Gist of Caprivi's Speech. London, Jan. 18.—The Berlin correspondent of the standard says of Count spondent of the standard says of Count Von Caprivi's great speech before the commission on the Aemy Bill: "The gist of it was that the French would form several armies on the outbreak of the next war, and these armies would advance from different points. The best defense, he said, would be the offensive. If we were victorious the whole French army would fall back on Paris and rely upon its fortresses. We would be compelled to invest, and would need for the purpose three divisions. The barring forts are a skillful innovation and we would have to capture some of them. This we would hope to do within a week. For this purpose we would need siege artillery. We should have to cross Mequis in full view of the enemy. Paris and her forts have a circumference of eighteen miles. Eighteen army corps would be needed to encrede the city, and as such are investure would be out of the question. Paris would have to be taken by a front attack. This also would require large numbers of troops."

The Khedive to-day informed Lord Cromer, the British Minister, that he would appoint Riaz Pasha, president of the Council of Ministers. Riaz is known to be friendly to British interests. Lord Cromer assented to the appointment and secured from the Khedive an understanding that hereafter he would make no alteration in the Ministry without consulting Great Britain.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day, M. Develle, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in answer to a query, said the Khedive was acting within his rights when he changed the chief of his Cabinet. The French Government, with the greatest calmess, was inquiring into the matter. M. Develle further said that nothing affecting the independence of Egypt could be a matter of indifference to France, (Cries of "Hear, hear.") M. Rutherford Birchard Hayes, nineteenth President of the United States, was born in Delaware, O., on Oct. 24, 1822. He was graduated from Kenyen College in Gambier, O., and entered the law school at Harvard University. He was admitted to practice in 1845. He joined the Republican party as soon as it was organized. At the outbresk of the war he was one of the first to volunteer, and was made a major in the Twenty-third Ohio volunteers. While Gen. Hayes was in the field in August, 1864, he was nominated for Congress. He refused to leave the front to conduct his campaign, but was elected by 2,400 majority. He was re-elected in 1866. In June, 1867, he was nominated by the Republicans for Governor of Ohio, and was elected after an animated contest. In 1869 he was re-elected Governor against George H. Pendleton, In 1875 the Republican State Convention a third time nominated him for the Governorship and he was elected by 5,500 majority. He was nominated for the Presidency by the Republicans in 1876, after a long contest, in which James G. Blaine was the leading candidate. This election was disputed and an electoral commission, composed of five Senators, five representatives and five judges of the Supreme Court, decided that he had a majority of one electoral vote over Samuel J. Tilden, and he was inaugurated.

Gen. Hayes started from Cleveland for his home in Fremont Saturday afternoon. At the Union Depot, upon entering the car, he was seized with violent pains in the cheat, which lasted after his return home. He was treated for angina pectoris, but while relieved of distress, the heart never recovered its vigor, and life was suddenly terminated at 11 o'clock by paralysis of the heart. His last words to his family physician, Dr. Hilbest, were: "I know that I am going where Lucy is." The words, referring to his deceased wife, were spoken distinctly and his face bore a happy smile.

Bland (sitting in his comfortable apartment)—How I pity the poor a night like this.

Bluff—Then, why don't you put on your coat and go out and see if you cannot render assistance to some of them?

Bland—Ah! then I shouldn't be so comfortable as I am now, and might forget the fortable as I am now, and might forget the poor and begin to pity myself. That would be selfish, you know.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

EAST LAMETON.

WYOMING, Ont., Jan. 18.—The meeting of the East Lambton Farmers' Institute held here yesterday was a most successful one from every point of view. The attendance was large, many driving long distances to participate. The various sessions were devoted to addresses upon practical subjects by Prof. Shuttleworth, D. McCrae and W. L. Carlyle, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; H. J. Pettypiece, of the Forest Free Press, and others. Today's meeting was rather abruptly and unexpectedly concluded, the reason being given that the principal speakers had engagements elsewhere.

EAST ELGIN.

AYLMER, Jan. 18.—One of the best attended and most profitable meetings of the East Elgin Farmers' Institute yet held took place at the city hall here on Monday and Tuesday. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, John Scott; vice-president, R. H. Lindsay; secretary-treasurer, J. C. Donce; directors, (Yarmouth) Thos Roberst (Granville) Haight and Geo. Pineo. (Malahide) Richard Locker, Frances Leeson and H. Dalton, (Bayham) W. E. Ford, J. J. Phillips and Freeman Chute, (South Dorchester) A. C. Graham and L. M. Brown; delegates to Central Institute, Toronto, John Scott and J. C. Dance. Hon. Chas. Drury gave a practical address on tile draining, which was well received, followed with a well-prepared paper on hog raising. On the second day Hon. Chas. Drury gave an address on feeding cattle for the English market. Then came addresses by Mr. Peacock on weeds. S. J. Pettit, of South Dorchester, spoke in the interests of the Beekeepers' Association. J. A. Broderick, of St. Catharines, took for his subject the position of the farmers and fruit growers in Ontario, showing how much better it might be made. Thomas Mason read a paper on dairying and Mr. Drury, in closing the meeting, took as his subject the defects in farming, and handled it in a manner that pleased and instructed those present.

