SWEEPING VICTORY. Speaking of the result, Dr. R. M. Simpson, president of the Winnipeg Conservative Association, said this morning that such a sweep is not good for the Government, admitting the same rule applies wherever there is no Opposition, such a state of affairs tending to make the ministers autocratic.

Regina. July 12.—In the Provincial elections the later stages of which, at least, were fought out purely on Federal issues, Saskatchewan has returned Liberalism and Hon. Walter Scott to power by an overwhelming majority.

A POPULAR CRY.

Two things contributed most directly to the victory for the Liberals. The first was the possession of a popular cry in the reciprocity pact, and the second was the good administrative record of the Scott Government. The Regina Province, the chief Conservative organ in Saskatchewan, this morning places what it terms "The Decisive Liberal Victory" at the door of two things, viz., electroal crookedness and reciprocity. Leaving out of consideration the question of crooked work at the polls, for if there was any croked work done it was done equally by both sides, that becomes a Conservative admission of the strength of the reciprocity appeal in Saskatchewan. Throughout the campaign the Conservative press and speakers derided the introduction of Wider Markets" question into the Provincial arena, declaring reciprocity dead, and the issue not one which the elections could influence in any way. There is no mistaking the utterances of Premier Borden in his London speech dealing with the question of the naval defence of the empire. It rings true with patriotic purpose so far as Canada is concerned.

In those clear-cut sentences Premier Borden has defined the policy of the Canadian Government, and just as clearly he has stated the purpose of the Canadian people. It conveys in words of great directness the intention of Canada to stand by teh empire at whatever cost. [Canadian Press.] Brantford, July 12.—Orangemen and their wives and friends to the number of 5,000 were given the freedom of the city here today by Mayor Hartman. From early morning heavily-loaded trains commenced to arrive each contingent bringing bands of its own. The city presented a lively appearance, the front streets being festooned with orange banners in commemoration of the 222nd anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. Buffalo, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Galt, Dunn-ville, Woodstock, Ingersoll and London were strongly represented. An impos-ing parade was held to Agricultural Park at 1 o'clock, where E. T. Headquarters were at the city buildings, where the two historic halls were at the disposal of the Orange Order for registration and dinner, the local lodge's own hall on Princess street in itself not being adequate. The parade left the market square at 1:30, and was the largest that ever passed through the streets of the Limestone City. The rendezvous was at Macdon-ald Park, where speeches were made from the pavilion by prominent lodge-men from all over the district. The oldest Orangeman in the parade was John Elliott, of Kingston, who is in his 92nd year, and has been an Orange-man for 70 years. Another venerable member of the order who drove in the procession was Sir MacKenzie Bowell, K.C.M.G., who is in his 90th year. Mayor Hoag presided over the pro-ceedings at Macdonald Park. STORE CLOSES AT 5 O'CLOCK.

This Great Smallman & Ingram Store Is Full Of Brand New Summer Merchandise

COOL CLOTHES HAVE A TONIC EFFECT UPON A PERSON'S HEALTH, and distinguished-looking clothes have a tonic effect upon a person's appearance. Smallman & Ingram's Summer wearing apparel for men and women is made of the coolest fabrics that will stand being well made, and is at once cool

Besides, such a feast of extra values has never before been known. This store's newspaper announcements since the first day of July have been almost entirely devoted to news of special opportunities for saving money. Owing to backward conditions earlier in the season, more underpriced lists of good merchandise have been secured for July than ever before. The month will be full of special events—some new feature every day. STORE CLOSES AT 5 O'CLOCK.

THE SASKATCHEWAN SWEEP.

The Scott Government's triumph answers the cry that reciprocity is a dead issue. It sends Mr. Rogers back to Ottawa routed and humiliated. It punishes Mr. Haultain for his doubleflealing, and for degrading himself into an appendage of the Rogers machine. It rebukes a corrupt and shameless use of the federal patronage. The election was not a battle between a Government and an Opposition, but between two Governments. All the forces of the Federal Administration were marshalled by Mr. Rogers against Mr. Scott. The Scott Government had a record of substantial achievement and provincial questions were not ignored, but the issue of larger markets dominated the canvass. It will continue to dominate prairie politics. In putting it in the foreground, Mr. Scott was merely answering the challenge from Ottawa. Mr. Rogers invaded the province with the avowed object of crushing the reciprocity agitation. Had he succeeded in ousting the Scott Government, the position of the Borden Government would have been enormously strengthened. It would have been a proof that pro-reciprocity sentiment was not so deepseated as to withstand the temptations of the Ottawa fleshpots, so openly exhibited by the Minister of the Interior. The Liberal party would have been routed in its stronghold and its fighting spirit quenched for a time. The result shows that Saskatchewan has not changed its mind since September. The pro-reciprocity current is irresistible. TREASON IN TORONTO.

The Toronto Telegram files into a passion to assert the parliamentary independence of Canada. The sudden introduction of the new wine of Canadian nationality almost burst that old leather bottle.

