DAINGEROUS PETS.

Doctor Gives His Opinion About Cats and Dogs.

A lethal chamber for all household pets—that is the suggestion of a prominent physician, who considers that on account of their germ-breeding propensities pet dogs, cats, rabbits, and birds, such as parrots, are the cause of an amazing amount of ill-health in families. And although most of us will probably consider the proposed remedy far too drastic, there is much food for reflection in his remarks.

In his opinion cats and dogs are real dangers to children's health. He contends that they convey diphtheria for one thing, not by germs in their fur, so much as in their throats, and other diseases as well.

"It makes me shudder," he says, "when I see babies cuddling cats, and perhaps inhaling their breath and holding them close to them. Many a case of disease that seems mysterious has been conveyed into a family by a pet dog or cat."

Pet animals, according to this physician, pick up all sorts of germs from the street or floor. They come into close contact with all sorts of filth and dirt, and no matter how often an animal may be washed the disease germs cling to it and are transmitted to any person who fondles it.

It is especially severe upon those women who, both at home and out of doors, are to be seen kissing and fondling pampered pets in a manner which is as much against good taste as it is against good health.

"No wonder," he says, "that so many of these women come to me complaining of throat troubles and eye afflictions, when they indulge in such habits."

With regards to birds, there is not so much danger if they are kept in cages or in their proper place and not allowed to come into close personal contact with their owners. "I know of one old lady, however," says this physician, "who thinks nothing of having her pet parrot walking about the dining table at meals, and this after the bird has probably been walking about the garden, for it is very tame, and follows its mistress wherever she goes. In such a case the bird is an absolute menace to health."

A City of Forty Mosques.

The city of Adrianople is very much scattered and contains somewhere about 80,000 inhabitants, half of whom are Turks and the others Armenians, Israelites and Greeks. The walls which formerly surrounded the city had been allowed to fall to ruins, and since the Russo-Turkish war the city has been in a state of decline. Much of its old splendor has disappeared, but many of its forty mosques are fine examples of eastern architecture. The city has had a very varied history since its foundation in the second century by the Roman Emperor Hadrian. A great victory was won there by the Goths in 378 and another by the Avar Huns in 586. Twice the Russians have occupied the city—first in 1829, when they forced Turkey to give independence to Greece, and again in 1878, when they occupied it without resistance.

An Arabian Legend.

The Arabians had a tradition that when the devil started forth from his own place to the garden of Eden he was too lazy to walk and begged all the animals, one after another, to carry him. All refused except the serpent, which was then a quadruped and the most beautiful of all beasts. Yielding to the entreaties of Satan, the serpent took up the devil on its back and carried him the rest of the way, no one knows how far, and after the consequences of the devil's entry into the garden became apparent the angels were commanded to look up the serpent and punish it, so Michael cut off its legs, and it was doomed henceforth to travel about flat on the ground.

Great Change in Map.

An important change in the map of Asia has recently occurred. The vast region of Mongolia has ceased to be a part of China, and is now independent. The Mongols are chiefly famous in the world's history as invaders and conquerors in Asia and Eastern Europe. They were vassals of the late Manchu dynasty, but not of the Chinese Government, and their separation from China resulted automatically from the proclamation of a republic. Their secession from China was aided by Russia, which thus secures a "buffer state" on its Chinese frontier.

Not In Proportion.

"I'm a self made man," said the proud individual.

"Well, you're all right except as to your head," commented the other part of the conversation.

"How's that?"

"The part you talk with is out of proportion to the part you think with."

The Boss.

"All right," said Elsie; "we'll play theatre. I'll be the boss."

"No," replied Tommy; "I will. It takes a man to be manager."

"Of course, that's all right. I mean I'll be the leading lady."

Missionary Trains.

Wales has adopted the plan of sending agricultural missionary trains throughout the principality, teaching the farmers the best methods of raising poultry. Great gain has resulted.

Shoeing Horses.

The art of shoeing horses to protect their hoofs against the evils of hard usage was unknown to the Greeks and Romans, and is first mentioned in the history of the Celts as late as the fifth century.