Forty-Second Annual Meeting of St. Andrew's Church.

Flourishing Condition of Affairs-The Annual Report-Recommendations Adopted-Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the mother church of London Presbyterianism—St. Andrew's —was held last evening in the basement, with a goodly representation of members present. As usual the temporalities of this large, prosperous and influential congregation were found to be in a sound and progressive condition. The pastor, Rev. J. A. Murray, opened with prayer and Scripture. Mr. H. Rowland, chairman of the board, then took the chair, and the minutes of the last meeting, as read by the secretary-treasurer, Mr. Alex. McIntosh, were adopted.

Alex. McIntosh, were adopted.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The 42nd annual report was submitted by the board. Appended is a summary:

The receipts through the envelope system amounted to $5,003 24, and the open collections to $615 18, an average per Sunday of $108. Compared with last year it shows a total increase of $55 42 in the envelopes, and of $67 74 in the open collections.

shows a total increase of $58 42 in the envelopes, and of $67.74 in the open collections.

Your board earnestly request that more of the members and adherents of the congregation would adopt the envelope system, and that some of those so contributing would, if possible, increase their contributions.

As there are six managers to be elected to fill the places of those retiring, the board recommends that a nominsting committee be appointed. The six managers whose term now expires are Messrs. R. A. Gray, R. A. Little, J. B. Laidlaw, J. A. Cairnoross, Geo. A. Somerville, and H. M. Rowland, all of whom are eligible for re-election.

During the year all necessary repairs have been made to the church and the manse, which are now in good condition. A new picket fence has been placed in front of the eemstery at a cost of $75. The monuments have been properly adjusted, and the grounds well kept. But in consequence of the proximity of the cemetery to the city limits and the probability of its being brought within the corporation, persons requiring lots have gone to lether cemetries, so that the revenue derived from it is very small in comparison with the year-ly expense of keeping it in order.

The carpet in the church, which has been in use for nearly eleven years, will soon have to be replaced by a new one, and it is thought that the congregation should devise some means of meeting this expenditure without encroaching upon the ordinary revenue.

devise some means of meeting this expenditure without encroaching upon the ordinary revenue.

The board respectfully recommends:

1. That the report of the organ commit tee as published in the last annual report be adopted, and that the thanks of the congregation be hereby tendered to the committee for its diligence, and that the committee for expensibility therewith.

2. That the congregation grant our pastor a vacation of a month or six weeks each year, thus enabling the session to take steps as early as possible to provide suitable supply during his absence.

3. As it is very desirable that our choir be maintained in its present state of efficiency, and as a few of the members of the congregation have been liberally contributing to a fund for that purpose during the last two years, and, as it is thought unfair that those members should have to bear the whole burden, that the board be authorized to use a sum not exceeding $250 for choir purposes if required.

All contributions received by envelopes for congregational purposes are acknowledged quarterly, and the contributions for the schemes of the church, by red envelopes, are acknowledged in the report of the Missionary Association.

The thanks of the congregation are due, and hereby tendered to the choir, the ushers, the flower committee of the Christian Endeavor Society and the auditors for their faithful services during the year.

"There is nothing that can give me greater pleasure," said Bro. Gillett, "than to say a good word for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I tell you they saved the lodge a good deal of money in Bro. We asked the lodge physician, Dr. Pingel, to examine him so that we would know whether he was going to get better or not. The doctor informed us that he was incurable, and gave us a certificate to that effect."

THE Toronto Week propounds some most timely questions to believers in trade restriction. Says our contemporary, in noticing some absurd contentions by Mr.

AGREEMENT.

There has been considerable uneasiness in the city within the past day or two because of the circulation of a report to the effect that an attempt would be made to break the new lease of the London and Port Stanley Railway.

