Concentrated Effort Urged to Have Present Council Act.

NOW OUT OF DATE.

Fire Engineer States Present One Should Be Scrapped or Overhauled.

Fire insurance rates and fire risk in London, combined with this winter's heavy fire record, have brought to the front again the often-postponed question of London's fire alarm system.

More properly, it has brought to the front the absence of an efficient alarm system, and it is probable that some concerted effort will be made to secure from the city council the $16,000 estimated as necessary to give the city adequate protection.

For the last ten years Fire Chief Atkin's annual recommendations have included request for proper alarm equipment, and with equal regularity the city council has sought economy by striking that item from the list of estimates. This procedure has become so accepted a habit that the actual facts of the situation are now in danger of being regarded as an ancient and, therefore, uninteresting story.

It is, nevertheless, a disturbing fact that London has an obsolete fire alarm system, which as a protection of life and property simply does not function. This fact has been stated not merely by local fire officials, but by the provincial fire marshal's department, and by the citizens' research institute in the report presented by Dr. Horace L. Britton. The present inefficient alarm system is given as a source of financial loss in that it contributes materially to the high fire insurance rates imposed on London, and because of its worn-out condition, entails unnecessary operating cost. An electrical expert, for example, has estimated that the cost of operating the present alarm batteries is fifty times greater than the cost of operating a modern system.

It is uncomfortable, but none the less accepted admission, that no other city in Western Ontario employs such an antiquated central office alarm system. The fact that the $16,000 insurance companies already know it, so does the provincial department.

Great areas of lemon and tangerine trees in the Batumi district have suffered.

HERRIOT'S BERLIN ANSWER LAUDED

Wednesday's Speech Seen as "Formidable Reply to Stresemann's Note."

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Jan. 29.—Premier Herriot's "security speech" in the chamber of deputies yesterday, calls forth laudatory comment today from practically all the morning newspapers, including those of the opposition.

The Conservative Figaro says the speech constitutes "a formidable reply to Stresemann's note" referring to Germany's answer to the allied communication regarding violations of the disarmament clauses of the Versailles treaty.

The equally conservative Gaulois remarks: "We will see if M. Herriot will know how to maintain himself on the firm line upon which he set his foot yesterday. The chamber's last vote on the Poincaré clause will encourage him to do so."

LOSS BY FIRE IN MONTREAL $1,500,000

Business District Is Swept by Conflagrations Involving 26 Firms.

FIREMAN RESCUED

Lieut. Desjardines Taken From Ruins Alive When All Hope Abandoned.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, Jan. 29.—The most disastrous fires to occur in Montreal for some years, last night and early this morning caused loss in the downtown wholesale and business district roughly estimated at $1,500,000, and completely gutted the premises of 26 firms which were damaged by the flames, smoke, ice and water as to cause an almost total loss of the property. One fireman, Lieutenant Desjardines, was buried for hours under a mass of beams and ice, and this morning lay at death's door in the general hospital, flying timbers from an explosion of ether and chloroform in the premises of La Societe des Produits Francaises, and by falling masses of debris.

Intense cold, running to 20 degrees below zero, greatly impeded the work of the fire fighters and added to the dangers with which they were threatened.

Fireman Is Rescued.
Lost sustained by the fire firm of A. J. Alexander, Limited, to whose premises the flames spread, was estimated by the company's officials at $100,000.

Lieut. Desjardines was courageous in attempting to take a line of hose into the interior of the building and was caught when two floors caved in. He was completely buried under a mass of debris. It was his work to cut his way out, but he could not escape, but his companions worked heroically to get to him. He called out encouragingly to them, and they worked slowly on account of the smoke and heat. After several hours hope was almost despaired of when his voice was heard. He was terribly thirsty and that the fire had reached him. A deluge of water directed there checked the fire and gave him relief.

Ultimately the workers were rewarded by lifting some wood and seeing the lieutenant wedged down under some rubble. It was the work of a moment then only to get him out. He was at once rushed to a hospital.

At the outset of the fire another rescue took place. A passenger, James Leach, noticed flames in the building next to that of the Poulin concern. He broke down the door and notified A. O. Morin, head of Poulin & Co., of his danger, but as the flames swept into the building, Mr. Morin had to be assisted out by Leach.

The firemen were warned by Morin, who was watching the fire from across the street, that the building was going to collapse, and that there might be an explosion from ether stored in it. This was what happened. A number of fire fighters who were knocked down by debris were hauled out immediately by their comrades. It took some minutes to secure one man, Jos Brains. He was located in the ruins and carried out by District Chief Bernier.

Seven firemen were treated at the local hospital for injuries in this fire. The whole fire-fighting force of Montreal was busy last night. Desjardines was taken into the various dominions. There were 422 members of the fire-fighting force of Montreal. The fire had not yet been fixed.

Already committees are at work on the local arrangement for the first great general council of the United Church of Canada, the general superintendent of the Methodist church and the chairman of the Congregational union of Canada. The date has not yet been fixed.

William Russell, a younger brother of his, entered the room unnoticed and picked up the revolver which had been placed on the bed. The weapon discharged, and the bullet entered Montgomery's brain. He died in the hospital about an hour later.

UNION CHURCH VISIONS 700,000 MEMBERSHIP

Toronto Committee Makes Prediction of Strength After June 10.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Jan. 29.—The United Church of Canada will have more than 700,000 communicant members on the consummation of the union of Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational denominations, after June 10 next, after making all allowances for their members who will remain with the continuing Presbyterian church. This estimate has been made by the officials of the church union committee, which also is responsible for the statement that there will be approximately 2,000 churches and preaching places in the United Church of Canada, and at least 3,000 clergymen and 630 missionaries.

According to the act, the consummation is to take place "in the city of Toronto, at such place and at such hour as may be agreed upon by the moderator of the Presbyterian church in Canada, the general superintendent of the Methodist church and the chairman of the Congregational union of Canada. The date has not yet been fixed.

MOORING OF AIRSHIPS PRESENTS DIFFICULTIES

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Jan. 29.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin works, and commander of the "Zit-3" (now the "Los Angeles") on her memorable trip to the United States, is here discussing with airship builders a plan for the adoption of a standard type of mooring mast as the first step toward international airship service. He is quoted by the Westminster Gazette as saying that there were a great many technical difficulties to overcome, but that he is hopeful of success.

"If the British airship authorities come into line," he added, "the cooperation of the rest of the world can be obtained with little difficulty. I am optimistic that the allies before long will withdraw or allow to drop the restrictions regarding airship construction by Germany. International airship communication will then receive a great impetus."

BIRTHS DECREASING, BABY DEATHS INCREASE

Fewer Babies Born and More Die in English-Speaking Canada.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Jan. 29.—Fewer babies are born and more babies die in English-speaking Canada as the years go by, judging by a return of the Dominion bureau of statistics on vital statistics for Canada (exclusive of Quebec), for July, 1924, the latest record available.

For that month the birth rate per 1,000 of population was 28, compared with 23.8 for July, 1923; 25.4 in 1922, and 26.4 in 1921. The death rate in July, 1924, amongst infants under one year old in the same area was 65 per 1,000 of living births, which figure is 3.3 higher than in July, 1923, and 2.0 higher than in July, 1922. It is, however, lower by 5.8 than the infant mortality of July, 1921.

All the foregoing figures are exclusive of stillbirths.

In July, 1924, there were 3,991 marriages, maintaining the average of the last three years with only a fractional decrease. The number of deaths, 4,844, also was about the same as in previous years.

COMMUNISTS CLASH WITH FRENCH PATRIOTS

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Jan. 29.—Fifteen persons were injured in a clash last night between attendees at a meeting of General de Castelnau's patriots' league and Communists who endeavored to break up the gathering. The members of the league welcomed the general to the strains of the "Marseillaise" which the Communists tried to drown out with "The Internationale." The Communist deputies taking part in the demonstration were severely handled and canes and umbrellas were freely used. One of the Communists was finally granted the privilege of the rostrum in order to ask his supporters to leave.

The exit of the trouble-makers was marked by the explosion of firecrackers set off by wags, but police intervention prevented further incidents.

350 IN DELEGATION

Premier and Lieut.-Governor Head Large Body to Quebec Reception.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Quebec, Jan. 29.—The gates of the ancient capital were thrown wide open this morning to receive more than three hundred and fifty citizens of Ontario imbued with the spirit of goodwill and mutual understanding, anxious to bring to French Canada the most cordial of greetings from the sister English province.

The warmth of the welcome accorded the visitors was not stinted, and today these three hundred and fifty Ontarians are being made to feel that the old city of Champlain is a lover of true friendship.

When the visitors arrived at the palace station in 12:30 p.m. late but nevertheless happy in the knowledge that they were here, a large crowd of Quebecers met them, and from the degrees of enthusiasm manifested in hand were quick to remove matters by making new arrangements which would not change the events of the schedule for the afternoon.

The delay in arrival was caused by uncoupling of the first train between Montreal and Quebec.

The mission is headed by His Honor, Lieutenant-Governor Cockfield, and Premier G. H. Ferguson, Cabinet ministers of the Ontario province, including Hon. J. H. Macdonald, Hon. J. C. Goldie, provincial secretary, Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, provincial minister of health, Hon. G. S. Henry, minister of public works, Hon. J. S. Lyons, minister of lands and forests, Hon. T. H. Price, provincial treasurer, and Hon. J. E. Thompson, speaker of the legislative assembly.

Kerr, managing editor of the Spectator, Hamilton; R. H. Kemp, M.L.A., Hon. J. Leckie, Hon. C. C. McCullough, Hamilton; Major-General McBurn, Hon. H. H. Macdonald, London; A. J. Page, Hamilton; J. W. Taylor, Sentinel, Windsor; Woodstock, and H. R. Burgess, Woodstock, St. Catharines.

