CHAPTER XVIII.

Burchett gripped his hand—it was burning hot and quivering—and looked grimly into Ralph's face.

"I'm sorry to lose you, lad," he said, gruffly. "I've grown—used to you. But if you must go you must. I've no right to keep you. Life's made up of partings—" he sighed, dropped Ralph's hand and turned to the fire.

As Ralph went out he turned and looked back at the cosy room, the grim, bent figure, then he strode away with a heavy and weary step. The dogs followed him, whining, and he paused a moment to pat them and send them back.

The moon had not yet risen, but the night was clear and light, and he took the narrow path across the woods towards the high road. At a spot in the road from which he could catch a glimpse of the Court he stopped, and leaning against a tree looked long and yearningly at the great house, the casket that held his treasure, Treasure indeed! gem fit for a king's crown, and not to be worn in the fustian jacket of a gamekeeper. As he stood there a slim, girlish figure was passing at the turn in the road. It was Fanny Mason. She happened to glance in his direction and saw him. She stopped and looked—as longingly as he was looking at the Court—then took a step towards him; but her feet were arrested by the sound of others. A man was lurching along the road, coming from the opposite direction. It was the tramp. She saw him stop at sight of the tall figure by the tree and heard him address Ralph with a tipsy insolence.

"What—what are you a-star-gazing at, my young 'spark'?" he said, with a leer.

LOSING HOPE WOMAN VERY ILL

Finally Restored To Health By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Belleve, Ohio.—"I was in a terrible state before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached until I thought it would break, I had pains all over me, nervous feelings and periodic troubles. I was very weak and run down and was losing hope of ever being well and strong. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I improved rapidly and today am a well woman. I cannot tell you how happy I feel and I cannot say too much for your Compound. Would not be without it in the house if it cost three times the amount."—Mrs. CHAS. CHAPMAN, R. F. D. No. 7, Belleve, Ohio.

Woman's Precious Gift.

The one which she should most zealously guard, is her health, but it is the one most often neglected, until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened itself upon her. When so affected such women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Ralph, thus roughly awakened, looked at him and was passing on; but Oatway stretched out a hand and laid it on his arm.

"Whatah your hurry?" he demanded, wagging his head at him with exaggerated gravity of semi-intoxication. "Looks as if you was a-goin' on a journey, s'ely me!"

"Mind your own business, my man, and take your hand off my arm," said Ralph, quietly enough; and he shook the hand off.

"Oh, we're hotty-totty, are we?" jeered Oatway. "We think we're somebody, don't we? Goin' a journey, eh? Got your bundle on yer back jes' like a common tramp! Why"—with a sudden laugh of insolent triumph—"curse me, if I don't think you've got the sack!" He peered into Ralph's face with eager, wolfish curiosity.

"That's it right enough! I can see it in your face! You've got the sack, been kicked out—" his voice rose gloatingly and he snapped his fingers in Ralph's face. "It's ups and downs with us, mister; you was up the other day and I was down; but its wiccy wersey now, and I'm on top; higher on top than you've a notion of, my young cockerel."

Ralph had walked on, the man following him; but suddenly Ralph turned and Fanny saw the white, haggard face plainly. She was frightened and waited for no more, but ran on, stopping at the end of the road which she expected Ralph to pass presently.

Ralph looked at the man steadily but not angrily; his heart was too sore for him to be angered with the fellow.

"Go your way, my man, and let me go mine," he said; but, as Oatway still seemed inclined to bother him, he left the road and entered the wood. Oatway, with a laugh of drunken audacity, followed him; but Ralph walked quickly, and Oatway presently gave up the aimless pursuit, and seating himself on a tree to get his breath drew out his pipe and, after several ineffectual attempts, lit it.

"He's goin'," he muttered, with portentous gravity and a would-be cunning leer. "Now, what does that mean? Hash the other fellow been up to any tricks, hash he been a-gettin' at him? If I thought so, if I thought as there'd been any underhand work, s'elp me, I'd step in an' interfere.

What did he say to-morrow night for? Why not to-night? This 'ere game's er payin' one, an' I'm goin' to play it for all its worth, an' I ain't goin' to be interfered with. I don't know as I want that young chap out o' my sight, though I hate him, hate him! Seems to me that I'd better see about it. I will, too!"

He rose unsteadily, but sank down again, began to yawn, and very soon fell asleep.

Ralph went on his way. Presently the bundle struck against a tree. His stick was too long for its purpose, and he took out his knife to shorten it. As he was doing so the knife fell from his hand, struck his boot, and bounced to some distance. Ralph searched for it, but the undergrowth was thick and, though he groped in the darkness, he could not find the knife. He knew that he might grope till morning, and at last, with a sigh, he gave up the search.

"Burchett might as well have had it," he said to himself, as he left the spot. "It was the oldest friend I had." Fanny waited at the corner for some time, but she concluded that Ralph had gone through the wood, and, being afraid to linger longer lest Oatway should see her, she went reluctantly homewards.

CHAPTER XIX.

While the tragic act in the drama of two lives was being enacted in the arbour, Talbot Denby was shut up in his own room trying to face the knowledge which had come to him from Jim Oatway.

Even yet he could scarcely bring himself to believe in the man's statement, in the fact that this gamekeeper fellow was the earl's son and heir. But he knew that the thing would have to be faced, that he must either set at defiance this man who possessed the secret, or make terms with him. Make terms with a man who would probably blackmail him for the rest of his life! He thought of a dozen plans for circumventing the man, of rendering the identification of Ralph Farringdon impossible; but one and all had to be discarded as impracticable. There seemed only one way, and that was to submit to the blackmailing. Confused and bewildered by the terrible problem, he paced up and down the room until it was time to dress for dinner. He had left his man in town, for the silent Gibbon was not a favorite with the Court servants, who were a sociable crew and eyed the taciturn Gibbon with a kind of uneasy suspicion; and Talbot, on his visits to the Court, either availed himself of the services of the earl's man or was valeted by an intelligent young footman.

He was, therefore surprised and, in his overwrought condition, startled, when, in answer to his ring, Gibbon himself appeared in the doorway, with his expressionless face and downcast eyes.

"You here! Well?" said Talbot, with the cold insolence which is harder to bear than overt brutality.

Gibbon raised his eyes and held out a letter.

"It came this morning, sir; and as it was marked 'important and immediate,' I thought I'd better come down with it."

Talbot took the letter and opened it. It was from a famous money-lender, and its peremptory contents made Talbot's face grow even darker than it had been.

"I wish to Heaven you would obey my orders and remain where you are until you are sent for. The thing's of no consequence," he said, not angrily, but with the same cold insolence.

Gibbon dropped his eyes; he had been scanning his master's face while the latter had been reading.

"Beg pardon, sir," he said, in his toneless voice. Then he put down the dress clothes he had on his arm, and proceeded to change his master's clothes as if the rebuke had passed over him unnoticed; but every now and then, as he performed his duty with noiseless assiduity, he glanced at the reflection of the dark face in the glass, and his white lids drooped still lower over his dull-looking eyes.

"You'll have to remain till the morning," said Talbot, coldly, as Gibbon stepped back, his task accomplished. "You don't appear to be very welcome to the other servants, I hear, and I am not surprised. That hang-dog face of yours would convict you any day. I wonder, sometimes, why I endure it. Take yourself off by the first train, and don't come here again unless I send for you."

"Yes, sir," responded Gibbon, in exactly the same toneless, unmoved voice, and he stood with meekly bowed head until his master had left the room; then his manner changed swiftly, a spot of red came into his pale cheeks, his colorless eyes shone with an unwholesome light and his teeth came together as if he were keeping back an oath. He went quickly to the letter which Talbot had crushed in his hand and flung from him, and spreading it out he was reading it eagerly when he heard Talbot's returning step. He squeezed up to the letter and dropped it on the spot in which it had lain, and busied himself with the tweed suit.

Too Much Indoors Causes HEADACHE

That miserable feeling is due to impure blood resulting from winter's indoor living.

Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Jaundice and Constipation come from impurities in the blood. There's one remedy—tried, tested, and found efficacious for the last fifty years—and that is "The letter," said Talbot. Gibbon looked about him with dutiful alacrity, and Talbot picked up the letter and left the room.

"It wasn't that," muttered Gibbon, musingly. "It wasn't that, serious as it is. He was looking bad before, when I came in. What is it? What is it, I wonder? He's in a lighter place than usual. I've never seen him show the white feather before. What is it?"

He went all over the pockets in the tweed suit, searched the room in his stealthy, noiseless fashion, but though nothing rewarded him he was still unsatisfied.

