CHAPTER X.

THE TAMING PROCESS.

“Yes,” said Grace, “very much. He’s a beauty. He’s tamer than this,” and she patted the old cob’s neck with a sigh.

“You think so?” said the captain, with a smile. “Well, I’ll exchange with you.”

She looked at him sharply and shook her head. He had expected an eager acceptance.

“No!” he said. “What has the chestnut done to offend you, or have you grown fond of the cob?”

She looked straight before her without answering. She did not care to acknowledge the love—if love it was—that she possessed for anything that belonged to the dead Hugh.

The captain glanced at her rather curiously.

“So you will not have the chestnut?” he repeated.

“No, thank you,” she said, and spurred the cob.

The captain took the hint and pricked the chestnut into a trot to keep up with her.

They rode on in silence until they reached Ashleigh House, or the Warren, as it was more generally called.

Rebecca was in and welcomed them in her timid, gentle way.

Grace, after taking the keys on the forehead, marched to the window and stared at the lawn.

The captain, hat in hand, seated himself.

“I am here in the capacity of messenger, Miss Goodman,” he said, in his soft, slow voice.

Rebecca looked surprised and expectant.

“I bring a host of good wishes and kind remembrances from Sir Charles Anderson.”

Rebecca blushed, for no reason whatever.

“Oh—Charlie?” she said. “Have you seen him? Is he well?”

“Yes,” said the captain. “I met him in the park during a short visit to London I made a few days back. He was looking well and commissioned me to ride over and take his good wishes.”

“It was very kind,” said Rebecca. “I have not seen him for—oh, a long while! Quiet long enough for him to have forgotten me.”

“Not quite, it is evident,” said the captain, gallantly.

“And who is Lord Anderson?” asked Grace, turning from the window with her usual abruptness.

Rebecca started.

“Not lord—only sir, Grace, dear,” she said. “He is my cousin, and a very good young fellow.”

“Young?” said Grace.

“Well,” said Rebecca, with a blush, “he is a year or two younger than I am. I am thirty-one next birthday, and Charlie is twenty-eight.”

“Old, I call him,” said Grace, emphatically.

And the captain smiled behind his mustache grimly.

Gentle-hearted Rebecca took it in good part.

“Old to you, my dear, but very juvenile he seems to me. Two years make all the difference when they are on the wrong side,” she said, turning to the captain again.

“Wrong side?” he repeated, with a deprecating elevation of the eyebrows.

“I must look younger than I am or you would not have said that, Miss Goodman. I am thirty.”

Grace averred round sharply to the lawn again.

“Thirty is young for a man,” said Rebecca; “but very old for a woman.”

“I can not agree with you,” said the captain, seriously, and glancing Gracewards with a sinister look. “Before thirty a woman is but a child, wayward, untutored. Oh, I forgot! Miss Grace is within hearing.”

And, with a smile, he rose and held out his hand.

“We must be going. The squire has been attacked by his old enemy, the gout, and Grace and I are to hurry back and help him out.”

Rebecca rose and gave him her hand.

But Grace did not move.

He looked over to her, and Rebecca stood waiting.

“Come, Miss Grace, are you ready?” asked the captain, serenely.

“No,” she said, without turning from the window. “I shan’t go. I shall stay with Rebecca.”

The captain raised his eyebrows and smiled.

“Very well,” he said. “Take care how you come across the fence,” and, with his indolent yet well-bred bow, left the room.

Rebecca watched him get into the saddle and ride off.

Grace, hearing the horse’s retreating hoofs, came to the table and threw her gloves and riding-whip upon it, then stood looking at them with her brows bent darkly and her lips set close.

Rebecca, used to her moods, went up to her and commenced taking off her veil.

Grace snatched at the hat and flung it on the table.

“Oh, my dear!” said Rebecca. “What has made you so angry?”

“He has,” replied Grace, coolly. “I hate him!”

Rebecca, this time, did not reprove her.

Perhaps she felt rather touched with the same complaint.

It is scarcely likely that she should care for any one who usurped Hugh Darrell’s place, and she had been prepared, in her timid way, to hate, or, at least, shun Grace.

But the girl seemed so utterly unconscious, so entirely indifferent to her elevation that she could not shun her, much less hate her; nay, more, she had grown to love her.

But for Captain Reginald Darwouth the mistress of the Warren had not only dislike but, what was more, distrust.

She was an innocent, timid woman, but her love made her sharp—sharp, not in her own interests, but in poor, outcast Hugh’s—and her quickened sense told her that the dark, indolent, well-bred Captain Reginald meant no good to Hugh Darrell, the rightful heir, nor to Grace Darrell, the substitute.

“You hate him?” she said. “Why Grace, he seems very kind to you.”

“That’s it!” said Grace.

Then suddenly her face changed and, throwing herself on her knees beside the quiet figure, she buried her face on Rebecca’s knees, and said in a voice utterly different to the defiant one that had spoken but a moment since:

“Rebecca, Rebecca, I’m afraid of him! I try—I try hard not to be, but—I’m afraid of him!”

And she shuddered as if the cold hand of some strange dread had touched her soul.

CHAPTER XIII. A NEWSPAPER STORY.

“Seems he a dove. His features are but borrowed. For he’s disposed as the evil raven. Is he a lamb? His skin is surely lent him!”

For he’s inclined as are the ravenous wolves Who can not steal a shape.”

Dinner was over and the tea was waiting on the drawing-room table before Grace came home.

The squire was seated on a chair before the fire, looking irritable and tired. There was a sad and wearied look upon his face, born of something more than the gout.

Captain Reginald was lying on the sofa, as still and motionless as a clay figure.

Grace threw open the door and entered the room in her riding-habit.

“Where have you been?” asked the squire, irately, staring at her flushed face and disheveled hair.

“Hasn’t he told you?” retorted Grace, jerking her whip at the recumbent captain.

“Where have you been?” asked the squire, irately, staring at her flushed face and disheveled hair.

“Oh! said the squire. “I suppose you worried her life out—it’s a wonder if you didn’t.”

“Is it?” said Grace. “Come, I never worried you, unky.”

“Haven’t you?” said the squire. “I should like to know what you call this afternoon’s behavior?”

“I didn’t mean it to worry you, unky,” said the girl.

“And I never allow myself to be worried,” said Reginald, from the sofa, with quiet distinctness.

Grace half turned, with flashing eyes, but the retort died on her lips before the calm power of his smile.

“Draw that light a little off my eyes, Grace,” said the squire. “I’m growing blind as well as useless,” he growled. “My eyes are smarting like fire. To-day’s the only day as I haven’t been able to read the paper.”

“Not read the paper?” said Grace, lifting her brows. “Poor unky! Here, where is it? I’ll read something to you.”

She had often read him small scraps and paragraphs before Reginald had come. This was the first time she had offered to do so since his arrival.

“Ay, do,” said the squire. And Grace, glancing at the still figure on the sofa and seeing his eyes shut, flung herself down in an easy-chair and took up the paper.

She lost two or three minutes in settling, dragging the lamp close to her elbow—much to the squire’s annoyance—and clearing her throat.

Then she picked out little paragraphs—accidents, murders, elopements, etc.—and read them, stumbling a little at the hard words, but running over the little ones with a voice that, if not thoroughly refined, was deliciously musical.

The old man’s face softened and grew less irritable, but it grew more sad, and his eyes, fixed on the fire, were looking through and through the burning coals, and he heard but an indistinct murmuring, with here and there a pause and a stumble.

The other listener, though his thoughts were as busy and perhaps as sad, showed no sign of them on his face.

However hard the machinery of the brain might be working, the whites, smooth forehead showed no trace of its travail.

He listened and thought with closed eyes and serene, placid forehead.

If you don’t see the “Bayer Cross” on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine “Bayer” Tablets of Aspirin because genuine Aspirin now is made by Americans and owned by an American Company.

There is not a cent’s worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety “Bayer Cross.” Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy boxes of 12 tablets—also larger “Bayer” packages.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monocacetic-acid-ester of Salicylic-acid.

hate my tea in all this confusion. I’d rather wait. Go upstairs and get that confounded habit off and pour out the tea properly.”

Grace picked up her whip, which she had laid down, and left the room, the squire growling with pain and annoyance.

She was not long gone, and the flush of health and excitement produced by the rapid gallop was still on her cheek as she took her place at the urn.

“And how was Rebecca?” asked the squire. “Just as quiet and mopeish as usual, I suppose?”

When people are getting old and are somewhat miserably they have a knack of fancying every one else either too gay or “mopeish.”

“No,” said Grace, “she wasn’t mopeish. She never is. She sang and played, and I listened. We had a happy time of it, I can tell you.”

“Oh!” said the squire. “I suppose you worried her life out—it’s a wonder if you didn’t.”

“Is it?” said Grace. “Come, I never worried you, unky.”

“Haven’t you?” said the squire. “I should like to know what you call this afternoon’s behavior?”