A number of officers of the Canadian National Railways accompanied the party from Toronto, and others from Montreal left last night for Quebec to meet the party on arrival there. These include J. E. Dalrymple, traffic vice-president; H. H. McLennan, general passenger traffic manager, and C. W. Johnston, passenger traffic manager.

ST. JOHN'S PHONE SYSTEM TALKED

Township Subscribers Given Until Feb. 16 to Make Purchase Offer.

London township subscribers of the St. John's telephone system have until Feb. 16 to make an offer for the system owned by Mrs. McNeil, widow of the late Dr. McNeil, and which the Bell Telephone Company has offered to purchase. It is understood that the price is $17,000.

This was the decision of A. E. Ingram, vice-chairman of the Ontario railway board, which met at the court house this morning to discuss the matter with Bell officials and township subscribers. W. B. Henderson represented Mrs. McNeil.

A. C. Hodgkins, receiver of London township, stated at the close of the meeting that he would not be surprised if the St. John's system was taken over and added to the present township municipal system. A meeting will be held early next week by the subscribers at St. John's, and something definite arrived at.

It seems to me that the arrangement carried out by the late Dr. Mc-Neil must be changed," said Mr.
Ingram. "I will be making an offer to Mrs. McNeil and failing that, I shall recommend to the board approval of the sale to the Bell Telephone Company."

"Certain parties have received service for less than cost. You cannot conduct a telephone system or a farm either without reasonable returns."
In the early days of telephone systems, they were constructed in a cheap way and later reconstruction, costing more, meant higher rates.

There are 300 users of the St. John's system, 100 of whom have direct connection with the city without extra cost. The remainder have to pay 10 cents a call to the city, one subscriber stated to the Advertiser at the conclusion of the meeting.

A. B. Ingram was accompanied by Francis Duggan, telephone expert, and W. C. Cox, as secretary.

The case for the Bell company was explained by T. H. Ashley, R. Burrows and A. Smith, who stated that they would be glad to confer with the St. John's people at any time and explain matters to them regarding rates, etc.

A general meeting of the subscribers of the St. John's telephone system is to be held on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in St. John's.

Chickenpox.

Several cases of chickenpox have been reported in the city. New cases of the disease, however, were also quarantined by the city health department today.

DEALS WITH CHILD

Question of Mentally Defective
Parents to Receive Utmost Consideration.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Hamilton, Jan. 29.—The social service council this morning when considering the report on child welfare presented by Miss Barbara Blackstock in favour of the "children's charter" of the league of nations. By the declaration of the rights of the child, commonly known as the "declaration of Geneva," men and women of all nations recognize that mankind owes to the child the best that it has to give beyond and above all considerations of race, nationality or creed.

Miss Dorothy Farmcomb reported for the committee on the family and on her suggestion the council authorized the committee for 1925 to make a careful study of the "mentally defective parent as a family problem."

Rt. Rev. Bishop Sweeney of Toronto presented the report of the committee on social hygiene.

The work of this committee included sex hygiene education by personal addresses and lectures, literature and books; the suppression of books, magazines and literature that are objectionable on moral or other grounds; opposing the use of the illicit traffic in habit forming drugs such as cocaine, morphine, heroin; the elimination of the traffic in women and children for immoral purposes; and of commercialized sex vice.

Deals With Narcotic Traffic.
Report made on the traffic in narcotics, a broken leg and other injuries, and Henry Roberts, 22 years old, 222 Rosedale avenue, Sandwich, was severely bruised at the Sandwich plant of the Canadian Salt Company this morning when a large pile of loose salt collapsed, burying the men.

Glode and Roberts were at work filling bags when the pile of salt collapsed suddenly, other workmen pulling them out from under in time to prevent suffocation. Dr. W. J.
Bensley, of Sandwich, was called and ordered the men removed to Hotel Dieu, where their injuries were thoroughly examined.

Roberts will be able to leave the hospital in a few days, it is expected.

Party Refuses to Sanction Dis-

"Security" Speech.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, Jan. 29.—Premier Herriot's speech in the chamber of deputies yesterday, in which he attacked the socialist wing of the government as reactionary in its treatment of the security problem, caused them to manifest their first symptom of breaking under pressure. The government, at a caucus they decided to abstain from voting on a proposal to place the premier's speech in all public places in France.

After a spirited discussion, and disorders which resulted in the temporary suspension of the sitting,
the chamber finally voted "diffidence"
for the Herriot speech, implying confidence in the government's policy on all questions treated in it. The vote was 541 to 32.

REFORMED SENATE PLEA
HEARD BY GRAIN MEN

Provinces Should Get Equal Representation, Dr. T. A.
Patrick Declares.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Regina, Sask., Jan. 29.—A plea for a reformed senate was made here last night by Dr. T. A. Patrick of Yorkton, addressing the Saskatchewan grain growers. He was not in favor of abolishing the second chamber, which he considered "a brake on the motor of legislation, bulwark in the ship of state," but he advocated strongly giving the provinces equal representation in the senate, following the system of the Dominion Provincials. He stated that the 16 members from each province should be sufficient, said Dr. Patrick.

Such a body, he stated, would provide a check on the hasty action of the house, and would be a bulwark against conflicting interests among the provinces. These senators should be elected by popular vote in the provinces under provincial representation and no senator should be a member of a government.

AUTHORITIES CONDEMN
FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

Concluded From Page 1.

"The present equipment is highly antiquated and should be scrapped or overhauled. Two things are of the utmost importance during a fire—a quick alarm and a quick response. The system in use in the city now is not accurate. It is entirely out of date."

Although installation of a new fire alarm system in London would not immediately be reduced, Mr. Ritchie is of the opinion that the insurance companies undoubtedly take this question into consideration when striking the rates.

The following extracts from the British report indicate the opinion of other outside authorities:
"In connection with the fire alarm system in London, very little can be added by the institute to that which has already been set down and recommended in the fire underwriters' report, or to the recommendations which have been made to the committee and council by the chief from time to time in this connection. These recommendations have been stated most emphatically that a new fire alarm telegraph system is needed, but the council have on each and every occasion deleted the item from the estimate on the grounds of economy."

"An important point in favor of the fire alarm telegraph is that there is not the same possibility of error as there is in the use of the telephone.
In an up-to-date telegraph system,
the alarm is automatically registered as it comes in and the possibility of mistake is practically eliminated. This is not the case with alarm sent over the telephone."

More Convenient.
"A telegraph system is more convenient for night hours. With the up-to-date fire alarm telegraph system it is possible to get much greater co-operation and much quicker action in connection with night fires. Under existing circumstances, where the use of private citizens' telephones is relied upon to a large extent for this purpose, much valuable time is frequently lost in sending in an alarm.
The danger of the frequent delay which overhauled often cause to the department in fighting fires, especially in down-town districts, is well known to the authorities in London.
The efficiency of the telegraph system is also greatly increased when alarm are placed underground."

NEW ICEHOUSES BUILT
TO MEET JUMP IN DEMAND

The increased demand for good ice for the use of the fisheries at Port Stanley during the last two or three years has made it necessary for several new ice houses to be built.
The latest of these is the one being constructed for J. Padden, who intends to engage in the pond net fishing next spring. Mr. Padden's old house and equipment was destroyed by fire last fall.

The ice house is situated on the banks of the river and is a large

GUIDES TO APPEAR IN CEREMONIALS

Public Invited to See Exhibition of Guide Work in St. Peter's Hall.

Impressive ceremonies and a public demonstration of all the work a Girl Guide does will be given in St. Peter's Hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the local Girl Guides association, of which Mrs. P. P. Betts is president. The ceremonies are being given under the personal direction of Mrs. Stanley Wallace of Walkerville, district commissioner for Girl Guides in Essex and Kent. Mrs. Ernest Smith, provincial commissioner, and Mrs. Allan McLean, commissioner for London, will be present.

The ceremonies will come as a conclusion to the Girl Guides training course which has been conducted in the city for the past two months. The meeting will be an informal one, and those who are interested in Guiding are cordially invited to attend.

The hall is to be transformed into an appropriate setting for the occasion. The life of the Guide will be given from the first meeting she attends as a recruit until she becomes a Ranger. There will be drills and explanations of the work, and what it means to be a Guide. There will also be examples of a few of the important rites that are performed when a girl is promoted.

Among these will be the "Flying-up ceremony," when the girl of 11 years of age receives her wings and becomes a Guide. Then all the stages of being a Guide with the tenderfoot enrollment will be enacted, and the "Camp Fire ceremony" and the "Candle ceremony" presented.

It will be shown how when a Guide is 15 years of age she is once more promoted and becomes a Ranger. The Ranger enrollment will be presented, and the girls will sit around the improved camp fire and sing some of the Guide songs.

Mix Together Good Nature and the Appreciation of Each Other's Virtues, Sweeten With the Ability to Love.

A correspondent asks what qualities a husband and wife should possess in order to make marriage a success.

The ability to love.

Not every one possesses it. Indeed, a talent for loving is just as rare as a tenor voice, yet only those who have this great gift ever make matrimony a grand, sweet song, instead of thirty or forty years of perpetual discord.

It is a great thing to be loved, but it is far more important to be the lover than to be the beloved one. For only love blinds our eyes to the faults of those with whom we live, and makes their eccentricities and peculiarities interesting characteristics, instead of damnable faults and weaknesses that get upon our nerves.

A grain of love outcraigs a ton of the standardized virtues. It doesn't make every man what an individual is. It is what we think he or she is that counts, and a marriage is successful only so long as a husband and wife are so hypnotized that they see in each other only what they want to see.

Good nature.

It is the dispositions of those we marry with which we have to live. It is the morning smile across the breakfast table; the cheery greeting;

Are You Tortured With Eczema?

Eczema, or Salt Rheum, as it is commonly called, is one of the most agonizing of all skin diseases. The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the parts are exposed to heat, are almost unbearable and relief is greatly welcomed.