"There was a desperate look in that face of his," he muttered. "I've watched him all these months like a cat does a mouse, but I've never seen him look so bad. He's too sharp as a rule; but to-night he looked as if—as if he was hard, drove. Curse him! For all his sharpness, I'll find it out. 'Hang-dog face!' 'Hang-dog face!' You little think, Mr. Talbot Denby, when you're speaking to me and treating me like a dog how often I feel like hanging you!"

Talbot found the drawing room empty.

"His lordship dines in his own room to-night, sir," said the butler; "and Miss Gresham has a headache and begs to be excused."

Talbot inclined his head and checked a sigh of relief. He was in no mood for company that evening, for he knew that, admirable actor as he was, it would be difficult to assume a light and casual manner under the keen eyes of the old lord, and the cold violet ones of Veronica.

He made a pretence of eating some of the innumerable dishes, but his throat felt dry, and every morsel was a burden to him. But the wine was welcome, and he not only let the servants fill his glass repeatedly, but drank draught after draught of the claret when they had gone. There was a small carafe of liquor brandy on the table and he finished up with that.

Dear Sirs:—

In acknowledging receipt of cheque in payment of my endowment policy now maturing, I wish to thank you for the prompt way in which you have put my claim through. I did not have to wait a single day for my money as the papers were all in order beforehand.

I am pleased, too, with the way my investment has turned out. Besides having my insurance protection for $1,000, I have got all my money back and $400 besides. The Canada Life has my best good wishes for its continued success.

Yours truly,
R. H. KNIGHT.

Racing Through Life.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I'm terribly busy just now," a young woman said to me the other day. "I want to get a certain amount of work done before the first of the month. No, I don't absolutely have to, but I've set myself a stunt and I want to accomplish it."

She spoke with a feverish intensity that showed the mood into which she had worked herself.

I have no doubt she will get the work done, but I do question if it will be worth while.

Working toward a goal is stimulating but it is also exhausting. A friend of mine who does a kind of work which can be done up ahead may have as long a vacation as he can prepare for. He usually takes a full month in the summer. This year he is planning to take week ends and perhaps a single week of solid vacation. I asked him why he was shortening his vacation this way, and he said that the strain of trying to get so much work done ahead, the struggle with himself and the race against time that involved, tired him out more than the vacation rested him.

"If you had five miles to cover in a certain time and you should run all the way and then rest in the big margin of time you had left over," he explained, "you would be more tired than if you walked leisurely and only had a few moments to rest. That's the way it is with my vacation. I'd rather take it easy all summer than hustle like mad half the time so I can loaf the other half."

Of course the value of a complete change should not be underrated, and yet it is possible to work too hard in attaining it. Hurry and worry wear one out far more quickly than plain hard work. And when a person of a nervous temperament is working toward a goal of this sort he is harassed by a sense of hurry and worry.

A phlegmatic person might not feel the same strain, but then a phlegmatic person is unlikely to be racing toward a goal. That's the unfortunate part of the whole matter. It's the phlegmatic folks who need something to spur them on and stir them up that seldom get goals for themselves. And it's the nervous, high strung people who don't need the stimulus of a contest, that are always getting it.

Life is often strikingly pictured as a race and that conception has its value in stimulating the imagination and ambition. But there is another side to the picture. He who runs may win a prize, but he certainly will not see the beautiful flowers and heavenly vistas along the road, nor have time to talk with his fellow traveller. Even so, those who race through life may attain their goal, but they will be sure to miss much that is as worth while as the prize—perhaps more so.

Fads and Fashions.

Parisienne are wearing evening capes of satin. They can be worn over frocks of any description.

For the seashore there is nothing prettier than the capes of white cloth lined with brightly colored satin.

The newest parasol is deep bowl shaped, covered with taffeta, with borders of Roman striped ribbon. The evening gown, to distinguish itself from the daytime frock, is compelled to a design of extreme décolleté.

The backs of the novelty shoes which Parisienne are wearing are made of striped and plaid materials in gay colorings.

Very useful is the white taffeta hat with a crown band of glazed black ribbon. It can be worn with frocks or suits of any color.

As the season advances, plain hats of taffeta or moire, with a leather or kid band with a buckle for ornament, will be smart.

Striped materials are in fashion. For the present the design has appeared more frequently in taffetas, surahs and in wash silks.

The plain, unadorned throat is now wearing, with the décolleté gown, a filmy neck ruffle of pale tinted tulle scattered with tiny flowers.

She who would be fashionable, must wear a long, buttoned basque, long, tight sleeves and a long tunic with a long, tight underskirt.

Very pretty are the silk and satin flowers for evening. They may hold up a bit of drapery, or fix a fold, or one may nestle on the shoulder.

You may find the bustle in any unexpected place. They are at the front, the side, low down below the waist line, or up in the center of the back.

There is promised a wave of brilliant colored blouses. Most of them will be in soft silks, but their colors will be brighter than the plumage of the brightest tropical birds.

The latest bodice for daytime wear must have the satin slip cut as low as an evening gown, and the long-sleeved bodice of lace or tulle cut just high enough to cover the collarbone.

The plain, unadorned throat is now should be worn with great care. It may properly appear with the blouse and tub skirt, the linen or cheviot country suit or the simple morning costume.

Street costumes of heavy linen, ratine or sponge emphasize the severe lines of masculine attire. The coats are loose, and follow the lines of the frock coat, Prince Albert, sacque or Norfolk.

The old-fashioned stock collar of linen is coming. They may have embroidered or plain-edged turnovers. With these stocks are worn most effectively arranged folds and batwinged bows of black and colored silks.

Magical Effect on Neuralgia Throbbing Pain Goes Quickly

A YEAR'S SUFFERER CURED BY "NERVILINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer long from Neuralgia.

Nerviline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia, and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russell post office, says:—"One long year, the longest of my life, was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced treating some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nerviline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nerviline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Continuous treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evans' case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nerviline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, lame back, neuritis and rheumatism. Forty years in use, and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion. Don't take anything but "Nerviline," which any dealer anywhere can supply in large 50c. family size bottles, or in a small 25c. trial size.

Arbitration.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slivash."

Arbitration is a process whereby two or more nations get together and discuss whether to shoot a hundred thousand or let them die a natural death.

This does not mean that the hundred thousand men have committed any crime. It means that the governments which they support have large armies and capable, as well as excitable battalions. This makes it very difficult for these nations to discuss anything in a peaceable manner. It is as difficult as it is for two men, each armed with a pair of magazine revolvers, to settle a dispute over a mining claim by looking up the law. A nation which owns a battle ship is just like a small boy. It simply has to fire at something now and then.

When two nations arbitrate they state their cases and let the judges do the rest. This undoubtedly produces much pain to the nation which loses, but the pain is not in a vital spot as it is in the case of the men who would otherwise have to fight it out.

Arbitration is becoming more popular because of the reluctance of the general public to rally forth and get shot up just because a few stiff-necked officials cannot agree. There was a time when a monarch could order out a hundred thousand men when he had a sore toe and felt peevish and could cause his proud spirit by licking a neighbouring country; but that time has gone by. Peevishness is no longer an excuse for war and said excuses are getting scarcer every year. When a king orders out an army of subjects to be killed nowadays, he has to do some tall explaining or lose his job. The king business is getting poorer every day and most of the czars who thirst for war have gone into the mining business in Colorado where arbitration and other gewgaws of civilization have not yet been discovered.

Some people think the United States should not wait for other nations to disarm but should sink its battleships and then attempt to arbitrate with the world. This however is the same kind of arbitration that the lamb put up to the lion who wanted a dinner. A great many small countries, with no armies to speak of, have tried arbitration with large hungry nations and the verdict has always been delivered by the large hungry nation in advance of the evidence. Until the rest of the world disarms, the more battleships we have quated off and ready for business when the arguments begin, the more respect we can secure for peace and politeness.

To-Night's Match.

The Saints and Pelidians will be the contesting teams in to-night's football match, and the line-up is as follows:

PELIDIANS—Lush, goal; F. Rendell, Strang, backs; Strong, Tail, Ryall, halves; Winter, C. Rendell, Pinsent, Chafe, E. Rendell forwards.

SAINTS—Ross, goal; Barnes, Dick, backs; Burns, Foster, Irvine, halves; Robertson, Kerr, Munn, Ewing, Evans, forwards.

City Team vs. Essex.

As suggested by the Telegram last week, a football match will be played between the City and a team from H. M. S. Essex. A meeting of the League took place yesterday afternoon at which all the clubs were represented. Messrs. W. J. Higgins, E. S. Pinsent and T. R. Jackman were appointed to select a city eleven. The game will commence at 6.30 to-morrow evening on St. George's Field.

Evening Telegram.