“I didn’t mean it to worry you, unky,” said the girl.

“And I never allow myself to be worried,” said Reginald, from the sofa, with quiet distinctness.

Grace half turned, with flashing eyes, but the retort died on her lips before the calm power of his smile.

“Draw that light a little off my eyes, Grace,” said the squire. “I’m growing blind as well as useless,” he growled. “My eyes are smarting like fire. To-day’s the only day as I haven’t been able to read the paper.”

“Not read the paper?” said Grace, lifting her brows. “Poor unky! Here, where is it? I’ll read something to you.”

She had often read him small scraps and paragraphs before Reginald had come. This was the first time she had offered to do so since his arrival.

“Ay, do,” said the squire. And Grace, glancing at the still figure on the sofa and seeing his eyes shut, flung herself down in an easy-chair and took up the paper.

She lost two or three minutes in settling, dragging the lamp close to her elbow—much to the squire’s annoyance—and clearing her throat.

Then she picked out little paragraphs—accidents, murders, elopements, etc.—and read them, stumbling a little at the hard words, but running over the little ones with a voice that, if not thoroughly refined, was deliciously musical.

The old man’s face softened and grew less irritable, but it grew more sad, and his eyes, fixed on the fire, were looking through and through the burning coals, and he heard but an indistinct murmuring, with here and there a pause and a stumble.

The other listener, though his thoughts were as busy and perhaps as sad, showed no sign of them on his face.

However hard the machinery of the brain might be working, the whites, smooth forehead showed no trace of its travail.

He listened and thought with closed eyes and serene, placid forehead.

Gillett's Lye has long been regarded as a household necessity because of the fact that it is useful in so many ways, and so satisfactory in every respect that no woman feels that she can keep house without it.

Extra Troops for Ireland.
2,000 Reinforcements Have Landed -- Government Will Send Others as Required -- Londonderry Riots Continue Unabated -- General Approval of Anglo-French Premiers Conference -- Carranza Eludes Pursuers.

TROOPS LANDED IN IRELAND.

CORK, May 17. Two thousand troops from England were landed at Bantry on Saturday and immediately distributed throughout West Cork, where they will be stationed at points five miles apart. Troops to the number of 150 also arrived at Skibbernet. They commandeered several buildings there, including the town hall, which was made their headquarters.

SEND ALL TROOPS NEEDED.

LONDON, May 17. Questioned in the House of Commons to-day on the number of troops being sent to Ireland, Bonar Law, the government leader, replied: "I have no information to give on the subject, but we are sending and shall send whatever troops are asked for by the Irish executive."

FURTHER SHOOTING IN LONDON-DERRY.

LONDON-DERRY, Ireland, May 17. Rioting last night between Nationalists and Unionist mobs was even fiercer than Saturday's fighting. Bottles, bricks and pistols were again freely employed by the combatants and many shop windows were broken. Groups of men and women in the Unionist quarter of Fountain Street and similar groups in the Sinn Fein quarter of Bridge Street followed an exchange of party cries with stones and bottle throwing. Then more than a hundred revolver shots followed.

BOLSHREVKI STRIKING BACK.

LONDON, May 17. Russian Bolshevik forces are striking back at the Poles and Ukrainians who captured Kiev about ten days ago, according to an official statement issued in Moscow yesterday and received here by wireless. The statement said the Soviet troops had started an advance and were about ten miles northeast of Kiev.

ATTENTION!

Do you know that about SEVENTY PER CENT. of the coal used in your house is wasted, and that you can prevent a large proportion of waste? Coal is wasted in two ways. It goes up the chimney in smoke and soot. It is left unburnt in the form of cinders. COALOX prevents the escape of smoke, and by providing an additional supply of oxygen burns up most of the soot and cinders.

Persons who have not used Coalox say that it is all very well in theory but it never works out. LISTEN! One customer who used COALOX regularly during the past six months had the Sweep in the other day. They knew they were getting more heat from the coal used, but they did not know why until then. There was not any soot in the chimney and the Sweep's fee was easy money for him.

VERA CRUZ, May 17. (By Associated Press.)—Mexican revolutionary forces commanded by General Sanchez and Higinio Aguilar are pursuing President Carranza and the troops which fled with him from the battlefield near San Marcos on Friday. ITALY'S FINANCIAL TROUBLES.

ROME, May 17. Signor Bonomi, Minister of War in the retiring cabinet, has abandoned his attempt to form a ministry because the popular party in parliament has declined to participate. King Victor Emmanuel has again consulted former Premier Nitti, and as a result has summoned Signor De Nava, Minister of Public Works and Transport in the Nitti government.

Another meeting will be held on Wednesday. In the meantime public services continue in spite of the strike.

MOTHER OF FIRST AMERICAN SOLDIER KILLED IN FRANCE

Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, First War Mother Of The Nation Gives Entire Credit For Recovery Of Her Health To The Well-Known Medicine, Tanlac.

MRS. ALICE GRESHAM DODD, of Gavin Park, Evansville, Ind.

The following remarkable endorsement of Tanlac was given recently by Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, at the Gresham Memorial Home, Gavin Park, Evansville, Ind., which home was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indiana, as evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son, Corporal James B. Gresham, the first American soldier killed in France. Expressions of sympathy were received by Mrs. Dodd from all parts of the United States, and the newspapers of the country carried the story of the first war mother.

The shock of her son's death resulted in the serious breakdown of Mrs. Dodd's health, but everyone will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. When seen at her home recently she made the following statement, giving the entire credit for her recovery to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

"After my dear boy's death, I had a general breakdown in health," said Mrs. Dodd. "At first it was just indigestion. My food used to upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully, which wasn't much hardship as I lost all desire to eat. Then I had an attack of rheumatism, with severe pains in my shoulders, back and arms. Sometimes I used to suffer a great deal, and my joints would get all swollen up and stiff. I was able to do very little about the house, and at times couldn't even cook a meal. I got very nervous and restless, and at night would lay awake for hours, and lost many a night's sleep as a consequence.

"A friend of mine had received a great deal of help from Tanlac, and it was she who advised me to try it. I am so glad I did for it proved the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a good appetite and seemed to settle my stomach so that I was no longer troubled with indigestion. I don't know what it is to have rheumatic pains now, the swelling and stiffness has all gone out of my joints and I am able to do the work of the house, with the greatest ease. My nerves are now steady and strong, I sleep fine at night, and I feel better in health than ever before in my life. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me, and shall recommend it every chance I get."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Fouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale.—adv.

Will Not Be Municipal Candidate.

Deputy Mayor Morris has made the statement that he will not be a candidate in the next Municipal Election. It is to be regretted that the city is to lose the valuable services of Mr. Morris. However, it will be some time yet before he will get out of harness, as it is generally thought that the life of the present Council will be extended, as the Charter will not likely be passed during this session of the Legislature.

Have You Yet Tried Havenden's Chocolates?

If not, you have not yet experienced the fullest pleasure open to the candy lover. Havenden's Chocolates possess that something which pushes deliciousness to its farthest point—a nuance of flavor, a tastiness which, somehow, other candies do not reach, and which is the final test of a sweetmeat. It is this elusive flavor, this unique delicacy, which enables us to say that Havenden's Chocolates "Go One Better." Just try a box, you'll surely yield to their fascinations. ## NOTES OF TRAVEL: And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

L. C. MORRIS,
CHAPTER IV,
AT HALIFAX.

At Halifax there were two distinct attractions in addition to the ordinary sights which interest strangers. The first is to be seen at the entry to the harbour. It is the deep-water Terminal for Ocean Liners, also the Railway Station, which when completed, will prove a valuable asset to the city itself, and a great convenience to the large ships, which make Halifax a port of call. The vast waterfront is all constructed of concrete, and the Piers are thoroughly reinforced with steel, and iron, and as far as engineering skill can devise the entire work is substantially executed. Halifax can well feel proud of its south Terminal, and as the years pass, it will prove its own utility, and justify the claims of its promoters. Like all such undertakings it had, and still has its opponents, who think it all a mistake, and who are ever ready to condemn the whole proposition. Some of these contend that the terminal is built in the wrong place for safety. They claim that being at the entry of the Harbour, both the plant and the shipping are exposed to undue under-tow, and that at times this is detrimental to dispatch and safety.

In support of this argument, we met a prominent ship-owner at St. John, New Brunswick, who stated that he sometimes had to get his vessels removed from the Piers of the Terminal at Halifax, owing to stress of weather, and he maintained that the plant should have been built at the inside of the harbour, or further up in Bedford Basin. All that this gentleman said seemed very feasible, and had a lot in its favour; but being conscious that there exists a deep rivalry between St. John and Halifax on the question of a winter port, we had to discount some of this logic—although his claim for the Terminal within the basin has much to support it. However, Halifax has the Terminal, and whatever one's views may be as to its location, there cannot exist any doubt, as to the excellence of the plant, the stability of the work, and its value to the city—such at least are the opinions of a disinterested stranger.