Banknotes.

The cost of printing a banknote is 1-23 cents, and after it has been worn out it costs 2 mills to destroy it.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

BOTTLE BROKERS.

A Curious Branch of the Fiery Vodka Traffic in Russia.

Since the edict of June 6, 1894, the production and sale of vodka, that fiery drink in which most Russians delight, have been controlled by the government. Of the 50,000 places engaged in the vodka traffic in European Russia more than one-half are conducted by the state under the direct supervision of the ministry of finance.

Most of the employees in the government vodka shops are widows and orphans of deceased officials of the state. These shops are conducted in an orderly manner, and no drinking is permitted on the premises. The fact that a charge ranging from 1 cent to 9 cents is made for the bottle in which the vodka is sold has given rise to a strange business.

Bottle brokers, as they are called, haunt the neighborhood of the vodka shops, watching for some thirsty person who needs the loan of one or two kopecks (a half a cent or a cent) with which to make the purchase of a bottle of the desired beverage.

Perhaps the buyer has but six kopecks and he requires eight to get a bottle of vodka. The "broker" lends him the two kopecks to make up the desired amount, and, after the receptacle has been drained under the vigilant eye of the broker, the bottle is turned over to him. He takes it back to the shop and sells it for three kopecks, thus making a profit of one kopeck.

In Moscow and St. Petersburg hundreds of men are earning a living at this strange trade.—Harper's Weekly.

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poisoning. Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimer Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the seasonal!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A Legal Contest

Without Any Law In It

By F. A. MITCHEL

"Jim," said my friend Bob Elliot, "I have a law case for you."

"I had just 'put out my shingle' as an attorney and was not displeased at the announcement. Bob was rich, and I was poor. I supposed that the matter in question concerned some property he owned. I expressed myself ready and willing to serve him and asked him the nature of the case.

"It's a matter of breach of promise," "Breach of promise?" I exclaimed. "So your conscientious proceedings as an attorney have at last got you into trouble, eh? I've told you time and again that your disposition to regard love as a game, a bit of sport like following a deer or landing a fish, is the most dangerous kind of amusement a man can indulge in. He's no match for a woman at that sort of thing. I suppose you've been writing a lot of compromising letters."

"A few. But you're on the wrong track. I'm not to be sued for breach of promise. I'm to sue a woman for that identical thing."

"Pshaw!" "And what's more, I haven't any case at all. The defendant is a heartless coquette, and I wish to punish her for the damage she has done."

"Upon my word! When did you become so virtuous as to take it upon yourself to punish another for a sin at which you are sinner in chief?" "It's jealousy on my part."

"Another fellow got ahead of you?" "No; jealous of the lady's superior proficiency at the game of hearts. But enough of this preface work. You know Miss Kate Stanley?" "I do and am aware that she is as conscienceless as you."

"More so. Beside her I'm as innocent as a new born babe. But it re-

50 Broad Street House, London. I bought some of your GIN PILLS at Victoria, B.C. last September. I made inquiries in New York on my arrival there but was unable to obtain any information about them. Your remedy, I find at 60 years of age, to give me perfect relief and I regret very much that you have not made arrangements to have GIN PILLS on sale in New York and London, as I urgently recommend GIN PILLS to friends of my age as being the one thing that does good.

have legitimate business. I wrote the letter to Miss Stanley as he had suggested.

"The first success of his bluff, I confess, was not only unexpected, but astonishing. The lady had been so free with her pen to her different suitors that she had lost track completely of just where she had compromised herself. She replied that she was ready to pay a round sum for a return of any letters she might have written Mr. Elliot and asked him through me to name a price for them. I sent for my client and informed him of the result of the preliminary skirmish. He read Miss Stanley's letter and said:

"Write her that if she will send a written regret for trifling with the most sacred human sentiment and ask for forgiveness in this special case her letters will be returned to her."

"For heaven's sake, Bob!" I exclaimed. "Is there no shame in you?" "You are employed to conduct this case as an attorney," he replied. "I was not aware that your craft are so pure as to prechurn purity to your clients."