W. J. HERDER, - - Proprietor
W. F. LLOYD, - - - Editor

TUESDAY, July 14, 1914.

His Royal Highness Arrived This Morning.

On behalf of ourselves and of our readers, we extend a hearty welcome to H. R. H. The Duke of Connaught on his arrival at the capital of the "Ancient Colony" of the British Empire.

This morning we received from Capt. Moore, Private Secretary to the Governor the following memorandum: "H. E. the Governor has received a telegram from Lieut.-Col. F. O. Farquhar, D. S. O., military secretary to H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, to the effect that owing to fog and numerous icebergs, H. R. H. has been compelled, with deep regret to cancel his visit to Bonavista and Trinity." The good people of Bonavista and Trinity will also regret deeply, the loss of opportunity to extend a hearty greeting in person to His Royal Highness, and to assure him of the loyalty and love they feel towards the Royal stock to whom and to whose people he has rendered distinguished service in the Field and in the Council Chamber.

St. John's welcomes His Royal Highness as uncle to His Majesty the King, as brother of the late King, Edward the Peacemaker, who extended his goodwill in a signal manner to Newfoundland in the settlement of the French Shore Question, a wrong which had rankled over a century in Newfoundland, and as a dutiful son of Victoria the Good.

Nor will St. John's welcome him the less as Governor General of the great sister dominion of the West, which extended so bountifully the hand of fellowship and help in the grievous trouble which lately befell our toilers at the ice.

Then again His Royal Highness is the Grand Master of the Masonic brethren of the English registry, and his visit will enable his Masonic brethren to welcome him in the local home of Masonry, a unique opportunity in the annals of the local Masons.

His Royal Highness has arrived a day earlier in the city than was expected. This will afford him a day of rest and leisure and fit him the better for the functions which have been arranged for Wednesday and Thursday. It is the hope of all that we may be favoured with Royal weather during the visit in order the people at large may have an opportunity of extending a hearty Newfoundland welcome to the Royal visitor.

DR. J. W. SILLIKER has just received in conjunction with the other Maritime Dental Parlors of Canada and the United States the latest and best Anaesthetic for the painless extraction of teeth.—July 2, 1914

BASTILE STORMED 1789. In this year the long-smouldering fire of revolution burst into flame in France. The first act of the people of Paris was to destroy the Bastille—the symbol of feudalism in the land. Only seven prisoners were found within its walls. This marks the beginning of that period in France known as the Reign of Terror.

REMBRANDT born 1607. One of the greatest of the Dutch school of painters who produced many pictures, all of them distinguished by the masterly qualities. He was an etcher, also, of high ability.

FRANCO-PRUSSIAN war declared 1870. NATIONAL INSURANCE instituted 1912. One of the most forward acts introduced by Lloyd George, the man who does things. Whether there be difficulties in its carrying out or not there is no question that ethically it is all that is right and just.

If the Duke brings us Haifa we are doomed to it for forty days!

Up All Night.

This morning a gentleman in the city phoned us and asked that we change the headline in the right hand top corner of our front page, referring to the number of persons who daily read the Telegram.

His reason for suggesting the change was due to the fact that he was up all night attending to answers to an advertisement which appeared in yesterday's issue. He says it should be "Read by the Nation."

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, July 14th, 1914.

Syvol Soap is the essence of cleanliness. It is antiseptic and very effective for washing wounds and sores, for cleansing the hands after dressing wounds, sores, boils, abscesses; and as a general toilet and bath soap. It carries the individual idea in soaps to the full extent, and ensures absolute individuality in the use of soap. Syvol Liquid Soap is furnished with a sprinkler stopper and a very economical in use. Large Bottles, price 60c.

Cream of Lilies for the complexion, is a good thing to remember. In all the seasons it is of value, but perhaps particularly so in summer, preserving as it does the skin from the effect of summer suns and warm winds. Price 25c a pot.

Visits the Sealers.

Before going to press, we were informed that His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught would land unofficially at the King's Wharf this afternoon for the purpose of visiting the General Hospital to see and converse with the half dozen or so remaining victims of the sealing disaster which has aroused such world-wide sympathy. Such a thoughtful act on the part of the Duke will meet with universal appreciation of Newfoundlanders and will not soon be forgotten.

Bread Cake AND Pastry

JOHN B. AYRE.

His Royal Highness and Bonavista and Trinity.

We have received the appended communication for publication which was wired to Bonavista and Trinity this morning by order of His Excellency the Governor:— "Owing to fog and icebergs, up to an early hour this morning, it has been found necessary to omit the visit to Bonavista and Trinity, which His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught was to make on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

His Royal Highness very keenly regrets any disappointment, which has been caused in the Northern Districts, owing to ill-luck in the matter of weather conditions.

In consequence of this decision, H.M.S. Essex is to arrive in St. John's Harbor at 10 o'clock this morning. This early arrival will not affect the programme, which has been arranged with His Royal Highness's approval for to-morrow and the next day.

The Call of the Angelus

AND THE VICTORY OF VIRTUE—FEATURES TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW AT THE CRESCENT.

The great drama "The Call of the Angelus" was voted the best reel of photoplay ever seen here by the large audiences that attended the Crescent Picture Palace last night. The society drama "In the Night," and "Shifting Fortunes," a pastoral play were well in keeping with the feature "Making a Kinetograph," and "How Diamonds are Made" were particularly clever illustrations, and the final comedy "Mistaken Intentions," featuring the comedienne Billie Burke was very classy. Miss Arkandy made good in her popular song and the show which is repeated again to-day was the best for some time.

TO-MORROW.

The entire change of bill to-morrow is a very attractive one. A splendid two-reel feature "The Victory of Virtue" is the headliner, two other good pictures will follow it, and the soloist has selected a very popular ballad. Visit the Crescent to-morrow for a good hour's enjoyment.

Garden Looted.

When Mr. W. H. Davidson went into his garden at 5 o'clock this morning to attend to it as usual, he found that it had been devastated by thieves during the night. All his flowers were stolen, his rose trees trampled down and ornamental trees broken. For the past eight or nine years the growing of trees and flowers has been his hobby and naturally enough he feels disheartened by the work of these lawless vandals. The authorities of Bowring Park have obtained from him two of his ornamental trees for the Duke of Connaught to plant to-morrow. In conversation this morning, the manager of Bowring Park told him he had the greatest difficulty in protecting the trees and shrubs in the Park. Mr. Davidson is offering a reward of Twenty dollars for information which will lead to the conviction of the thieves who entered his grounds and stole his flowers and destroyed his trees. If gardens are to be protected, and a taste for flowers, trees and shrubs is to be cultivated, it behoves all good people to co-operate to put an end to such vandalism.

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY—Last night a 12-year-old boy was arrested on a charge of stealing a quantity of chocolates and cigarettes from Wood's Candy Store. The accused appeared before Judge Knight to-day and was remanded as it is alleged he has a couple of other larcenies to his account.

Grand Patriotic Display.

Judging from the elaborate preparations that have been made for the illumination and general decoration of the city in honor of the visit of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, the display will eclipse that of any previous celebration of its kind held in the city. On other occasions patriotism was not lacking, but the facilities offered by electricity were not so many as now, and consequently the electrical display on this auspicious occasion will mark a record in the annals of the Empire's Oldest Colony.

The Reid Nid. Co.'s electrical staff have been busy during the past few weeks, and the Superintendent, Mr. J. W. Morris, has worked assiduously designing plans to beautify the different buildings. The work has succeeded beyond question, and to him and his competent staff are due congratulations. The lettering of the mottoes and emblems in wood was done by Mr. Andrew Squires, the carpenter of the electrical staff, and the installing of the lights was done under the superintendence of Mr. R. Rogers, the company's electrician. The following is a brief description of the illuminations at the different buildings in the city:—

COLONIAL BUILDING.

At the Colonial Building the display is a magnificent one, and upwards of 5,000 bulbs, artistically arranged, will show up the whole building in outline. On the front of the building is the motto: "Newfoundland extends a loyal and hearty welcome to H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught," surmounted by patriotic emblems.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

The Governor's residence will also be decorated in a fitting manner and about 1,000 bulbs will be used, the building will be outlined and the front adorned with mottoes in colored effects.

KING GEORGE V. INSTITUTE.

King George the Fifth Seamen's Institute, which will be the first place visited by the Duke after the official landing, is being fittingly prepared for the occasion with patriotic emblems. The top part of the building on the outside will be lavishly dressed with burning white lights, and the interior will be artistically adorned. On the main floor is the Grenfell Hall, which contains a magnificent display of decorations. The girls' quarters on the next floor, which will be formally opened by His Royal Highness, is very attractively decorated and presents a pretty scene.

