Away—Looks Suspicious.

(Special News Service.)
MONTREAL, Que., Monday.—Jas. M. Dent, accountant, who last week went to considerable pains to make the public believe he had committed suicide by jumping from a steamer at Murray Bay, is now believed to be endeavoring to create the impression of his death, to cover his departure for California with a lady friend, who resided in a small town not far from Montreal.

It is currently rumored that Dent made extensive purchases of expensive clothing before he went away.

MANY UNEMPLOYED
IN UNITED KINGDOM

LONDON, Friday.—General Federation Trades Unions has issued manifesto declaring that there are 1,500,000 unemployed in the United Kingdom, with dependents numbering 7,500,000 suffering thereby. Federation recommends creation of minister of labor and permanent 'Unemployed Board,' and that all members of labor unions refuse to work overtime.

Mr. O. S. Crockett, at the opening of his campaign, was going to stump in other constituencies, so little was there to do in York to assure a Tory victory. But he has changed his tune. He is the busiest man at home that you have ever seen. He is sticking right to York, and he is sending out all the stumppers he can secure to stem the rising Liberal tide. That doesn't look much like a Tory walkover in York, does it?—Herald.

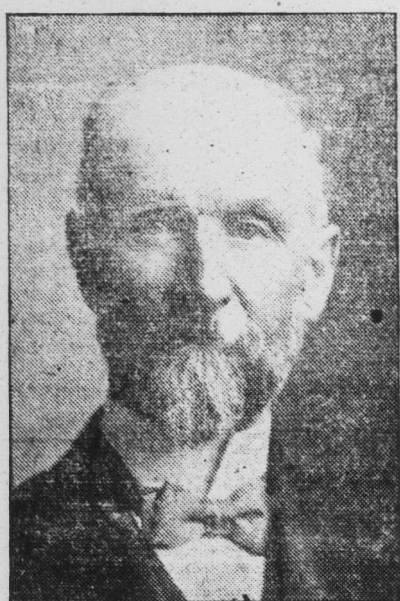

"Every working man should remember what Mr. Reid has accomplished. When work was needed at Dalhousie he urged the government to undertake the necessary improvements to the harbor immediately, and this was done giving employment to a large number of men."

LIBERALS ARE PREPARED

(Special News Service.)
MONTREAL, Monday.—The local Liberal chiefs have word that between now and nomination day, the Conservative interests will likely launch a big surprise, even more notable than that tried in the report that the G. T. R. were trying to get out of the G. T. P. bargain.

German Sailor Said He Lost
Big Wad But Had Money On Him.

NEWS FROM CHATHAM

(Special News Service.)
CHATHAM, N. B., Monday.—The marriage of Miss Ida Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Simpson, Neguac, to Mr. William Golding of Sussex, took place on Thursday at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Kate McEachern was bridesmaid and Mr. J. R. Simpson supported the groom. Rev. J. R. McKay officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Golding will reside in Sussex.

Politics is now the all-engrossing subject. W. S. Loggie's election is now generally admitted by the more moderate men in the Conservative party, and the only question is the size of the majority. A statement, made by one of Mr. Morrison's followers in the local house is significant. He declared that Mr. Loggie would be elected with a majority of 150, over Mr. Morrison.

Officer Coughlan was passing the Gulliver house on Water street about midnight on Friday, and heard a loud racket. He went into the house and found a German sailor in a room with a half dozen other men. He could not speak English fluently, but made known the fact that he had lost $100. The officer searched the other inmates but found no money. On the sailor's person he found $31, and as the man was stupid with drink, he took him to the police station for protection, for the night, and gave him his money in the morning. The man states that he had $25 in loose change, of which he spent $10, but does not know how the remainder vanished.

The footballers are steadily practicing in the exhibition building, and are arranging for a game with the U. N. B. They would be glad to get a match on with any Campbellton fifteen.

Rev. Father O'Keefe, who has been ill for some time, is now considerably better. The funeral of the late Ernest McDougall was held on Friday, from his late home in Loggieville. Rev. J. Fraser conducted the services, assisted by Rev. J. M. Maclean. Among the floral tributes were wreaths from W. J. Loggie, and from the children of the Loggieville school.

Four drunks were run in Sunday and given the usual sentence today.

HON. GEO. FOSTER AGAIN THE TOPIC OF DISCUSSION AT TORONTO MEETING

Rev. J. A. McDonald of the Globe Tells Further of His Celebrated Land Transactions and of His Frantic Letters.