"You should be one of us," I retorted. "For unscrupulousness you would stand at the head of the bar."

"Never mind the compliments. Just you write what I tell you." I obeyed my client's instructions and in due time received a reply that when Miss Stanley submitted to be lectured on her actions in affairs of the heart the lecturer must bear a better reputation in such matters than my client. She asked me to name a sum Mr. Stanley would accept for the return of her letters.

I communicated this request to my client, expecting that he would instruct me as to a reply within a short time. But a month passed, and, although I met him frequently, he made no mention of the matter. When a fortnight had elapsed without my having sent any further communication to Miss Stanley she wrote again, reminding me that she had not heard from me in reply to her request for a statement of the sum that would buy her letters and begged that I would name a price since she did not wish them to remain in the possession of Mr. Elliot.

I noticed an absence of temper in the young lady's letters that caused me to think they were dictated by counsel. Thus far she had refrained from expressing herself toward my client except as a lady to a gentleman. When I showed Elliot this letter I told him that doubtless in the defendant's case counsel was the manager, while in the plaintiff's case counsel was simply a go-between in a matter which he did not understand. Bob made no reply to this assertion, but I could see by the expression of his face that it amused him. He told me to write the lady that his object in pressing the matter was not one of money, but justice. The case could only be settled—out of court—in the way he had suggested, and if that was not satisfactory I had orders to bring the suit.

The reply I received to this communication dispelled any belief on my part that the lady was acting under the advice of counsel. She said that it was a matter of common report that my client had broken the hearts of a dozen confiding girls. She would never consent to apologize or to ask pardon of one who was far more guilty than herself. I was well aware that no lawyer would dictate such a letter, common report having no standing in a court of law. However, I had by this time given up trying to decipher the upshot of the case and was awaiting some sort of a denouement. Bob gave me no more confidence than he had conferred upon me when he put the matter into my hands, or, rather, employed me to write his letters for him.

He again took up the Fabian do-nothing policy, making no reply to the defendant's last letter. Then another one came in which the writer said that her attorney had advised her to confer with Mr. Elliot direct. With a view to settling the matter, which meant getting back her letters, she asked if my client would meet her at her attorney's office or at mine at such time as he might elect. Bob told me to write her that he would meet her at her counsel's office, and she might appoint the time. He knew well that she had no counsel, and he did not believe she would take any lawyer into her confidence. I confess that by this time I felt sure she had been acting on her own responsibility, and I was not surprised when her reply came that after consideration she preferred Mr. Elliot should call at her house.

When I received this letter I confess the scales fell from my eyes. It occurred to me that this, instead of being an incipient law case, was nothing more than a flirtation between two champions in the game of love. I sent the letter to Bob and, at the same time, resigned as his counsel, writing him that while I would be happy to serve him thereafter in legitimate law business, I didn't propose to do any more intermediate work between a pair of lovers.

The first I knew of the outcome of this legal contest in the court of love was an announcement in a society journal of the engagement of Robert C. Elliot and Miss Kathryn Stanley. I wrote Bob, congratulating him and inclosed a bill for a box of Havana cigars in lieu of a fee for bringing about his engagement. He paid the bill and soon after gave me an order to search a title for him, which was followed by other business.

After the wedding and the return from the honeymoon trip I dined with Mr. and Mrs. Elliot and told them that, inasmuch as I had brought them together, I thought I was entitled to the inner story.

"It's this way," said the husband. "I was backing against half a dozen other fellows, and I didn't propose to remain in and of the crowd. My threat to sue was a bluff."

"And my offer to buy my letters," the wife added, "was a counter bluff. I knew perfectly well that Bob had nothing but a few notes from me, but let you think I couldn't remember just to whom I had written letters that might be construed as a promise of marriage. Besides, I preferred that Bob should think I would rather pay a round sum than marry him."

"Having heard your two stories," I said, raising my glass. "I drink to the health of the two biggest bluffers who ever tilted in the arena of love."

JUST YOU WRITE WHAT I TELL YOU.

"quires innocence to punish guilt, and I propose to give Miss Stanley a lesson."

"You can't do that by making her pay in money. She's richer than you."