Leaving the South end of the city we hastened to the North End, and there we beheld the ruins of the fearful disaster of Dec., 1917. To look was sufficient. There was not any need of an interpreter, nor of a guide. The lesson lay open before us, we saw what had really happened, and in a glance the magnitude of the explosion revealed itself. The ruins were and still are, and for a long time will be, their own best tell-tale, and every battered wall, and every gaping basement reminds one of the severity of the shock. That such wide-spread havoc could have been caused within the space of a few seconds, seems almost incredible; but there lay the proofs, and on every side these proofs were multiplied. Wood, brick, concrete and stone, and even steel shared alike, and like so much match-wood their splinters were scattered far and near, and were but as stubble, and the art of man, and his skill, went before the blast, as so much tinsel. Homes disappeared and with them many of those who made home lovely; and friends wondered what had happened, and the world wondered why it had been permitted. But it did happen, and whoever was in fault, or whoever made the blunder, or whatever the cause, the marks can never be effaced, but they must abide as a legacy of that awful event. It was gratifying, to see, that the city proper had faced the situation, and that much of the damage in business sections had been repaired. Men cannot lie down under disaster; but rather must they push back the waves of adversity. And so Halifax immediately set to work, and the world contributed its sympathy, and as far as possible the blow was softened. This is very commendable, and Halifax is to be congratulated upon so soon recovering herself.

Like St. John's, Halifax is a busy sea-port, and its Maritime interests are similar to ours. Thither migrated the same class of colonists as those who came to Newfoundland. Some colonized the province of Nova Scotia, others settled in the province of New Brunswick, others at Prince Edward's Island, and others taking a more northerly course, pitched their tents in this our Island Home. True it is, that there was a large contingent of French people among the colonists, of Nova Scotia; but taking the lower provinces as a whole, it will be found that we in Newfoundland have much in common with our neighbours. The settlement of these new countries meant daring on the part of our forefathers and endurance on the part of their wives and children; and whatever successes have been accomplished, or whatever expansion has taken place, is largely due to their enterprise.

In looking at those cities on our tour, and seeing their growth, we could not but pay a tribute to the work of those brave pioneers. In the little churchyards of the villages, and in the larger cemeteries of the cities, their resting places are marked by stone and marble, but the best monuments we seemed to see were those of the towns and cities as they appeared to our view. Some of these cities are, no doubt, larger than their founders anticipated, but larger or smaller, they are the result of their faith and the children of their enterprise.

Care Needed in Handling Fertilizers.

Undoubtedly a farm suffers the loss of certain soil ingredients when its products are sold off it. Live stock takes with them certain constituents that are not supplied by the mere purchase of grain. At any rate, time is required for the restoration of the qualities they take with them from the soil when they leave the farm. Whatever the theory of it, practical farmers and leguminous crops must be the backbone of their fertilizing agencies, there is a place where these fertilizers may be advantageously supplemented by the use of mineral fertilizers. While no rule of thumb or infallible method of using such fertilizers has been discovered, the fact remains that farmers who have had their way to make and who have won out have found artificial fertilizers a decided help in moving towards easy street.

When the fertilizer is handled carefully it is good business to secure an article as rich as possible. So doing saves in handling, in the number of bags purchased and in freight, time that means more financially and from the standpoint of labor now than at any time within the last twenty years. Filler is not fertilizer.

Artificial fertilizers are not all the forces the farmer requires, but they are a great aid. They do not always give the results one would hope for, but they are not as reliable as other fertilizers when conditions are favorable. They are readily applied and help bring in that little extra that makes farming profitable and pleasant.—Andrew Kyle, Canadian Countryman.

It may be asked—

WHY not the manufacturers of Klim effect a slight saving in the price by putting up their product in CARDBOARD instead of their well-known airtight TIN?

THEY could—but they won't—for the very good reason that a TIN container obviates almost to an absolute certainty any possible bacterial action through exposure to air.

IT'S in your interest entirely—and it is felt that the average consumer is willing to pay the slight premium for protection.

Isn't it worth while?

Cold Blooded Atrocity.

Angry Farmer Murders Whole Family.

Washburn, N.D., May 14.—Injuries administered to one farmer's cattle by another farmer's dog, started a quarrel, resulting in the murder of Jacob Wolf, his wife, five children and a chore boy near Turtle Creek, N.D., according to a confession made here by Henry Layer, the police say.

The confession attributed to Layer is a record of cold blooded atrocity rare in the annals of crime. Layer, whose farm adjoins the Wolf place, was arrested at his home Tuesday night, and yesterday, after making the confession, was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Nusselle.

According to the statement, there was ill-feeling between the two farmers for some time, culminating in a quarrel over Layer's cattle being worried by Wolf's dog. On April 22, Layer went to the Wolf farm, and was ordered away by the owner. When he refused to go, Wolf, he says, secured a double barreled shotgun. As the two men struggled in the doorway to the kitchen for possession of the weapon, it was discharged twice.

One of the shots killed Mrs. Wolf and the other a thirteen-year-old chore boy. Layer, by this time, had taken the gun away from Wolf. He went into the sitting room, obtained a handful of shells from a bureau drawer, and hurried outside.

Wolf was running toward the barn, and Layer fired, hitting Wolf in the back. He then shot Wolf again in the back as he lay on the ground, according to the alleged confession.

Layer then ran to the barn and shot two of the girls while they pleaded for mercy. Attracted by the screams of three little girls in the house, Layer shot two of them, and killed the third with a hatchet.

After the seven members of the family and the chore boy had been killed, Layer went to the barn, covered the two bodies with hay and dragged Wolf's body into the shed and buried it under a pile of hay. He

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON COMPLAINING TOO LITTLE.

A letter friend wants to pick a bone with me. He says I've been singing the praises of the person who never says that he doesn't feel well, and he says there is another side to that.

If you never say that you feel rotten, people don't give you your share of sympathy and consideration. They think you're lazy when you don't work as well as usual, and cranky or sulky if you are quiet. Whereas, if they knew you were under the weather, they would understand and things would go much more easily.

"I can't stand a person," he goes on, "who doesn't say when he or she is not feeling well until afterwards, and then blames you for not knowing."

Used to Be One of His Wife's Habits. "As long as I'm not going to sign this letter, I don't mind telling you that that used to be one of my wife's tricks. She'd look kind of miserable in the morning and I'd say 'What's the matter?' and then she would dig up a smile and say 'Nothing, dear. That made you think there was anything the matter?' And, being green as I then, I would say, 'Oh, I don't know,' and forget about it.

"Well, that night would be sure to be the night I'd have something I especially wanted to read, and I couldn't help her with the dishes as usually did. Or there would be something I wanted mended and I could find it wasn't done and would make a little fuss about it. And then she would say, 'I've had a perfectly terrible headache all day, and I'd say 'Why didn't you tell me about it? You know I wouldn't have said that about my coat if I'd known,' and she would say, 'Oh, I don't believe in talking about how you feel all the time.'"

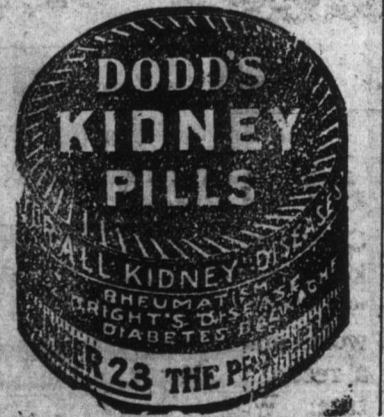

Can't You Carry it too Far. "Well, that was one of the things she had to get adjusted—I suppose every couple has them. Now when she gets up with that look on her face and I say, 'What's the matter?' she insists on her telling me the truth and I act accordingly. She is pretty reasonable, as women go, and she has the sense to fit herself. "Of course it sounds fine to talk

The Type is Rarer Than the Person Who Complains Too Much.

If you put it that way, I don't really see why you can't. And I do recognize the type my correspondent describes, but it is so much rarer than the person who talks too much about his symptoms and his general bad feelings that I have overlooked it before. Doubtless that was a mistake and I'm glad to have it rectified.

Froth and Substance.

London Daily Express.—The Cork verdict of wilful murder against David Lloyd George, Lord French, Ian Macpherson, etc., etc., is an extravaganza. It illustrates the pathetic divorce between reality and sentiment in the Irish mind. It is meant to be impressive. It will, in the midst of tragedy, cause a sane world to rock with laughter. There is, however, nothing in this nonsensical froth, nothing even in the tragedy that lies behind it, which should cause sincerity to despair. The right attitude is that of Sir Hamar Greenwood, who clings with undimmed zeal to all his hopes for Ireland, to all his confidence in Home Rule, as the clue to all new responsibilities as Chief Secretary. To give confidence to men of good sense and good will in Ireland may be, with their help, to make an end of horrors that disgrace civilization, and to find at last the way of peace. Sir Hamar Greenwood has sincere convictions, and we do not think that he will be accused of weakness. We find in his appointment new cause for hope.