The most reliable and effective remedy for this trouble is

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Mrs. J. R. Johnson, R.R. No. 1, Oshawa, Ont., writes:—"For years I was troubled with eczema, and had that terrible itching and burning sensation, and could find no relief for it. Finally, I was advised to use B.B.B., and after my second bottle I began to see a great difference, and I can now advise anyone troubled as I was to use this wonderful remedy."

Wrinkles Disappear in Less Than 15 Minutes.

What if you could look in your mirror and see your wrinkles, crow's feet, age lines and flabbiness literally melt away while you looked? You would scarcely believe your own eyes. Yet it is within your power to witness such a "miracle" this very day. You need only mix a spoonful of powdered tartrock with a spoonful of lemon juice, smooth this soothing cream lotion over your face, and watch the hated lines and saggy vanish like magic! See your face become years younger in appearance! Even quite old faces are very materially rejuvenated.

Tartrock is not a cosmetic, not a make-up, but a powerful skin cleanser. After it has done its work, it is decidedly beneficial to the complexion. It is difficult to believe so simple a thing can accomplish such marvelous results in just a few minutes, but the experiment is most convincing. An original package of powdered tartrock from your druggist brings the cost down to about three cents a treatment.—Adv.

WOMEN and THE HOME

W.C.T.U. FIELD WORKER TO RESIDE IN LONDON

Mrs. T. T. George Will Initiate Medal Contests Throughout the Province.

Mrs. T. T. George of Parkhill, field worker for the Ontario W. C. T. U., has come to the city recently and will make her headquarters here. Mrs. George has been appointed to this work with a special view to starting medal contests throughout the province in the interests of scientific temperance education.

She was present at this week's meeting of the local branch of the W. C. T. U., with several other special guests, including Mrs. Lancaster of Petrolia, Mrs. Kate Maxwell of Kingsville, Mrs. Elsie of Monrovia, Mrs. M. Hawken, president of the newly organized Ward 3 union; Mrs. Bolton of Warton, and David Ross of this city, president of the general London temperance organization.

Announcement was made at the meeting that Miss Rosemond Dunn, provincial W. C. T. U. and L. T. L. organizer, would visit the city for a week in March. Mrs. Flora Yorkie Miller was appointed to arrange for the visit.

Since the organization of new unions in the city, the mother organization has decided to take the name Central W. C. T. U. Women from Wards 2 and 4 will belong to the central union. Wards 1 and 3 have organized branches.

Very full and interesting reports of the national annual meeting in Toronto recently were given by Mrs. May R. Thornley and Mrs. T. T. George. Mrs. H. W. Paddell was in the chair.

the contented spirit; the optimistic outlook; the reasonable attitude; the courageous meeting of all the vicissitudes of life that make the husbands and wives whose price is above rubies, and whose yokemates are in a state of perpetual thanksgiving for their luck in having drawn such prizes in the matrimonial lottery.

Beauty, brilliance, wit, cleverness, morality, sobriety, high and noble principles are all admirable and highly desirable qualities in those we marry, but they are the Sunday clothes, so to speak, of matrimony.

The possession of them, or their lack of them, does not make our marriage our happiness or the good or bad disposition of our life partners.

A pretty face does not compensate for a selfish, peevish, fretful, discontented nature, and no man pines to come home at night to a wife who is as witty and sarcastic tongue will spare none of his shortcomings.

Nor do any of a man's achievements, however great, make up to his wife for his being self-centered and egotistic, or gloomy and grouchy around the home, or one who dwells on his own family's rascled nerves and the surly temper he dares not inflict upon the public. Poor Jane Carlyle warned all women who expected happiness in marriage against marrying a genius, and doubtless every other husband or wife who has a genius for matrimony has felt like giving the same advice.

A sense of justice.

That is the most needed, and the rarest thing in matrimony. Men and women give each other sacrifices for each other, but when it comes to playing the game of matrimony fair and square and dividing fifty-fifty on its work and worry and pleasures and perquisites, they seem unable to do it, and get nothing else would do so much to assure their happiness.

A man will work his fingers to the bone in order to pay his wife's bills and support her in ease and comfort, but he will not be just with her and make a fair divide of their income. He humiliates her by making her come like a beggar to him for every penny, and she is sore and disgruntled because she feels that she isn't getting a square deal.

A wife adores her husband, and because she loves him she feels that she has a right to monopolize and enslave him. She can't be just enough to see that he has a right to some personal liberty and to a few hours of a week to amuse himself in his own way, and according to his own taste, and that every minute that isn't spent toiling for her and the children must be passed under her watchful eye, doing the things she enjoys doing.

It is because husbands and wives try to tyrannize over each other and force their own opinions and habits on each other, that marriage is so often a failure. If married couples would simply try to be just to one another, it would usher in a domestic millennium.

Appreciation.

You could almost answer the question, "What's the matter with marriage?" in one word.

It's "dumbness." It is because husbands and wives grow eloquent over each other's faults and failures, and are silent as the grave about each other's virtues.

POCKETS FOR DICE.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Jan. 28.—The flat envelope bag of leather or tapestry still continues eminently fashionable, but some features have been added to the accessories with which it is equipped. One bag has pockets for a pair of dice, and its owner calls it her game bag.

FLOUNCES AND FLARES.

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Jan. 28.—Flounces and flares are the watchwords today among the designers of youthful silk frocks. This is especially noticeable in the new design for young girls. These simple dresses, in one-piece design, with square neck and diminutive sleeves, are being widely purchased by college girls for spring.

STRAPLESS LINGERIE.

Special to The Advertiser.

London, Jan. 28.—Strapless lingerie has taken a firm hold here. It has to be a firm hold to prevent one's losing vest and equality at the same time. The strapless lace is especially applicable for wear with evening frocks. Nottingham lace is being freely used in the trimming of these garments.

"SCARLET FOLLY" RAGES.

London, Jan. 28.—Scarlet folly is what London is calling the craze of red which is seen everywhere. Red shoes, gloves and stockings, and red bags are omnipresent, and lucky is the woman who has rubies. If she has not and wants them, she must pay fabulous prices at present.

HIGH POINTED CROWNS.

Paris, Jan. 28.—Contrast the few small hats made entirely of straw to make its appearance is of fine black pleat in 17th century style with extremely high pointed crowns. The top of which is posed a large black and gold butterfly.

GLOVES SHOW TONE CONTRAST.

Paris, Jan. 28.—Contrast is the mark of the fashionable short gloves. One pair shown today, for example, is beige suede with a frill of copper, which is flat at the wrist and therefore does not spoil the line of the dress cuff.

Spedding and Mrs. A. Appleyard, supper was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. Bibbee, Mrs. R. Lacey, Mrs. Jean Tagg and Mrs. B. Edwards.

BAILEY W. M. S.

The January meeting of the W. M. S. of Bailey was held recently at the home of Mrs. E. Wilson. There was a good attendance. The devotional exercises were led by the president, and at the conclusion of the business a good program was presented by the members of the auxiliary. The topic was taken by Mrs. R. Judd, and Miss A. Weir gave the study book reading, after which papers were read by Mrs. E. Wilson and Mrs. W. Duffin. There were also several photographic selections during the meeting. Mrs. Mossop closed the meeting and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

FORTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Mitchell, Jan. 28.—On Saturday evening, in the lecture room of the Methodist church, the women's missionary society celebrated their 41st anniversary. There was a large attendance. The seven living charter members are: Mrs. (Rev.) Cunningham of Toronto, Mrs. J. S. Coppin and Mrs. H. J. Hurlbut of the Canadian West, Mrs. Wm. Lester, Miss Blazey, Mrs. S. M. Edwards and Mrs. Richard Babb of Mitchell. The last two ladies were present and were each presented with a bouquet of carnations. The presentation was made by Mrs. (Dr.) Burritt.

A unique feature of the evening's proceedings was the unveiling of the list of officers for the past 41 years. The birthday cake was decorated with 41 candles, and Mrs. Edwards had the honor of making the first cut in it. The president, Mrs. (Rev.) Mayor occupied the chair, and Mr. W. J. Greenwood, organizer of the women's missionary societies for Stratford district, gave the historical sketch of the society from its beginning. Greetings from members who were not able to be present were given by Mrs. J. E. Brooks, the secretary.

Fifty dollars was the amount of money raised the year the society was organized, and during the past year the amount gathered in was $811.

"Best Thing in the World For Delicate Girls"

Mrs. John Bennett, Boggy Creek, Man., writes: "My little girl had organic nervous trouble, could not sleep, had severe headaches and fainting spells. This went on for three years, and three doctors helped her very little. After reading of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food had done for others, I got some for her. She is now so well that she is like a different child. She is fourteen years old and looks the picture of health."

"We have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for different members of the family, when recovering from 'flu' and scarlet fever, and it has always helped them."

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Are We Entering An Era of Bright Colors?

Among the very newest clothes both here and in France there is more of color to be seen than has been the case at any time since before the war. At no time since war days has there been less black, though of course black street costumes are still the smartest in the estimation of many French women. Every season presents not only a certain preference in colors but a preference in color combinations. And now we have brown and pink which, in the judgment of many really do not go together at all well. However, milliners assure us that brown and pink are going to be offered in spring hats with every assurance of favorable reception, and these are frocks showing the same effect. In the sketches you may see a new frock of golden brown crepe or chine trimmed with the same material in pink. Beside this is a frock of cloud gray georgette with bands of jade green georgette with embroidery in green and silver.

Of pink shades, coral seems to be most in favor. But there is hardly a tone of the reddish sort that would not be in the picture. Vermilion, flame, Pompeian, salmon, peach, apricot, lacquer, red, Castilian red, and berry red, hydrangea pink, rose, fuchsia, rose-henna—these are some of the rosy tones one sees. The tendency to bright and manish effects in women's clothes which is so apparent and sometimes so much derided at the present time has fortunately not affected the matter of color. Perhaps if women really did go into the sort of half mourning that men of the Occident have adopted ever since the French revolution, the men themselves would take to gay colors in self-defence. As it is, they go their own dual-hued way, depending on women to offer the much-needed touch of color to daily life.