The agreement, it will be remembered, was entered into by the City Council unanimously, and it was conceded on all hands that though not so liberal as it might have been, it was still most satisfactory. Indeed, the terms agreed to by the Cleveland men are much better than those offered by any other tenderer, and certainly as liberal as level-headed business men could negotiate. This was so self-evident in the recent munioipal elections that no candidate for public office raised a question as to the bargain. The only criticism indulged in was an attempt to make believe that the agreement was so good that it must be bogue. Every citizen knows that there was no foundation for this assumption, and the City Council, after much earnest negotia-ion, completed the deal. Now we are told that an attempt will be nade to upset it because it is not so favorable to the city as it might be. We all snow that it could be made more liberal, but it takes two to make a bargain, and it s impossible for one of the contracting parties to have everything its own way. If the city had been in the position to say, "Those are our terms; take the lease or go without it," we can easily understand the opposition of some men, but the taxpayers ow that London is not in that condition, as they know, if they have studied the agreement arrived at, that ex-Ald. Jeffrey is correct when, as a shrewd business ma having a large stake in this city, he says that the benefits to be derived from the implementing of the lease would be incalculable.

As to the criticisms regarding the $25,000 forfeit, it really amounts to little. The bargain cannot be completed till the agreement is signed and ready for delivery to the syndicate, and with the knowledge that the manager of the Molsons Bank in this city stands prepared to pay to the treasurer of London the $25,000 w covered by a deposit certificate so soon as the bank is handed the lease, properly executed, the taxpayers can rest easy on the score of security. The Molsons Bank promissory note is good enough security for any business man, as it is for any banker, and as it was for the City Council when it unanimously agreed to have the noney so placed. Let the lease be properly executed and taken to the Molsons Bank, and the money will be handed over in the

AN EXCITING SESSION.

The session of the British Parliament, which opens early in February, promises to be one of the liveliest on record. A cable correspondent has learned that the Home Rule Bill is certain to be introduced at the earliest possible moment, and there is now no doubt that on the plea of gaining adequate time for the consideration of the bill, the second reading will be postponed long enough to enable the Government to bring forward in the interval the other measures of their programme. These measures relate to social legislation, and it is intended that they shall be passed by the House of Commons, and sent up to the House of Lords in advance of the measure dealing with the local affairs of Ireland. As this would compel the leader of the Opposition and his friends to pass upon these special measures before they had a chance to discuss the Home Rule Bill, and chance to discuss the Home Rule Bill, and for that matter, throw it out, as Lord Salisbury has promised, it is expected that the most strenuous endeavors will be made by the Conservative managers to prevent the advancement of the legislation. The bills will doubtless be opposed with all the skill and vehemence at the command of the Opposition, and we would not be surprised to find the Conservatives treated to frequent doses of similar medicine to that which they admind the skill and the conservatives treated to frequent doses of similar medicine to that which they admind not have known our own was the best." similar medicine to that which they admin istered to their opponents in the last Parliament. Mr. Gladstone will not be able to sit out the long debates, and it is believed that Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt the fact that "decreased taxation and increased markets" is a better policy than "taxing the many for the benefit of the structionists, as in all probability he will, the result will be a period abounding in scenes as exciting as modern times have known. What will be the outcome of

SUBSTITUTE FOR BANK NOTES. If it were not that they are money, how many people would care to handle the greasy, filthy, repulsive bank notes that are too often kept in circulation till they begin to fall apart? The question is about to occupy the attention of the United States Congress, Representative Outhwaite, of Ohio, having introduced a bill to provide for the frequent redemption of National Bank and Treasury notes and their exchange at the Government expense noticing some absurd contentions by Mr. Foster:

"It cannot escape notice, too, that the growth in commerce, on which the Minister of Finance especially dwelt, has taken place mainly in connection with the British market—a market which has always been open, and which has not been made more open, and which has not been made more open, and which has not been made more coessible by any act or policy of the Canadian Government. Would, or would not, the development of our trade with Great Britain, which no one proposes to lose or disparage, be more rapid but for the obstacles we put in its way by our tariff," Would or would not the obtaining of better trade relations with the United States foster a profitable commerce with this country in a class of commedities which cannot be sent to or procured from Great Britain? These and a dozon similar questions arise and confront us at once, when we attempt to draw satisfaction from Mr. Foster's statistics. And then, what about our inability to keep our young men from crossing the border by tens of thousands as soon as they reach manhood? Has the Government's trade policy hindered or stimulated this one-sided and most undesirable. for new notes. Mr. Outhwaite rightly

> A MAD POLICY. "What a mad policy it is," said Mr.

Mulock, M. P., to his North York constituents the other day, "to be pouring out the people's money in expensive efforts to attract immigrants to our country and at the same time to maintain a selfish tariff policy which drives numbers away from us." Of a truth. According to Dominion Government returns, several million dollars were spent on immigration in the years between 1881 and 1891. The taxpayers were informed that by this expenditure over 900,000 old world people had been it duced to come to Canada. The time for stock taking arrived. The census returns were compiled. It was found that in ten years the population of Canada had increased but 520,000, not sufficient to account for the natural increase. Where then went the 900,000 new comers, or an equal number of Canadians? It is a disgraceful result of the misgovernment of this mag-nificent country, with undeveloped resources awaiting development on every hand. And we are told by Sir John Thompson that the same old policy with

Missionary Addresses in Victoria Hall by Rev. Frank Newton, Hon. Miss Sugden, and Rev. Canon Dumoulin-Urgent Pleas for Sympathy in the Urgent Pleas for Sympathy in the Work.