MOTHER'S DAY.
Let every day be Mother's Day! Make roses grow along her way. And beauty everywhere. Oh, never let her eyes be wet. With tears of sorrow or regret. And never cease to care! Come, grown up children, and rejoice. That you can hear your mother's voice!

A day for her! For you she gave Long years of love and service brave. For you her youth was spent; There was no weight of hurt or care Too heavy for her strength to bear. She followed where you went; Her courage and her love sublime You could depend on all the time.

No day or night she set apart On which to open wide her heart And welcome you within; There was no hour you would not be First in her thought and memory, Though you were black as sin! Though skies were gray or skies were blue Not once has she forgotten you.

Let every day be Mother's Day! With love and roses strew her way, And smiles of joy and pride! Come, grown up children, to the knee Where long ago you used to be And never turn aside; Or never let her eyes grow wet With tears, because her babes forget.

From the Exchanges.

During the war the British and Foreign Bible Society distributed more than 9,000,000 Bibles, in 80 languages, among combatants, both friends and foes.

The sale of the British Government's motor depot at Slough, G.B., to a private syndicate completes a great motor transport deal, involving a sum of 14,000,000 pounds. The deal began with the purchase of the whole of the American transport in France, 15,000 cars and wagons, for 7,000,000 pounds.

Alcoholic wards in New York city hospitals are filling up because of the disregard of the Prohibition Law. Birds S. Coler, city Commissioner of Charities, declared recently. Mr. Coler said that if conditions did not improve within the next months he would send out his inspectors "to uncover the real facts" and aid in a more rigid enforcement of the dry law.

A determined effort on the part of the staff and student body of the St. Thomas, Ont., Collegiate Institute, is being made to debar all students who are cigarette users from participating in the sports of the College. A series of meetings has been arranged, when the advisability of amending the school rules in connection with this matter will be discussed.

Magistrate Ritchie, of St. John, had 11 drunks brought before him last Monday morning and expressed the disgust with conditions prevailing. On Sunday afternoon, at 5.30 o'clock, he affirmed, that he met no less than seven drunks on the north side of King Square. He declared without any exaggeration that he never saw anything worse in St. John.

Cost of living figures in 14 American cities, obtained by the Department of Labor for December, 1919, as compared with December, 1914, put Detroit at the top of the list, with an increase of 108 per cent. Norfolk, Va., ranked second with 107 per cent., while Portland, Me., took first honors by trailing the list with a percentage of 91½. Boston was next to the lowest with 92. Increases for other cities were: New York, 103; Buffalo, 102; Jacksonville, Fla., 102; Houston, Tex., 101; Chicago, 100; Baltimore, 98; Savannah, 98; Philadelphia, 96; Cleveland, 95; Mobile, Ala., 94.

A vivid light is thrown upon the sad state of housing conditions in a large part of rural England by Sir William Beach Thomas in a recent article in the London Mail. A woman, evicted from her house in a Northamptonshire village, is now living with six of her eighteen children in a cottage of two rooms—one upstairs and one down. In this village there are many cottages crumbling into ruin, and this state of affairs is reproduced, in greater or lesser degrees, over a very large area of this country. The secret is, of course, that no repairs were done to such places during the war, and the cost of putting them in order is now prohibitive. Sir William Beach Thomas instances one case in which eight cottages, all capable of repair, were sold for 150 pounds, though it would cost from 6,000 to 8,000 pounds to build new ones. In a village within 50 miles of London, four cottages were recently offered for 60 pounds, for the simple reason that they had become an eyesore to their owner, who could not face the cost of putting them into habitable condition at present prices.

Fashions and Fads.

Coats have high collars. Large hats are flower-laden. The waist line varies greatly. The fur choker is still popular. Bright plaid tunics is in vogue. Tunics are scalloped and pointed. Sailor hats are trimmed with wools. Sleeves are short and bodices are long. Most sweaters are made very close in front. Novel pockets, and rakes are seen on skirts. The vogue for shiny trimmings continues. The silk skirt is simply made, but very colorful. Some fashion houses show tight frilled sleeves. Tunics are wide and narrow, long and short. The hat and the purse often match in color. Black taffeta is very smart for afternoon wear.

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

Tuesday, May 18, 1920.

An Appeal to His Excellency The Governor.

In addition to, and independent of, the violation of morality and of the conventions that are accepted and observed by honourable men, the Law of the British Empire penalizes certain actions and provides the machinery by which its objects shall be carried out. These laws belong to the branch of jurisprudence commonly called "The Criminal Law." They deal with various classes of offences, which all have this in common, that they are held to be offences "against the peace of our Sovereign Lord the King, his Crown and dignity." If any individual, no matter how obscure, is guilty of any one of the various acts comprised in the Criminal Law, he is charged in the name of the King with an offence against His Majesty's Crown and dignity.

The provisions of the Criminal Law are intended to protect the State and the individual from wrong doing. In as much as all matters pertaining to these objects are of public importance, and tend to the general welfare of the community, His Majesty the King, the Head of the State, the Custodian of the welfare of the public, who comprise the State, acts through his properly constituted officers in all cases of a breach of any of these laws. The care and duty of the carrying into operation of these laws is vested in His Majesty's Minister of Justice and Attorney General. If that officer be guilty of neglect of this duty, it is almost, if not entirely, inconceivable that he will be permitted to retain office.

It is known that His Excellency the Governor is aware of the matters arising out of the proceedings in the Hr. Main Election Petition in which Messrs. Woodford, Squires and Gibbs are alleged to have been guilty of an offence against the Criminal Law of the land. This offence, like all others, is against the peace of our Sovereign Lord the King, his Crown and dignity. If there be any difference between this case and the case of the ordinary offender it is one of degree. It is a more grievous affront to the Crown and dignity of His Majesty if the acts complained of are committed by His Majesty's Prime Minister, or by a Member of His Majesty's Legislative Council, than by an ordinary individual. The grievousness is, if anything, increased by the fact that His Majesty's Prime Minister and the Member of His Majesty's Legislative Council are also numbered amongst those who are described as "His Majesty's Counsel learned in the Law."

land. This gentleman is also one of His Excellency's advisers. It is the duty of Mr. Warren, as Minister of Justice and Attorney General to institute criminal proceedings against the parties who are alleged to have committed the criminal act above referred to. Mr. Warren has not instituted any such proceedings, or any proceedings at all in the premises. We do not presume to indicate to His Excellency what his duty is in the matter. We feel that he knows well what he ought to do. We cannot, however, refrain from pointing out to His Excellency and we do so without any disrespect to the Governor, personally or otherwise, that the time has come, and the circumstances of this matter have culminated to such an extent, that action by His Majesty's Minister of Justice and Attorney General, or in default of such action, action by His Excellency the Governor himself, is imperative, if the confidence of the public in the administration of justice and in the honour and integrity of those servants of His Majesty occupying the highest positions in the land is to be preserved.

At all times the security of our social fabric is dependent upon the impartial administration of Justice, but never more so than in this period of unrest and dissatisfaction. Any lapse of duty in the enforcement of the law, more particularly when the alleged law-breaker is prominent and influential, and most particularly, when he holds high office, is bound to have serious and far-reaching effects on the community. We earnestly hope and pray that His Excellency the Governor and those others under him whose power and duty it is to see to this matter will not permit the present state of affairs to continue for one moment longer than is necessary to put the machinery of the law into motion. There has been too much delay in this matter already. We know that it is not an exaggeration to say that public confidence has been very much weakened and is in danger of being altogether lost.

Consumers' League.

A grand, officially called meeting of citizens, takes place in the spacious Casino Theatre this evening, for the purpose of establishing a Consumers' League and by this organization, to combat the High Cost of Living and kindred social and economic problems. Every citizen should attend this meeting. To do so is a paramount duty, and none will be so apathetic as to remain away. The larger the attendance the more enthusiastic will be the proceedings. It is fitting that the launching of the Consumers' League should take place under the most popular auspices. The time has now arrived when each man and woman must strike out for their just rights. Modern conditions are all but unbearable, and instead of the evils lessening they appear to be thriving and increasing. The High Cost of Living Dragon has to be fought and conquered and no better organization for the coming decisive battle can be formed than a Consumers' League.

Man Drowned.

Deputy Minister of Justice Summers received the following message yesterday from Magistrate Fitzgerald, Grand Falls: "John Greening, 21 years, single, Summertown, Bonavista Bay, was drowned in Roebuck River, Indian Lake, on the 13th inst. Body has been recovered, confined and sent to deceased's home in Millertown. Greening was employed on the river gliding logs and no doubt fell off a log and was drowned."

Woman's Suffrage Petition.

The petition to the House of Assembly, asking for Women's Suffrage, is out to-day and is receiving enthusiastic support from ladies everywhere. The petition follows:

To the Honourable the House of Assembly of Newfoundland.

