But ah! a change is round me here,

In faded flower and crimsoned tree. The autumn leaves! the Autumn leaves! How gorgeous in their golden sheen And yet it is but death that gives Their glowing bues for simple green. Oh! spirit of the frozen North!

Oh! mocker of our Summer dreams Why com'st thou thus to blight our earth, And hush the music of our streams?

The Autumn winds! the Autumn winds Ye come once more with plaintive song Ye breathe a dirge to saddened minds, As softly low ye sweep along. Ye're sighing for the faded bloom Of dying Summer's beauty fled,

Like mourners wailing o'er the tomb

The Autumn rain! the Autumn rain Its sound falls sadly on our ears; And coursing down the window pane, The pearly drops seem gushing tears. Each pale sad flower bath caught a gem, Which trembles in its loving eye;

Of young and loved ones early dead.

Then fallen from the withered stem, It lays its cheek down low to die And yet I love thee, Autumn time! Tlove the blessing thou doest bring; Though thou hast not the merry chime That thrills the soul in joyous Spring,

'Tis sweetly sad! 'tis sadly sweet! To gaze upon this solemn scene, Nor would I, if I could, retreat, Where nought but verdal bloom is seen.

To Professor Holloway.

Sir,—For more than twenty years my wife has been subject, from time to time, to attacks of inflammation in the side, for which she was bled and blistered to a great extent, still, the pain could not be removed. About lour years ago she saw, in the papers, the wonderful cures effected by your Pills and Omment, and thought she would give them a trial. To her great astronofour-net and delight she got immediate relief from their use, and after persevering for three weeks the pain in her side was completely cured, and she has enjoyed the best of health for the list four years.