The general missionary meeting under the auspices of the W. A. M. A. of Huron Diocese, was held last evening in Victoria Hall, which was crowded to the doors. On the platform were Bishop Baldwin, Dean Innes, Canons Davis, Richardson, Newman (Toronto), Rev. Messrs. Softley, Newton (Strathroy), W. T. Hill and Sage.

Bishop Baldwin, who officiated as chairman, stated, after devotional exercises, that this was always the most largely attended of all the meetings of women's missions. He added that the programme provided was such as would amply repay his hearers for their presence.

Rev. Frank Newton, of Strathroy, was the first speaker. He referred to the noble efforts of the missionaries—solf-sacrificing men and women—who left their homes for foreign lands for the uplifting and saving of the heathen. Referring to the so-called misrepresentation of funds, the speaker showed that every dollar was properly spent in the grand work—that it cost from 5 to 7½ cents on the dollar to collect manage and forward. God is blessing the work of missions in India, China, Africa and the isles of the sea, and in response to the Saviour's command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," we must either go ourselves or send.

Hon. Miss Sugden then addressed the creature," we must either go ourselves or send.

Hon. Miss Sugden then addressed the assemblage, referring to the work of the missionaries in India. Vivid scenes of the awful life of woman in that country were given, as well as the wretchedness of child widowhood. There, daughters are cursed by fathers. The speaker's experience was, however, that the unhappy women of that far-off land were ready to hear the gospel; their faces light up when they hear of Christ. On one cocasion fifteen Brahmin priests called on her to learn of Christ and his kingdom, and they remarked that her words must be true because told so gently and kindly by a woman. The Christian population there is rapidly increasing, yet only one woman in 800 is being educated. Christian baptism, she said, was death to a Hindoe. Husbands would rather see their wives and daughters dead than confess Christ. Light was dawning, however.

Miss Ematinger sang a hymn in an effective manner.

Canon Dumoulin, of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, remarked that when hearing Miss Sugden's address; he thought the world, after all, was a small place. Many years ago, in Dublin, he remembered hearing Sir Edward Sugden—afterward Lord St. Leonard, Lord Chancellor of Ireland—and to-night he had the great pleasure of listening to words from his daughter. (Applause.) It afforded the speaker much gratification in the announcement that our young women are as bright in their matriculation as young men—in fact, said he, some members of the New York bar are women. Some of the best reporters in America are women, while many important clerkiships are as ably filled by them as by men. But in social life women are the great leaders. The church often engages in work of doubt, but no possible doubt can exist in the most blessed work of missions. Christ did not leave the world until the message had been given—"Go ye into all the world." He urged his hearers never to lose confidence in the missionary cause, but ever to have patience, as in God's good time the light was taken up in conclusion.

Final Meeting of the School Board.

Chairman Dewar's Comprehensive Valedictory Address.

Resignation of Miss M. A. Watt—New Teachers and Transfers—Votes of Thanks to Retiring Members and Chairman.

The Board of Education of 1892 held its final session last evening. Mr. J. S. Dewar, chairman, spoke at some length on the business of the year, "An effort was made by the board" he said, "during the summer, and by many prominent chizens, to secure the establishment of a western wormal school in London. An influential deputation visited Toronto for that purpose, and had an interview with the members of the year, and the window of such and an interview with the members of the concurrence of the City Council, to secure the necessary land upon which to be districted by the consideration. In that position the question rest. It may be said, in extent at Donder's claim materially. Since the necessary land upon which to secure the necessary land upon which to be districted by the consideration. It have the light school is politically the necessary land upon which to secure the n

He referred to the almost total destruction by fire of the Talbot street school, which occurred on March 21. Continuing, he said:

"Early in the year the attention of the board was called to the urgent need of additional accommodation for the primary divisions in certain sections of the city; tand also to the necessity existing, if the present high status of the Collegiate Institution and active committee was Lamed to report on the advisability of meeting these requirements, and subsequently, after full discussion, it was decided to increase the Talbot street school by two rooms, the Princess avenue school by four, the Collegiate Institute by an addition which would suffice for the next ten years, and also to erect in the fifth and sixth wards two small buildings, which would act as feeders to the graded schools in both districts. Debentures to the extent of $26,000 for public school purposes and $20,000 for buildings, which were provided by the City Council, on a requisition from this board, and early in the new year it is confidently anticipated the new buildings now in progress will be occupied, and the 'long-felt want' supplied. The debentures covering the necessary outlay for such buildings will run for 30 years. By this means the cost of these improvements will not bear heavily upon the taxpayer of the present day.