REPECTFULLY SHEWETH.

- 1. (a) That the granting of Responsible Government did not confer on the Women of Newfoundland the right of voting at Parliamentary or Municipal Elections, and (b) That it is manifestly unjust that women who own property and pay taxes should be debarred from voting, and (c) That as all male British subjects on attaining the age of 21 years automatically obtain the vote, the women respectfully ask that the same right of franchise be extended to them.
- 2. That such right of franchise has been granted to the women of England and other English speaking countries.
- 3. That the women of Newfoundland responded to every call made upon them during the Great War, showing energy and executive ability in the organization of relief and other work, and that many of them served overseas as Nurses, V.A.D.'s and Ambulance Drivers.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, May 18. Many people are of opinion that in this climate and for this soil Thorburns Special Mixed Sweet Peas give the best results of any sweet peas, that in profusion of bloom, in variety and brilliance of color, in hardness of constitution, and in odor, these sweet peas excel some strains supposed to be choicer and finer. We at one time carried quite an extensive line of sweet peas, but the experience of many of our customers seemed to show that Thorburn's Special Mixture filled practically all purposes for this country. Price 20c. an ounce.

Personal.

Vory Rev. A. J. Maher, P.P. Ferryland, is in the city.
Lieut. G. Sceviour, of the Militia Dept., left by the Rosalind for Kentville, N.S., where he will undergo medical treatment.
Capt. Bert Dick, who was at Kentville receiving medical treatment, returned a few days ago, much improved in health.

"Dorothy."

The rehearsal this week augur well for the success of "Dorothy." The finishing touches are being put on and we can surely say that the performance will wield such a charm that many will see every production. Professor Hutton spares no pains to produce the "finished article," and his talented and youthful troupe vie with each other in performing the part as interpreted by him. The Choruses are very fine, and the solos and concerted parts give all the light and shade that Collier would require. The artists are those of Mikado fame of last year, and being rich with the spoils of experience, will accord to new heights in the histrionic arena May 24.

Newfoundlander Interred at New York.

The remains of the late Austin Canning, First Lieut. Engineer of the U.S. S. Louisville, who died in Brest of Spanish influenza, on Sept. 27, 1918, arrived in New York to-day to be interred there on Thursday. The late Lieut. Canning, who was a Newfoundland, was a brother of Messrs. F. J. and J. F. Canning.

Candidates for Council.

There will be no dearth of candidates for membership in the Municipal Council, if those rumored are really intending to stand for election. Five for mayor have been slated: Mr. John McNamara, now at the Long Mulhally, now a councillor; Mr. J. J. White, manager of the White Clothing Company; Mr. W. A. O'D. Kelly, the auctioneer, who was a candidate for the mayoralty last election; and, if Women's Suffrage is won as a result of the petition now out, Mr. Frank Bradshaw, who is slated as being the nominee of the ladies. The rumored candidates for councillorship are: Mr. John Kelly, manager of Bowring's Southside Premises; Mr. Geo. Peet, blacksmith; Mr. D. Galway, tailor; Mr. Jonas Baxter, architect; Mr. Bob Hopkins, carpenter; Mr. Miller, blacksmith; Mr. Patrick Maher, shopkeeper, and Mr. William Brophy, grocer.

PAPER WILL NOT PUBLISH.—Owing to the tubes of an important boiler in the press room blowing out this morning, the Daily Star will not publish to-day.

"The Fleur-de-Lis."

The third issue of the popular Boy Scout magazine, "Fleur-de-Lis," Mr. R. S. Furlong, editor, exclaims any that have appeared before. The editor of this most interesting little monthly magazine deserves much praise for his splendid efforts. The May number contains a message from the Governor, a story and an article by J. R. Smallwood, an article on "Scouts in India," a poem entitled "The Shoal Boats," a story by F. H. Dix, "The Inock," a story by Asst. S.M. Chas. G. McGrath, and the regular department such as "Tips for Boy Scouts," "Simple Talks About Difficult Things," "The Council Fire," etc. A full-page illustration, a photo of the Methodist College Troop, 1915, is also of great interest to Scouts. The "Fleur-de-Lis" is the official organ of the Boy Scout Association of Newfoundland.

Police Court.

There were no drunks in court to-day. Mr. C. J. Fox appeared in the defence of a man charged with damaging the filtering box, pipes and taps at a suburban brewery. The case was postponed till to-morrow. Mr. J. W. McNelly appeared for the complainants. Some trifling civil cases were disposed of.

Citizens to Petition Council.

Citizens of all parts of the city are to-day signing a petition to the Municipal Council, asking that two roads—one East and one West—be kept apart for pedestrians and that automobiles be prevented from using them. This action is being taken on the ground that on Sunday afternoons, when people like to walk out on the country roads for a stroll, they are subjected to thick clouds of dust from speeding automobiles. The petition would not exclude horses and carriages from the roads in question, however. While this matter is before the attention of the public, it might not be amiss to suggest that the roads be reserved for the use of motorists have the roads reserved for THEM and that the pedestrians have all the other roads—for they have the first right to them. Give motorists, say, three roads—one in the East, one in the West, and one back of the town. Then, while motorists might not use any but their "own" roads, pedestrians might use motorists' roads and their own besides.

QUEEN-MOTHER ILL.

LONDON, May 17. The condition of Dowager Queen Alexandra, who is suffering from bronchial cold, is causing anxiety, says the Star to-day. The newspaper cites the fact that Queen Alexandra is now seventy-five years of age, and declares that such a cold must be considered a serious matter to a person of her age.

BOLSHEVIKS ENTERING PERSIA.

LONDON, May 17. It is announced that the Bolsheviki have appeared at Astara, and crossed the Persian frontier, says a despatch to the London Times from Teheran, under date of May 11. The despatch adds that the Bolsheviki said they had no quarrel with Persia, but that British troops must be withdrawn. Astara is a small town in the southeast corner of Transcaucasia on the Caspian Sea.

WAR CHIEFS HONORED.

LONDON, May 17. With full civil ceremonial, Admiral Jellicoe and Viscount French today received Swords of Honor and Freedom of the City of London. The Duke of Connaught and Marshal Haig attended. Admiral Jellicoe, returning thanks, paid a great tribute to the Dominion's naval air services. Their splendid gallantry, sacrifice and endurance has made the British mercantile marine famous throughout history, he said. Lord French, replying, said when he went to France he hoped to remain until "we had won the victory," which he never doubted would be "ours." "It is too early to pronounce a verdict on the great factors and characters of the war, but our deeds will be judged calmly and faithfully at the bar of history. To that great tribunal I am only too willing to leave the duty of assessing our merits and demerits. The great lesson is, that indecision and vacillation always end in disaster." Lord French added that the Germans made a cardinal mistake in failing to seize the Channel ports, which might have prolonged the war.

NOT ALL SUNSHINE.

LONDON, May 17. Canadians who preferred to accept commissions in the Imperial forces on the conclusion of hostilities, are laboring under a distinct sense of grievance in connection with leave to their homes in Canada. They must now pay full ordinary fares both ways, whereas English officers are brought home free.

BRISTOL AND THE DOMINIONS.

LONDON, May 17. Sir George Perley and other High Commissioners go to Bristol on Thursday, to present to the city silk flags from the respective dominions, to be added to Bristol's memorable collection of banners, in recognition of the city's ancient connection with the Dominions, and its close association with the Dominion's troops during the war.

NO COME DOWN.

LONDON, May 17. The cost of foods, up to May 1st, had risen to a hundred and forty-six per cent, above the pre-war level, and there is a prospect of its going still higher, says Charles McCurdy, Minister of Food, in an official statement issued to-night. McCurdy, however, points out that the price of food in England is still lower than in France, Italy and Sweden, and says it is not much higher than in the United States. The Labor Gazette estimates that the cost of living, including food, clothing, fuel, light and rents, is now a hundred and forty per cent over that before the war.

THE FIRE FIEND.

WASHINGTON, May 17. The Superior National Forest, in Minnesota, is threatened with destruction by forest fires, the United States Forestry Service was informed by telegrams received to-night.

POLES TOO MANY FOR BOLSHEIES.

COBLENZ, May 17. Authentic information received by the American command from Warsaw, shows that the Poles are concentrating on a front south of Kiev, in Podolia, and are pointing in the direction of Odessa. Leon Trotsky, Russian Bolsheviki War Minister, has called upon all Russians to rise against Poland. New Bolsheviki forces, including the Bashkir Brigade, are attacking Kiev and the casualties are reported to be fairly heavy. Other Bolsheviki reinforcements are arriving between the Dnieper and the Dniester. Between April 25th and May 10th, the Poles took 30,000 prisoners and 150 guns, and 5 machine guns, exclusive of material found in depots. The Polish losses, to May 10th, are reported to have been only a hundred killed and three wounded, but the losses to troops holding Kiev were proportionately heavier.

FULFILLING THE CONTRACT.