Now the most mannish of tailored frocks and suits are presented in clear, bright, sometimes light colors. And—not that this has anything to do with mannish clothes—you know that in Paris smart women are going back to stockings of a real flesh tint—having given up for evening at least the brown and pink or orchid shades?

WISE AND OTHERWISE

SOME OF THE NEW RIBBONS. More and more attractive are the new ribbons. Each week some kind of one hasn't seen before seems to be displayed on the counters. There are, for instance, ribbons fringed at both sides, for trimming hats. For trimming frocks, too.

There is a heavy ribbon, satin faced, either in two tones of the same color, or in two contrasting colors. There is broadened ribbon of all sorts. Plain ribbons, too, with the authentic plaids of the various Scotch clans.

WHEN YOU BAKE LOAF CAKE. When you bake loaf cake, line the pan with waxed paper. But grease the pan under the paper, and rub a little grease—what you like you use for the purpose—over the waxed paper. The results will be much better than if you put the paper directly next the pan, or the cake directly on the paper. So much baking is necessary for a loaf cake that any helps to keep it from burning are worth taking.

TWO WAYS WITH EGGS.

Eggs Au Gratin.

Poach some eggs, drain them, put them in a shallow fireproof dish that has been well greased with butter. Sprinkle them well with grated cheese and cover with white sauce. Sprinkle the top with breadcrumbs and grated cheese and brown in the oven.

Baked Eggs. Fill a baking dish with hot, mashed potatoes. Make nests into which eggs are broken. Bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are cooked.

Shadow, the Unafraid, Is Terror of the Green Forest Smaller Folk

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Shadow white save for the end of his tail, which was black. Shadow the Weasel went on his way through the Green Forest. His coat so exactly matched the snow on which he ran, that it was almost impossible for even the sharpest eyes to follow his movements. Had it not been for the black tip of his tail he would seldom have been seen.

Now, Shadow the Weasel is a very little fellow, a very little fellow indeed. Yet by many of the little folk who live in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows he is feared more than any one else. Shadow doesn't know the meaning of the word fear. He is as sure of himself and his ability as sure of himself and his ability.

So Because he isn't afraid Shadow Goes Wherever He Pleases.

ity to take care of himself that even when he comes face to face with some one big enough to kill him he is not afraid.

"Being afraid is useless," declares Shadow. "It never wins the respect of any one. If people see you are not afraid, they will hesitate to bother you. Yes, sir, they will hesitate. There is nothing like showing you are not afraid."

So Shadow goes on his way without worrying. But just the same, he is always on the watch for possible danger. He intends never to be taken by surprise. And, while he is always watching for enemies, he sees every possible hiding place, so that if an enemy suddenly appears he doesn't have to look around for a place to hide. He knows just where the nearest and best place is.

When Shadow met his cousin, Billy Mink, on the bank of the Laughing Brook he was not afraid, although Billy was very, very much bigger. He promptly arched his back and had Billy really attacked him, Shadow would have fought back. More than once he had met Fowler the Bob Cat, or Reddy Fox, or Old Man Coyote, and had done the same thing to them that he had done to his cousin, Billy Mink. He had arched his back and snarled at them to show them that he wasn't afraid. And then when they had jumped for him he had disappeared as if by magic. That was because he can move so quickly and because he always knows just where he can get out of sight.

So because he isn't afraid Shadow goes wherever he pleases. He is very bold about it. He doesn't hesitate to visit Farmer Brown's hen-house right in broad daylight. It is because he is so sure of himself. It is because he hasn't a doubt that he is too smart for any one who may seek to do him harm.

The very thought that he may be near brings terror to many of the little people of the Green Forest, and the Green Meadows. But he himself never knows terror. He is always unafraid. And he hasn't a friend. No, sir, he hasn't a friend. It is a dreadful thing to have no friends, though Shadow doesn't seem to think so. He doesn't want friends. He has just for himself alone.

CLARE PAYS $800 IN ACCIDENT SUIT

Jury Finds Plaintiff Was Negligent and Award Damages To Brown.

Ernest Brown of this city was awarded $800 by a winter assizes jury here yesterday afternoon for injury received when a motorcycle on which he was riding collided with an auto driven by Thomas Clare, also of London, on June 4, of last year. The action against Clare asked $10,000.

The jury returned a verdict of negligence after more than two hours' deliberation, during which time the jurymen were brought back to the court room to get a ruling from Mr. Justice Rose on a moot point. The verdict found that Clare had made an improper turn at an intersection. Charles Lane was driving the motorcycle, on which Brown was a passenger, when it collided with Clare's car at Waterloo and Hill streets, and received injuries which caused his death. Clare was found guilty of manslaughter at the fall assizes and was given suspended sentence.

Judge Charges Jury.
In charging the jury, Judge Rose pointed out that any person so situated that he might be the cause of injury to somebody else is bound by law to use reasonable care, and if injury results and negligence is proven, then compensation is due the injured person.

His lordship suggested that the jury arrive at a standard of reasonable care by which they could judge whether or not the defendant was guilty of negligence or not.

Two may be found negligent where an injury is caused, his lordship explained, and both or either one may be held responsible. If Lane had survived, and if Brown had thought that Lane had been the sole cause of the injury, he could have entered action against Lane. If both Clare and Lane had been considered negligent both could have been sued. Action could also have been entered against Lane's estate.

"But if you find Clare was wholly or partly to blame in the accident, then you must find Clare guilty, whatever you find about Lane," his lordship ruled. "If Lane only is found negligent, then Clare cannot be held responsible."

Brakes Not Considered.
The presiding judge ruled that no evidence had been introduced to show that the presence of Brown on the motorcycle had been a contributing factor to the accident. Nor did the fact that the front brake on Clare's car was not working render him liable unless the jury came to the conclusion that the faulty brake had been a cause of the accident.

The major point of the case, Judge Rose thought, was the fact that Clare had admitted on the stand that he had cut the intersection, contrary to a city by-law. If the jury found that this infraction could be attached as a factor to the mishap, then Clare was negligent.

William Henderson, of McEvoy & Henderson, acted for the plaintiff, and Howard Menzies, of Menzies & Cluff, for the defendant.

Evidence in the case was practically the same as that given in the Clare case last fall.

Mr. Brown, the first witness, stated the cycle was proceeding north on Waterloo street at about 3:30 p.m. and was two-thirds across the intersection when Clare's car turned off Waterloo street and struck the motorcycle. Witness received injuries to his left leg and was in the hospital for some time. He was laid up for fourteen weeks and two days. He judged the speed of the motorcycle as eight to ten miles an hour and that of the car at 15 to 18 miles.

Hospital Bill $280.

Brown stated that his hospital bill was $280 and his doctor's bill $100. He hadn't been able to work since the accident. Before it took place he had been earning 40 cents an hour as a truck driver.

Questioned by Howard Cluff for the defense, Brown said his father had been keeping him, and that the latter was wealthy.

Examined on this point by his counsel, W. B. Henderson, Brown declared that his parent owned a 100-acre farm.

"Is he wealthy?" asked Mr. Henderson.

"No."

"You mean that he is wealthy compared to you?"

"Yes."

Dr. Cameron Wilson, who attended Brown, said that his patient was unable to perform manual labor at the present time and would not be able to do any real work until next June.

Hugh Clare, who is no relation to the defendant, said he was sitting on his veranda at 14 Waterloo street, and saw the accident. He saw Clare's car turn east on Hill street and heard the crash.

John Riches, H. C. McBride and Thomas Terry gave evidence before court adjourned last night.

Charles Foley said he heard the crash when the motorcycle and car came together. In his opinion the motorcycle was not travelling at a fast rate of speed.

Constables Testify.

Ed. Vanstead, Sam Munro, Ed. McGee, Constables Berryman and Inch, also gave evidence for the plaintiff.

Mr. Henderson introduced city by-law 7514 pertaining to traffic regulations as evidence. This was objected to by Mr. Cluff, who stated that the by-law must be proven. Mr. Henderson then sent for City Clerk Samuel Baker, who proved the by-law in the witness box. Section 20 of the by-law, which Mr. Henderson quoted, states that "a driver, if turning to the left, shall do so only after passing the center of the intersection of the street."

Evidence for Clare was given by Arthur Gleeson, photographer, Amy Clare and Mrs. Violet Mook. 248 Ottawa avenue. The latter stated that the motorcycle proceeded north on Waterloo street at an excessive rate, and that the last witness called by the defense said he noticed the light on the cycle when he was 40 feet north of Hill street on Waterloo. The motorcycle, in his opinion, was half a block away. Witness slackened the speed of his car at Hill street and put out his left hand, signaling the turn. At that time the cycle was 200 feet away. He made the turn and then noticed the light rushing up on his right. Witness slammed on the emergency brake of his car and tried to avoid an accident. Clare admitted the hot brake was not working on his car and stated that he didn't use it anyway.

PEPALL'S LIBERTY DEPENDS ON SWIFTNESS OF U.S. MAILS

Certified Arrest Warrant From Toronto Fails To Reach
Los Angeles.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—Information which reached here tonight was to the effect that the certified warrant for the arrest of Andrew Pepall, one-time business associate of Peter Smith, former Ontario treasurer, participation in the Ontario government bond scandal, failed to arrive in Los Angeles in time for the habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Pepall.

Accordingly, the hearing was adjourned until tomorrow afternoon in order that the Ontario government may have an opportunity to furnish the documents which the California judge has declared are necessary for the detention of Pepall. Therefore the speed of the United States mails is a big factor in Pepall's chances for liberty.

Robin Braves 14 Below Zero

Special to The Advertiser.
Woodstock, Jan. 28.—Despite the fact that it was bitterly cold and the thermometer hovering around 14 below zero, the first robin of the season was seen this morning. Allan Mulligan, King street, observed the shivering bird perched on an apple tree in a neighboring orchard. The robin was pecking at a piece of frozen apple. The observer states that it was not giving out any song while he watched it.