THE CITY HALL.

The illuminations at the City Hall will consist of an outline of the front of the building in colored lights, with a motto of welcome, the whole to consist of about one thousand lights.

MASONIC TEMPLE.

The Masonic Temple will present an appearance which for artistic beauty has never before been excelled in the history of that building. The whole building will be outlined in lights of red, white and blue and amber. The emblems are very clearly defined and the whole will consist of about 5,000 lights. The motto on the south is of plain script and contains the words "Welcome to our Grand Master."

THE SOCIETIES.

The L.O.A., Star of the Sea, B.I.S., T.A. & B. and K. of C. Halls will also be appropriately decorated, and will contain suitable emblems and mottoes of welcome to the distinguished visitor.

THE RAILWAY STATION.

The front and eastern end of the Railway Station will present a beautiful appearance. Over 5,000 lights in colors of ruby, blue, white, opal and purple, will be used. On the front of the building is a crown with maltese cross, and fleur de lis, while underneath a motto of welcome supported by two red lions. The friezes and cornices of the building are also attractively adorned with lights. The whole presents a very beautiful appearance, and on to-morrow night this section of the city will be literally ablaze with light.

WATERFRONT.

The entire waterfront is profusely decorated. At the King's Wharf, where the official landing will occur, there are numerous flags. The Standard Manufacturing Co. have arranged electrical display in front of their building, Water St. East. All shipping in the harbour and every business establishment, have flags flying. Even at some private residences, there is some mark of patriotism. To-morrow night several bonfires will be in evidence on the Southside and Signal Hills, while volleys of musketry will be sent forth from most of our mercantile premises.

It may be interesting to our readers to know the amount of energy used in the present illuminations throughout the city. From a review of statistics, kindly supplied our representative by the Electrical Department, we learn that the whole will involve the use of about 250 kilowatts, or an equivalent of about 330 horse power.

N.F.L. HIGHLANDERS. ORDERS O. C. A. & B. Companies with Pipes and Drums will parade at the Armoury on Wednesday Morning next, at 9.30 o'clock sharp. No Leave will be granted. Uniform: Full Dress, Kilts.

Campus Confidences

Drenched with the warm floods of the morning sunshine, Columbia's campus laughed and sparkled. Students were strolling from one cloistered building to another for their recitations and lectures. Care-free codes laughed and gossiped as they went. Marian crossed wistfully to the campus, a flood of her own college memories rippling out of the past.

To what woman who has been a collegian do the self-same mocking memories not come from time to time, transporting her, half against her will, from a sordid present to those wonderful days which stud the curtain of the past like flaming jewels!

Details of that pleasant life back at her Middle Western college rushed in to the funnel of Marian's retrospective thoughts. Its gleaming ideals; its vague, brilliant hopes for the future; its aloofness and refinement; its sheltered remoteness from the common herd of human beings in the struggling world; its flashes of recurring romance; its proms and parties; its campus trysts, with athletes as handsome as young gods—such were the remembered pictures which the mental film sped spinning through her brain as she sat and watched the campus picture before her.

One memory in particular re-etched itself into her mind. Once it had been her ambition to marry some university instructor and to become part and parcel as the years rolled on of the serene social life of a college community. Her ambition had never fastened itself with definite eye upon any particular faculty member. One or two, she remembered dimly, there were with whom she might have fallen in love had chance propinquity afforded its assistance.

But, somehow, the dream had died. Instead, she had hastily married Frank, whose interests were centered in the hardware business, who sentenced her to dwell in an uninteresting city, until it came to pass that her smashed illusions and mental misery caused her to seek and find relief in divorce.

"Good morning, Miss Winthrop," said a voice, startling Marian out of her reflections. The speaker was Miss Barker, the Bostonian, sister of the man whose brown eyes and pleasant attentions had helped beguile Marian's dreamings in the Big Town.

"I've been trailing about half a block behind you ever since you left the house," said Miss Barker. "I usually come this way on my morning constitutional, so I've not exactly been shadowing you. A college campus looks beautiful on a morning like this doesn't it? Takes me back to Wellesley and makes me wretchedly homesick."

"I've just been so homesick myself for old days," rejoined Marian, "that if it hadn't been for your arrival in the nick of time you might have found me in the act of shedding a silly tear or two."

"Shed away," laughed the other. "A tear in time saves ninety-nine."

"It often seems to me," said Marian reflectively, "that going to college unfits a girl for contact with the real world more than anything else could possibly do. A college campus has a way of building ideals that are almost certain to get knocked into a cocked hat."

"Believe me, the truly happy and contented people are the lowbrows and roughnecks."

"I agree with you," sighed Miss Barker. "The bumps that come after a girl's graduation hurt all the more because college has made her a highly sensitive being. The world is so crude that it's no place for the sensitive."

"Do you believe that sensitiveness is merely a sign of vanity?" asked Marian.

"I should say not. Sensitiveness comes with refinement. It is a reaction against crudeness, bad manners and ignorance. Believe me, the truly happy and contented people are the lowbrows and roughnecks, if you'll allow me to use two very expressive terms."

And so the campus confidences rambled on.

The Duke's Visit.

TO-MORROW'S PROGRAMME.

His Excellency the Governor will board H.M.S. Essex at a convenient hour to-morrow morning, to receive His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, and the programme for the day will be as follows:—

MORNING.

His Royal Highness will land at 10 a.m. at the King's Wharf, which will be specially decorated for the occasion. The Guard of Honour will be drawn from the Police under the command of Inspector General Sullivan. The Mayor and Municipal Council will be presented to His Royal Highness, and will tender an address of loyalty and welcome on behalf of the City of St. John's. The Duke with the Governor, will then drive at a foot pace through the City, stopping at King George V. Seamen's Institute in order to inspect that useful and commodious edifice. Leaving Water Street by McBride's Hill, the Duke will drive to St. George's Field, where the Cadet Corps will be ready drawn up for inspection at 11.30. His Royal Highness will inspect the Brigades. H.R.H. will then drive to Government House by Military Road and King's Bridge Road, entering the Government House Grounds by the East gate.

AFTERNOON.

In the afternoon the Duke will drive along the Waterford Bridge Road, arriving at Bowring Park at 4 o'clock, where H.R.H. will be received by a Guard of Honour and 16 men furnished by the Methodist Guards. Sir Edward Morris will formally present the Hon. Edgar Bowring as the public benefactor, through whose generosity the Park has been formed, and Mr. Bowring will then pray His Royal Highness to declare the Park open for the pleasure and recreation of the public. The Governor will then tender the thanks of the community. His Royal Highness will be asked to commemorate the occasion by planting a tree and to accept a model spade as a souvenir of the event. Tea will be served and His Royal Highness will leave shortly after for the site of the Hospital, for the treatment of Tuberculosis.

5.30 p.m.—On arrival at the site, which for the beauty of the view is equal to even Bowring Park, the Duke will be received by a Guard of Honour of an officer and 16 men of the Newfoundland Highlanders. Mr. W. D. Reid, the munificent donor of the Hospital, by whose aid Tuberculosis, the most dread disease in the Colony, may be specially treated, will then be presented to His Royal Highness by the Governor. Whereupon Mr. Reid will pray His Royal Highness to lay the foundation stone of the Hospital. The ceremony being concluded by the presentation of a miniature silver trowel, Mr. Furlong will tender thanks to His Royal Highness on behalf of the donor and of the Directors of the Reid-Nid Co. The Duke will return to Government House where a dinner will be served, to which a number of those who hold or have held high official positions, will be invited.

NIGHT.

10 p.m.—His Royal Highness, as Grand Master of the United Lodge of Freemasons in the British Dominions, has been pleased to accept an invitation of the District Grand Master and Freemasons in St. John's, and has arranged to visit the Masonic Temple at 10 p.m. At the entrance a Guard of Honour will be furnished composed of an officer and 16 men of the Church Lads' Brigade, of which Corps the Duke is Honorary Colonel-in-Chief. The Masonic Lodge will be brilliantly illuminated. On the return journey the Duke will have an opportunity of seeing the many buildings which will be lit up on this evening and the next out of compliment to His Royal Highness and as a manifestation of the deep loyalty which Newfoundlanders have always displayed towards the Royal House.

MONTREAL, To-day. Captain "Keridul" of the Empress of Ireland, is not likely to go to sea again. It is understood the C. P. R. has given him several months leave of absence. At the conclusion of it he will accept a shore position either in Canada or England in the service of the Company.

MONTREAL, To-day. In order to minimize dangers of collision in the narrow reaches of the St. Lawrence, arrangements are being made by the Department of Marine practically to double track the Channel from Point aux Trembles down to Lake St. Peter. The work is being done in the way of dredging two separate channels, one to be used for the smaller class of vessels, while the main channel will continue to be used by Atlantic liners.