LONDON, May 17. The question concerning war materials, which are being shipped from England to Poland, was raised in the House of Commons to-day. Bonar Law, Government spokesman, said they formed part of the supplies purchased by Poland last year, and that they were being shipped by Poles, because they are the property of the Polish Government. Law added that Great Britain had sold Poland some surplus stores last October, and that it would have been a breach of faith on the part of Great Britain if the despatch of ammunition had been prevented. He declared that no assistance, financial or otherwise was given Poland.

THREW DOWN TOOLS.

HAVRE, May 17. The engine room and stoke hold hands on board the French Liner France, quit work and left the vessel to-day, therefore the France will not sail for New York to-morrow. The strikers demanded more pay.

MARTIAL LAW FOR DERRY.

LONDON, May 17. A large force of troops arrived Monday in Londonderry, says a despatch to the Daily Mail. The disturbed areas of the city are well controlled. The despatch adds that the magistrates have decided to proclaim a state of martial law.

A CLOSE SHAVE.

OTTAWA, May 17. The House divided at midnight on Hon. W. S. Fielding's resolution, calling on the Government to submit the matter to Parliament, before proceeding with the appointment of a Canadian Ambassador at Washington. The amendment was defeated by a majority of five, the vote being 63 for the amendment, and 68 against.

NIITI RECALLED.

ROME, May 17. Signor Nitti, whose cabinet resigned last week, has accepted an invitation by King Victor Emmanuel to form a new ministry. The invitation was extended to-day after the King had conferred with former Premiers Tittoni and Orlando.

GRAVE SITUATION FACING DEPUTIES.

PARIS, May 17. The French Chamber of Deputies, when it convenes to-morrow, after a holiday of three weeks, will face a situation fraught with the greatest internal difficulties. The Deputies first will have to decide whether the Government's projected law for the improvement of the railroad service must be considered to the exclusion of the nationalization plan of the General Federation of Labor. Discussion of the ratification of a stronger main treaty with Austria will be postponed at the request of the Government, which desires to liquidate the internal situation immediately, before taking up foreign political matters. Premier Millerand will make a statement relative to his meeting with Lloyd George at Hythe, and then immediately express his willingness to reply to interpellation on strike matters.

Knocked Down by Auto.

Patricia Foran, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. T. J. Foran, of the Daily News reportorial staff, was run down, on Prescott Street last evening by an automobile driven by a young man named Martin. The car was going down the hill while some cattle were being driven up. The steering gear of the auto got out of order and Martin was forced to run the car onto the sidewalk, thereby striking the little girl. The driver took her to Kennedy's Drug Store in his car and after treatment, the child was conveyed to her home.

Disillusioned.

As one of those who long had thought that all Government officials had a snap, my fond illusion suffered quite a wrench yesterday at the office of the Board of Agriculture. From 9 a.m. till closing hour, office and corridor was thronged with eager and anxious applicants for "Seeds, Soda, and Potatoes," and the manner in which the competent and efficient clerk, Miss Mary O'Mara, disposed of the work, giving information, explanation, and filling the hundreds of orders that poured in, in one continuous stream, right through the day, was admirable to behold. It was quite evident also that the heads of this department, Dr. Campbell and Mr. Bayly, were enthusiastic in their desire to see that no farmer, or amateur with ambition enough to set out his little garden patch, should be overlooked through any neglect of theirs. Every effort is being made to supply the demand, but annoyance will occur through short shipments and other accidents beyond the Board's control.

Reid Will Case Postponed a Month.

(Montreal Star, May 7.)
 In the Practice Court this morning before Mr. Justice Ducloux, L. Athanasios David, K.C., acting on behalf of the defendants in the case of Reid vs. Reid, in regard to the will of Sir R. G. Reid, asked that his clients be given a month's delay to answer the amended plea as filed by the plaintiff. C. H. Caham, K.C., opposed the demand, but as Mr. Justice Ducloux was of the opinion that this delay in answering would not delay the trial proper, and as Mr. David had stated that one of his clients is actually in Europe and another in Newfoundland, the motion was granted.

Good University Record.

Mr. Arthur Johnson, son of Mr. Percie Johnson, of this city, who is in the second year commercial course at McGill University, Montreal, passed well in all subjects during the recent exams, receiving second, fourth, two fifth and sixth positions in the passes list. Unfortunately during examination week, Arthur was ill, which perhaps prevented him from making a better showing than his already excellent record. He has also been awarded McGill's third best distinction, second grade, the decoration of the plain "M" for winning the University Championship, 115 pound class, in the Boxing Competitions and for representing "Varsity in the Intercollegiate Assault-at-arms. Mr. Johnson is now on his way home, with all his blushing honors fresh upon him. Congratulations.

House of Assembly.

—May 17, 1920.

The House met at 3 o'clock. Three petitions, favoring modification of the Prohibition Act, were presented by Mr. M. S. Sullivan (Placentia and St. Mary's).

Petitions protesting against modification of the Prohibition Act were presented by Mr. W. H. Cave (Bay de Verde).

Petitions protesting against modification of the Prohibition Act were presented by Mr. Winsor (Bonaville). Mr. Scammell presented petitions from various places in St. Barbe on local matters.

The Minister of Finance gave notice of Amendments to the "Income Tax Act" and the "Profits Tax Act."

The resolutions regarding the Exportation of Codfish were again deferred.

The House went into Committee on Resolutions to provide for the Lighting of Streets in the Outports.

These resolutions are as follows:—

1. The Governor in Council shall have power, by proclamation published in the Royal Gazette, upon the petition of the residents of any town or settlement in the Colony, to impose a tax to be paid in respect of all coal imported into the said town or settlement; and to fix or alter the amount of the said tax from time to time.

2. The said tax shall be collected by the Sub-Collector of Customs from the persons importing the said coal and shall be paid by him to the Road Board having jurisdiction over the area in which such town or settlement is situated; and shall be expended and used by the Board for the purpose of lighting the streets of such town or settlement.

3. The said tax shall be in lieu of all Custom duties payable in respect of such coal under the Customs Act, but that Act shall not in any other respect be affected.

Mr. Higgins thought that it could be enlarged to enable towns to consider also the installing of a water supply.

In reply the Prime Minister thought it was too great an outlay under these regulations to attempt water supply. Only places now near the electrical plants could avail themselves of this Act.

Hon. Mr. Coaker thought that the resolutions benefited the whole country, those near where generating plants are and those situated anywhere else, as the latter could generate electricity by motor power.

His Honor the Speaker wanted information as to affecting the system they now have at Carbonear; to which the Minister of Justice replied that this Act would not affect that place. The resolutions then passed the Committee and the bill was introduced.

The Prime Minister introduced a bill entitled "An Act to check profiteering."

QUESTIONS.

Mr. MacDonnell asked the Hon. the Premier whether it is the intention of the Government to vote sufficient money to put the railroad in proper repair, either to the Reid Newfoundland Co. or to any other party or parties.

Reply—A Committee of Council is considering the matter.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Minister of Finance and Customs for a statement showing in detail the expenditure of loan of $5,000,000 raised 1912.

Reply—Information tabled but not satisfactory to Sir Michael, and he asked that details be tabled to-morrow.

Sir John Crosbie asked the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs for what reason Miss Delaney was dismissed from the Post Office at Broad Cove, Bay de Verde, and if any complaints were made against her, if so by whom and to Table all Correspondence and the name of the present Post Mistress.

Reply—The Post Office at Broad Cove is in the name of Josiah Delaney. We presume Miss Delaney has been doing the work. The Office hasn't given complete satisfaction in the rendering of accounts. The Office has not yet been transferred.

Sir J. C. Crosbie asked the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs why the cheques due April 1st for Old Age Pensions have not yet been sent out.

Reply—Cheques for quarter ending March 31st 1920 were posted between Jan. 30th and Feb. 10th, 1920. Cheques for quarter ending June 30th were posted between May 3rd and May 12th. Cheques are paid in advance.

Mr. Higgins asked the Hon. the Prime Minister if the Government has decided upon any policy with regard to the holding of Elections for Local Councils at Bell Island, if so what is the nature of the same.

Reply—A petition has been received asking for incorporation which has been sent to the Attorney General for consideration. Meanwhile old Council is doing the work.

NEW QUESTIONS.

Mr. Bennett gave notice that he would ask the Minister of Public Works if the third clerk in his department, Mr. James Murphy has been pensioned and what is the amount of such pension? Also if Mr. Manning the stenographer has been appointed to the vacated position over the head of Mr. Netten, the Assistant Road Accountant, who has been some years in the department. If so why was this done?

In answer to Sir Mr. P. Cashin's question of last week regarding the control of sugar, the following was tabled yesterday:—

There has been some communication from one of the wholesale Sugar importers relative to the "Control" of sugar, but the Food Board, being satisfied that the sugar coming in was going through the ordinary channels of trade and was being distributed in City and Outports, did not see the necessity of going to the extent of "Commandeering" any sugar. The Board has knowledge that under contracts made by Newfoundland firms there is sugar in Canada which will in due course come here.