Feedings are frankly admitted to have taken the Ontario government by surprise. In no other extradition cases during the past several years, it is said, have certified warrants been required.

DR. CONBOY, TORONTO, IS DENTAL DIRECTOR

Ontario Minister of Health Announces Appointment For Province of Ontario

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Jan. 28.—Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Ontario minister of health, today announced the co-ordination of the dental profession in the province with a view to greater service to the public. The movement is one which has the support of the Ontario government, and it is aimed to give better service to the public in general and the school children in particular in the way of preventive dentistry.

It is hoped to make free dental treatment for the needy available in both urban and rural districts. Supervision over the work will be held by Dr. F. J. Conboy of Toronto, who has been appointed to the newly created post of provincial director of dental services.

MAN DIES, WIFE NEAR DEATH AFTER EATING CANNED FOOD

Tecumseh Farmer Found Dead—
Wife and Three Children Unconscious.

Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, Jan. 28.—Canned food, of which they had partaken freely at the evening meal last night, is believed to have caused the death of Jean Campau, 45-year-old farmer, living in the village of Tecumseh, and the illness of his wife and three children. Campau's body was found on the floor of his home this morning by a neighbor. The other members of the family were lying about unconscious, except an 8-months-old babe, who was crawling about trying to arouse its mother.

Mrs. Campau and her children were hurried to Hotel Dieu, here, arriving about noon, where everything possible is being done. The condition of the mother, however, is regarded as critical, and her recovery is doubt-

Swim For Lives As Ice Goes Out

Special to The Advertiser.
Forest, Jan. 28.—Gordon Galle of Plympton, while harvesting ice at Crimlan's grove, Lake Huron, had a narrow escape from death, and almost lost his team of horses and equipment.

The south wind broke the ice from the shore, and the floe started out into the lake, taking Mr. Galle and the team with it. He was able to make shore through the icy water just before it got too deep for the horses and himself.

TAX ON GASOLINE TO BE TWO CENTS

Legislation To Be Introduced
Next Month by Hon. G.
S. Henry.

Special to The Advertiser
by Staff Correspondent.
Toronto, Jan. 28.—The gasoline tax which Hon. Geo. S. Henry proposed some time ago, was sure to be imposed this year, and will be 2 cents a gallon, if the legislation he is introducing at next month's session of the legislature carries. A 1-cent tax had long been considered, but it was finally decided that this would not yield sufficient revenue. Intention to use the $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 revenue

W. J. SAMPLE IS APPOINTED SOUTH ESSEX INSPECTOR

Windsor, Jan. 28.—William J. Sample, an Essex merchant, has been appointed license inspector for South Essex. It was learned today. He has already commenced his duties.

The new inspector has assumed the duties formerly held by Louis Enoch of Leamington, who was dismissed from the service when he was found to be involved in a scandal over the enforcement of the O. T. A. exclusively in constructing and improving roads throughout the province. The raise in truck licenses will be on an average of from $5 to $6 a vehicle, raising the average fee from $14 or $15 to $20 or $21.

The Ontario Motor League has made its position quite clear on this question of gasoline tax, and Secretary Robertson of the O. M. L. today said: "If there is to be a gas tax, the league thinks that the license fees should be adjusted so that the reduction in the license fees will equal the amount of the gas tax. If the gas tax is to be $2,000,000 more is to be paid by the car and truck owners of Ontario."

How the Bonne Entente Works.

The London Free Press has been polishing off its bonne entente theory again. Just a few days ago it was reminding its readers that for years it had been carrying on a crusade for a better feeling between Quebec and Ontario. It would have the people of both provinces speak English and French, at least enough of it so that we could say "Good day" or "Is it cold enough for you?"

Now that was fine and Lucien Cannon, M.P. for a Quebec seat, probably heard about the new movement and hastened to this new idea. Lucien wanted to be one of the first to weld a link in the new chain, so he went to Toronto. Once there, and being a Quebec Liberal, he wanted to make a speech. Apparently Toronto had not heard about the bonne entente movement, otherwise Lucien would have had a chance to address the Conservative club or have lunch with the cabinet at Queen's park.

Now one would have supposed that the Free Press would have been the first to cheer Lucien Cannon on his way, but not a bit of it. The Press quotes extensively from a speech Lucien made a couple of years back, and says he is a bold, bad man, a dangerous sort of an individual, even though he does come now doing what the Free Press wants done, preaching the gospel of "Let us all forget the old issues that caused so much bitterness."

The Free Press itself says "there is no need of dragging in the past," and then proceeds to turn back to elections of 1917 and 1921, with the idea of telling Ontario what a scoundrel this visitor from Quebec really was and is. Just as soon as he gets into this friendly province the Free Press, the grand kleagle in the bonne entente movement, reaches out and soaks Lucien square on the nose with a mallet.

The Warden of Middlesex.

Allan McPherson, reeve of Glencoe, is the new warden of Middlesex county. As one might suspect from the name, he is very much of a Scot, and if the matter were pressed a little further it would be found that Warden McPherson is likewise a Presbyterian of the old Kirk type.

Nor has he found it unlucky that his thirteen years' residence in Glencoe should bring him to the honorable office of warden of Middlesex. Prior to that time he was a citizen of Petrolia. Besides being senior member of a lumber firm operating a planing mill in Glencoe, Warden McPherson has found time to busy himself in municipal matters and other affairs of the town. For eleven of the thirteen years he has been a member of Glencoe council, six times reeve, and five times by acclamation.

No one can urge that Mr. McPherson is much of a campaigner, that is as we refer to the whirlwind campaigns of today. He is of that independent school that believes the people have enough sense to use their votes in the right direction without being asked to do so. He announces in the paper that he is a candidate; if the people want him he believes they will say so; if not, then the McPherson lumber business will receive all the more attention, and, judging by the habit of Glencoe in continually returning him, his plan works very well.

Experiences Should Count.

The Yorkshire Post has been running a series of letters from old country people now living in Canada, telling of their experiences in this country. The reason is that the Post some time ago published a letter from Montreal which was written with the idea of discouraging emigration to Canada. The Post thereupon threw open its columns to readers in Canada to relate their experiences in this land, no doubt with the idea that people in the district where the Post circulates could draw their own conclusions as to whether they should come to this country or not.

Some of the letters are from men and women who wish they had not come; others are from those who have been here for some years, and have put up with a degree of hardship and finally succeeded. Such a variety of experience is to be expected, and the Post is doing its readers and this country a good service in presenting these various cases.

Canada does not want to secure new population through means of exaggeration; it does not want to live up to the promises of men who are chiefly interested in getting a commission from the tickets they sell to passengers. This land can stand investigation, and that investigation will show that there are people who will do well here, and there are others who will not, and Canada waits those who are prepared to face hard conditions if necessary, do without things, but always with the prospect of making good ultimately as others have done.

The letters appearing in the Yorkshire Post may be looked upon by some as poor immigration material for Canada, but they are not. The man in England who reads them can tell for himself what his chances would be here. If it were his desire to settle down in a city he would find from the letters that his chances for occupation were not bright, and that is exactly the condition, and he should know it.

Canada will not suffer from such a series of letters provided that they are genuine and represent actual experience. If they conform to that standard they will create the impression that should be created—that this country is a place that rewards hard work and constant effort; it is a place that does not offer great encouragement to the man from the outside who wants to settle down in a city; in it there are people who make good and there are those who fail. It is this mixed reality of experience that presents Canada's real story, and this country has no desire to be given any other standing in the eyes of the world.

When Is a Man Drunk?

There is a critical controversy in progress between the dispensers of law and the exponents of medicine in old London as to tests for drunkenness. Sir James Purves-Stewart, the senior physician of Westminster hospital, complains that the diagnosis for drunkenness is in most cases made by what trade unionists would call unskilled labor: it is made by a policeman, and at the police station the police officer's diagnosis is confirmed or otherwise by the police surgeon.

Among the common manoeuvres for eliciting the presence of "cerebellar ataxia," a frequent one, said Sir James Purves-Stewart, is to ask the patient to walk along a straight and narrow path, then to turn quickly and come back again. The more difficult feat of walking heel and toe along a chalk line is an entirely artificial test which quite a number of sober persons might fail to accomplish. Failure to stand on one leg was a feat which the most sober might easily fail to do during the emotional excitement following police arrest. The most exemplary abstainer might well feel apprehensive if he fell into the hands of a medical officer who insisted upon so high a standard of cerebellar efficiency.

Sir James also found fault with the tests by pronunciation of words. It was all very well to try lecturers, a school master or a member of a learned profession with tongue twisters, but to expect perfection with such phrases in a chauffeur, a laboring man or even an ordinary member of society at a time of emotional shock was unfair.

These considerations were put forward by Dr. Purves-Stewart in a lecture to the members of the Society for the Study of Inebriety on Tuesday. By a curious coincidence he was called to give evidence on Wednesday in the police court when the Hon. James Plumer, a son of Lord Plumer, was charged with being drunk while in charge of a motor car. The Hon. Mr. Plumer used to live in Canada and at the outbreak of the war enlisted in Canada and was twice wounded and gassed in France. There was absolute contradiction between the evidence of the police surgeon and Mr. Purves-Stewart, who both tested Mr. Plumer for sobriety shortly after he had been involved in two automobile collisions in the street. In answering the magistrate Sir James said that there are no absolute tests for drunkenness. The magistrate replied, "If that is the position I don't know where we are."

The case was adjourned so that more scientific and police evidence may be called to throw light on the problem. Thus the question that could always be counted on for a good argument in police court circles in any city remains without a definite ruling.

Forget the Crowd

I see a chap just yesterday when we was shiverin' in our spine, and hopin' for the days to come when we'd be havin' summer time. Upon his dome he wore a cap what cuddled down behind his ear, and folks what was a-passin' by their reckoned he looked kind of queer.