MONTREAL, To-day. Very indignant man was Capt. Anderson of the Stordag when he left the court room, after hearing his vessel blamed for sinking the Empress of Ireland. "I did not think Lord Mersey would be such a fool," he angrily exclaimed, "and you may so if you like. He may be My Lord Mersey, but I can tell you if he ever had any reputation he is going to lose it over this case. It is my opinion that he was trying to find in favor of the Canadian Pacific and you can say that too, but declared Captain Anderson don't you imagine this thing will stop here. We people in Norway are too much interested in seeing it through. There will be plenty of work in the courts both in Canada and England. We will start a suit of damages against the C.P.R. here at once. Then we will take action in the Admiralty Court in England. That is where we shall get at everything out in the open. There will be no Lord Mersey to run things there."

Along the Line to Caplin Bay.

I. C. M.

CHAPTER IV.

Whilst the numbers attending the garden party were not as large as could be desired, there was one encouraging feature about it which in a sense redeemed the situation. We noticed that the men of the place were not on the grounds, nor were there any from the neighbouring settlements; but on enquiry we learned that a very marked improvement had taken place in the fishery, and on that particular day, all the boats had done exceptionally well, and that because of their success the men were delayed stowing away their catch. This was good news, and we trust the improvement will continue all along the coast.

We met Mr. Devereaux, the popular merchant of Ferryland, and we questioned him about the fishery of that place as well as other parts of the shore, and he told us it was very satisfactory. We asked him if we would be safe in staying in the press; that the fishery of Ferryland had improved and was then considered good, and he assured us that we would be safe in doing so. We next interviewed Doctor Freebairn, of Ferryland, and he reported to us the same gratifying news, and the good doctor added what was being caught was fairly well divided amongst the different classes of fishermen. We saw several people on the grounds whom we had met in years past, among them being Doctor Chisholm, of Manuels; Rev. Father O'Brien, of Tor's Cove; Rev. Father Rawlins, of Torbay, who is interested in the parish of Caplin Bay. We had the honour of an introduction to the latter rev. gentleman, but did not have the honour of being introduced to the rev. pastor of Tor's Cove. While at dinner the study of the different people at the tables was as interesting as it was varied. The characteristics of the ladies in attendance presented quite a varied phase of natural study. Opposite our party there sat a gentleman of the place, who, while very civil, was certainly very inquisitive, but at the same time he was not unpleasant; he seemed to be taken up with the conversation which passed between our own particular party, and in a short time he was taking part in it himself; but his attitude was that of the doubter, and he seemed to think, and in fact he told us in plain words, that we did not stand in the same relation to each other that we assumed. It was amusing to listen to the gentleman and still more amusing to notice with what interest he listened to our words. We found the evening repeat very delicious, and quite refreshing, but our fellow guest at the opposite side of the table greatly increased its pleasantness. "He certainly took us in," nor will he soon forget the man and two ladies, which so aroused his interest. We afterwards met him on the field, and had a conversation with him, and told him some of the things he wished to find out and then we bade him goodbye with a hearty shake hands.

While within the tent, a boy of the place was standing outside, when one of the guests called him and presented him with a very nice pocket knife. The little boy seemed greatly pleased, and was soon surrounded by his companions to whom he gleefully showed the knife and pointed to the man in the tent who was the donor of the gift. These incidents perhaps are trivial in way, but after all they make up the sum total of human life, and thus illustrate the different characteristics of the sons of man. The ladies were busy serving their guests, the more youthful element was absorbed in the dance, the older men strolled around, and the boys and girls found their places, and the man at the table made a study of the strangers who were near him. But then as we have already said, it is the way of human nature, and when all taken together it gives us the sum which we call character. Marked the world over seems to be alike, and every man, and every race of men, has certain peculiarities which comprise the diversities of life. These characteristics are very opposite in many ways, and may sometimes tend to conflict, but when properly directed and understood they result in harmony. To us, the whole party and surroundings harmonized, and each incident afforded interest, and as we left the field, and joined the train we were fully satisfied that the good people of Caplin Bay, had done their duty for their patrons, and that they had given them a good reception; and judging from the opinion of those who attended the party, there was entire satisfaction on both sides.

The weather conditions of the day were ideal for a holiday, and in this respect the ladies of Caplin Bay are to be congratulated. The bright sunshine, and the cooling sea-breeze, and the happy people, and the surrounding air of independence were all conducive to the spirit of good-will which prevailed. It was a typical Newfoundland scene in every sense of the phrase.

Conan Doyle.

We ought to give ovation to Arthur Conan Doyle. We have a man who is spending his vacation on Freedom's sacred soil; beneath the starry banner, he's taking notes, they say, and in his sprightly manner he'll write us up some day. At home he has been knighted, with Britain's chosen few, and we should be delighted to do him honour, too. To every farthest distance extends his well earned fame, for he has made existence a better, brighter game. How every reader glories in good old Sherlock Holmes, in all Sir Arthur's stories, his essays and his poems! In letters he's the leader; romancer, bard and sage, who never bored a reader, or wrote a dreary page! They caught old Homer nodding, in olden times, it seems; they had to do some proudding to rouse him from his dreams; and almost every author has days when he can't write much better than a Goth or a Vandal who is fight, but Doyle has never written a line devoid of grace, or sent me off a-bitten the hexagons for a brace! We don't appreciate him or rightly gage his worth; we haven't learned to rate him with giants of the earth, but when he has been planted for fifty years, by Jung, posterity, enchanted, will say he was a king.

Special to the Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 13. While Unionists in the North of Ireland to-day are giving expression of their determination never to countenance Home Rule, the Cabinet met in session to devise steps to prevent civil war. Asquith presided, and it is reported a new programme for the pacification of Ulster has been outlined.

DUMBERG, Ireland, July 13. The orangemen's celebration today culminated in a scene of enthusiasm around the platform where Sir Edward Carson, with Bible in hand, pledged the covenanters never to surrender to coercion, to remain loyal to the union and never to waver their support to their leaders in the fight against Home Rule. Sir Edward's speech, which evoked enthusiasm, served notice on the British Government, that unless they were prepared to leave Ulster alone they would very shortly find the Ulster men recognizing no Government except the Provisional Government of Ulster. He said he had been given authority to act, and is necessary to exercise his powers without regard to consequences to himself. Ulster men were not going to give way, they were bound to win because God would defend the right. Carson offered the Government the alternative of giving Ulster a clean cut out of Home Rule or coming to fight the Ulster men. These are the only possible alternatives. Ulster, he concluded was claiming only justice and if it did not get it from the Government it would take it for itself.

Lord Londonderry, at Inniskillen, and Walter Hume Long, at Carragh, made speeches similar to other demonstrations of Ulster men.

No disorder was reported from any point up to a late hour to-night. Rival Nationalist and Orange demonstrations at Glendemonagh, reached the stage of jeering at each other, and for a few moments it looked like trouble.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 13. Nearly 20,000 of the 45,000 coal miners of Ohio, will go back to work this week, as a result of the ratification of a new wage rate by the Convention of United Mine Workers held in No. 6 district on Saturday. The scale provides payment at the rate of 47 and 67.6 cents per ton respectively.

CHAROLLE, France, July 13. Two were killed and ten wounded in a desperate battle between two tribes of Gypsies, who fought on the Banks of the Loire, to-day. It was the outcome of a long-standing feud.

LONDON, July 13. A bomb was discovered last night near the famous old Church of St. John the Evangelist, Westminster. A woman named Annie Bell, who figured several times in militant activities, was arrested.

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, July 13. Following the hottest day for the year, a tornado struck Shenandoah last night. Trees were uprooted, scores of roofs were torn off, a blacksmith's shop upset, and the cupola torn off the Congregational Church. A large stone from the Catholic Church crashed into the street.

MONTREAL, July 13. "We shall proceed immediately with our action against the former owners of the Stordard for $2,000,000 for loss of the Empress of Ireland," declared A. R. Holden, K.C., Solicitor for the C.P.R., this afternoon. "The action will be heard in the Admiralty Court in this city, in September next," said Holden. The money paid by the Prudential Trust Company amounting to $175,000, has been paid into court, all of which will be laid claim to on behalf of our clients, continued the lawyer, who further says that the unanimous finding of the commissioners shows the C.P.R. is not liable for damages to relatives of the drowned persons, or to injured passengers.