"The popular demand for kindergarten schools prompted the board to institute classes during the year at Queen's avenue and Collowne street, in the fourth ward, an afternoon class at Askin street, in the sixth ward, and to sanction the erection of a new building on Rectory street for the same purpose in the fifth ward. The requirements of the different sections of the children pass through all the grades of the school should be the most efficient; yet in the past, "The business methods of the board have undergone a marked improvement during the year, and the members generally have seemingly become imbued with the idea that a public office is a public trust.' The appointment of an audit committee was sanctioned by the board in the month of November, and if its recommendations and suggestions are carried out in the spirit which promoted its appointment, the results cannot be otherwise than beneficial to all who have business transactions with the suggestions are carried out in the spirit which promoted its appointment, the results cannot be otherwise than beneficial to all who have business transactions with the Board of Education in the future.

"Citizens generally cannot fail in being interested in the sanitary and healthful conditions of the city schools. The board has had under consideration in the latter part of the year various systems of heating and ventilation, and the question which was the best, from every standpoint, proved one of the most perplexing problems to solve. The aim of the members was to secure the most perplexing problems to sever the most perplexing problems to sever the most perplexing not predent of local or other considerations."

I Mr. Dewar read reports from the principals of all city schools heated by furnaces, and all expressed general satisfaction regarding the heating and ventilation of their schools during the recent cold snap.

"Before closing this review, your board desire to testify thus publicly their cordial appreciation of the zealous and efficient services of Inspector Carson and the staff of public school teachers—all of whom seem to be imbued with the desire to execute the important duties expected of them with assiduity, conscientiousness and a thorough knowledge of the responsibility attached thereto," said Mr. Dewar in conclusion.

Mr. Dewar's report was received and ordered to be printed in the minutes. Five hundred copies will be printed.

Annual Meeting Held in Mount ElginElection of Officers.

Ingersoll, Jan. 18.—The annual meeting of the South Oxford Reform Association was held in Gould's Hall, Mount Elgin, yesterday. President W. S. Ferguson called the meeting to order, and after regular routine the election of officers took place, resulting as follows: Dr. Dixon, of ingersoll, president; James Williams, vice-president; G. W. Hare, secretary-treasurer; auditors, McFarlane and Schell, The vice-presidents for the different divisions of the riding oame next: North Norwich—The officers appointed last year were re-elected. West Oxford—The name of Peter Meek was substituted for that of J. B. Gallewsy, deceased. Dereham—Mr. Tuttle's name was substituted for that of the vice-president, Mr. Williams. Ingersicil—Re-elected. Tileonburg—Re-elected. Norwich village—J. D. Hogarth substituted for Dr. Francis, deceased.

Dr. McKay, M.P.P., the Liberal whip, was called upon to address the meeting. He said their success in the south riding of Oxford was due to their perfect organization, and they should not relax their vijilance. He thought the purpose of the Toronto convention was to state their future policy and arrange bester organization. Their prospects were very cheering for the party at the next federal elections. He referred to the great turn-over wave at the recent political election in the United States, and was sure that the next election would give a much larger majority than the purchased majority of the Tories.

The following resolution was unanimously carried: "That we, the members of the Reform Association of South Oxford, place on record our unbounded confidence in the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier and our loyal Opposition at Ottawa; and we further express our confidence in or member, Sir R. J. Cartwright, for the good work he has done in that direction. —A very happy event took place at the Methodist parsonage at Dundas, being the marriage of Miss Ellen Isabella Kay, eldest daughter of Rev. J. Kay, pastor of the Methodist church, there, and supreme leader C. O. H. C., formerly of this city, to James T. Ewart, commercial representative, now of Kansas City, formerly of Thorold, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Kay, father of the bride, assisted by Rev. J. R. Gundy, of this city, uncle of the bride. The bride was supported by her sister, Miss E. A. Kay, and the groom by James Manson, of Kansas City, Mo. The contracting parties are very popular. Congratulatory telegrams poured in from Ontario and the Western States. The several presents were dainty and expensive. The happy couple left on the 7:35 train, Grand Trunk, for an extended trip through the Eastern States, and will reside, on their return, in Kansas City, Mo.

Resclution of Condolence.