Two or three British Radicals have soused the Telegram's fury. They belong to the party which established in 1840 the measure of independence that Canada possesses, but dared to assert Though I am melted quite, that that independence is not complete. If a Canadian Liberal had said in Toronto that Canada was not subordinate to the mother country, the Telegram would have bitten his head off, and the new Belfast mob would have given points to the old sod. The men, however, who have stirred in the Telegram the new fury of nationalism, Sir John Simon, Sir Rufus Isaacs and Mr. Hamar Greenwoodwhat did they say? Sir John Simon, solicitor-general of Great Britain, for whose legal knowledge the Telegram has as much respect as a wildcat in full spring, said in the House of Commons, far from the madding date, who was new at the game. that "in point of constitutional law the Imperial Parliament has power to the Imperia legislate for all parts of the King's dominions." Sir Rufus Isaacs added that "theoretically all parliaments set up is quoted by the Telegram as laying down this heinous doctrine:

"No parliament set up by the British House of Commons can be equal to the mother of parliaments. Canadian would be other than proud to admit the supremacy of this House. Sir Wilfrid Laurier would say that the Canadian Parliament was sovereign within the strict limitations of its constitution, but the power of the Parliament of England was absolutely sovereign and could not be limited even by itself."

The Telegram may fume, but the statements of these three lawyers are ing-Knox pact was framed. The absolutely correct, with the exception of Mr. Greenwood's second sentence. Certainly some Canadians are not proud the pride and envy of experts in gasof Canada's subordination, though it tronomic feats . exists in theory alone. They think the time has come for Canada to take a position of equality within the Empire. It is a new thing, however, to find the Telegram, a leader in their ranks, so new that the extreme nationalists may be disinclined to accept such lead-assertion of nationality by this country. Now it flies to the opposite extreme as regards the theory of our relation to Great Britain. In its agitation it even interprets Mr. Greenwood's deal of open country, quite uncultivation. words to mean that "self-evidently the and thought it would be rather a good British House of Commons has the same jurisdiction over Canada that the I thought I would walk it—not often British House of Commons may exercise over a crown colony." An interpreter like the Telegram is not "a Daniel come to judgment."

TAKE YOUR CHOICE. There are two comments on Mr. Borden's naval speech which are in piquant contrast. One is Mr. Henry Bourassa's. The other is the Montreal Mr. Bourassa infers from the speech that Mr. Borden has dropped the notion of an emergency contribution to the mother country. The Montreal Star infers that Mr.

Borden contemplates an emergency contribution.

Says Mr. Bourassa: "To give or offer an immediate, and extraordinary contribution on account of the German peril when half the British cabinet don't believe in the danger, and the other half are preparing for an alliance with Germany, would be grotesque."

Says the Montreal Star: "Hon. Borden's reference to 'the possible immediate gravity ace.' he must see that any Canadian action, intended to meet it, must be prompt, effective and to the point. The 'German menace' exists in the North Sea. It will not be met by Dreadnoughts off the coast of Brit-

A MASTER

OF STYLE (By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

Henry Newbolt, the English poet, who is busy just now trying to elucidate that old, old problem, What are the essentials of poetry? has seen fit to quote largely from the correspondence of Gustave Flaubert. It is in his letters that Flaubert reveals most clearly his aims and ideals as a writer. And Mr. Newbolt does well to resort to this greatest of modern French stylists. If ever any man gave himself zealously to the cultivation of a perfect prose style that devotee to form was Flaubert. Years ago I remember reading somewhere that Flaubert was a writer who sat alone in a beautiful tower polishing ivory phrases. That is a picturesque description, but it is not entirely true. Flaubert was a lonely soul, but he did not live up in a tower, for one of his passions was the study of life.

In one of his letters he says: There are in me literally two chaps possible immediate gravity of it is a matter of some general inexisting conditions, must refer to the care and the several incumbents of that position the several incumbents of that position ace' he must see that any Canadian ace' he must see that any Canadian phrase and top-high notion. The other digs and grubs with all his might for actuality-he would, if he could, give you almost the physical sensations of the things he represents." But while he loved to see things as they are, he desired to keep himself disentangled from the riot of the senses. "If you want to paint intoxication, love, women, or glory, my dear fellow," he advises a literary friend, "you must be neither drunkard, lover, husband, nor high-faluter. Once you get mixed up with life, you see !t confusedly, because it gives you too much pain or pleasure." It is for this reason that you find an air of detachment in Flaubert's works, and I suppase that is the justification for the image about the beautiful tower. As far as phrase-chiselling goes, Flaubert is one of the master of French literature. He produced little, but what he

No toll was too great for Flaubert in writing a book. Take his novel, 'Salammbo," his wonderful resurrection of Carthaginian civilization. In order to kindle his imagination Flaubert visited the ruins of Carthage and brooded over them for months. But he did infinite research work as well. Consequently he produced in this work one of the most marvellous historical novels that has ever been written. To the lover of history, of poetry, or pageantry, of word-painting, this book is a treasure indeed. It is many years residence is given as Utica, arrived in since I read it for the first time, but Bowerman's heaving department. He try. Straight Lines Are Taboo and Frills Run Riot in Newest Frocks .-- A Prophecy of Fall Fashions

[By Maybelle Mortimer.]

Fashion seems determined that the straight silhouette must go.

We are finding all sorts of little furbelows and frills tucked about on our frocks where we least expect them. No longer is there a straight line from bust to feet, making us look somewhat like an Egyptian mummy with a part of its swadding wraps still on.

There are to be found "sa has become a "p. nnier skirt."

There "ain't goin' to be no straight lines no more," which will be good news to the stout lady. Even the straight line around the bottom of the skirt which we have considered absolutely necessary, is out of date.