NEW YORK, July 13. The first hot Sunday for the summer, drew thousands of people to the water side for relief, and ten drownings have been reported to the police during to-day and night.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected by an insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

VERA CRUZ, July 13. To save his country from the horrors of civil war and his capital from capture and perhaps being sacked by the victorious army, Huerta intends to resign the Provisional Presidency and leave Mexico. Huerta will surrender the Government to Francisco Carranza, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs, who will in turn step aside when the time comes.

Annual Reunion Bonaventure's Alumni.

The fifth annual reunion of St. Bonaventure's Alumni was held at the College this morning and was largely attended by ex-pupils from the city and outports, including a number of Priests from all the nearby settlements.

At 7.55 a.m. the roll was called in the Aula Maxima, the following being present:—His Lordship Bishop March, Right Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, Right Rev. Monsignor Roche, Right Rev. Monsignor Veitch, Rev. W. W. Dountney, Rev. Dr. Murphy, Hon. John Harris, Rev. Dr. Greene, Rev. Bro. Ryan, M. W. Furlong, Esq., K.C. F. J. Morris, Esq., K.C., R. J. Devereaux, Esq., W. J. Carroll, F. J. Doyle, C. W. Ryan, W. S. Dunphy, M. A. Devins, Edward Devereaux, J. J. Winter, Rev. E. J. O'Brien, Rev. J. P. Pippy, Rev. Bro. Ennis, Rev. Bro. Pendergrass, Rev. Bro. Kelly, Thomas Vavasour, Rev. Father Caccialosa, Rev. F. J. Ryan, F. F. Moore, James Cox, P. F. Fortune, Thomas J. Thorburn, Rev. Smithwick, Otto Emerson, P. V. Strapp, H. C. Donnelly, W. J. Penny, James Clancey, Bernard McGrath, Leo Carter, J. Higgins, M. F. Aylward, Rev. Bro. Perry, Rev. Bro. Strapp, J. M. Tobin, Rev. Bro. Hennessey, L. E. Emerson, John T. Power, Hillary C. Carew, James J. Whelan, Edward O'Brien, J. Fitzgerald, D. McGee, T. F. McGrath, T. J. Aylward, P. Burke, J. W. Kent, J. A. Barron, D. J. Williams, S. Murphy, William Sullivan, Bro. Eagan, R. H. White, L. P. Burke, J. C. Chafe, L. A. Fortune, W. H. Liddy, T. L. Liddy, James McGrath, W. H. Tobin, J. F. Callahan, J. W. Kinsella, W. McGrath, Edward H. Crawford, Brendan White, M. P. Tobin, W. J. O'Neill, Wm. McMurphy, Frank Keating, John E. Fox, Kevin Keegan, H. P. Emerson, J. M. Greene, G. O. Byrne, Mogue S. Power, Thos. J. Power, P. J. Devine, John L. Des, Rev. Bro. O'Connell, S. Murphy, T. Tarahan.

At 8 a.m. Mass was celebrated in the College Oratory, the celebrant being Rt. Rev. Mgr. Veitch, P.P., and the servers were Messrs. R. J. Devereaux, M.H.A., and J. Kinsella. After Mass, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was imparted by Rt. Rev. Bishop March, assisted by Rt. Rev. Mgr. Roche, V.G. Rev. Fr. Ryan acted as Master of Ceremonies and the acolytes were Messrs. J. Savin and L. Liddy. Messrs. M. Kennedy and A. Des were the choristers, and the choir was led by Rev. Bro. Fennessey, and consisted of fourteen of the alumni representing the different periods at which they attended the College. Mr. E. Devereaux was the soloist.

At 8.45 all assembled in the Refectory where an excellent breakfast was served, and at which Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, K.C.M.G., L.L.D., P.C., presided as prefect. After breakfast the Oration of the Day was delivered by Mr. Y. P. Burke, M.A., L.L.D., C.E.P., S.R.C.S. Pressure on our space prevents us from reviewing the discourse at length; but it is sufficient to say that the subject, which was "Science and Faith," was handled in a masterly manner. The oration was marked by an exceptionally close study of the subject, and was particularly marked with comparisons and contrasts drawn from the pages of history. The whole was delivered in choice language and reflected great credit on this Bonaventurian, Dr. Burke, of whom the associates of his boyhood days, as well as the other alumni, might well feel proud.

The gathering dispersed at 10.30 a.m. to meet again at 8 p.m. when a band concert will be given on the College Campus, and at which the lady friends of the alumni will be present.

LONDON, To-day.—The recognition of danger inherent to the existence of two armed volunteer bodies, seems to have imbued Irishmen with a sense of added responsibility. The Battle of the Boyne was commemorated in Ireland with tremendous enthusiasm, but was more noticeable by the absence of disorder than on past occasions of this kind. Following the custom, a great procession marched from Belfast to Drumberg, where Carson made a speech defying the Government either to totally exclude Ulster from Home Rule or come out and fight. The Daily Mail's Belfast correspondent thus describes the march of 100,000 men to Drumberg—rattling and roaring like maxim guns, the drums of Ulster proclaiming the victory of the Boyne. "When in future I recall the 12th of July, I shall hear the drums at Drumberg; hundreds of big drums thundered the Orange rejoicing. These drums were not drummed with drumsticks, but with heavy notes. They were flogged with loaded canes wielded by men with wrists of steel, and the noise was the noise of Maxim guns with boiler riveters working in chorus for five hours. Along five Irish miles the drums delivered their mighty message of Ulster's defiance to the world. One feature of the situation seems to be that while Carson and other leaders were using unrestrained language, both Ulster men and Nationalists were showing admirable self control. Another feature is that the more defiant Ulster leader speeches become more pronounced becomes the feeling among members of Parliament on both sides that a satisfactory compromise will eventually be reached.

Asquith announced in the Commons yesterday that the present session of Parliament would come to an end about the close of August, that the next session will be begun in early winter, which is thought to mean December. Before the present session ends, the Government will introduce its proposals for the reform of the Lords. Under this arrangement Home Rule and Welsh Disestablishment will ultimately pass into law by the end of August. Rumors of an early dissolution of Parliament continue to float around, but there is nothing substantial to them. The Lords to-day concluded the report stage of the Bill amending Home Rule Bill. The amendment adopted, provided for proportional representation in the elections for the Dublin Parliament and several other amendments were added to the Bill.

COMING TO ROSSLEY'S.

There are some splendid pictures seen at Rossley's those nights, all specially selected, and the pick of the European markets. There is a very delightful programme arranged for the holiday and although Mr. Rossley does not expect a crowd as there are so many other attractions, Mr. Rossley has secured the great European artist Scully, the actor, singer and comedian, who will arrive here direct from London, England. He is also a good producer and we will therefore have some delightful comedies and new select sketches. There will be a matinee on to-morrow afternoon for the children, and the usual two shows at night, when the best obtainable pictures will be shown; all features, on the silver screen.

All Will Be Welcome.

We are asked to say that while formal invitations to attend the laying of the corner stone of the Reid Sanatorium to-morrow afternoon, have only been extended to officials, such as Judges, Members of the Legislatures, Foreign Consuls, the Medical Fraternity, representatives of the various denominations, and the Commanding Officers of the Brigades, all citizens are cordially invited to be present and will be gladly welcomed on the occasion.

Forest Fires.

Editor Evening Telegram: Dear Sir,—The past three weeks there is scarcely a night a person takes up one or the other of the daily papers to read that he doesn't notice an item stating that there is a bush fire in this place and a forest fire in that place. It appears to be a fire here, a fire there and a fire everywhere. What has become of the authorities who are supposed to look up such matters? Are they all asleep? If so, they had better wake up and get busy. I am informed there is a law on the Statute book where it says there are heavy penalties inflicted on any person who may be discovered to have been the means of setting the forest woods on fire. If such a law exists, why not see that it is enforced? Why is it not upheld, and why do not the authorities get to work; get notices issued, have them placed in the different settlements around the island, stating the law regarding such fires, so that the inhabitants could read them? At the same time offer a big reward to the person who will give information leading to the discovery of such persons who may be caught in the act of wilfully causing these fires. Is it possible that our sports cannot go into the country for a day's trouting or other recreation without setting the woods on fire, and thereby destroy the beauties of nature besides endangering people's property? This island has lost hundreds of thousands of dollars through such neglect. I may say both on the part of the parties who are the means of causing such fires and those in authority whose duty it is to look after the same. I contend that three parts of the fires are caused through wilful neglect and the guilty parties if caught should be severely punished. I don't think there is any penalty too severe to impose on such careless persons and the railway trains are not immune from such causes. A few Sundays ago I happened to take a walk countrywards, and I noticed in two different places that the railway sleepers were burning, and in speaking to a friend he informed me there were no less than seven such fires on the road from the station to Kean's Valley. It is true they did not amount to anything, but there was a possibility of some of them becoming very serious, and then all we see of it is an item in one of the daily papers referring to the same. See what a loss it would be to Badger Brook and its surroundings if that fire which was reported to be blazing there on Saturday last had not been checked by the men employed to fight it. My contention is that there is no fines or penalties stringent enough to impose on such guilty persons, if it is possible to catch them. It is a crying disgrace to see the beauties of nature denuded through carelessness and wilful destruction. Thanking you for space. I remain, Yours sincerely, PRACTICIAN, St. John's, July 14, 1914.