FOSTER'S CAREER IS ABOUT ENDED

TORONTO, Ont., Monday.—The public career of Hon. George E. Foster, or that part of it connected with his management of the Union Trust funds was subjected to a further dissection at the hands of Rev. J. A. McDonald, editor of the Globe, at a large meeting in the interests of W. H. Shaw on Saturday night.

Mr. McDonald, in opening, said that his answer of Tuesday night to Mr. Foster's charge that he "lied," stood, unweakened by anything said by Mr. Foster, in his reply on Thursday night, and he would not be speaking again, nor be taking such an active part in the campaign in this constituency, had not Mr. Foster challenged the genuineness of certain letters to which he made reference and described as "false," the allegation that he had taken a private commission and a very large rake-off in the land transactions which he conducted as manager of the Union Trust Company. Taking up the first of the letters written by Mr. Foster, to the late Dr. Oronhyatekah, asking that the reserve funds of the I. O. F. be drawn upon to relieve the financial distress of the Union Trust Company, under Foster's management, McDonald went on, "Foster tried to cast a doubt on the fact and motive of these letters. He said they were not perfect. He asked for dates. He wanted to examine the signatures, but Sir, and this is significant, he did not deny having written such letters, he did not deny having made such demands from the Foresters, to be used in the meeting of pressing payments on speculative investments. He remembers that McDonald went on to tell about commissions Foster received and his big rake-offs.

He dared not make such a denial and Foster need not vex his righteousness about these letters. They are not lost. Their contents are not forgotten by others, he need not pretend to have forgotten them himself, let me refresh his memory. Let me recall a letter he wrote to Dear Dr. Oronhyatekah, from the Adelphi Hotel, London, England. He remembers the date on which he discussed the critical condition of the Union Trust Company, how useful it was that relief be found. How before leaving Toronto, he had urged upon the supreme chief secretary, Mr. McGillivray, the using of I. O. F. reserves, and had left a memorandum giving his views. He remembers that McDonald went on to tell about commissions Foster received and his big rake-offs.

DRUNKEN ITALIANS MURDERED SUNDAY AT MONTREAL P. Q.

(Special News Service.)
MONTREAL, Que., Monday.—Two Italians were murdered last night at St. St. Hyolite street.

One of the dead men was shot by his son. All had been enjoying themselves, and intoxicating drink had been used freely. Once or twice Michael Cuicouri, a young man, had been restrained from quarrelling, but he finally broke loose. His first victim was his father, who tried to pacify him. The old man, whose name is Michael Calouri, after being shot, walked out into the yard, where he died.

co Martelli, his host, who had returned with money from the lumber camp. The murderer was arrested. He is thought to have had some kind of grudge that urged him, while drunk, to do the foul deed. A fourth man, who is supposed to have had something to do with the trouble, escaped.

BATHURST RACES TO BE HELD TO-DAY

Good Races Are Promised
As Some Fast Entries
Have Been Made.

CARACUET OYSTERS

BATHURST, N. B., Monday.—The races to be held on the speedway, tomorrow afternoon are being looked forward to with keen interest. Much of good sport, on account of the speed that is entered in the free-for-all.

Drivers are being imported and every one will be out to win.

The track is in excellent condition, and many are looking forward to a lowering of its record on this occasion. The circulating library, which was mentioned through these columns a few weeks ago, is now open. Subscribers are requested to call and leave their subscription when they will be allowed the use of the books.

We are somewhat surprised at "Pencil" to think that he went to sleep during the speeches in the court house on Thursday evening. After reading his article in Saturday's paper, we feel convinced that such must have been the case since he left out many points both in Mr. Hazen's and Mr. Young's addresses. We would advise him to procure a copy of Friday's Montreal Times and read it over.

Caracuet oysters are now ripe and are being offered to the public. The price is about the same as last year. R. O'Leary, and party from Richibucto, were in town on Friday night, having come up in Mr. O'Leary's auto. Mr. John P. Legere wishes to announce in connection with the Hazen government is the columns of this paper and the St. John Telegraph, is not in any way connected with the Bathurst Light and Power Co. This announcement is made only in fairness to Mr. Legere, and also to the local government, as many of the readers of these papers in this locality might get the two companies mixed.

MANILA, Saturday.—Charles H. Trotter, an American, and Vincento Toledo and Jose Canayan, Spaniards, were killed last Wednesday near Lubay in the province of Pangasinan, by a party of Filipinos. The men were murdered with bolos and their bodies were terribly mutilated. Trotter was a contractor and landowner, and had had trouble over land with a Filipino, who led the party which killed Trotter and his companions.