I seen some men a-standin' by with hats stuck up on top their head, they ears was flappin' in the breeze, their snouts was purple-like and red, yet they was smilin' at this John who had that cap upon his bean, it struck me they had just skim milk, the other Johnnie had the cream.

Which set me thinkin' of the things what foolish folks will go and do, how they'll be stickin' to them hats when ears is turnin' shades of blue. And when their ears is callin' out for coverin' from the stormy day, they stick unto them summer hats for fear of what the folk will say.

Likewise that Johnnie wore a pair of whole-some mittens on his fist, a set what had the knittin' reach about nine inches up his wrist, while them what was a-standin' by had gloves what looked both smart and nice, and yet the fingers of them folks was cold and stiff as chunks of ice.

Some folks is scared stiff all the time, they start that way and go right through, a-fearin' to wear this or that and wonderin' what the others do. They're scared to strike out on their own, for fear some other chap will grin, they wouldn't for the life of them grow whiskers hangin' to their chin.

And all the time them other chaps what chart their own sweet course and mind, is strikin' off some other way and leavin' what the others do. They ain't a-thinkin' of the crowd or what the gang will say or do, but they just set their targets up and goes ahead a-wadin' through.

And most of times as I can see it's just these Johnnie's win, by heck, who's not a-scared on zero days to wear a cap around their neck—ARK.

To the Editor

Reply To Dr. Drummond.

Rev. R. B. Knowles of Galt Deals With Some of the Points Made in a Recent Letter to the Press.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir—The correspondence columns of the press provide us with another proffered placebo on church union from the pen of Dr. Drummond. 1. "The membership of the church is asked," he declares, "to say by their ballot whether they endorse the action taken by the churchyteris and wish union pressed on at any cost." Dr. Drummond must know right well that the present vote has no province to "endorse" or repudiate what is already unalterably fixed and settled. Nor is the question of "pressing on" in any way dependent upon the vote now in progress. He knows well that the action of endorsement or parliament awaits no "endorsement," and that the "pressing on" is as irrevocable as anything mundane can be. The sub judice stage, as he is aware, is now past and gone.

2. Dr. Drummond says: "It is easy to forget that the one justification of a church (united or not) is that Jesus Christ is called as Saviour and Lord; . . . in so far as any action or movement sunders Christian friendships, divides Christian families, breeds in Christian churches strife and bitterness, suspicion and dissension, so far it proves itself no more the will of God or the leading of His spirit than theft or lying or chastity."

Well, let us see. The great Scottish disruption "action or movement" of 1843, fashioned and propelled for nothing else than the exaltation of Christ as head of His own church, provoked all those dread exorcises. Will Dr. Drummond, therefore, classify it as on the same moral plane with "theft, lying or unchastity"? The same thing is true of every great religious birth of time, from Luther's day to that of 1875, when amid strife and heartburnings and shattered friendships, the Presbyterian union was effected which all now unite in blessing. The abolition of negro slavery in America, to seek another instance, wrecked homes and friendships on the right hand, and on the left split the Presbyterian church of the United States into two hostile assemblies, and bred in Christian churches strife and bitterness beyond the devil's fondest dream. Yet Dr. Drummond would hardly dare to rank this "action or movement," which smote the shackles from four million dusky wrists, as "no more the will of God than theft or lying or unchastity."

Further, let it be stated and pondered well that the responsibility for all this strife which Dr. Drummond so luridly deplores lies mainly at the doors of those leaders, few of them endowed so regally as he is, who have inflamed the people, and people everywhere, with fictitious alarms for the safety of "religious liberty," with loud outcry against a ghostly "coercion," with accusations of the betrayal of "the church of our fathers" at the vandal hands of the general assembly.

The absolute reply to Dr. Drummond's partial thinking is in these profound and unanswerable words: "It must needs be that offences come, but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh!"

Get Value For the Outlay.

We Are Spending Much on Education and Have a Right to Expect Much in Return.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir—From statistical reports of our government records, we learn that one-half the taxes is used in support of education, that is, in support of the public, high schools and universities of our land. If true value is rendered for this outlay the ratepayers may be well satisfied for their patriotic contribution. The duty of the school as a state institution is to train to good citizenship. It is the duty of the educationists, of the legislature and of parents to see that our children and young people return true value for this generous outlay.

What constitutes a good citizen? Integrity of character, that sets an example in righteous patriotism rather than in self-seeking, and in honor to and respect to law, the law of the land. Second need includes a mind that thinks for itself, a mind that searches into and takes a wide outlook and vision of the future toward the highest ideals rather than simply the materialistic returns. Third, the boy or girl who leaves school with a strong ability to read the best literature which will be followed up, who has an interest in past and present history, so as to be capable of voting intelligently and conscientiously, has opened the way to a life education more valuable than many of the college degrees conferred. In addition to this there has been training, not perhaps in any special vocation, but in habits of system, promptness, thoroughness, there will be at least a fair preparation to meet the needs of life.

The outcry of many of our civic leaders and parents is that our curriculum is too overcrowded, and that all save the most practical subjects bearing upon earning a living should be cut off. Nature study, art, history and literature usually come under this ban. There is danger in becoming so intensely practical that we may become impractical. It is the men and women of vision and faith in high ideals of all that is good and attainable who have been the leaders in reform and new developments of science, art and human welfare. Without them we could not have realized the modern achievements of steam, light and electricity.

Nature study, wisely taught in our public schools, is one of the most developing and practical in its results. Little time is needed by the teacher to arouse interest and develop observation and thought. It should be correlated with literature, with art, school gardening and farming. The awakening mind from such lessons will help to influence the whole future life in pleasure and practical profit. Who knows what inventions or scientific discoveries may in the future be credited to many of the dormant or latent minds now in our schools?

History and literature may be considered of highest value in character-forming. We have all heard of the old Scottish dominie, as described by Ian MacLaren, Ralph Connor and other authors. To take books home from the library to read that many older pupils would consider "very dry." But they read them eagerly, as well as finished their home work. Every teacher knows the influence of the home and of parents upon the well if the adolescent school act could be modified, that with more elasticity it could, in a somewhat similar plan to the Danish people's high school, in winter sessions take in any adults or parents who might wish to attend for a time, thus keeping in touch with their young people. Literature, history, mathematics, with courses on farming and household science, were here taught. We might take a hint from the little girl who said, "The best butter came from Denmark, because the cows had technical training." She had part of the idea at least, if she was astray regarding the pupils.

We believe we should have both higher educational values, as well as practical, from the outlay of our taxation, but parents and all must co-operate to realize our ideal.

IN THE SHADOW OF THE GUILLOTINE

By RAFAEL SABATINI.

The opening of the door had increased his range of vision and Angèle's, and they now saw something that hitherto had been screened from them. By the corner of the street stood ranged six men and a corporal of the national guard with fixed bayonets.

"Alight," Seyrac repeated. "To what end?" "Alight, citizen-colonel," the man said sharply. "I am going to you upon the authority of the nation."

Understanding nothing save that to resist such a command were worse than futile, and still knowing that here was no more than some trumpery formal government of rascals, the cheviot got down. But he still gripped his pistol, and the glance he flashed at Angèle was pregnant with bold significance.

Instantly, as he reached the ground and stood between the agents, he found his arms seized on either side, and the pistol was twisted out of his grasp.

"What's this?" he demanded, hectoring. "Colonel Vidal, we arrest you in the name of the republic one and indivisible."

Dumfounded, he stared from one to the other of them. "Alight," he cried. "Wait! This is a mistake. I—I am not Colonel Vidal."

One of the agents laughed short and stoutly, but denied, but disdained reply. He signed to the soldiers, who instantly clanked forward.

"Wait!" repeated Seyrac in a frenzy. "My God, I tell you I am not Vidal!"

He swung round to appeal to Angèle to confirm him, in this. But the sight of her struck him dumb. She was leaning forward, watching him with gleaming eyes, and the ghost of a smile on her pale lips. He stared at her in horror, and the appeal he intended remained unuttered. Before he could utter it, he was too utterly and hopelessly the victim of some extraordinary malignancy of circumstances.

"Take him away," said the agent. To the prison of the Abbaye.

That in the end he turned to Angèle, who sat there still watching with those gleaming eyes and that faint smile. My excuses, citizenne, for having been forced to interrupt your journey. You had best get home again. I trust your husband will soon be restored to you. He closed the door, and linking arms with his companion moved away in the wake of the soldiers and their prisoner.

A dozen paces off he halted and after lustily clapping his companion across the shoulders, stood arms crossed looking back. Then he laughed.

"By St. Guillotine," he said, "there is a woman who takes her husband's arrest as a personal insult. She is a staunch republican," said his companion, who was by much the younger man. "A woman's wife, more like," replied the agent, who knew his world.

CHAPTER VI. Through the Barrier. Angèle's first feeling of thankful amazement at the escape which Seyrac had through his very treachery contrived for Vidal, passed quickly into one of utter despondency when she came to consider the position at closer quarters.

She saw clearly that after all there was no escape, but merely a respite. Seyrac had plunged headlong to his own doom. His own baseness had enmeshed him with a justice truly poetic. But it was not to be supposed that the mistake which had occurred would long continue undiscovered.

Tomorrow, no doubt, he would be haled before the revolutionary tribunal, and it would be revealed that he was not Vidal. They would not be long in discovering his true identity and in despatching him to the national razor, and meanwhile the agents of the committee of public safety would have sought out the real Vidal, that he might feel the weight of St. Just's vengeance, and that he might be silenced.

In answer to a question from the driver as to what he was to do now, she bade him drive her back to the house she had just quitted. There she alighted, and with trembling hands she unlocked the door. She bade the driver wait, and went in and upstairs to sit down in the twilight and feverishly await Vidal's return.