At a meeting of the Toronto Human Society held this afternoon, the following resolution was adopted and placed on the minutes: "Resolved—That the officers of the Toronto Humane Society, at this their first meeting since the lamented death of Mr. Charles Hutchinson, of London, crown attorney for the county of Middlesex, desire to express their sorrow at his decease, and their deep sympathy with his widow and bereaved family. In his vigorous opposition to the questionable practice of deiorning cattle he made many enemies, but we, who were with him in part and spirit, 'love him for the enemies he had made,' and will always hold his memory dear as one who with splendid moral courage waged war upon a practice that he conscientiously believed was fraught with much unnecessary suffering to dumb animals. That his noble example may lead others to be likewise valiant in the defense of the lower creation is our carnest hope, and in any case we rejoice to believe that the name of Charles Hutchinson will always be remembered as that of one who was true to principle and who sought by his life to make this world brighter and better."

It Was Accepted Unanimously by the City Council.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Reterring to the remarks of Mayor Essery in yours of yesterday, I beg to state that my former letter supplies proof sufficient to convince any reasonable person that security as good as cash was put up. At the meeting of the City Council held on the 9th inst. it was moved by Ald. Gartshore, and seconded by Ald. Dreaney:

"That the treasurer be instructed to receive the certificate of the manager of the Molson's Bank in the city for $25,000, now read to the council, in lieu of a check for the said amount as provided for by paragraph 28 of the proposed indenture between the London and Port Stanley Railway Company and F. S. Miller and others."

This resolution was carried unanimously without discussion, every member of the council being present, and being reported both in your paper and the Free Press was known to all citizens who read the daily papers. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Virgie's Inheritance.

Sir William bent forward and read it, and he did not wonder then that Virgie had felt herself the most wronged of women. He knew that it had been intended as the announcement of his cousin's marriage with Margaret Stanhope, but agrave mistake had been made in prelixing the young man's name with a title, thus making it appear that it was the baronet who had been warried.

name with a title, thus maxim, taylous that it was the baronet who had been married. Virgie did not know that he had a relative by the same name, so, of course, taking everything else into consideration, she must have believed that he had been false to all honor, to his manhood, and to her.

He groened aloud.

"Oh, what must she have thought of me!" he cried, in despair. Then, turning to the proprietor of the hotel, he asked, "Where did you get this paper?"

It was the Hampshire County Journal, and he wondered how it could have got to New York to accomplish so much mischief. "I cannot say, sir. I found it in my office here among other papers, and—and you must confess that such a notice as that was sufficient to stagger me when I read it."

"Yes," Sir William admitted, white to his lips; "and yet it was heartless to send her away. It was my cousin—a gentleman bearing the same name—who was married; but some one made a mistake and added my title. Did shesse that notice?"

"She appeared to know about it, sir."
"It seems as if an enemy had done this to ruin our happiness; but who?" groaned the miserable husband.

CHAPTER XX.

SIR WILLIAM PINDS A TRACE OF VIRGIE.
Sir William asked, a little later, when he had succeeded in somewhat recovering his

"And have you no idea whither my wife went after leaving here?"
"No," Mr. Eldridge said. "I offered to find some nice, quiet place for her, but she simply thanked me and declined my offer.
She then ordered a carriage and drove away, without giving any definite directions regarding her destination—at least, in my hearing."

rearing.

The proprietor was careful not to state that he had been so relieved by the departure of his then questionable guest that he had taken no pains to ascertain her plans, being only too glad to be quit of her upon any terms, and to thus preserve the honor of his house and retain the patronage of its other occupants.

honor of his house and retain the patronage of its other occupants.

Sir William then repaired to the office of Dr. Knox, the physician in whose care he had left his wife, hoping to glean something from him. But that gentleman knew nothing whatever of what had occurred, and appeared greatly surprised by what the young husband told him.

He simply stated what we already know—that Mrs. Heath had sent him a note saying that she was about leaving the city and wished to settle her bill, and requested him to call for the amount. He had done so and she had paid him in full.

He said that his time was limited, and he had only remained a few moments. He Fnally he decided that he would go again to her home among the mountains of Nevada. He might possibly learn something of her there.

Novada. He might possibly learn something of her there.

He reached the place just a year from the day of his departure with Virgie, and a feeling of utter desolation, almost of despair, took possession of him as he wandered here and there over the familiar ground, visiting the grave of Mr. Abbot, and peering in at the cottage where he had first met his love, but where only strange faces met his gaze.

Everything looked the same as when he left, but evidently no one knew anything about his wife; he learned that from the ager inquiries, which met him on every side, for the beautiful git whom he had taken awa with him.

He answered and swaded them as well as he could, without betraying that he was in any troub e, but he was deeply disappointed to find that Chi Lu had left the place.

pointed to find that Chi Li had left very sudplace.