Rube Benteon.

Red Mothee says: B u c k Herzog wept a big wet weep an' lost a lot o' beauty sleep before h i s team went South. His pitchin' staff was on his mind—small wonder that he stewed an' whined an' seemed down in the mouth. R u b e Benton, hurt, was out for good. The docs all said he never would be fit to play again. But fate upset the dope once more, Buck's spirits started into a soar—Rube fooled the medic men.

He started in to use his arm an' findin' that it did no harm he livened up the pace. The ol' southwing reported dead just rose up from its ol' sick bed an' kicked back into place. The season opened. Rube went in an' opened things up with a win an' he's been swingin' since. Ask Herzog how he pulled the stunt. Buck grins a grin an' says he'll hunt for sugar in a minute. The Rube is goin' to beat the cars an' has the other southwings all humpin' to keep pace. Buck's scoutin' 'round for more sick beds while Rube's bum arm keeps Cincy's Reds a factor in the race. A safety vault in some strong bank can't hold the crown of Eddie Plank, Waddell or Dreisgtein if this new find keeps up his stride. He's started off on one wild ride down baseball's comeback line.

Announcement.

To-Night's Attraction.

The principal attraction for to-night will be the "At Home" in the British Hall, which has been arranged by the promoters of the Caplin Bay Garden Party.

Owing to the many other attractions of the day the Garden Party was not the success that it might have been, and consequently a number of ladies in the city have arranged to-night's event in order to further supplement the funds.

An excellent programme of dances is being arranged and the T. A. Band will render the music for the occasion. Refreshments will be served during the evening, and an enjoyable time is assured those who attend.

WARRANTS FOR STOKERS. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the stokers who prevented the s.s. Prospero from leaving here on Saturday for Sydney.

An Extra Good Programme at the NICKEL To-Day! Father Beauclaire. Written and acted by Hal Reid, author of The Confession. This story is historically true as related by James Cardinal Gibbons. THE COAST OF CHANCE—A strong Selig drama. KIDNAPPING FATHER—A Lubin comedy-drama. THE TRAIL OF THE ITCHING PALM—A comedy. MISS ETTA GARDNER, (Songs); P. J. MCCARTHY, (Picture Music); JOSEPH F. ROSS, (Effects, Realism). Coming:—De Witt C. Cairns—Baritone. Every afternoon at 2—COOL, CLEAN, COZY—Every night at 7.

A Great Story at the Nickel.

FR. BEAUCLAIRE IMPRESSES ALL. The attendance at the Nickel Theatre last evening was the largest for some time. The building was well filled from the opening show until the final. The great attraction was the presentation of Hal Reid's masterpiece entitled "Father Beauclaire." The story is historically true as related by His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons. It tells in a most impressive manner of how Father Beauclaire, rather than betray the Confessional suffered degradation and even death itself. The acting was splendid, and the picture was very favorably commented on. It will be seen this evening for the last time, and no one should miss it. To-morrow there will be a special holiday programme in honor of the visit of the Duke of Connaught. Suitable pictures will be given. The Nickel will be the popular resort to-morrow.

Try Again.

You have, it may be, used ointments, pastes, lotions for Eczema till you begin to get tired of trying things. Well, but you should remember that science is advancing all the time, and that what was not possible yesterday can be accomplished to-day if you neglect to try Zylax—the newest and best thing that science has yet to offer for the relief and cure of Eczema and other annoying and disfiguring skin diseases—you are missing a great opportunity. It may be that it will cure you. It has cured some very bad cases. Price 50c. per box. Zylax Soap, 25c. per cake.

Fishery Reports.

Eagle Point to Mall Bay.—The total catch is 4,535 with 20 for the one trap set during the week. No dorics, skiffs or boats were out. Caplin is plentiful but the men say cod is less plentiful.

Upper Amherst Cove to Cape L'Argent.—About 60 traps, 380 dorics and skiffs and 8 large boats are fishing. The total catch is 500 quintals, 400 being taken in the traps last week. Prospects for the voyage were never worse. There is plenty of caplin and the weather is fairly good. The lobster catch is poor. The fishery outlook is very bad, in fact the hook and line men cannot get enough to supply the tables of their families.

Port Rexton to Trouty.—The total catch is 350 quintals with 30 for last week. Thirty-seven traps are in the water and 40 punts fishing. Prospects are the worst on record. One small lobster factory has done fairly well. There is plenty of caplin and fine weather for fishing. One trap has 120 quintals, another 70, a third 60, a fourth 30, two 10 each and the balance from practically nothing to 5 quintals. This is the worst fishery in fifty years, and the catch is too small to make a daily report.

Anniversary Mass.

The anniversary Requiem Mass will be celebrated at Mount-Carmel Cemetery on Sunday next. The celebrant will be Rev. Dr. Kitchin, P.P., of St. Joseph's, and Mass will begin at 10:30. Recently the Cemetery underwent wonderful improvements: the walks and entire surroundings have been beautified, whilst daily within the past few weeks crowds of people visited God's Acre for the purpose of decorating and beautifying grave plots of beloved ones.

MATCH POSTPONED.—Owing to the condition of the weather last evening the proposed football game between the Stars and Collegians had to be postponed. The game will be played at the end of the season.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and adequately equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Berge Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—41713

Good Teeth Test for Marriage.

Dentists as Censors of Cupid. "Many of the illnesses from which children suffer, can be traced to the bad teeth of the mother," said Dr. L. A. Hawkes, late assistant school medical officer to the London County Council, at a meeting of the Council of the Charity Organization Society, recently. "If I had my way," he added, "I would not allow a man or woman with a decayed tooth in his or her head to get married."

Regatta Notes.

The Committee were out again yesterday and met with surprising success.

The Myrtle, which received a thorough overhaul, was put in the water last evening and several crews had a spin in her.

The Mary and Shananditti were also in commission.

The Casual football team will row the Mary on Regatta Day. They are a strapping crew and are looked upon as winners.

Bob Sexton, the builder, expects to put the finishing touches to the new boat this day week.

Digby, N.S. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen.—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts, (small ones) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and in four weeks time every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The Liniment is certainly wonderful in its working. JOHN R. HOLDEN. Witness, Perry Baker.

From the Invermore.

A wireless from Emily Harbour, via Battle Harbour, to the Reid Nfld. Co. yesterday afternoon stated that the Invermore was in the same position as reported on Saturday last. Since the ship struck, the sea has been very smooth and an effort to refloat her may be successful.

St. John's Gas Light Company. Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN. Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manures.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Rigid Laws of War.

Both the United States and Mexico are signatory powers to the "convention with respect to the laws and customs of war on land," adopted at The Hague in 1899, and therefore are bound by its humane proclamations. This convention promulgated a formidable series of rules. The most important restriction which it imposes upon those engaged in war are to prohibit absolutely the following acts:

To employ poison or poisoned arms. To kill or wound treacherously individuals belonging to the hostile nations or army. To kill or wound an enemy who, having laid down arms, or having no longer means of defence, has surrendered at discretion. To declare that no quarter will be given.

To employ arms, projectiles or material of a nature to cause superfluous injury.

To make improper use of a flag of truce, the national flag or military ensigns and the enemy's uniform, as well as the distinctive badges of Geneva (red cross) convention.

To destroy or seize the enemy's property unless such destruction or seizure be imperatively demanded by the necessities of war.

To attack or bombard towns, villages, habitations or buildings which are not defended.

To pillage a town or place even when taken by assault.

To punish a spy, without trial, even if taken in the act; and a spy who, after rejoining the army to which he belongs, is subsequently captured by the enemy must be treated as a prisoner of war and incurs no responsibility for his previous acts or espionage.

To compel the population of occupied territory to take part in military operations against its own country.

To bring pressure upon the population of occupied territory to take the oath to the hostile power.

To confiscate private property. All of these specific prohibitions are based on the declaration that "the right of belligerents to adopt means of injuring the enemy is not unlimited." Special provisions are made to compel the humane treatment of prisoners. It is also provided that advance warning must be given, wherever possible, to the peaceful inhabitants of a town before bombardment is begun. In seizure and bombardment it is also commanded that all necessary steps should be taken to spare as far as possible, edifices devoted to religion, art, science and charity, hospitals and places where the sick and wounded are collected, provided they are not used at the same time for military purposes. It is further stipulated that "family honors and rights, individual lives and private property as well as religious convictions and liberty, must be respected."