Her patience was not greatly taxed. Within ten minutes Vidal himself arrived. He was short and brisk in manner, aye, sharp, like one with whom time presses.

"Come," he said. "Since the Berlin is here, let us be gone at once." "A moment," she answered him. "A moment, Jerome. There is something I must tell you. We—we cannot go."

"Cannot? Name of a name!" he snapped. "There is no time to lose, not a minute."

He caught up his haversack which stood ready, unmoved from where he had left it.

"Here is the rest of the baggage," he inquired. "In there," she answered mechanically. But—

"And Seyrac? What has become of him?" His impatience was almost feverish.

"That's it," she said. "Seyrac has gone in your coat and with our passport."

She saw him stop suddenly and for all that it was become too dark to make out the features of his eyes, and conceived him angry with herself.

"I did what I could to prevent it," she made haste to explain. "This I might have done if I even pretended to go with him. Oh, Jerome, Jerome! We are ruined! You are lost!"

"Tell me what happened," he bade her, his voice very subdued and quiet. "But tell me quickly—in a word, if you can."

She told him of the manner of Seyrac's arrest, of his plea for a moment's respite, of the men who had heard, then he laughed, quite mirthlessly, grimly, an echo of the irony of fate that had been at work in this.

"Did I not say that God does not sleep?" quoth he. Did not I remind the ci-devant cheviot that we are the children of the month of fruition: His deeds have borne him their natural fruit. I hope he will relish them."

She clung to him in fear and grief. "But now, Jerome," she asked him breathlessly. "What are we to do now? Your papers remained in the hands of the agent."

COFFEE DRINKING IS NOT HARMFUL

Health Institute Deans Scouts Critics' Claims

IT BY THE PINT

Injures Most People No More Than Potatoes

That coffee drinking is no more dangerous in the long run than eating potatoes, is the opinion of Dean Hill, of the Institute of Public Health, of which declares that he drinks the coffee and Java boys by the pint and feels no ill effects afterwards. However, Dr. Hill made the statement with full deliberation, but that the same people might develop or blueberry pie.

Dr. Hill supports the advocacy of coffee as a reasonably harmless beverage by quoting Dr. Prescott, of the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania, who declares that coffee is a boon to the human race instead of being, as some people charge, one of its great curses.

Coffee, according to the famous New York experiments, makes men who are exhausted and makes men who drink it drink more with double strength to meet the problems of the world. It does not serve of the tea, and it does not harm the body.

Stove Leaguers' Chatter

Two weeks ago the Yankees mailed out contracts to thirty-seven players, and they have already received the signed contracts of fourteen athletes. This is a better mark than usual for this time of year, and it emphasizes the fact that the expensive and sometimes temperamental Yankee players are somewhat laggard about putting a signatures to a sassy agreement for the season.

One half of those who have affixed their legal signatures to contracts for the coming season, as given out by Cousin Egbert Barrow, Yankee business manager, are as follows:

Waite Hoyt, Bob Shawkey, Urban Shooker, Benny Bengough, Lou Gehrig, Everett Scott, Howard Shanks, Ben Egan, Harold Anderson, John Bradley, George Savelle, Thomas Malen, Albert G. Raymond and Thomas McIntyre. *

It will be noted that the name of G. Herman Ruth is not contained in this list. Doubtless this was an oversight by Cousin Egbert, as Mr. Ruth has a hold-over agreement with the Ruppert rifles and is clearly entitled to be ranked among those who are pledged to the colors. Including Ruth there are fifteen on the list of signed.

Early in the spring of 1915, Colonel Tillingshast L'Hommesteau Huston, then half owner of the club, versity of Wisconsin met Michigan in a conference league fixture. The game took place in the new field house, there being ample room without crowding of the spectators, who composed the audience.

Of the teams appeared for a preliminary practice there were fifteen men on each side, average age 21, average weight 150, and by their appearance they looked to be men who could travel 100 in at least 10-2-5 seconds. They were as fine a looking group of athletes as could be gathered together at any time.

At no time during the contest of 30 minutes were the teams separated by more than two points, and within 30 seconds the score was 15-15.

But during this short period of time Michigan scored the winning basket.

It is said by prominent hockey men and athletes who have participated in rugby that for continuing signed the battering Bambino to a contract which gave him the privilege of renewal for two more years on the part of the Yankees. The three years expired at the end of last season and the Yankees long ago indicated that they would not exercise the privilege would be exercised. They consider it an honor to feed him, water him, lodge him and furnish him transportation during the playing season at such a trifling cost in a year as $25,000 per year or thereabouts.

Hoyt Hoyt to Sign.

Young Waite Hoyt, who is sometimes referred to as the "Undulating Undertaker," but who prefers to be known by the more modern monicker of "The Merry Mortician," was the first player under the wire with a signed contract. This was such a surprise to Colin that he thought the effect was almost fatal. Perhaps Watte had this in mind when he sent back the signed agreement by return mail. The undertaking business has been only fair this winter, and perhaps their little job would be appreciated.

Msieu Sparrow Robertson, sports editor of the Paris edition of The Herald Tribune, presented John J. McGraw with a set of medals on behalf of the French baseball federation. Mr. McGraw is to keep one medal for himself and deliver one apiece to the members of the team he took abroad last fall. The people here that the Giants and White Sox will reap the visit and promise that the next trip will be more of a financial success. M'sieu Robertson made the presentation speech in three languages, English, Scotch and French. He is so adept and persuasive in the art of using three languages at once that John McGraw will probably rush right out and engage steamship passage for next October.

Eddie Moore, Pittsburgh's brilliant recruit, played two infield positions again and made the most of his 359 in his first year in a big league uniform, according to the official averages of the National league.

In many respects Moore was the most valuable player of 1939. He was a utility infielder for the Pirates except for a brief period when he was on the hospital list. His remarkable playing was somewhat obscured by the quartet of rookies who were called up at the same time and won regular berths.

Kremer, Yde, Cuyler and Wright, all in their first year in fast company, went great guns for the Pirates and played so well that they were called on Moore, but the latter's showing in the face of such opposition stamped him as one of the greatest finds of the season. Manager Bill McKechnie considers Moore another Hornsby or Roush in the making.

Moore filled in for "Pie" Traynor when the hot corner artist got in a slump, and fielded flawlessly. He played well in the outfield, too, and was hit and batted better than 300, in addition to fielding his position without an error.

Then a hitch in the outfield gave him his real chance to flourish himself and in 35 straight games only one error and batted at a .350 clip in the heat of the pennant struggle.

Moore first played professional baseball in St. Petersburg, Fla., in the Florida League in 1922. The next season he went up to Atlanta and at the start of the 1924 campaign wore a Pittsburg uniform. He was only 21 when he arrived.

ENRACOS BEAT STUDENTS IN PETROLIA LEAGUE

Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, Jan. 24.—The Enracos strengthened their hold on first place in the local hockey league this afternoon by defeating the students 3 to 1 in one of the fastest games witnessed here this year. The students put up a good fight, but the heavier and older opponents, on the play should have won the game. The work of Stephens in goal for the Enracos was spectacular and he proved to be the stumbling block of the collegiate vets and McGrath were the heroes of the winners, while Boges, Thompson and Bryant starred for the high school team.

KRESGE MOVES UP TO RECORD LEVEL

Irregularity Features Morning Trading on Wall Street Stock Exchange.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Jan. 29.—Considerable irregularity developed in the morning trading as a result of extensive switching of a number of the popular industrial stocks into the oil stocks, the advance in which was given added impetus by a sudden increase in fuel cost and oil prices. Baldwin, Radio Corporation, United States East from Pipe and Famous Players were offered freely at concessionary in quoted values. S. S. Kresge moved up to a record point at 40 on a half dozen sales in reduction of the 50 per cent stock dividend and the publication of the 1922 earnings statement, showing net profits of over 40 cents a share on the common stock. Sears-Roebuck, May Department Stores and National Cash and Suit moved up to 2 points. The Commercial Solvents continued their seasonal gains. The stock jumping in the morning, and the B stock climbing 3/4 to 18 1/2. Spirited bidding for Mack Truck developed, just before the close, when the stock up 1/4 to a record point at 12 1/2. Call money renewed at 1/2 per cent.

Market Sidelights

BELL TELEPHONE BONDS.
The syndicate issuers of the Bell Telephone Company have sold $25,000,000, six per cent 30-year bonds, announced that the flotation was oversubscribed within a few hours after opening the books.
The $15,000,000 allotment for the New York market was sold immediately taken up, while the balance of $10,000,000 allotted to the other markets has a reception that was scarcely less favorable. Boston bankers were attempting to secure additional subscriptions, but to meet orders. The syndicate price to investors was 98 and it was significant discount from this price, which quotations among dealers in the street today ranged but a single fraction below the offering price.

TWIN CITY MEETING.
Advices received regarding the annual meeting of the Twin City Rapid Transit Company held at Jersey City Tuesday report that the company has a favorable year when business and other conditions have been taken into consideration. The financial statement for 1922, as presented by President Lewis, shows that the company has earned slightly over $200,000 in excess of its dividend requirements. The company has a surplus of $1,000,000, which has been added to surplus account.

It was also announced at the meeting that the report of the railroad commission for the State of Minnesota regarding the demands of the Twin City Company for a higher value on which to base future fare rates would be made available to the public. At the close of the meeting the president made the announcement, in reply to a question, that the directors have in view the placing of the dividend on the common stock on a quarterly basis and at a higher rate than the dividend paid during 1922, immediately following a favorable decision by the state commission.

OILS

Special to The Advertiser.
Monroe, La., Jan. 29.—The merger of nine companies making carbon black from natural gas in this section, under the name of the United Carbon Company, is believed to have been due to the restrictions on consumption of natural gas by the state, which forced reduction of operations about 33 per cent.

Wortham, Texas, Jan. 29.—The daily oil production of the Wortham field, which at one time rose as high as 150,000 barrels a day, now has fallen down around 125,000 barrels. Operators of the next ten days will seek additional declines, since weather conditions have interfered with drilling.