He was told that he had left very suddeply, but came back after a time, when he disposed of his cabin that Sir William had given him, and then disappeared altogether.
The baronet sought out Margery Foliet, and was impressed the moment that he saw her that she had something on her mind.
She eyed him with suspicion, seemed

This alone made the young baronet hope that she knew something of Virgle, for. having been at her wedding, and afterward assisted her in many ways during Mr. Abbot's last illness, it would have been but natural for her to wish to know something that the state of th natural for her to wish to know something about her.

By advoitly questioning her he became convinced of the truth of his suspicion, and finally he charged her outright with having recently seen his wife.

The woman stammered, blushed, and finally assumed a defiant attitude, and Sir William was sure.

He then told her something of his trouble, and the property of the summer of the second of the summer of Milliam was sure.

He then told her something of his trouble, enjoining her to secreey, and finally she confessed that one day Chi Lu had come to her and persuaded her to go with him before the county magistrate to sign a paper stating that she had been a witness to the marriage of Miss Abbot with Mr. Heath. Chi Lu had given her a handsome sun for her trouble and to keep silent about the matter afterward.

This confession gave Sir William great hope. It told him that Virgie had been in that vicinity: that she was gathering what proofs she could toward establishing the legality of her marriage, with a view to claiming her rights as a lawfil wife.

He was very much elated over the discovery, and at once repaired to the country town, to seek out the magistrate and learn what he could from him.

That gentleman confirmed what he had already learned. He said that several weeks previous a young woman had come there to obtain a copy of the record of a certain marriage, and that after a Chinaman and an elderly woman had signed a paper in his presence, testifying to having been witnesses of the ceremony.

Sir William reasoned that, since Virgie was seeking all these proofs, she would doubless apply to the elergyman who had married them; so to Virginia City he straightway hastened, to seek the Rev. Dr. Thornton.

He jound him readily enough. The clergyman appeared to be in feeble health, and received him with coldness and evident displeasure.

"I suppose you are somewhat at a loss how to account for my wist. De. Thornton."

and received him with coidness and evident displeasure.

"I suppose you are somewhat at a loss how to account for my visit. Dr. Thornton," he remarked, in his genial way, and ignoring the frigidness of his host's greeting; "but I have come to make some important inquiries of you."

The reverend gentleman simply bowed, and then waited for his guest to proceed.
"You will be surprised that I have lest my wife and am searching for her," the baronet continued, thinking it best to come to the point at once.

"Which one?" demanded the divine, with an accent of scorn in his usually mild tones.
"Sir!"
"For which wiie are you searching?"

"Which one?" demanded the divine, with an accent of scorn in his usually mild tones. "Sir!"
"For which wiie are you searching?"
"I have but one wife—the lady to whom you married me only a little more than a year ago!" Sir William replied, in a voice of thunder, his handsome face flaming with righteous anger, though his heart bounded with new hope at the question.
"I beg your pardon, sir," the clergyman replied, seeing at once that there was some mystery, and there must have been some fearful mistake to cause the separation of these two young people in whom he had been so deeply interested.
"You will understand my untimely sarcasm, perhaps," he went on, "when I tell you that I have been led to believe that you had done that beautiful woman the greatest possible wrong."

He then proceeded to explain all that he knew of the matter.

Mrs. Heath, he said, had come to him, about a month previous, to secure a written statement from him to the effect that he had performed the marriage ceremony in a legal and authorized manner between herself and Sir William Heath, of Heathdale, Hampshire county, England. She was looking very sad and ill, and she confided to him that she had been deserted by her husband in New York, he having been called to his home by a cablegram, ostensibly because of his mether's illness, but that she had learned of his marriage with another lady in England, and she feared that his union with her might have been a farce. She had, however, learned to the contrary, and she was determined to gather all the proofs possible, for the purpose of securing the rights and position of her child.

(To be Continued.) she had paid him in full.

He said that his time was limited, and had only remained a few moments. He thought she was looking rather pale and worn; but she said she was well, and, being calm and self-possessed, he did not imagine calm and self-possessed, he did not imagine that she was in any trouble.

It was evident that from this source Sir William could gain nothing to aid him in his soarch for his wife.

He then tried to discover the nurse who had been with her, but she was not to be found at her usual address, and no one could tell him anything about her.

He went to the bank where he had deposited money for Virgie's use, but disappointment awaited him here also. He was told that she had sent word one morning that on a certain day she would need the whole amount due her. She had called according to her appointment, received her money, and that was all that was known there regarding her movements.

Sir William was in despair. Failure methim on every hand, and he feared the worst for his loved ones.

He remained in New York for more than a month, searching the city from end to end, employing detectives, advertising in the lapers, and using every means be could think of to gain some clue to Virgie's hiding place; but all to no purpose; and he finally came to the conclusion that she had left the metropolis. But whither flad she gone? He knew that she had not a friend on this side of the Rocky Mountains; it was all a strange country to her.