"It's the publicity that will hurt her."

"Well, to come down to business, what evidence have you against her?" He produced a small bundle of notes. I looked them over and found nothing but regrets for invitations he had given Miss Stanley.

"Why, you stupid numskull! These notes instead of showing encouragement indicate that the lady doesn't care especially for your attentions."

"Well, they're all the evidence I have. I'm relying on the publicity of the suit I'm about to bring to punish the defendant. Write her an official letter stating that your client, Robert Chandler Elliot, is about to bring suit against her for breach of promise. Say that he has furnished you with such evidence as he possesses which may or may not prove his case—a matter for a jury to decide. Tell her that since lawsuits are expensive and the issue of this one would be uncertain you would advise its settlement out of court. Lay the damages at $100,000 and ask her if she would prefer to pay without the publicity of a trial."

"Bob," I said, looking at him earnestly. "For monumental gall you are the finest specimen of my acquaintance."

"All is Well That Ends Well"

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness, sleeplessness and general ill health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be assimilated and carried to the blood. On the other hand, the blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion. In turn, the nerves are not fed on good, red blood and we see those symptoms of nervous breakdown. It is not head work that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor thin blood the body is not protected against the attack of germs of grip—bronchitis—consumption. Fortify the body now with Golden Medical Discovery.

MAGIC OF HOUDIN

He Scared the Algerians and Conquered the Nation.

A LITTLE BLACK BOX DID IT.

By the Aid of a Magnet and a Current of Electricity He Struck Terror to the Hearts of the Arabs and Took All the Desire For Fight Out of Them.

"These are great times," exulted the Electrician to his friend the Old Fogey. "With machine guns and other instruments of war we certainly are going some in the fighting game."

"Yes," agreed the Old Fogey as he adjusted his glasses, "but do you know that before such things were dreamed of an entire nation was conquered with a magnet and a little black box?"

And the Electrician confessed, "No!" "You have heard, no doubt," the Old Fogey rambled on, "of the marvelous inventions of Robert Houdin, the great French conjurer, a man who did great things with electricity when Alexander Graham Bell was an infant."

"Houdin applied electricity to many of his magical experiments and delighted the Parisian public for years in his little theater. When he retired he was the most favored performer of his day and had bowed to the plaudits of royalty."

"Hear all about that," snapped the Electrician. "What about the black box?"

"Coming to that, boy; coming to that. Houdin retired to his family estate on the left banks of the River Loire near St. Gervaise, hoping to end his days in peace. But after a year or so there came to him through a military friend a request from the French government that he go to Algiers."

"In his memoirs, translated into English some years before his death, he says that the Marabouts of that country, a sort of medicine men and wonder working priests, controlled the masses and incited them to intermittent revolts against the French by their tricks. These tricks, he assures us, were of the simplest and most primitive type."

"It was the hope of the French government that Houdin by his mysteries could demonstrate that the white conqueror's magic was superior. And Houdin did it."

"With the little black box and the magnet!" "Yes. His recital of his performance in Algiers is exceedingly interesting. Some of the most distinguished natives were there. Houdin showed them all sorts of things; allowed himself to be shot at and caught the bullet unharmed and many other such feats."

"But his piece de resistance undoubtedly was his box. He called for a strong man to come on the stage, and a giant responded. Houdin toyed with him for a moment, bantared with him about his strength and asked him if he could lift his little black box. Disdainfully the Arab lifted it and smiled."

"But Houdin warned him: 'Wait. But a moment, and you shall be as a little child!' He placed the box on the stage over the magnet and dared his huge guest to raise it. The Arab tried with one finger; grasped it with his great muscular hand; tugged at it with all the strength of his massive arms, bracing his legs like two huge bronze columns, so Houdin says, to no avail. Try as he would, this son of the desert could not stir that little box from its place."

"For a breathing spell he released his grip for a moment, then went at it again as Houdin gave a signal to have the current turned off. And while the awe-stricken audience panted in amazement he suddenly writhed in acutest agony and sank groveling to the stage. The current coursing through him had galvanized him into misery."