A gown will have an unexpected slash at the side or front or it will be cut or the side or front or it will be cut or looped into scallops all about the bottom. I think the scalloped skirt is espedially pretty and when the scallops are edged about the bottom with a tiny ruffle or knife pleating the effect is most quaint and pleasing.

The gown illustrated is of change-able taffeta in green and blue. The skirt has a little fullness at the waistline and is about two yards around the bottom. Skirts are growing wider. At the top of each scallop is a stiff three eared bow. The "ornamental trimmir; at the waist" is made of two rener wide pieces of the silk, one put over the other and trimmed about with narrow knife pleating. The waist is the old-fashioned behavior waist is the old-fashioned bebe of our grandmothers' day, worn over an under bodice of shadow lace. (This fall the finer laces will be more worn then the beauty of the be than the heavy ones that have been so popular this summer.)

This little frock would be very pretty made of pink voile with silk pleatings. This would make a very inexpensive party dress as a smart girl who was clever at dressmaking could make it at home. The whole costume is simple in extreme, but it has the air of being strictly up-to-

Bananas Not Dessert

Bananas are a food, not a dessert. They belong in the same catagory with beefsteak, not in the blanche mange class. Remembering this you can get a whole lot of good out of bananas—if you like them. For they are full of nutriment and digest easily if properly masticated. "Properly masticated," applied to a ban— "Properly masticated," applied to a ban-ana, means chewed as slowly and as care-fully as you would a plece of meat.

Don't eat bananas for dessert after you have eaten a heavy meal. That's like eating a chop for dessert.

To Clean a Sweater

A sweater is one of the necessities of the seashore or mountain wardrobe. No other wrap can take its place. The dainty woman always prefers the creamy white ones, but often hesitates to buy because of the seeming difficulty of cleaning them. The following method simplifies that process, so that no one need hesitate to buy one on that account. Woollen blankets may be cleaned in the same

A quarter of a bar of good white soap is melted over the stove. To this is added about half a cup of ammonia. Enough hot water is run into the pan or tub to cover the sweater. The soap and ammonia are stirred in, and then the sweater is placed in. With a stick or the top of a washboard this is stirred and turned until the dirt is out. Rinse in several waters, then lay on a slanting board to drain but do not square dry

There are several methods of drying. The best plan is to roll in a sheet until half dry stretched into the original desired shape. Then unroll and allow to dry, without hanging it

The Housewife's Frocks

The problem of being comfortable during the summer months now confronts every woman who does her wn housework. Being neat and cool depends entirely upon the clothing you wear during working hours. And every wise woman will provide herself with two or three simple little frocks to slip on in the morning—frocks that can be laundered without much trouble, and that, though plain, are quite dressy enough in which to receive the chance calier.

Delightful in its very plainness is a little house dress of black-and-white percale, made over a one-plece pattern. The bodice and sleeves are cut in one, with one tuck an inch wide placed over the shoulders, where they turn. This is stitched all the way to the waist line in back and four inches in front, and there breaks to give fulthe chance calier.

the waist line in back and four inches in front, and there breaks to give fulness over the bust. The sleeves are cut just below the elbow.

The skirt is made over a four-gored pattern, with a seam down the centre of the front; but this is not closed. When attached to the bodice by a two-inch-wide belt, stitched at both edges with a double row of stitching, it buttons from collar line to hem. and can be laid open when to hem, and can be laid open when being ironed, making it one of the easiest dresses imaginable to launder.

A simple little lay-down collar and folded-back cuffs of white linen, with scalloped edges worked in buttonhole stitch, give on air of refinement to the simple dress. It requires six yards of yard-wide material to make the dress for the average-sized woman.

APPLYING INSERTION.

The prettiest way to apply insertion is to slash the goods between which t is to be placed, and turn the edges Baste the back one-eighth of an inch. the raw edge of the goods will not show, and stitch them together flat. This method gives the appearance of the lace being under the goods, instead of on top, which is more effective. Care must be taken not to stretch the goods, or the garment will lose its shape less one is expert at this kind of work it is not wise to attempt inserting trimming in this way on a bias piece

A Lace and Silk Confection

The verdict of many experts, is that the most charming of this season's dresses are those made of lace and embroidery, in combination with color-ed silks. One of the prettiest of these is the subject of this sketch.

A COUNTER-IRRITANT. (Boston Post.)

"What is a counter-irritant?" asked Mrs. Smithers. "A counter-irritant," replied Smither, is a woman who makes the shopman pull down everything from the shelves for two hours, and then buys a penny's worth of hairpins."

McManus Pitched Good Ball and Was Given Fine Support-Silcox Also Pitched Well, But Support Was Shaky-Good Game Until Fifth Inning.

Mr. Bowerman's Indians received a rude joit at the hands of Mr. L. Coek's criminals at Tecumseh Park yesterday afternoon, said jolt being in the nature of a 10 to 5 score, with the clean-uppers from the Capital on the heavy end. of a 10 to 5 score, with the clean-uppers from the Capital on the heavy end. The real knockout came in the fifth round, when the local barn-stormers exhibited a few blunders which, mingled freely with Ottawa hits, lotailed a cool four runs for the enemy. It was this staggerisg thrust that put the redskins to the bad, and they were counted out in the remaining stanzas.

To explain this latest crimp in the pennant ambitions of the local hire-ings would be trying to make excuses for a lot of errors that show in the official statistics, and a whole lot more that do not. Some parts of the frelic should be passed over with merely a painful comment. It was a case of aviating in the critical jiffys, and to simply say that the game was presented to Mr. Cook's farmhands would be letting the locals down easy.