The House then went into Committee on the "Susu Steamship Bill" and passed same with some slight amendments and a bill was introduced and read a first time.

The Legislature Disabilities Bill was read a second time.

This bill confirms Messrs. Halfyard and Barnes in their seats and asks that Mr. W. H. Cave be allowed to act in his Department as Minister until December 31st, 1920, the Department then to be abolished.

The House adjourned until to-day at the usual time.

May Abolish Sermon.

London, May 13.—(By Canadian Press.)—Are sermons indispensable? This is one of the questions on which a decision may be taken by the bishops of the Anglican Church at their meeting in Lambeth in July.

A section of churchmen are declared to be of the opinion that the day of the sermon has passed. They hold that if a man has not the gift of preaching, it would be better for everyone that he should not preach. The "two sermons each Sunday" custom, they say, imposes a great strain on the clergy—a strain equally if not more heavily felt by the laity who are required to listen to these effusions. The unpopularity of published volumes of sermons once in great demand, is cited by this faction as evidence of the sermon's waning effectiveness.

Modern Crimes.

CAUSED BY LOW NECKS AND HIGH SKIRTS.

London.—A great many of the terrible crimes of the present day are occasioned by the wicked dress of women. Look at the crime all over the world just because of the way women dress, arousing the evil in men. I mean to raise my voice against the shameless dress worn by women at every opportunity.

This is the keynote of a scathing evangelical campaign being waged with increasing ardor here by American evangelists headed by Mrs. Alma White.

Mrs. White, who has opened a "Pillar of Fire" mission at Westminster, continued as follows:— "I intend to condemn with all my strength the extremely short skirts and low cut necks, and to appeal to women to be more careful in these respects. Plain dressing is the direct command of the Bible, and the women who are violating the Scriptural injunctions on this matter are causing untold misery and evil wherever they go."

Fertilizing Early Vegetables.

You want largest crops of best quality vegetables this year than ever. Manure is scarcer than it has ever been and in many cases poorer in quality. Labor costs are mounting, but to compensate both these disadvantages there never was such a demand for garden truck as there is at present, and prices rule high. The best price is obtained by the man who has the largest quantity of vegetables ready for the market at the earliest possible date. Early growth depends upon how quickly the soil warms up, and how abundant is the supply of suitable plantfood. If your lettuce, radishes, early cabbages, peas, beans and other garden vegetables can get the start that you want, they will mature with all speed and be ready to serve the highest market. But the earliness and speed of growth depend directly upon whether that available plantfood is at hand for them or not. Manure is exceedingly good, but well balanced fertilizer supplementing it supplies the plantfood in more concentrated and more quickly available form so that fertilized crops start off quicker and more vigorously than those which have received manure alone.—Henry G. Bell, E.C.A.

Remarkable Old Watch.

A loan exhibition of ancient timepieces, collected by Moryd Fleisher, has just been placed in one of the U.S. museums.

Mr. Fleisher spent forty years in gathering the watches, which tell a historical story. The oldest of the collection was made in the fifteenth century.

"The first instrument for reckoning time," said Mr. Fleisher, "was the sun dial, then the candle, followed by the water clock. These led up to the mechanical contrivances with weights and springs. Watchmaking is a refinement of clockmaking, which was taken from the Chinese. The early watches were made of bronze, and were either circular or striking watches. At first they really were portable clocks. It is quite probable that the Puritans, with their prejudice against display, were responsible for concealing their watches in their pockets."

In the collection, which numbers 125 examples of the early watches, will be found those made by the Chinese, with movable figures and enclosed in oblong cases; others set in rock crystal and semi-precious stones; watches with one hand, two hands, and no hands at all; watches so heavy and bulky that it was impossible to carry them in the pocket, so they were hung about the neck with a cord or suspended from the waist or from the wrist—the original wrist watches.

There is one timepiece known as the "resurrection watch," because it is a standing figure whose outstretched arms designate the hours of the day. Another has nine dials, 10 of which show the Persian calendar of twenty-nine days and the Arabic calendar of thirty days, besides others indicating the changes of the moon and astronomical phenomena. Watches that strike the hours and those with raised figures, which can be read in the dark, and others shaped after the form of musical instruments, skulls and books, testimony of the ingenuity, taste, religious and artistic feeling of the makers.

Oldest Watch Made by Blacksmith.

The oldest watch in existence, which is exhibited in this collection, was made by Peter Heinlein, a Nuremberg blacksmith, along about the date when Columbus was laying his plans for his first western voyage. The watch is about two and one-third inches in diameter, one inch thick, and weighs seven ounces avoirdupois. The case is bronze gilt, and may have been produced by casting, by press die and roller die, and finally hand-tooled. The dial is of brass, sunk in the centre, in which cavity is a revolving disc with a pointer which indicates the hours engraved up to 12 and repeated on the opposite half, making the dial a day and night indicator. Outside the hour numerals are four circles, marked with minutes, fifteen to each circle. The hour indicator makes one revolution in twenty-four hours, and the double-ended minute hand one revolution in fifteen minutes. The materials of the movement are iron and steel throughout, with the exception of the brass bushings of the pivot holes. The workmanship is excellent.

Heinlein, the inventor of this watch, was persecuted for witchcraft, when he withdrew from his companions to work out his invention. He finally was put in prison, where his watch was perfected. After some time he retired to the convent of the Carmelites, where he was allowed to manufacture watches on condition that he give the proceeds to the order. He died in 1540, at Nuremberg, the scene of his persecutions, where a monument has been erected to him.

Manna of Bible Found.

Belief that it has discovered one of the constituents of the Manna of the Bible is agitating the U. S. Federal Bureau of Chemistry. Be that as it may, it certainly has found and secured several pounds of melezitose, a form of sugar extremely valuable in scientific experimentation and hardly more plentiful than radium. The supply never has been sufficient to come anywhere near meeting the demands of scientists in laboratory work.

Melezitose is the original honey dew. It gets its name from the French word melez, which means larch tree, on which it first was found in minute quantities rarely met with in quantities. It seems that bees and peculiar summer weather in Central Pennsylvania recently conspired to lay up a lot of this unusual saccharine substance in numerous hives, where it crystallized and dealt death and destruction to so many bees when they tried to live on it, that special inquiries were held to find out the cause of this wholesale mortality among the busy workers. It was found to have been too rich for their digestion, and that they literally starved to death.

"This rare sugar," says Dr. E. T. Wherry, of the bureau, "also occurs in a honeyed incrustation or manna on a leguminous tree in Persia and adjoining countries. Recently it has been found by the Bureau of Chemistry in a similar product on the Douglas fir in British Columbia. And now it has turned up in Pennsylvania, stored away in honeycombs in ordinary hives. As nearly as we can tell, the origin of this still scarce sugar is due to the attacks on the scrub and, more rarely, other species of pine by a plant louse and a certain scale insect. In the course of their activities these creatures produce a honey dew which is rich in melezitose."

"In dry summers after the white clover flowers have ceased to yield honey, the bees turn to this honey dew and collect it, but it crystallizes as fast as they store it away. This occurred in 1917 and 1918. In the winters following the beekeepers sustained considerable losses when their swarms tried to live on it."

"In 1919 the summer was so moist that during July no melezitose was gathered by the bees at all. But it probably will be collected in the future whenever the summer is dry. Melezitose will not help out any in the general shortage of sugar, but it is of great scientific value to know that the honey of Central Pennsylvania may afford a permanent source of a sugar previously so rare as to be only imperfectly known. It can be distinguished from other sugars by certain peculiarities of crystallization observable with the polarizing microscope. The Bureau of Chemistry extracted considerable quantities from honey in 1917 and 1918, and is making extensive experiments with it. There is a large and definite demand for melezitose for use in all scientific laboratories."

The King's Gold and Silver Sticks.

Before the war we frequently read in the papers that Lord So-and-So had been appointed Gold Stick in Waiting to the King, and Colonel Somebody-Else Silver Stick. Fresh appointments were made at the end of each month, notification of which appeared in most of the London and provincial newspapers; so that everybody in time grew accustomed to the repetition of these appointments appearing so regularly. But familiar as the titles became, few people know the origin of the appointments or had any knowledge of the nature of the duties attached to them.

Away back in the seventeenth century the Life Guards constituted three troops, each troop being separately commanded by a captain who held the rank of colonel in the Army, a duality of ranks which does not exist now, having been abolished some years ago. One of the most important duties imposed on the Life Guards in those days was a very close attendance on the King when he was on foot. No matter in what direction His Majesty's steps strayed, he had to be attended in this manner the duty beginning when he rose in the morning, and only finishing when he sought repose at night. The officers selected for the performance of these very onerous duties were the three captain-colonels commanding the Life Guards troops, each taking it in turn to attend the King's person.