"Then Houdin gave a signal, the current from the electro magnet beneath the stage was turned off, and the Arab fell back groaning. He lifted himself to his feet and, hiding his face in his cloak, crept away to blush unseen. The little black box had conquered."

"And?"—inquired the Electrician. "And," replied the Old Fogey, "Houdin was triumphant. The country had seen him shot at by a man who said he wished to kill; had seen him rob a giant of his strength. No Marabout with primitive tricks could convince them that any revolt of theirs could prevail against the white man and his magic—his electricity. The conqueror's conquest was complete."—Popular Electricity.

Thought He Was on the Phone. "Then, Minnie, you are going to get another physician instead of the old health inspector?"

"Yes; he is too absentminded. Recently as he examined me with the stethoscope he suddenly called out, 'Hello! Who is it?'—Flegende Blat.

INVESTING YOUR MONEY.

It is Not a Wise Plan to Put All Your Eggs in One Basket.

The late Marshall Field once said that if he could be right 51 per cent of the time he was satisfied. He was talking of investments, and the Field estate at the time of his death totaled some $43,000,000.

Shrewd as Russell Sage was, his executors found many worthless stocks in his vaults, although they found plenty of others that were not worthless.

The Sages and the Fields long ago adopted the plan of the insurance companies and the banks, says Investments. The one point in it that should be dimmed into our ears thoroughly is that wide distribution in both wise and necessary.

No matter how small the sum, it should not all be invested in any one thing. No single venture of whatever nature can be relied upon to remain constant and unchanged. Securities are live things because the enterprises they represent are alive.

London Children and the Country.

The bishop of Stepney was telling stories recently about the inability of the London slum child to appreciate the country. "Would you like to live here always?" he asked a girl on a school treat, and she answered, "No; it would be dull." He took a party of children for a treat to Hampton court last spring. There was blue sky overhead, with a blaze of color in the flower borders. He thought the children were enjoying it, but presently one of them asked, "When are we going to get there?" and inquiry revealed that her sole idea of a day in the country was a place where there would be swings. Another girl was asked whether she would like to stop and sleep in the country. "No," she replied, "not with all these rabbits about."—Westminster Gazette.

A Gentle Hint.

Dr. Johnson to the contrary notwithstanding, puns are occasionally excusable. This one, attributed by the Brooklyn Times to a boarding house keeper of that city, is good enough to pass muster.

One of the young men who lived in the boarding house had the double fault of slowness in paying his bill and fussiness about the table service. One morning he said peevishly to the landlady:

"Mrs. Jones, will you tell me why my napkin is so damp?" "Yes, Mr. Wicks," replied the landlady promptly. "It's because there is so much due on your board."

A Question of Etiquette.

"The horse and the cow is in the field," read the teacher. "Mary, what is wrong with that sentence?"

Mary, says the New York Tribune, was evidently more versed in the rules of politeness than in the rules of grammar, for she answered promptly: "The lady should be mentioned first."

Of No Practical Value.

"These school books are a regular fraud," said Mrs. Nuritch.

"What's the matter with 'em?" her husband asked. "Look at this goggerly of Willie's. There ain't a single road map in it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Light Matter.

"Madam, you do not seem to attach any weight to the amount of the gas bills."

"No; I consider them a very light matter."—Baltimore American.

A Paradox.

Shaw—Why did you give that dog of yours the name of Paradox? Shute—For the reason that as a pointer he's decidedly a disappointment.—Boston Transcript.

Saying and Saving.

Tommy—Mamma, what is economy? Tommy's Mamma—Economy, my son, is what a husband preaches and a wife practices.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Not Lost.

Mother—Oh, Willie, you naughty boy, you have been fighting again and lost two of your teeth! Willie—No, I ain't mother; they are in my pocket.—London Answers.

She Might Be Right.

In the opinion of the average wife her husband ought to do more of his economizing away from home.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The grand essentials of life are something to do, something to love and something to hope for.—Thomas Chalmers.

STRANGLING WITH ASTHMA is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured from an attack of this trouble. The relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breathing becomes normal and the bronchial tubes completely clear. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was."