SOME PARTS WERE GOOD.

About a thousand rabid bugs journeyed over to the hat-box to see the 'fecumsehs take a rise out of the league leaders, but they were doomed to disappointment. Instead they witnessed a game that was only partly an exhibition of Father Chadwick's favorite amusement, while the rest looked like a mixture of buttoney-buttoney-blue-whose-got-the-button and duck-on-the-

of Mr. J. McManus, the Palmyra Paloola, heaved 'em over in the interests of Mr. Cock's delegates, and the big "rube" was there with the goods just the same as he has been in the previous ten or eleven games he pitched lately. He wobbled a little on his pins during the early spasms, but that four-run affair in the fifth tickled him so that he was able to finish the game with a burst of speed that dazzled the local swatters. He tightened up faster than a kid at a picnic feed during the last sessions, and the Bowermanites' feeble attempts to make a palse like a tally were immediately smothered. attempts to make a noise like a tally were immediately smothered.

This was all right, for in the Bowerman part of the opening chapter, Mr. Gilhooley smashed one to chapter, Mr. Gilhooley smashed one to left for one pillow and Mr. Bierbauer followed with a two-cushion drive to centre. This was quickly followed by centre. This was quickly followed by Schwind's wild peg over Dolan's head of Cocash's easy grounder, which brought Messrs. ### What the Others Are Saying Glinta From Papers on Canadian League Circuit.

JUST A PIPE DREAM.

Hamilton Times: We have a beautiful pipesmoke picture of our Canadian talented ball team being presented with the Canadian League pennant at the end of this season, and the distinguished and highly paid athletes in service of Mr. G. Lee bowing upon receiving it. (Who's got a match? Our pipe's out).

Our pipe's out).

WHY OTTAWA WINS.

Ottawa Citizen: Much of the success of the Ottawas this season has been due to the manner in which the players "pull." They are like one big family and they all idolize Cook. When Draper lost his game on Saturday last through the blunders of his team-mates, the whole camp was plunged into mourning. "Topsy" is the life of the team.

CAUSE OF ANXIETY AT BRANTFORD.

Brantford Expositor: We have doubts if that Hamilton club is anywhere near within the salary limit.

near within the salary limit,
NOTHING BOTHERS THE KOLTS.

Hamilton Times: It will be observed that the hot weather does not affect the Kolts. They play right on and continue to win and lose with that con-scientious regularity which is wholly superior to temperature. The Kolts are warranted to stand any climate and play without shrinking or changing color YES, SO IT PROVED.

Ottawa Free Press: It seems rather hard luck that Joe McManus should any of the big events, was outclassed go to London with thirteen wins. However, it may be a lucky number for him and unlucky for London.

MAKING FUN OF JIMMY.

Hamilton Times: President Fitzgerald, it is understood, will order the Dobinion railway board to instruct all conductors and engineers not to stop at tuelph, thus putting the Royal City off the railway map.

LATEST NEWS OF BILL BLAKE.

Brantford Expositor: Umpire Biake in his initial appearance here did well. There was little to complain of although the fans felt peevish at times.

Judge Norvell saw fit to disqualify the mare Venetian for justifiable reasons, after a race at the last Delorimer Park meet. The race did not look good to him from the start, and it was learned that it was to be a "shoo in." This, with the rough riding of Jockey Mondon, brought about the disqualification. It is alleged that Jockey Mondon claimed that he had the promise of protection against fines and suspension from the ring faction, but Judge Norvell would not tolerate his interference, and ruled the rider off.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Tumuit in Human Hearts.

Of the many frightful nights in Richmond during the seige, that night was one of the worst.

The comparative calmone of the worst.

Dess of the earlier hours or repose of the world April evening gave way to pandemonium. The works at Petersburg, desperately held by the Confederates, were perately held by the Confederates, were miles away from the city to the southward, but such was the tremendous nature of the cannonading that the shocking sound seemed to be close at hand. Children cowered, women shuddered, and old men prayed as they thought of the furlous onslaughts in the battle raging.

risked everything, was ready to pay everything, would, indeed, be forced to do so in the end, and yet he had not done that which he had intended. Had he been false to his duty and to his country when he refused to send that telegram, being given the opportunity! He could not tell. The, ethics of the question were beyond his present; solution. The opportunity had come to him through a piece of sublime self-sacrifice on the part of the woman, who, knowing him thoroughly and understanding his plan and purpose, had yet perjured herself to save his life.

That life was hers, was it not? He had become her prisoner as much as if she had placed him under lock and key, and held him without the possibility of communication with anyone. Her honor was involved. No, under the circumstances, he could not send the dispatch. The Confederates would certainly kill him if they caught him, and if they did not, and by any providential chance he escaped, his honor would compel him to report the circumstances, the cause of his failure, to his own superiors. Would they court-martial him for not sending the dispatch? Would they understand? Would the woman and her actions be considered by them as determining factors? Would his course be looked upon as justifiable? He could not flatter himself that any one of these things would be so considered by any military court. There would be only two things which would influence his superiors in their judgment of him. Did he get a chance, and having it, did he use it?

The popular idea of a Secret Service agent, a spy, was that he would stick at nothing. As such men were outside the pale of military brotherhood, so were they supposed to have a code of their own. Well, his code did not permit him to send the dispatch when his power to send it had been procured in such a way. It was not so much love for the woman as it was honor—her honor, suddenly put into his keeping—that turned him from the key. When both honor and love were thrown into the scale, there was no possibility of any other action. He

He could not see any call of duty paramount to them.

