at the universities. The most cowardly thing I ever knew done was done by a man belonging to one of the oldest families in England. Manners, too, are only skin deep; and are often more the result of habitual intercourse with women than the outcome of genuine tenderness and reverence for them. So you see only mind remains; and the longer you live, the more clearly you will see that the only aristocracy is of the mind, the intellect and the heart, no matter what the birth and education have been. And every man who is a gentleman by nature will have gentle manners, too."

He was rather amazed at himself when he had finished speaking. He had not intended to hold forth like this; but something in Diana's face and attitude, as she listened, had seemed to draw the words from him. The arguments he used, too, were, in his estimation, so self-evident, he had used them because she was clearly such a novice—such a child in her views on these matters. He had spoken simply, that she might easily understand him.

She was silent for a moment, and before she spoke he went on—

"I suppose you have heard such expressions as 'a born gentleman,' 'a natural gentleman,' used of workingmen? You see you have to agree with me at last," he said, when she had answered in the affirmative.

"But," she persisted, although she spoke with a little shyness which became her very well, "we are not considering merely the question of gentlehood. Minna is going to marry this man, and however much a workingman might be a gentleman, one could not marry him."

"Why not?"

"Oh!"—looking at him with a face full of laughter, as though the idea he had suggested was too ridiculous—"one could not—it would be impossible."

"Not at all. See, the prophet's mantle has fallen upon me, and I am going to foretell what might happen. You yourself, Miss Wentworth, would marry a workingman if you thought it desirable."

"Oh, no. In what way am I fitted for life in a cottage?"

He looked at her from head to foot before he answered.

"The workingman that aspired to marry you would not be content to live in a cottage."

"In what way would he aspire, if I am no higher than he?"

"Because, in whatever position you had been born, you would have been a lady, and a lady must always be aspired to."

His face looked very pleasant as he said this. He was smiling at the quick way in which she had taken him up; he was smiling at herself, and yet he spoke earnestly, from his reverence for her.

She met his eyes, then turned away her head that she might think of what had been said. All the time she stood thus, with her face turned aside, John's eye was fixed upon her and she was keenly conscious that he was looking at her. At length he broke the silence by saying,

"You told me once, Miss Wentworth, that there are peculiarities in your relations with your family, and you said you would explain them to me, will you tell it to me now."

"How? Why?" she asked rather puzzled.

"What do you want to know?"

"What induced you to come out to such a remote corner of the world as this?"

"How can the world have corners if it is round?" she asked, and then went on, "Was it a very extraordinary thing to do?"

"It seems so to me knowing the place as well as I do."

"But I did not know the place at all. I came because it was quite strange, and I was tired of everything I knew."

A few more questions from John, and he was in possession of the whole story, with the exception of that part relating to Tom Sherlock. Either she was in a very communicative mood or John was a very sympathetic listener; at any rate he had the power of drawing the story from her. He listened without speaking, and then said,

"I am glad you did not go; you were right not to go. I sympathize with you entirely."

"I thought you would," she said showing a confidence in his sympathy and understanding which he had noticed before.

"And yet these people are perfect strangers to you; possibly if you knew them you might like them."

"Oh, no that is quite impossible. There are four of them—two men and two girls—but I have never seen them."

"Perhaps you will make their acquaintance some time."

"I intend to. I know I am quite different from what they think, and I should like them to know how mistaken they are."

It was the sentiment of a very youthful mind, and John smiled as she spoke.

"Your mother will probably set all that right."

"Oh, no; her being there will make very little difference."

He was silent. He knew there were cases of complete want of sympathy between parents and their children. Here was one before his eyes, and he found it very interesting. There was still one test to which he wished to put her; and, suddenly changing his tone, he said,

"Now I understand your reluctance to link your lot with a workingman, let him be never so chivalrous. It would be against all your family traditions, and you say such thing have weight with you. Your people are evidently the great people of the place."

She colored, and straightened her figure a little. She had been leaning against the earthen wall, plucking daisies and grass and heaping them up or throwing them down into the water.

"I believe they are," she said, with dignity; "but I do not know why you draw attention to it; I have never said such a thing even to myself."

"There is something suprising in that. I should imagine you are very tender with yourself."

Keep Men Guessing.

A quiet young fellow emerged from one of our suburban hotels the other day and began poking in the sand, which is uncommonly thick just there, with his cane. Of course, a bystander saw him, and asked what he was about.

"I'm looking for a five-dollar gold piece," was the answer.

The questioner was interested, and procuring a long stick, fell to digging also.

A second man did likewise, and others followed suit, till at least 40 individuals had joined in the search. Umbrellas and canes and boot toes were brought into requisition, and stirred up the dust to such an extent that the air resounded with a chorus of sneezes, while the policeman nearly went distracted in his fruitless endeavors to disperse the crowd.

Finally some one remembered to ask the quite young fellow how he happened to lose the coin.

"Oh, I didn't lose any," he replied calmly, "I just thought I might find one if I looked long enough, that's all."

Then each separate member of the party of volunteer searchers went silently away and kicked himself, and the quiet young fellow sat down and smiled till he was red.