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. Cook, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

Pass On The Praise

"You're a great little wife and I don't know what I would do without you." And as he spoke he put his arms about her, and she forgot all the care in that moment. And forgetting all, she sang as she washed the dishes and sang on as she made the beds, and the song was heard next door, and a woman there caught the refrain and sang also, and two houses were happier because he had told her that sweet old story of the love of a husband for a wife. As she sang the butcher boy who had called for the order heard it, and went out whistling on his journey, and the world heard the whistle, and one man hearing it thought here is a lad who loves his work, a lad happy and contented.

And because she sang her heart was mellowed, and as she swept around the back door, the cool air kissed her cheeks, and she thought of a poor old woman she knew, and a little basket went over to that home. So because he kissed and praised her the song came, and the influence went out and out.

Pass on the praise. A word and you may make a rift in the cloud, a smile and you create a new resolve, a grasp of the hand and you may repress a soul from hell.

Pass on the praise. Does your clerk do well? Pass on the praise. Tell him that you are pleased, and if he is a good clerk he will appreciate it more than a raise. A good clerk does not work for his salary alone.

Teacher, if the child is good, tell him about it; if he is better tell him again. Thus you see, good, better, best.

Pass on the praise now. Pass it on in the home. Don't go to the grave and "mother." Don't plead, "Hear me mother, you were a kind mother, and smoothed away many a rugged path for me."

Those ears cannot hear that glad admission. Those eyes cannot see the light of earnestness in yours. Those hands may not return the embrace you wish to give.

Why call so late? Pass on the praise to-day.

Trade in Watford and you go home satisfied.

The indications of worms are restlessness, grinding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions the best remedy that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and will grind them to atoms that pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be likely.

STATION INSPECTION FOR 1914

After the inspection of Stallions had been completed last fall it was found that there were quite a number of Stallion owners who, through not appreciating the value of the Act, or through lack of information did not have their Stallions presented for inspection when the inspectors were on their routes in the fall. A supplementary inspection was held in April to inspect Stallions owned by such men. This made the inspection very thorough, but, besides causing additional expense, it in some cases, caused considerable delay in having the Enrollment Certificates issued. To overcome the necessity of a second inspection for the season of 1914 it was decided at a meeting of the Stallion Enrollment Board held in the Secretary's Office, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, on Monday, Sept. 22nd, that there would only be one inspection of Stallions during the year, ending July 31st, 1914, which inspection will commence about February 17th, 1914. The Public School Exhibit
The Public School exhibit was very creditable indeed and reflected credit upon both teachers and pupils. The display included exhibits of vegetables, flowers and curios, as well as collections of seeds, weeds, leaves, bark and wood. Opened in the above classes was open to the entire school. There were also exhibits made by each separate form. The third and fourth classes showed samples of their work in writing, drawing and map drawing. The second and part second classes had exhibits in writing and arithmetic. The primary class had a very attractive display of sewing cards, paper cutting and writing. The exhibit was placed in the hall and attracted many interested sight-seers during the entire day. The Public School is to be congratulated on the success of their first effort along this line and doubtless the interest shown by the pupils will warrant the extension of this work.

THE TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM

Driven From the System by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The sufferer of rheumatism who has not gone about curing himself in the right way must expect a return of the torture with every change of cold or damp weather. It is not the change in the weather that causes the rheumatism, but it does start the aches and pains. Rheumatism is a deep-seated disorder of the blood. You cannot possibly cure it with outward applications or hot formulations as so many people in their ignorance of the real cause of the trouble try to do.