He stood looking at Foray for a while, and then, without a further command to that intensely surprised young man, or even a word of explanation, he seized his hat and coat and left the room. Foray was a keen-witted officer; he reviewed the situation briefly, and presently a great light dawned upon him. A certain admiration for Thorne developed in his breast, and as Allison opportunely came back at this juncture, he turned the telegraph office over to his subordinate, and in his turn went out on what he believed to be an exceedingly important errand.

RUSSIA WORRIES HER TWO ALLIES

Reorganization of Army Shows Tendency to Wield Big Stick.

RICKY FOREIGN POLICY

Russia Has Little in Common With the Other Members of the Triple Entente.

St. Petersburg, July 11. - While Russia's position in the triple entente is viewed with mingled feelings of bewilderment and distrust by Britain and France, her partners, there is little mystification about her foreign policy to the man on the spot. The first significant factor in the situation here which strikes the observer is the re-birth of the Russian army, a fact of potent influence to Minister of Foreign Affairs M. Sazanoff, whose diplomacy rests in the last re-sort on the ability of his country to eld "the big stick." Ever since the disastrous war with Japan recruiting for the army has been going on apace, and I have it on the authority of military experts that the units are healthier than they ever were before in mind and body. the present moment there are 1,450,000 men under arms, though only 880.000 would be available for service, the rest of the army being engaged in miscellaneous duties in various parts cars that try to escape.

The pressing need of today is for more money, so as to enable Russia to dispense with the employment of soldiers upon work which in other countries is done by civilians to increase the number of timeexpired men among the non-commissioned officers. It is upon the successful forging of a powerful and highly equipped military organization that the foreign policy of this country will depend and more forceful and direct notes will be heard in her diplomatic communications when that end is reached.

As a matter of fact, Russia has little in common with the other two members of the triple entente, which has as its ostensible object the elimination of the causes of war and the maintenance for the time being of the status quo. Russia is known here to status quo. Russia is known here to status quo. Russia is known here to status quo. The freely control to the first to use here position for the first to use here for the first to use here position for the first to use here fo be frankly out to use her position for territorial expansion.

However much foreign observers may think to the contrary, Russia's foreign policy does not change and has not changed. It is based on curious Old World treaties she intends to enforce, and governed by a variety of interests which cannot be properly harmonized with the existing interests of Britain and France. Persia may yet supply the breaking point between Russia and Britain. The Czar's advisors complain that the English Government wants to constitutionalize Persia, whereas Russia wishes to see a strong one man rule in the land of the lion and the lamb.

Turkey is the centre of possible mischief between Russia and France. French financiers have sunk a whole pile of money in Ottoman undertak-ings, which have been flourishing passably well with hope of greater prosperity in the future. Strained relations would instantly arise between the two countries if Russia put her diplomatic weight into the scale ngainst Turkey whenever pourparlers tere commenced for ending the irco-Italian war.

Coming to the Far East, where Jepan once blocked Russia's way, there is now no obstacle to her aspirations, as the two countries are leagued together for their common agrandizement. The natural riches Mongolia will jointly be exploited by the two allies, who will work together with the other powers of Europe to force upon China the policy of the open door for imperial and commercial ends.

SAVES TWO GIRLS FROM DROWNING IN STORM

Toronto Man Rescues Occupants of Boat Overturned by a Sudden Cyclone.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, July 11.—By crawling out on a narrow strip of piling for a distance of 150 feet yesterday afternoon during the storm which swept over the city, Walter Pearce, of 32 Lower street, was able to save two girls from drown. was able to save two girls from drowning and keep them on the piling until help arrived. The girls were the Misses Gariette, 44 Knox avenue, who were out in Ashbridge's Bay in a punt when the storm came on them unwhen the storm came on them un-awares. It drove the punt down on the piling, which is being placed in the piling, which is being placed in connection with the city's sewage disposal plant, and Pearce, noticing that the boat was in distress, crept out to the rescue on the narrow piling in the face of a sixty-mile gale. Just as Pearce reached the spot where the boat was battering against the piling, it was battering against the piling, it capsized, and he succeeded in catching one of the girls and helping her up one of the girls and helping her to one of the girls and helping her to where she could grasp the top of to where she could grasp the top of the timbers with her hands. The the timbers with her hands. The water closed over the other girl, but water closed over the other girl, but water closed over the other head in a moment Pearce noticed her head in a showing in the trough of the sea, and was successful in grasping her by the hair and pulling her to safety. Here the three clung to the timbers for 20 minutes until the storm abated sufficiently to permit of a small boat being launched from the Don Rowing Club-house, manned by F. Thompson, Jos. Barnes and Len Marsh, who succeeded in getting the trio safely ashore. The arm and body of one of the girls was badly lacerated by the waves beating her against the timbers as she clung to them with her hands to keep from

Some wise things are also frankly said about Henry David Thoreau, who has a strong and loyal following in England. "He possessed the spirit of the boy, backed by all the wisdom of the ages, and he learned how to taste all the stars and all the heavens in a crust of bread."