Most men start out with good intentions, but somebody hands them transfers.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH AFRICA INCREASES

During General Decline Our Trade Shows Considerable Gain.

DECREASE $4,000,000

But Canada Has a Gain of Nearly a Quarter of a Million—The Conditions Improving.

(Special News Service.)
OTTAWA, Ont., Monday.—In a report to the department of trade and commerce, Mr. Chesley, Canadian trade commissioner in South Africa, states that although for the last six months of 1908 there has been a general decline in trade, amounting to about four million dollars, imports from Canada increased to the value of $12,000. Mr. Chesley says that South Africa is gradually recovering from the effect of the war and the general conditions are improving.

C. P. R. WILL NOT

(Special News Service.)
OTTAWA, Ont., Monday.—Orders have been received from Montreal today that some twelve of the C.P.R. strikers are not to be re-engaged. It is presumed that this action is taken because they were leaders in the strike, and some of the returning workers say they were threatened with personal violence if they did not go out with the rest.

G. T. R. IS REVISITING

(Special News Service.)
MONTREAL, Que., Monday.—The Pullman car rates on the G. T. R. are being revised. The Toronto rate remains the same, but to intermediate points it is about twenty-five per cent higher for day seats, sleepers remaining the same. Staterooms will be allowed to all points east of Montreal, and day rates lower.

NEWSPAPERS TOTAL BILLIONS.

Copies Printed Each Year Would Make a Pile Over Five Hundred Miles High.

It is estimated that the annual aggregation of the circulation of the newspapers of the world is some 12,000,000,000 copies. To grasp an idea of what these figures mean, one should be told that these papers would cover no fewer than 10,450 square miles of surface; that they are printed on 781,850 tons of paper; and further, that if the number (12,000,000,000) represented, instead of copies, seconds of time, it would take more than 333 years for them to elapse. In lieu of this arrangement, we might press and pile them vertically upward to reach our highest mountains. Topping all these, and even the highest Alps, the pile would reach the magnificent altitude of, in round numbers, 500 miles. Calculating that the average man every year spends five minutes in the day reading his paper, a very low estimate, we find that the people of the world, altogether annually consume in the reading of papers an amount of time equivalent to 100,000 years.

MURDERERS ARE PAID TO KILL ENEMIES

Recognizes Tariff in Force for Slaying Men in Macedonia.

BRIBES ARE FREQUENT

A correspondent of the London Daily Graphic, writing from the Drama, Macedonia, tells of the bands of murderers that infest the country, and of the part of the bishops of the Greek church take in the work of murder. He says: Some eighteen months ago the foreign agents assisting the old Turkish reforming Macedonia, offered the suggestion that a few of the many murderers in the prisons should be put to death. Up to that time all sentences, even sentences of death, only meant imprisonment until the criminal's friends bribed the Turkish jailor to release them, or at the longest, till the next of many general amnesties. The old regime was merciless towards innocent peasants. But when the weekly murder list began to assume proportions beyond all recognized limits, and the protests of European powers became pressing, the authorities then decided to try the suggestion of the foreign agents. To each town of importance throughout the province orders were sent by the governor-general that a prisoner should be hung in a conspicuous place and that the body should not be cut down for a day.

Here at Drama a spot was selected on the main road outside the town, where there was one of the few large trees that grace this generally treeless country. As the Greeks were the people to whom the lesson was to be sent in this anjal, a Greek, Armen Kotli so, by name, was the man chosen for the rope. He was taken from the prison quietly at daybreak, and unfurled of the scheme, and was surprised when his escort drew up under a tree with a noose dangling from it, having expected only that he was to be shipped into exile. Before the Turks pulled the Greek up they asked if he had anything to say, and he uttered a curious statement about the murder for which he was being hanged. He and a confederate, he said, had set out to kill their man, a Bulgarian, at the instigation of the Greek bishop, of Drama, Monseigneur Chrysostomos, and from him they had received the sum of five pounds.

This evidence given by the man who was about to be launched into eternity, incriminating a Bishop, high in the order of the Greek church, might have surprised the uninitiated European, but it created little excitement at Drama. Later some Greek bandmen, tried in the court of Salonica, gave an account of how Greek bands were organized, and armed, and their stipends only again confirmed the conviction already existing. Recruits, according to the testimony, received their arms from the Greek consuls. A rifle, revolver, and cartridges were given to each man on becoming a member of a band, and he received a salary of three pounds a month, which is considered good remuneration in this country. Besides this, murders were paid for at a recognized rate of from four to six pounds, or more, according to the importance of the man slain.