Would she be likely to remain East and hide herself and her supposed sname in some obscure place, or would she was all east and hide herself and her supposed sname in some obscure place, or would she was all east and hide herself and her supposed sname in some cobscure place, or would she was deternable to gain some clue to Virgie's hiding place; the condition of the proposed sname in some obscure place, or would she was deterned to gath the same time plays baby tunes.

Lecal Legal.

Ontario Investment Association vs. F. B. Leys.—Action brought to recover $500 and interest since September, 1881, at 6 percent, on calls on stock in the Ontario Investment Association. The defense was that the circumstances under which the acceptance was signed prevented the plaintiffs from being entitled to recover. The defense was that it had only been signed to accommodate the association through their president, Mr. Murray, and that as soon as the meeting to alter the bylaws was over that a power to retransfer was given to the president—that in effect the defendant hever was a stockholder, and if a stockholder only a trustee for the plaintiffs. The defense further claimed that the association at that time was weak and involved, and even if the acceptance had been made with the intention of becoming a stockholder it was the duty of the president to have disclosed the condition of its affairs. The judge held that Mr. Murray did not intend to transfer and Mr. Leys did not intend to transfer and Mr. Leys did not intend to accept the shares, and that the defendant never incurred any liability with reference thereto; that the company being embarrassed it was Mr. Murray's duty to have disclosed to Mr. Leys its condition if he intended to fasten on him a liability, but that it was clear he did not because they had not sent the defendant any notices or ever treated him as a stockholder. He therefore dismissed the action with costs. W. R. Meredith, Q. C. and T. G. Meredith for the plaintiffs, and T. H. Purdom for defendant.

What Bank Managers Say.

An Advertiser reporter made a circuit of the banks this morning, and where possible asked the opinion of the managers as to the validity of the much-discussed certificate in the hands of the city treasurer, anent the London and Port Stanley Railway lease, of which the following is a copy: London, Jan. 9, 1893. copy:

LONDON, Jan. 9, 1893.

To the Treasurer of the Corporation of the City of London.

I hereby certify that the Melsons Bank here hold a deposite certificate for twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), with instructions to pay that amount to yourself on delivery, on or before the 25th day of January instant, 1893, to the Molsons Bank of an indenture of lease of the London and Port Stanley Railway, executed to F. S. Miller and others, as approved by the City Council at its meeting held this 9th day of January, 1893, and the Molsons Bank hereby agree to pay the said sum over to you accordingly. Your obedient servant,

P. W. D. BRODERICK, Manager.

servant,

P. W. D. BRODERICK, Manager.

All who were spoken to did not hesitate to say it was as good as eash, and that the cash must be handed over to the city when the latter ratified the lease.

"This is how it stands," said one, after perusing the above: "Messrs, Miller and others have deposited $25,000 with the Molsons !Bank here in trust, with instructions to the manager to pay it to the city treasurer when the city delivers to him the duly executed lease. This the manager pledges the city, over his signature, to do. The city has not completed the agreement yet, and is not, therefore, entitled to the money. It is a regular way of doing business."

"If my name were under that certificate," said another manager, "I would consider myself bound to pay to the city consider myself bound to myself bound to the city consider myself bo

THE OPEN FORUM.

A School Trustoe Mction.

To the Editor of the Advertisen:
In regard to Dr. Wilson's motion at the Board of Education that $500 be given to the engineer's department, why should such a grant be made? It seems a prevailing notion that as soon as a city employe shows some work for his comfortable salary he must be granted an "extra" or two. The taxpayer suffereth long, but he getteth no extras unless it be extra taxation.

Growth and Prosperity.

The wonderful growth of Galveston, and especially that portion known as North Galveston, during the past few years, has been due not only to local improvements and the natural result of rapid settlement and capital liberally invested, but also to the rapid growth of manufacturing industries which here find an unusually profitable field. Thus we find a combination of conditions for continual growth that is unsurpassed in any other portion of the country, namely: A genial and healthful climate, an industrial growth expable of supporting a large population, and agricultural attractions that cannot be excelled. The opportunities are just as good at the present time for making money, either in city properly or small fruit farms. The latter class of farming always results in large profits to those who have been fortunate enough to invest.

The property of the North Galveston Association cannot be otherwise regarded than as offering splendid inducements alike to home-seeker and investor. The fullest investigation of this property is cordially invited. The association is represented by W. D. Buckle, London, Ont., who will be happy to furnish all information desired. The dadress of the General Office is: The North Galveston Association, Box 963, Minneapolis, Minn. Twenty-Five Days Out.