Rheumatism can only be driven out of the system by driving out the poisonous acid in the blood. This can only be done by making the blood supply rich, red and pure. It is in this way that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism, even after other remedies have failed. These Pills make rich, red blood; they go right to the root of the trouble, and the pains and aches are driven from the system and will not return if the blood supply is kept pure. That is the whole secret of curing rheumatism, and if you are a sufferer begin to cure yourself to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among the many sufferers from rheumatism who have been cured by this medicine is Miss Mary D. Kelly, South Dummer, Ont. Miss Kelly says: "Some time ago I had a very bad attack of rheumatism. At times I would be confined to bed for a couple of days and would seem almost paralyzed with the intense pain in my back and legs. At such times I could not walk, and my joints were stiff and swollen. I consulted different doctors and took their medicine, but did not get more than temporary relief. At this time a neighbor advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a supply. After taking a few boxes I found they were greatly helping me, and I continued their use until the trouble completely disappeared. I can strongly recommend this medicine to others who suffer as I did from the pains and tortures of rheumatism."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Strathroy Agricultural Society will have a surplus of $600 after all debts are paid.

THERE are too many able bodied men and women, strangers, going up and down our streets selling collar buttons, pencils, etc., on the pretext that they have sick husbands or wives with several small children to support. There may be some excuse for cripples engaging in this work, but the well-dressed, healthy specimens of humanity who trade on the sympathies of our people, ought to be ousted from town. In these days when there is plenty of work for all who want it, there is no necessity for anybody faking a living in this manner.

A GREAT many merchants think the expansion of the parcel post system is designed solely to benefit a few great stores in Toronto. Not so, a certain New York paper says—"It ought not to take the merchant of a small town long to find out that in the parcel post he has a friend and not a foe. Let him start an energetic advertising campaign in his local papers and he will soon learn that he can reach a class of patrons who were never within gunshot before the parcel post came to town. This means that rural journalism will assume an importance that was never known before."

WATFORD HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT KILLED BY G.T.R. TRAIN

Instant Death of Robert G. Campbell, of Alvinston, on Saturday Morning

CORONER'S JURY EXONERATES G.T.R. FROM ALL BLAME

A sad fatality occurred on the G. T. R. track about three-quarters of a mile west of Watford early Saturday morning when Robert Grayton Campbell, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Campbell, of Brooke, was instantly killed by a fast passenger train. The deceased was a student at the Watford High School, and left his boarding house here about five o'clock to walk to Kingscourt where he expected to take the 6.23 train for Alvinston to spend Thanksgiving at his home near there. Soon after seven o'clock the G.T.R. section men found his body, badly mangled, lying between the east and westbound tracks. Dr. R. G. Kelly, coroner, viewed the remains and decided to hold an inquest. It is supposed that Campbell while proceeding west noticed an eastbound freight approaching and that he stepped out of the way on to the north track, directly in the path of regular passenger express No. 7, which is due at Watford at 4.49, but on that morning was over 30 minutes late. The morning was dark and it is supposed that Campbell did not notice the westbound train and that it struck him, causing instant death, part of his skull being carried away and many bones broken. The train was going at a speed of 55 miles an hour. The remains were brought to Harper's undertaking rooms and after being viewed by the coroner's jury were conveyed to Alvinston.

Deceased was a fourth form pupil at the Watford High School. The teachers state that he was very clever and had been spared would in all probability have developed into a valuable citizen. His department was excellent and he was in every way a most desirable student. The school purchased a wreath as a token of esteem and which Russell Trenouth and Clare Roche conveyed to the parents with a letter from Principal Potter.

The funeral took place on Monday from the family residence about a mile west of Alvinston and was very largely attended, showing deep sympathy for the afflicted parents in the loss of their only son on the threshold of a promising manhood. The service was conducted by Rev. R. G. McKay, assisted by Rev. J. C. Forster, of Watford. Interment took place in the Alvinston cemetery. The pall bearers were Warren Munro, Nevill McPhail, S. Downey, J. A. Ferguson, E. Oke and J. McKellar. The floral offerings were very beautiful and included wreaths from Maple Ridge School Mates, Watford School Mates, Alvinston School Mates, and some eight or ten from friends of the family.

The following letter to the parents of the boy was sent with the wreath from the Watford High School:—

Watford, Oct. 19, 1913.
MR. AND MRS. CAMPBELL,
ALVINSTON, ONT.

DEAR FRIENDS:—

It is needless for me to state that the entire community was inexpressibly shocked when your son's death became generally known and that the deepest sympathy is felt for you by all.