The Greek bishops have been long accustomed to using fear as a political weapon. Their system is this—or at least this was the typical system of the Bishop of Florina, religious head of the most important Monastir district. In 1904, when the Turks were suppressing in their usual fashion a rebellion of Bulgarians the Greek bishops would go about the country and see the head men of each village, assuring them that they would be molested by the Turkish armies, if they declared themselves as Greeks and enrolled their names on the books of the Greek church. To save themselves from destruction, many Bulgarian communities left the Ex-archate, the Bulgarian church, and became to all intents political Greeks.

In turn, the Bulgarian armed bands retaliated with murders of Greek priests, Greek school teachers, and the head men of Greek villages, making it a rule to leave upon the bodies of their victims, telling the reason for their destruction. It was the old war of the original church against the schismatic Bulgarian creed, the Patriarchate against the Ex-archate, which was not ended with the new government by Young Turks.

For under the Young Turks, every man does what he pleases, and apologues only if he incurs their displeasure. The newspapers slander and blackmail; the petty tradesmen pull themselves up in the open road; the merchant brings in arms and ammunition duty free; anybody may carry a revolver; the brigands are all out of jail. The community is armed as it never was before; arms dealers and people are taking advantage of liberty, as it is called. One of the mushroom journals that recently sprang into being here, declared the other day that "there is more liberty in Turkey than in any other country in the world."

What has the Liberal Government done to stop this? It does not require the tongue of an angel to answer this; all that is necessary is to look about and see the numerous good works which have been undertaken for the benefit of our country and harbor.

The Conservatives will say this (needed government works) was bribing the electorate. Well, this was one charge which could not be laid at the Conservatives' door. They promised nothing and did nothing for Restigouche.

TOR. GLOBE EDITOR ATTACKS GEO. FOSTER

Declares Former Finance Minister of Canada is Practically Dead.

A HARD CRACK

TORONTO, Saturday.—A slashing attack upon Hon. Geo. E. Foster was made by Mr. J. A. McDonald, editor of the Globe, at the opening meeting of the campaign in North Toronto. Mr. McDonald said that he had not intended making any personal reference to Mr. Foster but Mr. Foster had seen fit, both here and elsewhere, to make many references personal to himself and to address those violent accusations directly to him. It would not seem disrespectful to him as our parliamentary representative, were he to ignore his opponent, indeed he had been challenged by Mr. Foster to meet him. He had no objection to a fight for he came of a fighting clan, but he did not propose to hide for a while his own damaged heap. He did not like the place, and therefore Mr. Foster must stand in the muck heap alone.

"Now," continued Mr. McDonald, the member for North Toronto has fouled the politics of Canada. All last session he and his half dozen associates gave themselves up to politics and social scavenging. They gathered together all the suspicious and slanders and innuendoes, and where there were no scandals, they invented them. The muck and dirt of politics they raked up, and under the refuse heap Mr. Foster had hoped to hide for a while his own damaged reputation. Mr. A. W. Wright, one of Mr. Foster's campaigners with the few bold strokes of a character artist, sketches the spectacle of the campaign, Mr. Foster on the muck heap.

Calls Me a Liar
"But Mr. Foster himself is even bolder than Mr. Wright," he declares that I hide behind ink pots and write lies about him. He grows very angry, and says, "I will tell him he lies, I tell him to his face he is a liar." Now that surely is very terrible. Think of being called such frightfully unparliamentary names by your own representative in Parliament.

"But what puzzled me, is why I, why any one, should tell lies about George Foster. If I were his worst enemy, if I disliked him as bitterly as he is disliked by some of his Conservative colleagues in Parliament, why should I tell lies about him? Were I to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, it would be more ruinous to his reputation than all the lies that could be invented between now and election day. The truth is quite good enough."

Mr. McDonald then proceeded to recall Mr. Foster's intrigue and conspiracy, while a member of the Bowell Government the brand of which, he said, was still on Mr. Foster's management of the Union Trust Company, which he said had notoriously discredited his as a financier. "Indeed," he said, "there is one financial institution in Toronto, one bank, one insurance company, one loan company, one trust company, one large institution of any kind, that would today accept the services of George E. Foster, and put him in a position of trust? If not, why?"