Whistler's picture of his mother is passed under review in the art section of the manner of Folks." and an account is "All Manner of Folks," and an account is given of Holbrook Jackson's meeting with Jo Davidson, the American sculptor, with Jo Davidson, the American sculptor, in his studio in the Boulevard Edgar Quinet, Paris. "I had enough of the Peaux Arts in three weeks." Jo explained in speaking of his training. "What I wanted was life: they offered me antiquities." And this is how Jackson sums up the American sculptor. "Jo Davidson is the American sculptor: "Jo Davidson is a representative of the new individualism. He sings his songs in bronze and creates tone poems in clay in his own way."

OROZCO AT JUAREZ Mexican Rebel Leader Abandons Private Car for Caboose.

[Canadian Press.] Juarez, Mexico, July 11. - General Orozco's arrival here was the more inconspicuous, as he rode into the rebel capital in a caboose coupled to an engine. He had abandoned his private car on the way. Last night marked the first time that Gen. Orozco has visited Juarez as a revolutionist. He was last here in February, when as a government offithese red, inflamed patches where the cer he sought to restore order in the town, which had just mutinied. Less than a month later he accepted the leadership of the revolution.

NOW WANT MONEY FOR SULPHUR BATHS

Playgrounds People Say $500 Is Too Small For Swimming Pools.

Rev. J. Gibson Inkster and Mr. Geo. S. Gibbons appeared before the board of works last evening and asked that the $500 recently set aside by the city for the purpose of providing swimming pools for boys in the river, be handed over to the Playgrounds Association to be used in providing more accommo-dation for children at the sulphur baths on Thames street. It was stated by the deputation that the sum of $500 too small to do anything in the way of providing swimming pools for boys used to better advantage at the sulphur baths.

As the meeting was a minority one, only Chairman Robinson and Ald. Blandford being present, it was decided to defer action on the matter, and the council will be asked at once to say what shall be done with the re

NEW YORK, July 12.—Further pressure was exerted against some of the leading issues today, with a new low record for St. Paul. Union Pacific also felt the force of the selling, which was mainly directed, however, against the metal stocks, including Amalgamated Copper and, Smelting. According to common report, there has recently grown up a formidable bear party, which is devoting no little attention to the Copper stocks, predicting its attitude on what is believed to be overmanipulation in those shares here and abroad. The balance of the list was relatively steady, with light dealings. The bond market was irregular.

BRAND NEW STORY OF AN AFRICAN FARM

English Lady Shows It To Be One of Best Agricultural Countries.

London, July 12 .- Another story of an African farm is told by Mrs. H. J. Langridge, who has just returned to London after four years' residence in British Africa, where she has engaged in fruit growing. Mrs. Langridge is of opinion that the country offers one of the greatest fields in the world to energetic agriculturists who have capital. of from $10,000 to $25,000.

She has had great success in her present enterprise, and when she returns in a few months she is going to turn her attention to coffee, which she will grow on a tract of land which she has purchased, adjoining, her husband's plantation, and 16 miles from her present farm. Coffee, she says, is easy to grow, needs less capital than any other product, and is sure of a continuous and expanding market.

Mrs. Langridge's fruit farm is known as the N' Gelani estate, and it is near Manchako Town, about 30 miles from the Uganda Railway, in the highlands of British East Africa. She has about a hundred acres and it is all under cultivation. The farm has been out for more than 25 years, but it is only recently under her management that it has been made a paying propo-

It is at present the only actual fruit bearing farm in the colony, although others are under cultivation. It contains 7,000 apple trees, besides oranges, lemons, pineapples, tangerines, plums, peaches, figs, apricots, green gages, guavas, quinces, pomegranates, and vines. She has on it 50 ostriches, 30 head of cattle, a small flock of sheep and a poultry farm. The main crop so far, however, comes from the apple trees. It pays best at present to push this crop, because it can be easily packed and shipped to Uganda, German East Africa, Zanzibar, Aden, and other parts. "The apple crop is truly remarkable," says Mrs. Langridge. "We start picking apples in December and continue without break until August. In August I strip the trees of their leaves and whitewash the bark all the way up in order to give the trees a forced rest. The trees are blossoming, fruiting and ripening all at the same time. You can see the bud, blossom, small and large fruit on the tree at one and the same

"The singular evenness of climate accounts for this remarkable fertility. The sun rises at 6 arm. and sets at 6 p.m. with unswerving regularity, and every night a cool mist comes down on the hills so that every morning everything is thoroughly moistened. There are two rainy seasons, in November and March, but the elements are very obliging and the rain descends only at night time."

The natives work very well and are very quiet and teachable. Only male help, however, is possible, as the Girls are sold at 16 years of age to the highest bidder in cows, the natives trading entirely in cows and goods. Girls are never allowed to enter do-mestic service, and the British Government will not allow Europeans to purchase girls for that purpose. The best native male servant is found in the boy who is taken away from his surroundings at about 10 o r12 years, and given a thorough training in European ways. He is then very quek and willing to learn.

DECISIVE LIBERAL VICTORY IN SASKATCHEWAN

RECIPROCITY THE ISSUE,

Or the other hand, Walter Scott, in a manifesto issued a few days before the election declaring that reciprocity and the wider markets' question generally was the only issue before the electors, and in this he was in great measure borne out by the facts. There was little or no criticism of the administrative record of the Government during the campaign. In general it was admitted to be good, though some small points in it were brought up for dis-

PLANKS WERE SAME.