I trust that it will afford you some comfort to learn that during Robert's life he was attentive and industrious and his department was most excellent. Every member of the staff was thoroughly satisfied with his progress and regarded him as an exceptionally bright student. I had the pleasure of giving him instruction in four subjects and I have rarely met so apt a pupil. I shall greatly miss him in my classes and I know his classmates will meet with sorrowful hearts next Tuesday morning. He was held in the highest esteem by the teachers and the students. In token of respect and affection we send a wreath.

Yours with heartfelt sympathy,
Chas. Potter,
Principal, W. H. S.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST

The jury empanelled to inquire into the death of Robt. G. Campbell met in the council chamber on Monday evening and answered their names as follows:— E. McGillicuddy, foreman; J. H. Hume, J. Shirley, W. S. Kelly, Jos. Keller, W. McKecher, C. B. Matthews, A. McDonnell and T. Harris.

Coroner Dr. R. G. Kelly conducted the investigation, assisted by Crown Attorney J. P. Bucke.

Mrs. James Hamilton testified that deceased boarded with her and left the house about 5.05 a.m.

N. McNece, foreman of the section gang, testified to the finding of the body about 7.15, between the two tracks about 3/4 of a mile west of Watford. He described how he supposed the boy had been struck by westbound train and rebounded from eastbound train to where found, the body being thrown 127 feet before it rested. He produced plan of track with particulars marked thereon.

John Doar, sectionman, corroborated the previous evidence.

C. W. Vail, station agent testified that train No. 7, the westbound express, passed the station at 5.25. It was due at 4.49 and was 36 minutes late. The eastbound freight passed at 5.29.

T. Elliot, engineer of No. 7, testified that his train was behind time and was going about 55 miles an hour when it passed here. The morning was dark and drizzly. At the speed train was going could see 25 to 30 yards ahead. Did not notice striking anything or anyone on track. Examined his engine at Sarnia and there was no blood or evidence of having struck anything.

J. Kennedy, fireman on the express, knew nothing of the accident.

J. P. Wilcock, engineer on the east-bound freight. Had train of about 40 cars, was going 15 to 20 miles an hour. Did not see anyone on track. Heard of accident at Paris. No trace of anything unusual on engine.

N. R. Aitken, fireman on freight, could give no information.

Clare Roche stated that he identified the body as that of Campbell. Had been going to school with him since Sept. last.

Dr. Newell testified that he had examined the body and found a compound fracture of left leg, a bruise and tear on back, shoulder blade severely crushed, back of skull knocked off and gone, no brains, clothing badly torn. Injury to skull sufficient to cause instant death. Judged that boy was struck first on leg by cowcatcher and then head struck by buffer beam.

The Crown Attorney summed up the evidence and the jury rendered this verdict:—"We are of the opinion that the death of Robert Grayton Campbell of the township of Brooke, who was walking on the Grand Trunk Railway property was caused by being struck by the engine of G. T. R. train No. 7 on the morning of the 18th of October, and that his death was purely accidental; and further that the Grand Trunk Railway Co. is in no way responsible for said accident."

From Sectionmen, Watford

To no one is the tragedy of that cold, grey, cloudy morning of Oct. 18th more real and terrible than to these five men, who, in the solemn stillness of that morning, with not a sound breaking the quiet of the open country, as they proceeded over their section towards Kingscourt Jct. Coming almost suddenly upon the corpse of a young man lying between the tracks, evidently having been struck by a train, and as we gazed upon him each choked back a feeling of awful pity that seemed to rise within them. To others who saw him afterward it could not be the same, for they were told what they would see. But we came suddenly face to face with a tragedy of which no earthly being knew, and each heart went out in anguish and sympathy for some mother who at that very moment might be looking for or thinking of her boy. To us the spot where we found him will be ever sacred. For there man met man in one common brotherhood—the living and the dead. No one can extend such sympathy as we extend to the loved ones of the young man whom we met as his spirit sped on to the Great Beyond.

Yours in sympathy,
N. MCNECE,
S. WELSH,
J. DOAR,
D. MCNEE,
R. WATSON.