"It is because, in a position of the most sacred responsibility he proved unfaithful. Again and again he played fast and loose, not only with the strictest moral obligations, but also with the letter of the law, touching the investment of trust funds."

Mr. Foster in the Pulpit
Mr. McDonald then went on to speak of the fact that Mr. Foster had been in many of the speeches of the campaign, and he said that he (Mr. McDonald) was educated for the ministry and for five years discharged the duties of that profession. "I have no cause," he said, "to regret the opportunities and experience I had in the ministry of my church, it is a noble profession, and if I failed to adorn it the cause was not in my lack of appreciation of its dignity or responsibility. But why should Mr. Geo. E. Foster talk loftily of his position as a preacher? When I first knew Mr. Foster, he was himself something of a preacher. The first time I heard him he was in the pulpit. His chief addresses were delivered on Sunday afternoons, and on one occasion he even ventured on a sermon itself. His text was the great question in the book of Job, 'If a man die, shall he live again?' It does not require much imagination to hear the march of the sermon's battalions and the clang of its symbols. There was the touch of Socrates before he drank the fatal hemlock, the great word of Plato, the soliloquy of Hamlet and the wistful cry of the human heart in every age. I am quite sure it was compelling in its logic and inspiring in its appeal. But, however that may be, whether or not he settled forever the problem of immortality, this I do know, that his record abundantly proves that for a political suicide for the Minister of the Crown who drank the cup of ungrateful treason to his chief, for the public man charged with the management of trust funds who betrayed his trust, for a discredited politician like George E. Foster, there is no resurrection. He is dead. It remains only for the honest electors of North Toronto to carry him out to the place of political obscurity and oblivion."

Canada's present prosperity was not an accident, but the outcome of the wise policy of the Liberal Government.

CLEVER SWINDLER SECURED MUCH MONEY

Got Secret Bank Code Word in a Very Mysterious Manner.

SIGNED W. WINDILL

LONDON, Saturday.—By securing a copy of the code word of the day the London & Southwestern Bank, a clever swindler secured fully $25,000 in one day by presenting orders in the bank's own code transferring imaginary accounts from one branch to the other and then immediately presenting a check to the branch to which the account was said to be transferred. The swindler used a taxicab, driving rapidly from one branch to another until he had secured cash from eight different branches before closing hours.

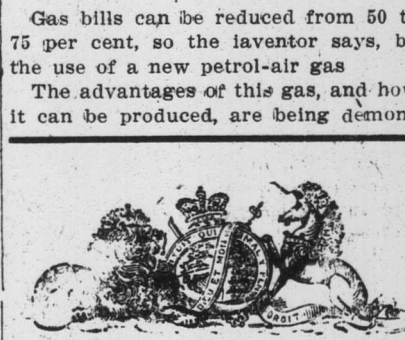

The name the swindler used was "S. Windill," and the code for the day was "Jack," but the remarkable thing is how this code word was secured, for it is changed by the general manager every day, and he and his assistant are the only two men in the head offices supposed to know the word. "S. Windill" appears, however, to have known not only the code word but the internal working systems of the various banks and by this knowledge he succeeded in securing the money so far escaping capture.

We should thrust prejudice aside, and look upon this elusion from purely business principles, and vote in the best interests of Restigouche. That would be a vote for Mr. Reid.

MILLIONS ALONG SOUTH AFRICAN SEA COAST

Capt. Gardiner in London Believes He Has Located Rich Wrecks.

FITTING EXPEDITON

LONDON, Monday.—According to Captain C. A. P. Gardiner, the noted salvage expert, the coast of Africa is strewn with wrecks. The captain, who is now in London after two years locating wrecks on the South African coast, says that from the ships' bills of lading, the treasure is worth $8,000,000 and consists of precious stones, gold, silver, copper and tin.

He is now fitting up a new expedition to the coasts of Africa, where he says he has located thirty-eight wrecks. Twenty-five per cent of the valuables they contain will be retained from the ships' bills of lading, should be recoverable under favorable conditions with the splendid submarine machine now available.

strated in a workshop on Arlington Road, Camden town. The gas is produced by the carburetting of air, with a small proportion of petrol vapor, with the resultant mixture being non-explosive, without smell, and no ill-effects are felt if it is inhaled. Yet, supplied to special burners—through which it can only be lighted—it burns with a great illuminating power and gives out a great heat.