Further, the planks in the Scott platform and the Haultain platform were practically identical, both policies including good roads, the return of the Provincial domain to Provincial control, cheap money for farmers, loans and railway extensions. The points at issue were, therefore, confined to two. One was a matter of political history, Haultain alleging Scott was not the rightful premier of Saskatchewan-that this honor was stolen from him (Haultain) at the time autonomy was granted. The other was the question of wider markets. Haultain derided the introduction of a question on which Saskatchewan could take no action, that is reciprocity. stolen from him, that the election was Conservative Slogan. At the same time the Conservative brought on without sufficient notice. slogan throughout the province was "Saskatchewan for Borden and Hauling the province for a month before the tain," and federal issues were kept ing the province for a month before the prominent throughout the campaign by the Conservative speakers, such as the Haultain had all the federal help that the Conservative speakers, such as the Borden Government's new homestead regulations, the public ownership of elevators at the head of the takes, and others. The Scott candidates kept always prominent the "wider, markets" question, on which Liberalism swept Saskatchewan last September into a ratio of nine to one. "If Saskatchewan does not announce to the world that it considers reciprocity still a live question, who then will not consider it dead?" was their reasoning.

In organization the two parties en-tered the contest on an equal basis. In jority would be smaller than in the last Haultain Had Help. 1908 Haultain claimed the province was House.

EARLIER DISPATCHES

Regina, Sask., July 11.—Late returns tonight show that the Scott Government has carried the province by a large majority. The defeat of the Opposition was decisive, former Conservative strongholds, such as Souris, Pipestone, Last Mountain, Moose Mountain, and Pheasant Hills, returning supporters of the Government by substantial majorities. In four cities the Conservatives did fairly well, splitting fairly even in Moose Jaw, the Liberals helding Regina and Saskaton. The Liberals showed remarkable gains, the holding Regina and Saskatoon. The Liberals showed remarkable gains, the farmers apparently regarding the question of wider markets, which was such a prominent feature in the campaign as of paramount importance, insuch a prominent feature in the campaign as of parametric importance, massuch as throughout the campaign the Opposition levelled little or no criticism at the records and policies of the Government. Mr. Haultain himself had a narrow win in South Qu'Appelle. Final results tonight give him only 20 majority. Two of his chief lieutenants, Dr. W. Elliott and A. B. Gillis, both went down to defeat. Tremendous interest was taken in the result in the capital, and throughout the province. In the city, as soon as returns definitely established the return of the Government, the Liberals organized an impromptu procession and with bands playing paraded the city streets. Tomorrow it is proposed to organize a great demonstration, in which most of the successful Liberal andidates will participate. The Liberals attribute their success to the record of the Government. combined with the desire of the farmers of Saskatchewan to again go on record as demanding an outlet to the south for their grain.

CONSERVATIVES MUM.

The Conservatives have little to say on the result. They maintain that eciprocity was an issue that should not have been introduced into the camaign. They admit themselves defeated, however, after a hard, straight fight, which the Opposition fought under more favorable conditions as to organzation of party funds than in any previous contest since the province was reated.

DISCUSSION OF HELL DEAD SAY NOTED ENGLISH DIVINES Mr. McDermid and Mr. Glass made contributions towards the financing of Old Land Little Interested in say that individual American divines are the Question of Eternal Punishment.

[Canada Press.] New York, July 12.—A London cable says: Commenting upon the "decision" that hell is a myth, arrived at by the International Bible Students' Association, n session at Washington this week, coupled with requests that every minister in the United States publish his views, Canon Henson, of Westminster Abbey, one of the foremost divines of the Anglinot the equals of ours on any question. Such discussion as that is inconceivable in a seriously representative body here. It was done with a generation ago. You can't get any public interest about such a matter here. People would say you were 'flogging a dead horse.' My predecessor, Dean (afterward Canon) Farrar, on publishing his book, 'Eternal Hope,' raised the controversy, but even then the serious opposition was insignificant."

The Rev. J. R. Campbell, representing the Nonconformist feeling, took the same view, saying: "This seems to be to be a very belated pronouncement. I don't know any clergyman here who believes in eternal punishment; nor do I think any can Church, said:

"I think the American religious public educated clergyman has done so for many is generations behind us, although I don't years."

BORDEN CONFERS WITH IMPERIAL MINISTERS

Naval Plans of Great Britain Shown to Canadian Premier.

London, July 11. — Today Premier Borden and his colleagues devoted themselves almost entirely to a con-ference with the British ministers. It is understood that there came from Downing street to the Canadian Premier on Wednesday a memorandum which outlined the naval posi-tion of Great Britain, and stated her political relations with the powers. What this document contains will possibly never be known by the public, but upon its representations of the course of events depends largely the dealing with the Canadian Pre-mier's utterance at the Royal Colonial Institute dinner.

Added interest is given Mr. Borden's utterance at the Royal Colonial Institute dinner yesterday, heartily indorsing the proposal that Canada join the mother country in celebrat-ing the century of peace between Great Britain and the United States by reason of his having called on Mr. Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, on Wednesday morning.

REV. DR. GOODSPEED TAKEN BY DEATH

Was For Fifteen Years a Professor in McMaster Baptist University.