School Estimates.

A meeting of No. 2 Committee of the Board of Education was held last night to prepare the estimates of the year. Trustees Turner (chairman), Childs, Brady, Dewar, City Engineer Tracy and Secretary Abbott were present. The amounts required by the schools were taken up separately, and the total estimated at $12,499. Of this amount, $3,000 goes goes to Askin street school for repairs and improvements and $2,000 to Maple avenue school. The estimates will be presented to the Board at a special meeting called for to-morrow evening.

The City's Poor.

"It is surprising," said a civic official to an ADVERTISER reporter this morning, "the amount of wretchedness there is in the city all the year round. When nature is making it as easy as possible for the people in straightened circumstances their perversity shows itself and causes no end of distress."

"Well, yes; I was just thinking of a case that came before my attention yesterday, when a woman named Mrs. Summers came here for help. Last December she had a happy home, her husband was a good tradesman and had plenty of work, and everything went along smoothly until about the close of the year, when the man left to look for work in the United States. Since that time she has received but few remittances from him, and the family, which includes three children, have been reduced to want. To make matters worse the wife's health began to fail her, and she is now down with consumption. She has asked for a little help on one or two occasions, but preferred to struggle on heroically instead of soliciting assistance, and takes in what sewing and other light work she is able to do to make both ends meet. She cannot keep at that very long, however, and then her case will be even more hopeless." Just then another applicant for city help put in her appearance and the conversation dropped.

The Usual Drunks.

Magistrate Parke transacted his business in less than fifteen minutes this morning. Peter Madden, a good-natured little Irishman, who has a pension from the British Government, admitted taking a few glasses of beer while working at a brewery yesterday. He promised to sign the pledge for a year before Father Tiernan and was allowed to go.

Mrs. Crystlie appeared on the same charge and tearfully acknowledged her shortcomings. She was also allowed her liberty.

James Ryan, another pensioner, stood up in the docket to answer for his alcoholic exuberance yesterday. He denied being drunk, although Chief Williams testified that both he and his better half were under the influence of liquor, while their children were sent begging on the streets in order to procure whisky for the parents. Mrs. Ryan, who was present, indignantly denied this. The Magistrate punished the prisoner $5 or twenty days, and severely reprimanded his wife, who subsequently went home to get the money necessary for the release of her spouse.

The Coming Great Fair.

One of the institutions of this Province that has made rapid advancement of late years and is bound to go ahead is the Western Fair held at London. We have attended this fair occasionally of late years with a good deal of interest and a great deal of pleasure. While it does not reach the magnitude of the Toronto Industrial, there is more of the true agricultural and industrial spirit and essence about it, and less of the hippodrome. London is the center of the finest agricultural section in America; its citizens are a people of cultivated tastes and uncommon enterprise, and seem to have a proper appreciation of the true and vital interests that surround them. The vitality of the great fertile section that surrounds the Forest City is agriculture, and her people are not too big to recognize it. Let the people of London continue to make the agricultural and industrial feature of their exhibition the chief aim, and the side show attractions of secondary consideration, and their Western Fair, now more than ever since the Provincial has been done away with, is bound to be a success and a credit, not only to the city, but to the Province. The Provincial Fair had lived its time, but the idea, aim and purpose which it embraced should be, as far as possible, perpetuated, and London is the fittest place to take up and fulfill the mission.—[Mitchell Recorder.

They Said Good-Bye.

Last evening the Y. M. C. A. tendered a farewell reception to the retiring assistant secretary, Mr. Edwin St. Clair De Lacey, who purposes leaving in a few days for England. The beautiful grounds of Mr. John Green were chosen as the place for saying good-bye, and thither about 200 persons, members of the association and the ladies affiliated with them in their Christian work, assembled and spent a pleasant evening, the delight of a garden party being added to the evening's programme. The Ladies' Auxiliary took charge of the garden party's interests and proved themselves excellent saleswomen, those in charge of the several tables being: Mesdames R. J. C. Dawson, J. D. Anderson, C. R. Sayer, Misses Anderson, Dawson, Gunn, Beta Green, Annie Dawson, Hattie Powell, Katie Powell, Ruth Bartram and Bertha Minton. As the hands of the clock worked their way around to the hour of 10, Mr. Melville Spencer called the promenaders to order in the middle of the lawn and asked Secretary Sayer to read the farewell address from the Board of Directors to Mr. De Lacey, which spoke in the warmest terms of that gentleman, and expressed the hope that in his new sphere of life he might find prosperity and happiness. Mr. Thomas McCormick then handed Mr. De Lacey a handsome gold watch and chain, which bore the following sentence suitably engraved on the case: "Presented to Edwin St. Clair De Lacy, as a mark of esteem, from his fellow-workers in the Young Men's Christian Association of London, Ont., July 29, 1890." The Seventh Band was in attendance, and hereupon struck up the air, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," after which Mr. De Lacey endeavored to express his thanks, but after a few ineffectual attempts he asked to be excused as he was so overcome he could find no words in which to frame his feelings. Short speeches by Mr. McCormick and Rev. Mr. Porter brought the proceedings to a close.