In order to distinguish him, and to confer on him special powers of authority, he was given an ebony staff mounted with a gold head on which was engrossed the King's crown and cipher. This staff or stick he invariably carried about with him as his badge of office, and from this he was styled "Gold Stick in Waiting," a title which has continued in force up to now. The representatives of the three old-time troops are the 1st and 2nd Life Guards, and the Royal Horse Guards, and the three respective colonels will once more take it in turn, month about, to perform this ancient and honored office.

When the appointment was first instituted it was deemed necessary at the same time to appoint an assistant, who might at times relieve the Gold Stick if required, or act for him in his absence. But it was at the same time decided that the appointment of this assistant should also be limited to the three Life Guards troops, and so three officers of lesser rank were chosen, each taking it in turn for duty in the manner of the Gold Stick. To this officer was assigned an ebony staff with a silver head, also inscribed with the King's crown and cipher and, like his senior, this officer took the title from his baton and became the "Silver Stick in Waiting."

The Mystery of "J" and "W."

It is a fact, not so well known but that it may be said to be curious, that the letters of J and W are modern additions to our alphabet. The letter J only came into general use during the time of the Commonwealth, say between 1649 and 1658. From 1630 to 1646 its use is exceedingly rare, and you will not find a book printed prior to 1652 in which it appeared.

In the century immediately preceding the seventeenth it became the fashion to call the last I, when Roman numerals were used, as in this example: viij, for 8 or xij in place of 12. This fashion still lingers, but only in physicians' prescriptions. Where the French use J it has the power of s as we use it in the word "vision." What nation was the first to use it as a new letter is an interesting, but perhaps an unanswerable query.

In a like manner, the printers and language makers of the latter part of the sixteenth century began to recognize the fact that there was a sound in spoken, English which was without a representative in the shape of an alphabetical sign or character, as the first sound in the word "wet."

Prior to that time it had always been spelled as "vet," the v having the long sound of u or of two u's together. In order to convey an idea of the new sound they began to spell such words as "wet," "wealth," "web," etc., with two u's, and as the u of that date was a typical v, the three words above looked like this: "vvet," "vvealth," "vveeb."

After a while the typesetters recognized the fact that the double u had come to stay, so they joined the two u's together, and made the character now so well known as the w. In one book three forms of the w are given. The first is an old double v (vv), the next is one in which the last stroke of the first v crosses the first stroke of the second, and the third is the common w we use to-day.

A Gift
A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent is sent to all who ask. See coupon.

This 10-Day Test

Has shown millions the way to white teeth

All statements approved by high dental authorities

This is how millions have found the way to whiter, safer teeth. You see the results on every hand—perhaps in teeth you envy. Send now for this simple ten-day test and see what your own teeth show.

The method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent—a tooth paste considered ideal by authorities. It is believed that its use will create a new dental era.

Why teeth discolor

There is on your teeth a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. That film is the teeth's great enemy. It dims them and destroys them.

The tooth brush fails to end it, for the ordinary tooth paste cannot dissolve it. So for months between your dental cleanings it may do a ceaseless damage.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea—a trouble which few escape.

Dental science has for years sought a way to fight that film. Five years ago the way was found and convincing tests have proved it. Now leading dentists everywhere advise it, and millions of people have been led to employ it.

Supplied on request

A ten-day tube of Pepsodent is now sent to all who ask—to 10,000 people daily. This is done to let everyone know quickly what it does.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to dry by day combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. That is why it long seemed barred. But science has found a harmless activating method, so it can be daily applied to the film.

Two other new factors in tooth protection are also combined in Pepsodent.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth written as the film-coat disappears. A ten-day test will be a revelation.

Compare this new method with the old. Then let the clear results decide what is best for you and yours. Cut out the coupon now.

Mainly About People.

Sir Thomas Lipton, who has never ceased to conspire to the end that one of his unending series of "Sham-rocks" should succeed one day in turning trans-Atlantic transport to a large and glorious silver loving cup, spent the earlier days of his business life as a lowly paid clerk in a grocery store in Glasgow. Then he opened a store of his own. His favorite story concerns the days when he opened his first grocery shop in Glasgow and slept under the counter. A customer entered a rival's shop and asked for a pound of butter. "Real or imitation, sir?" "What was it you sold me yesterday?" "That was the real." "Then," retorted the customer, "give me the imitation."

Norman G. Shilde, writing in "The New Success," points the following rules for getting the right sort of a job. They are, in brief: Get in touch with your former employer. Study the "want ads." Let everybody know that you want a job. Make up your mind what you prefer to do and who for. Go after a job hard. In other words, make as good a job of going after a job as you expect to do at the job when you get it.

George J. Whelan, the head of the United Cigar Stores, was in the also ran class when he selected 20 good looking fellows, dressed them as admirals and sent them about New York pushing a cigarette he had branded "Admiral." He pestered Francis B. Duke, the millionaire tobaccoist with these admirals, for wherever Mr. Duke went there would be an "admiral" hovering in the offing. Duke insisted upon knowing so clever an advertiser. Whelan and Duke have done big business since.

William Averill Harriman, the son of the late E. H. Harriman, who in life was known as the "railroad king," has gone into the ship building and transportation business. He has developed an ocean transport fleet. He still holds his father's interest in rails, and he has a banking house specializing in marine and kindred securities.

In private life John D. Rockefeller, who has broken all donation records by his latest gift of $125,000,000 to American institutions, is by no means the morose recluse he is sometimes thought to be. He is a man of careless, cheerful and humorous demeanor. His pet aversion is having his portrait taken. "I wonder you don't get Sargent or Abbey to paint your portrait," suggested a lady. "John D." smiled. "Oh, no, madam," he said. "That would never do. You see, I have never yet been done in oil and I don't want to spoil the record."

Many and very complicated matters are to be adjusted in the Rhineland of Germany. In the work of readjusting Great Britain is represented by Sir Harold Stuart as High Commissioner. He has had long experience in the administrative affairs, especially in India, all of which should be useful now in dealing with complicated problems that will arise in carrying out the terms of the peace treaty. Sir Harold Stuart was born at York on July 29, 1860. His high education was received at King's College, Cambridge. Soon after graduating he entered the Indian Civil Service and went out to Madras, where he filled many administrative positions, and also served as Under Secretary to the Government and later as Secretary under Lord Amphilil, and as private secretary to Sir Arthur Havelock. He directed the taking of the census of 1891, and wrote the report.

Knock, and you'll be a winner, boost, and you'll be a frost; for the old sane ways of the pre-war days, are now from the program lost: Strike, and the world strikes with you, work, and you work alone; for we'd rather yell and keep raising Hannibal, Mo., than strive for an honest bone. Rant, and you are a leader, toll, and you are a nut; 'twas a bitter day, when we pulled away from the old time workaday rut. Wait, and there'll be a blow-up, watch, and you'll see a slump; and the fads and crimes of these crazy times will go to the nation's dump.

Labor Losing Ground.

Westminster Gazette—Labor is not only failing to hold the ground won in the middle of last year, but is actually losing ground in the constituencies. It is true that in certain cases the Labor poll is likely to increase, and that, through the split vote, Labor may even win seats; but on the whole there is a decided reaction, and it is clearly recognized that there is nothing to justify the hopes of sweeping the country indulged in by the Labor leaders a few months ago.

Tells How Vinol Restores Strength and Vitality to Weak, Run-Down, Nervous People

She says: "For eighteen years I have been at work among the sick and poor and have used VINOL for weak, run-down, emaciated people with excellent results. One young woman when she came to me was so weak she could hardly creep to my door, and so changed in a month by taking VINOL I hardly recognized her, she had improved so much. I cannot recommend VINOL too highly for such conditions. These words are uttered from my heart in order that more people may know about VINOL."—Mother M. Alphonsa Lathrop, O.S.O., Hawthorne, N.Y.

Such testimony as this should convince every one of the value of VINOL. The reason it is so successful in such cases is because it contains the tissue building and medicinal elements of cod's livers, without oil, aided by the blood making, tissue building and strength creating properties of tonic iron, beef peptone and hypophosphites. It creates hearty appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood, with thousands of red blood corpuscles and in this natural manner imparts health, strength and vitality to every organ, muscle and tissue of the body. Why not try VINOL on your druggist's guarantee?

A New Development in Light Sixes

Before we began experimental work on our new six-cylinder motor three years ago, we made a very thorough investigation of the light six field.

We found out just what qualities car owners desired in the power plants of their motor cars and then we designed an engine to meet these requirements.

The wisdom of our method is attested by the unanimous approval given our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model. With its first appearance, it immediately won the enthusiastic support of motorists.

And, by its dependable and economical performance, it has so clearly demonstrated its high character as an investment value that our production schedule is already proving unequal to the demand.

The "Glenbrook" is a truly remarkable development in five-passenger cars. Won't you arrange for a demonstration while our dealer is in position to meet your requirements as to delivery?