Toronto, July 12. - The Baptist Church in Canada suffered a very distinct loss in the death on Saturday last, at his home in Paradise, Nova Scotia, of Rev. Calvin Goodspeed, M.A., D.D. Dr. Goodspeed was well known and very highly esteemed in Toronto, having spent fifteen years in this city as professor of systematic theology and apologetics in McMaster University. During those years his home was on Albany avenue and he was a member of College Street Baptist Church, where he was a great ehlp. Mrs. Goodspeed

Dr. Goodspeed will be remembered Dr. Goodspeed will be remembered as of very striking appearance, owing to his height of six feet six inches. He was very active in study and teaching, and, although over 70 years of age, he had, during the last two years, given lectures in Acadia University. Previous to 1878 Dr. Goodspeed was for four years pastor of the First Baptist Church, Woodstock, Ont., after which, for two years, he taught in the theological department at Woodstock College. Following this he spent several years in Germany in theological study, and, on his return, became passudy, and, on his return, became passudy. eral years in Germany in theological study, and, on his return, became pastor of the First Baptist Church, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. ### GOTHAM LOAN SHARKS PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

Money Lenders to Close Out at Legal Rate and Shut Up Shops.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, July 12. - After many years of agitation, the efforts of the Russell Sage Foundation and other New York charitable societies, to put the "loan shark' moneylenders out of business, have apparently been crowned with success. A law passed by the last Legislature has been sustained by the courts, and the money-lenders, after a formal meeting to discuss the situation, have agreed to close out all their loans at the legal rate

The consensus of opinion at the moneylenders' meeting was that the business was dead, and that it would be wiser for the men, if they did not want to be forever in the toils of the law, to give it up. Desperate efforts were made by the 54 different companies represented to collect outstanding loans at the old rates before quitting. Arrests came in such rapid succession, however, that the

The only defensive move made by the loan men was the appointment of a committee to confer with the agents of the Russell Sage Foundation and assure that body they would favor any bill to be introduced into the next Legislature fixing a fair rate of in-

WAKE UP ENGLAND SAY ENGLISH PAPERS

Great Britain Growing Decadent in Developing Athletes.

[Canadian Press.]
July 12. — The English London, newspapers devote comparatively small attention to the Olympic games, and the public generally appear not to be president of the Oxford University A. C., who roundly complains that while "found and made athletics" unparalleled, perhaps since the days of Pheidippides, and that the ganized gymnastics on a scale passing classical Greece, Great Britain has not even made a bid for victory. He declares that the British team did not train to win, did not run to win, and was not organized to win, and after a comparison of the British methods with the splendid orfolk games will be taught, as well as ganization, training and discipline of the Americans and Scandinavians. "We lost because we desired to says:

The Daily Mail, in an editorial on the Olympic games, while protesting American newspapers representing Great Britain as decadent, as being absurd and unjust, says that: "If we are not to disgrace ourselves at the next Olympic at Berlin, British Olympic committee will do well to ponder the King's famous words: 'Wake up, England.'"

BOURASSA COMMENTS ON BORDEN'S SPEECH

Pleased That Premier Is More Reserved in Regard to a Contribution.

[Canadian Press.] Montreal, July 12. — In an article under his signature in Le Devoir, Mr. Henri Bourassa comments on Mr. Borden's speech. While reserving his final judgment till the full report, as well as the minister's final action, are known, he notes with satisfaction that the Prime Minister is more reserved than in the past on the subject of an extraordinary contribution, and more explicit on Canada's right of representation in the political government of the empire, as a condition previous to any regular contribution to imperial defence. Mr. Borden himself had expected for 1912 a war between Great Britain and Germany, while it seems any combination of powers. Moreover, an influential portion the British cabinet is endeavoring to bring about an understanding with Germany as to a permanent policy. No representation would be satisfactory unless it were a direct, popular representation, participating in full with the other portions of the empire in the complete control of the imperial affairs, which was flatly denied by Mr. Asquith in 1911. In conclusion Mr. Bourassa writes:

"To give or offer an immediate and extraordinary contribution on account of the German peril, when half the British cabinet do not believe in the danger, and the other half are preparing for an alliance with Germany, would be grotesque."

"To acknowledge the moral duty of Canada to share in the general de-fence of the empire, otherwise than by organizing the defence of her own territory, as long as Great Britain refuses to Canada the right to participate effectually in the general policy of the empire, would be shameful."

THE INFLUENCE OF RUSKIN ON LABOR UNREST.

[Sidney Low, in the London Daily Mail.]

The French Revolution, it has often been said, was the work of Jean Jacques Rousseau. If there is to be an Indiana. Rousseau. If there is to be an English revolution it may be largely put down to John Ruskin. In these days Ruskin, I believe, is out of fashion with superior people. He is regarded as a primant writer with eccentric views on art and writer with eccentric views on art and architecture, conveyed in lovely prose style, and with opinions on ethics and economics that need not be taken seriously. I am told that intellectual and outly of needle do not read Ruskin any vilege attaches to the fact." He is regarded as a brilliant cultured people do not read Ruskin any more than they read his master Carlyle. But the younger generation of workingmen, the intellectuals of the forge and factory, have been reading both with desperate eagerness, not "The Stones of Venice," not gossip about the married life of lane Welsh and the squabblings of of Jane Welsh and the squabblings of Cheyne Row, but "Fors Clavigera" and "Unto This Last," and "Chartism," and "Past and Present." The hunger for the larger share of material good things, the impatience with poverty and hard living, are justified by ethical and economic arguments drawn from the armory of the great Victorian preachers. There is an idealist side to the labor unrest; social envy may be the sub-conscious motive but it is submerged in the sense of social injustice. There are more young work-men than we may imagine who believe with Ruskin that if our society were rightly organized the life of cultivated 16' after her name."