PICK COMMITTEES

Although Middlesex county councilors met for two hours yesterday afternoon, they handed out enough work to the various committees to last for the balance of the afternoon, evening and this morning.

The most important business of the session was the adoption of a report handed in by the striking committee, headed by R. T. Reynolds, reeve of Biddulph. The recommendations of the committee were adopted without a dissenting voice.

The Committees.
Members of the committees are: Finance—R. T. Reynolds, A. McDougall, William Boler, J. M. Ross, A. C. Hodgins, A. Holman, D. W. Calvert, B. Pike and D. Gordon.
Highway improvement—William Ross and township reeves, and J. M. Ross as representative from towns and villages.

Joint and county buildings—G. Galbraith, L. L. Craven, J. E. Butler, J. A. Lett, D. Gordon, A. Comfort and D. Gray.
House of refuge—B. Pike, C. Moyle, J. A. Sullivan, A. McDougall and the warden.

Petitioning committee—H. Brown, H. Billings, H. Davis, H. Jones and William Stinson.

Agricultural—A. McGowan, T. Elliott, William Boler, A. Winter and E. Rogers.

Educational—H. MacNeil, William Stinson, R. T. Reynolds, D. A. McKeller, J. Cousins, A. C. Hodgins and A. Holman.

Printing—A. Winter, H. Davis, E. Rogers, A. Comfort and L. L. Craven.

Equalization—A. C. Hodgins and the reeves of all the municipalities.

Bills For Paving.

The estimate of the cost of proposed provincial highway expenditures in Middlesex for 1925 was received from the department of public highways at Toronto. The total cost was $283,360, of which the county's share would be $56,672. The largest expenditure will be the paving of the Longwood road from Delaware to Melbourne, some nine miles being in Delaware and Carleton townships.

The report was handed over to the highway committee for consideration.

SECURES TENDERS.

Capt. W. H. Robinson, supervisor of caretaking and repairs for the board of education, is securing tenders for the year's supply of cleaning materials for the public schools of the city. It is expected that the accepted tender will be below $1,500, the amount of last year's supplies.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does so naturally so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Advt.

UNIONISTS DENY "ANTIS" CLAIM AND HURL COUNTER CHARGES

Dr. MacGregor Replies To Attack by District Presbyterian Association.

DRAW RESOLUTION

Anti-Unionists Warn of Move
To Entice Away Church
Members.

Charges levelled at the union committee of the London presbytery by the Presbyterian church association of Middlesex and Elgin were branded as "without foundation" by Rev. E. C. MacGregor, D.D., pastor of St. Andrew's church, last night.

The association charged at a meeting held in the city Monday night that there had been a breach of faith upon the part of the presbytery union committee in attempting to draw unionist members away from the non-concurring Presbyterian congregations.

Speaking on behalf of the union committee, of which he is a member, and in the absence from the city of the chairman, Rev. (Col.) William Beattie, D.D., pastor of First Presbyterian church, Dr. MacGregor not only repudiated the charges, but declared that those who had made the allegations had been guilty themselves of the very conduct of which they had accused others.

Shifts Responsibility.
Dr. MacGregor was inclined to assume the attitude that "if the congregations which had voted against union found themselves in an untenable position the responsibility was wholly their own."

In creating a fund "to help ministers and congregations which find themselves in straits through voting out of union," Dr. MacGregor asserted that "the association has invited congregations to do something that in itself is morally wrong, and that is subversive of all order in the church."

"Those responsible for this advice will doubtless be given an opportunity of making their excuses at the next meeting of presbytery."

A comprehensive resolution was passed unanimously by the Presbyterian association of Middlesex and Elgin Tuesday concerning the policy of Presbyterian churches in the presbytery of London which have voted not to enter the United Church of Canada.

The resolution, prepared by the publication committee of the association, asserts in clear-cut language that the presbytery has broken faith with the non-concurring congregations and therefore cannot claim the confidence of the body.

An appeal is made to all anti-unionists not to change their membership, but to remain where they are and thus secure all the rights and privileges which it is claimed, will be given them in a bill to be passed relating to congregational property.

In appointing a treasurer for the non-concurring congregations within the presbytery, the association commends its sincere sympathy and unfailing support for all such churches.

It was decided to hold a joint communion thanksgiving service in New St. James' church for all those opposed to union with the United Church on Tuesday afternoon, the next two weeks and appointed a committee, consisting of Rev. James MacKay, Rev. John Hosie, Rev. John MacNair, D.D., Rev. Walter Wilson and Rev. Dr. MacGregor, to complete the arrangements.

The full text of the resolution is as follows:
"We, the Presbyterian association of Middlesex and Elgin, desire to express our sincere thanksgiving to God for his presence and guidance during the past year, for the light shed upon truth and duty, for the deepening of conviction, for patience and restraint under provocation, for comfort under trial, and for his tokens of approbation and favor, we render devout praise and thanksgiving."

"We reiterate our allegiance to the authority of Scripture and to our own standards. We believe that loyalty to evangelical truth is above compromise, and fidelity to spiritual freedom is nobler than servile submission to coercion. We are fighting the battle of freedom for all the churches, and we solicit their prayers and co-operation."

"By the vote that has been taken it is increasingly manifest that the continuing Presbyterian church will be stronger numerically and financially, than those who separate from us to form the merger. As another bill is introduced to effect the union of property, we would advise all our people not to change their membership, but remain where they are and thus secure all the rights and privileges secured thereby."

Enter Blindfolded.
"The declared policy of the union committee is to have congregations enter the union blindfolded with out a vote. In congregations that defeat union they seek to alienate and carry off as many people as possible. This is done under the instigation of the union committee of the assembly and of the presbytery. It is done in the presbytery by the distribution of printed forms of application for disjunction certificates to all who voted union, and by inciting them to withdraw as members from the congregations to which they belong. By such action the presbytery forfeits all right to enforce the guarantee of stipend made by the congregation and relieves the congregation from its covenanting support. To this end we resolve to appoint a treasurer for the non-concurring congregations within our presbytery, and while we do not advise our people to withdrawing their gifts to such parts of the budget as they may approve, we solicit contributions from all our congregations for the relief and maintenance of such ministers and congregations as may suffer from the injustice and hardships imposed upon them.

"We would encourage all congregations who have not yet voted to do so and to make it unanimous against the oppressive merger."

RED BLOOD MAKES ALL OUR STRENGTH

Vitality And Nerve Power Of Every Man And Woman
Depends On The Blood, The Supreme Force Of Life

What gives every man his strength? Red blood. What makes the vibrant beauty of women? Red blood. Red blood is the supreme force of life. If we lack strength, vitality or nerve power we should think first of our blood. We can quickly create more red blood. Then, through the new strength that comes with rich blood, we regain our vital nerve force.

Weak and discouraged men and women can find an easy, safe way to nourish the blood supply. Vincarnal does it. The blood, the very elements from which it is created. For fifty years this red blood builder has restored exhausted, nervous, pale, thin sufferers.

If your body vitality is failing, go to your druggist and begin the safe Vincarnal treatment. A sixteen ounce bottle, which is a fourteen-day Vincarnal treatment, is sold by all leading druggists for $1.50.

Vincarnal is so effective that only three tablespoonfuls a day need be taken. Try Vincarnal at once and see the new strength just a few days will bring.—Advt.

WALKED THE FLOOR. FOR HOURS NERVES WERE SO BAD

Wherever there are people who are troubled with deranged nerves they will find in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a remedy that will restore the equilibrium of these deranged centers and bring back the shattered nervous system to a perfect condition.

Mrs. W. W. Aulhouse, Woodrow, Ont. writes: "After having a severe attack of bronchitis I was left in a very weak, run-down condition; my nerves were all broken up; could not sleep at night, and would have to get out of bed and walk the floor for hours."

After using a box of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

I began to feel much better, and after taking a few more boxes I could enjoy my rest as well as I ever did. I always recommend them to all my friends."

For sale at all druggists and dealers, put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Adv.

Do you feel miserable, foggy, tired and aching, thick-headed or dull? And with—oh, so much pain in the back? When you can't eat, and when you don't feel like work, it's time for you to take quick action to save you from more serious trouble later. There is some good reason for your condition and more than likely it's your weakened kidneys. Help your kidneys and bladder with Dr. Pierce's An-uric (anti-uric-acid) tablets. This new and wonderful remedy for kidney and bladder trouble eliminates the poisonous accumulations, flushes out the kidneys and restores normal action. Serious kidney or bladder trouble often follows when a man is run down by the grippe. These diseases often attack men in the prime of life. After the grippe, to eliminate the poisons from the system, take Dr. Pierce's An-uric to clean out the kidneys and the bladder, and an occasional dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and you are on the high road to health and happiness. Dr. Pierce's An-uric is sold at all druggists, or send for trial package to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.—Adv.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach, and not to an excess of a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sits sour, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well. Artificial digestion is not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try taking a few drops of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. This powerful stomachic, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, or pain, or indigestion. It is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Adv.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. I tried but no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no rest time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Follen, Carpenter, 123, Marcellus Ave., Manhattan, N. Y., I will cut out this notice and show it to any other who are ruptured—you may have a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—Adv.

Daring Timber Wolves Invade Barnyards North of Kingston

Canadian Press Despatch.
Kingston, Jan. 28.—Wolves, so daring that they come right into the barnyards, are reported from Oso, Olden, Clarendon and Miller, and today Reeve G. M. Drew of Olden brought to the city the hide of an animal which was killed in a barnyard in the northern part of Oso. Never before have the timber wolves been so numerous as this year. Every night the howling of the prowlers can be heard at Sharbot Lake, an unheard-of event before this year, and so serious has the situation become that a hunt club has been organized in the district. Further north in Oso, Olden and Clarendon, farmers are afraid of taking their horses out in the morning because of the prevalence of wolves.