Tragedies of the Perilous Sahara.

The Faces of Thirst Victims Bear No Evidence that Torture Attends Death.

(London Standard.)
General Laperriere, in an article on the Sahara, gives some interesting experiences of the sufferings by those to which French officers and troops in Africa are often exposed. Deaths from this cause are common and it has been observed that the faces of the victims instead of bearing traces of the tortures felt in the first stages, invariably wear an expression of calm, as if asleep. Generally they are under the shade of some tree and sometimes within a few yards of water, and it would seem as if the dead man, believing himself saved, had wished to rest awhile before drinking and had fallen into slumber never to awake.

One instance is given of a meharist, or camel postman, carrying letters to the station of Hassi Tufel in 1898. He lost his way and perhaps his head, and having pushed his beast too hard the camel died and he had to continue on foot. Arriving at a sand dune not more than a mile distant than Tufel, from which the station could be clearly seen, the man began firing his rifle as a call for help. There was, unfortunately, a violent wind blowing and nothing was heard, and the next day his body was found, surrounded by 120 empty cartridge cases. Probably if he had used the strength and energy required to work his rifle in struggling on he could have reached safety.

The Race for the Well.

The most terrible adventure of the author was when he was coming back from Taodent with a troop of thirsty men in 1906. The Aouda's water is very salt, as is also that of El Biar, where they replenished. The men drank more than they ought to have done, but said nothing and fought heroically against their thirst, hoping to be able to hold out to the next well, and so concealed the fact, of which they were ashamed. On the way the troop came on some moist soil, and digging, found water, but abnormally charged with saltpetre, which gave them colic. Many fainted, and at 3 in the afternoon seven were helpless in the general's tent. The nearest well was thirty-six miles away. They waited for night fall, the baggage was left behind, a little water was given to each and a race was made for the well. This night march was like a nightmare. Many of the men were delirious and threw away all their clothes to ride the camels. Now and again one would fall off and beg to be left to die, and he had to be put up again and tied on. Those who kept their senses did all they could to encourage each other and help the worst cases, but the most admirable were the two French non-commissioned officers, who did the whole distance on foot as rear guard, picking up stragglers and attending to the worst. These two were already very tired the night before they started, but kept themselves going by continual injections of caffeine into their craves.

Another disagreeable experience was when Gen. Laperriere was travelling with a doctor, a French corporal and two native camel corps men from Wargala to El Golea. At Wargala they had hired a few camels to carry their belongings, and as the country was safe, went on ahead every day, leaving the others to catch up during the afternoon siesta. One day their convoy, which should have been with them soon after noon, had not arrived at 6 o'clock in the evening. For the five in front they had only a quart of water, a little butter, some roasted coffee and sugar, and they were 84 miles from their destination and 64 from the nearest well. They decided to sleep for a couple of hours, and started at daybreak. At seven o'clock a halt was called and a meal made of four potatoes fried in butter. At 1 o'clock the water was used to boil the coffee, a quart among five, and at 8 o'clock in the evening they reached the well. But the well was nearly a hundred feet deep, and had it not been for a native caravan coming up, the plight of the party would not have been enviable. It seemed that the drivers of the baggage camels had fallen asleep on the ride and lost their way only coming in three days later by another route. On another occasion, near the well

Royal Visitor

PREVENTED BY FOG TO REACH BONAVISTA.

H.M.S. Essex, with H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught on board, was unable to reach Bonavista yesterday afternoon, owing to fog. This will be greatly regretted by Bonavista people, who had made elaborate preparations to receive the Royal visitor. Yesterday, Capt. E. English kept the Essex advised by wireless about ice conditions between Bonavista and this port.

of Tai-Haya, they once found a group of six men lying side by side, with their loaded rifles piled and their knapsacks in order behind their heads. They had disappeared three years before and their camels had found the way back. Search parties had failed to find them, and it was by accident that General Laperriere stumbled on their remains. It often happens that wells are found to be filled up, and for a small party this often means death. In 1906 the general reached at noon Bir el Hagaz. The animals had not drunk for four days, and the men since the evening of the preceding day and all the water left for seven Europeans and eighty natives was about sixty quarts. The well was filled up, so a quart was given to each European and to the men on guard around the well, and working parties of eight began to unblock the well. As soon as a party had taken out a hundred pails of earth, a pan of coffee was distributed and it was relieved. The work went on without stopping from noon till 10 o'clock next morning, when enough water was reached to give two quarts per man. It was only at 4 o'clock in the afternoon that the camels could be watered. Any small party of eight or ten would infallibly have perished before clearing out the well.

As a set-off to these somewhat distressful stories there is an amusing tale of an old Arab, the father of one of General Laperriere's men. He was antelope hunting in the great Erg, and when half dead with thirst he reached a well 45 feet deep. At the bottom he could see the delicious water, but, like Tantalus, could not reach it. Unlike the mythical martyr, though he was not chained to the rocks, and as the well was not very wide he did not hesitate to let himself down part of the way, finally falling into the pool. It was quite impossible for him to get out, so like a good fatalist, he waited in his bath praying Allah to send some travellers by. In these regions weeks, and sometimes months pass without the wells being visited, but next day fortune favored him by sending some of the French camel corps that way, who were not a little astonished at hearing a voice from beneath. "Good day, Syrians," (as the Arabs call the Saharan troops); "you might send one down a stronger rope to climb up with." He had recognized at once the pattern of the Spah rope, and knew to whom he was talking.

General Laperriere's article proves abundantly that in one respect the French army is trained to meet a danger that up to now even the ubiquitous British officer has not to fear. Little enough is generally heard of the French African army which in many respects may be compared to our Indian frontier forces being almost perpetually liable to be called upon either to defend itself or to relieve comrades in peril. Both officers and men live in an atmosphere of hardship and frequent heroism of which only an occasional echo reaches Europe, as they are out of reach of correspondent and join modestly to bravery—sons and soldiers of whom France may well be proud.

Worth Careful Study.

The advertisement of the St. Lawrence Silver Black Fox Company, which appears in to-day's paper, is well worth careful study by all who intend to put their money in the fox business.

It will be noted that this company is a mutual concern, organized mainly to get into the black fox business with a high grade of animals.

The promoters pay all the expenses for the first year, so that all profits will be divided among the shareholders. The ranch will be located near Charlottetown, and the company have been fortunate in securing a rancher of experience who is deeply interested in the proposition.

One of the first things a prospective investor asks is, "What kind of Stock will you have in the ranch?"

The St. Lawrence Company has secured options on eight pairs of Class A silver black foxes. Class A foxes are those which are pure silver black in color. Their parents were pure silver black; they were bred in captivity on Prince Edward Island, and never produced any but pure silver black foxes. Class A is the highest standard of Island silver black foxes on the basis adopted by the Provincial Fox Breeders' Association held in September last.

The shares are selling at $100 each, and applications for stock may be made to the secretary Treasurer, Mr. Moran or to any of the directors or promoters.

Baseball To-morrow.

On to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 a double-header of Baseball will be played at St. George's Field. This game is becoming more popular as each match is pulled off, no doubt due to the increased efficiency of the local players. The first game will be between the Shamrocks and Red Lions, and should prove exceedingly fast and exciting. The former have greatly strengthened their team by the addition of Kesner as backstop, and Manager O'Neill is confident of victory. The Red Lions have also made some changes and will no doubt play their old time game. The line up will be:

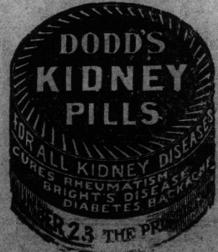

Shamrocks.	Red Lions.
Kesner	Brien
Callahan	catcher
McGrath	pitcher
Power	1st base
Harsent	2nd base
Callahan	3rd base
Walsh	shortstop
Ellis	centre field
Callahan	right field

This will be followed immediately afterwards by the Cubs and Wanderers. The "youngsters" made such a good showing in their game with the Lions that they are now the idols of the "fans" and great things are expected of them before the season is over. They have been conscientiously practicing ever since, and are in good form for to-morrow's game. The players will be:

Cubs	Wanderers.
Clouston	Brown
Tobin	pitcher
Herder	catcher
Stick	1st base
Meehan	2nd base
Tobin	3rd base
St. John	short stop
Simms	right field
	centre field

The games will be controlled by Chief Chessman with the assistance of Hanlin, while Outerbridge will be scorer.
